Strong Nazi Blows Smashed By British on Neder Rhine; Reds Rip Across Yugoslavia

FEW TANKS PUSH ACROSS NEDER RIJN

Counteroffensive Spreads Along Front—Yanks Take Key Town

Supreme Allied Headquarters, Oct. 1 (AP)—British troops on the Arnhem-Nijmegen front tonight fought off the nearest thing to a German counteroffensive since the unsuccessful drive to split the Brittany-bound American armies at Avranches in Normandy two months ago.

Although some German infantry and tanks were able to cross the Neder Rijn at Heissen, four miles southeast of Arnhem, the drive definitely has been broken up, it was reported at supreme Allied headquarters.

Typhoons Rip Up Forces

The massing of Nazi tanks and infantry eight miles north of Nijmegen had been spotted by British forces. Rocket-firing Typhoons were summoned and ripped into the enemy forces.

Field Marshal Walter Model teamed with his Western Front ally, bad weather, to stage his latest attack. It was coordinated in haphazard fashion with stabs that were not quite so strong against the American First Army front southwest of Prum and in the Gremecy forest northeast of Nancy.

None of their thrusts gained any ground for the Germans.

The size of the German force indicated it was not a local counterattack such as have harassed the British Second Army and the airborne American troops since they landed in Holland two weeks ago.

Tried To Nip Spearhead

The Germans apparently had planned to drive east from Huissen and nip off the tip of Lieut. Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey's spearhead, still on the banks of the Neder Rijn west of Arnhem.

The Americans had routed the enemy from a key stronghold 30 miles southeast of Nancy today in one of many battles fought across sodden plains and mountains of northeastern France.

Canadians on the French coast, striking a blow to ease the supply problem for the momentous battles of Europe, captured the French Channel port of Calais and took a total of 5,000 prisoners.

Berlin Predicts Drive

The Berlin radio, adding to the air of expectancy over the 460-mile front, asserted that the British Second Army and the United States First Army had massed strong tank forces for a great offensive that would be aimed east and northeast at the Rhineland.

The British not only shattered two blows at their Nijmegen corridor but also widened it further as strong forces began driving the last enemy across the Maas (Meuse) river, where Tommies already are entrenched along 25 miles of the west bank south of the Siegfried Line's northern terminal at Kleve.

Repel Flame-Throwers

The United States First Army dug deeper into the Siegfried Line from east of the besieged fortress of Aachen to 40 miles nearer Prum, overran a number of pillboxes and repelled attacks by tanks and flame-throwers.

The United States Third Army broke up a big German assault in a four-hour battle 16 miles northeast of Nancy and carved out local gains. At least six m[illegible] enemy tanks were destroyed.

The German communique announced the Seventh Army's capture of Rambervillers, a key position which the enemy has bitterly defended, since it controls important highways 30 miles southeast of Nancy.

Forward elements of the Seventh were only a mile south of the town yesterday and the Allied communique announced today that it had been reached. Rambervillers is only 21 miles west of the Saales Pass through the Vosges Mountains.

Nazi Attacks Fail

Northwest of Belfort, where the Seventh stands only nine miles from the fortress city at the mouth of the gap, the Germans struck violently but failed to dent the American positions.

The enemy's communique said that on spurs, forested mountains and the valley entrances of the Vosges bitter fighting was in progress.

Canadian capture of Calais left Dunkerque the only Channel port in German hands.

Calais' fall yielded a bag of 5,000 prisoners, including the garrison commander, Colonel Schroeder, who abruptly reconsidered his decision to fight to the death as 12,500 tons of bombs as well as shells rained on his positions. He called it quits Saturday night and the last holdout hoisted the white flag Sunday morning.

The British were only three or four miles east of 's-Hertogenbosch—which the enemy has fortified strongly to protect his northern line of retreat out of Holland—and were pressing the Germans [illegible] k in a bloody sect[illegible]ween land and Berlicum.

Press Germans Back

An enemy force charged against the west rim of the corridor south of 'sHertogenbosch, which is 18 miles north of the base of the British corridor at Eindhoven.

East of Eindhoven the British were pressing toward the Maas against only moderate resistance, the Allied communique reported. The Germans were falling back across the stream and digging in for a stand on its east bank from two to five miles from the Reich border.

North of that area the British hold the west bank for a distance of 25 miles northward to within 11 miles of the Siegfried Line's northern terminal at Kleve.

Foe Stills Holds Bridgehead

A British staff officer said that at the apex of the British front in Holland the Germans still held a bridgehead on the south bank of the Nederrijn near Renkum, eight miles west of Arnhem, but it was a small one and was causing no Allied worry.

Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army to the south fought through pillboxes of the Siegfried Line southeast of Aachen. Forty miles below, they were striking toward the prime stronghold of Prum from the southwest, taking [illegible]mber of prisoners.

[illegible]e Germans struck back with [illegible]e-throwers and retook one pillbox but were driven out again.

Under cover of heavy artillery, the Germans also tried to hurl the Americans from positions in the Siegfried Line, south of Stolberg, six miles east of Aachen, but they were repulsed.

The heavy fighting on the Third army front, where Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's forces have destroyed hundreds of enemy tanks, broke out today at Jallaucourt, 16 miles northeast of Nancy.

Only minor action was reported from around the railway city of Metz, but 30 miles to the north, the Third blasted the Germans out of the Luxembourg town of Remich, at the German frontier, which had changed hands twice in fluid fighting.

Germans Retake Abries

Two hundred miles south of the fighting at Belfort, the Germans claimed a local success. A German broadcast said troops had captured the fortified French town of Abries, on Monte Genevre in the Alps five miles from the French-Italian border. The account said Moroccan troops defended the town.

Although some 200,000 Germans were nearly walled off in Western Holland they were showing no inclination to withdraw through the 25-mile wide escape gap between Arnhem and Ijssel Meer (Zuider Zee), a British officer said.

Canadians advancing against part of this force across the Antwerp-Turnhout canal scored gains of several miles northwest of Turnhout, the Allied communique said, but elsewhere there was little change.

FIRST DIVISION FIRST TO BREACH SIEGFRIED LINE

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, Sept. 25—(Delayed) — (AP) The famous Fighting First infantry division has done it again.

The boys proudly wearing No. 1 on their arm patches, who fought through Tunisia and Sicily, whipped an entire German division on the Normandy beaches D-day and then helped engineer the great break-through west of St. Lo, were among the first ground troops to fight their way across the German border and were the first to breach the Siegfried line.

Has Great Record

The battle record of this great combat division is one of the epics of this war, for wherever the fighting has been the heaviest the First division usually has been in the middle of it. They are still "the Fighting First from hell to victory."

It took them just 24 hours to breach the Siegfried defenses east of Aachen in a sudden thrust which Hitler had built along the German border to protect the Reich.

An armored division fighting alongside the first was the first to penetrate the Reich in force on Sept. 14. Tanks rolled across the border just a few minutes before Doughfoots of the first crossed and Lt. Col. Edward Driscoll of Long Island radioed: "this is Driscoll reporting from Germany."

These Doughboys penetrated first into the somber shadows of the Aachen town forest and the next day began the Siegfried assault.

At the spearhead was a company commanded by Capt. Kimball Richmond of Windsor, Vt., a youthful veteran of Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns. Kimball led one of the companies which captured Troina in Sicily in the battle which broke the back of German resistance on the island.

This cagy young warrior, wearing a nondescript cap, sat in a farmhouse and studied his maps and the positions of the German defenses until he figured he had the problem licked.

"I believe I can take my men up this way and slip through," he said. The next day he did it, with tanks helping to knock out pillboxes in the path of his men.

Pierce Siegfried Line

Once through this primary defenses, infantry and tanks pushed on 6,000 yards without a halt and engaged the second belt of defenses. This time the spearhead was a company under the command of Lt. Frank Kolb of Paducah, Ky.

Kolb is only 22 and his superiors worried a little when they put him in command of the company. They knew his capabilities, but it always is a problem to have a youth commanding old-time line sergeants in the middle thirties.

"That kid has enough courage for two men," said Maj. Johnny Lawton of Glendale, Calif. "Now his men follow him anywhere, any time."

There is the secret of the First division's greatness — young, courageous and capable officers and aggressive leadership from the top down.

The division is commanded by Maj. Gen. Clarence Huebner of Kansas, who worked his way up from the ranks as an enlisted man. He took over the Division near the end of the Sicilian campaign and has had it in the van of the American advance all the way across France and Belgium.

Donkey's Shadow Saves Lives Of U. S. Officer And Private

With American Airborne Forces in Holland, Sept. 20 (AP—Delayed)—The lieutenant colonel and the private were in the same ditch dodging the same German Tiger tank in the darkness near Zon, and it looked like curtains for them both until the shadow of a donkey saved their lives.

"Yes, sir, that's right. The shadow of a donkey saved us," said Lieut. Col. Ned Moore, of Guthrie Center, Iowa.

How It All Happened

This is how it happened: Moore took a patrol of 12 men to reconnoiter the strength of German tank forces moving toward the Wilhelmina Canal bridge at Zon, across which supplies for Lieut. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's British Second Army were moving.

Moore had started down the canal bank when he saw the Tiger tank advancing, so he sent part of the patrol back into Zon for help. The patrol lost several men while maneuvering toward the tank to get a bazooka shot, and finally only Moore and two enlisted men were left.

When they were within a few dozen yards from the tank, Moore ordered one man with a bazooka to slip up the canal bank and put a rocket into the tank. The GI missed and became so scared he dropped his bazooka and fled.

Rocket Failed To Stop Tank

Then the second soldier dashed up the bank and plunked a rocket into the tank, but the Tiger rolled right along.

Moore had one rocket left.

"I decided to have a pop at the tank with that, because he was getting pretty close, but that damned rocket jammed and I didn't get my shot," he said.

But the tank was abreast of the Americans, who crouched below the bank, trying to keep under the firing line of the German guns.

Both Pinned In Ditch

As the tank rolled past, it revealed two German infantrymen dog-trotting along behind it, with rifles.

While the tank paused a little way farther along the canal to lob occasional shots into the town of Zon, the German soldiers pinned Moore and his companion down until darkness. Then Moore and the GI made for some woods.

They were heading for a building for shelter, when the tank fired a shot and set it afire. Afraid the Germans would spot their silhouettes, Moore recalled a kid stunt and a made a donkey head with his hands against the flickering flames from the house.

Donkey's Silhouette Fooled Foe

"The fire threw the silhouette of the donkey, as big as a house, right in front of the tank," said Moore.

"What do we do now, sir?" asked the soldier.

"We lie low," Moore replied.

"I'd like to know your name, sir," the soldier said. Moore gave him his name.

"I'm ... J. McCarthy, sir, let's shake on it," said the private.

By the light of the flickering flames, right under the noses of German guns, they solemnly shook on it.

In a little while the Americans knocked out the tank, and McCarthy and his colonel made their way to safety.

Major Henri d'Astier de la Vigerie Leads French Commando Spearhead of Invasion

LUXEUIL, France, Sept. 30 (Delayed) (AP)—The mysterious modern "Scarlet Pimpernel" of the French Commandos, who has led an incredible existence since D-day for southern France, has been identified as Major Henri d'Astier de la Vigerie, brother of a former member of the French Committee of National Liberation in Algiers.

The tall, handsome commander stepped from behind the veil of censorship today to reveal the details of the organization that operated in advance of the French, American and British Armies; overpowering German garrisons, blowing up bridges and trains, scaling château walls, dynamiting German headquarters and maintaining communications between the Allies and the French underground.

He said that, since D-day, his men had carried out 210 military missions with negligible losses. The organization numbers only a few hundred and is furnished with American equipment. The members were trained in American Ranger schools. The organization was formed this year when the major asked for fifty volunteers and within a week received 1,500 applications. All members of the original group were Frenchmen who escaped by devious ways.

Among the most conspicuously successful of the commandos are a priest from Bayonne, several lawyers and a chemist fron Paris, a former Marseille butcher and two internationally known Rugby players. The commandos never wear steel helmets, only berets. They were trained as parachutists in Egypt. They learned mountain-climbing in North Africa.

For the great adventure—the return of French armies to French soil—they crossed the Mediterranean in a sailboat loaded to the gunwales with high explosives. Six hours before H-hour on D-day they swarmed ashore at St. Tropez on the Riviera coast and, since that time they have fought six battles as infantrymen, discovered and helped to silence 100 German batteries and smoothed the way for the Allies' armies in a dozen different ways.

RUSSIANS STRIKE TO CLOSE TRAP ON ENEMY IN BALKANS

Ankara Reports Soviet Troops Push 22 Miles Inside Hungary.

DRIVE ON BUDAPEST

Situation of Polish Patriots in Warsaw Is Termed 'Critical.'

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 2—(AP) Russian troops struck 23 miles deeper into Yugoslavia yesterday, fighting through the mountains of northeastern Serbia to within 43 miles of the Belgrade-Nis railway, main escape hatch for 200,000 Germans imperilled in the lower Balkans.

Simultaneously, an unconfirmed Budapest dispatch via Turkey said other Soviet forces and Romanian contingents had smashed 22 miles inside southeastern Hungary, chewing up the troops of that shaken Axis satellite preliminary to a swift mobile thrust across the farmland plains toward Budapest, Magyar capital less than 100 miles distant. Budapest officially acknowledged Russian gains, but did not disclose their depth.

Silent on Hungarian Drive

Moscow was silent about the Hungarian drive, and also about the Warsaw situation, which Polish patriot reports described as "critical," and where Berlin said the Nazis were badly mauling the dwindling guerrillas.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army—which Berlin says now has poured 30,000 men across the Danube into Yugoslavia below the Romanian city of Turnu-Severin—was reported in Moscow dispatches to be 80 miles east of Belgrade, Yugoslav capital, with Marshal Tito's Yugoslav partisans acting as advance scouts.

The Soviet communique disclosed that one Red army spearhead had veered southwest in a push toward Nis, big rail junction of lines radiating to Belgrade, Sofia and Salonika. This group, skirting the Timok river, a tributary of the Danube, captured Vrazogrnac, only 50 miles northeast of Nis.

Vrazogrnac is on a spur railway which turns westward to meet the Nis-Belgrade trunk line in the Morava valley at Paracin, only 43 miles away. It is 23 miles beyond Negotin, southernmost point reached by the Russians Saturday.

A midnight supplementary communique said the Germans resisted this advance stubbornly, basing themselves on easily defensible terrain, but were outflanked. A battalion of perhaps 800 Germans, among reinforcements sent into the area, was wiped out.

Capture Danube Craft

A Russian flotilla on the Danube captured nine German cutters used in mine-sweeping operations, it added.

Drive to Meet Partisans

A link-up in force with Tito's partisans also appeared to be imminent, if not already accomplished, because his army units last were reported operating just a few miles south of Vrazogrnac in this area near the Bulgarian frontier.

Prahovo and Dusanovac, five miles northeast and north, respectively, of Negotin, and near the Danube were among 10 hamlets captured by the Russians as the Germans strove desperately to keep them from breaking out of the big bend.

The Russians now hold a north-south front of 50 airline miles inside Yugoslavia, and must fight their way through mountains rising as high as 3,500 feet in order to reach the Morava valley and Belgrade. Front reports said Red army men were manhandling heavy artillery up the steep west banks of the Danube in a steady build-up of the bridgehead.

The Yugoslav sector was the only front mentioned in the Soviet bulletin, one of the shortest of the war.

An Ankara broadcast quoted a Budapest dispatch as saying the Red army had penetrated 22 miles inside Hungary after crossing the southeastern frontier on a 93-mile front, but termed the operation as only "softening up blows before the all-out drive across the Hungarian plains which is expected shortly."

Budapest was "nervously tense," said the Ankara broadcast.

The official Hungarian bulletin broadcast by Budapest said the fresh Russian gains were punched out on 11-mile front between Mako and Csanadpalota. The latter is east of Mako, captured town which is only 15 miles east of Szeged, Hungarian's second largest city. The Hungarians again spoke of "far superior" Russian and Romanian troops attacking their wavering lines.

Nazis Battle near Oradea

Bitter figthing also swirled around Oradea, big western Romanian communications city near the Hungarian frontier 100 miles northeast of Szeged. The fall of Oradea would cut the main escape route for Nazi-Hungarian garrisons at imperilled Cluj, Transylvanian capital 80 miles to the east.

Inside ruined Warsaw the situation "has become critical," said a communique from headquarters of Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (General Bor). With the Russians, who took Praga suburb Sept. 14, unable to force a crossing in strength of the intervening Vistula river, the Polish patriots who arose Aug. 1 against the Germans were being chopped to pieces.

The Nazis were using flame-throwers, grenades, tanks and big guns in a systematic blasting of houses and cellars held by inadequately-armed Poles. Polish headquarters admitted that contact had been lost with units in Zoliborz, a northern district of the Polish capital, and Berlin said the majority of the patriots there had been wiped out and 2,000 captured.

There still was fighting in the center of the city, but the Poles were being pressed back to the west, and had lost Mokotow district in the south. In the Kampinoska forest, eight miles northwest of Warsaw, the Poles also were forced to retreat and 600 were killed, Berlin said.

In Moscow, Edward Osubka-Morawski, president of the Polish National Liberation committee which opposes the London Polish government, said that Warsaw would not be won "until it is completely encircled."

Hold Steel Pillboxes

The Germans, estimated at 200,000 in the Warsaw sector, hold a formidable series of steel and concrete pillboxes with mobile turrets in the area. "The German command attaches great importance to holding Warsaw and the Vistula line at all costs," Osubka-Morawski said.

Baltic front dispatches left little doubt that the siege of Riga, Latvian capital, would be a long, bitter struggle. After evacuating thousands of battle-weary Nazis through the narrow corridor along the Gulf of Riga coast, the German command rushed up fresh reinforcements to hold their strong defense line on the northeastern, eastern and southern sides of Riga.

Germany's Yugoslav frontier defense line was snapped by the Russians with surprising ease when they crossed the Danube several days ago, front reports said.

The line mostly was a series of machinegun nests mounted on the steep western banks of the river. Soviet patrols crossed the river in canoes, fishing boats and on rafts, scaled the hills and scouted out enemy positions ahead of following waves of riflemen, machinegunners and light artillerymen. Finally heavy artillery was ferried across and hastened the German retreat into the mountains.

British Drive Germans From 3 Greek Islands

London, Monday, Oct. 2 (AP)—A BBC broadcast of a Cairo report early today said "the Germans have had to give up three islands between Crete and Greece to British Commando troops."

One island, the name of which was given as Kythera, is six miles off the Greek mainland. The other two islands were not located and the date of the action in which they were taken from the Germans was not given.

New Zealanders Send Gift Of Food To Greeks

Wellington, N. Z., Oct. 1 (AP)—Arrangements have been completed for a shipment of foodstuffs as a gift to the people of Greece, upon their liberation, presented by the Government and people of New Zealand, Prime Minister Peter Fraser said today.

The two nations are bound by special ties from their common fight in the dark days of 1941, Fraser said.

Tito's Forces Capture Strong Point In Serbia

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—Marshal Tito's Partisans captured the German strongpoint of Sopot, 20 miles south of Belgrade, in their drive coordinated with the Russian army push into Yugoslavia, Tito's broadcast communique said tonight.

The Yugoslavs were said to have routed 6,000 enemy troops, inflicting 2,500 casualties, farther south in the Rasina river sector.

The communique said that Tito's forces helped the Red army by slashing at German communications throughout Serbia.

EISENHOWER TO AUSTRIANS

"Prepare For Arrival Of Allies" He Says In Broadcast

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—A spokesman for General Eisenhower told the Austrians in a broadcast tonight "to prepare for the arrival of the Allies."

"The time has come for Austrians to give positive and active proof of their willingness to dissociate themselves from their German masters," the supreme commander said in official instructions broadcast at 1.30 P. M.

"Austrians, in town and country, should form in all their local communities clandestine committees for the arrival of the Allies. These committees should be ready to provide all possible help for the Allies in regard to administration of local affairs, the purge of the Nazis, the preparation of black and white lists and the preservation of food stocks, together with a safeguarding of transport and machinery."

May Escape War's Devastation

The Austrians were told if these instructions were followed, the chances of Austria becoming a devastated theater of war—as the Nazis wish it to become—would be lessened.

The Moscow radio similarly called on Austrians today to "start a civil war now" and to strike boldly and quickly to help aid Allied strategy.

The broadcast, recorded by Reuter, said: "All German administration officers in Austria must get a bullet through their hearts. You can help finish this war before the end of this year."

The Moscow radio said that more than 10,000 Austrians had been thrown into concentration camps by Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler. Dr. Karl Seitz, former Socialist Mayor of Vienna, was among those arrested.

WEATHER GROUNDS ALLIED BOMBERS

LONDON, Oct. 1—(AP) All American and RAF heavy bombers were grounded today due to weather on this opening day of October, traditionally a bad month in Allied air operations, but rocket-firing typhoons from continental bases struck furiously at German tanks north of Nijmegen in Holland.

The Typhoons swept into the tanks in an effort to break up a projected Nazi attack on British lines at Huissen.

An RAF spokesman said the weather had improved tonight. The Frankfurt radio went off the air about 10 o'clock, indicating that Allied bombers were again operating behind enemy lines.

British Mustangs surprised a German submarine and destroyer off the coast of Denmark just before sundown. Strikes were scored on the destroyer's superstructure and decks and the surfaced U-boat was raked with fire from zero levels.

During October last year the U. S. Eighth Air force bombers found only seven operational days, and three in October, 1942. This was in sharp contrast to 20 days of bomber blows at targets in Germany last month, with fighters out every day.

Low-flying Mosquitos last night struck Hamburg and Western Germany objectives, and Intruders swept over targets behind the Siegfried Line.

Canadian pilots flew over two airfields in the Munich area not more than 10 feet above the ground, destroyed three German fighters and damaged several others.

RAF Typhoons ripping over German defense lines late yesterday destroyed or damaged 27 transport vehicles, 95 barges, 174 rail cars, and seven locomotives.

The RAF bomber command in a summary said 11,500 tons of explosives were dropped on the German garrison at Calais between Sept. 20 and the start of the truce on Thursday to allow evacuation of civilians.

Dover Finds New Quiet Difficult to Comprehend

War-Numb Citizens Just Smile on Hearing Calais Is Freed

DOVER, Oct. 1 (AP).—Liberated Dover, in its strange new freedom from shellfire, was too numb today after four years of front-line terror to realize right away the meaning and the goodness of quiet and peace.

There were bright smiles—and that was all—when the British Broadcasting Corporation gave first place to the news: "Calais has been liberated."

Churches at Dover had special thanksgiving services and the mayor, J. C. Cairns, raised the town flag, at a little ceremony, to the top of the old town hall tower.

Every train into Dover brought civilians back to greet those who had stayed through the worst. In their modest Sunday best, they mingled with dusty workers clearing away the rubble caused by the last salvos the Germans had fired in hate and spite from positions near Calais.

Mayor Cairns said the city's normal population of 42,000 dropped to 14,500 and then gradually rose to 18,000—until the last three worst weeks, when another exodus began.

ROBOT STUDIED BY SCIENTISTS

Sudden Silence During Dive Held "Fortunate Accident"

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—Those few precious seconds during the dive of the flying bomb which undoubtedly saved the lives of hundreds of persons were a fortunate accident, British scientists have learned.

The buzzbomb's engines almost always cut off just as they started diving, and this silence told those underneath to start diving too. But it is believed now that the Germans really intended the bombs to roar down under full motor to increase their destructiveness.

A tiny propeller in the nose of the robots was set to govern the distance traveled and after it had turned the required times it automatically locked the controls and put down small tail tabs that threw the robot into a steep dive.

Contrary To German Intention

But this maneuver threw the fuel to the top of the tank and, contrary to the German intention, the engine was stopped.

Detailed examination of the remains of hundreds of flying bombs also disclosed that about three per cent. carried small radio transmitters, and with the aid of a trailing aerial, sent continuous signals during flight so their courses could be followed by triangulation from listening points on two sides of the launching sites.

Experts reported that the whole crude little airplane was very inexpensive to construct but very wasteful in the use of fuel.

It weighed about 4,700 pounds, including its 2,000-pound explosive warhead, and its simple jet propulsion engine developed about 600 horsepower which gave a speed of 360 miles per hour.

The course of the bomb was set by a gyroscope and a magnetic compass and the altitude of the flight was controlled by an aneroid barometer mechanism.

LONDON SEES POLAND FACED BY CIVIL WAR

OCT 2 1944

Soviet Backing Of Moscow Group Held Rebuff For U. S.-British Stand

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—The struggle between Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's exiled Polish Government in London and the rival Soviet-sponsored National Committee of Liberation in Moscow for political control of Poland approached the exploding point today in a controversy which may breed civil war within the unhappy land.

Mikolajczyk's bid for friendship of the committee and Russia through replacement of Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski as commander-in-chief of Polish forces by Gen. Tadeusz (Bor) Komorowski drew such a violent reaction in Moscow—apparently with Stalin's approval—that it virtually eliminated any hopes of effecting a reconciliation between the rival political groups.

Bor's Trial Threatened

President Osubka Morawski, president of the Moscow Committee, in a press conference in the Russian capital, expressed determination to bring to criminal trial those in the London Government responsible for the untimely Warsaw uprising.

He denounced Komorwski, leader of the Warsaw fighting, as a criminal and said the London Government was "crazy" for appointing him commander in chief.

London Poles, officially silent on the committee President's blast pending a Cabinet consulation, were frankly stunned by its ramifications. Nor were they alone in their astonishment, for it raised diplomatic implications far more important than the denunciation of individuals.

Held Creation Of Russia

The Moscow Polish Liberation Committee has been regarded in London as a creation of Russia with its power derived from the Red army and its words reflecting the views of the Kremlin.

Thus Morawski's statement on the latest peace move was deemed a Russian rebuff not only for the London Poles but also for Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who have been the prime movers in urging upon Premier Mikolajczyk and President Wladyslaw Raczkewicz the necessity for sacrificing General Sosnkowski in the interest of accord.

Serious Allied Rift Feared

As a result it may turn the question of Anglo-Soviet-Polish relations, even now so delicate Churchill cautioned Commons last Thursday against discussions which might lead to greater misunderstanding, into a serious rift in Allied relations.

It can be said without qualification that the question of Poland's future has been a factor in cool exchanges between Eden and Soviet Ambassador Fyodor Gusev in the past and was a major reason for the Foreign Secretary's sudden departure for Quebec to urge a firmer hand and a clearer understanding in dealing with Russia.

Meanwhile, it was understood in London that both Churchill and President Roosevelt, the latter through Ambassador John G. Winant, have assured Mikolajczyk of support of the London Polish government through thick and thin, regardless of Soviet backing of the rival group.

Bitterness in Moscow

MOSCOW, Oct. 1 (AP).—Controversy between Polish leaders in Russia and Great Britain reached a new peak of bitterness today with the Soviet-backed Polish Committee of National Liberation determined to bring to criminal trial those in the London exile government whom the committee holds responsible for Warsaw's tragic uprising.

A verbal attack directed chiefly against the London Poles' new commander in chief, General Tadeusz Bor-Komorowski, who led the Warsaw fighting, was made at a committee press conference here last night and was significantly quoted in full by all Soviet morning newspapers.

General Osubka Morawski, president of the committee, said the Londoners were "crazy" for making Bor the new commander. The committee favors its own defense chief, Colonel General Mihail Rola-Zymierski.

Morawski also asserted the London Poles were not ready even yet to give up the dictatorial constitution of 1935 formulated by Marshal Pilsudski, which must be done if a unified provisional government ever is agreed upon.

Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the London government and three or four others of his political hue still would be accepted by the liberation committee, Morawski said, but he gave no indication that the committee would make any compromise in order to win them over.

The committee's unbending attitude was indorsed today in an editorial in the Communist party newspaper "Pravda," which said:

"The crisis of the emigre government is a crisis of all Poles. London is separated from the Polish people and the living Poland. The crisis is too profound to be solved by some changes in personnel. On the contrary, these changes will aggravate the internal struggle going on in the camp of these political failures."

The editorial classed Wladyslaw Rackewicez, president of the London government, as the equal among anti-Soviet nationalist extremists of his ousted War Minister, Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, who was succeeded by Komorowski. It said nothing in praise of Mikolajczyk.

But Relief Aid Still Sought

Regardless of Poland's political troubles, the committee was making appeals for relief and supplies from the Soviet Union and the Allies, principally the United States.

The committee vouched for these reports: 250,000 killed in Warshaw since the fighting started August 1; 400 civilians killed daily in the suburb of Praga by German artillery fire from across the Vistula river; serious epidemics raging on both sides of the river; widespread misery, starvation and death certain unless liberated areas receive food, medicine and clothing.

PLANNED ECONOMY AIM OF DE GAULLE

OCT 2 1944

State Control Of Industry Promised Throng At Lille

Lille, France, Oct. 1 (AP)—The Government of France will direct reconstruction and economic activity of the entire nation by a planned economy, Gen. Charles de Gaulle declared today.

In his first visit to his native city since before the German occupation, de Gaulle stood on a balcony in a drenching rain and told a cheering audience of 20,000, "we do not want to go back to the pre-war political, social and moral situation which took us to the brink of the abyss."

The French leader said, "our economic duty is to make the fullest use of what we have in our soil, our subsoil and our empire. The only way we can do that is by means of what is called planned economy. We want the state to direct the economic activity of the entire nation."

Control Of Mines First Step

He said the Government already had taken steps toward this planned economy by taking over control of mines. Entire control of the country's economy will not be taken over at once, he explained, "but it shall be carried out in due time. It shall be an organization of industry in which all who participate shall be considered associates."

In outlining his program, however, de Gaulle went on to say that "we must have state control without, at the same time, excluding initiative and profit . . . we have got to have participation of workers and management without conflicting in any way with those having the responsibility of direction."

Crowd Cheers His Pledge

If the audience in this city of textile and chemical plants and coal mines regarded this as possibly a middle-of-the-road trend, it did not say so, but shouted itself hoarse with "Vive de Gaulle," as the tall general continued:

"The planned economy is for the benefit of all . . . so that every French man and woman shall have a better life. We no longer can permit the concentration of interests which in England and America are called trusts and which today do not meet the needs of social betterment.

"We are going to show the world and ourselves that the suffering and humiliation of the past four years have not been for nothing. We are a great people who know what we want and what we are going to do."

Says Army Will Fight To End

De Gaulle declared that the army of France would fight on beside the Allies to the end of the war.

His automobile trip from Paris to Lille was a triumphant parade through crowds that lined the roads at every village. He reached Lille last night, briefly reviewed French Forces of the Interior, and then conferred with regional officials.

Much of the discussion concerned plans to resume coal production, which is virtually at a standstill. Workers prevented the Germans from damaging the mines but disrupted transportation has made it impossible to get timber for new mining, which is vital to the whole country.

Mistinguette Still Insures Her Legs

Paris, Oct. 1 (AP)—Mlle. Mistinguette, blonde singing star of the Casino de Paris for the last quarter of a century, still has her legs insured for fabulous sums.

"When I was in New York they were worth $3,000,000—now I still insure them because I must go on a bicycle, which is very dangerous," she said, showing a shapely leg with a big black bruise.

Mistinguette seems unchanged since before the war—indeed, since the first World War, when she was the darling of American troops who flocked to see her and Maurice Chevalier. She visited the United States in 1923 and in 1936-37.

Singing a verse of the song, "I Am Looking For a Millionaire," she showed how she made fun of German officers at one performance she was forced to make at the Casino de Paris during the occupation.

When France fell, she spent two years quietly in unoccupied France until she was called to Paris by the Germans.

Mistinguette, who is appearing next week in a camp show for United States Air Forces near Paris, hopes to play in the Casino de Paris soon.

"I hope to go to New York again," she added. "I love the Americans and loved singing there.

French Children Return To Freed Schools Today

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 1—With German-banned books restored — and books glorifying Germany and Marshal Henri-Philippe Pétain eliminated — several million French children will return tomorrow to elementary schools freshly arrayed with the republic's tricolor and portraits of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the French Government.

The happy enactment in reverse of the historic painting "The Last Class"—showing a heroic teacher defying oncoming Germans in the previous war—will take place throughout this country, still extensively disrupted by war. As a result of some Allied shipments of paper, school officials hoped they would not be short of either textbooks or notebooks.

The country still lacks transportation and communications, and the heating of schools is going to be an early problem. Many pupils are stranded in country evacuation points. Some of their pre-war teachers are prisoners in Germany. Other teachers are excluded as the authorities continue to compile "black" and "white" lists of those who collaborated and those who did not.

FRENCH JOURNALISTS WILL BE LICENSED

PARIS, Oct. 1 (AP)—All French journalists will have to be licensed by the government starting in April, 1945, the Agente Française de Presse disclosed tonight in its summary of the newly published Government press ordinances.

Licenses may be denied to newspaper, radio and magazine writers and commentators who, since June 16, 1940, evidenced in words "insufficient patriotism" or an attitude insufficiently "independent in regard to the enemy or the de facto Government that collaborated with the enemy," the agency said. These license-deciding attributes will be passed on by a commission "whose composition will be established in a later decree," according to the agency, which said that these factors were aside from overt acts of treason and "national unworthiness."

These ordinances empower the Commissioner of Information for the duration to regulate the paper allotment, format, size, sale price and the frequency of publication of all periodicals, the agency revealed.

Maurras Trial Reported Begun

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—The Toulouse radio reported tonight that the trial of Charles Maurras, leader of the French Royalist Action Francaise, who was arrested in Lyon September 9, has begun, according to a broadcast from Brazzaville recorded today by CBS.

German Plane Plants Found In French Mines

Algrange, France, Oct. 1 (AP)—The German aircraft industry, driven underground by Allied bombings, was disclosed today to have been converting French iron mines in this area into bombproof factories on a huge scale.

One elaborate subterranean plant at Algrange was scheduled to start mass production this month and planned eventually to turn out 1,000 Messerschmitt fighter planes a month.

The plan was interrupted by Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's troops when they captured the Algrange mine and another at nearby Fontoy in the same sweep which seized the big underground robot-bomb factory at Thil, eight miles to the north.

In the Algrange mine alone, the Americans captured 300 tons of sheet aluminum, stored underground, along with millions of dollars worth of equipment which was crated and stacked in the mine's labyrinthian passages. Additional hundreds of tons of materials, still to be inventoried, were found in the Fontoy mine.

Most French Art Treasures Found Unhurt

Venus de Milo, Mona Lisa, Bayeaux Tapestry Safe; Noted Structures Survive

LONDON, Oct. 1 (AP).—Most of France's national art treasures are safe and numerous old buildings and monuments escaped destruction, an Allied Supreme Headquarters Commission made known tonight.

The renowned Bayeux tapestry was found in the vaults of the Louvre Museum when Allied troops entered Paris, although the Vichy government had tried to have it removed, and the "Mona Lisa," the "Venus de Milo" and Michael Angelo's "Slave" are all safe.

Lieutenant Colonel G. F. Webb, former Slade professor of fine arts at the University of Cambridge and now adviser to the monuments, fine arts and archives section of Supreme Headquarters, said the Bayeux tapestry was in good condition.

So far as can be ascertained at this time, he said, there has been no considerable German looting in France of nationally owned art treasures, but private collections, especially those owned by Jews, have suffered.

Colonel Webb's section, a force of ten specialist officers, said the Chartres Cathedral is practically undamaged. The Church of St. Pierre at Chartres is untouched.

When the Germans burned Beauvais, in 1940, the bishop's palace and the school were destroyed, but the blaze stopped within twenty feet of the cathedral.

The Troyes Cathedral did not escape, but forty-seven paintings taken by the Germans from the museum there to decorate officers' quarters are believed to be still in Troyes.

The basilica at Lisieux and the Convent of St. Therese remain amid the ruins of that Normandy town.

Nazis Warned Of Poor Potato Crop Prospects

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—Nazi Reichsminister Herbert Backe warned the German people in a broadcast today that the potato crop would be mediocre following last year's bad harvest, and presented a gloomy view of the food situation.

"More than in any other year of this war, nutrition will depend upon the German harvest and German production," he said. "Large and important occupied territories with their substantial food supplies can no more be included in our plans."

NAZI PROPAGANDA SEES FIRM DEFENSE LINES

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 1 (AP)—Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels has opened a new propaganda campaign to bolster German morale. The High Command is pictured as believing the luck of the war will change again in German favor.

Writing in the Angriff, Dr. Robert Ley, Labor Front leader, declared the miracle had happened, that the defenses in the east and west had been built up again. He said every village and city was being made a fortress, and promised that the moment would come when Germans will attack and march forward.

Other Nazi newspapers declared Germany was in position to continue the war through the winter, when a change in fortunes of battle would come, the Berlin correspondent of the Dagens Nyheter said. Another newspaper said the crisis of all crises had passed, and credited Field Marshal Walther von Model with saving the German armies in France from chaos.

Belgian Editor, Soldier Sentenced As Traitors

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—Paul Joseph Herten, who acted as a director of the pro-Nazi publications Cassandre and Le Nouveau Journal, and Gaston Hoogeveen, a soldier, were sentenced to death yesterday by the first session of the court-martial trying traitors in Brussels, the Brussels radio reported today.

The broadcast, reported by the Federal Communications Commission, said that among a number of charges brought against the pair was one concerning the betrayal of a Belgian student to the Nazis.

FINNS CAPTURE GERMAN FORCE

Enemy Equipment Also Taken, Helsinki Reports

Stockholm, Oct. 1 (AP)—Finnish troops advancing through Lapland in their campaign to disarm and intern German troops announced today, for the first time, the capture of a small Nazi force.

The Helsinki communique said German prisoners were taken near Pudasjarvi on the II river, in central Finland, as the Finns continued to press forward after the retiring Nazi troops. German equipment, including motor transport, also was captured, the communique said.

The Finns also reported that their troops, fulfilling the terms of their armistice with Russia, had passed the village of Taivalkoski, east of Pudasjarvi, and that the Germans burned and destroyed farms in the area before evacuating.

Battle In Tornea Reports

Swedish newspaper reports from Haparanda telling of fighting directly across the border in Tornea were not mentioned by Helsinki. The correspondent of the newspaper Aftonbladet said explosions and shooting could be heard through the night.

[A broadcast by the Swedish radio said that "fires are burning in many places" in Tornea, one of them being the Tornea schoolhouse which the Germans were using as a barracks.

[CBS quoted the British radio as saying the Finns had driven the Germans out of Tornea "after making a night landing on the gulf and sending up motorized forces by a land route." The Germans were reported by BBC as "moving up for a counterattack."]

Foes Only 50 Yards Apart

Aftonbladet's correspondent said there was a lull in the Tornea fighting in the early morning but during the forenoon it flared anew apparently after reinforcements had arrived for both sides. Swedes standing in the Haparanda water tower and observing the battle across the border said that in addition to the high school the Germans were entrenched in the Hotel Funk. Fifty yards away, they reported, the Finns were holding the customs house.

Swedish reports also said detonations could be heard in the direction of Kemi, Finnish port on the Gulf of Bothnia about a mile and a half southeast of Tornea. The Germans previously had been reported destroying equipment and harbor installations in Kemi preparatory to evacuating the town.

[NBC Reporter Bjorn Bjornson in northern Finland said the Finns "are now moving their best men and material into impending fierce battles with the Germans in Lapland."]

Swedish Papers Aid Nazis, Says Pravda

Moscow, Oct. 1 (AP)—The Communist party newspaper Pravda sharply criticized Sweden today, charging editorially that "certain Swedish papers are in the hands of Goebbels' organizations (German Propaganda Ministry) which have made nests in Stockholm and operate there without restraint."

"It appears this kind of practice coincides with the Swedish idea of 'pure neutrality,'" Pravda said.

German propaganda is quoting Swedish press opinion about the Russo-Finnish armistice terms, the editorial declared.

SAVIGNANO TAKEN BY BRITISH TROOPS

Eighth Army Captures Town 10 Miles Inland on Rimini-Bologna Highway

AMERICANS SMASH BLOW

Third Counter-Attack at Mount Battaglia Crushed—Gains Made Farther West

ROME, Oct. 1 (AP)—British Eighth Army troops have captured Savignano, ten miles inland from the Adriatic on the Rimini-Bologna highway, after several days of bitter fighting, and have thrown the Germans back at some points from their strong Fiumicino River line, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Despite rains that hampered movements, the Eighth Army has cleared the east bank of the river from the coast to Savignano. Southwest of that twon it occupied Tribola and Montalbano.

Americans of the Fifth Army knocked back a third and powerful German counter-blow aimed at recapturing Mount Battaglia, a commanding height eleven miles from Imola and the lateral highway to Bologna. Elements of at least three German divisions, strongly supported by artillery and flame-throwers, charged in the vain effort to oust the Americans from the mountain overlooking the Po Valley. The Fifth Army's troops there threaten the main supply line of the Germans in the Adriatic sector.

Two miles farther west along this central front in Italy, Americans attacked Mount Cappella, where the Germans were stubbornly defending strong positions. Still farther west the American won ground north of Giugnola, eighteen miles south of Bologna, and cleared enemy remnants from Mount Fredente, twenty-one miles southwest of the city.

The Germans have rushed reinforcements from other Apennine areas against the American thrust. It is making slow progress through mud and rain.

On the west coastal sector the Germans stepped up artillery fire against Brazilian and other Allied units maintaining pressure on mountain strongholds.

Despite foul weather, the Allies' bombers struck nine bridges in the Milan and Venice areas yesterday in the campaign to isolate the Germans in the Po Valley. Fighter-bombers cut Po Valley railways in twenty-one places.

Mediterranean Air Post Goes To General Morris

Rome, Oct. 1 (AP)—Appointment of Brig. Gen. Edward M. Morris, former chief of the 12th Fighter Command, to succeed Brig. Gen. Robert Kauch as commander of the Mediterranean Air Transport Service was announced today at a ceremony at Mediterranean air force headquarters, in which Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker pinned the Legion of Merit on Kauch.

Kauch is returning to the United States to accept an undisclosed assignment. His home is in Garden City, N. Y.

Morris assumed charge of the 12th Fighter Command last February. His home is in Austin, Texas. Both he and Kauch began their army flying careers in the first World War.

Italy's Queen Appeals For 'Spools Of Thread'

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—Queen Elena of Italy, a National War Fund agency said today, has appealed to an American friend for "some spools of white thread" because "there is no more here."

American Relief for Italy, Inc., said the Queen made the request in a letter to a New York woman. She spends her time, the letter said, "making clothes and embroidering bibs."

Brazil's War Minister Given Command In Italy

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Oct. 1 (AP)—Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra, Brazilian Minister of War, has been assigned by Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark to temporary command of a sector on the Fifth Army front which is held by Brazilian, American and British troops.

The War Minister, who has been making a close inspection of all Brazilian and Fifth Army installations in this theater, will return to Brazil after his temporary command, General Clark's headquarters announced.

Dutra and his party moved up today through the rugged mountains held by the Brazilians and made a personal visit to son ward positions. He drove over r.. clawed out of the mountains by Brazilian engineers and over bridges they had constructed after the Germans had hastily destroyed spans in their retreat.

30. 24 — 19253

Accompanying the War Minister was Maj. Gen. Joao Baptista Mascarenhas, commander of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force. They attended mass conducted by Chaplain Joao Pheeney at the forward command post of Brigadier General Zenobia.

Combat Duty Day Upon Day

By Noland Norgaard

Rome, Sept. 30 (AP)—When the Fifth Army distributes service chevrons in the next few weeks—one for each six months overseas—some 700 veteran Minnesota fighting men will get five each.

These old-timers are all who remain of more than 3,000 former Minnesota National Guardsmen of the 135th Regiment which sailed for Ireland and England in April, 1942. Of the nearly 1,000 days they have been overseas, 300 days and nights have been spent in actual front-line fighting in Africa and Italy.

Story Disclosed For First Time

The Allied command disclosed for the first time the full story of the 135th Infantry, whose role in the Mediterranean war has been one of the toughest any United States unit has carried out.

The equivalent of nearly a division of replacements has passed through this regiment, largely to make up for casualties suffered in those 300 days of fighting. Close to 1,000 men have been killed, several thousand wounded.

Still Going Strong

Replacements were drawn from everywhere in the United States, but the sturdy 700 Minnesota veterans are still going strong.

For instance there is Master Sergeant Harold Hermansen, of Minneapolis, of the Regimental Service Company, who refused a home furlough because he wanted to see the war out. And there is Capt. James F. Garfield, of Minneapolis, who went alone ahead of his unit without a mine detector, and dug out 23 deadly anti-personnel mines so his men could advance.

Warriors of the 135th have won 22 Distinguished Service Crosses, 119 Silver Stars, 187 Bronze Stars and 26 battlefield promotions. Even the medical detachment, commanded the whole time by Major Vil-heim Johnson, of Lawson, Minn., is one of the more-decorated units of its kind. With a strength of 126 men, it has received 61 awards, including two DSCs.

Replacements As Brave

Replacements have established outstanding records, too. Lieut. Sylvester J. Hunter, of St. Louis, Mo., won a DSC at Cassino and later at Rosingnano schemed out a plan which gave his men good positions at small cost. The Nazis had a habit of attacking in early evenings to screen their night withdrawals. Hunter taught his men to wait out the attacks, then pass quickly through the German assault troops and grab good ground. This worked so well that sometimes not a man was wounded in the swift exchange of positions, and Germans were mightily confused.

The regimental commander, Col. Ashton H. Manhart, of Salt Lake City, said the Rosingnano fighting was as tough as any he has seen, despite the regiment's smash into Nazi Rome defenses, when the Third Battalion alone killed more than 300 Germans. The Second Battalion cleaned out sniper nests around the famed, ancient Coliseum.

CHENNAULT GIVES UP FOURTH BASE

OCT 2 1944

Advanced Field At Tanchuk Evacuated And Destroyed

Chungking, Oct. 1 (AP)—The Japanese offensive that swept through Hunan and on south through Kwangsi province has driven the American air force from a fourth base, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters admitted today.

The advanced base at Tanchuk was "evacuated and destroyed several days ago," it was announced, in advance of Japanese forces that cut through the southern part of Kwangsi province. Tanchuk is 47 miles west of Wuchow, Kwangsi river port. Both fell in a lightning enemy drive.

Despite the loss of this base, the 14th Air Force struck repeatedly with fighters and fighter-bombers at Japanese forces in Kwangsi province.

Other Bases Abandoned

Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's air force previously had been forced from bases at Hengyang and Lingling in Hunan province and Kweilin, in Kwangsi.

While the Japanese still are at least 30 miles from Kweilin, provisional Kwangsi capital, outflanking thrusts to the south, as well as the frontal menace, prompted the air force to relinquish its base there some time ago.

The Chinese high command reported no further Japanese gains today in the enemy drive on Kweilin, but reported street fighting still raged in Paoching, 140 miles north.

From the base at Poaching, the Chinese have been harassing the right flank of the Japanese drive on Kweilin, and the enemy command apparently decided to knock out the Chinese here before resuming the southward drive, part of the strategy to split China in half.

General Stilwell's Report

General Stilwell's headquarters also reported:

"Following up the all-time record sinking of Japanese shipping for the month, bombers of the 14th AAF during the week of September 21-27 sank 28,800 tons of ocean-going vessels, probably sank 1,700 tons more and damaged 4,300 tons.

"In addition aircraft of the 14th AAF and Major General Chennault's Chinese-American wing destroyed 52 other vessels of less than 100 feet in length, probably sank a tug and river gunboat and damaged 31 miscellaneous vessels, largely river shipping on the Japanese water supply lanes along the west river from Canton and northward from the Luichow peninsula through Jangyun to Tanchuk.

"In the Lingling-Kweilin area the southeasterly pincer columns flanking Kweilin as well as rearward supply lines to Hengyang and Tungting Lake sector were slowed by heavy air attacks.

39 Enemy Planes Hit

"Direct air operations against enemy troops and air support of the Chinese armies on the Paoching flank where the Japanese stalled during the week continued.

"In northern Hunan province 34 to 38 enemy fighters attempted interception over Sinshih and on a second mission approximately 20 of the enemy were contacted over Sintsiang. Thirteen Japanese planes were destroyed, seven probably destroyed and 19 damaged. The 14th AAF lost none. One enemy bomber was destroyed in air combat during the week."

ALLIES RENEW CONTACT WITH JAPS IN BURMA

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon Oct. 1—(AP)—Allied troops of the Fifth Indian division have renewed contact with enemy forces near chocolate staircase, a long series of hairpin bends by which the road climbs 3,000 feet into Tiddim, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

Tiddim, main objective of the current Allied Chin Hills offensive, was the Japanese Burma base for the enemy's unsuccessful Indian invasion of last spring.

Although bad weather restricted aerial operations, headquarters said RAF Beaufighters attacked shipping in the Gulf of Martaban while Spitfires of the Eastern Air command strafed troop concentrations in the Buthedaung area.

Peleliu Battle Nears End; Japs Cling to Vital Ridge

Over 10,000 Enemy Soldiers Killed in Palaus, Nimitz Reports.

McMurty

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 1—(AP) American forces have secured all of Peleliu island except isolated "Bloody Nose Ridge," Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported in a communique today. Marine planes were smashing the strong positions still held by the Japanese in the heart of Umorbrogol hill.

The Admiral disclosed that more than 10,000 Japanese soldiers have been killed in the southern Palau islands, of which Peleliu is the largest. The Yanks now control not only Peleliu but all of Angaur, Ngesebus, Konhauru and five smaller islets in the same general region.

Blast Jap Positions

Fliers of the Second Marine Aircraft wing hammered the Japanese hill positions last Friday with "numerous" 1,000-pound bombs in an effort to demolish remaining Nippon fortifications. Isolated enemy remnants continued to offer bitter resistance from hillside caves.

One small pocket of resistance remains on Angaur island. The communique said "elimination of the remnants of the Japanese defenders continues."

Striking about 1,300 miles northeast of Tokyo, Liberator bombers of the 11th AAF blasted Shumushu Friday. That island is the northernmost of the Kurile chain. The Yank raiders encountered only moderate antiaircraft fire and all returned to their base.

The wiping out of open organized Japanese resistance on Peleliu and Angaur, and the taking of seven nearby islands in the same chain, virtually concludes the first Allied invasion of the Caroline islands probably Japan's strongest pre-war insular possession. Other enemy strongholds in the Carolines, such as Truk and Ponape, were neutralized by aerial invasion but ground forces have never landed there.

The mid-September landings on Peleliu and Angaur came within two days of each other and simultaneous with the invasion by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces of Morotai island, just north of Halmahera in the Moluccas. These invasions pose a triple-pronged threat to the southeastern Philippines.

Morotai, within 300 miles of the southern tip of that Archipelago, was quickly overrun against light opposition and with minor losses.

Imperills Jap Conquests

MacArthur declared the Morotai invasion "penetrated" the Halmahera-Philippine defense line and "imperilled" Japanese conquests to the south "by the threat of envelopment."

"Rolling up the remainder of this line," MacArthur said, "would cut off and isolate garrisons in the East Indies estimated at nearly 200,000 and would sever vital supply lines to the Japanese mainland of oil and other war essentials."

Enemy air bases on both Peleliu and Morotai were quickly reconditioned to speed the aerial invasion of the Philippines, already badly mauled by American carrier plane attacks.

Nimitz said seizure of the Palau islands would make Truk "next" to useless" to the Japanese, place American forces in position "from which to strangle communications between Japan proper and Japan's conquered territories" to the south and sweep away "a formidable obstacle to our eventual return to the Philippines."

"We will have a base from which to cover and support general MacArthur's Philippine campaign," concluded Nimitz.

U. S. BOMBERS HIT 3 JAPANESE SHIPS

Spencer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS New Guinea, Oct. 2—(AP) Ending one of their most successful months in a blaze of Japanese destruction, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's flying forces ranged from Celebes to the Philippines, damaged or sank three Japanese ships, set fire to airdromes and destroyed a number of parked planes, today's communique announced.

The month-end's bag of ships brought to a total of 210 ships and smaller craft, including barges, that MacArthur's men have sunk or damaged in the southwest Pacific in September.

(These figures are in addition to those included in a Pearl Harbor announcement last Thursday that the Third fleet's carrier planes had destroyed 160 surface craft of all types and had damaged 200 others of all types in seven days' raiding the Philippines.)

Two of the largest ships of the lot were accounted for Saturday, when a 10,000-ton tanker was damaged off Zamboanga, southern Philippines, and an 8,500-ton freighter-transport was sunk in Tiworo strait, southern Celebes. A coastal vessel also was damaged near Zamboanga, second largest city on Mindanao.

Heavy bombers extended their Celebes attack to enemy aircraft facilities at Kendari, where three grounded planes were set afire and others damaged.

Meanwhile carrier planes and air patrols pounded the enemy's Halmahera airdromes day and night.

Raids on Ceram and Buru airdromes by Allied heavy, medium and fighter bombers that dropped a total of seventy-nine tons of explosives put the airstrips out of service and probably destroyed four parked planes. Coastal shipping also was hit.

The 30-day bag of Japanese shipping included a seaplane tender and two destroyer escorts sunk; 68 vessels, ranging from 2,000 to 10,000 tons, sunk or destroyed, and 38 ships damaged. The figure also covered 111 barges and small coastal vessels, important craft in the enemy's hard-hit supply lines, sunk or damaged.

FLIER GETS 16TH PLANE

Colonel Westbrook of Hollywood in Pacific After Furlough

AN ADVANCED SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AIRBASE, Sept. 29 (Delayed) (AP)—Lieut. Col. Robert Westbrook of Hollywood, Calif., shot down his sixteenth plane during the Thirteenth Air Force raid on Japanese positions at Kendari in the southern Celebes, Sept. 25.

It was the famed California air ace's first victory since Rabaul and came a few weeks after he resumed combat flying with the Thirteenth on his return from the United States. The victory makes him high scorer for the Thirteenth, with Major William Harris, Springville, Calif., second with fifteen.

Admiral Nimitz Urges Increased Production

Honolulu, Oct. 1 (AP)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz called for increased war production today in a statement terming Hawaii and the West Coast the "forward echelon of America's arsenal of democracy."

"Hawaii's task," he said, "is to repair ships and planes and to keep supplies moving to battle areas in a steady stream.

"The people of Hawaii and the thousands of men and women who came here from the mainland are contributing in large measure to the success of our armed forces.

"After the fall of Germany, the need for manpower in Hawaii will be greater. Activities in these islands will be intensified. This also will be true of the West Coast, which will increase tremendously in importance as a great staging area."

Latin-American Unions to Meet

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 1 (AP)—The second general congress of the Latin-American Labor Federation will meet in Cali, Colombia, Dec. 10 to 15, Vicente Lombardo Toledano, president of the federation, announced tonight.

Ecuador Will Welcome Jews, Officials Report

Quito, Ecuador, Oct. 1 (AP)—Jacob Landau, representative of the War Refugee Board, said today he had received assurances from the President and Secretary of Foreign Affairs of Ecuador that the country will admit "all Jewish immigrants with honest background" who wish to settle here.

Landau said arrangements already were being made to bring 300 Jewish children from Hungary to Ecuador.

FOUR COSTA RICANS WOUNDED IN FIGHTS

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Oct. 1—(AP) Four Costa Ricans were reported to have been wounded in street brawls with Nicaraguan exiles in various parts of Costa Rica.

The outbreaks followed capture of a Costa Rican border town by Nicaraguan rebels. Later the rebels were driven out of the town by Costa Rican troops.

The newspaper La Tribuna published a statement by President Anastasio Somoz of Nicaragua condemning the activities on the Nicaraguans in Costa Rica.

At the same time Costa Rican authorities seized a small arsenal of six bombs and 15 sticks of dynamite in a private home here and an investigation was under way as to whether the explosives were destined for Nicaraguan revolutionaries or some local subversive group.

CHINESE TALKS TO OPEN TODAY

Details Of Defining Aggression May Delay Accord

Washington, Oct. 1 (AP)—Chinese talks with American and British delegations beginning tomorrow morning at Dumbarton Oaks are expected to reach quick agreement on most major points.

Questions on details, however, may require thorough exploration, at Chinese suggestion, before these initial conversations on a world security organization are wound up.

Outlined In Detail

Ambassador Wellington Koo, Chinese degelation chief, has outlined China's desires in considerable detail and they appear to dovetail smoothly with the principles which generally are understood to have been agreed upon by the Russian, British and American delegates in the first six weeks of the talks.

Koo stressed the necessity for a security system which could move unhesitatingly and forcefully to forestall aggression and which would be flexible enough to adapt itself to changing conditions.

China's century of experience as a victim of aggression in many forms is thought likely to lead her delegation to press for a definition of what constitutes aggression, and when.

Chinese cite the latest example in their history, when Japan conducted an insidious campaign to weaken Chinese authority in north China after grabbing Manchuria.

Other Forms Of Aggression

From 1932 to 1937 the Japanese promoted dissension among Chinese regional leaders, encouraged the smuggling of silver out of China to debase her currency, flouted and beat up Chinese customs officers who tried to collect duties on Japanese goods, and frequently invaded Chinese territory "to maintain order" among bandit gangs who were supplied with Japanese arms. Japanese merchants used their extra-territorial status to sneer at Chinese law enforcement, promote the sale and use of narcotics, and force Chinese to admit Japanese capital into Chinese firms.

The Chinese, therefore, are likely to ask for provision against aggressive economic and political tactics as well as against military aggression.

Austin Calls For Treaty

The world security program now being drafted should be strengthened by a Senate-ratified treaty, Senator Austin (R., Vt.) said today.

But Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) expressed belief the requirement of a two-thirds Senate majority for treaty approval would nullify effective United States participation in world affairs.

The views of the two men, both members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, were outlined in a report of the Foreign Policy Association, a private research organization.

Both favored a strong world court and prompt action on decisions of the world security organization, but opposed the establishment of zones of influence in the world.

BYRNES DECLARES NO NEED EXISTS TO RATION COFFEE

War Mobilization Head Says Supplies Now on Hand Are Ample.

MORE EXPECTED SOON

Brazil to Resume Filling of Orders; Price Rise Held Unlikely.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—(AP) War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes said today that there is no necessity of rationing coffee now.

Ample replacement stocks for retailers are available from wholesalers and coffee roasters, Byrnes said. His statement took cognizance of "reports that coffee rationing was imminent, causing runs on grocery stores in some parts of the country."

Byrnes' statement:

"With four months' supply of coffee now available to civilians, and on basis of assurances received today by the Department of State from Brazil that the filling of orders for United States coffee importers would be resumed tomorrow, rationing of coffee is unnecessary.

Large Stocks On Hand

"Stocks of coffee in this country available to civilians Sept. 1 totalled 670,000,000 pounds compared with 201,000,000 pounds when coffee rationing began in November, 1942 and 487,000,000 pounds on July 29, 1943, when coffee rationing ended."

OCT 2 1944

Byrnes' office said that Brazilian Finance Minister Arthur de Souza Costa, had given assurance that 1,000,000 bags of coffee a month would be provided the American trade through normal trade channels.

American importers have had difficulty in recent weeks in contracting more adequate supplies from exporting countries and stocks therefore had been declining.

OPA said last night that "speculative exporters" in coffee producing countries had been holding back on shipments in an attempt to force an increase in price ceilings.

Doubt Price Will Be Raised

American importers have appealed to the OPA to lift coffee from price controls, but OPA sources have said there is little chance that this will be done.

Byrnes said that coffee stocks now in this country amount to about 3 and 1-2 months' supply "which is more than a normal supply." These stocks together with coffee now on shipboard bound for this country and that purchased for shipment constitute about four months' supply. The resumption of shipments, he said, will make possible the maintenance of an adequate working inventory.

FORMULA PROPOSED FOR GERMAN PEACE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—(AP) A peace formula for Germany based on breaking up her industrial monopolies and distributing stock ownership among workers and returning soldiers was proposed tonight by Senator Kilgore (D.-W. Va.).

Asserting that Germany's future geographical boundaries are of "secondary importance," the chairman of the Senate military war mobilization sub-committee declared:

"The basis for lasting peace is fundamentally an economic one. Germany, under the Nazi setup, built up a great series of industrial monopolies in steel, rubber, coal, and other materials. The monopolies soon got control of Germany, brought Hitler to power and forced virtually the whole world into war.

Kilgore told reporters that most peace terms for Germany so far discussed are political, rather than economic, "and do not get to the root of the problem."

He said any plan to strip Germany of her industry, and to divide the country into family-size farms would not prove workable.

"Let Germany keep her industry," he said, "but break up her industrial monopolies and reform them as the individual companies they were before. I. G. Farben alone is made up of 177 corporations.

"See that the stock of the war criminals in control of these corportations is distributed among German workers and returning German soldiers and insist upon the establishment of competitive free enterprise."

Kilgore said his plan would be coupled with the seizure "of the illgot gains of German industrial leaders" to be spent in the rehabilitation of Germany and the countries her war machine overran.

New Argonaut Replaces Submarine Lost in 1943

2 Undersea Craft Launched at Portsmouth, One at Groton

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 1 (AP). Two submarines, the U. S. S. Quillback and the U S. S. Argonaut, were christened today at the Portsmouth Navy Yard. Mrs. John A. Tyree jr., wife of a Navy commander, sponsored the Quillback, and Mrs. Allan R. McGann, wife of a Navy captain, took a similar role in naming the Argonaut.

The Argonaut perpetuates the name of the craft reported lost in the Pacific theater of war in February, 1943.

PUERTO RICANS SPONSOR SUBMARINE 'CAPITAINE'

GROTON, Oct. 1 — (AP) Financed by the purchase of war bonds by the people of Puerto Rico, the submarine "Capitaine' slid down the Electric Boat company's victory yard ways today into the Thames river, the latest addition to Uncle Sam's fighting navy.

Mrs. Julia A. Rondomanski of New London, whose son, Bernard, was chosen in a special election to name the person to christen the ship, served as sponsor.

On the platform with company officials, Navy officers and their wives were Victor M. Collanzo and Jose Manuel Rivera, Puerto Rican welders who came here for the ceremonies.

CARRIER PLANES SEEN WINNING WAR

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 1—(AP) "Carrier based aircraft is going to win the Pacific war," declared Cmdr. Norman "Bus" Miller, here with his family on 30-day leave.

"Any layman can figure it out," said the unassuming Southerner whose exploits from flattop flight decks have earned him 12 decorations and the nickname of "one-man task force."

"B-29 raids are spectacular but an effective bombload just can't be carried on those long range trips. The way to lick the Japanese is to strike at their shipping. That's what the carrier planes are doing."

The 36-year-old airman grinned as he told of his squadron's unofficial motto. "'Flashes—not splashes' was our watchword," he related. "In other words, we made every bombload count. Our low level attacks were accurate and very few of our missiles landed in the water."

Modest to the point of shyness, Miller had little to say about his personal achievements. It was Mrs. Miller who told of the reactions of the man who is credited with sinking or damaging 66 enemy vessels and possibly causing more damage to Japanese shipping and military installations than any other flier in the Pacific theater.

Miller said he expects to be stationed at San Diego, Calif., when his leave in Jacksonville expires. He will take up duties as a multi-engined training officer in the California city. His wife and five children will accompany him.

Black Widow Fighters On Two-Front Night Duty

Army's Newest Air Weapon Now Active in Both War zones

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1 (AP).—The Army Air Forces newest night fighter plane, the P-61 Black Widow, now is in operation in both the European and Pacific theaters, the War Department reported tonight in disclosing additional details of its operation.

Powered by twin motors and crammed with security-guarded radio detection devices capable of locating enemy aircraft in total darkness, the Black Widow has proved effective in protecting Allied night troop movements from enemy bombing and strafing as well as for observation and certain types of attack support, the announcement said.

Because of its heavy armament and elaborate radio equipment the P-61 can operate singly, it added. Its two 2,000-horsepower Pratt and Whitney engines give it "high" speed and "fairly long" range, and the plane carries 20-millimeter cannon and .50-caliber machine guns and a crew of two or three men.

WLB RESUMES HEARINGS ON INCREASE IN WAGES

OCT 2 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1 (AP) The War Labor Board resumes hearings tomorrow on labor's demand for increased wartime wages with Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, a principal witness.

Johnston will appear with Robert M. Gaylord, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

They follow other industry spokesmen who have asserted that any relaxing of the present wage controls may result in a dangerous inflationary spiral detrimental to the entire nation's postwar prosperity and endangering reconversion plans.

The board also has heard pleas from CIO and AFL spokesmen for an upward revision of the Little Steel Wage formula, based on claims of increased wartime living costs. The formula pegs wages to 15 per cent above Jan. 1, 1941, levels.

Krug Won't Let Auto Industry Retool as Yet

Says Munitions Schedules Bar Priorities for Head Start on Reconversion

OCT 2 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1 (AP).—J. A. Krug, chairman of the War Production Board, declared today the government cannot grant now the request of automobile manufacturers for priority on machine tools to give the industry a fast start on passenger cars after German collapse.

Record-breaking munition schedules for the rest of the year—described by him as "the peak of our war needs"—stand in the way of the preparatory move, the new W. P. B. chief said in an interview.

"If W. P. B. did that for the automotive industry, we would have to do it for all other industries," Mr. Krug observed. "We haven't the man power now to make the machine tools.

"Issuance of such a piece of paper would simply be defrauding business into thinking it was getting something it couldn't get."

Mr. Krug, acting chairman during Donald M. Nelson's mission to China, became permanent chairman when Mr. Nelson designed yesterday.

Despite his firm "no" to the proposal advanced by automotive leaders in Detroit last week, Mr. Krug promised that the W. P. B. "will do everything we can to assist every industry" in shortening the period of lay-offs and idleness between the German surrender and the start of civilian production.

"I have requested each of our industry divisions to study with the industries the additional measures that can be adopted," he said.

The motor group proposed that its order for peace-time machine tools and equipment be given priority equal to the "less urgent" class of war orders and ahead of some of the consumer goods now given "essential civilian" priorities.

Such preference, said the heads of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, at an informal news conference, might well be given to all industries which abandoned their normal product completely when war came.

The W. P. B. now permits plants to place orders for machines and tools to be needed after V-E day, but the motor executives reported they could not get delivery unless the orders had priority standing. Suppliers estimate that some of these needed tools cannot be delivered until next June, they said.

Preferential treatment, the industry estimated, might shorten the change-over period by three months. Most of the manufacturers estimated it would take six to eight months to start passenger-car production if V-E day came tomorrow, three to four months if all necessary preparatory steps could be taken in advance.

SUPREME COURT TO MEET TODAY

Nine Justices Face Docket Full Of Wartime Problems

Washington, Oct. 1 (AP)—A Supreme Court which split often and widely on issues of legal philosophy at its last sitting reassembles tomorrow to begin a new term expected to produce history-making decisions on a docket full of wartime problems.

Promptly at noon, the nine justices will march to their places on the bench for the first time since June 12. They will be confronted by an unusually large stack of more than 500 cases piled up since they scattered for vacations.

Among their first tasks they must decide what to do about one of the loudest repercussions from the last term—the term made memorable by split decisions and acrimonious exchanges among individual jurists.

Fire Insurance Case

Attorneys General of 41 States demand reconsideration of the court's 4-3 ruling that insurance is business in interstate commerce, subject to the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. The insurance group specifically involved also insisted on a rehearing, asserting that as a result of the decision "hazards have been imposed upon the negotiation of every insurance contract."

Other problems, some loaded with dynamite, face the tribunal in cases on which it has agreed to hear argument.

Near the top of the list is the case of an American woman citizen of Japanese descent who demands release from a war relocation authority center in California.

Scheduled also is the appeal of a young man born in this country of parents who were nationals of Japan. He questions the constitutionality of army evacuation orders under which he was taken from his California home and put in a relocation center in Utah.

Kent Asks Court Take Hand

Tyler Kent, former code clerk in the American Embassy in London, wants the court to take a hand in the case which resulted in his conviction in a British court on a charge of violating the British Official War Secrets Act. Sentenced to seven years' imprisonment, he asked the tribunal to help get him back to the United States.

An army lieutenant asked the court to decide quickly—before election day—on the constitutionality of the Federal ballot. His case arose from refusal by Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois to certify use of the ballot.

Also scheduled for argument are the cases of Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, former head of the German-American Bund, and 23 other Bund officials, protesting their conviction on charges of conspiring to advise evasion and resistance to the Selective Service Act. Anthony Cramer, naturalized German charged with aiding two of the Nazi saboteurs landed from submarines on the east coast in 1942, also will get a hearing on his appeal from conviction for treason. Cramer was sentenced to 45 years' imprisonment.

Other Legal Disputes

Other legal disputes docketed include: Constitutionality of the death-sentence clause of the Public Utility Holding Company Act, protests by two Negro locomotive firemen on southern railroads that they had been discriminated against, and a complaint by the Governor of Georgia seeking to force equalization of freight rates between the South and other parts of the country.

Tomorrow's session likely will be a formality.

Compton Off to London to Study Labor Relations in British Isles

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP) Representative Ranulf Compton (R-Conn) has left for London for a series of conferences with members of Parliament, British officials and organized labor, making the trans-Atlantic flight with members of the British delegation returning home after the Dumbarton Oaks conferences.

Compton was the only American to make the trip in company with Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent secretary of the British Foreign Office, and the other Dumbarton conferees.

One other New England member of Congress is in London—Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass), who is studying the care of war wounded.

Compton was invited by the British to consult on labor relations, economics, international trade and post-war problems. Before leaving, he lunched in Washington with Malcolm Gordon, labor attache of the British Embassy, to complete arrangements for a conference with Arthur Bevin, Britain's minister of Labor and head of the organized labor movement in Britain.

The New Haven congressman said he also intended to spend as much time as possible with Connecticut fighting men in the European theater, hoping to visit fighting zones in France and Germany.

As a major in command of a tank battalion under the then Colonel George S. Patton, Compton fought in France during World War I. He was decorated with the Purple Heart and the French Legion of Honor.

BRICKER STARTS TOUR OF WESTERN STATES

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 1.—(AP) Four nationwide radio broadcasts will be made by Gov. John W. Bricker on his western campaign for the vice presidency, he announced tonight as he began the 9,250-mile trip.

The first will be from St. Louis at 9:30 p. m. (E.W.T.), Oct. 4. Another will originate in Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 11, the time of which will be announced later. The site of the two others is yet to be selected.

The Republican candidate boarded his six-car special train with a briefcase bulging with speeches to be delivered on the four-week tour that will take him to the Pacific coast.

PEW CALLED ONE OF DEWEY BACKERS

Hannegan Sees Oil Man As Power 'If' GOP Wins

OCT 2 1944

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, said today that "if—by chance" Gov. Thomas E. Dewey were elected President, Joseph N. Pew, Jr., Philadelphia oil man, "would become one of the dominating figures behind the United States Government."

Hannagan made the remark in a statement, saying he had promised "to answer inquiries we have been receiving about the men behind Dewey who would emerge to places of power and influence" if Dewey won. The statement was released by the Democratic National Committee's publicity bureau.

"Facts About Pew"

"I want the voters to have some facts about Joseph N. Pew, Jr., multimillionaire of Philadelphia," Hannegan said. "Pew is one of the wealthy group of little-known, power-hungry men whose steady stream of money dominates the Republican party."

The national chairman said Pew "led the Pew family into national politics with an open checkbook" in 1936 and that the family "poured over $300,000 into the coffers of Alf Landon's campaign."

"Not Happy About Willkie"

"In 1940," Hannegan added, "Joe Pew wasn't too happy about Mr. Willkie (Wendell Willkie)—at least the publicly revealed contributions of the Pew family that year amounted to only $113,000. And in 1940 there was also an act limiting big corporations. So the Pew family contributions were carefully spread through ten States.

"There were other contributions that year. Among them was a little matter of $16,000 the Pew family donated to buy into that central clearing-house of bitter reaction, the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government."

Hannegan said Pew also had sought to "build up power" by buying the Farm Journal in 1935 and the Pathfinder, national weekly newspaper, in 1943. The chairman added:

"Through these and other publications—which do not bear Pew's name on the masthead—the Pew philosophy of despair and reaction and fear of democracy in spread through the country."

HE WARNED "WE MUSTN'T THINK THE WAR IS OVER."

IN A TAXICAB OFFICE A WOMAN LOOKED UP FROM HER WORK AND SAID
"I HEAR THEY GOT 3,000 GERMAN PRISONERS AT CALAIS. THEY OUGHT TO PUT THEM ON A SHIP AND BRING THEM TO THIS WATERFRONT AND SAY,
'NOW, IF YOU CAN GET THROUGH DOVER ALIVE YOU CAN GO BACK TO GERMANY

THE PEOPLE LEARNED TO TAKE SHELTER QUICKLY. SO THE SHELLS KILLED A TOTAL OF ONLY 107 AND SERIOUSLY WOUNDED 200. MANY SPENT SATURDAY NIGHT, THEIR FIRST NIGHT OF LIBERATION, IN THE SHELTERS AS USUAL.

THEY DIDN'T HAVE ANY OTHER PLACE TO GO.

THE SYMBOLISM OF DOVER AS THE NEAREST POINT TO THE ENEMY COAST--AS THE TOWN OVER WHICH THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN WAS FOUGHT AND WON FOUR YEARS AGO--IS TALKED ABOUT LEAST HERE IN DOVER.

BUT THEY REALIZE IT NEVERTHELESS. THE TAXIWOMAN LOOKED OUT ACROSS THE 20-MILE CHANNEL AND SAID SOFTLY "THAT LITTLE DROP OF WATER JUST SAVED ENGLAND."

A UNITED STATES BOMBER BASE, EAST ANGLIA, BRITAIN, OCT. 1-(AP)-LT. CLIFTON W.ECCLES SAID TODAY THE GREMLINS MUST HAVE TAKEN OVER THE FLYING FORTRESS "MELANCHOLY BABY" AFTER IT WAS ABANDONED BY ITS CREW AND FLEW 600 MILES ACROSS ENGLAND, EIRE AND OUT OVER THE ATLANTIC BEFORE RAF FIGHTERS SHOT IT DOWN.

ECCLES OF ROUTE 2, DUKE, OKLA., A VETERAN OF TEN BOMBER MISSIONS OVER GERMANY, EXPLAINED HOW MELANCHOLY BABY BECAME A GHOST RAIDER SETTING OFF ALERTS IN LIVERPOOL AND A NUMBER OF MIDLANDS AND WALES TOWNS.

"GEORGE (THE AUTOMATIC PILOT) MUST HAVE FALLEN DOWN ON THE JOB," HE DECLARED. "BUT THE GREMLINS MUST HAVE HAD A HAND IN IT BY TAKING OVER THE SHIP WHEN WE BAILED OUT."

ECCLES ORDERED THE CREW TO PARACHUTE WHEN ONE ENGINE CAUGHT FIRE AND THEN JUMPED HIMSELF AFTER SETTING THE AUTOMATIC PILOT TO TAKE THE SHIP UP THE NORTH SEA.

"ONLY TEN MINUTES PREVIOUSLY WE HAD TAKEN OFF ON A BOMBING MISSION TO GERMANY," ECCLES SAID. "WE HAD REACHED 2,500 FEET WHEN I SAW THAT ONE ENGINE WAS IN FLAMES. THE SEAT OF THE TROUBLE WAS FAR TOO CLOSE TO OUR FULL LOAD OF GASOLINE FOR ME TO BE VERY HAPPY ABOUT IT. FOR A QUARTER OF AN HOUR FIRE EXTINGUISHERS POURED FOAM ON THE ENGINE WHILE I THREW THE SHIP ABOUT ALL OVER THE PLACE.

"WE THOUGHT THAT WE COULD DROWN THE FIRE OR BLOW IT OUT BUT I SAW IT WAS HOPELESS. TURNING BACK INLAND I ORDERED MY CREW TO JUMP AND WHEN THE LAST MAN HAD GONE I HEADED OUT TO SEA AGAIN, SET THE AUTOMATIC PILOT SO THAT THE SHIP WAS CERTAIN TO CRASH INTO THE DRINK AND THEN BAILED OUT MYSELF.

"IT WAS THE FIRST TIME I HAD TAKEN UP THIS GREMLIN-RIDDEN MELANCHOLY BABY AND I DID NOT EXPECT TO HEAR FROM HER AGAIN."

THE GERMANS, WHO DECAMPED IN A HURRY ON A FAKE EVACUATION ORDER PUT THROUGH BY THE FFI, LEFT BLUEPRINTS OF THE ENTIRE PROPOSED PLANT AND PLANS CALLING FOR ITS COMPLETION BY OCT. 20.

UP UNTIL A DAY OR TWO BEFORE THE AMERICANS ARRIVED, THE GERMANS WERE WORKING 3,000 SLAVE LABORERS--MOSTLY FRENCH, POLES, ITALIANS--

30.24— 19257

ON A 24-HOUR SCHEDULE. WHEN IN FULL PRODUCTION, THE PLANT WAS TO EMPLOY 15,000, TWO-THIRDS OF THEM WOMEN.

ALTHOUGH LITTLE EQUIPMENT ACTUALLY HAD BEEN INSTALLED, FFI INFORMANTS SAID THE GERMANS WERE DRIVING THE LABORERS IN AN EFFORT TO START PRODUCTION THIS MONTH AS ORDERED BY HITLER. OCT 2 1944

HUNDREDS OF TONS OF MACHINES AND TOOLS WERE PILED IN THE CATACOMBS OF THE ALGRANGE MINE, WHICH HAS 42 MILES OF WHITEWASHED AND PAVED PASSAGES, 30 FEET HIGH. THERE ARE 16 ENTRANCES TO THE 60-YEAR-OLD ALGRANGE MINE LEADING FROM COMMUNITIES CLUSTERED IN THE VALLEY AND ON THE HILLSIDES, BUT THE GERMANS HAD CLOSED ALL BUT THREE. THE BLUEPRINTS SHOWED PLANS FOR A NEW ENTRANCE TO BE CAMOUFLAGED TO LOOK LIKE A BALL PARK.

MUCH OF THE EQUIPMENT AND THE ALUMINUM SHEETS, THE LATTER ALREADY NUMBERED FOR CUTTING INTO PLANE COMPONENTS, HAD BEEN SHIPPED FROM AUGSBURG, INDICATING THE BIG MESSERSCHMITT PLANT THERE HAD BEEN KNOCKED OUT AND ALL SALVAGEABLE MATERIAL SHIPPED HERE. OCT 2 1944

"THE GERMANS PLANNED TO MAKE EVERYTHING HERE FOR FIGHTERS, FROM ENGINES, WINGS, FUSELAGES AND GENERATORS ON DOWN," SAID COL.JOSEPH L.COWHEY, AN ORDNANCE OFFICER FROM NEW LONDON, CONN.

"AFTER THEIR TRANSPORTATION BROKE DOWN UNDER ALLIED BOMBINGS, THEY HAD PUT ALL THEIR EGGS IN ONE BASKET. THEY DO NOT BUILD PLANES THE WAY WE DO--FOR INSTANCE, THE WAY WE MAKE ENGINES IN DETROIT, PROPELLERS IN DAYTON AND SHIP THEM SOMEWHERE ELSE FOR ASSEMBLY."

FRENCHMEN SAID THE GERMANS REFERRED REPEATEDLY TO THE ALGRANGE PROJECT AS "THE MOST IMPORTANT IN THE GERMAN WAR EFFORT," AND IT RECEIVED NO. 1 PRIORITY, SUGGESTING THAT IT ULTIMATELY WAS TO BECOME ONE OF HITLER'S CHIEF FIGHTER PLANE PRODUCTION CENTERS.

COLONEL COWHEY RODE THE ELECTRIC TRAM INTO THE MINE DURING THE AFTERNOON, ACCOMPANIED BY LT.JESSE BURBAGE, JR., OF TUSKEGEE, ALA., WHOSE FATHER WAS FORMERLY FOOTBALL COACH AT SOUTHERN COLLEGE, LAKELAND, FLA., AND COMMANDANT OF GULFCOAST MILITARY ACADEMY AT BILOXI, MISS., AND WHO NOW IS A LIEUTENANT COLONEL IN THE ARMY AIR FORCE. OCT 2 1944

"BURBAGE IS MY BOOBY TRAP EXPERT, SO WE HAD BETTER TAKE HIM ALONG," THE COLONEL LAUGHED. BURBAGE'S REGULAR JOB IS WITH A BOMB DISPOSAL SQUAD, BUT HE DIDN'T FIND ANY BOMBS TODAY.

LT.KEN MOYER OF FORT WORTH, TEXAS, CAME ALONG TO PICK UP A SHEET OF ALUMINUM TO MAKE A DOOR FOR HIS JEEP. "THEY TELL ME WINTER'S COLD AROUND HERE, SO I'M GETTING PREPARED," MOYER SAID.

SGT.LURTY C.CURRENCE OF HENDERSON, KY., IS IN CHARGE OF THE CREW GUARDING THE MINE AND MAKING AN INVENTORY OF ITS HUGE STOCKS. HIS STAFF INCLUDES PVT.MICHAEL A.BERTILACCI, YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO; PVT. U. S. First Army Opens New Aachen Drive, Breaches Westwall for Two-Mile Advance

Yanks Advance Under Annihilating Barrage

Smash Two Miles Into Enemy Defenses On Six-Mile Front North of Aachen—Two Other Punches Thrown By Yanks—Headquarters Warns Not to Expect Quick Break-through.

By Howard Cowan

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Tuesday, Oct. 3. (AP)—The U. S. First Army, loosing a powerful drive under an earth-shaking barrage of bombs and shells, smashed two miles into the Siegfried line on a new front yesterday, and a furious battle raged last night as the Germans fought from pillboxes barring the way to the Rhineland.

Hurdle River

Infantry with bayonets, tanks and mobile guns hurdled the tiny Wurm river north of the frontier Fortress of Aachen and fought into Germany on a six-mile front, advancing behind an artillery barrage paced by 10-inch Howitzers planted along the frontier almost three weeks ago.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' battle-wise veterans jumped off two hours after the first of 500 medium and fighter bombers came hammering out of the clouds upon the startled Germans, shattering a comparative lull of two weeks while the First Army mustered strength for the blow.

Two Villages Wiped Out

The bombers wiped from the map two German villages, Merkstein, a mile inside Germany, and Palenberg, four miles north, both in the path of the big push, which may be aimed at the enemy's fifth largest city, Cologne, 35 miles east of the crossings, or Dusseldorf to the north, standing at the gate to the Ruhr industrial valley.

Another drive appeared to be gathering some 30 miles north of this fighting, where Allied forces pushed southeast eight miles from Deurme to the Dutch town of Meijel, only 10 miles from Roermond, where a good bridge spans the Maas (Meuse) river on the road to Germany.

The Americans also threw two other punches at the Germans. One was at Havert, just inside the Reich, 12 miles northwest of this fighting, and the other at Overloon, in Holland just south of British positions on the west bank of the Maas.

Enemy Uses Flame-throwers

The Germans again struck back with flame-throwing counter-attacks, striking at Berg, 24 miles southeast of Aachen.

The focal point of fighting was between Ubach and Herzogenrath, nine and five miles respectively north of Aachen. They were about four miles from the main highway to Julich, a road junction 22 miles from Dusseldorf and an equal distance from Cologne.

This was the largest of three main attacks which Hodges leveled at the enemy on a 50-mile front extending northward into Holland, where the British were poised in position to strike at the Siegfried line's northern terminal at Kleve.

Villagers Watch Air Armada

It was the biggest air show since the July breakthrough at St. Lo which destroyed German military power in most of France. Thousands of Dutch, Belgian and German villagers came out to watch the awesome aerial armada cross the cloud-flecked sky.

The first bombs plummeted into the green German pasturelands and forests at 9 a. m., and then 10-inch guns of one of the heaviest American artillery concentrations ever put on to any battlefield opened up a barage that made the earth tremble for miles.

Patrols also had been out during the night knocking off the pillboxes from which the Germans could oppose the crossing at the small Wurm river, but despite all this, strong German forces survived the cyclone of explosives dumped upon their positions.

Run Into Stiff Opposition

After the doughboys had stormed through the first shocked and stunned defenders they struck heavy artillery, mortar and small arms fire from pillboxes.

Supreme headquarters cautioned correspondents not to expect a quick breakthrough.

The entire 460-mile front showed signs of restlessness, and indications were that soon the furious fighting would spread.

The British moved up assault lines on an 18-mile front in Holland after smashing back two vicious counterblows aimed at their narrow Nijmegen corridor.

They moved out menacingly toward the German stronghold of 'S Herto-Genbosch, 25 miles southwest of Nijmegen, and were in assault positions only three miles to the east in what may be a drive against the estimated 200,000 Germans walled off to the west.

(The Germans said this five-mile push was paced by the veteran "Desert Rat" Seventh British armored division, which chased Marshal Erwin Rommel out of North Africa).

Canadians Drive Into Holland

The Canadian First Army to the southwest, pounding the south flank of this German force, drove north four miles into Holland against stubborn resistance.

Gen. Eisenhower broadcast a warning to the Dutch to clear out of two islands in the Scheloe estuary which the Germans have fortified to keep the Allies from using the great port of Antwerp. He asserted massive air blows were impending.

There were signs that the Germans, sensing peril in these positions, were preparing to pull out of western Holland, but a British staff officer emphasized there was as yet no wide-scale withdrawal, only a number of truck convoys moving north.

On the south of the new U. S. offensive, the U. S. Third Army swung sharply northward close to a junction with the First Army.

Driving through Luxembourg, the Third seized the little duchy's seventh-century village of Grevenmacher, only 12 miles southwest of the German Siegfried fortress of Trier, scene of the First Army's original entry into Germany.

Slowed Up at Belfort

At the southern end of the long front, the U. S. Seventh Army was slowed to an advance of a few hundred yards at the southern entrance to the Belford Gap, which leads 30 miles east to the Rhine and Germany's black forest of Bavaria.

For ten days the U. S. First Army had been massing materials and men for its great blow at the center of Germany's industrial might.

The main push came after 2,700 Allied warplanes had swarmed across the skies of Germany, not only pounding away at front positions but ranging inland. More than 900 heavy bombers plastered Cologne itself and Kassel, 150 miles east of Aachen.

Three hundred Liberators struck Germany's greatest freight yards at Hamm, 90 miles northeast of Aachen, in a well-co-ordinated attack designed to paralyze enemy movements.

Doughboys Quick in Action

Hardly had the last dive bomber snarled over than the doughboys, who had waited in their foxholes as close as 50 yards to the enemy lines, plunged into the smoke and rubble.

While the doughboys were fighting onto German soil from this new quarter, the Germans hemmed in at Aachen were feverishly stringing chains across streets as road blocks and digging in tanks in fear that soon the lightning might strike there too.

American assault units splashed across the Wurm river into Germany only a few hundred yards behind their creeping artillery barrage. Combat engineers threw a 20-foot bridge across the river and tanks and artillery rumbled across.

At some points they tackled mine shafts which the Germans had converted into strong points.

Enemy Counter Thrusts Beaten Back

The American forces attacked at two more points along the front and combat engineers beat back enemy counterthrusts by two companies five miles north of Roetgen, first town taken by the Americans in Germany, nine miles southeast of Aachen.

One attack came at 6:30 this morning at the Dutch town of Overloon, some 50 miles north of Aachen. This was made by an armored column on a front west of the Maas river where some German forces have been concentrated.

The third was made by American cavalry, which ploved forward slowly against stubborn German resistance at Havert, Germany, some 11 miles northwest of the big push north of Aachen.

In Holland the Germans first struck toward the Nijmegen crossing of the Waal Rhine from the area of Huissen, eight miles northeast of Nijmegen, but their tanks were driven off by artillery and rocket-firing Typhoons.

Another attack came rolling from the area of the Reichswald Forest, southeast of Nijmegen, the Germans charging with flame-throwers.

Germans Digging In

Reconnaissance showed the Germans east of the corridor were digging in along the Maas river to defend the homeland.

They were also strongly entrenched on the west side of the corridor, where the British extended their assault lines to within three miles east of the enemy strongpoint of 'S Hertogenbosch.

The Tommies drove five miles north of Oss, a Dutch village 15 miles southwest of Nijmegen, to the Maas river where it turns west and runs parallel with the Waal Rhine. From there the assault line extends south through Nuland and Berlicum, 5 to 3 miles east of 'S Hertogenbosch.

Canadian First Army units, hammering against the southern flank of the Germans in western Holland struck a hard core of resistance northeast of Antwerp but pounded on into Holland northwest of Turnhout.

Nazis Hold River Islands

They were cutting across the Antwerp-Turnhout canal, a 22-mile water barrier where the Germans had deployed about 25 battalions—the 200,000 Germans estimated hemmed in on this front who have been striking at the Dutch corridor from the west.

Part of this enemy force was strung along the Dutch islands of Walcheren and Zuid Beveland along the Schelde estuary.

Lt. Gen. Patton's Third Army, in addition to its menacing gesture on the north end of its front, threw the last Germans out of the forest of Gremecey, about 20 miles east of Nancy, where the enemy had been assembling for some of his numerous counterblows.

Tanks Gain In Forest

About 18 miles east of Nancy the Americans plowed ahead 2 1-2 miles through Parroy forest, another troublesome sector, running into few tanks — an indication that Third Army gunners who knocked out 138 of them in four days were beginning to collect a dividend.

Nineteen of these tanks were blasted in a four-hour slugging match 14 miles northeast of Nancy, where the Americans seized strategic high ground north of Malaucourt and Jallaucourt. After it was secured the Germans tried a counterattack, but it was a light one and was not pressed home with the vigor the enemy previously has shown on that front.

Foe Stops Counter-attacks

On the Seventh Army front, the Germans called off their futile counterattacks and fell back to their mountain positions around Belfort, where they held the Americans and French to gains of a few hundred yards by raining down heavy artillery and mortar fire.

The French who had reached the gap from the south by way of Montbeliard, eight miles south of Belfort, were able to move north only a short distance before they were forced to hole up.

American elements of the Seventh, striking through the Vosges foothills some 40 miles north of Belfort captured St. Jean Du Marche, 11 miles east of Epinal and about 19 miles west of Bonhomme pass, one of four main avenues through the Vosges on the way to the Rhine.

Doughboys Gain 2 Miles on Six-mile Front—Tremendous Barrage Paves the Way—Attack Is Called Greatest.

London, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The American First Army, striking one of the greatest offensive blows of the war in an effort to break a new hole in the Siegfried Line, drove a wedge two miles deep on a six-mile front north of Aachen today.

Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's infantry and tanks rushed forward toward Geilenkirchen in Germany from the Dutch village of Groenstraat, ten miles north of Aachen, and splashed across the little Wurm River coursing near the Dutch-German border in the first forty-five minutes of the attack.

The assault, made across wooded and pasture land pitted with thousands of foxholes and mineshafts which had been converted into strongholds, was aimed at driving a fourth hole in the West Wall. The Americans already held three breaches in the line near Aachen.

The attack still was going forward tonight in the face of heavy resistance from enemy pillboxes, and fire from artillery and six-barreled mortars.

Advancing into the rubble of German defenses almost before the debris had stopped flying from one of the greatest aerial and land bombardments, the Americans were reported pouring through a lane of ruin pointed at the Rhine between Cologne and Dusseldorf, side door to the Ruhr and main highway to Berlin.

"I doubt if they will stop now until they have reached the Rhine," said one front-line correspondent.

Gen. Hodges, ending a stalemate of almost two weeks, led off the assault with a tremendous massed artillery barrage in which 10-inch guns thundered salvoes into the enemy's fixed positions, and an hour-long aerial attack by hundreds of medium and fighter-bombers. Many of the enemy positions were shattered, and the defenders of others were pinned helplessly in their concrete posts.

The Infantry Moves Forward.

Great bursts of earth, stone and debris rose as the explosives tore great holes in the green German countryside and blew apart Nazi buildings, while residents of nearby German, Belgian and Dutch villages watched the spectacle.

Then the American infantry men advanced with bayonets fixed to attack the enemy before he could rally from the shock and surprise. For days, many of the infantrymen had been living as close as fifty yards from the Nazi lines. Many of them were veterans of the attack that split the enemy lines at St. Lo back in Normandy.

First news of the attack came from front-line correspondents. Late this afternoon Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters cautioned correspondents not to count too immediately on a breakthrough.

As fighting spread it was officially announced that the infantry, had moved 400 yards beyond the Aachen-Geilenkirchen Railroad after fording the Wurm River under heavy small arms fire. Strong enemy pillboxes were knocked out in an advance of more than 1,000 yards to the river.

"They are still going forward slowly and meeting heavy resistance from enemy pillboxes, artillery and nebelwerfer mortar fire," a staff officer at the First Army Headquarters said.

The fighting extended for twenty miles north of Aachen, where the Nazis are stringing chains across the streets and digging in old tanks for a last-ditch stand, although the battle was centered on a lesser front.

Attack at Two Other Points.

American forces attacked at two more points along the erupting battlefront, and combat engineers beat back vicious enemy counter-thrusts by two companies five miles north of Rotgen below Aachen. A second American attack was made by an armored column at Overloon, Holland, along the front west of the Meuse. A third was made by American cavalry which advanced at Havert, Germany, near the Holland border northwest of Geilenkirchen.

The American drive was a great surprise to the Germans, who only twenty-four hours before were attacking along an elastic front from Overloon to Berg and Weschied in the south. All these counter-attacks, in which the Germans used flame-throwers at Berg, were beaten back decisively before Gen. Hodges threw his army into the attack.

Associated Press Correspondent Hal Boyle at First Army headquarters said the infantry jumped off at 10:55 A. M. after an hour-long aerial bombardment that caused the earth to shudder for miles about, and charged ahead behind a moving wall of their own artillery shells. At 11:40 they splashed across the knee-deep Wurm.

The River Is Bridged.

As soon as a bridgehead had been established, combat engineers threw across a 30-foot bridge and armor and artillery wheeled over to back up the fast-moving infantry, their path eased by a rolling barrage from several hundred grouped artillery pieces, including the biggest ones.

The area was dotted with mineshafts and thousands of V-shaped foxholes hurriedly built during the last two weeks.

While lighter bombers got in close for pinpoint attacks on the enemy's line, heavy Flying Fortresses and Liberators, 1,200 strong, sailed over and pounded rail chokepoints at Hamm, Kassel and Cologne through which the Germans could hurry up reinforcements and supplies.

A factory at Weilerwist, thirty miles southeast of Aachen, also was hit by the mediums, and the double railroad line near Siegen was blasted by 12,000 pounds of bombs.

The new offensive abruptly ended a week of seesaw fighting along the 460-mile Allied front from Holland to the Belfort Gap, in which Americans and British turned back scores of sharp enemy counter-attacks and advanced a few miles in nearly all sectors. Some of these gains yesterday were up to three and four miles.

It followed enemy warnings for several days that the Allies were preparing powerful blows in the Aachen area, the Nijmegen corridor held by the British to the north, and in the Moselle and Belfort areas to the south.

Yesterday Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters broadcast to Austrians "to prepare for the arrival of the Allies." The Seventh Army, fighting forward a few hundred yards, had edged into the western entrance of the Belfort Gap in the sector nearest Austria.

The British yesterday crushed two of the strongest German counter-attacks, attacks which were aimed at severing the Nijmegen corridor, and pushed on in an operation that broadened their salient toward the west.

Nazis Seen Falling Back.

The Germans sagged back into the defense, after the ruin of these greatest counter-attacks since Caen in Normandy, and were reported to be starting a fighting retreat from the Dutch coastal loop where 200,000 enemy soldiers may be in danger of entrapment.

Led by armor, the British drove five miles north of the village of Oss, at the northwestern corner of their salient, to the Maas (Meuse), and organized a front commanding the Nazi defense line three miles east of 's Hertogenbosch. The Germans said this armored unit was Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's old "Desert Rat" Seventh Division which helped chase Field Marshal Erwin Rommel across Africa.

It was through 'S Hertogenbosch that the Germans were attempting to keep open an escape gap between the British cutoff and the broad Holland Deep, an estuary of the Maas. A front-line correspondent reported increasing signs of a pull-out through this tightening gap of tens of thousands of German troops still in southwestern Holland.

Still striking for the long Nijmegin bridge across the Waal Rhine, the Germans sent tanks, flame throwers and infantry beating against the Tommies' line northeast and southeast of the city, but they were broken up by rocket-firing Typhoon attacks, British heavy guns and infantry steel.

Allied troops also pushed northward out of Antwerp, capturing the village of Brecht, eleven miles northeast of Antwerp and seventeen miles from Breda in Holland.

Patton Gains 3 Miles.

To the southwest of the new Aachen offensive Americans captured the seventh century Luxembourg border town of Grevenmacher, fifteen miles northeast of the city of Luxembourg and twelve miles southwest of Trier.

Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army fought strong German counter-attacks near Jallaucourt, sixteen miles northeast of Nancy, in a four-hour fight in which nineteen Nazi tanks were knocked out—bringing Gen. Patton's total to 138 in the last four days. Then, almost over the same ground, the Third advanced one to three miles clear through the Forest of Gremecy to the high ground around Fresnes en Saunois, a mile beyond Jallaucourt, and to hills overlooking Coutures, only one-mile west of Chateau-Salins.

The Seventh Army, just to the south, still was digging into stiff German resistance through rugged, wooded, sniper-infested foothills of the Vosges Mountains. But the Germans had given up their sharp counterattacks there and were resorting to artillery fire.

Yanks Receive Winter Clothes From Bombers

Eisenhower's Problems Include Race Against Winter.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Oct. 2. (AP)—American strategic bombers have taken a major role in the vital battle of supply now being waged in France and Belgium by loading their bomb bays with Winter overcoats and uniforms for shivering thousands of American troops instead of explosives for the enemy.

It is apparent that among the biggest problems confronting Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is the race against Winter and the struggle to overcome the handicap of long supply lines.

Questions of Priority

These obstacles must be measured alongside the problem of German strength. Headquarters now is faced with the question of giving munitions and gasoline higher priority than warm clothes.

Despite the known Allied power and the present First Army offensive, it is apparent that the supreme command is preparing for a long Winter campaign.

Troops are being given as much cover as France, Belgium and Holland afford, and the front is taking on the aspect of 1914-18, particularly in Northern France near Metz and north of Nancy. Mud and slush are ankle deep under dripping, windswept skies.

Rains Come Early

The rains have come early and they have robbed the Allied armies of one of their two greatest assets—mobility. The other, which they retain is overwhelming air superiority.

Rains have turned fields into quagmires and American armored divisions, which in the race across France cut German troops to pieces, now are confined to paved highways where they may be easily dealt with by the defense.

It is the same with motorized divisions, and gains are now confined to the foot-slogging infantry.

Allied Armor Restricted

France and Germany, unlike Russia, never freezes hard enough to allow tanks to operate in open country in Winter. It therefore is likely that the Allies' vast superiority in armored strength soon may be restricted by weather.

Moreover, the onrushing Allied troops had to halt at the end of August to "pull up their supply pants," giving the Germans time to dig in and make necessary another bloody and violent drive backed by unlimited supplies such as the original Normandy breakout in July.

American armies now are churning the mud of Northern France in the same position as Gen. John J. Pershing's armies in 1918. They are fighting, but keeping their tongue in cheek and preparing for a Spring campaign—and hoping someone shoots Hitler.

Arnhem Escape Just In Time

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Oct. 2 (AP)—The men of Arnhem who escaped could not have held out another 24 hours, Maj. Gen. R. E. Urquhart said today.

Urquhart came here after about 2,000 of 8,000 men in his British airborne division escaped annihilation by pulling across the Rhine, where they landed September 17 in a vain effort to establish a bridgehead.

"The Americans put on a really magnificent show, flying in the face of heavy flak, trying to bring us supplies," the 6-foot-tall general said. "It wasn't their fault the operation failed.

German Tanks

"The Germans kept tapping away at us. We could cope with their infantry, but not the tanks. They would start down a street and blast every house to the ground.

"We had one outfit trying to hold the bridge and another fighting its way into the town. None of those men escaped."

At one time during the fighting in the suburbs of Arnhem, Urquhart said, the Germans and British were both using the same hospital for wounded.

The general was cut off from his headquarters for 36 hours and spent the night in a loft, keeping constant watch on a German machine gunner planted 50 yards from the door.

1st Unit To Crack Siegfried Line

United States First Army Headquarters, Oct. 2 (AP)—The hard-hitting United States Third Armored Division was the first American outfit to crack a way through the Siegfried Line, it was officially announced today.

At the same time it was disclosed that the United States Ninth Infantry Division, which was the first to slice across the Cherbourg peninsula, also was among the first American units to smash through the Siegfried Line.

First Infantry Unit In Reich

(It was disclosed yesterday that the United States First Infantry Division was the first infantry outfit to enter Germany. Elements of an armored division moved onto German territory first.)

The battle-tried veterans of the Ninth, who fought in Morocco, Tunisia and Sicily, also cleaned up Chateau Thierry and stormed across Belgium before forging a path through Hitler's West Wall defenses September 14, during almost 85 consecutive days in the line.

It has been moving steadily since it helped spearhead the crack-through at St. Lo and Perriers last July 25 which decided the battle of France.

NAZI PLANE PLANTS FOUND IN MINES

Algrange, France, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Allied advance across France interrupted German efforts to convert French iron ore mines in this area into elaborate bombproof factories, one of which was almost ready to start turning out 1,000 Messerschmitt fighter planes a month.

In this particular mine alone the Americans captured 300 tons of sheet aluminum, along with millions of dollars worth of equipment crated and stacked. Additional hundreds of tons of materials, still to be inventoried, were found in another mine at nearby Fontoy.

The Germans decamped in a hurry after a fake evacuation order put through by the F. F. I. and left behind blueprints of the Algrange plant calling for its completion by October 20. Frenchmen said the Germans had referred repeatedly to the Algrange project as the most important in the German war effort, and it received first priority, suggesting that it ultimately was to become one of Hitler's chief fighter plane production centers.

YANKS SEIZE NAZI ARSENAL

Guns Ranging From 9 MM To 12-Inch Rifles Found

Florange, Lorraine, Oct. 2 (AP)—A giant arsenal which the Germans started planning back in 1928 has been seized by the Americans in this iron-rich province of France.

Guns ranging from 88-mm. to 12-inch long-range rifles with 25-foot barrels were being turned out here in a massive plant covering ten acres and equipped with modern machinery—some of it made in Milwaukee.

In the same plant, which has a capacity of 1,000 guns annually, steel shell cases for the 88s were produced at the rate of 150,000 a month. High-grade steel for its products came from a foundry a quarter of a mile away.

Other Plants To Be Inventoried

Florange, a miniature Pittsburgh, has other steel plants yet to be inventoried. It is but a small unit in the vast munitions empire which the Germans had made of Lorraine, both above and below ground.

A Messerschmitt factory, found at near-by Algrange and a buzz-bomb factory at Thil—both built in ore mines—are other evidences of Hitler's plans to concentrate a big part of his war production in the province he once proclaimed a part of the Reich.

The Germans' long-range planning to make guns in Florange for this war was disclosed by an old Frenchman who said: "While they were restoring French industry under terms of Versailles reparations they put extra diligence into the construction of buildings of this plant.

Had Blueprint Ready In '40

"However, the economic crisis came before they finished and the buildings remained uncompleted until they came back in 1940. When they did arrive in 1940 they had complete blueprints for the plant and took up where they left off as if they'd left only the day before.

"With them they brought plans showing the location of every piece of machinery they intended to install—and hardly had they gotten here before the machinery started arriving. They knew exactly what they were doing."

The plant was completed in 1942, reached peak production in 1943 and still was going full blast until a few days before the Americans arrived.

Mostly Germans Employed

The Germans employed their own workers for the most part in the plant, but employed Russians, Poles and French in less highly skilled work in other industries in the area and housed them in camps surrounded by electrically charged wire.

A number of Russians still occupy one camp near the smelter today.

Among the millions of dollars of precision equipment is one huge breech block finishing machine made in Milwaukee which bore a plate saying it was imported from the United States by a French concern. No date was given.

Other equipment came from France, Germany, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Sweden and Czechoslovakia.

cere tribute to the officers and men of the resistance groups who, carrying out my orders, have fought so magnificently.

The rapidity of the advance of the Allied forces which has spared much of your country the horrors of war has been due in no small measure to your help. I salute especially your honored dead and wounded."

WARNING ISSUED BY EISENHOWER

OCT 3 1944

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower warned residents to evacuate immediately the Dutch islands in the Schelde Estuary because "there is every likelihood that a severe and prolonged aerial bombardment" will start soon.

The message said that the danger of flooding the islands "also threatens your lives."

The string of six or seven inhabited islands lie off the southwest coast of Holland, south of Rotterdam.

Gen. Eisenhower paid "sincere tribute" to Belgian resistance groups in an order of the day saying "the rapidity of the advance of the Allied forces, which has spared much of your country the horrors of war, has been due in no small measure to your help."

He said that if their government required them to fight on as members of the regular Belgian forces he would be proud to have them under his command.

'Ike' Praises Belgians

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Forces, Oct. 2 (Reuter)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has issued an order of the day to officers and men of all Belgium resistance organizations, saying:

Gen. Bradley Writes A Letter To Help Boy Get Dog

United States 12th Army Group Headquarters, Oct. 2 (AP) — Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, field commander of American troops cracking down on Germany, pitched in today to help a youthful admirer back home get a new dog.

The general's aid was asked by William H. Traphagen, Jr., 13, Cedar Grove, N. J., who thought a ... from the general would ...pt his dad to get him a new ...o replace the family dog killed in an accident.

Complimenting General Bradley on liberating Paris, young Traphagen wrote he was part French himself, as well as Scotch, English and German, and also "a relation of Abraham Lincoln—directly or indirectly, I don't know which."

Really "My Mom's Dog"

"I had a little dog named Skippy," he continued. "He looked like a Maltese poodle and, for all we know he was, but his hair never seemed to grow as long as a Maltese should. We didn't care much what he was—we knew what he meant to us. He loved my brother, Bob, and I a lot, but he really was my Mom's dog. You see, when we were in school she was with him all the time and she fed him most of the time.

"We had him for eight years and on Valentine's Day this year my Dad and Mom started to back our car out of the driveway and go visit friends. Skip had sneaked out the back door that night and when he saw the car, thinking Mom was in it, he ran under the wheels. He lived about 10 minutes and in the period he showed his love for us more than at any other time in his life.

"It took a while for me to get over it and now I will be darned if I don't want another dog. None can take Skip's place, but I'd like another.

"My Dad sort of doesn't want to get one, but I noticed how his face lit up when he saw a picture of your dogs in last night's paper. I think he liked that kind of dog, and maybe if I use that picture I might get him to buy one like them.

"I am just wondering what kind they were. I wish you'd write and tell me. They sure are cute. Have you seen that picture? It shows your pups guarding your helmet. I like the one that has his paws on your helmet. I think a good name for him would be Bozo.

"Can they do any tricks?"

Cookies Or Candies

Before closing with wishes for good luck to the general and his troops, Bill promised that "in return for your kindness in supplying me with this information, I am prepared to send you either some hard candy or some cookies. All I need is your full address and written request for the article."

Presumably that was to satisy postal regulations for shipments of parcels overseas.

From his field headquarters General Bradley, a doglover since he hunted through the Missouri woods in his schoolboy days, sent this reply:

"Dear Bill:—Your clipping on the pups was the first I had seen; it was thoughtful of you to mail it. They are peppery little fellows, 3 months old and just large enough to scamper like circus tumblers over the camouflage net that hides our tents from enemy air attacks.

Pups' Background Obscure

"Their mother was a puppy herself when we found her in London. One of our soldiers carried her to France on the invasion and Betsy gave birth to her litter several weeks afterward. To mark the birth, we named the pups after the beaches.

"Like Skippy's pedigree the pups' background is a trifle obscure. We grant them the benefit of the doubt, however, and call them wirehaired terriers.

"I am returning your clipping with the hope that you may be able to use it in selling your Dad on a pup to take the place of Skippy. When the war is over, perhaps we can get together somewhere and have a chat on our dogs. I still have one in the States that I'm anxious to take out hunting again.

"Sincerely,
"O. N. BRADLEY,
LIEUTENANT GENERAL, USA."

Germans Comply Well With Allied Regulations

OCT 3 1944

By Harold V. Boyle

Kornelimunster, Germany, Oct. 2 (AP)—An officer in the first Allied Military Government unit established inside Germany said today the German populace is cooperating well and that there has been no known case of civilian violence against occupying American troops.

"There have been a few cases of sniping, but they were so close to the front lines it is reasonable to assume they were by Nazi soldiers who filtered past our outposts," said Lieut. Shale L. Tulin, East Norwalk, Conn.

Tulin, a member of the 14-man outfit which has been operating in the Reich more than two weeks, said this section was strongly Catholic and that the Nazi doctrines had never gained the same hold as in the heart of Germany.

Six Brought To Trial

So far there have been only six enemy civilians brought to trial in the summary military government court presided over by Capt. Kurt L. Walitschek, of Oakland, Cal.

"Four women were convicted of violating security by entering the combat zone," said Tulin. "They gave the excuse they wanted to go back to their homes to get some belongings. They were fined 1,000 marks—about $100—and paid.

"Otherwise they would have been given six months in jail. The other two defendants were German men accused of stealing coal owned by the American Government."

Possible Death Penalty

Because these cases were regarded as more serious—they carry a possible death penalty—Captain Walitschek remanded the men to a higher intermediate court.

The military government has established stringent restrictions on civilian movements to safeguard the security of Allied troops.

There is a dusk-to-dawn curfew and none except those given one-day passes—doctors, nurses, midwives and food agents—are allowed to move more than a few score yards from home, day or night.

"We simply cannot risk the safety of our troops by allowing enemy civilians to circulate in the combat zone," said Tulin.

All civilians—men, women and children—between the ages of 12 and 60 have been registered. They also have been required to turn in spirit."

"This is the first time they really have felt the war and they don't seem to understand why we find it necessary to restrict their movements," he said.

"But one Burgermeister told us, 'We expected much worse. We expected we would be tortured and shot. Had we known how we really were to be treated—even though you are very strict with us—none of our people would have fled farther into Germany. They would have remained in their homes here.'"

Tulin said that although "we have taken firearms and daggers we have made no effort to search civilian homes and remove their radios or burn their books. Any German can tune in and listen to all the Nazi propaganda broadcasts he wants to and he can sit and read Hitler's 'Mein Kampf' all day long if he has a mind to. We don't think many of them do, however."

"Displaced Soldiers"

Major Claude E. Post, Elmhurst, N. Y., a member of another front-line military government unit, confirmed Tulin's observation that there had been no corroborated case of physical assault by any German civilian against an American soldier. He said that most trouble came from "displaced soldiers."

"That is the term we use for thousands of Poles and Russians who have been forced to do farm and factory work in Germany," he said. "They have been breaking into homes and threatening the Germans. They want revenge and you can't blame them, but we have to keep order."

ArmyDon't'WannaGo Home' Till Hitler Falls

PARIS, Oct. 2 (AP).—A "Stars and Stripes" editorial gibe at "I wanna-go-home" soldiers brought a tumultuous response from the Army ranks that "Sure, we wanna go home—but not until we've beaten Hitler," in a solid page of letters published today in the Army daily.

"Stars and Stripes" editors plan to send the declarations of determination to General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Yanks Acquire Eiffel Tower

PARIS, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Eiffel Tower, prime landmark of Paris, has been requisitioned by the U. S. Army, it was learned today.

The 984-foot tower completed in 1889 has been, since the liberation of Paris, a magnet for wandering American fliers who enjoy zooming under the high arches of its base.

But the Army plans a different use for it. Officially this is described as "observation." The top of the tower commands a view of 60 miles and also, according to standard guidebooks, houses "a powerful wireless installation."

'Chutist Returns, Revenge On Nazis

With American Airborne Troops at Nijemegen, Oct. 2 (AP)—Major Augustin Hart, Jr., considered it sweet revenge when he parachuted into Holland with American airborne troops.

He was trapped in The Hague four years ago by a German parachute invasion. He was there on business, but he joined the United States Embassy as military attache. The Germans would not permit him to leave for two months because he had been a witness to a German airborne operation. When he got back, the War Department assigned him to lecture American troops on what he had seen.

MONA LISA FOUND SAFE IN FRANCE

London, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Most of France's national art treasures, including the renowned Bayeux Tapestry, the Mona Lisa and the Venus de Milo, are safe, a Supreme Headquarters commission has disclosed.

Lieut.-Col. G. F. Webb, former Slade professor of fine arts at the University of Cambridge and now adviser to the Monuments, Fine Arts and Archives Section of Supreme Headquarters, said also that numerous old buildings and monuments escaped destruction.

He said the Bayeux Tapestry was found in the vaults of the Louvre when Allied troops entered Paris, although the Vichy Government tried to have it removed.

So far as can now be tained, he declared, there been no extensive looting of nationally owned art treasures, but private collections, especially those owned by Jews, had suffered.

Col. Webb's section, a force of ten specialists, reported that the Chartres Cathedral is practically undamaged and the Church of St. Pierre in Chartres untouched.

Swarm Of Planes Crowd Nazi Skies

2,500 Aircraft Blast Path Through Siegfried Line for First Army Offensive—Plaster Cologne, Kassel, Hamm.

By Robert Eunson

LONDON, Oct. 2. (AP)—More than 2,500 Allied warplanes crowded the skies over Germany today, blasting a path through the Siegfried line for the U. S. First Army's new offensive and plastering the great enemy cities of Cologne, Kassel and Hamm.

One Per Cent Lost

Twelve heavy bombers, one per cent of the force of 1,200 Flying Fortresses and Liberators that heaped destruction on the three cities, failed to return, and seven fighters are missing.

About 1,000 Marauders and fighterbombers joined in the awesome barrage against the Siegfried Line before the First Army went over to the offensive, and returning pilots said the German air force offered little resistance.

About 900 heavy bombers took on the industrial plants of Cologne, little more than 30 miles east of the fighting front, and ranged on deeper into Germany for a big raid on Kassel's smoking factories.

Hamm Plastered

A force of 300 Liberators swept northward and plastered Hitler's biggest freight yards at Hamm, through which the enemy high command would be expected to rush men and material to the new fighting front.

These big raids also were unopposed, escort pilots reported, but flak was intense.

About the same time, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower warned the residents o ftwo Dutch islands in the Schelde estuary, where German guns deny Allied entry to the Belgian port of Antwerp, to take refuge because "there is every liklihood that severe and prolonged aerial bombardment will be carried out shortly against enemy troops."

Rocket Gun Sites

There are reports the Germans also have rocket gun sites on the islands—Walcheren and Zuid Beveland.

Fighterbombers also roared off back of the front. One force demolished a factory at Weilerwist, 30 miles southeast of Aachen.

A group led by Col. Gilbert L. Meyers, Milford, Iowa, dropped 12,000 pounds of bombs on a double track rail linenear Siegen.

Two German villages in the path of the First Army offensive, Merkstein, about a mile east of the border, and Palenberg, four miles father north at the frontier, were obliterated by medium and fighterbombers.

Smash Troops

Several hundred fighterbombers of the Ninth Air Force ranged through the Ruhr valley smashing at troop reinforcements and equipment.

"An additional 250 planes gave close support to the U. S. First Army near Aachen by attacking enemy troop areas, strong points and communications," an official Ninth Air Force announcement reported.

"Ranging just ahead of the attacking American troops, the fighterbombers hit the enemy gun positions and troop concentrations. Two attacks were carried out with large incendiary bombs."

Thunderbolts on armed reconnaissance strafed trains in the vicinity of Saarbrucken and Strasbourg on the Third Army front. East of Thionville, the P-47's got six enemy gun positions. More than 26 locomotives and 100 freight cars were destroyed in the Ruhr valley and nearly as many damaged.

Rail lines, warehouses and railroad junctions were wrecked.

U.S. BOMBERS BLAST SUPPLY HUBS BACK OF SIEGFRIED LINE

London, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—More than 2,700 Allied warplanes today stuck in close and deep support of the great new American offensive against the Siegfried Line in the Aachen sector of northwest Germany.

While more than 1,000 medium and fighter bombers blazed a pathway into the Nazi wall immediately before Lieut.-Gen. Courtney Hodges's men, 900 Flying Fortresses of the Eighth United States Air Force battered Cologne and Kassel, and 300 Liberators poured bomb loads into Germany's greatest freight yards at Hamm, ninety miles northwest of Aachen.

Cologne is thirty miles east of Aachen and is not only one of Germany's greatest arsenals, but also a communication center for supplying the northern end of the German front. Kassel is one of the most important German railroad centers in the west. It lies 150 miles beyond Aachen.

Some 500 Mustangs and Thunderbolts convoyed the Fortresses to and from Kassel and Cologne. The bombers attacked through clouds.

Rural Factory Bombed

Marauders and fighter bombers shook the ground around Aachen for miles around with blows at pillboxes, gun positions and troop concentrations, front reports said.

The Germans also reported formations over southwest and south Germany, suggesting a two-directional attack from the west and south. One report said some bombers in the north were approaching the Nazi naval base of Emden.

Other forces of speedy Mosquito intruders bombed a rural factory 30 miles from Handorf, and carried out more than 40 small attacks on rail and canal targets in Germany and Holland during the night. No aircraft were lost in these operations.

Returning flyers reported that while they encountered little fighter opposition, they ran into plenty of anti-aircraft fire. Sergt. Charles W. Crabbe of 19 Park Place, Rockville Centre, L. I., was hit on the head by a large piece of flak "but it didn't hurt me any more than to give me a little bump." Sergt. Crabbe is engineer of the Fortress Billie the Kid.

The German radio reported formations over southwest and south Germany, suggesting a two-directional attack from the west and south.

Last night Mosquito squadrons of the Royal Air Force attacked the German city of Brunswick by bright moonlight.

Both American and British heavy bombers were idle yesterday after closing the books on one of their busiest months of the war. The big bombers were over Germany on twenty of the thirty days of September, concentrating on railway terminals choked with supplies for the western front. According to reconnaissance reports their work of sealing off the Nazi forces dug in on the Siegfried Line has been highly effective.

The Clouds Part, the Bombers Come

Then Massed Artillery Opens Up and Great U. S. Offensive Is Under Way.

By DON WHITEHEAD.

Groenstraat, Holland, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The heavy rain clouds broke early today and then the bombers came in. They streaked overhead in measured, majestic flight by the hundreds, and dumped their deadly cargoes onto the Siegfried Line. The attack was on.

For ten days, the entire United States First Army front has been comparatively quiet. In the high echelons, they called this period a lull. But to the infantry in their cold wet foxholes up front, there was no lull. The enemy was counter-attacking and the shells were coming toward them all the time.

For ten days, the Army has been building up supplies and reserves in preparation for this drive. Now Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges was ready. His troops were in position. Hundreds of big guns were massed along this sector.

The break in the gray skies which had blanketed the fighting front for days was the signal for the attack.

A few minutes before 7 A. M., there came a sullen and distinct rumble from the skies where the gray cloud masses still scudded across a brilliant blue background. The low rumble grew into a roar and then you saw them—the silvery toys up there catching the glint of the sun.

And Then It Came.

Peasants driving along in high-wheeled carts stopped on the roadside to stare open-mouthed. Men and women turned their heads to the sky and children stopped, shouting at passing vehicles to point at the planes overhead. Housewives leaned from windows to watch and troops stood in the fields with faces turned upward. It seemed as if this part of the world stood still and held its breath for what was to come.

Then it came.

There was a drumming, rolling thunder of exploding bombs that made the earth tremble. This was the bombing of St. Lo repeated—not on such a grand scale but an awful spectable just the same. Great columns of black smoke billowed up. The haze of explosions clung over the bomb zone in the evil gray mist. The bombers were striking at pillboxes, foxholes and entrenchments over the path down which the Americans would attack.

Behind the mediums came the swift fighter-bombers, wave after wave of them. For two hours the planes thundered across and then the artillery—hundreds of guns—started a rolling barrage against the enemy strong points.

Lead Spearhead Troops.

At 11 A. M. Capt. Ross Simmons of Tulsa, Okla., and Lieut. Ferdinand Bons of Salt Lake City led their units across the green fields to spearhead the attack. They advanced to the Wurm River and sloshed through knee-deep icy water. They kept on driving into the mass of pillboxes and emplacements.

Down muddy roads behind these shock troops slogged other infantrymen. Infantrymen always look tired with their slow tread and heavy loads of ammunition, machine-guns and mortars. About their mouths were the tight looks of warriors going into battle. Occasionally they shrank involuntarily as a shell moaned in and crashed across the ridge. A column turned from the road into a field and marched to an embankment at the ridgetop. Across that flat ridge they were exposed and in view of the enemy.

"Keep it spread out there," shouted a sergeant.

They Can't Go Fast.

At the ridgetop the men scrambled up the embankment and ran coughing across the open field like troops in the last war going over the top. They ran heavily with black mud holding their feet in a dogtrot and with their heavy weapons and ammunition boxes making their effort for speed seem ridiculous. You wanted to shout "faster, faster" but they could go no faster.

Another group reached the embankment.

"Spread out and be ready to go on the double," shouted a young officer, and then the men charged up the embankment and ran slowly across the field, disappearing down another slope.

In a village a few hundred yards back, troops stood on the sidewalks on either side of the street waiting to move ahead. Shells crashed into buildings near by and the men melted into doorways and behind buildings. The street was suddenly deserted.

Soviet Bombers Augment Drive On Yugoslavia

Moscow, Oct. 2 (AP) — Russian fighter bombers swarmed over Yugoslavia in round-the-clock raids on German forces as Russian ground troops gained steadily today along a curving, mountainous front 70 to 100 miles southeast of Belgrade in a drive that is bottling up an estimated 200,000 Nazi troops in the lower Balkans.

The Germans were defending their Balkan life-line southeast of the Yugoslav capital fiercely, but yesterday Red army troops, with Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans acting as advance scouts, dented Nazi defenses another 23 miles to within 43 miles of the Belgrade-Nis railway, Moscow announced.

50 Batteries Silenced

Soviet pilots today reported silencing 50 enemy batteries, destroying five military trains and knocking out scores of trucks and tanks along the vital escape hatch for the imperiled Nazis.

(Meanwhile an unconfirmed Budapest dispatch from Turkey said other Soviet and Romanian troops had penetrated 22 miles into southeastern Hungary in an offensive aimed at Budapest, Magyar capital, less than 100 miles distant. Russian gains in that sector were officially acknowledged by Hungary, but their depth was not disclosed.

(Moscow was silent about the Hungarian drive and about the situation at Warsaw, which was described as "critical" by Polish Patriots, as Berlin said the Nazis were overwhelming the dwindling guerrillas.)

Nearer Morava Valley

Soviet progress toward the Morava Valley route of the Belgrade-Greece railway was the only important advance claimed today along the entire eastern front.

Aerial observation and information from Yugoslav Partisans pinpointed the location of German reinforcements diverted to the Serbian invasion sector. Stormoviks, augmenting their usual role of flying anti-tank guns, were sent out along with relays of light bombers in paralyzing assaults against these troop movements.

Burning Transport Seen

Pilots said roads and spur railways east of the Morava valley were dotted with fires of burning enemy transport.

(In western Serbia, Tito's army, after two days' fighting, routed the Germans and liberated the town of Lesnica, the Moscow radio said today, Reuters reported. Lesnica is about 20 miles southwest of Sabac and 57 miles from Belgrade. Detachments of Chetniks under personal command of General Mihailovich fought in this sector on the side of the Germans, the communique said. It added that in Bosnia, Yugoslav troops have occupied a number of German strong points, including Srebrnik.)

Riga Liberation Predicted

On the northern flank of the eastern front, a dispatch to Pravda declared, the "hour of liberation is near for Riga."

Pravda continued: "The battle of the Soviet Baltic is entering its last conclusive stage. The struggle for Riga is becoming more furious each day. Soviet fighters have to break a complicated enemy defense based on natural obstacles, swamps and forests, together with steel and concrete fortifications and mine fields. But all these obstacles will be overcome."

Some 50 miles due east of Riga Red troops forced the Oger river and widened a gap in the enemy line to more than 60 miles, the front-line report said.

The Germans clung stubbornly to positions in the Vidzen hills west of Madona. Frame throwers and machine guns failed to stop Russian infantry attacks.

Says Counterattack Failed

A German counterattack with a tank division was beaten back with heavy losses and some enemy infantry battalions were reduced to 50 men, prisoners said.

Pravda's forecast of the quick liberation of Riga made a strong impression in Moscow, for the Russian press usually is ultra conservative in discussing military prospects.

There was no confirmation in Moscow yet that the Russian offensive against Hungary had got past the southeastern frontier, but in northern Transylvania, which the Hungarians regained by Nazi dictate in 1940, the Russian-Romanian drive closely approaches the capital city of Cluj.

River Village Southeast of Capital.

By W. W. Hercher

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 3. (AP)—Marshal Tito's headquarters announced last night that units of the Yugoslav 14th Partisan Corps had linked up with Russian troops in a converging drive on Belgrade, and were fighting on the approaches to the German stronghold of Donji Milanovac, Danube River village 80 miles southeast of the capital.

Partisans Battle Nazis

Other Partisan units were reported battling German and puppet troops within 18 miles of Belgrade on the south and 55 miles on the southwest.

Struggling against fierce German resistance and the imminence of heavy autumn rains, the combined forces under Marshals Rodion Y. Malinovsky and Tito were threatening the reconquest of big German-worked copper and coal mines in a 40-mile area between Donji Milanovac and Zajecar to the south.

At Donji Milanovac they were only 10 miles northeast of the Majdanpek copper mines and 25 miles north of the larger Bor mines, formerly operated by the French. Soviet troops attacking from the east and southeast were within 12 miles of Bor, whose mines before the war produced most of Yugoslavia's 63,000 metric tons.

Reds Near Zajecar

Fourteen miles southeast of Bor the Russians were attacking just outside Zajecar, a rail junction serving the copper and coal fields in the surrounding area. On Sunday advance Soviet spearheads had fought their way to a point less than two miles from Zajecar with the seizure of Vrazogrnac.

On the middle of the irregular front Berlin admitted its troops had withdrawn westward into the mountains, abandoning their positions around the rail town of Negotin. Berlin said the Russians had more than 30,000 troops inside Yugoslavia, and had that many more preparing to cross the Danube at a point west of Turnu-Severin.

The chances of trapping an Axis force originally estimated at 200,000 men lessened, however. Moscow, in an unusually brief communique, announced there were "no essential changes" on the long front between the Baltic and the Balkans. The Germans were reported making a "masterful retreat" through the Ibar Valley from Greece and lower Yugoslavia.

Cut Off Nazis

Moscow dispatches said the Russians still had a chance of cutting off from 40,000 to 50,000 Germans should they be able soon to reach and cut the Nis-Belgrade railway and roads through the Morava Valley. On Sunday their spearheads were within 43 miles of the railway in the Zajecar area.

A dispatch from Associated Press correspondent, Joseph Morton, at Bari on the Adriatic, told of the German retreat and the junction of Tito's forces with the Red Army near Donji Milanovac.

He said the Allied troops had seized 40 square miles of territory, freeing the big Danube bend area southwest of Turnu-Severin, Romanian border base whence the Red Army drive was launched. Marshal Tito recently conferred with high Soviet officials on the joint operations in his country, the dispatch said.

Partisans Seize Lesnica

On the southwestern approaches to Belgrade partisan troops were within 55 miles of the capital after seizing Lesnica, and on the south had taken Sopot, near the Nis-Belgrade trunk railway at a point only 13 miles below the capital.

Zajecar, center of the Timok minerals, is 45 miles northeast of Nis, important objective of the attacking Russians. Partisan troops recently were reported to have seized Zajecar, but presumably were thrown out again by elements of several German divisions which retreated out of Romania and Bulgaria when those countries quit the war.

A Bulgarian communique said that Bulgar troops and Yugoslav partisans had captured Vlasotince, Serbian town 25 miles southeast of Nis and 20 miles west of the Bulgarian border, in the double-pointed at Nis.

Main Line of Retreat

The German retreat through the Ibar valley, west of the Morava, appeared to be the main Nazi line of withdrawal because of the strength of partisan resistance along the Skolpje-Nis-Belgrade line.

The Yugoslav Telegraphic agency here estimated that there were elements of 27 German divisions still in Yugoslavia, including six infantry divisions, four SS divisions, one airborne, and some armored groups.

Moscow dispatches said that Soviet fighters were now attacking the Germans on a round-the-clock basis and the pilots reported during the day that they had silenced 50 enemy batteries, destroyed five military trains and knocked out scores of tanks and trucks.

Reds Lose Mako

On the front of invaded southeastern Hungary the Russians lost Mako, three miles inside pre-war Hungary and 15 miles east of Szeged, Hungary's second city, Berlin said. Axis commentators also claimed successes along a 100-mile front northeast of Szeged. Moscow still has never announced the Hungarian penetration.

Berlin told of heavy fighting west of the Dukla Pass in southern Poland where Col. Gen. Ivan Petrov's fourth Ukraine army units were trying to push into Czechoslovakia en route to northern Hungary.

The Russians were stalled in the offensive ring almost encircling Riga, Latvian capital on the Baltic, but a Pravda dispatch said the battle there now was entering its conclusive stage, and added "the hour of liberation is near for Riga."

Inside Warsaw weakened Polish patriot forces were forced to give up the northern Zoliborz district, but still hold points in the center of the capital, said a communique from Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Bor.) "The battle is strenuous but we still stand up," the bulletin said.

Fighting Together on Approaches to German Stronghold of Donji Milanovac, Danube

PRAVDA CRITICAL

Moscow, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Pravda devoted three columns today to another angry attack by Ilya Ehrenburg, eminent Soviet writer, on alleged signs of weakness among the Western Powers in exterminating "Hitlerism." He castigated the French author, Andre Gide, for "mumbling 'Down with Hitler,' but simultaneously preparing for the return of the Brown fever," and he declared: "In Paris, academicians persuade themselves that Petain is not a vulgar traitor."

"In a German city captured by the Allies, an old Nazi is the new mayor," Ehrenburg contitnued. "An American newspaper moans over the fate of arrested traitors in France."

Declaring that there were no isolationists in Russia, he said: "We are not witnesses or custtomers, but one of the creators of European culture. We writers of the Soviet Union are waiting for words of truth and goodness from the writers of the West."

Poles Say Lublin Group Barred Aid

London, Tuesday, Oct. 3 (AP)—An editorial accusing the Polish National Committee of Liberation of not only neglecting to help the underground fight in Warsaw, but of standiing in the way of assistance, appeared in today's semi-official Polish daily, Dziennik Polski.

"On August 6, after six days of fighting in Warsaw, General Zymierski and Mr. Morawski (president of the committee) declared there was no fighting in the capital," the editorial stated, in part.

Cites Call To Arms

"Later, when the Soviet press admitted fighting was going on, they began to make charges that the rising had begun prematurely, and they did this despite the fact that they bore responsibility for the communique issued by the Union of Patriots from Moscow on July 29, which called the population of Warsaw 'to arms.'

"They knew well that Marshal Stalin himself had declared the Soviet forces were expected to be in Warsaw on August 6, six days after the rising.

"M. Zymierski, pretending to the role of C.-in-C. and endeavoring to create a militarist regime in Poland, did not order the Polish airmen who are under his command to fly over Warsaw, fight the Germans, and drop supplies, and that at a time when 105 Polish airmen perished while bringing aid from Allied bases in Italy.

Ordered Disarming

"Worse still, at the same time he ordered disarming and arrests of detachments and leaders of the underground army, as well as detachments which were marching to help Warsaw.

"While the Soviet Government decided to help Warsaw when British, South African, American and Polish airmen brought assistance, you, the gentlemen of the Lublin committee, not only did not help but actively stood in their way."

ATTACK STUNS LONDON POLES

Moscow Committee Action Poses Problem for U. S.

London, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Hopes of an early settlement of the Polish controversy faded today in the wake of a bitter new attack upon the Polish Government in Exile, ended by Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczky in London, by the rival Soviet - sponsored National Committee of Liberation in Moscow. The attack, delivered by Osubka Morawski, president of the national committee, at a Moscow press conference, posed grave new diplomatic problems for Great Britain and the United States, both of which are understood here to have assured Premier Mikolajczky of their support.

Morawski bitterly denounced the exiled Government in London for its appointment of Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Gen. Bor) as commander in chief of the Polish forces to succeed Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, whom Premier Mikolajczky's Government had dismissed in a bid for the friendship of the Moscow committee. Gen. Komorowski is the leader of the Polish Patriots battling the Germans in Warsaw.

Characterizing the action of the London Polish Government as crazy, Morawski expressed the determination of his committee to bring to criminal trial those in the exile regime whom it regards as responsible for the untimely Warsaw uprising. A bulletin from Gen. Komorowski's headquarters last night described the position of the Patriot forces in Warsaw as critical. The blast left London Poles stunned and raised diplomatic issues that may be far-reaching in their effects.

The Moscow committee has been regarded here as the creature of Russia, its words and actions reflecting the views of the Kremlin. Thus Morawski's statement was generally deemed a rebuff not only to the London Poles but also to Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who are believed to have been prime movers in urging Premier Mikolajczyk to sacrifice Gen. Sosnkowski in the interests of unity.

Morawski indicated that Premier Mikolajczyk and three or four associates were still acceptable to the Liberations Committee, but gave no hint that the committee would make any compromises to win them over. He said the committee favors its own defense chief, Col.-Gen. Mihail Rola-Zymierski, for the post of Polish Commander in Chief.

FINNS CLOSE AROUND KEMI

Surprise Capture Of Tornea Traps German Force

By ROBERT STURDEVANT

Oulu, Finland, Oct. 2 (AP)—Finnish troops closed in tonight on the Bothnian Gulf port of Kemi both from the Tornea direction and north from Kuivaniemi, which Finnish Arctic troops have just reached.

Capture of Tornea by a surprise landing from the Bothnian Gulf on Saturday trapped Nazis on both sides of the Kemi river.

One Finnish officer told me the German rear guards, usually motorized, often sit on the far bank of a river awaiting the arrival of Finnish troops. When they are sighted, the Germans touch off explosive charges and then dash on to the next river.

Little Actual Fighting

So far as I have been able to observe in this limited sector, there has been little if any actual fighting. The Germans are definitely retreating along an approximately 120-mile front stretching from the Olhava river on the Gulf of Bothnia eastward through Pudasjarvi and Taivalkoski to the vicinity of Kuusamo.

The pattern of the Finnish effort to drive the Germans from their Arctic stronghold was made clear to correspondents in a 75-mile tour behind the "front."

In the space of slightly more than 40 miles between headquarters of the Finnish command in the direction of Pudas Jarvi, I counted five blown bridges. So far in the campaign beginning September 15 there have been 131 bridges destroyed by the Germans in this area.

Follow Lonely Roads

The Germans are withdrawing along lonely roads leading to Rovaniemi, the Nazis' principal base in this northern area near Lapland.

On the approaches to Kiiminki, about 30 miles northeast of Oulu, I was told the Germans had established a mine field four by six miles in area and that one stretch of road was mined for a distance of 15 miles.

Coincident with the arrival of correspondents in this area a Russian general, Major General Tokarev, and several other officers, all members of the armistice control commission, set up a branch here

Tokarev formally met the Finnish commander in chief this afternoon and received Finnish maps and other plans of operations against the Germans at Kemi and Rovaniemi.

Nazis Reported Fleeing As Finns Fight in Tornio

German Garrison in Border Town Is Captured

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2 (AP).—Swedish newspaper reports from the Finnish border tonight said German troops were fleeing north of Tornio after Finnish troops had captured the German garrison in the border town.

A dispatch from Haparanda—across the Swedish-Finnish border from Tornio—estimated 2,000 Germans were routed by the Finns who surprised the Nazis by slipping through their defenses Saturday night and attacking the garrison early Sunday.

The Finnish communique made no mention of the fall of the town but declared Finnish and German forces had been engaged in battle in Tornio since yesterday morning.

The border dispatch said the Germans had attempted to hold out until reinforcements could arrive from the Nazi stronghold at Kemi on the Gulf of Bothnia several miles south of Tornio, but the Finns cut the road and beat off the relief column.

The Germans were reported to have started demolition of military and port installations in Kemi, now threatened with encirclement.

In central Finland, German forces were reported fleeing east of Pudasjarvi with Finnish troops in close pursuit.

from Hitler to fortify certain Bavarian and Austrian sectors as a last line of defense on the ground that he did not want to see Germany turned into a battleground.

The same sources, amplifying Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's charges that Heinrich Himmler was forming a secret organization to keep Nazism alive, asserted the No. 2 Nazi had set up three different "crews."

"Picked Gestapo Men"

"Crew No. 1" was described as picked Gestapo men who had assumed in new localities the identity and papers of men killed in Allied air raids.

"Crew No. 2" reportedly was made up of picked youths from the 12 Ordenspurgen special schools for Nazi youngsters, who are now being trained at secret camps in all the dodges of underground organization.

"Crew No. 3" is to be made up of boys and girls under 16 years of age who would be given special training for harassing occupation forces.

Would Replace War Shipping

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—The General Council of British Shipping today advocated full use of all available shipping after the war, but urged early scrapping of war-built vessels in favor of ships constructed for specific purposes.

Lost vessels have been replaced largely by one type of ship—the 10,000-tonner—the report said, adding that "permanent operation of a large volume of war-built vessels would invite disaster both for the marine and shipyards."

The "sterilization" of unsuitable shipping might seem extravagant, it was argued, but the price would be cheap if England could secure an efficient merchant marine con- various types of vessels.

Three Germans Face Treason Trial, Report

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—Three prominent Germans—one of them editor of Hermann Goering's newspaper, National Zeitung—will be tried on charges of treason, according to information today from German border sources.

The editor, Count Schwerin, has been accused of complicity in the abortive bomb plot against Hitler. So has Dr. Gessler, a non-Nazi who once served as Minister of War in the Weimar Republic and who also is facing a Himmler trial.

Three "Crews" Cited

The third defendant was listed as General Wagner, who allegedly refused to follow a direct ord

The report also advocated Government subsidy if other governments subsidized shipping "to our disadvantage."

5 More Nazi Generals Are Listed As Dead

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—The official German news agency DBN announced tonight that five more German generals had been killed in action or died of wounds.

The Berlin broadcast listed them as:

Infantry General Friedrich Mieth and Maj. Gen. Friedrich Bluemke, killed on the Eastern Front; Maj. Gen. Wilhelm Crisolli, killed in Italy; Lieut. Gen. Zickwolff and Maj. Gen. Werner Dueking, died of wounds.

Nazi Convoy Hit Off Dutch Coast

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—Light British navy coastal forces patrolling off the coast yesterday attacked a convoy of German supply ships escorted by a destroyer and several armed trawlers and damaged two of the enemy vessels and left two others burning, the Admiralty reported today.

Two British motor torpedo boats were lost in the attack, the Admiralty communique said.

One of the motor torpedo boats was sunk after her steering gear was jammed by enemy fire, causing her to turn on a circle near an enemy trawler. She damaged the trawler with her gunfire and rammed a small enemy coaster.

ASSAILS PROPOSAL OF AGRARIAN REICH

London, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Taking to task those suggesting that Germany be turned into an agricultural state after the war, The Times said today that German production "must be raised to its highest point and modeled and organized on lines which will make it a useful constituent of an organized European economy."

"The notion recently mooted that the interest of Europe or the world would be served by the obliteration of Germany's productive capacity and a return of the German people to primitive agriculture may serve to express a legitimate indignation," the paper said editorially. "But it does not otherwise qualify for serious discussion."

Warning that supervision and direction of German industry is "a central responsibility which the principal Allied powers will have to shoulder," The Times said "a war ravaged Europe can afford less than ever before to dispense with the contribution which German skill and German labor can make to recovery."

7 Forts Guard London Line

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Government revealed today that seven forts bristling with guns, built on concrete stilts above the water in the Thames estuary, have been guarding the strategic seaborne supply route to London since 1942.

It was from these forts that Hitler's planes, attempting to sow mines in the estuary in an effort to cut off London from seaborne supplies during the early blitz, met a terrific barrage of ack-ack fire.

The forts' guns successfully fought off German planes planting acoustic and magnetic mines and broke up E-boat attacks on assembling coastal convoys. Later they whipped up effective fire against the robot bombs and also were used as bases for sea rescue boats.

Each outpost is manned by 60 to 120 men.

British Trade Union Program

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—Public ownership or public control of all British industry, including the immediate transfer to public ownership of the transport, fuel and power and iron and steel industries, was advocated today by the general council of the Trades Union Congress.

In a report on post-war reconstruction, prepared for submission October 16 to the annual convention of this British labor union group, the general council said its immediate recommendations could be considered "part of the gradual transition of the economic system from unregulated private enterprise to public ownership and public control."

Says Public Is Prepared

Public opinion is prepared for nationalization of British coal mines and railways, the report declared. It urged that these be taken over at once if political opposition or legislative difficulties should slow public ownership of other industries named.

Public ownership, the report said, should take the form of a public corporation under a minister responsible to Parliament. It asked provision for representation of the "viewpoint of the work people engaged in the industry."

Short of complete public ownership, the general council suggested public control through state acquisition of key sections of an industry, financial control of important companies, Governmental wholesaling, or creation of industrial boards within industries.

Industrial boards would be made up in equal proportion of wage-earners and employers, with an impartial chairman and other independent members appointed and paid by the Government.

The function of such boards, the report said, would be the concentration and specialization of production for each industry, standardization of equipment and products and creation of a common research organization. It also would include the pooling of methods and patents and general commercial information and the creation of common marketing and purchasing agencies.

SPAIN IN AIR RIVALRY

Decree Awards Monopoly to Iberia Co. of All Lines

MADRID, Oct. 2 (AP)—Spain entered post-war international airline competition today with a decree awarding the Iberia Company a monopoly for Spain, its colonial communications and all foreign lines which the nation may operate "on a reciprocity basis."

The decree, approved by the Cabinet and published today, places Spain on the list of nations seeking post-war freedom of the air in international competition on the basis of reciprocity.

The State-owned company, which authorized an increase in capital to 90,000,000 pesetas, will place 25 per cent of the stock in the hands of Spaniards, with preference in purchase offered to Spanish shipping companies.

Germans Stem Onslaught In Northern Italy

Yanks Meet Particularly Violent Enemy Resistance.

ROME, Oct. 2 (AP)—German resistance officially described as "very strong" had brought the Allied drive for Italy's industrial north to a virtual standstill tonight along the last mountain rim guarding the broad Po river valley.

American troops met particularly violent enemy resistance, fighting off Nazi counterattacks for the fourth straight day as they clung to Monte Battaglia, a towering height 11 miles from Imola on the Bologna-Rimini highway. Neighboring Monte Cappella was captured by Yank assault units after a bitter battle.

Skies cleared over most of the front after nearly a week of unbroken rain, permitting the Allied tactical air force to get back into the battle. Mountain streams began to subside and there was a possibility that both the Allied Fifth and Eighth Armies would be able to resume fullscale attacks within a few days.

Despite heavy concentrations of Nazi artillery along the entire Eighth Army sector near the Adriatic coast, British troops cleared the last enemy snipers from Savignano and struck on across the Fiumicino river. To the southwest other British units reached the Fiumicino's banks north of Montalbano.

Nazis Dig In

The Germans, faced with disaster if the great mass of British armor should break through to the rolling valleys above Rimini, were dug in strongly along the Fiumicino northern bank and were supported by many pieces of self-propelled artillery.

American troops inching through the mountains toward Bologna had to contend with furious German shelling and seemingly endless enemy mine fields. The most serious Yank threat to the enemy appeared to be the drive toward Imola, whose capture would deprive the Nazis of the use of the broad Bologna-Rimini "airline" highway for reinforcing and supplying the entire eastern half of their line.

Front dispatches indicated elements of 27 Nazi divisions were holding the Italian fronts, with 12 facing the British Eighth Army on the Adriatic sector, and eight opposing the American Fifth Army in the center. Another seven are believed divided betwen the Ligurian coast and th French-Italian border in northern Italy.

Gun Positions Attacked

At least one enemy attempt to counterattack was broken up by a bombing attack and other German concentrations of artillery positions were assaulted from the air with effective results.

On the Adriatic sector there were heavy patrol engagements as the Eighth Army cleared the last of the Nazis from Savignano and struck on across the Fiumicino, where the enemy was occupying the far bank in strength.

Heights Attacked

Farther to the southwest British units advancing beyond Mont-Albano reached the Fiumicino's banks. The enemy dug in and was supported by self-propelled artillery on the far banks.

Southwest of Tribola the Eighth Army began attacking Monte Reggiano and Borgh. The Germans were using substantial artillery concentrations along the entire Adriatic sector.

Americans of other Fifth Army units also were encountering strong enemy shelling as well as thick minefields as they inched through the mountains.

Weather Clears

The possibility of both the Eighth and Fifth armies being able to resume full-scale attacks in a few days was seen with the clearing of the weather. Mountain storms which flooded roads, creeks and rivers have been a big factor in bringing the Italian offensive almost to a standstill.

Front reports indicate elements of eight Nazi divisions are facing the Fifth in the center of the line and 12 are opposite the Eighth. Seven others are holding the Ligurian coast and the Franco-Italian border. Many of these divisions, however, are depleted in combat strength.

Yanks Take Height Near Imola

Rome, Oct. 2 (AP)—Americans of the Fifth Army yesterday beat back German counterattacks on Monte Battaglia, dominating height on the road to Imola, for the fourth straight day and captured neighboring Monte Cappella after a bitter battle, the Allied command announced today.

The skies over most of the Italian front cleared after nearly a week of frequent rains, enabling the Mediterranean Allied Air Force to take an active role supporting the doughboys.

FIRST GREEK ISLAND FREED

British Commandos Land On Kythera Without Opposition

By CLINTON B. CONGER
[Allied War Correspondent]

With the Commandos of Kythera, Sept. 16 (AP—Delayed)—British Commandos, transported by the British and Canadian navies, have landed unopposed during the last five hours on the island of Kythera, five and a half miles south of the Greek mainland, in the first liberation of Greek territory since the Germans swarmed through the Balkans in the spring of 1940.

Left-wing Greek Partisans who welcomed us said the Germans had withdrawn from the island during the past week, but still were present in force on the outstretching fingers of the Peleponnesus just across the channel from the island.

Came PJrepared For Fight

Landing with the first assault wave at the tiny fishing village of Avlemonon, on the east coast, at 10 o'clock last night, I saw probably the most uncommando-like operation on record. Veteran Commando troops approached the shore ready for trouble, but almost at the moment of landing we confirmed earlier intelligence that the island was clear of Germans and the assault turned into a camping trip.

Within ten minutes of the landing the "no smoking" and "no flashlights" rules were abandoned and within 15 minutes the full headlights of two jeeps were beaming down on the rough stone jetty where assault craft were disembarking the troops and supplies which followed.

Brooklyn Man Interpreter

Several columns pushed out on reconnaissance, but the full examination of the island will wait until dawn. Others are going from house to house in the village, summoning the inhabitants so that the commanding officer can tell them through an interpreter, American Corporal George Stathis, Brooklyn, N. Y., who left Greece 25 years ago, just why we landed and what we require of the local population—order and cooperation. We seem to be getting both.

Five youthful Partisans with rifles and automatic pistols who met us willingly checked their guns until morning to become messengers.

Half the population of 30-odd of the village is helping us unload the assault craft.

Kythera is roughly 11 miles wide and 19 miles long, probably big enough, although mountainous and rocky, to feed its own several hundred inhabitants as well as the few score Germans who were garrisoned on it without much famine.

Commandos Seize 3 Isles Off Greece

London, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Germans were reported from Cairo today to have given up three islands off Greece in the face of British commando tanks, while other advices told of Allied forces driving into Greece from the northwest and of Partisans fighting in the vicinity of Athens.

The Paris radio said Allied troops had landed in northwestern Greece on the Albanian frontier and had made contact with Greek Patriots.

Meanwhile, the BBC broadcast a Cairo report that German forces, hopelessly isolated by the collapsing Balkans, have given up three islands between Crete and Greece to British Commando troops. One Island, possibly Kapela, was said to be off the southern tip of Greece. The others were not located.

Greeks Rule Khios

The British radio in another broadcast said that the Aegean island of Khios, 200 miles north of Crete off the Turkish coast, possibly one of the three said to have been occupied by the Commandos, has been freed of Germans, and a governor appointed by the Greek Government in exile had been received "with great enthusiasm by the population."

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, said Khios was the first Greek soil over which the exiled Government had resumed jurisdiction.

Hurled Back, Nazis Say

The official German news agency DNB asserted without confirmation that British airborne forces in Albania had been thrown back near the port of Valona and the coastal stronghold of Himara. The British Fifth Airborne Division, Second Airborne Brigade and a Highland infantry regiment were said to be taking part in the fighting.

Two days ago the Greek Prime Minister, George Papandreou, hinted that Greece's liberation was drawing near. From Cairo he announced the signing of an agreement between the Greek Government and armed organizations in Greece and said: "Today is the last time we address the nations from abroad. The time that separates us is now very short."

Aegean Isle Reported Liberated From Nazis

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—The British radio said today the Aegean Island of Khios, 200 miles north of Crete, off the Turkish coast, has been freed of Germans and a Governor appointed by the Greek Government-in-exile had been received "with great enthusiasm by the population."

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, said Khios was the first Greek soil over which the exiled Government had resumed jurisdiction.

GANDHI BIRTHDAY GIFT: $2,560,000

Mahatma At 75, Gets Purse For All-India Fund

Sevagram, India, Oct. 2 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi, marking his 75th birthday today, was presented with a purse of 8,000,000 rupees (about $2,560,000) on behalf of the All-India National Fund established in memory of his wife, who died February 2.

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 2 (AP)—Royal Air Force Beaufighters destroyed five more German aircraft over Aegean Islands during the night, bringing total enemy losses to sixteen within the last six days, a Middle East air communiqué announced today.

The majority of the planes shot down were large personnel-carrying transports, indicating the Germans were attempting to evacuate key men from the islands.

SCATTERED FIGHTING RAGES IN TIDDIM AREA

KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 2 (AP)—Indian troops outflanking Japanese defenses at the enemy's western Burma base of Tiddim are engaged in scattered fighting northeast and east of Tiddim, headquarters announced today.

These Indian units are threatening Japanese communications between Tiddim and the Chindwin River, forty miles to the east.

Meanwhile, the main body of the Fifth Indian Division, with fighter-bomber support, was meeting stiffer resistance on the "chocolate staircase," the twisting road north of Tiddim. It was from Tiddim, now a main objective of the current Allied Chin Hills offensive, that the Japanese launched their unsuccessful Indian invasion last spring.

FLIGHT LEAVES KWEILIN RUIN

Chinese City Evacuated By Civilians In Three Days

By CLAUDE A. FARNSWORTH

Kweilin, China, Oct. 1 (AP—Delayed)—With Japanese forces only a few miles away and slowly closing in, this city, once the gayest spot in Free China, was today but a tragic caricature of its old self.

[The Chinese high command in Chungking announced heavy fighting four to 12 miles southeast of Hingan, 31 miles from Kweilin, but this dispatch indicated the invaders were even closer to the site of an American air base which has been abandoned.]

The streets are littered with broken tile, bricks and wooded debris from ruined buildings.

Rickshas Broken Down

En route into the town, the road was lined with broken rickshas that gave way under their tremendous load of household goods before the refugees could get out of sight of the city. Smashed furniture and cooking utensils lay scattered along the roadsides.

Most goods in the stores were spirited away by shopkeepers fleeing before the approaching enemy.

Only soldiers or closely supervised coolies now are permitted in the town.

The evacuation of Kweilin was an exemplary accomplishment carried out in three days—September 12, 13 and 14. By midnight of the third day the city had been emptied and civilians remaining thereafter were liable to summary execution.

Have Surprise In Store

The city's outer defenses consist of a tangle of unbroken barbed wire, some going straight up the walls. The Chinese have several surprises in store for the enemy.

It is quite possible the Japanese will not make a direct assault on the city until they carry out further flanking maneuvers east and southeast of the town.

What could be seen of Kweilin's dispersed defenders they are healthy and well fed and generally in good physical shape. I saw coolie trains pouring into the city with padded winter clothing and other supplies.

Chinese Intensify Battle For Kweilin

Chungking, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Chinese command announced extremely severe fighting today near Kweilin, locating the battle 4 to 12 miles southeast of the rail town of Hingan, 31 miles from the Kwangsi provincial capital.

The American air force has lost its advanced base at Tanchuk, the fourth abandoned in face of the Japanese offensive through Hunan and Kwangsi to split China in two.

Strongpoints Seized

The Chinese communique said street fighting intensified in Paoching yesterday with both sides suffering heavy losses. Chinese forces near Paoching counterattacked and were said to have taken two Japanese strongpoints, one 12 miles west and the other six northwest of the city. The advance continued, the communique added.

Severe fighting continued near fallen Tanchuk on the West river and to the southwest and northwest of Pingnam, about ten miles farther up the river.

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell announced yesterday the Tanchuk base, 47 miles west of the Kwangsi river port of Wuchow, was "evacuated several days ago." Previously Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's 14th Air Force had been forced from bases at Hengyang and Lingling in Hunan province and Kweilin in Kwangsi.

Jap Columns Hit

Despite loss of the base, American fighters and fighter-bombers struck yesterday at Japanese forces in Kwangsi and the Tinka and Mangshih areas in Yunnan.

From Paoching the Chinese have been harassing the right flank of the column headed for Kweilin and it appeared the enemy had decided to attempt to knock out Paoching before resuming the drive.

Lungling Blows Repelled

Activity on the Salween front in Yunan province, to the west, was limited to minor engagements and patrol actions during the last five days, the Chinese said. The Chinese repulsed several small enemy attacks in the Lungling area.

the actual tonnage of American supplies delivered to the East China forces since Pearl Harbor would not be sufficient to sustain an American or British division in combat for a week.

"The only real help afforded the Chinese armies in East China has been in the form of heroic and remarkably effective air support given by units of the United States 14th Air Force," the spokesman said. "The achievement of Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's men in this campaign constitutes another glowing page of military history."

He declared the work of American airmen who have been flying supplies into China has been beyond all praise and that tonnage has exceeded all expectations, but added:

"The face remains that after the minimum requirements of the American air force have been met, supplies flown in for the Chinese armies are necessarily very limited, and virtually all of these have been allocated to Chinese forces fighting on the Salween front, where China has made an important contribution to the successful Burma campaign."

The spokesman's statement was issued in response to Prime Minister Churchill's speech in the House of Commons last week during which he expressed disappointment of reverses in China.

Chinese Communist Quits Negotiating

Chungking, Oct. 2 (AP)—Four and a half months of negotiations on the tangled Communist issue having failed to yield agreement on a single point, Lin Tso-han, chairman of the Chinese Communist Government, will return this week to Yenan.

He will be accompanied by Tung Pu-wu, Communist "ambassador" to Chungking, and five members of the People's Political Council who are going to Yenan to investigate conditions in the Communist-dominated area of China.

Americans Bomb 9 Ships, 7 Airbases of Nipponese

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Tuesday, Oct. 3. (AP)—American fliers sank or damaged nine small freighters and pounded seven enemy airbases on Themoluccas-to-the-Philippines invasion route, headquarters announced today.

Ships Sunk, Damaged

Two small freighters were sunk near Manado, four were damaged near Zamboanga and three near the islnd of Amboina. Meanwhile heavy bombers were punishing the Celebes and Moluccas airdromes with 134 tons of bombs.

The Japanese attempted to raid the American base on Morotai south of the Philippines, nad lost one plane.

An additional three Japanese interceptor planes were shot down near Kendari.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 2—(AP)—With American forces well on their way to the Philippines after securing a strong foothold in the Palau islands, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, wants production on the home front stepped up to meet the needs of Pacific campaigns to come.

515 Miles From Philippines

More than 10,000 Japanese soldiers have been killed in the southern Palau fighting where American forces now control Peleliu, Angaur, Naesebus, Konhauru, and five smaller islets, just 515 miles east of the Philippines.

On Peleliu, where the last Japanese resistance has been cornered in strong hill and cave positions, American fliers are using half ton bombs to demolish fortifications.

In a communique today Admiral Nimitz disclosed a military government had been established on Angaur and that only 187 Japanese have been taken prisoner since the Palau invasion began Sept. 14.

Marines Bomb Japs

The communique also disclosed Marine Corsairs bombed the airstrip on Babelthuap island, largest of the Palaus, Sept. 30 and met heavy anti-aircraft fire. Thirty-seven tons of bombs were dumped on Truk in the Caroline islands by 7th AAF Liberators while Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands was hit Sept. 30. One Liberator was downed at Iwo and others damaged by eight "aggressive" Japanese interceptors.

In a raid on Juluit in the Marshals one Corsair was damaged by flak.

Admiral Nimitz termed Hawaii and the west coast the "forward echelon of America's arsenal of democracy" and said "Hawaii's task is to repair ships and planes and keep supplies moving to battle areas in a steady stream."

"After the fall of Germany," the Admiral added, "the need for manpower in Hawaii will be greater. Activities in these islands will be intensified. This will be true of the west coast which will increase tremendously in importance as a great staging area."

Japs Make Oil

(Meanwhile the Japanese took steps to increase synthetic oil production as their communication lines to the Dutch East Indies felt heavier Allied attacks. In a broadcast beamed to the United States and recorded by the FCC Domei, the Japanese news agency, said the Japanese government had decided to create a single synthetic oil control company "in order to boost production of synthetic oil.")

On the southwest arm of the Pacific battle line Gen. Douglas MacArthur's fliers ended one of their most successful months by sinking or damaging three Japanese ships and attacking enemy airdromes.

In September the MacArthur air force sank or damaged 210 ships, including small craft and barges.

MacArthur reported a 10,000-ton tanker and coastal vessel damaged off Zamboanga, southern Philippines and an 3,500-ton freighter-transport sunk in Tiworo Strait, southern Celebes on Saturday.

Heavy bombers continued to shower explosives on the Celebes, hitting Kendari airfield. Carrier and patrol planes kept up their day and night attack on Halmahera airdromes while Ceram and Boeroe fields also were hit.

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 2 (AP)—American control was secure over Peleliu and eight satelite islets in the southern Palaus today, after 17 days' fighting against stubborn defenders and rough terrain.

More than 10,000 Japanese troops have been killed in the Palau campaign, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said today in announcing the islands were "secure," except for two pockets of resistance. One held out in caves on Peleliu's Umorbrogol Hill (Bloody Nose Ridge). A second and smaller group of Nipponese remained on Anguar islet, six miles southward.

More Ships Sunk

Southwest Pacific airmen, meanwhile, concluded one of their most successful months against Japanese shipping. In strikes reported today they sank or damaged three vessels, including a 10,000-ton tanker, bringing to 210 their September total of enemy craft of all types sunk or damaged in southern Philippine waters and their approaches.

(In addition, Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet carrier planes destroyed 160 surface craft of all types and damaged 200 others during their seven-day thrusts over the Philippines.)

Only Tail Of Chain Held

American forces held only the tail of the Palau chain, which includes 26 main islands and a total of 109. But the campaign drove a deep wedge into Japan's Carolines and gave the Yanks at least two airfields for attacks against the northern Palaus and the Philippines, 515 miles westward.

Nimitz reported that "elimination" of the Japanese remnants continues. Marine planes unloaded numerous 1,000-pound bombs to "demolish remaining enemy fortifications" on Bloody Nose Ridge.

New Airfield Seized

The Americans took a second airfield—a 4,800-foot fighter strip—when they occupied Ngesebus islet, northward of Peleliu.

Southwest Pacific bombers damaged the tanker and a coastal vessel off Zamboanga, southern Philippines, Saturday, and sank an 8,500-ton freighter-transport in Tiworo Strait, southern Celebes.

Additional American raids ranged from Shumushu, northernmost of the Kuriles, to Ceram and Boeroe, west of New Guinea. The Japanese Domei raido reported a 60-plane attack on the oil center of Balikpapan, Borneo, but there was no confirmation.

Pilot Reaches Safety After 18 Days In Jungle

Allied Headquarters in New Guinea, Sept. 25 (AP—Delayed)—After 18 days of wandering alone through the New Guinea jungle, Fighter Pilot First Lieutenant Joseph Adamow, of Philadelphia, made his way through miles of the tropics' worst country to safety.

With clothing mended with silk from his parachute, his shoes completely worn out, and hungry from living on six chocolate bars and what native food he could find, Adamow came through without serious physical difficulty.

Adamow had been on a flight over Wewak. On his return he ran into dirty weather, his plane became uncontrollable and he bailed out.

Romulo Rejoins Staff Of General MacArthur

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Tuesday, Oct. 3 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo is headed back for the Philippines, his homeland.

Romulo rejoined Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff here today.

The former Manila newspaper publisher and Pulitzer prize winner told war correspondents he had come back to the Southwest Pacific to return to the Philippines with MacArthur.

Before Corregidor fell Romulo operated the famous Voice of Freedom radio station on that island. He made a daring escape by air just before Corregidor fell and reached Australia. In the spring of 1942 he went to the United States. Recently he was named Philippine resident commissioner by President Sergio Osmena.

Romulo's wife and children are in the Philippines.

Navy Frees Isle Natives Under Noses Of Japs

[The following, by Sergt. William C. Harris, of Savannah, Ga., a Marine Corps combat correspondent, was distributed by the Associated Press.]

Somewhere in the Marshall Islands (Delayed)—In one of the most unusual feats of the war, the United States Navy recently evacuated the civilian native population of the Japanese-held fortress of Wotje atoll, in the Marshall Islands.

Accomplished at night, the evacuation must have been a mortifying surprise to the near-by Japanese garrison of several thousand soldiers and Korean laborers.

More than 700 native Micronesians were liberated in the operation, carried out under the direction of Lieut. Eugene F. Bogan, USNR, of Washington, civil affairs officer for that area.

One Family Remains

Only one family, consisting of a man, his wife and their baby, elected to remain on the island, which has been bombarded almost continuously since early in January. Today Wotje remains one of the most bombed places in the world, sharing that distinction with three other by-passed Marshall bases, Mili, Jaluit and Maloelap.

Here is how the natives were evacuated:

Two small warships slipped into the lagoon of Erikub atoll, about six miles from Wotje. Aboard were several natives who had previously escaped, unassisted.

Skim Over Reef

The natives were lowered in their outrigger canoes from the two ships and unfurled little sails about the size of tablecloths. In the dark they skimmed over the Wotje reef. Landing on the village beach, they slipped from hut to hut, arousing their kinsmen and advising them that the Americans were on Erikub, ready and willing to remove them to a haven free from bombing. Quickly but silently the 700 rolled up their mats and gathered their poultry and pigs. These, together with the women and children, were dumped in the tiny outriggers.

The silent flotilla tacked straight into the Erikub lagoon. At daylight, the women and children and the infirm were hauled aboard the warships. After a long journey, the human cargo was pulled ashore on the beach of another atoll, where they receive a resounding welcome from hundreds of other Marshallese so recently freed of the Japanese yoke.

Stage Celebration

Later the natives told the American authorities they desired to stage a great celebration to commemorate their liberation.

It was my pleasure to witness this celebration, which consisted of intricate dances with singing chorus, each dance created to depict various scenes of their subjugation by the Japes, the enemy's cruelty, the coming of the Americans and the killing of the enemy. The dances resembled a Harlem rug cutting in grass skirts and an untutored rendition of the "Anvil Chorus."

Paper Reports Prison Camp 'Kangaroo Trials'

Lethbridge, Alberta, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Lethbridge Herald said today that "kangaroo court-martials" have been held by the Gestapo in German prisoner-of-war camps in Canada.

There were merciless beatings, tortures and starvation, and even death was decreed, the paper said, adding:

"In some instances, it is learned, the Gestapo ordered some of its victims to commit suicide. When they refused they were severely battered, pounded and kicked into helplessness by bullying agents of Hitler."

At one time the Gestapo's word was law in the camps, but with the series of defeats of Hitler's armies its power declined among the prisoners, the paper said.

3 Reported Killed In Aircraft Crash

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 2 (AP)—Police here said today that three men had been killed and two others injured in the crash of a United States aircraft which smashed into woods about a mile off a road two miles from here.

An ambulance was sent to the scene from the RCAF station at Reserve, but it was expected it would be some time before the men could be reached.

"Nazi Rats" Declared Fleeing "Hitler Ship"

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—In a broadcast from Moscow a spokesman for the Soviet-sponsored Free Germany National Committee said tonight that Nazi leaders were fleeing to Spain and South America by submarine on the pretext of "secret missions."

"Single passengers with a remarkable amount of luggage travel on these trips in an allegedly diplomatic or economic capacity. In reality these people are mostly Nazi rats leaving the sinking Hitler ship or they are agents preparing for the flight of these men or bringing foreign bonds to safe quarters."

The broadcast, recorded by the FCC, urged submarine commanders ordered on such missions to head for a British or French port.

Bulgar Troops Must Be Taken Back, Hull Says

Withdrawal of Forces From Greece, Yugoslavia Demanded.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2, (AP)—Secretary of State Hull prodded Bulgaria today to speed withdrawal of Bulgarian troops from Greece and Yugoslavia.

He said at a news conference that we can't help but notice reports that Bulgaria doesn't seem in any hurry to get the troops out.

Withdrawal of these forces, it was learned, is one of the terms being prepared for the former Axis satellite. Bulgaria asked for an armistice Sept. 8, immediately after Russia had declared war on her.

Working on Terms

However, the European advisory commission is still working on armistice terms. Asked what was causing the delay, Hull said the terms were in process of preparation.

As far as they have been completed, it was reported elsewhere, the terms put Bulgaria back within her 1939 boundaries. Slices of Bulgarian territory claimed by Greece are said to be left as Bulgarian for the time being, with the possibility left open for readjustment at the peace conference.

There is no specific provision for reparations as in the Romanian and Finnish armistices, it was understood, beyond the clause that Greece and Yugoslavia, which have suffered most at Bulgaria's hands, can raise the question later.

No Occupation Planned

It appears unlikely at this point that there will be any Allied military occupation of Bulgaria, although Allied troops will demand freedom of passage.

An Allied control commission is expected to be established to administer the armistice and direct return of loot and of war criminals to liberated countries.

Hull was also asked at his news conference about the ouster of an Bulgarian capital by a Russian Allied military mission from the commander. He said the matter has been straightened out and that it was a misunderstanding of no special importance.

30. 24— 1944

HULL ADMITS ROW WITH REDS IN SOFIA

Washington, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull said today that the ejection of an Allied military mission from Bulgaria by a Russian commander had required a little attention but that he thought the matter had now been straightened out. The mission went into Bulgaria to handle Anglo-American interests, and some authorities here said that the Russian military commander had not been properly advised.

Discussing the incident at his news conference, Mr. Hull said he expected the mission would be permitted to re-enter Bulgaria as a result of arrangements made by Washington and London with Moscow. He also reported that Allied armistice terms for Bulgaria would be ready in due course and that, meanwhile, he could not help but notice the lack of speed with which Bulgaria was pulling out of Greece and Yugoslavia.

Commenting on London reports of differences of British and American policy regarding Argentina, Mr. Hull said it was not necessary for this country to consult with Great Britain before banning northbound ships of the American merchant marine from Argentine ports. He told the correspondents that it was not necessary to go into these matters with Great Britain except in instances where there was a joint relation between the two governments.

Mr. Hull, 73 years old today, observed his birthday by working as usual.

Army Loses 42,000 Planes During War

Operating Losses Twice As Many as Combat Losses.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Approximately 42,000 airplanes have been lost by the Army Air Forces since Pearl Harbor, the closed today, with operational losses accounting for twice as many as combat operations.

Since the start of the war, General H. H. Arnold said in a summary, the Air Forces have dropped a million tons of bombs on the enemy and destroyed more than 27,000 of his planes.

A total of 27,400 planes have been lost as the result of what the Army describes as "other than combat causes" since Pearl Harbor —17,500 in the United States. Presumably a substantial part of the planes lost in the United States were in training operations. Crashes occurring during the routine transfer of aircraft or personnel and the accidental destruction of planes on the ground accounted for a smaller proportion. In overseas operation, 9,900 have been lost elsewhere than in combat.

The 14,600 aircraft lost on combat missions included only powered aircraft. Gliders used in air borne operations were not included in the figure because they are viewed as expendable material.

The battle casualty total for the air forces since the start of the war is about 72,000 dead, wounded, missing or prisoners. (The overall casualty total for the entire Army, including all branches of the service, now is in excess of 337,000).

In addition to the 27,000 enemy planes definitely destroyed by the AAF, Arnold said that 6,000 others probably were destroyed and 10,000 damaged.

—and 5,300 non-battle casualties made up of dead, missing, sick and injured.

Over all plane losses amount to approximately 42,000. Of these 14,600 aircraft have been lost on combat missions and an additional 9,900 have been lost overseas from non-combat causes. In the continental United States 17,500 planes have been lost.

Of the total bomb tonnage, Arnold said, approximately 175,000 tons were concentrated on aircraft factories and related plants and air fields, 140,000 on oil plants, ball-bearing works and other industrial targets and the remainder against shipping and military installations and in direct support of ground troops.

AAF planes overseas have flown 13,900,000 hours, consuming more than 2,000,000,000 gallons of 100-octane gasoline.

Millionth Bomb Ton Dropped

Nearly Half Showered Down by Army Air Force Since D Day, Gen. Arnold Says.

Washington, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The Army Air Forces has dropped its millionth ton of bombs in this war, it announced today. This total was reached on September 28 in the attack on the synthetic oil refinery at Merseberg-Leuna, in the center of Germany.

Almost half the total, 432,000 tons, has been dropped since D day on June 6, Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the AAF, reported.

Citing figures covering all bombings from December 7, 1941, to September 28 of this year in all theaters, Gen. Arnold noted that hitting the enemy with this great tonnage has not been without cost.

There have been 72,000 Air Forces battle casualties—dead, missing, prisoners and wounded

Yank Wins Highest Award In 1st Day Of Fighting

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—The first day of battle for an 18-year-old infantryman, now dead, won him the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Sergt. John Charles Squires, of Louisville, Ky., died in action on the Anzio beachhead a month after his first engagement without knowing that his conspicuous gallantry would win him the nation's highest military decoration.

The War Department announced the award yesterday, saying the medal would be given the boy's father, Leroy Y. Squires, at a ceremony to be announced later.

Volunteers For Job

Squires was a private first class and member of the 30th Infantry Regiment, Third Infantry Division, when his outfit was assigned on April 23 to clear the enemy out of a pass north of Padiglione, Italy —to establish an outpost and hold the position until relieved.

A platoon moved forward under heavy artillery and mortar fire which eventually began to disorganize the group with casualties. But an advance element was further up and concern was felt about its position. Squires volunteered to advance to it to see how it was making out.

Rounds Up Stragglers

He crawled through an area of exploding shells, got the information and then, acting on his own knowledge, rounded up a group of stragglers and led them into action as a squad. Later when his own platoon had been cut to only 14 men, Squires made another dash through shell-fire and barbed wire to get reinforcements. During his roving he picked up a German machine gun with ammunition. Squires used this gun to assist in fighting off German counterattacks. When the gun jammed, Squires consulted a captured German officer and found how to fix it.

During a lull in the counterattacks, Squires made a series of single-handed forays beyond the American outposts, during which he captured and brought back 13 more enemy machine guns and 21 Germans. When the Germans started a new counterattack the following night, they were cut down by the fire of their own machine guns. In that counterattack, Squires used both a captured machine gun and some potato-masher grenades, former property of the Nazis, to kill three Germans and wound a number of others.

Observers See Japs Fighting Holding War

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Running far ahead of schedule, with early invasion of the Philippines likely, the Pacific war is nearing a showdown stage, but the end is not in sight.

Strategy adopted by the Japanese high command when American forces land in the Philippines may indicate the future course of the war. Two possibilities ont:

1. The Japanese may elect to throw major strength into an effort to retain those islands. They are rich in raw materials and also stand as a bulwark of defense for shipping lanes to other enemy-held supply sources to the south.

2. The enemy may conserve his machines of war and choose to fight a holding war.

Supplies Piled Up

Many observers believe firmly that the second course is likely to be chosen. They point out that Japan has had an opportuntiy in the last two years to pile up vast quantities of supplies.

With those added supplies, it is wholly probable that Japan, even without addition of any new material whatsoever, could continue to wage effective warfare for many months, possibly years.

Those who feel that the Japanese will attempt to draw out the war—in hopes that the American people will tire of war and agree to a negotiated peace—cite also the cold statistics of supply.

Supply Lines Shorten

As the victorious Allied forces drive the Japanese back, enemy supply lines become shorter and shorter. Conversely, Allied lines grow, adding to the problems of movement of supplies and men.

When—and where—the big surface engagement long sought by American naval men will be fought, depends also upon the decision of the enemy command after the Philippine campaign opens. It could be that a naval battle will come there.

But, purely from the viewpoint of sound military judgment, it is considered more likely that the fleet will be conserved for protection of the shortening supply lines. If that is done the battered merchant fleet probably could be convoyed in sufficient strength along shorter lines, to keep the enemy war machine running.

Air Bases Held Vital

Aerial blows against Japan's industries, certainly will play a big part in the final crushing of that enemy. But, excepting the Superfortresses, no planes yet have been able to deliver heavy blows against Japanese industrial centers. Bases in China could help, but there, for the present at least, the outlook is not bright, with Japanese armies forcing abandonment of air bases rather than establishment of new ones.

That Japanese army hasn't been tested on a large scale by any American ground forces, but military men agree it is a well-trained and well-equipped fighting force.

Osmena And Roosevelt Talk

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Sergio Osmena, President of the Philippine Government in exile, conferred with President Roosevelt today, but declined to tell reporters the reason for his visit to the White House. He was accompanied by Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, who has charge of insular affairs.

U. S. NAVY REGIME SET UP ON ANGAUR

Washington, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Enemy resistance has dwindled on Angaur, in the Palau Islands, to a point at which the Navy has established a military Government for the area, and only the wiping out of a few troops, holed up in caves, remains.

A communique issued by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said "Military Government was proclaimed on Anguar Island on September 30 as mopping up operations proceeded on Anguar and Peliliu. A few fanatical enemy troops . . . continued to resist with small arms fire. On the same day Corsairs of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing bombed the airfield on Babelthuap Island. Anti-aircraft fire was intense.

"On September 30, 9,076 enemy troops had been killed on Peleliu and 1,075 on Anguar, while a total of 187 prisoners have been captured on the two islands.

"Seventh Army Air Force Liberators on September 29 dropped approximately thirty-seven tons of bombs on Moen and Eten islands in Truk atoll. Anti-aircraft fire was meager. Another formation of Seventh Army Air Force Liberators bombed runways and airdrome facilities at Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands on September 30. Anti-aircraft fire was moderate, but eight aggressive enemy fighters intercepted our planes. One of the Liberators was shot down while several of the others were damaged.

Corsairs of the Fourth Marine Aircraft Wing attacked gun positions on Jaluit Atoll in the Marshalls with thirty-three tons of bombs on September 30. In the attack a small raft was sunk after strafing. Heavy anti-aircraft fire damaged one of the Corsairs.

HONOR GEN. GRISWOLD

Washington, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Award of the Distinguished Service Medal to Major-Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, whose wife, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Griswold, lives at Cranford, N. J., was announced last night by the Navy Department. The citation read:

"For exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service to the Government of the United States in a duty of great responsibility as commanding general, XIV Corps, and as commander, Bouganville landing forces, from December 15, 1943, to June 5, 1944. Exercising splendid initiative, superior tactical ability and brilliant leadership throughout this period of vital offensive operations, Major-Gen. Griswold skillfully co-ordinated the activities of Army, Navy and Allied units, enabling our forces to exert their greatest strength against the enemy and administer a series of crushing defeats despite extremely difficult terrain and adverse weather conditions. By his sound judgment and thorough understanding of the problems involved in combined operations, he contributed materially to the neutralization of the last and most formidable Japanese stronghold in the Solomon Islands and to the continued success of the Allied campaign in the strategic South Pacific area."

NAVY CASUALTY

Washington, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of 183 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 65,234 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 25,779 are reported dead, 25,268 wounded, 9,707 missing, and 4,480 prisoners of war. Included in today's list are the following with their next of kin:

NELSON MAY GO TO MEXICO, S. A.

Businessman Ambassador To Latin America Next Job

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Expanded industrialization of Mexico and certain South American countries reportedly is among the major projects to be placed in the hands of Donald M. Nelson in his future role as Presidential emissary for "post-war economic cooperation with other nations."

Nelson will work outside the State Department and Foreign Economic Administration, it was reliably stated, and will perform his economic liaison job mainly by moving between President Roosevelt and the heads of foreign governments. He probably will be a member of President Roosevelt's personal staff.

Mexico After China

The former War Production Board chairman is expected to turn his attention to Mexico when his present White House assignment—that of spurring China's war industry and planning Chinese post-war industrial expansion—is farther advanced.

Subsequently, it is understood, he has hopes of helping broaden the base of industry in the more southerly Latin American countries with the same ultimate aim—the stimulation of trade between this country and others. WPB associates pointed out that while it was under Nelson's leadership that agency already has taken steps to help both Mexico and Brazil with industrial expansion.

Nelson is no longer interested in running a government agency, according to friends, and therefore can be ruled out as a possible choice for leadership of any present agency or any new one set up to handle reconversion or demobilization.

Has Hull's Confidence

The former Sears Roebuck vice-chairman is said to enjoy the confidence of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, a fortunate circumstance in view of the fact that the "businessman ambassador" role would require him to cut across the agency lines of State and Commerce departments, FEA, the Office of Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs and other units concerned with foreign policy and foreign trade.

There were indications that he might have a part in fostering industrial rebuilding of war-devastated Europe.

To Start On Modest Scale

The proposed Mexican project is expected to start on a modest scale with this country helping in the financing and spreading into additional industrial fields if the opening moves prove successful.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter accepting Nelson's WPB resignation and asking him to take another post noted that "the economic well-being of other countries is essential to the prosperity of this nation in providing jobs for workers and export outlets."

Vets To Get Priority On Building Materials

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Immediate priority aid for honorably discharged veterans of World War II for building or remodeling their homes was announced today by the War Production Board and the National Housing Agency.

The action is expected to relieve the housing problem of returning servicemen, who are not eligible for admittance to war housing projects unless they are engaged in war work.

Veterans were advised to file applications with the nearest office of the Federal Housing Administration.

Three Senators See Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Three Senators predicted today some type of peacetime conscription for the young men of America.

But the divergence of ideas about the form it should take indicates that the necessary legislation would have a long, twisting route to follow. A program for a year's military service for every able-bodied youth might be diluted by educational and physical training.

For It, Maybank Says

As for compulsory peacetime military training, Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) declared:

"I'm for it all the way. I think we're going to get it."

Senator Downey (D., Cal.) said he thought the idea "deserves and will receive careful consideration," but he questioned whether the training should be entirely military.

Senator Johnson (D., Colo.) suggested additional educational opportunities might well be provided along with any military training, perhaps through expansion of the Reserve Officers Training Corps or the Civilian Military Training Corps.

"Valuable To Men"

"I think a year's training would be valuable so far as the men are concerned," Johnson said.

"But as a defense measure I think it's absolutely a failure. There are at least three other things more important to defense," he added, listing these as:

1. An adequate stockpile of metals needed for war, and by that he means a supply that would last through six years of war.

2. An efficient research program for the continued development of new planes, ships and weapons of all sorts.

3. The establishment in the State or War Departments or both of an intelligence division that would "let us know exactly what all our potential enemies are doing."

Like Marshall's Plan

Both Johnson and Maybank said they liked Gen. George C. Marshall's proposal for a small professional, standing army. They said it could be kept up through rotation of youths who go through a year's military service.

Maybank said the military training would be valuable not only from the standpoint of preparedness, but also in building up the health of America.

Downey was apprehensive about a purely military program, however, on grounds it might invite such programs in other countries and thus build up a martial spirit in the world.

KRUG PUSHES WPB PLAN FOR V-E DAY

Washington, October 2 (A. P.).—Chairman J. A. Krug of the War Production Board pressed ahead today with his plans to drop 350 orders controlling industry as soon as Germany falls, but without giving the automobile industry priority now on machine tools.

Mrs. Krug, successor to Donald M. Nelson at the WPB, told an interviewer that "we haven't the man power now to make the machine tools" which auto makers have asked to get them off to a fast start on making passenger cars after victory in Europe.

Motor company heads have said that they can not get delivery on machine tool orders unless these orders had priority standings and that suppliers say they can't fill some of the orders otherwise until next June.

In announcing that 350 of the existing 500 WPB orders governing industry would be dropped on V-E day, Krug said:

"Except for military requirements, which must be protected at any cost until victory over Japan is secured, it is expected that essential needs will by and large be met without Government control, either restrictive or supporting."

AID TO WAR VICTIMS

Washington, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Americans have given more than $175,000,000 to aid war victims in more than twenty countries, including $40,000,000 for Great Britain, the largest total for any country, it was announced today by Joseph E. Davies.

Mr. Davies, chairman of President Roosevelt's War Relief Control Board, made his statement in connection with the second national War Fund drive, being conducted this month.

Totals of the amount of war relief showed other major voluntary gifts from Americans, apart from Red Cross donations, were distributed as follows: Russia, $30,000,000; China, $20,000,000; Palestine, $12,000,000; Greece, $12,000,000; Poland, $9,000,000; France, $4,500,000, and Yugoslavia, $2,000,000.

Date Set For Overseas Christmas Packages

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—October 14 will be the last day for mailing Christmas packages to men and women overseas. The deadline had been announced as October 15, but that date falls on Sunday and the Postoffice Department said today that postoffices will not be open.

Pan American Airways Accused by Rickenbacker

He Charges 'World Monopoly' at C. A. B. Hearing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP).—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, Inc., testifying today at a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on air routes to Latin America, termed Pan American Airways, Inc., a "world monopoly," and opposed air-line operations by steamship companies. He also presented a last-minute revision of Eastern's plans to serve international routes.

Lawyers for several other applicant companies protested Captain Rickenbacker's appearance on the stand, contending Eastern's new program had been presented without sufficient notice and that copies of the Rickenbacker testimony were circulated only a short time before today's session.

Counsel for Grace Lines, Inc., Fred M. Knauer, called for adjournment before the World War ace appeared as opening witness for Eastern. The request was denied by examiner Francis Brown, who added, however, that Eastern's late announcement of a change of plans was "highly unfortunate."

The company's withdrawal of all proposed routes to South America came as an unexpected development in the hearing. Postponement of plans to serve Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo and other principal Latin-American cities was attributed by Captain Rickenbacker to changing world conditions and his belief that the war's duration "now seems even longer than I thought a year or two ago."

JOHNSTON SAYS HIGHER WAGES ARE DANGEROUS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce Head Opposes Lifting Ceilings Now.

N. A. M. VIEW ALSO IS HEARD

Congressman Warns Vinson Any Change in Little Steel Scale Must Be Legislated.

Washington, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said today in a statement prepared for the War Labor Board that he favors high wages, but opposes lifting the existing wage ceilings because, he argued, that might lead to inflation, then to deflation.

"After the last war, we had inflation, followed by deflation," he said. "We must avoid that mistake this time."

Mr. Johnston appeared as an industry spokesman at the WLB hearings on the demands of labor for wage increases which would crack the Little Steel Formula, keystone of the nation's wage-stabilization policy. Mr. Johnston said that the war had brought increased earnings both to business and labor, but it should not be forgotten "that we are borrowing against the future, and that, as a nation, we will have to pay in the future."

In addition to an inflationary danger, Mr. Johnston said, an increase in basic wage rates would multiply the post-war problems for industry—higher costs immediately would be saddled onto consumer industries on which, in the post-war era, "we must rely to increase employment and consumer goods." Also, he said, the wage increases would be imposed at a time when post-war production costs "are complete."

Expressing a belief that most firms would want to increase hourly wage rates after the war if they can, Mr. Johnston said that he would advocate progressive wage increases "as improved methods permit increased production." Mr. Johnston reported last night that the chamber has adopted a broad social security program based on a referendum which he said showed that hundreds of thousands of business men want security expanded.

A policy statement added that "however desirable and necessary a social security program may be, it is no substitute for productive employment."

Views of N. A. M. Head.

The president of the National called on the WLB to be fair to those who fight as well as those who work for victory by standing firm on the Little Steel wage formula.

Asserting that neither a general wage increase nor a general price increase would be in the public interest now, Robert M. Gaylord added in a statement prepared for submission to the board:

"It is unfortunate that a decision on this issue has been postponed until this time when circumstances make it a political football."

Contending that only 25 per cent of the nation's workers would benefit by relaxation of wage controls, Mr. Gaylord said all workers would have to pay the bill.

1943 1944

Two Interested Groups.

Businessmen, he said, fall into two groups:

Those who could pay higher wages out of excess profits and those who could remain in business only by adding the pay increases to their selling prices.

In the case of the first group, he asserted, "so long as excess profits taxes are set at 95 per cent the Treasury, not the employer, will then take the loss of virtually all reduction in business profits resulting from higher wages.'

On the second class "either prices will have to be increased or else these companies will go out of business and their workers will join the unemployed."

Representative Monroney (D.-Okla.), a ranking member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, insisted meanwhile today that Congress should have a chance to approve or disapprove any modification of the Little Steel formula. Mr. Monroney, an administration leader on price control and subsidy legislation, expressed his views in a letter to Fred M. Vinson, economic stabilizer.

"To break through the Little Steel formula now would result in a general upward movement of all prices of great enough degree to cancel out all, or almost all, of the real purchasing power of any increase," the Oklahoman asserted. This disturbance would occur at a time when the battle against inflation is almost won and a "goal line fumble now would result in losing this battle," Mr. Monroney declared, adding that "it would set the stage for a chaotic economic situation that would make reconversion and re-establishment of a sound and healthy civilian economy impossible.

"Because wages and prices are tied together so closely, I would like to insist that before any modification of the Little Steel formula is made, that Congress be given a chance to approve or disapprove this important step."

WPB Given Authority On End Of Arms Making

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt today transferred to the War Production Board the authority to determine when privately owned war plants and armament-making equipment are no longer necessary for war purposes.

Prior to the executive order, the authority was held by the Secretaries of War and Navy.

The "certificates of non-necessity" issued in such cases are needed by the owners of the plant facilities—whose total value now exceeds $6,000,000,000—so that they can calculate depreciation for purposes of income and excess profits taxes.

Rumely Gets Indictment Of Willful Default

Would Not Give Documents to House Committee.

OCT 3 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. (AP)—Dr. Edward A. Rumely, who refused to give the House Campaign Expenditures Committee a record of contributions to the Committee for Constitutional Government, was indicted today under a law against "willful default" in production of subpoenaed documents.

Rumely is executive secretary of the committee, organized by Frank E. Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher. He refused the committee's demand for the subscription list on the ground that the group is educational and not political and therefore, he said, outside the committee's jurisdiction.

Misdemeanor Charged

The offense alleged is a misdemeanor, with a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment and a fine of $1,000.

When he refused to produce the list of financial supporters last week, Rumely told the committee his organization had made no political campaign contributions. He offered a list of expenditures but said the organization was prepared to defend the secrecy of its contributors list in court if necessary. He said he was taking that position to protect committee supporters from possible "reprisals."

Gannett, who was a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940, told the House committee Sept. 7 that the organization was set up for educational purposes.

In a statement after the indictment was returned by a District of Columbia grand jury, Rumely asserted that the citation which preceded the indictment was not voted on by Congress and that it was "mainly the work of Mr. Clinton Anderson, a fanatical partisan who is misusing the powers of a congressional committee."

Anderson is Chairman

Rep. Anderson (D-NM) is chairman of the House committee.

"It was obvious when we said 'no' to the dragnet subpoena that the indictment would be the price we must pay to curb the invasion of a basic right, the law abiding citizens' right to be let alone," Rumely's statement said. "x x x Neither the House of Representatives nor the whole Congress can, by setting up a committee of a few of its members, as Mr. Anderson's resolution did, lawfully abolish the section of the Bill of Rights which reads: 'The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated."

Anderson, commenting on Rumelys description of him as "a fanatical partisan," said Rumely "overlooked the fact that the subpoena was issued by a committee on which there are four Democrats, and three Republicans, and that it was issued by unanimous vote of the committee, all members being present."

Rumely Refused in 1938

Rumely, Anderson said, had refused in 1938 to furnish copies of organization records to the Black-Minton committee of the Senate, when it was inestigating lobbying activities in connection with a bill calling for reorganization of the federal government.

"Our record show," Anderson said, that "Dr. Rumely was subpoenaed by that committee, after having refused to turn over to two committee investigators his records."

Anderson Rumely at that time was connected with a committee known as the committee for the nation.

Brought to Washington at that time, Rumely still refused to turn his records over to the Senate committee which did not press the action further, Anderson said.

He quoted Rumely as saying at that time: "'When the dragon was defied, it evaporated.'"

Navy Officer Describes Brawl With Unionists

Says Fight In Hotel After Roosevelt Speech Was Over Refusal To Favor Reelection

OCT 3 1944

Washington, Oct 2 (AP)—A story of how fists flew in the Statler Hotel after President Roosevelt made his opening campaign address to the Teamsters Union was told today by a young navy lieutenant.

The lieutenant, Randolph Dickins, Jr., 23, said he and a companion were beset by a group of men who described themselves as Teamsters union members and who were angered because the officers wouldn't declare in favor of Mr. Roosevelt's reelection.

Knocked 4 Or 5 Down

In the resulting melee, Dickins said, he knocked four or five men "to the deck." One of the group later informed him, he said, that he had "beaten a personal friend of the President" and would be severely punished.

Dickins said he could not identify a picture of Daniel Tobin, head of the AFL teamsters union, as that of anybody in the melee.

Tobin, in New York, denied being in any such fight or knowing anything about it. Stephen Early, White House secretary, denied published reports that Tobin called him yesterday to urge suppression of information about it.

Recuperating At Bethesda

Lieutenant Dickins gave his account in a news conference at the Naval Medical Center at Bethseda, wher he is recuperating from malaria and combat fatigue.

It all started, he related, when he and another officer, whom he declined to identify, went to the Statler Hotel about 11.30 P. M. September 23, expecting to attend a dance, but found that function had been postponed in favor of the teamsters union dinner.

They made inquiries among a group of several hundred men outside the ballroom. Dickins said, and several "accosted us, telling us they were members of the teamsters' union and the President had just made a fine speech. They asked us what political party we belonged to and who we would like to see elected in November.

"We retorted that it was none of their business."

Asked Opinion Of Unions

The crowd around them grew, Dickins said, and kept firing questions about political opinion in the navy, and what the men in the services thought about unions.

When he and his companion persisted in refusal to answer questions, the lieutenant said, several of the questioners "accused us of being disloyal to the service and to our Commander in Chief."

He said he and his friend tried to leave but became separated and he saw his companion "had been pushed down into a chair and was being held there while several men appeared to be arguing with him."

One big fellow, Dickens said, took a swing at his seated friend, and Dickens started to the rescue.

Hit In The Eye While Pinioned

"Immediately I was grasped from behind," he said, "and while pinioned one of the group that was near me hit me in the left eye, thus preventing me from getting any nearer to my friend.

"Infuriated by this attack, I lifted my leg in such a manner to force the fellow behind me to release me. I then proceeded to attack the man who hit me in the eye. While fighting this man I was constantly surrounded by men of this group who kept swinging at me. I knocked this first man to the deck and was immediately attacked by another man with whom I proceeded to do the same."

He said he fought his way to his friend who by this time was "being held down inside a telephone booth," still fighting from his sitting position.

Called President's Friend

Several bellboys broke in and stopped the fracas, and the Shore Patrol was called. As the patrol escorted the two officers away, Dickins said, a man in the crowd "told us that I had beaten up a personal friend of the President and that he was going to take the matter up with the higher authorities and see that we got severe punishment."

Dickens told his story slowly, as though dictating a statement. Shown the picture of Tobin later, he said he could not recognize it and was "sure I didn't hit a man with glasses."

Dickins, 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 180, was born in El Paso, Texas. His wife and young son live in Bradenton, Fla. He played football for the University of Miami.

He wears ribbons for the Caribbean and Pacific, and was in the battle of Midway.

At the time of the hotel melee he was on "shore leave" which convalescents at the hospital can have on request. In answer to a question, he said he had not been drinking.

Denial Amplified

In New York, Tobin supplemented his denial with a lengthy statement he read at a news conference in the offices of the Democratic National Committee.

He said "the whole tale is a baseless, contemptible falsehood," including the report that he had telephoned the White House.

"Moreover, if I were foolish enough to telephone the White House they would have the right to think that I was crazy because they could not influence the newspapers to keep from printing a story in their columns . . . ," Tobin said.

"I can only ascribe the linking of my name with the so-called episode to a desire to convey the impression that the International Teamsters' Union and their officers who were honored by the President's attendance and address . . . are composed of a class of American citizens unworthy of citizenship and that I, as chief official and general president of that international union, am not a man of character and decency."

F.D.R. MANAGEMENT HAILED BY TRUMAN

President Recommended For 'Biggest Job In The World'

Hillman says if vote is as heavy as in 1940, Dewey will be "worst-defeated candidate in our times"..... Page 11

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—For "the biggest job in the world," Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri, tonight recommended President Roosevelt as a man of experience and proven leadership.

In a radio address the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee declared that "we wouldn't be fighting and winning the kind of war we are fighting and winning—if it weren't for Roosevelt's experience in big jobs." It is no accident, Truman said, that "this has been the best-managed war."

Without the quality of leadership, the Senator asserted, no man is fitted for the world's biggest job—the Presidency. Mr. Roosevelt showed his, he said, in choosing the right men for the right jobs—men like Gen. George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King and his War and Navy secretaries.

He "Has It"

They were selected for ability, not on a partisan political basis, Truman said, and he called that "Democratic leadership."

"Either a man has it—or he hasn't," he said. "America knows that Franklin Delano Roosevelt has it. I think you'll agree we're going to need this kind of leadership in the next four years."

The Missourian said crossroads lie ahead, one way leading back to normal for the few and hunger for the many, the other to years in which the Government recognizes jobs, security and the needs of the many as its responsibilities.

"It won't be any accident that we find ourselves on the right road," he asserted. "Reconversion and the jobs and security are matters for a man who has already looked and thought and planned ahead. For a man with the kind of greatness the times will most certainly demand. I submit that that means a big man—a mighty big man—a Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Plans 3 October Speeches

Earlier Senator Truman had announced that he would make speeches at Caruthersville, Mo., October 7; New Orleans, October 11, and Los Angeles, October 16.

Truman is undertaking a transcontinental political swing, but details of the trip beyond Los Angeles have not been completed.

The Senator said he hoped to see a game or two of the World Series in St. Louis at the end of the week, then go to Caruthersville to attend an American Legion fair.

BURTON AND BALL DIFFER ON DEWEY

Former Says New Yorker Would Help Foreign Policy

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Senator Burton (R., Ohio) asserted today that he had "no hesitancy at all" in indorsing Thomas E. Dewey's Presidential candidacy because election of the New York Governor "would be helpful to our foreign policy."

Senator Ball (R., Minn.) announced last week that he could not at this time campaign for Dewey because the Governor had failed to satisfy him in his position on foreign affairs.

Burton and Ball were the Republican half of the "B2H2" Senate quartet—the Democrats were Hill, of Alabama, and Hatch, of New Mexico—which strongly advocated committing the United States to participation in a world organization to enforce peace.

Arranges Several Addresses

Where as Ball said he would not speak for Dewey, Burton said he had offered all of October to the Republican National Committee and the Ohio State Committee and had lined up "quite a number" of addresses.

To reporters who inquired why he thought Dewey's election would strengthen America's foreign policy, Burton remarked that the Senate will be anti-Roosevelt for the next two years and Republican for the two ensuing years.

"Our greatest problem," he said, "is going to be to get agreement between the President and two thirds of the Senate. To get full cooperation on foreign policy we need an anti-Roosevelt President.

Sees Prejudices Lowered

"It will eliminate personalities, prejudices and partisanship to a greater extent if we have a Republican President than if we don't."

Burton said he felt that the Senate was convinced of the need for a sound, firm, constructive foreign policy and actually had declared for one when it adopted the Connolly foreign-policy resolution, which pledged maintenance of international security.

"If we just have sense enough to keep the Allies together and the various branches of our own Government together," the Senator declared, "we're going to have peace."

Ball To Explain Stand

Minneapolis, Oct. 2 (AP)—Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), storm center of Minnesota Republican circles since his announcement of non-support for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Presidency, will speak over Radio Station KSTP in explanation of his stand Wednesday at 7.45 P. M., the station announced today.

FLURRY MADE BY PAMPHLET

Both Parties Annoyed By

Press Research, Inc. Book

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—A 95-page pamphlet entitled "Special Report No. 1, Thomas E. Dewey" which the Democratic National Committee said it used for "source material" caused a flurry in Democratic and Republican campaign headquarters today.

Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, expressed disapproval of statements in the booklet criticizing former national chairman James A. Farley, Col. John J. Bennett, now head of the committee's veterans' division, and Edward J. Flynn, national committeeman for New York. Hannegan said he would have those statements expunged from any copies used by the committee.

Dewey 'Deal' With Flynn

The pamphlet, published by Press Research, Inc., of Washington, D. C., called Bennett "Farley's anti-New Deal candidate" against Dewey in the 1942 Gubernatorial election and charged that "the Dewey machine has profited considerably through a deal with Flynn." Democratic leader in the Bronx.

Hannegan said that the objectionable references were confined to two pages and added: "I suppose the other 93 pages are fairly accurate."

He said he had no knowledge as to how the booklet came to the committee because "information against Dewey comes to us from all over." He added that the committee had spent no money on the pamphlet and denied earlier reports that copies of it had been burned.

Called PAC Branch

At Republican national headquarters, Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., interpreted the use of the pamphlet as bringing into the open what he called a "serious breach between responsible Democratic leaders and the Hillman-Browder forces within the party."

"Press Research," Brownell said, "is a branch of the Political Action Committee."

He added that Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade publication, had asserted that the Press Research organization was established as a propaganda service for the PAC and that Sidney Hillman, PAC chairman, last July appointed Nelson Poynter, publisher of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times, as head of the organization.

PAC Has No Comment

No comment was available from PAC headquarters in New York. Earlier, the office of Press Research in Washington said it had no comment.

Bennett said in a formal statement regarding references to him in the pamphlet:

"The story is a repetition of the dirty smear used against me by the bigots in the 1942 Gubernatorial campaign. The only truth in all the references to me is that I was nominated for Governor."

Five Million Parcels Go Overseas By New York

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—A total og 5,338,604 Christmas parcels for men and women in the armed forces overseas were turned over to the army postoffice port of embarkation by the New York Postoffice during the first half of the 30-day mailing period, the postmaster's office said today.

It was an increase of 3,438,344 over last year, according to the announcement.

Hopkins Asks Removal Of Excess Profit Tax To Assure Employment

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Removal of excess profit taxes and other means of encouraging private enterprise, rather than continued government spending, are urged by Harry L. Hopkins, close confidant of President Roosevelt, to assure post-war employment and security.

Hopkins, who outlines his program in the November American magazine, has been a close adviser of President Roosevelt throughout his three terms. He returned to his job as special assistant to the President last July after a six-months illness and convalescence.

The opportunity to work, Hopkins says, must be provided "through the dynamics of our way of life, by increased production, increased earning, and increased private spending . . . competition through free enterprise can help destroy poverty in America."

Mrs. Roosevelt Visits Mitchel Field Hospital

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Oct. 2 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt today told convalescent servicemen at the hospital here "to bear with us at home because we may not be able to understand how you men feel who have been so close to war."

Accompanied by Col. Douglas Johnston, post commandant, Mrs. Roosevelt visited the hospital wards, stopped to chat with the wounded and attended a short performance of a Broadway production, performed ... the post theater.

General Denig Praises Job Of Reporting War

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP). Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig, director of public relations of the United States Marine Corps, said tonight, "The American press has been the most accurate, industrious and ingenious in the world in reporting the war," and "the all-out effort of journalism has paced the all-out effort of the nation."

HILLMAN SEES BIG MAJORITY

All Needed, He Says, Is Vote As Heavy As In 1940

Atlantic City, Oct. 2 (AP)—Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, said today that if the vote in the November election "is as heavy as in 1940 — about 50,000,000 — Dewey will be the worst-defeated candidate in our times."

Addressing the national convention of the CIO's Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, Hillman said: "We of organized labor must realize what is at stake November 7, not only for labor and the nation but for the world."

The PAC, he said, had been called un-American "because we asked people to register so they could vote—the lowest thing we can do from the viewpoint of the vested interests."

"Designed To Cloud" Issues

The attack on the PAC, he said, was "designed to cloud the real issues—winning the war and after victory.

"They dare not face these issues, so they resort to a smear campaign —a campaign of villification that makes PAC responsible for all our ills.

"I wonder that they haven't yet blamed us for the recent hurricane."

Discussing the war, Hillman said, "Let no one say, as Mr. Dewey is trying to make the country believe, that the war already is won. How soon and at what cost it will be won will depend on our leadership in these times of the greatest world catastrophe.

"It would be a tragedy if by the default of our not casting ballots one who is totally inexperienced and totally unprepared should come into office."

Dewey's Record Queried

Hillman said that Dewey's record as Governor "has shown him to be anything but an administrator or concerned with the problems of labor or the nation."

There will be 20,000,000 war workers and veterans seeking jobs when peace comes, Hillman said, and added, "what is Mr. Dewey's record in handling these problems? Why, for the last dozen years he has been too busy campaigning to have a record.

"We haven't heard from Mr. Dewey on the subject of full employment, but we know those who have assured him the nomination. We know what they think. Hoover's (former President Herbert Hoover) record is our only reference."

SMUGGLED TO U. S. VIA COFFIN, SHIP?

Belfast Girl, 17, Tells Story To Ohio Authorities

Youngstown, Ohio, Oct. 2 (AP)—Nineteen-year-old Elizabeth MacLeod, who told a bizarre story of being smuggled out of her native Ireland in a casket aboard a United States Army bomber, and a subsequent trip to America as stowaway on a Victory ship, was named today in three charges of illegally entering the United States.

Edwin B. Topmiller, inspector-in-charge of Youngstown's United States immigration office, said he charged the red-haired girl with entering this country without a passport, without a visa, and as a stowaway who evaded inspection.

"Hid Her In A Coffin"

Police Chief John B. Thomas quoted the girl as saying she spent three years seeking an American soldier who would marry her and "get me away from the air raids."

Six months ago, Thomas quoted her as saying she "persuaded an American colonel and a major to hide her in a coffin and transport her from Belfast to Scotland.

Smuggled Aboard Ship

"Sometime later I met a merchant marine from Youngstown, Ohio, who fell in love with me," Thomas said the girl told him. "He and another sailor smuggled me aboard their ship in a sailor's uniform."

She said she came ashore at Boston August 11 and the seaman brought her to Youngstown the following day. The police chief said the girl was arrested while police were searching for her roommate, a fugitive from a welfare home.

BRICKER ASSAILS FEDERAL PAY ROLL

GOP Candidate Says New Deal Hires More Near Election

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to give tax views in radio talk over 160 stations tonight.....Page 11

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 2 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker, proposing a "thorough housecleaning" in Washington, asserted tonight that the Federal Government pay roll had been expanded under the present Administration from 560,000 employes to "the staggering total of almost 3,500,000."

And, the Republican candidate for Vice-President added "no one knows to what peak it will climb by November, but it seems likely that the level will be lifted still higher."

Scores Number Of Bureaucrats

The Ohio Governor, who came here from Bowling Green, Ky., on the first leg of a 9,250-mile Western tour, remarked at Ryman Auditorium:

"Steadily as the tides, the number of bureaucrats has grown larger and larger, revealing a peculiar vigor during the months immediately preceding an election. It is a New Deal axiom that every individual added to the Federal pay roll is equivalent to four additional votes for the fourth-term aspirations of Mr. Roosevelt."

In 1932, Bricker said, the Democrats promised to reduce drastically the number of Federal employes, but before the war increased personnel 65 per cent.

Suggests 5-Point Program

After asserting that "a thorough housecleaning is needed in Washington to clear out the excess and duplications," he suggested a five-point program of reform in the Federal personnel.

His proposals included: Allowing only elective officials and executive agency heads to make exemptions from civil-service regulations; a system of classification; vesting control of Federal employes in a responsible agency; assignment of employes to duties for which they best are fitted, and elimination of "partisan" politics" from their merit system.

Bricker declared that "the violation of civil service and the misuse of Federal employes is clearly shown as this campaign goes on," and said a letter, purportedly signed by a Democratic national committeeman, had been sent to Ohio employes of the United States Employment Service in a campaign-fund solicitation.

Cites Signature Of Horstman

The letter, which Bricker said bore the signature of Albert A. Horstman, who also is Ohio Democratic chairman, said in part:

"I want you, who are a part of the present Roosevelt Administration, to ask yourself what the defeat of our great President would mean to you. Unquestionably, if our opposition comes into power, they will replace many thousand incumbents with others. In the enclosed self-addressed envelope, please mail me a check or money order, now. Give all you can."

Horstman commented tonight at Dayton, Ohio, "the Ohio Republican Committee investigated and found I was within my rights." He also cited a statement two weeks ago, when the letter first became an Ohio issue.

"I am not a Federal employe and am at liberty to solicit funds from anyone," he said then. "The Hatch Act makes no claim that this can not be done. Federal and civil service employes can contribute to any campaign. The law says only that persons employed on the Federal pay roll, or a civil service employe cannot solicit from his fellow-employes."

The Governor said it was "partially true" that many new Federal employes are needed in war or war-related agencies, but added that the joint committee on reductions of non-essential Federal expenditures had estimated 300,000 Federal employes could be discharged without a loss of efficiency in the war effort.

"While the New Deal fights this campaign for power and jobs," Bricker concluded, "the Republican party fights for our country."

Quotes Rival On "Waste"

At Bowling Green the Republicans' No. 2 standard-bearer told an audience that Senator Harry S. Truman, the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, in 1941 and 1942 laid "charges of confusion, waste, lack of planning and unpreparedness at the feet" of President Roosevelt.

Citing magazine articles, official reports and speeches of the Missouri Senator critical of the handling of the war's prosecution, Bricker then asked:

"Did the great power and will of the New Deal to punish and reward persuade him as it did Senator Barkley (Majority Leader Alben Barkley, of Kentucky) to again be its vassal and servant?"

Bricker will speak from the rear of his special train tomorrow in Kentucky and Illinois and talk in Centralia, Ill., tomorrow night.

Gov. Kerr Blames GOP For Unpreparedness

Oklahoma City, Oct. 2 (AP)—Governor Robert S. Kerr, answering Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's attack on President Roosevelt, charged tonight it was "obstruction by Republican leadership" that left the nation unprepared for war before Pearl Harbor.

In a radio address, Kerr discussed major accusations of the Republican Presidential nominee's Oklahoma City speech September 25 and flung back at him Dewey's assertion President Roosevelt "did absolutely nothing to prepare the American people for war."

Philippine Government Staff Cut To Skeleton

San Francisco, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Philippine Government has been reduced to a "mere skeleton force" because of "the present emergency," the Japanese-controlled Manila radio said tonight. The broadcast, beamed to the Philippines, was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Puppet President Jose Laurel, the broadcast said, issued an executive order reducing the personnel of "provincial, city and municipal governments and government-owned or controlled corporations." The order became effective September 30.

[The English-language broadcast gave no specific reason for this action, which might be a Japanese-sponsored move to free Government employes for more direct war work.]

NORMAN THOMAS TO QUIT POLITICS

Los Angeles, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The Examiner said today that Norman Thomas, five times candidate for President on the Socialist ticket, will withdraw from politics at the end of the present campaign.

"This is my last campaign," the newspaper quoted Mr. Thomas as saying to a Socialist gathering. "At a meeting of the party in Chicago in January I shall formally retire from active politics."

At Socialist headquarters a spokesman said that "Mr. Thomas's decision is not surprising to us" as he had required persuasion to make the present race. Mr. Thomas, here on a campaign tour, had left for San Antonio, Tex., and was not available for comment.

Mr. Thomas ran for President in 1928, 1932, 1936 and 1940, and now is making his fifth campaign for the office. He has been candidate for Governor of New York and for Mayor of New York city

Manila Paper Plan Cited

Los Angeles, Oct. 2 (AP)—Founder-Publisher Carson Taylor, of the Manila Bulletin, says he hopes to reestablish the newspaper within six months.

"It looks as if we are going into the Philippines very soon," he observed, concerning invasion prospects.

The Bulletin, the islands' oldest newspaper, was founded in 1900. Managing Editor Roy Bennett and other staff members are in internment camps.

THE AMERICANS PUSHED ON A FEW HUNDRED YARDS EAST OF EPINAL, AND ST.JEAN DU MARCHE 11 MILES SOUTHEAST OF EPINAL AND 19 MILES FROM BONHOMME PASS, ONE OF THE MAIN PASSAGES THROUGH THE VOSGES, WAS CAPTURED.

OCT 3 1944

FRENCH FORCES, THEIR ADVANCE BITTERLY CONTESTED AROUND MONTBELIARD WHERE THEY HAD EDGED INTO ENTRANCE TO THE BELFORT GAP FROM THE SOUTH, ALSO WERE HELD TO GAINS OF A FEW HUNDRED YARDS.

GERMAN ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE WAS MAKING THE GOING PARTICULARLY HARD SINCE MAIN COLUMN ADVANCES WERE RESTRICTED TO THE ROADS BECAUSE OF THE HILLS AND WOODS.

THE LUFTWAFFE MADE SEVERAL APPEARANCES, APPARENTLY ATTEMPTING TO HARASS ROAD LINES OF SUPPLY BEHIND THE PUSH ON THE BELFORT GAP.

THERE WAS NO LARGE-SCALE TROOP SUPPORT AIR OPERATION, HOWEVER, ON EITHER SIDE. CLOUDS CLUNG TO THE HILLTOPS. RAIN CAME DOWN HOUR AFTER HOUR. TO THE NORTH, IN HOLLAND, THE WEATHER WAS SLIGHTLY CLEARER, BUT THERE STILL WERE LOCAL SHOWERS EVEN THERE TO KEEP THE GROUND SODDEN.

THE COUNT OF GERMAN PRISONERS AT CAPTURED CALAIS ROSE TO 7,130, INCLUDING THE NAZI COMMANDER, COL.SCHROEDER. IT WAS EXPECTED TO REACH 8,000.

ABRUPTLY RECONSIDERING HIS DECISION TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH, SCHROEDER CALLED IT QUITS SATURDAY NIGHT AFTER 12,500 TONS OF BOMBS AND SHELLS HAD RAINED ON HIS POSITIONS. THE LAST GERMAN HOLDOUTS SURRENDERED YESTERDAY MORNING.

ADDING TO THE AIR OF EXPECTANCY OVER THE FRONT, THE BERLIN RADIO ASSERTED THAT THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY AND THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY HAVE MASSED STRONG TANK FORCES FOR A GREAT OFFENSIVE THAT WOULD BE AIMED EAST AND NORTHEAST AT THE RHINELAND.

THE GERMANS USED FLAME THROWERS AND ARMOR YESTERDAY IN STABS ON THE U.S. FIRST ARMY FRONT FROM EAST OF AACHEN TO SOUTHWEST OF PRUM. FARTHER SOUTH GERMAN AND AMERICAN THIRD ARMY TROOPS ENGAGED IN A FOUR-HOUR BATTLE AT JALLAUCOURT, 16 MILES NORTHEAST OF THE FRENCH

CITY OF NANCY. THE GERMANS ALSO LAUNCHED AN ATTACK AGAINST THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY NORTHWEST OF BELFORT. THE YANKS ARE ONLY NINE MILES FROM THE FORTRESS CITY OF BELFORT AT THE MOUTH OF THE GAP OF THE SAME NAME.

IN NONE OF THEIR THRUSTS DID THE GERMANS GAIN ANY GROUND.

THE HEAVIEST OF THE THREE BLOWS PARRIED BY THE BRITISH CAME AT THE NORTHERN END OF THE NETHERLANDS SALIENT. THIS OPERATION-- WHICH BEGAN WITH A MASSING OF GERMAN TANKS AND INFANTRY EIGHT MILES NORTH OF NIJMEGEN--WAS THE NEAREST THING TO A GERMAN COUNTER-OFFENSIVE SINCE THE UNSUCCESSFUL DRIVE THE NAZIS MADE TWO MONTHS AGO AGAINST THE BRITTANY-BOUND AMERICAN ARMIES AT AVRANCHES IN NORMANDY.

SOME GERMAN INFANTRY AND TANKS WERE ABLE TO CROSS THE NEDER RHINE AT HUISSEN, FOUR MILES SOUTHEAST OF ARNHEM, BUT IT WAS REPORTED AT SUPREME HEADQUARTERS THAT THE DRIVE DEFINITELY WAS BROKEN UP. THE SIZE OF THE GERMAN FORCE EMPLOYED INDICATED THAT THIS BLOW WAS NOT MERELY A LOCAL COUNTERATTACK.

THE SECOND GERMAN COUNTERATTACK CAME FROM THE REICHSWALD, A FOREST ACROSS THE BORDER IN GERMANY SOME EIGHT MILES SOUTHEAST OF NIJMEGEN. THIS ENEMY DRIVE WAS POINTED TOWARD NIJMEGEN AND THE STRATEGIC BRIDGE OVER THE WAAL THERE.

ROCKET-FIRING TYPHOONS AIDED THE GROUND TROOPS IN REPELLING BOTH GERMAN THRUSTS.

THE THIRD GERMAN BLOW WAS THROWN IN AGAINST THE WEST SIDE OF THE HOLLAND SALIENT SOUTH OF 'S HERTOGENBOSCH, WHICH IS 18 MILES NORTHWEST OF EINDHOVEN.

BRITISH TROOPS CONTAINED THIS ATTACK AND PRESSED FORWARD THEMSELVES IN A SECTOR BETWEEN NULAND AND BERLICUM IN AN ADVANCE WHICH CARRIED TO POSITIONS THREE OR FOUR MILES EAST OF 'S HERTOGENBOSCH. THE GERMANS HAVE FORTIFIED 'S HERTOGENBOSCH TO PROTECT THE NORTHERN LINE OF RETREAT OF SOME 200,000 OF THEIR TROOPS NEARLY WALLED OFF IN WESTERN HOLLAND. THE GERMANS HAVE SHOWN NO INCLINATION TO WITHDRAW THESE TROOPS THROUGH THE 25-MILE WIDE ESCAPE GAP BETWEEN ARNHEM AND IJSSELMEER (ZUIDER ZEE), A BRITISH OFFICER SAID.

CANADIANS ADVANCING AGAINST PART OF THIS FORCE ACROSS THE ANTWERP-TURNHOUT CANAL IN BELGIUM HAVE SCORED GAINS OF SEVERAL MILES NORTHWEST OF TURNHOUT.

THE GERMANS ANNOUNCED THAT THE AMERICAN SEVENTH ARMY, OPERATING ON THE SOUTHERN FLANK OF THE ALLIED LINE, HAS CAPTURED RAMBERVILLERS, A KEY POSITION WHICH THE NAZIS HAD DEFENDED BITTERLY, SINCE IT CONTROLS IMPORTANT HIGHWAYS 30 MILES SOUTHEAST OF NANCY. RAMBERVILLERS IS ONLY 21 MILES WEST OF THE SAALES PASS THROUGH THE VOSGES MOUNTAINS. THIS PASS IS ONE OF THE GATEWAYS TO SOUTHWESTERN GERMANY.

IN ADDITION TO REPELLING GERMAN ATTACKS IN THE 40-MILE SECTOR FROM AACHEN TO NEAR PRUM, THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY DUG DEEPER INTO THE SIEGFRIED LINE IN THE SAME AREA OF THE FRONT AND OVERRAN A NUMBER OF PILLBOXES.

A FIELD DISPATCH FROM THE FIRST ARMY REVEALED THAT MEN OF THE FAMOUS AMERICAN FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION WERE AMONG THE FIRST GROUND TROOPS TO FIGHT THEIR WAY ACROSS THE GERMAN BORDER AND WERE THE FIRST TO SMASH THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE. THE FIRST DIVISION HAS A PROUD BATTLE RECORD IN THIS AND THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

AMERICAN THIRD ARMY TROOPS BLASTED THE GERMANS OUT OF THE LUXEMBOURG TOWN OF REMICH, AT THE GERMAN FRONTIER, WHICH HAD CHANGED HANDS TWICE IN FLUID FIGHTING.

LONDON, OCT 2-(AP)-THE RAF ABANDONED SATURATION NIGHT BOMBING DURING SEPTEMBER IN FAVOR OF SMALLER AND MORE CONCENTRATED ATTACKS ADAPTED FROM THE PINPOINT TECHNIQUE OF THE AMERICAN AIRFORCES, THE AIR MINISTRY DECLARED TONIGHT IN A STATISTICAL REVIEW OF AIR OPERATIONS IN SEPTEMBER.

"THE RANGE OF DESTRUCTION OF TARGETS IN GERMANY WAS INCREASED BY THE USE OF COMPARATIVELY SMALL FORCES BOMBING WITH SUCH ACCURACY THAT AS MUCH DAMAGE WAS DONE AS IN MUCH HEAVIER ATTACKS OF THE PAST," THE AIR MINISTRY SAID.

AN OUTSTANDING EXAMPLE OF THIS IS THE CASE OF THE CITY OF DARMSTADT, CENTER OF GERMANY'S CHEMICAL INDUSTRY AND BASE FOR NAZI ARMIES DEFENDING THE UPPER RHINELAND, WHICH WAS BOMBED THE NIGHT OF SEPT. 12.

"ALMOST THE WHOLE OF DARMSTADT WAS DESTROYED BY A FORCE OF A LITTLE MORE THAN 200 LANCASTERS," THE REPORT SAID.

EN ROUTE TO THE TUNNEL WITH OTHER MUSTANG PILOTS, TOMKINS SIGHTED A LARGE AMMUNITION DUMP IN A FIELD AND DECIDED TO HAVE A GO AT IT.

"I WAS FLYING LOWER THAN THE DUMP WHEN I STARTED SHOOTING," HE SAID. "THE DUMP WENT UP WITH A GREAT BLUE FLASH AND I FLEW RIGHT THROUGH IT. MY PLANE CAUGHT ON FIRE BUT I GAVE IT THE GUN AND THE WIND PUT THE FLAMES OUT."

TOMKINS SAID IT WAS "SORTA WARM" IN THE COCKPIT FOR A MINUTE, BUT HE THOUGHT IT PROBABLY WAS SORTA WARM IN THE AMMUNITION DUMP TOO.

TOMKINS AND THE REST OF THE OTHER MUSTANG PILOTS GOT BULLS-EYES ON THE TUNNEL TOO, SKIPPING BOMBS IN THE ENTRANCE AND SEALING IT.

LONDON, OCT. 2-(AP)-A PROPOSAL FOR AN INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT ON WORLDWIDE PRESS FREEDOM WAS DESCRIBED AS UTOPIAN BY THE YORKSHIRE POST TODAY. THE COMMENT WAS MADE ON AN ADDRESS SATURDAY BY WILLIAM REDFERN, PRESIDENT OF THE INSTITUTE OF JOURNALISTS, WHO RECOMMENDED, THE POST SAID, "A CONVENTION GUARANTEEING THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, WITH FREE ACCESS TO NEWS AND FREEDOM TO CIRCULATE IT AT RATES FAIR TO ALL."

"SUCH A SAFEGUARD," SAID THE POST EDITORIAL, "BELONGS RATHER TO A PLANNER'S UTOPIA THAN TO EARLY PEACEMAKING PRACTICALITIES.

"NEWSPAPERS ARE A PART OF THE FABRIC OF THEIR NATIONAL LIFE, AND WILL BE MORE LIKELY TO RESENT THAN TO SEEK ON THEIR BEHALF OUTSIDE INTERFERENCE. POLITICIANS IN OFFICE ARE EVEN MORE NATIONALISTIC, AND UNLIKE MOST JOURNALISTS THEY VALUE HIGHLY THE POWER OF RETICENCE. HOW WOULD ARGENTINE STATESMEN RESPOND TO A DEMAND BY BRAZIL JOURNALISTS FOR ACCESS TO FULL INFORMATION WHEN RELATIONS BETWEEN THEIR COUNTRIES WERE STRAINED? WOULD PROTESTATIONS FROM A BUREAU IN EUROPE MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE? WHAT WOULD THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT IN MOSCOW SAY TO A DEMAND FROM THE POLISH PRESS FOR INFORMATION THE BOLSHEVIKS WERE KEEPING QUIET?"

DECLARING "YOU CANNOT MAKE GOVERNMENTS FRANK BY A GENEVA CONVENTION," THE POST CONCLUDED:

"FOR THE PRESENT WE BELIEVE THE CAUSE OF PRESS FREEDOM WILL BE SERVED BEST BY THE EXAMPLE OF A PRESS USING ITS FREEDOM WITH THE UTMOST PUBLIC SPIRIT. IF WE VIE WITH EACH OTHER IN THAT RESPECT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES WILL SET AN EXAMPLE TO THE WORLD THAT WILL BE MORE EFFECTIVE THAN RELIANCE UPON ANY SCHEME OF INTERNATIONAL MACHINERY, HOWEVER NEATLY AND IDEALISTICALLY PLANNED."

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, OCT. 2-(AP)-BRITISH ARMORED COLUMNS ARE CLEANING UP TO A DEPTH OF FIVE MILES ON AN 18-MILE FRONT ALONG THE NORTHWEST FLANK OF THE BRITISH SALIENT INTO HOLLAND AMID INCREASING SIGNS THE GERMANS MAY BE PULLING OUT FROM THE DUTCH COASTAL LOOP.
A BRITISH STAFF OFFICER SAID SOME NORTHBOUND MOVEMENT OF GERMAN TRUCKS WAS SPOTTED YESTERDAY. THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE INDICATIONS OF A MASS WITHDRAWAL, HOWEVER.
GERMAN FORWARD TROOPS STILL WERE FIGHTING AT PEAK FURY.
GERMAN INFANTRY, TANKS AND FLAMETHROWERS WERE EMPLOYED IN TWO COUNTERATTACKS IN THE NIJMEGEN SECTOR AT THE TIP OF THE CORRIDOR YESTERDAY. TYPHOONS ATTACKED THE BIG NAZI FORMATION MASSING IN THE HUISSEN AREA NORTH OF NIJMEGEN. ARTILLERY BEAT OFF AN ATTACK LED BY TANKS TO THE NORTHEAST AND TOMMIES WITH COLD STEEL REPULSED A JAB BY ENEMY INFANTRY USING FIRE SOUTHEAST OF NIJMEGEN.
THROUGHOUT THE NIGHT, GERMAN TROOPS ATTEMPTED TO INFILTRATE BRITISH LINES AT THE TIP OF THE SALIENT AND ACHIEVED A LITTLE SUCCESS. THESE ENEMY TROOPS WERE BEING DEALT WITH THIS MORNING.
A HEADQUARTERS COMMENTATOR STRESSED THE ASSERTION THAT THE GERMAN THRUSTS WERE "INFILTRATIONS" AND NOT "PENETRATIONS."
"THE GERMANS ARE PUSHING HARD, TRYING TO FIND A HOLE FOR MAJOR THRUSTS INTO NIJMEGEN," A STAFF OFFICER SAID, "THE ENEMY ALSO IS REINFORCING STRONGLY IN THE ARNHEM SECTOR AND A FRESH GERMAN ARMORED FORCE APPEARED THERE YESTERDAY."
TO FORESTALL A GERMAN LUNGE ACROSS THE RHINE, ALLIED BOMBERS STEPPED UP THEIR ATTACK.
ON THE SOUTHWEST FLANK OF LT.GEN.SIR MILES C.DEMPSEY'S CORRIDOR, CANADIAN FIRST ARMY TROOPS HIT STIFFENING OPPOSITION WEST OF TURNHOUT BUT DROVE SEVERAL MILES FARTHER NORTH OF MERXPLAS AND PUSHED INTO HOLLAND. THE CANADIANS CAPTURED BRECHT.
AT CALAIS, THE TOTAL OF GERMAN PRISONERS ROSE TO 7,130. THE FINAL COUNT AT THE RUBBLED FRENCH CHANNEL PORT 21 MILES FROM DOVER IS EXPECTED TO REACH 8,000.

ALGRANGE, FRANCE, OCT 2-(AP)-THE SWEEP OF ALLIED ARMOR ACROSS FRANCE INTERRUPTED GERMAN EFFORTS TO CONVERT FRENCH IRON ORE MINES IN THIS AREA INTO ELABORATE BOMBPROOF FACTORIES, ONE OF WHICH WAS ALMOST READY TO START TURNING OUT 1,000 MESSERSCHMITT FIGHTER PLANES A MONTH.
IN THIS PARTICULAR MINE ALONE THE AMERICANS CAPTURED 300 TONS OF SHEET ALUMINUM, ALONG WITH MILLIONS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF EQUIPMENT CRATED AND STACKED. ADDITIONAL HUNDREDS OF TONS OF MATERIALS, STILL TO BE INVENTORIED, WERE FOUND IN ANOTHER MINE AT NEARBY FONTOY.
THE GERMANS DECAMPED IN A HURRY AFTER A FAKE EVACUATION ORDER PUT THROUGH BY THE FFI AND LEFT BEHIND BLUEPRINTS OF THE ALGRANGE PLANT CALLING FOR ITS COMPLETION BY OCT.20. FRENCHMEN SAID THE GERMANS HAD REFERRED REPEATEDLY TO THE ALGRANGE PROJECT AS "THE MOST IMPORTANT IN THE GERMAN WAR EFFORT," AND IT RECEIVED NO.1 PRIORITY, SUGGESTING THAT IT ULTIMATELY WAS TO BECOME ONE OF HITLER'S CHIEF FIGHTER PLANE PRODUCTION CENTERS.

THE DRIVE NORTHEAST OF NANCY WAS SPEARHEADED BY TANKS, FOLLOWED BY INFANTRY. IT REACHED HIGH GROUND NORTH OF LALANCOURT AND JALLAUCOURT.
THE GERMANS COUNTERATTACKED LIGHTLY IN THE PARROY FOREST, AT LALANCOURT AND JALLAUCOURT AND WERE DRIVEN OFF.
ON THE NORTHERN END OF THE THIRD ARMY FRONT, THE AMERICANS CAPTURED GREVENMACHER ON THE LUXEMBOURG SIDE OF THE GERMAN FRONTIER, 15 MILES NORTHEAST OF THE CITY OF LUXEMBOURG. GREVENMACHER IS AN OLD PLACE, DATING BACK TO THE SEVENTH CENTURY.

U.S.FIRST ARMY HEADQUARTERS, BELGIUM, OCT. 2-(AP)-LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' INFANTRY AND TANKS DROVE THROUGH THE BATTERED SIEGFRIED LINE FOR TWO MILES ON A SIX MILE FRONT BETWEEN AACHEN AND GEILENKIRCHEN TODAY IN ONE OF THE GREATEST AIR AND GROUND ATTACKS OF THE EUROPEAN WAR.

AS FIGHTING SPREAD IT WAS OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED THAT THE INFANTRY, WHOSE ATTACK WAS PRECEDED BY A BOMBARDMENT BY HUNDREDS OF MEDIUM AND LIGHT BOMBERS AND ACCOMPANIED BY A BARRAGE FROM HUNDREDS OF ARTILLERY GUNS, HAD SMASHED 400 YARDS BEYOND THE AACHEN-GEILENKIRCHEN RAILROAD AFTER FORDING THE WURM RIVER UNDER HEAVY SMALL ARMS FIRE.

STRONG ENEMY PILLBOXES WERE KNOCKED OUT IN AN ADVANCE OF MORE THAN 1,000 YARDS TO THE RIVER.

"THEY ARE STILL GOING FORWARD SLOWLY AND MEETING HEAVY RESISTANCE FROM ENEMY PILLBOXES, ARTILLERY AND NEBELWERFER MORTAR FIRE," SAID A STAFF OFFICER.

THE FIGHTING EXTENDED FOR 20 MILES NORTH OF AACHEN, WHERE THE NAZIS ARE STRINGING CHAINS ACROSS THE STREETS AND DIGGING IN OLD TANKS FOR A LAST-DITCH STAND, ALTHOUGH THE BATTLE WAS CENTERED ON A LESSER FRONT.

AMERICAN FORCES ATTACKED AT TWO MORE POINTS ALONG THE ERUPTING BATTLEFRONT, AND COMBAT ENGINEERS BEAT BACK VICIOUS ENEMY COUNTER-THRUSTS BY TWO COMPANIES FIVE MILES NORTH OF ROTGEN BELOW AACHEN.

A SECOND AMERICAN ATTACK WAS MADE BY AN ARMORED COLUMN AT OVERLOON, HOLLAND, ALONG THE FRONT WEST OF THE MEUSE.

A THIRD WAS MADE BY AMERICAN CAVALRY WHICH PLOUGHED FORWARD AT HAVERT, GERMANY, NEAR THE HOLLAND BORDER NORTHWEST OF GEILENKIRCHEN.

THE SMASHING AMERICAN DRIVE WAS A GREAT SURPRISE TO THE GERMANS WHO ONLY 24 HOURS BEFORE WERE ATTACKING ALONG AN ELASTIC FRONT FROM OVERLOON TO BERG AND WESCHIED IN THE SOUTH.

ALL THESE COUNTERATTACKS, IN WHICH THE GERMANS USED FLAMETHROWERS AT BERG, WERE BEATEN BACK DECISIVELY BEFORE HODGES THREW HIS ARMY INTO THE ATTACK.

THE DOUGHBOYS JUMPED OFF AT 10:55 A.M. AFTER AN HOUR-LONG AERIAL BOMBARDMENT THAT CAUSED THE EARTH TO SHUDDER FOR MILES ABOUT,

30. 24 — 1944

AND CHARGED AHEAD BEHIND A MOVING WALL OF THEIR OWN ARTILLERY SHELLS. AT 11:40 THEY SPLASHED ACROSS THE KNEE-DEEP WURM.

AS SOON AS A BRIDGEHEAD HAD BEEN ESTABLISHED, COMBAT ENGINEERS THREW ACROSS A 30-FOOT BRIDGE AND ARMOR AND ARTILLERY WHEELED OVER TO BACK UP THE FAST-MOVING INFANTRY, THEIR PATH EASED BY A ROLLING BARRAGE FROM SEVERAL HUNDRED GROUPED ARTILLERY PIECES, INCLUDING THE BIGGEST GUNS.

THE AREA WAS DOTTED WITH MINESHAFTS AND THOUSANDS OF V-SHAPED FOXHOLES HURRIEDLY BUILT DURING THE LAST TWO WEEKS.

NIGHT LEAD BREAKTHROUGH

BY DON WHITEHEAD

GROENSTRAAT, HOLLAND, OCT. 2-(AP)-BECAUSE THE GERMANS HAVE PREPARED POSITIONS IN DEPTH FOR SOME 15,000 YARDS AT THE POINT OF TODAY'S ATTACK NORTH OF AACHEN, NO ONE HERE EXPECTS LT.GEN.COURTNEX H.HODGES' FIRST ARMY TO MAKE A SUDDEN GRAND SWEEP TO THE RHINE.

INDICATIONS ARE THAT THE BATTLE WILL BE A HARD, BITTER AND BLOODY ONE ALL THE WAY, SINCE THE GERMANS ARE DETERMINED TO PROTECT THE RICH INDUSTRIAL REGION TOWARD WHICH THE FIRST ARMY IS POINTED.

HODGES WAITED FOR 48 ANXIOUS HOURS FOR A BREAK IN THE WEATHER SO THAT THE AIR FORCE COULD BLAST A PATH FOR HIS TROOPS INTO THE SIEGFRIED LINE.

WITH SUPPLIES OF AMMUNITION, FOOD AND GASOLINE BUILT UP FOR THE PUSH, HODGES WAS READY TO THROW THE MOST CONCENTRATED ATTACK AGAINST THE ENEMY SINCE LT.GEN.OMAR BRADLEY MADE THE BREAKTHROUGH NEAR ST.LO LAST JULY 27. BUT THE FULL FORCE OF THE THRUST DEPENDED ON THE WEATHER.

TWO DAYS AGO THE OUTLOOK WAS BAD. THE FORECAST INDICATED AT LEAST FOUR MORE DAYS OF HEAVY OVERCAST. BUT OVER THE ATTACK ZONE THIS MORNING THE CLOUDS BROKE AND THE SUN SHONE TO GIVE THE AIRMEN A CHANCE TO HIT THE ENEMY.

THE BAD WEATHER WHICH KEPT THE AIR FORCE GROUNDED FOR THE PAST TWO WEEKS AND THE NEED TO PAUSE AND BUILD UP SUPPLIES GAVE THE NAZIS A TO STRENGTHEN THEIR POSITIONS AND BRING IN FRESH RESERVES.

"THEY ARE PUTTING CANNON FODDER INTO THE FRONT LINES AND KEEPING THEIR BEST FRESH TROOPS IN RESERVE FOR COUNTERATTACKS," LT.COL.STEWART L.HALL OF NEWARK, N.J., SAID. "THEY'VE BROUGHT NEW STUFF INTO THE LINE AND ARE DEFINITELY COMMITTED TO MAKING A STAND FOR THE SIEGFRIED LINE. THEY'VE GOT HITLER'S ORDERS TO HOLD OR ELSE."

IN THE REAR OF THE HODGE-PODGE MANNING THE SIEGFRIED DEFENSES HITLER HAS HIS TOUGH SS TROOPS AND MOBILE ARMORED UNITS TO BACKSTOP WHEREVER THE DANGER APPEARS GREATEST.

THE FACT THAT THE DOUGHBOYS WERE ABLE TO CROSS THE WURM RIVER WITHIN 45 MINUTES OF THE BEGINNING OF THE ATTACK THIS MORNING WAS A REMARKABLE ACCOMPLISHMENT. BUT THE WAY WAS PAVED LAST NIGHT WHEN A PATROL WENT OUT AND DYNAMITED SEVERAL PILLBOXES COMMANDING THE RIVER APPROACHES.

THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO MAKE A STAND FOR THE WINTER AT THE SIEGFRIED LINE AND WEST OF THE RHINE, BUT HODGES HAS OTHER IDEAS ABOUT THIS ALTHOUGH EVERYONE IS AGREED THAT THE FIGHT TO THE RHINE WILL BE HARD ALL THE WAY. THE RAINY SEASON MAKES IT DIFFICULT FOR TANKS TO MANEUVER. WHILE, AT THE SAME TIME, THE GERMANS ARE DIGGING

IN FOR A DETERMINED STAND.

LAST NIGHT ONE GERMANS THREW HEAVY ARTILLERY BARRAGES AGAINST THE TROOPS PRELARING TO MAKE THE ATTACK, BUT THERE WAS COMPARATIVELY LIGHT CANNONFIRE AS OUR TROOPS HIT THE SIEGFRIED LINE TODAY.

"THERE WAS NOT AS MUCH ARTILLERY AS WE HAD EXPECTED AFTER LAST NIGHT'S SHOW," SAID LT.JAMES TAYLOR OF BURKSVILLE, VA.

CAPT.GUY BRENNAN OF MARION, KY., SUGGESTED THAT PERHAPS THE AIR BOMBARDMENT AND OUR HEAVY ARTILLERY BARRAGE HAD DONE A GREAT DEAL TO SILENCE THE NAZI GUNS AT THE OPENING OF THE ATTACK.

STRONG NAZI COUNTER MEASURES CAN BE ANTICIPATED AGAINST THIS NEW THREAT TO THE SIEGFRIED DEFENSES, ALREADY BREACHED SOUTH OF AACHEN BY THE FIRST, FOURTH AND NINTH INFANTRY DIVISIONS.

BUT GEORGIA'S HODGES OUTSMARTED THE GERMANS ALL THE WAY ACROSS FRANCE AND BELGIUM AND THERE IS CONFIDENCE THAT HE CAN DO IT AGAIN.

LILLE, FRANCE, OCT 2-(AP)-GEN. CHARLES DE GAULLE DECLARED YESTERDAY THAT THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT WOULD APPLY GRADUALLY A PLANNED ECONOMY ON RECONSTRUCTION AND ECONOMIC ACTIVITY IN FRANCE TO AVOID "THE PREWAR POLITICAL, SOCIAL AND MORAL SITUATION WHICH TOOK US TO THE BRINK OF THE ABYSS."

SPEAKING BEFORE A CHEERING AUDIENCE OF 20,000 IN HIS FIRST VISIT TO HIS NATIVE CITY SINCE BEFORE THE GERMAN OCCUPATION, DE GAULLE SAID THE GOVERNMENT HAD ALREADY TAKEN STEPS TOWARD THIS PLANNED ECONOMY BY TAKING OVER CONTROL OF THE MINES.

ENTIRE CONTROL OF THE COUNTRY'S ECONOMY "SHALL BE CARRIED OUT IN DUE TIME," HE SAID, ADDING: "IT SHALL BE AN ORGANIZATION OF INDUSTRY IN WHICH ALL WHO PARTICIPATE SHALL BE CONSIDERED ASSOCIATES."

HE TOLD HIS AUDIENCE IN THIS INDUSTRIAL CITY THAT THE GOVERNMENT'S COURSE WAS FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL"...SO THAT EVERY FRENCH MAN AND WOMAN SHALL HAVE A BETTER LIFE. BARI, ITALY, OCT 2-(AP)-THE RUSSIAN ARMY ALREADY HAS OCCUPIED SOME 450 SQUARE MILES OF NORTHEASTERN YUGOSLAVIA AND NOW IS ENGAGED WITH TROOPS OF MARSHAL TITO'S 14TH PARTISAN CORPS IN STORMING THE ENEMY STRONGHOLD OF DONJI MILANOVAC, 25 MILES SOUTHWEST OF THE IRON GATE, IT WAS DISCLOSED HERE TODAY IN REPORTS FROM OFFICERS IN THE FIELD.

AT THE SAME TIME IT BECAME KNOWN THAT THE GERMANS SCORED TWO MAJOR SUCCESSES IN YUGOSLAVIA IN RECENT DAYS, RECAPTURING THE EAST BOSNIAN STRONGHOLD OF BANJA LUKA FROM THE PARTISANS AND MANAGING TO OPEN UP THE IMPORTANT IBAR VALLEY COMMUNICATIONS LINE FOR THE FORCES ESCAPING FROM GREECE, MACEDONIA AND SOUTHERN SERBIA.

THERE IS NO ADDITIONAL WORD HERE ON THE PROGRESS OF THE ALLIED OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS ON THE ALBANIAN MAINLAND.

OPPOSED BY THREE TO FOUR GERMAN DIVISIONS BANDED TOGETHER FROM ELEMENTS ESCAPING FROM ROMANIA AND BULGARIA, THE SOVIET FORCES NOW HOLD ALL THE TERRITORY ENCOMPASSED IN THE GREAT LOOP IN THE DANUBE RIVER ABOUT 100 MILES FROM BELGRADE AND ARE STRIKING WESTWARD TOWARD THE CAPITAL'S COMMUNICATIONS WITH CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN SERBIA.

ADDITIONAL REPORTS INDICATE TITO CONFERRED PERSONALLY WITH THE HIGHEST RUSSIAN OFFICIALS OVER OPERATIONS IN HIS COUNTRY.

THE ONLY INFORMATION ON THE ALLIES' OTHER OFFICIALLY DISCLOSED LAND OPERATION IN THE WESTERN BALKANS CAME FROM THE AXIS CONTROLLED RADIO AT ZAGREB WHICH PLACED THE DELVINO-ARGIROCASTRO AREA IN SOUTHERN ALBANIA AS THE SCENE OF THE FIGHTING.

THE IMMEDIATE OBJECTIVE SEEMED TO BE THE SEIZURE OF PORT SARANDE, CUTTING OFF THE ISLAND OF CORFU, A FORTRESS GARRISONED WITH A REGIMENT OF SOME 2,000 TO 3,000 MEN.

IT IS KNOWN HERE THAT BRITISH TROOPS ARE RECEIVING ASSISTANCE FROM THE ALBANIAN NATIONAL LIBERATION ARMY.

REPORTS FROM THE FIELD INDICATE THE GERMANS ARE MAKING A MASTERFUL WITHDRAWAL FROM NORTHERN GREECE AND MACEDONIA BY DEPLOYING FORCES IN CONSIDERABLE STRENGTH AT A NUMBER OF POINTS ALONG ONE COMMUNICATIONS LINE--UP THE IBAR VALLEY--CONSTANTLY POLICING IT ALTHOUGH THROUGH RAIL TRAFFIC IS IMPOSSIBLE BECAUSE OF TITO'S REPEATED ATTACKS AND HIGHWAY TRAFFIC IS PAINFULLY SLOW.

THE ROUTE AS NOW BEING USED EXTENDS NORTHWARD FROM BITOLJ NEAR THE GREEK FRONTIER TO BELGRADE.

AT LEAST FOUR DIVISIONS--AMONG THEM THE 11TH SAF AND THE CRACK FIRST MOUNTAIN TROOPS--ARE KNOWN TO BE ENGAGED IN KEEPING THIS ESCAPE LINE OPEN FOR THE FORCES IN GREECE, WHICH AT LATEST REPORT STILL NUMBERED ABOUT 65,000 MEN.

IN GREECE ITSELF ALL THE TERRITORY EAST OF SALONIKA IS BELIEVED TO BE CLEAR OF GERMANS.

ADVANCED SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AIRFIELD (AP)-DEFENSE OF THE JAPANESE AIRDROME AT LOLOBATTA, ON HALMAHERA ISLAND, HAD BEEN WEAK--NO ZEROS IN THE AIR, INACCURATE ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE.

SO THE COLONEL OF THIS 13TH U.S. AIR FORCE GROUP ORDERED HIS BOMBERS TO STRIKE THE TARGET SINGLY.

OCT 3 1944

"AND KEEP MAKING RUNS UNTIL YOU'RE SURE OF HITS," THE COLONEL SAID.

BOMBARDIER 1ST LT. STEPHEN J. BODNER, LATROBE, PA., TOOK THE COLONEL AT HIS WORD. THERE WAS A CLOUD BANK OVER THE TARGET SO BODNER DIRECTED HIS PILOT, 1ST LT. DONALD E. BONE, GARLAND, UTAH, TO TRY AGAIN.

BONE CIRCLED AND TRIED AGAIN--AND SEVERAL MORE TIMES. CLOUDS OBSCURED THE TARGET; ACK ACK FIRE BOUNCED THE PLANE OFF ITS COURSE. EACH TIME, BODNER ASKED BONE TO GO BACK.

BY THE TIME BODNER LOOSED HIS THREE 2,000-POUND EARTH-SHAKERS ON THE JAPANESE AIRSTRIP THE PLANE HAD MADE NINE RUNS AND BEEN OVER THE TARGET TWO HOURS.

THE SQUADRON BELIEVES THIS IS A PACIFIC RECORD FOR STAYING OVER A TARGET. BONE SAID THAT EVEN WITH WEAK ACK ACK "THAT'S STILL ABOUT AN HOUR AND 50 MINUTES TOO LONG."

NOW SECOND LIEUT. MEYER, ELDEST OF FOUR BROTHERS OF NORTH HAMPTON, N. H., TO BE SERVING IN THE MARINE CORPS, "MONK" IS A SIGNALMAN WHOSE JOB IT IS TO SCOUT ALONG THE SHORES OF THE INVADED AREA AND DIRECT NAVAL GUNFIRE, KEEPING IN CONTACT WITH CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS BY SHORTWAVE RADIO.

OUT IN FRONT OF MARINE LINES WHEN NIGHT FELL ON THE FIRST DAY OF BATTLE FOR THIS ISLAND, LIEUT. MEYER FOUND HIMSELF CUT OFF FROM HIS MAIN OBSERVATION POST BY A JAP-INFESTED, CORAL POINT EXTENDING OUT ACROSS THE HIGH-WATER REEF.

AFTER HIDING HIS EQUIPMENT BEHIND A CORAL ROCK, MEYER SURPRISED ENEMY SNIPERS WITH A RUN ACROSS THE BEACH AND CUT INTO THE OCEAN. BY SWIMMING A HUNDRED YARDS OUT FROM SHORE AND 300 YARDS UP THE COASTLINE, HE REACHED THE SAFETY OF THE FRONT LINES OF THE MARINES MOVING UP THE LENGTH OF THE ISLA

"MONK" REMAINED WITH THE INFANTRY UNTIL THE JAPS WERE DRIVEN FROM THE NUMEROUS CAVES OF THE POINT THE FOLLOWING MORNING AND THEN RETURNED TO HIS RADIO, WHICH WAS UNHARMED.

IN A WATERPROOF CASE STRAPPED TO MEYER'S SIDE DURING HIS SWIM TO SAFETY WERE MESSAGES GIVING THE LOCATION OF JAPANESE SHORE GUN EMPLACEMENTS. THIS INFORMATION WAS RELAYED TO OUR SHIPS WHICH POUNDED THE STRONGHOLDS DURING THE NIGHT AND EARLY MORNING.

ABOARD A LIBERATOR BOMBER OF PALAU (DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS FOUR-ENGINE LIBERATOR BOMBER HAS JUST LAID ITS "EGGS" ACROSS THE BRIGHT FACE OF KOROR TOWN FROM THE WATERFRONT TO AN OIL DEPOT. WE ARE EMERGING FROM THE FLAK AND THE ZEROS ARE CLOSING IN ON US IN ANGRY SWARMS.

THE SQUADRON HAS TIGHTENED ITS FORMATION UNTIL THE LIBERATORS ARE WING TIP TO WING TIP AND NOSE TO TAIL. DESPITE THIS MURDEROUS CONCENTRATION OF FIREPOWER, THE ZEROS DART AT US, FIRE AT BURST, DIVE OR TWIST BACK OUT OF RANGE. OUR PILOT, 1ST LIEUT. HAROLD HOPPE, ALEXANDRIA, NEB., IS LEADING THE SQUADRON IN A RACE FOR A DISTANT CLOUD.

THE SQUADRON DIRECTLY AHEAD AND 500 FEET BELOW US PASSES UNDER A SMALL PATCH OF CLOUD AND OUT DIVES A ZERO, FIRING INTO THE FUSELAGE OF THE LEAD PLANE.

OCT.3 1944

- THE WHOLE FUSELAGE IS GIVING OFF SMOKE. WE SEE ONE MAN CLIMB FROM THE COCKPIT HATCH. HIS BODY IS WHIPPED BACK AND STRIKES THE STABILIZER, CLINGS THERE A FEW SECONDS AND FALLS. NO PARACHUTE OPENS. TWO MEN LEAP FROM THE WAIST. THEIR PARACHUTES OPEN. ANOTHER LEAPS OUT BUT HIS CLOTHING IS AFIRE AND HIS CHUTE DOES NOT OPEN.

THE BURNING PLANE GOES INTO A FLAT SPIN AND OUR TAIL GUNNER PHONES THAT IT HAS DISAPPEARED INTO A CLOUD 6000 FEET BELOW, STILL OUT OF CONTROL.

"THERE," MUTTERS NAVIGATOR 2ND LIEUT. LAWRENCE DINSMORE, SCOTTSBURG, IND. "THERE BUT FOR THE GRACE OF GOD GO I."

SUDDENLY A ZERO COMES DOWN AT US FROM 1 O'CLOCK (HIGH AND TO THE RIGHT). THE NOSE GUNNER, SAMUEL MORIN, CARIBOU, ME., AND TOP TURRET GUNNER, ARTHUR PVOINCE, IRONDALE, MO., ANSWER WITH FIERY STREAMS OF 50 CALIBRES. THE ZERO GOES UNDER OUR NOSE 75 FEET IN FRONT TRAILING A WISP OF SMOKE.

BOMBARDIER 2ND LIEUT. LAWRENCE CHORPENNING, AUBURN, IND. THINKS WE GOT HIM. ANOTHER ZERO STARTS A RUN FROM THE SIDE. WAIST GUNNER JULIUS H.GROVES, DALLAS, TEX., AND BELLY TURRET GUNNER, ROBERT F.COUGHLIN, 389 BENEFIT ST., PROVIDENCE, RI., BLAST AWAY.

THE JAP LOSES HIS NERVE AND SWERVES OFF.

AFTER 20 ETERNAL MINUTES OF ALMOST CONSTANT SHOOTING, WE REACH THE CLOUD AND PLUNGE IN AS THE FORMATION SPREADS FOR SAFETY.

TEN MINUTES LATER WE EMERGE INTO THE CLEAR AND THE ZEROS ARE GONE.

HOPPE AND CO-PILOT LIEUT.STANFORD C.LONG, 424 RAVENWOOD, AVE., ST.LOUIS, MO., BANK AND START THE SQUADRON FOR HOME--FIVE FLYING HOURS AWAY ALL OVER WATER.

NOW WE MUST FLY SEVERAL HUNDRED MILES OF WATER HOME AND "I CAN'T SWIM A LICK," GRINNED PILOT HOPPE. WE HAD LOST THREE LIBERATORS, SEVERAL OTHERS HAD BEEN HIT, SOME PLANES CARRIED WOUNDED MEN. AT THIS PRICE THIS STRIKE, WHICH IS A TINY ONE COMPARED WITH EUROPEAN RAIDS, HAD HIT TWO JAPANESE SHIPS IN KOROR HARBOR, SMASHED THE WATERFRONT, BRACKETED THE BIVOUAC SUPPLY AND OIL AREAS WITH BOMBS.

OTHER YOUNG VETERANS OF THIS CREW WHO HAD LIVED TO FIGHT ANOTHER DA WERE TAILGUNNER WILBERT SCHOMER, CONNELLSVILLE, PA., RADIOMAN EDWARD HARRINGTON, 1027 VERNON RD., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

A SEVENTH U.S. ARMY AIRFORCE BASE,MARIANAS ISLANDS,OCT.1 (DELAYED)-(AP)-JAPANESE ACKACK MADE THE "HOUSE OF BOURBON" A FLYING MASS OF JUNK BUT THE BIG LIBERATOR BOMBER WAS BROUGHT BACK TO HER BASE WITH THE HELP OF A SERGEANT WHO FAILED TO MAKE THE GRADE AS A PILOT.

THE LIBERATOR HAD JUST UNLOADED HER BOMBS ON IWO JIMA, IN THE VOLCANO ISLANDS 750 MILES SOUTH OF TOKYO, WHEN FLAK SMASHED THE NOSE COMPARTMENT, CRIPPLED THE HYDRAULIC SYSTEM, KNOCKED OUT THE TOP AND BALL TURRETS AND WOUNDED FOUR CREWMEN.

THE PILOT, LT. WILLIAM V. CORE, OF KNOXVILLE, IOWA, SAID "WE JUST HAD TO BRING THE PLANE IN EVEN THOUGH IT DIDN'T SEEM POSSIBLE. WE HAD WOUNDED MEN ABOARD AND WOUNDED MEN CAN'T PARACHUTE. WE HAD TO MAKE THE EFFORT TO SAVE THEM."

SGT. ROBERT E. MARTIN, OF (6255 CLEMENT AVE.) UNIVERSITY CITY, ST.LOUIS, MO., FORMER AVIATION CADET WHO DID NOT COMPLETE THE PILOT'S COURSE AND BECAME GUNNER AND ASSISTANT RADIO OPERATOR, TOOK THE CONTROLS AND HELPED BRING THE LIBERATOR HOME. HE TOOK OVER FOR THE WOUNDED CO-PILOT WHILE LT. CORE WAS SUPERVISING EMERGENCY REPAIRS.

BADLY DAMAGED BY FLAK, THE "HOUSE OF BOURBON" WAS JUMPED BY FIGHTER PLANES. THE LEFT ENGINES RAN WILD AS THROTTLE CONTROLS WERE SHOT OFF. THE RIGHT OUTSIDE ENGINE WAS THROWING OIL. OTHER PLANES IN THE FORMATION SHIELDED THE LIBERATOR UNTIL SHE WAS IN THE OPEN.

THE LIBERATOR FLEW THROUGH A TROPICAL STORM FOR MORE THAN AN HOUR WITH ONLY NO. 4 ENGINE DOING MOST OF THE WORK.

LT. MELVIN W. HARMS, OF SUMNER, IOWA, BOMBARDIER, GAVE FIRST AID TO THE WOUNDED ASSISTED BY S/SGT. GEORGE S. SHANHEIM OF (9 THIRD ST) EAST NORWALK, CONN., SGT. MILTON E. HOWARD, OF IPSWICH, S.D., SGT. ROBERT C. HARRIFF, OF (103 SECOND AVE) SHARON, PA., AND S/SGT. MICHAEL V. VERESCAK, OF (546 NORTH ST) KEISER, PA.

MARTIN, TRAINED BY CORE FOR JUST SUCH AN EMERGENCY, HANDLED THE PLANE UNTIL IT WAS IN SIGHT OF ITS BASE JUST AT NIGHTFALL. ONLY THE RIGHT WHEEL OF THE LANDING GEAR CAME DOWN UNDER HAND CRANKING.

THREE PARACHUTES, ANCHORED TO GUN MOUNTS, WERE USED AS BRAKES. CORE BROUGHT THE JUNK PILE DOWN BUT THE BOMBER DRIFTED OFF TO THE LEF AND HIT A PARKED TRAILER. THE IMPACT SLOWED HER DOWN A BIT AS SHE TAXIED ON HER RIGHT AND TAIL WHEELS.

AS BOURBON STAGGERED TO A STOP THE FUSELAGE BEHIND THE BOMB BAY CRACKED WIDE OPEN.

AT THE CREWMEN PUT IT--TEN MEN PLUS MARTIN OWE THEIR LIVES TO THE PILOT TRAINING HE DID NOT QUITE COMPLETE.

HONOLULU, OCT.2-(AP)-HONOLULU STILL IS SUBJECT TO JAPANESE AIR ATTACKS, LT.GEN.ROBERT C.RICHARDSON JR SAID TONIGHT AS HE CRITCIZED THE CITY'S REACTION TO AN AIR RAID ALARM SATURDAY.

GENERAL RICHARDSON, COMMANDING ARMY FORCES IN THE PACIFIC AREA, SAID THE BLACKOUT IN THE EARLY HOURS OF THE MORNING WAS INCOMPLETE.

"I MUST EMPHASIZE AGAIN, AND STRONGLY, THAT THIS GREAT BASE CONSTANTLY IS SUBJECT TO AIR ATTACK," HE SAID.

THERE WERE IGHTS ON DURING THE 50-MINUTE BLACKOUT AND MANY PEOPLE WENT CURIOUSLY INTO THE STREETS, HE SAID. OTHERS DROVE CARS ABOUT THE CITY.

HE APPEALED TO CIVILIANS AND SERVICEMEN WHO HAVE RECENTLY ARRIVED FROM THE MAINLAND TO FAMILIARIZE THEMSELVES WITH AIR RAID REGULATIONS.

"THE CITY'S REACTION TO THE ALARM WAS DANGEROUSLY COMPLACENT AND UNSATISFACTORY AND I CANNOT URGE THE PUBLIC TOO STRONGLY TO KEEP IN MIND WE ARE IN AN ACTIVE WAR ZONE SUBJECT TO SUICIDAL ATTACKS BY THE ENEMY." THE GENERAL SAID.

THE APPROACH OF PLANES, UNIDENTIFIED AT FIRST BUT PROVED FRIENDLY, CAUSED THE ALARM.

WASHINGTON,OCT.2-(AP)-REP.ELLSWORTH (R-ORE) RETURNED FROM EUROPE TODAY BELIEVING THE WAR THERE WILL LAST "A DAMN SIGHT LONGER" THAN MANY PEOPLE OVER HERE REALIZE.

ELLSWORTH WAS ONE OF A DOZEN CONGRESSMEN WHO VISITED ENGLAND AND FRANCE THE PAST FEW WEEKS. RETURNING WITH HIM WERE REPRESENTATIVES HORAN (R-WASH) AND HOLIFIELD (D-CALIF). THE OTHERS ARE EXPECTED BACK BY THE END OF THE WEEK.

HIS PRIMARY PURPOSE, ELLSWORTH SAID, WAS TO OBSERVE THE BRITISH GOVRNMENT.

"I WANTED TO BE ABLE TO EVALUATE THE ACTIONS OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT," ELLSWORTH TOLD A REPORTER. "WHILE I WOULD CONSIDER IT A 'POPULAR' GOVERNMENT, THE BACKGROUND OF LEGISLATION, THE MEANS BY WHICH 'POPULAR' RESULTS ARE ATTAINED IS SO DIFFERENT FROM OUR OWN LEGISLATIVE PROCESS THAT I FELT A STUDY AT FIRST HAND WOULD BE BENEFICIAL."

HE FOUND NOTHING IN THE BRITISH SYSTEM THAT SHOULD BE ADOPTED HERE. THERE IS "AN ELEMENT" IN THE BRITISH QUESTIONING OF GOVERNMENT REPRESENTATIVES, HE SAID, WHICH MIGHT BE ADAPTED TO THE AMERICAN LEGISLATIVE PROCESS BUT HE THOUGHT CONGRESS' COMMITTEE SYSTEM ANSWERS ABOUT THE SAME PURPOSE.

ELLSWORTH PLANS TO LEAVE FOR HOME WITHIN A FEW DAYS.

WASHINGTON,OCT. 2-(AP)-SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL, COMMENTING ON LONDON REPORTS ON DIFFERENCES IN BRITISH AND UNITED STATES STATES POLICY REGARDING ARGENTINA, SAID TODAY IT WAS NOT NECESSARY FOR THIS COUNTRY TO CONSULT WITH GREAT BRITAIN BEFORE BANNING NORTHBOUND SHIPS OF THE UNITED STATES MERCHANT MARINE FROM ARGENTINE PORTS.
THE SECRETARY WAS ASKED IF THE UNITED STATES HAD CONSULTED WITH GREAT BRITAIN AND HAD NOTIFIED GREAT BRITAIN OF THE CARGO BAN . HE TOLD CORRESPONDENTS AT HIS PRESS CONFERENCE THAT IT WAS NOT NECESSARY TO GO INTO THESE MATTERS WITH GREAT BRITAIN EXCEPT IN INSTANCES WHERE THERE WAS JOINT RELATION BETWEEN THE TWO GOVERNMENTS.
HE ADDED THAT HE DID NOT RECALL ANY SUCH JOINT SHIPPING RELATION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN AS REGARDS THE BAN ON ARGENTINE CARGO.

EARLIER IN THE CONFERENCE HULL WAS ASKED TO COMMENT GENERALLY ON THE DIPLOMATIC IMPASSE BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND ARGENTINA AND ANSWERED THAT HE HAD NOTHING TO GIVE OUT AT THIS TIME.
A CORRESPONDENT THEN TOLD THE SECRETARY THAT REPORTS FROM LONDON SEEMED TO INDICATE THERE WAS SOME DEGREE OF DIFFERENCE BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES ON POLICY TOWARD ARGENTINA AND HE ASKED THE SECRETARY IF HE CARED TO COMMENT ON THESE REPORTS.
HULL REPLIED THAT HE DID NOT KNOW WHAT BRITISH--THE SECRETARY THEN INTERRUPTED HIMSELF, AND CONTINUED, WHAT POINT THE CORRESPONDENT HAD IN MIND.

30. 24 — 19287

HULL THEN WAS ASKED SPECIFICALLY IF IT COULD BE ASSUMED GREAT BRITAIN WAS NOT CONSULTED BY THIS GOVERNMENT BEFORE IT PROHIBITED UNITED STATES FLAGSHIPS FROM PICKING UP ARGENTINE CARGO NORTH BOUND AT BUENOS AIRES OR OTHER SOUTH AMERICAN PORTS.

HULL REITERATED THAT IT WAS NOT NECESSARY TO CONSULT WITH THE BRITISH ON THIS MATTER BUT SAID HE HAD NOT CHECKED TO SEE WHETHER THE UNITED STATES HAD OR HAD NOT CONSULTED WITH GREAT BRITAIN.

Doughboys Capture Ubach in Furious Fighting Along Whole Front.

OCT 4 1944

ATTACK CONTINUES

Americans Take 500 Prisoners, Knock Out 39 Enemy Pillboxes.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Oct. 3—(AP) Powerful elements of the U. S. First army have smashed a four-mile gap through the Siegfried line north of Aachen, 12 miles north of the first Allied wedge driven into the massive German fortifications, and tonight more men and armor were driving to outflank the stronghold of Aachen.

"The attack continues and advances are being made against varying resistance," Supreme headquarters said late tonight.

The twin penetrations of the Siegfried Line were 30 miles from Cologne at one point and 32 miles from Dusseldorf at the other.

Pierce Siegfried Line

"We are definitely through the old Siegfried Line," declared an American officer. "We have our second major breach. There still are fortifications and anti-tank defenses ahead of us which the Germans built recently," he added.

In a spectacular 36-hour drive the doughboys—virtually without air support—captured Ubach, nine miles north of Aachen and three below Geilnkirchen, and drove the Germans from the moated 12th century castle of Rimberg on the German-Dutch border. Thirty-nine enemy pillboxes were knocked out and between 400 and 500 prisoners captured in furious fighting.

The first gap in the Siegfried defenses was driven just below Aachen at the outset of the invasion of Germany. Today's breakthrough placed Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' troops almost astride a main highway running north from Aachen to Geilenkirchen.

All along the Aachen front the battle flamed bitterly, with the Nazis trying desperately to close the breaches in the defenses of the Rhineland. For the past two days the enemy was purely on the defensive, despite the fact that Allied air support was being hampered by the weather.

Yanks Capture Ubach

Ubach, captured after furious house-to-house fighting, is but 10 miles from the important German communications center of Julich, whence hard-surfaced highways lead 20 miles to the industrial cities of Cologne and Dusseldorf on the Rhine.

(A broadcast by the German DNB news agency declared the Allied attack near Aachen was "nothing but local reconnaissance thrusts supported by artillery" and said the Allied pressure in that sector apparently was designed merely to prevent the Nazis from sending armored reinforcements against the British Second army spearhead frontier farther north in Holland.)

Siegfried line defenses in the sector now under attack include many anti-tank ditches, but the Doughboys ran into none of the big concrete "dragon's teeth" barriers through which they fought south of Aachen. The Nazi defenders appeared to have few good anti-tank guns, and some enemy prisoners complained that their version of the bazooka was not effective against American tanks at much more than 50 yards.

Bombers Wreck Seawall

Hundreds of RAF heavy bombers using 12,000-pound bombs tore open a seawall guarding the Dutch island of Walcheren and sent the North sea pouring over Nazi fortifications which had denied use of the Belgian port of Antwerp to the Allies.

The "earthquake" bombs breached the dike near the village of West Capelle, on the southwestern tip of Walcheren, sending a great sheet of water spreading over the lowland. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower warned Dutch civilians on Monday to evacuate the island.

Some 1,700 American planes attacked industries and airfield at the south German cities of Nurnberg, Gaggenau and Giebelstadt.

To the south in France Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's American Third army, employing flame throwers, was reported to have fought into Fort Driant, a main bastion of the formidable system of the Nazi fortresses guarding Metz.

While Doughboys stormed Fort Driant under machinegun fire, Patton's artillery and American dive-bombers maintained a heavy assault on the entire Metz area. A dispatch from Edward Ball, Associated Press front correspondent, said:

"Soon after the first wave of Doughboys stormed across a moat into Fort Driant, Nazi prisoners, many of them badly mangled, began streaming to the rear. Some enemy forces attempting to escape from the fort across the Moselle were caught by our artillery and annihilated."

Lull Reported in Holland

A lull settled over the British Second army front in Holland as the Germans temporarily, as least, abondoned their armored counter-attacks against Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's salient in the Nijmegen area and bad weather slowed Allied air attacks.

There likewise was little activity back along the Belgian-Holland border, except for a Canadian success in knocking the Nazis out of Merxem, a suburb of Antwerp.

The enemy was using a strange hodgepodge of troops in the extreme northern sector, and, while they are fighting hard and well at this point, a British officer declared "the time will obviously come when fighting spirit no longer suffices."

Southeast of Nijmegen an American armored unit was reported fighting from house to house in Overloom, one of the last enemy strongholds west of the Maas (Meuse) river in Holland. The town previously was reported to have been captured by the Yanks, but a late field dispatch said the Nazi garrison still was resisting.

There were repeated reports that German troops all a long the front had been ordered by Hitler to stand or be shot by their own men. Back of the first line of good, poor and indifferent Nazi troops was said to be a second force of crack SS Elite Guard units ready to be shifted quickly to the threatened sectors.

Nazis Attack at Aachen

In an apparent effort to take the pressure off their troops north of Aachen the enemy made a sharp attack south of the city last night and in bright moonlight slugged the Americans back from one pillbox. But a prompt Yank counterattack regained all lost ground.

The Nazis apparently used "beetle" radio-controlled tanks in the forefront of their attack, as two terrific explosions in front of the American line shook the earth for miles around.

Another enemy attack near Havert, 20 miles north of Aachen, forced U. S. armored cavalry units back across the Wurm river, but the Yanks drove right back today and regained all lost positions.

When German troops showed signs today of making a determined stand in the little town of Beggendorf, two miles east of Ubach, American artillery pulverized the place with 500 shells in an hour. Palenberg, a village about a mile northwest of Ubach and just inside the German border, fell within the American lines.

It was announced that the six Allied armies in western Europe had captured at least 526,084 German prisoners by tonight. Hodges' First army, with 183,827 to its credit, had taken nearly twice as many as Patton's Third army, with 92,600.

Seventh Take Ronchamp

The U. S. Seventh army at the extreme southern end of the front captured Ronchamp, 10 miles west of the fortress city of Belfort at the entrance to the Belfort gap gateway to Germany. Third army troops cleared the last Germans from the forest of Gremecey, some 20 miles east of Nancy.

Because of the deep mud American armored and motorized divisions in France now are confined to paved highways, leaving the main burden of attack on the infantry. The ground in France and Germany never freezes hard enough to permit tanks to operate in open country in the winter.

Capture by American troops of Maizieres Les Metz, on the west bank of the Mozelle seven miles north of Metz, was confirmed by Allied headquarters.

AMERICANS ASTRIDE AACHEN ESCAPE ROAD

LONG

Fortress City Is Virtually Encircled—Two Reich Towns Taken—Allies Gain in Other Sectors.

London, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—American troops broke through the Siegfried Line above Aachen today, the First Army announced, scoring a second major breach in the German West Wall.

A four-mile drive, threatening Aachen with encirclement, carried through a belt of concrete forts and put the infantrymen almost astride the main highway running north of that fortress city of the Siegfried Line. Other First Army men broke through the wall below Aachen more than two weeks ago, and pushed eastward.

"We are definitely through the old Siegfried Line, and we have a second major breach," an officer told A. P. Correspondent Don Whitehead at the front. "There are still fortifications and anti-tank defenses ahead of us which the Germans built recently."

The German towns of Ubach and Palenberg were captured, along with Rimberg Castle. Thirty-nine pillboxes were knocked out, and from 400 to 500 prisoners were taken.

Simultaneously, in the battle for Holland, R. A. F. heavy bombers breached the sea wall guarding the Dutch island of Walcheren, sending water over German installations.

Most of the front was in action. American armor was knocking the Germans out of Overloon, southeast of Nijmegen. Farther south, American armored cavalry units near Havert—twenty miles north of Aachen—were forced back across the Wurm River last night, but counter-attacked today and regained lost positions.

The American Third Army was assaulting a main fortress guarding Metz. British and Canadian armies fought against stubborn German resistance in Holland and Belgium.

Ubach, which was defended by troops ordered to hold or be shot, is nine miles north of Aachen, and three below Geilenkirchen. It is two miles inside Germany. The infantrymen drove the Germans from the moated, twelfth century castle of Rimberg after a daylong battle in that border town. Tanks and artillery supported the First Army's advance in this sector, and German resistance was heavy.

Berlin Reports U. S. Gains.

The Berlin radio said the Americans had carved out a wedge eleven miles wide and nine miles deep in German defenses.

The new advances followed gains of two miles in depth along a six-mile sector yesterday in the opening of the assault that spanned the Wurm River.

The Germans tried a "little Stalingrad" stand at Beggendorf, two miles beyond Ubach, Mr. Whitehead said, and artillery fired 500 shells into the town in sixty minutes.

Supreme Headquarters said the Germans launched three counter-attacks yesterday at Hurtgen, thirteen miles southeast of Aachen, but all were repulsed. Farther south, other Americans cleared the woods at Echternach, Reich frontier town eleven miles northwest of Trier.

Third Army Attacks Fort.

On the American Third Army front, flame-throwing infantrymen were reported tonight to have fought their way across the moat and into Fort Driant, main bastion in the fortress chain guarding Metz on the west side of the Moselle River. The attack was preceded by a massive artillery barrage which touched off great fires and explosions.

The First Army attack north of Aachen was meeting strong resistance. Americans fought through pillbox defenses curtained by artillery and motar fire.

American mobile artillery fired so heavily that in many places Germans fled their suicide pillboxes and centered their defense in thicker-walled concrete field forts.

Spotty clouds studded low over the battlefront, and there was no immediate indication whether Allied planes were able to continue yesterday's pin-point attacks on Nazi strongpoints.

To the north of the wedge, Allied soldiers all along the Meuse line applied supporting pressure to keep the Nazis from shifting reserves. They drove eight miles from Deuze to Meijel and pushed the Germans from Overloon, their last strong Holland pocket west of the Meuse seventeen miles southeast of Nijmegen.

All along that line and north along the Nijmegen-Arnhem corridor they were in close contact with strong German forces as the Nazis sent reserves across the Rhine to hold the Allies back from the Ruhr.

On the western flank of the corridor, past 's Hertogenbosch to the Dutch border north of Antwerp, no progress was reported.

A front dispatch said German units threatened with entrapment by the Canadians were pulling out of their salient north of Antwerp. The Germans abandoned Merxem on Antwerp's northern outskirts, and Canadians began occu[illegible] it.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army drove to the outskirts of Grevenmacher on the Moselle River border, 10 miles from the German town of Trier, and in the south cleared the last Nazis from the forest of Gremecey, 20 miles east of Nancy.

The 7th Army liberated Ronchamp in its closest approach headon toward the town of Belfort. Ronchamp is 10 miles west of Belfort at the entrance to the 15-mile-wide Belfort Gap to Germany.

A front dispatch said the American 1st Army's drive north of Aachen was not expected to result in a sudden grand sweep to the Rhine because the Germans in that sector have prepared positions in depth for some 15,000 yards.

The indications are, the dispatch said, the battle will be hard, bitter and bloody all the way, since the Germans are determined to protect the rich industrial region toward which the 1st Army is pointed.

Bad Weather Aids Enemy.

The bad weather which kept Allied planes grounded for the last two weeks and the pause by the Americans to build up supplies gave the Nazis a chance to strengthen their positions and bring in fresh reserves.

While the Germans have inferior troops in the front lines manning the Siegfried defenses these are backed up by tough SS (Elite Guard) troops and mobile armored units ready to go in wherever the danger appears greatest and to conduct counterattacks.

One of the biggest problems confronting Gen. Eisenhower is the race against winter and the struggle of long supply lines.

Despite the known Allied power and the present 1st Army offensive, field advices said, it is apparent the supreme command is preparing for a long winter campaign.

As one sign of this, American strategic bombers have been loading their bomb bays with winter overcoats and uniforms for shivering thousands of American troops.

Much Cover Given Troops.

Troops are being given as much cover as France, Belgium and the Netherlands afford. The front is taking on the aspect of 1914-1918, particularly in Northern France near Metz and north of Nancy.

Because of the mud and slush American armored and motorized divisions now are confined to paved highways, which means that the gains now are being limited to the foot-slogging infantry.

The ground in France and Germany, unlike Russia, never freezes hard enough to allow tanks to operate in open country in the winter—an advantage to the Germans since the Allies have a vast superiority in armored strength.

U. S. Soldiers Say Westwall Is Antiquated

Men Who Cracked It Report Defense Inferior, Nazi Troops of Poor Quality

BOYLE

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS BREACHING THE SIEGFRIED LINE, Oct. 3 (AP).—Infantrymen who cracked a new hole in the Siegfried line today reported Hitler's once-feared Westwall as militarily antiquated as the Kaiser's Zeppelins of the first world war.

The average infantryman had more than an uneasy feeling as he jumped off against this widely advertised battlement. He had ample recollection of 1940 propaganda, when the Siegfried line was pictured as an impregnable barrier of stone and steel many miles in depth, studded with bunkers bristling with guns.

Many soldiers also recalled widely circulated pictures of Westwall fortifications manned by hordes of strong, blond young Nazis.

But when they smashed through it today they found the famous fortified line less of a problem than the impromptu "wilderness line" in farm and woodland, which the Germans held for weeks between Caen and Periers in Normandy.

Instead of thousands of highly trained young Nazi supermen, the advancing Americans captured scores of worn-out and wounded veterans of Germany's Russian campaigns; elderly home guard recruits; human wreckage from divisions destroyed in France, and even one middle-aged soldier with a glass eye.

"Hitler really oversold the German people on that Siegfried line," said Captain Oscar S. Stonesifer, of Harrisburg, Pa., on the edge of a small German village taken in recent fighting.

"It is definitely obsolete so far as its guns are concerned. We found emplacements only for guns of 37-millimeter caliber in the sector we attacked. That's too small to fight much of an engagement."

Other soldiers reported that Siegfried line outposts were only incompletely manned, and that many German troops preferred to fight from newly dug entrenchments and anti-tank ditches rather than the gray stone pillboxes—possibly because they thought they could get away easier.

"That didn't turn out to be so easy, though," said Stonesifer. "Whenever we located them in anti-tank ditches, we just phoned back co-ordinates to our artillery to give them the position, and they dropped a barrage right in among them."

American artillery drummed the fight out of most defenders of German-held Ubach (ten miles northnortheast of Aachen) by plastering the area with 3,000 shells. "Hitler's ration," the doughboys called this barrage. Infantry moved in to take the town after street-by-street engagements with enemy snipers.

Nazi government councillor.

"He locked the castle before leaving last week, and all soldiers were forbidden to enter," said a German captive.

American troops stormed and took the castle in a flaming action probably equaling any in the history of the structure, built in the heyday of knighthood.

One large pillbox, four machine-gun posts, and more than a dozen enemy sharpshooters firing from walls inside the moat had to be cleaned out before the attacking troops could continue their advance.

The "battle of the castle" began last night when forward elements ran into strong fire from half a dozen points around the chateau.

"It was guarded by a bicycle platoon, and other troops from a German machinegun battalion were being used as infantry," and master Sgt. Leo Eule of Kew Gardens, Long Island. "They weren't in the castle itself—the door was locked—but they had fixed up strong positions in the outbuildings and there were 13 or 14 snipers behind the wall inside the moat.

"There was also a heavy pillbox with a camouflaged roof, and four machineguns along one stone wall bordering the castle."

"Our boys rolled up a 75-mm. gun within 50 yards of the pillbox last night," said Lt. James Taylor Clinton, Tenn. "When it began blasting away those Nazis scrambled out like ants."

Although the 75 knocked out the Nazi's keystone defense, they stuck to other positions during the night and this morning the battle resumed as infantry methodically wormed closer. Behind them other troops pinned down the tired Nazi defenders with supporting fire.

Finally the remaining Nazis gave up, avoiding hand-to-hand bayonet combat with Doughboys who swarmed over the bridge spanning the wood-filled moat. Advancing Americans found that other Germans had fled, leaving behind one NEAR RIMBERG, Germany, Oct. 3—(AP) On[illegible]ier met by American troops today in breachin[illegible] the Siegfried line [illegible] of Aachen was a 12th century, moated [illegible] whose crumbling stone walls had been artfully converted by the Nazis into a military fortress.

Until a week ago it was occupied by Regierungsrat Von Brauchitsch, wounded comrade.

"When we forced open the door to make sure there were no German snipers hiding inside, we found the place filled with old pictures and furniture," said Sgt. Eule. "We don't know what Von Brauchitsch was using the place for."

Capture of the castle facilitated frontal assault through rust-stained and partly-abandoned ramparts of the old Siegfried Line—which have proven little more effective than the 12th century castle in withstanding invading forces.

NAZIS ORDERED TO HOLD FAST OR BE KILLED

Officers Threaten to Shoot One Out of 10 in Any Retreating Company.

FOE IS STUNNED BY ASSAULT

Prisoners Awed by American Sharpshooting — Pillboxes Are Held Unsafe.

By DON WHITEHEAD.

Groenstraat, Holland, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—German troops holding the Siegfried Line have been told by their commanders that any man who retreats will be shot, and if an entire company should fall back, one man in every ten will be shot, American officers said today.

"They're doing everything they can to hang onto the defenses, and these threats are necessary to keep many troops in line," said Lieut.-Col. Harold Hassenfelt of Oconto, Wis.

Heavy fighting raged for the second day as First Army troops battered deeper into the Siegfried defenses.

Under gray skies and in a wintry wind, they battled from house to house in the town of Ubach at Rimberg, just inside the walls of the ancient, moated Rimberger castle, converted into a fortress. Americans hold half the castle and are shooting across the coutryard at Germans in close-range battle.

Enemy Is Surprised.

The first surge of infantry yesterday, behind a heavy air bombardment and a rolling artillery barrage, carried through the heavy crust of German Siegfried defenses which are 15,000 yards in depth at this point. The attack caught the enemy by surprise.

A German prisoner said the Nazis were alerted for a tank and infantry attack expected between 5 and 7 A. M., but when nothing happened the troops relaxed. When the bombers came over at 9 A. M., they were not particularly disturbed, since the bombs were not falling on their positions—but they were not prepared for the heavy artillery fire and sudden infantry assault which followed.

The deepest penetration into the Siegfried defenses in this sector was led by young Capt. Robert Spiker of West Virginia.

A Retiring Little Cuss.

"Nobody thought about Spiker as the leader because he was a sort of retiring little cuss," said Major Eugene H. Thomas of Nashville, Tenn. "But now they can't hold him."

It was Capt. Spiker's unit which drove into Ubach and began a house-to-house fight. His men were among troops under command of Lieut.-Col. Ernest Frankland of Jackson, Tenn.

Once through this heaviest crust of defenses in this area, the Americans were able to turn and began a flanking attack on pillboxes from the rear.

While the battle for Rimberger Castle was raging, Lieut.-Col. Daniel Quinn of St. Augustine, Fla., took a special task force with tank support to wheel in behind enemy positions giving the doughboys trouble near Rimberg.

Capt. Spiker and his men led the assault which knocked out eleven enemy pillboxes and opened the way into the Siegfried defenses. Special assault teams armed with machine-guns, bazookas, pole charges and flamethrowers, charged the pillboxes, knocked out the defenders, and then blew up the concrete forts.

"The boys did a great job," Col. Hassenfelt said.

Engineers Did Fine Job.

One of the finest jobs was done by engineers who came in behind the spearheads and threw bridges across the Wurm River within a few hours, permitting jeeps, guns and tanks to roll on in support of the ground troops.

"It was terrible," one German prisoner said after being routed from a pillbox. He was amazed by American marksmanship. "Every time one of our men manned a gun at the embrasure in a pillbox he was drilled with a bullet between the eyes," the prisoner said.

The Germans tried to organize a counter-attack from the north last night to pinch out the salient, but a heavy artillery barrage broke up the formations. The enemy still was meeting the attack with heavy concentrations of small arms, mortar and artillery fire.

The Germans have sown many minefields in front of their defenses.

"Now we have to dig 'em out ourselves," said Lieut. R. J. Kline of Mount Pleasant, Mich. "When we were coming across Holland, underground members would dig up the mines before we arrived and have them all stacked in neat piles ready to be hauled away."

Canadian First Army Pushes Into Holland

With Canadian Troops in Holland and Belgium, Oct. 3 (AP)—The right flank of the Canadian First Army front became fluid again this afternoon as Polish armored elements pushed at least two miles into Holland and Canadian infantry operating from the Antwerp-Turnhout canal bridgehead gained new positions seven and a half miles northeast of Antwerp.

One Polish unit, after several days of fighting, moved into the Belgian border village of Weeld today without meeting opposition. There were similar reports from another force which approached within a mile or two of the Dutch village of Baarle Nassau.

YANKS CAPTURE GERMAN ARSENAL

Florange, France, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—A giant arsenal which the Germans started planning back in 1928 while they were restoring French industry under terms of the Versailles Treaty has been seized by American troops.

Guns ranging in size from 88-millimeter to 12-inch long-range rifles with 25-foot barrels were turned out by the Germans in this town in the iron-rich French Province of Lorraine. The massive plant covers ten acres and is equipped with modern machinery—some of it made in the United States.

Telling how the Germans used special care in the construction of this plant in 1928, an old Frenchman said the depression brought an end to their work and the buildings were not completed until the Germans came back as conquerors in 1940.

When they arrived in 1940 they had complete blueprints for the plant and resumed work as if they had left only the day before, he said. Their plans showed the location of every piece of machinery they intended to install.

Completed in 1942, the plant reached peak production in 1943 and still was going full blast until a few days before the Americans arrived.

German Prisoners Mount To 526,084

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—The six Allied armies in western Europe had captured at least 526,084 German prisoners by tonight.

Supreme headquarters said the 21st Army Group commanded by Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery had counted 140,345 prisoners. Of this number, the British Second Army took 1,030 officers and 76,679 enlisted men. The Canadian First Army captured 1,247 officers and 61,389 men, among them 28,000 taken in the cleanup of Le Havre, Boulogne and Calais.

Prisoners announced captured by armies of the west to date:

U. S. First Army	183,827
U. S. Third Army	92,600
U. S. Seventh Army	*90,000
U. S. Ninth Army	19,312
British Second Army	77,709
Canadian First Army	62,636
Total	526,084

*Or more.

Figures for the four American armies have not been revised since September 24 and may now be considerably higher.

53,800,000 Killed, Hurt, Ill, Homeless

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Swiss newspaper Die Nation was quoted by the British radio today as compiling this box score of German war losses since the Polish invasion in 1939:

Dead, 8,500,000.

Wounded, 6,300,000.

Ill in Germany, largely from "war experiences" or malnutrition, 21,000,000.

Shelterless from air raid destruction, 18,000,000.

"Only two German cities, Dresden and Breslau, can be more or less called cities," the paper was quoted in the broadcast. "The rest are heaps of ruins."

The paper said in addition to losses in manpower and property, Germany's natural resources had been exploited ruthlessly until its farmland was exhausted; its supply of game decreased to two thirds; and its forests "ruthlessly cut down because the synthetic material industry needed wood."

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Germans have begun demolitions in the Netherlands port of Rotterdam, the Dutch news agency Aneta reported tonight from 21st Army Group headquarters.

Reuter Correspondent Thought To Be Prisoner

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—Jack Smyth, a war correspondent for Reuter, who dropped with parachutists at Arnhem, is believed to be a prisoner of war.

Reuter said this belief was supported by accounts from the front, where Smyth was known to have gone through a wooded section with a column which was heavily attacked. Smyth had been wounded in the left hand by shrapnel but otherwise was all right, survivors said.

Frenchwomen To Vote First Time February 1

Paris, Oct. 3 (AP)—Women in France will vote for the first time next February 1. The Cabinet tonight set that date for the first regional elections, the national elections being postponed until the return of approximately 2,000,000 prisoners from Germany.

The Cabinet also announced tonight that the bread ration had been raised from 300 to 350 grams (about two thirds of a pound) per person daily.

Homes Of Mud Planned

Stockholm, Oct. 3 (AP)—Homes of mud for bombed-out persons are planned in suitable districts of Germany, says the newspaper Aftonbladet, quoting the Deutsche Volkswirtschaft, economic magazine.

ing of Schelde estuary islands.

Walcheren, westernmost of these islands, contains heavy gun emplacements, some perhaps capable of reaching Antwerp, 35 miles away, which the Allies captured intact.

Today's forays marked the seventh time in the last nine days that at least 1,000 heavy bombers attacked German targets. Eighth Air force Liberators and Flying Fortresses, escorted by about 750 Lightnings and Thunderbolts, hit the Nurnberg tank factory, the Daimler-Benz heavy truck plant at Gaggenau, and the German air force station at Giebstadt, 53 miles west of Nurnberg.

The Eighth air force announced 11 bombers and 13 fighters were missing, but said some of the fighters were believed to have landed in friendly territory. No aerial opposition was encountered, but fighters destroyed at least two enemy planes on the ground in strafing attacks after the bomb run.

The Ninth air force announced that all of its planes — Marauders, Havocs, Lightnings, Mustangs, Thunderbolts, Black Widows — are operating now from continental bases, within easy range of Germany proper.

European-based medium bombers struck Dort, near Metz. Associated Press War Correspondent Edward D. Ball reported they had a field day against enemy communications deep behind the Siegfried Line. The Ninth air force said its planes shot up 50 motor transports, 29 locomotives and 150 freight cars, bombed three tunnels and cut railroad lines in 29 places.

Photographs taken today showed the entire ordnance depot near Kassel was seriously damaged by yesterday's Eighth air force bombing, which also kindled fires in railroad yards and a steel mill at Hamm.

Allied Bombers Wreck Sea Wall Guarding Strategic Dutch Isle

LONDON, Oct. 3 — (AP) More than 2,000 Allied planes blasted German industrial targets, knocked out a sea wall guarding the Dutch island of Walcheren, and supported ground forces pressing against the Siegfried Line today.

A force of British bombers used 12,000-pound "earthquake" bombs to breach the sea wall and send the cold waters of the North sea sweeping over German guns and fixed positions on Walcheren. The blow fell a day after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower warned Dutch civilians they must prepare for heavy bombing as Allied armies prepare to attack the Siegfried Line.

Every building at the ordnance depot was hit, and two of the six biggest were destroyed.

Other reconnaisance photographs showed that the Dortmundems canal, which carried 11,000,000 tons of freight annually before the war, had been dry since a pinpoint attack by 96 Royal Air force Lancasters with 6-ton bombs Sept. 23.

"The Ruhr is completely isolated by waterway both from the North sea and from Berlin and eastern Germany," the Air ministry said. "No Rhine traffic can now reach the North sea because the Rhine itself is out at Nijmegen and almost certainly impassable for heavy traffic at Arnhem."

Pilots of Britain-based Flying Fortresses said they flew through heavy cloud protection to Germany, then "the sky opened beautifully."

"We made the most of our opportunity," said Capt. Sebastian B. Koenig, Glendale, Calif., who acted as command pilot over Nurnberg. "The only flak we saw was over the battle lines in France, but it didn't bother us."

One crewman, E. C. Loggins of Hillsboro, Texas, said he saw a few enemy fighters "but they didn't come in. I guess our escort was too much for them."

R. A. F. BREAKS DIKE ON KEY DUTCH ISLE

London, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Hundreds of British heavy bombers today breached the seawall guarding the Dutch island of Walcheren with six-ton bombs, and sent the North Sea pouring in over the German installations denying the Allies use of the great Belgian port of Antwerp, thirty-five miles further down the Schelde estuary.

Also today 1,700 American planes attacked war industries and airfields at the South German cities of Nurnberg, Gaggenau and Giebelstadt. A thousand of the attacking aircraft were Flying Fortresses and Liberators, and it was the seventh day in nine that equally large or even greater forces of the heavy bombers had hammered the Reich.

The fire and water blow at Walcheren, the biggest of the Dutch islands in the Schelde, came less than a day after Gen. Eisenhower had warned civilians to evacuate before heavy bombings. Walcheren is the westernmost of the islands barring the seaward approach to Antwerp and is known to mount heavy guns capable of raking the approaches to the undamaged Belgian port, which the swift Allied advance captured intact. Some of the guns may be able to shoot all of the thirty-five miles to Antwerp.

Besides shooting up 51 freight trains, nine barges and five motor transports, the Mosquitos also ran a Nazi trawler ashore off the Dutch coast and bombed a small factory in Western Germany. None of the fleet bombers was lost.

Other small forces of Mosquitos attacked Brunswick and Nazi airfields in Western Germany, following up the daylight attack in which more than 2,500 Allied planes roamed the sky over the Reich virtually unchallenged.

Most of the train-smashing was in the Ruhr Valley, through which the bulk of supplies are fed to the German Army at the front. Eight trains were caught on the main line between Emmerich and Gladbach, four north of Coblenz and seven near Osnabruch.

Ninth Air Force medium bombers and fighters, which staggered German defenses along the Siegfried Line yesterday as a curtain raiser to the 1st Army drive near Aachen, continued their close-support activities today.

The RAF abandoned saturation night bombing during September in favor of smaller and more concentrated attacks adapted from the pinpoint technique of the American Air Forces, the Air Ministry said last night in a statistical review of air operations in September.

"The range of destruction of targets in Germany was increased by the use of comparatively small forces bombing with such accuracy that as much damage was done as in much heavier attacks of the past," the Air Ministry said.

Army Supply Hazards May Make Bombers Allied Victory Weapon

By WES GALLAGHER,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Air power appears likely to return to the forefront this winter as the main Allied victory weapon if supply difficulties, weather hazards and fanatical German resistance result in a stalemate on the ground front.

The American Strategic Air Forces and the RAF Bomber Command which paved the way for successful invasion of the continent again may take over the main offensive burden.

The Allies now can throw as many as 2,000 heavy bombers against Germany at one time. In addition thousands of fighters and bombers based near the borders not can strike into the Reich.

No part of Germany is out of reach.

It is apparent the Germans realize the danger and are making preparations.

They have been conserving their air force and are believed to have concentrated thousands of fighters in the Reich. They have been massing antiaircraft guns around many cities. They have been trying out jet-propelled planes—fighters of great speed.

All this strongly suggests a new and bloody air battle over Germany.

That the Allies will win seems inevitable. It then would remain to see how long the German people can endure a ceaseless air attack.

GOETHE'S HOME IS DAMAGED

London, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio said today that an R. A. F. raid on Frankfurt on September 27 had damaged the birthplace of the famous German poet, Johann Wolfgang Goethe, and also had destroyed a monument erected in his memory.

Virginia Pilot Credited With 30 German Planes

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—Capt. Henry W. Brown, Arlington, Va., has destroyed 30 German planes—16 in the air and 14 on the ground—to become the "hottest" fighter pilot now active in the European theater of operations, the United States Ninth Air Force announced tonight.

Brown gained his latest credit today while strafing an airfield in southern Germany. He had flown as a bomber escort, but no Luftwaffe fighters rose for combat.

The new recordholder is a member of a Mustang group commanded by Col. William J. Cummings, of Lawrence, Kan., whose outfit destroyed over 500 planes on the ground and in the air.

Major Charles W. Lenfest, of Boise, Idaho, flying with Brown today, destroyed an FW190 on the ground.

RED ARMY DRIVES INTO YUGOSLAVIA ALONG NEW FRONT

Soviet Forces Slash Across Border North of Danube River.

CAPTURE PETROVGRAD

Important Communication Centers Fall Under Heavy Attacks.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 4—(AP) Red army troops slashed into Yugoslavia on a new front 55 miles wide yesterday and pressed a spear head from the northeast to within 47 miles of the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade, already reported under virtual siege by Marshal Tito's partisans.

Striking across the border north of the Danube, Soviet troops clamped a stranglehold on communications in eastern Yugoslavia by the capture of the important regional centers of Petrovgrad, Bela Crvka, Vrsac and a dozen other towns and railway stations.

Capture Rail Centers

The early morning Moscow communique pointed out that Vrsac, a city of 30,000, is the junction of five railway lines and three highways. Ten miles to the southwest the Russians took the town of Ulma, which is 37 miles from Belgrade.

At Petrovgrad, 40 miles north of the Yugoslav capital, the Red army had pushed 24 miles from its starting point on the border southwest of Timisoara.

Hard fighting in the mountains to the south was reported by the communique, which said the Soviet troops making the original penetration of Yugoslav had wiped out more than 1,500 Germans.

The new offensive apparently had been under way at least two days. While Moscow announced no gains yesterday, Marshal Tito's headquarters declared that the Red army had joined units of his 14th Partisan corps in a converging drive on Belgrade.

The first invasion of Yugoslavia, announced Saturday, meanwhile was continued on a north-south front beginning 50 miles east of the lower extremity of the new drive, and carried to a depth of 22 miles westward with capture of the town of Turna Glava, 34 miles southwest of the Romanian border town of Turnu Severin.

The Russians also announced capture of the Estonian island of Ristna by amphibious forces bent on ending Germany's domination of the Baltic sea. Ristna, one of four islands commanding entrances to the gulfs of Riga and Finland, was taken by troops of Marshal Leonid Govorov's Leningrad army, who captured the island of Vormsi Sept. 27 and won Muhu three days later.

Now the Russians need possession only of Saare, largest of the four islands, to give the Red fleet clear sailing in the Baltic, where it can be employed against German shipping and in support of future campaigns to drive the Germans out of those parts of Latvia and Lithuania they still occupy, and to invade East Prussia.

Threaten Belgrade

The new drive into Yugoslavia not only places Belgrade between one of the Red army's vaunted pincers—assuming the more southerly offensive will drive westward to cut south of Belgrade as well as southward towards the communications city of Nis—but threatens to cut the last Nazi escape routes from the Balkans.

Romanian troops were believed to be participating in this new drive, and Col. Ernest Von Hammer, Nazi radio military analyst, mentioned the presence of motorized Bulgarian formations.

Berlin placed the Russian strength at five infantry divisions, probably more than 50,000 men, and indicated they were thoroughly motorized and accompanied by some armor. The Germans announced evacuation of the principal cities taken by the Russians before the Soviet communique was issued.

Accounts of the landing on Ristna, broadcast by the Berlin radio, said strong Russian forces behind a sweeping screen of low-flying aircraft beached their boats on the northeastern side of the island yesterday and also established beachheads on the south side.

Units of the German navy engaged the amphibious forces, DNB reported, adding "the German island garrison was offering resistance" against the southern landings. The broadcast made no mention of defense of the northeastern sector.

The direction of the landings indicated one amphibious force came from Vormsi to make the northeastern landing, while the southern operations were carried out by units which sailed from Muhu.

Ristna, about 22 miles wide and 30 miles long lies near the Estonian mainland almost due east of Stockholm. It was believed to have been a refuge for thousands of German soldiers driven to the sea by Marshal Govorov's conquest of Estonia.

There were indications that the Russians also were invading Saare. Von Hammer said the dam between Saare and Muhu had been demolished and that German naval forces "temporarily cut Russian crossing," but he did not expand on the subject.

Bulgarian Fight Under Reds

A dispatch from Sofia said Bulgarian troops now were fighting under Russian command. In an interview Bulgarian Minister of War Petro Staynov said his soldiers had passed under the command of Marshal Feodor Y. Tolbukhin, leader of the Third Ukrainian army. By this action, he added, Bulgaria had become a co-belligerent.

"Our task now," he said, "is by loyal and sincere policy and energetic collaboration to become full Allies."

The Russians massed along the eastern tip of Czechoslovakia in the Carpathians captured a dozen more towns along the border, including the town of Klimets, guarding a pass leading to Munkacs 35 miles to the southwest, and the railway towns of Lawochne and Beskid, on the main line running through the Beskid pass. The station of Beskid is in the pass, at the Czechoslovak border.

The Hungarian radio told of a new Russian offensive against Oluj, the capital of Transylvania in northern Romania, acknowledging withdrawals by Hungarian troops at several points, and the Soviet communique apparently was reflecting this drive in announcing the capture of Reghin, an important railway depot 50 miles east of Oluj, and several other towns in the vicinity.

Russians Invade Isle Guarding Approaches To Riga, Nazis Say

Units of Tito's Forces Reported Teamed With Reds in Belgrade Drive

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The official Russian communique today reported that no noteworthy action occurred yesterday anywhere on the Eastern front, but Berlin declared this morning that Red Army troops had landed on the island of Hiiu (Dago), off the coast of Estonia.

The landings on Hiiu, northernmost of two Estonian islands guarding the approaches to both the Gulf of Finland and the Gulf of Riga, were reported in a broadcast by the German international information bureau heard by the Associated Press.

Berlin said German resistance was aided by Nazi naval craft which attempted to interfere with crossings from the Estonian mainland, a bare 6 miles distant, where Red Army troops had been massing for a week. Berlin said nothing about the island of Saare (Osel) directly to the south across the mouth of the Gulf of Riga.

Meanwhile, a dispatch last night from Bari, Italy, said Marshal Tito's headquarters had announced that units of the Yugoslav 14th Partisan Corps teamed with Russian troops in a converging drive on Belgrade.

The combined forces were said to be fighting on the approaches to the German stronghold of Donji Milanovac, Danube River village 80 miles southeast of the Yugoslav capital. Other Partisan units were reported battling German and puppet troops within 18 miles of Belgrade on the south and 55 miles on the southwest.

The united Russian and Yugoslav troops were threatening reconquest of big German-worked copper and coal mines in a 40-mile area between Donji Milanovac and Zajecar to the south.

Berlin declared the Russians had more than 30,000 troops inside Yugoslavia, with that many more ready to cross the Danube west of Turnu-Severin.

The Germans themselves were declared retreating through the Ibar Valley from Greece and lower Yugoslavia.

POLES YIELD AT WARSAW

Battle Inside Ruined City Ended After 63 Days

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—A terse communique from Lieut. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (General Bor) today announced that his underground army's resistance in Warsaw had ended after a 63-day struggle, during which thousands of patriots were killed and the city was reduced to a shambles.

Moscow newspapers said a Polish officer who escaped reported that thousands of insurgents had crossed the Vistula river to Russian lines.

"There is no longer any resistance in any part of Warsaw," the officer was quoted.

Compared To Stalingrad

"Warsaw is as greatly destroyed as Stalingrad."

A German communique announced that the "insurrection collapsed" and said the city had been "almost completely destroyed." A Stockholm dispatch said the Germans claimed a total of 24,000 prisoners.

[Editor's Note—A Reuter dispatch quoted the German agency, DNB, as saying that the insurgents who capitulated in Warsaw have been dealt with as prisoners of war instead of as Francs-Tireurs.]

Komorowski's communique said:

"Warsaw has fallen after exhausting all supplies of food and ammunition on the 63d day of fighting in the face of overwhelming enemy superiority. On October 2 at 8 P. M., orders were given to cease fire."

Began Fight August 1

Polish patriots, their hopes fired by the approach of the Red army to the eastern banks of the Vistula, brought out their long-hidden arms and turned on the Germans within the capital on August 1.

The battle in Warsaw between the patriots and the Germans became a major issue in interallied relations, and the Germans seized upon it for propaganda purposes in their campaign to drive a wedge between Russia and the United States and Britain.

The struggle widened the gulf between Russia and the Polish Government in exile in London. The London Poles and the Soviet-sponsored Polish National Committee of Liberation accused one another of responsibility for the ill-fated uprising.

Throughout, the Russians stood firmly behind the liberation committee and Washington and London backed the London regime.

People Living In Holes

Polish sources in London said the people of Warsaw had been living in holes beneath the rubble, lacking food and water, and suffering from epidemics of dysentery, typhoid and scarlet fever.

These were the conditions which prevailed, a spokesman for the London Government said, when General Komorowski, a few hours before the capitulation, informed the Government a mercy truce had been arranged to permit the evacuation of civilians from the city which had a pre-war population of 1,225,000.

How many were slain as the Germans bombed the city, poured hundreds of artillery shells into the capital and smashed through streets with tanks may never be known, but estimates range up to 250,000.

Reports conflicted on details of the final hours of the fight, but "the official" Polish version from Moscow—presumably that of the Liberation Committee—said the surrender was arranged by Colonel Monter on behalf of General Komorowski.

General's Fate Uncertain

The London exile government said the patriot army consisted of about 30,000 originally, but it had no figures on the number of casualties suffered during the two months of fighting.

Whether General Komorowski was among the prisoners was equally uncertain. Poland's military headquarters in London said the general, who was named commander in chief of Polish forces only last week, had been at the head of his troops within the city.

On the other hand, the Liberation Committee, which has denounced Komorowski as a "war criminal" responsible for the uprising and like the Germans placed a price on his head, has said he was in hiding miles away from the city.

Struggle Ended After Food and Supplies Run Out

By the Associated Press.

OCT 4 1944

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Polish Patriots last night gave up their 63-day battle to wrest Warsaw from the Germans, and an escaped Polish officer told Moscow newspapers that thousands of insurgents had crossed the Vistula to Russian lines, defying surrender orders.

"Warsaw is as greatly destroyed as Stalingrad," the officer was quoted in Moscow as saying; "there is no longer any resistance in any part of Warsaw."

Today's German communique said Warsaw had been "almost completely destroyed" before the Polish "insurrection collapsed."

Polish Army headquarters in London confirmed earlier Moscow and Berlin dispatches saying Gen. Tadeusz (Bor) Komorowski, new exiled Polish commander in chief, had given up the fight.

"Mercy Truce" Reported.

Russian forces are in Praga, the industrial eastern suburb of Warsaw, separated from the main city by the Vistula.

Earlier, Polish sources in London insisted that only a "mercy truce" had been ordered to remove civilians from the city of 1,265,000. No indication was given as to the length of the truce.

A communique from Gen Komorowski said:

"Warsaw has fallen after exhausting all supplies of food and ammunition on the 63d day of fighting in the face of overwhelming enemy superiority. On October 2 at 8 p.m., orders were given to cease fire."

The battle inside Warsaw began when the Patriots—whose number originally was placed at 10,000—could hear Russian guns thundering on the approaches of the city in late July. The Red Army summer offensive then was at its height.

The communique was the last word from Gen. Komorowski. Polish officials here admitted they did not know the fate of the general, on whose head both the Germans and the Soviet-supported Polish National Liberation Committee have placed a price.

Scattered Fighting.

While organized resistance by the little underground army was ended, Polish headquarters here said scattered fighting against the Nazis continued and this was substantiated by the German radio. It first announced the battle had ceased, then reported firing had broken out again.

Details of the capitulation came from Associated Press War Correspondent Daniel De Luce in Moscow. He said the surrender was arranged by Col. Monter, representing the Komorowski headquarters, and that forces who refused to give up were trying to fight their way from Warsaw across the Vistula.

Earlier a bulletin broadcast from Warsaw told of skirmishes yesterday at the heart of the capital.

Dispute More Intense.

Meanwhile, the dispute between the London government and the Polish Committee in Moscow over internal affairs increased in intensity.

The Moscow group, which has been denouncing Gen. Komorowski and some members of the London government as "criminals," declared those responsible for the Warsaw uprising began it "without any coordination with the command of the Polish Army or the Red Army, considering only their own selfish interests."

The semiofficial Polish newspaper Dziennik Polski today accused the committee in Moscow not only of failing to help the underground fight in Warsaw but of standing in the way of assistance.

An editorial replying to committee attacks on Gen. Komorowski recalled that on August 6 committee officials declared there was no fighting in Warsaw.

"Later, when the Soviet press admitted fighting was going on," the editorial added, "they (committee officials) began to make charges that the rising had begun prematurely, and they did despite the fact that they bore the responsibility for the communique issued by the Union of Patriots from Moscow on July 29, which called the population of Warsaw 'to arms.'"

Alastair Forbes, London Daily Mail parliamentary expert, bluntly criticized Russia's policy toward Poland and Britain's "acquiescent" attitude.

"The soldiers of Warsaw's heroic underground army are today being deported to Russia by the Red Army," he wrote. "What would the Russians have said if Gen. Eisenhower had deported the men of the Paris Maquis to San Quentin and Sing Sing?"

Had Opposite Effect.

He declared that even though the British government had been actuated by an honest desire to show itself friendly toward Russia "and thus draw her into a closer and franker partnership, the policy has had the very opposite effect."

"Russia," Mr. Forbes added, "has turned every proffered inch into a captured mile. Concessions already made without demur have made it ever harder to make a final stand on principle.

"It seems certain that if Russia is to continue in her present policy toward Poland, which is so much harsher than that she pursues toward her late enemies, Romania and Finland, she will be losing much of the vast good will she has built up in this country. And it is equally certain that if Britain continues to remain silent and acquiescent in the matter, she will lose much of the good will she herself has built up in Europe."

ROOSEVELT SILENT ON WARSAW BATTLE

Offers No Comment on Reds Withholding Aid from Polish Forces.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3. — (AP) President Roosevelt, stressing by implication the explosiveness of the present Russo-Polish situation, flatly declined today to talk about the end of Polish resistance to the Germans inside the battered city of Warsaw.

Asked for comment, the President told his press conference that he supposed he knew as much about the Warsaw affair as any American but he did not know enough to talk about it.

Other officials, including some who have been well-informed on previous developments in Poland's tangled affairs, described the end of resistance as the last act of a tragedy which included: (1) Apparent Russian refusal to supply the Polish patriots for several weeks, and (2) Two Red army military setbacks before the gates of the Polish capital.

The political importance of the Warsaw incident is considered certain to raise fresh problems of Anglo-American-Russian solidarity.

In a strictly military sense the Warsaw Polish force was doomed when it turned out about the middle of last month that Red armies on the central front would not be able to crack German resistance at the Polish capital. It was doomed, according to authorities here, because no guerilla force can exist without adequate support from outside.

This fact and the way it worked out in Warsaw with last night's surrender by General Bor after 63 days of fighting are now being cited in official quarters as evidence of a theory rapidly gaining popularity here — that even though the Nazis try to organize underground resistance inside of Germany they will face inevitable failure because there will not be any outside military source on which they can depend for arms and supplies.

In Warsaw the Polish General Bor, whose real name is Tadeusz Komorowski, had a considerable underground force with a fairly large hoard of supplies late in July when Red armies attacked along the eastern approaches to the Polish capital. What happened from that time on is the subject of bitter controversy in which one of the latest developments was a charge by the Soviet-sponsored Polish committee that Bor was a criminal for having ordered his men into open fighting against the Germans.

Charge Not Accepted Here

The criminal charge is not accepted by officials here. For one thing, Bor is the new war minister of the Polish exiled government at London which Moscow opposes. For another, it is widely accepted in American diplomatic quarters that Russian propaganda, if not the Russian military and political command, bears considerable responsibility for the timing of the outbreak inside Warsaw.

A check of official sources discloses that the following sequence of events is generally accepted here in the absence of fully documented official versions from either Moscow or London.

In late July the magazine War and the Working Class predicted

Political Results Of Fall Of Warsaw Allied Problem

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—The fall of Warsaw is regarded here as the last act in a tragedy which began last August. But its political importance admittedly may raise fresh problems of Allied unity.

In a strictly military sense the Warsaw Polish force was doomed when it turned out about the middle of last month that Red armies on the central front would not be able to crack German resistance at the Polish capital. It was doomed, according to authorities here, because no guerilla force can exist without adequate support from outside.

Sign Nazi Scheme Will Fail

This fact and the way it worked out in Warsaw with last night's surrender by General Bor after 63 days of fighting are being cited in official quarters as evidence of a theory rapidly gaining popularity here—that even though the Nazis try to organize underground resistance inside of Germany they will face inevitable failure because there will not be any outside military source on which they can depend for arms and supplies.

In Warsaw the Polish General Bor, whose real name is Tadeusz Komorowski, had a considerable underground force with a fairly large hoard of supplies late in July when Red armies attacked along the eastern approaches to the Polish capital. What happened from that time on is the subject of bitter controversy in which one of the latest developments was a charge by the Soviet-sponsored Polish committee that Bor was a criminal for having ordered his men into open fighting against the Germans.

Charge Not Accepted Here

The criminal charge is not accepted by officials here. For one thing, Bor was named Polish army commander by the Polish exiled Government at London which Moscow opposes. For another, it is widely accepted in American diplomatic quatrers that Russian propaganda, if not the Russian military and political command, bears considerable responsiiblity for the timing of the outbreak inside Warsaw.

A check of official sources discloses that the following sequence of events is generally accepted here in the absence of fully documented official versions from either Moscow or London.

In late July the magazine War and the Working Class predicted Warsaw would be the first of the eastern European capitals to be liberated. The Russian summer offensive was then rolling in full strength. The Russian radio was pounding home to Polish patriots the call to arise against the Germans.

Lacked Actual Word

The Polish exile Government had given General Bor authority to strike inside Warsaw when he thought the time was ripe. Bor apparently decided the hour for action had come. He evidently made the decision without actual word of Russian plans, but is said to have communicated his intention to the Russians.

The Red army leaders did nothing to discourage the fighting because they expected, if the War and the Working Class forecast was as significent as believed to be, that they would be in Warsaw very shortly. They drove forward units into the suburbs but never succeeded in opening a real avenue to General Bor. The Germans reacted violently and the Russians were compelled to fall back.

It then became apparent that Warsaw was the center of the front which the Germans had decided to stabilize in the east and the Russian offensive, having run to the end of its supply lines and served its purpose in the grand strategy of coordination with the Anglo-American invasion of France, subsided. Locally in the Warsaw region it failed to obtain its objective.

Had No Retreat

The Polish patriots, having joined battle with the Germans, could not stop fighting. They had no retreat. They conquered an important area of the city and began appealing for outside help.

It is at this point that Russian policy is only guessed at by officials here. The guess is that Moscow, having no early prospect of liberating the city with Russian forces, decided to ignore Bor since to acknowledge him would have been to recognize the influence the exile Polish Government wielded inside Poland.

There followed a period of bitter recriminations during which British and Polish flyers at a heavy cost in men and planes delivered some supplies to Bor's garrison. One mystery was why the Russians would not even allow the British planes to land at Russian bases, which greatly increased the hazards.

Soviet Aid Raised Hope

Toward the middle of September it suddenly became apparent that without fanfare the Russians themselves had begun delivering supplies to Bor. This raised considerable hope in Washington that an end to the Russo-Polish diplomatic row might be near.

The Polish exile Government fired its War Minister and appointed General Bor to replace him. Washington and London both thought the Russians would accept Bor. About the same time there was talk of renewed military activity in the Warsaw area and it looked as though the Russians might again make a powerful effort to capture the city. If they did, it failed again.

Then followed the denunciation of Bor by the Soviet sponsored Polish Liberation Committee. The action was coupled with a warning that it might take a long time to capture Warsaw.

Thus for a second time it was concluded here that Russia, having failed to liberate the city, had also decided against encouraging the patriot forces inside it.

Swedes Hear Finn Guns In Drive Near Border

Stockholm, Oct. 3 (AP)—Cannon fire was heard in Sweden last night as Finnish troops pressed toward German positions in the border village of Vojakkala, six miles north of Tornea, the newspaper Aftonbladet reported today.

Finnish troops closed in from two directions on Kemi, 20 miles southeast of Tornea where Germans resisted efforts to seize a railway leading to Rovaniemi, a major German base about 60 miles inland.

The Finnish communique reported that troops had crossed into Lapland and the Finnish air force was assisting ground troops.

2 Finnish Units Drive On Nazi Stronghold On Bothnian Gulf

OCT 4 1944

By the Associated Press.

OULU, Finland, Oct. 3.—Finnish troops today closed in from two directions on the Nazi stronghold at Kemi at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia as the Germans retreated along a front of approximately 120 miles in Northern Finland.

The drive on Kemi came from Tornio (Tornea), captured by Finnish troops in a surprise landing from the Gulf of Bothnia on Saturday, and from Juivaniemi, which Finnish Arctic units have just reached.

Kemi is 120 miles southeast of Tornio on the Swedish border and approximately the same distance northwest of Kuivaniemi. The capture of Tornio trapped Nazis on both sides of the Kemi River.

(Swedish newspaper reports said German troops were fleeing north of Tornio after Finnish troops had captured the enemy garrison in the town. One account estimated that 2,000 Germans were routed by the Finns there).

The front on which the Germans are retreating stretches from the Olhava River on the Gulf of Bothnia northeastward through Pudasjarvi and Taivalkoski to the vicinity of Kussamo. Pudasjarvi is 70 miles southeast of Kemi.

German troops, for the most part, appeared to me hurrying to keep out of the way of the Finns.

Coincident with the arrival of correspondents at Oulu, Russian Maj. Gen. Tokarev and several other officers, all members of the Armistice Control Commission, set up a branch here. Gen. Tokarev formally met the Finnish commander in chief yesterday and received Finnish maps and other plans of operations against the Germans at Kemi and Rovaniemi.

Hungarians Reported Given Armistice Terms

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—The London Daily Sketch said today Hungary has received preliminary armistice terms from the United States, Britain and Russia through Baron Garbiel Apor, Hungarian Minister to the Vatican.

The terms, the Sketch said, include withdrawal from all Czechoslovakian, Romanian and Yugoslavian territories occupied by Hungary since 1938; a declaration of war against Germany; and removal of Regent Nicholas Horthy and other top men in the Budapest Government.

The Allies, although seeking elimination of the present pro-Axis regime, would deal with incumbent leaders for fulfillment of armistice terms, the paper said.

London Accuses Nazis In Italian Art Fraud

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—Some of Italy's greatest art treasures have disappeared in a huge fraud perpetrated on the Vatican by the Germans, Sir James Grigg, War Minister, told the House of Commons today.

"The most damning case of theft," he said, "was from a deposit in Cassino Abbey, where paintings and sculpture from all over North Italy had been stored."

The Germans claimd to have packed the treasures in 187 crates and sent them to the Vatican for safekeeping, he said, but 15 crates never reached their destination and many others were found to contain inferior works.

Nazi Leaders Reported Escaping in U-Boats

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Moscow radio today broadcast a statement by the "German National Committee," composed of captured German officers, declaring Nazi leaders already were escaping to South America by submarine.

The broadcast appealed to German submarine crews to take the fugitives to British or French ports.

Germany's Recent Metal Losses Cited

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—Dingle Foot, Parliamentary Secretary of the Ministry of Economic Warfare, gave the House of Commons today this scorecard on Germany's recent losses of metals:

Iron ore supplies reduced by 65 per cent, as compared with 1943.

Pig iron manufacturing capacity reduced by 20,000,000 tons or approximately 45 per cent. compared with early 1944.

Copper intake of new metal cut by about 60 per cent.

Lead reduced by 40 per cent. due to loss of Yugoslav and other Balkan mines and of scrap supplies collected in France.

Chrome almost completely cut off, due first to Turkey's breaking of relations with Germany, and the subsequent disruption of shipments from Yugoslavia, Albania and Greece.

Molybdenum supplies reduced by about two thirds, due to loss of ores from Finland, Greece and Yugoslavia.

Bauxite reduced by about 50 per cent. due to loss of supplies from southern France and Yugoslavia.

Stoppage of cobalt shipments from Finland, the sole German external source of supply, will cut the available quantity by about 80 per cent.

Woltram cut off completely except for unlikely supplies by blockade runners.

Super-Aircraft Carriers

British Building Craft To Be Made Into Luxury Liners After War

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP).—Super-aircraft carriers are coming out of British shipyards with a double purpose—first to be used against Japan and later to be easily converted into fast luxury liners for the scramble for post-war sea trade.

These "quick-change" ships are described as having superstructures which can be lifted out, disclosing below decks fittings ready for installation of luxury accommodations. Yards will have only to "lift the lid" and put in liner equipment.

British Unions Urged To Merge

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—The general council of the Trades-Union Congress said tonight that Britain's labor movement had fallen short of the 20-year-old goal of "one big union" and called for all possible federation now.

In an interim report prepared for submission to the annual congress meeting at Blackpool October 16, the council said that "for the future, unions cannot afford to maintain the rate of evolution of the last 20 years."

Plans for amalgamation, federation and joint working should be developed whenever possible, it said.

"Unions themselves must strive for closer unity, probably making sacrifices to achieve it," the council reported, saying that in the last two decades jealousy of individual union rights and prestige had defeated many attempts to reduce the number of unions.

Where amalgamation is not yet possible, the council suggested ways to center union problems in a federal body and a congress system of advisory committees, with a premium on research to sharpen union studies of industrial problems.

The report was the second prepared for the meeting. The first called for public ownership or control of all British industry as soon as possible.

BRITISH WON'T VOTE SOON

Churchill Says 'General Election Is Not Imminent'

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today he did not expect a British general election to be held soon, "that it is what you might call impending rather than imminent."

The last general election was in 1935, although there could be one any time the Government in power lost on a vote of confidence. Guessing here as to when the matter would be put to a test has ranged from "soon" to six months after the end of the war.

A Laborite inquired today whether precautions would be taken to insure absentee voting by British soldiers. Mr. Churchill replied that it would be disgraceful to deprive these men of the "right to express an opinion."

Eire to Participate In World Air Talks

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Oct. 3.—Eire has accepted an invitation from the United States to participate in the International Civil Aviation Conference in November, it was learned today.

A plan for provisional world air routes during a transitional period outside the war area will be discussed.

YANKS IN ITALY TAKE JUNCTION

Capture Monghidor As Flood Holds Up Eighth Army

Rome, Oct. 3 (AP)—American troops, slogging along in deep mud in their main drive through the northern Apennines, have captured Monghidor, an important road junction 18 miles south of Bologna, German supply and communication center in northern Italy, Allied headquarters announced today.

Flood waters of the Fiumicino river, behind which the Germans are strongly entrenched, stalled the British Eighth Army offensive on the Adriatic sector, the communique said.

Beat Off Counterattack

Americans of the Fifth Army beat off continuing German counterattacks against their positions on Monte Battaglia and Monte Cappella, heights dominating the highway to Imola, junction point on the Bologna-Rimini-Milan lateral supply route for the Nazis.

While the main Allied drive at the center is down the highway through Monghidor, other United States forces have reached Casoni Di Romagna, a village 16 miles south of Bologna and three miles east of the highway.

Brazilian troops, on the western flank of the Allied line, moved ahead despite bad weather and stiff enemy resistance and captured Monte Nona, 14 miles northwest of Lucca.

Indian Troops Take Hills

Beween the American Fifth Army front and the Adriatic sector Indian troops seized Monte l'Alto and Monte Cavallara, 17 miles southwest of Faenza, another junction point on the Bologna-Rimini road, ten miles southeast of Imola.

Negro troops of the United States 92d Infantry Division pushing up the Pisa-Modena road have reached a point 15 miles northwest of Pistoia, the communique said.

Continued bad weather over all the battle area canceled air operations again.

General Sir Harold Alexander's headquarters announced that the Eight Army in its current Adriatic campaign had captured 9,300 prisoners.

Vital Road Junction In Drive on Bologna Captured by Yanks

Flooded Fiumicino River Brings British 8th to Complete Standstill

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 3.—American infantry captured Monghidoro, an important road junction 18 miles south of Bologna, as the 5th Army plowed slowly northward yesterday through the Apennines in a drive still handicapped by deep mud.

The British 8th Army's attack on the Adriatic sector was brought to a complete standstill by the flooded Fiumicino River, behind which the Germans are strongly entrenched.

The Germans counterattacked Americans on the dominant heights of Monte Battaglia and Monte Cappella, which command a road joining the important Bologna-Rimini highway at Imola, 11 miles away.

Resistance Remains Strong.

On the road to Imola itself enemy resistance remained strong. The farthest point of advance was Carseggio, roughly a mile behind the strongholds on the two peaks.

In addition to capturing Monghidoro, toward Bologna along Highway 65 (the Florence-Bologna highway), 5th Army troops took Cedrechia, 3 miles west of the highway and 18½ miles south of Bologna.

On the Italian west coast where the Brazilian forces have been slugging steadily forward Monte Nona was captured.

Units moving north in the Serchio River Valley have gained in the vicinity of Pian Della Rocca and Fornoli. On their immediate right, colored troops of the American 92d Infantry Division driving up the Pisa-Modena road reached a point 15 miles northwest of Pistoia.

Heavy rains and heavy traffic made many by-passes on the 5th Army front unusable, thus limiting advances in all sectors.

New Zealanders Sink Ship.

While 8th Army assault forces were compelled to await the receding Fiumicino's flood, New Zealand antiaircraft gunners on the Adriatic coast achieved one of the war's rarest victories by engaging a light German vessel and sinking it with three shots from a Bofors 40-millimeter gun.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's headquarters announced that the total number of prisoners taken by the 8th Army in its current Adriatic offensive had risen to 9,300.

In the mountain sector British troops and one Indian division captured Monte Reggiano and the town of Borghi, both 11 miles west of Rimini near the Fiumicino River.

The return of bad weather canceled air operations yesterday, but the preceding night RAF light bombers hit rail yards and other targets in the Po Valley.

ALLIES REPORTED BESIEGING CRETE

ROME, Oct. 3 — (AP) — Crete was under Allied siege today and the Morocco radio said, without confirmation, that strong forces had landed in the northwestern section to wrest away the island which Hitler won with much German blood in the spring of 1941.

Naval headquarters announced that the British cruiser Black Prince shelled the Malme airdrome Saturday, apparently to knock out the field from which big Junkers transports have been evacuating key personnel of the Crete garrison.

The Algiers radio reported tonight that the Germans in northwestern Crete were retreating before the Allied forces. The Cairo radio said the Nazis were attempting evacuation by air because the Allied navies had stopped enemy water traffic. Two German planes were downed over the Aegean last night.

The danger of the German position on Crete was heightened by Allied seizure of Kythera, an island between Crete and the Greek mainland, from which the enemy garrison of 150 men fled after destroying its radio station.

Germans were reported withdrawing from a number of small islands along the southern fringes of Greece.

The Allied command said troops, gun positions and shipping were bombed at Port Zara, on the Dalmatian coast. Other aircraft struck at small shipping in the northern Adriatic and the gulf of Genoa. One enemy plane was destroyed.

islands ringing the southern tip of Greece, but there have been no indications that they had evacuated Crete—a symbol of one of the Nazis' greatest triumphs in the days when Hitler was on the march.

Allied headquarters in Rome recently announced that Crete had been blockaded by Allied naval forces and reported continuing air attacks on Nazi installations on the island.

A dispatch last night from Associated Press War Correspondent Stephen Barber in the Mediterranean said British Commandos landed unopposed on the Isalnd of Kythera the night of September 15. A week before a garrison of 150 Germans had fled after destroying a wireless station they maintained there.

British and Canadian naval units carried the Commandos to the tiny island from Italy. Located 120 miles south of Athens and 6 miles from the southernmost tip of the Peleponnesus, it was the first Greek territory liberated by the British.

They were given a joyous welcome by the island's 9,000 inhabitants.

Boldly and unmolested in waters where many of her sister warships fought a losing battle with the German air force more than three years ago, the British cruiser Black Prince shelled the Maleme airdrome on Crete last Saturday night.

The shelling was intended to knock out the field from which big Junkers-52 transports have been evacuating Nazi personnel.

Despite bad weather, Balkan air force planes attacked Nazi troop concentrations, gun positions and shipping in the port of Zara on the Dalmatian coast. Allied headquarters remained silent, however, on the activity of Allied forces in the Adriatic, Albania and other Balkan areas.

Landing by Strong Allied Force On Northwest Crete Reported

Morocco Radio Announces News; Germans Already Menaced by Kythera Occupation

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Strong Allied forces have landed on the northwest part of Crete, the Morocco radio said today. The brief announcement, heard by the Associated Press, gave no details.

The German garrison at Crete, however, appeared in a hopeless position in view of the Allied occupation earlier of Kythera, which is between Crete and the mainland of Greece.

The Germans have been reported to be withdrawing their forces from

BRITISH TROOPS NEAR TIDDIM ESCAPE ROUTE

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 3 — (AP) British 14th army troops have reached a point within two miles of the Tiddim-Fort White road, main escape route for the Japanese in the Chin Hills area, a communique from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced today.

The communique said Allied troops had made contact with the enemy on a number of trails which converge on Tiddim, Japanese supply base, as the 14th army attempted flanking movements on the town.

A report here said the Tiddim commander had appealed for more guns to support the garrison's defenses.

Bad weather restricted aerial activity to attacks on Burma road targets, and the ground action on other Burma fronts to patrol operations, the communique said.

JAP FORCES DRIVE ON FOOCHOW IN SURPRISE LANDING

CHUNGKING, Oct. 3—(AP) Imperial headquarters in Tokyo announced in a broadcast communique today that Japanese troops were driving on Foochow, last big seaport in Chinese hands, after a "surprise landing" in Fukien province.

The enemy push toward the city of 400,000 population on China's east coast was regarded by observers here as a logical action to counter any American plans for a landing, and indicated possible Japanese nervousness over such an intention.

(Japanese press and radio reports, recorded by FCC monitors, stated the seaborne landings were made to thwart American "plans to land on the China coast from the Pacific and sever our communications with the southern region.")

The Chinese high command made no comment on the Fukien landings, which Tokyo said occurred last Friday, and reported no change in the Kwangsi sector, where the Japanese are driving toward Kweilin.

(Associated Press War Correspondent Clyde A. Farnsworth said in a dispatch written Oct. 1 in Kweilin that the Japanese were reported within 14 miles of the city, but added that its defenders were well-equipped with U. S. ammunition and supplies and that Chinese commanders were confident the Kwangsi city would be China's Stalingrad.)

The high command communique reported brisk fighting was continuing in Paoching, 60 miles west of Hengyang and a vital Chinese defense position on the right flank of the Japanese drive on Kweilin.

Foochow once before was in Japanese hands having been captured in April, 1939 but it was retaken by the Chinese later.

(The Japanese press dispatches said the Japanese advance on Foochow was "rapid" and that the "enemy appears to be in great confusion.")

A small number of missionaries and other foreigners living in Foochow are believed to have been evacuated already, but it may be difficult for them to reach free China unless they obtain air passage.

Private reports reaching Chungking said there were signs the Japanese were preparing to open an offensive on Sian from Honan and Shansi province bases. It was suggested here that the invaders might eventually smash toward Chungking from the north and south.

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced that U. S. 14th air force bombers had attacked 11 towns and cities held by the Japanese and had pounded enemy troop columns in support of Chinese troops attempting to check the invaders' drive on Kweilin.

JAPS INVADE CHINA COAST NEAR FOOCHOW

Chungking Expresses Fear for Missionaries in Last Unoccupied Seaport.

TOKYO REPORTS FRIDAY BLOW

Declared Move Was Intended to Forestall American Landing on Same Shore.

Chungking, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—A Tokyo communique announced today that the Japanese have invaded Fukien province on the east coast of China—a more regarded here as a logical step to forestall any American landing on the coast.

The handful of missionaries and other foreigners living in Foochow are believed to have been evacuated, but unless they obtain air passage to a point farther inland, they may have difficulty now in reaching Free China. The only existing overland route requires travel in eastern Kwangsi province, through a narrowing gap of less than sixty miles, which the Japanese are attempting to close in order to establish a line between Hongkong and Manchuria.

[In a broadcast communique picked up by the FCC, Japanese Imperial Headquarters declared that Japanese forces landed on the east coast of China northeast of Foochow last Friday, and the Tokyo radio added that the troops have since captured Lienkong and that the advance on Foochow, last major post on the east coast still in Chinese hands, was so "rapid the enemy appears to be in great confusion." The move was intended, Tokyo added, to block American plans to invade China from the Pacific.]

Drive on Chungking Foreseen.

Foochow (which lies across the strait just opposite the north end of Formosa) once did a thriving trade with the famous New England tea clippers and, until the war with Japan, was one of the most important Chinese ports. The Japanese, who had occupied the city in the past, expected to retake it without much difficulty.

Private reports reaching Chungking said that there were signs the Japanese were preparing for a drive on Sian from bases in Homan and Shansi provinces. Some observers suggested that Japanese plans in China may call for an eventual drive on Chungking from the north and south.

Japs Say U. S. Invasion Of China Blocked

By the Associated Press.

A Japanese imperial headquarters communique said today that Japanese forces landed on the east coast of China northeast of Foochow last Friday and Tokyo radio reports said the move was made to block American plans to invade China from the Pacific "and sever our communications with the southern region."

Tokyo broadcasts said imperial troops had captured Lienkong and that the advance on Foochow, last major port on the east coast still in Chinese hands, was so "rapid the enemy appears to be in great confusion."

Foochow is located across Formosa Strait from the northern end of Japanese-held Formosa, which is about 150 miles away.

The communique, as recorded from a Tokyo broadcast by the Federal Communications Commission, said:

"Our forces which are aiming at the capitulation of the vicinity of Foochow, stronghold on the coast of the East China Sea, carried out surprise landings on the coast northeast of this spot at dawn September 27 under close co-operation of Army and Navy forces. They are now advancing toward Foochow."

Chinese Press is Critical

CHUNGKING, Oct. 3 (AP). — Prime Minister Churchill's use of the term "lavish" to describe American help for China drew an editorial protest in the Chinese press today.

"Ta Kung Pao," China's most influential newspaper, said the world should realize that Britain and America were not entirely free from responsibility, at least morally, for China's military weakness, and that American lend-lease help to China amounted only to 1 or 2 per cent o fthe total given the Allies.

For the four years before Pearl Harbor, China fought single-handed, receiving only "rather limited" help from Russia, America and Britain," the newspaper said. Meanwhile, it suffered great hardships through Britain's closure of the Burma Road and "Japanese air bombings with American-made bombs and American-supplied gasoline."

After Pearl Harbor, when America and Britain became its Allies, China was entitled legitimately to ask assistance from them, the publication continued, adding that in the battle for Burma China sacrificed some 50,0000 or 60,000 of its best troops, sustaining a loss much greater than that of Britain.

It added that the "Hitler First" strategy of the war left China to prosecute a war against Japan alone. Britain and America could not entirely be relieved of the responsibility now that China felt the military strain so heavily, "Ta Kung Pao" said.

It also complained that Britain, receiving much greater American aid than China, even now is experiencing military setbacks in the Orient. It said China did not hesitate to weaken its defense of the Hunan-Kwangsi Railway by transferring large bodies of troops to the Salween front in deference to the wishes of Britain, which wanted to retard the Japanese offensive against Imphal in India.

The newspaper said that offensive failed and the Japanese transferred troops from the India border to reinforce their garrison in Lungling.

"The Chinese on the Salween front are sorely in need of counter-action from the East by British troops from Imphal," the editorial said, "but the British forces remain inactive."

20,000 Tons Monthly Flown To China, Some Sent By Land

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt reported today that in addition to the supplies being flown to China some goods at last are moving over a 6,000-mile-long route that begins at the Caspian Sea and traverses most of the continent of Asia.

This long and difficult land route thus far is carrying only a trickle, Mr. Roosevelt made clear, but he said he was satisfied with the total supply to China which now exceeds 20,000 tons a month. He brought out that his satisfaction arises from the amount of gasoline, medicines, munitions and bombs flown in despite incredible hardships.

Small Compared To Need

But he indicated that this is small in relation to the volume China needs. Supplies cannot be delivered by ship, he said, so long as Japanese armies control the China coast.

The discussion came up at a news conference when a reporter said Chungking felt China has received inadequate aid.

Reference to the land route came unexpectedly. Mr. Roosevelt's lend-lease report to Congress June 30 said only air deliveries were reaching China at that time.

Called Epic In Flying

Mr. Roosevelt today described the aerial deliveries, made high over the Himalayan mountains, as an epic in flying. We're well satisfied with the major performance, he said. Asked why the Chinese are complaining, he replied that they want more than they're getting.

The total amount of outside aid to China, the President said, is largely gasoline for Superfortresses and Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's 14th Air Force. He declared the 14th had performed an epic in destruction of enemy shipping and installations for its size.

Asked how much of the total is for the Chinese, Mr. Roosevelt said that if you take out the gasoline then most of the rest goes to the Chinese armies—a total of supplies presumably considerably less than 10,000 tons a month.

War Minister Gives Data

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Gen. Ho Ying-ching, Chinese Minister of War, said today in an interview with Harold Isaacs, Newsweek magazine correspondent, that the total equipment imported for the Chinese armies from April, 1942, to the end of July, 1944, by air amounted to only 30,000 tons.

Isaacs, in a dispatch from Chungking, quoted the general as reporting:

"The only weapons received by China before the battle of Changsha (last June) were 60 American pack artillery pieces with 60,000 rounds of ammunition, 30 anti-tank rifles with 5,120 rounds and 30,000,000 rounds of rifle machine-gun ammunition."

General Ho, who has received personal criticism for the reverses of the Chinese forces in central China, told Isaacs:

"The main, fundamental reason for China's failure to stem the Japanese advance in central south China is absolute inferiority in the weapons of the Chinese forces compared with those of the enemy."

Kweilin's Defenders Confident

KWEILIN, China, Oct. 1 (Delayed) (AP)—Chinese commanders preparing the defenses of this strategic Kwangsi Province city, once the gayest in free China, spoke confidently today of Kweilin as China's Stalingrad. American observers expect the defense of the city to equal at least that of Hengyang, which held out for forty-nine days.

Whether Kweilin lives or dies her defenders are expected to exact a tremendous tax of blood, time and material from the Japanese, now reported only fourteen miles away.

Kweilin is ringed by hills. The city's natural defenses probably are the toughest the Japanese have ever met. Miles of barbed wire entanglements stretch before the city. Pillboxes have been constructed from torn-down buildings. Debris has been scattered haphazardly before defense positions as an added handicap for the invaders.

The Chinese defender, well supplied with American ammunition and weapons, are healthy and well fed and well clothed.

Civilians have been evacuated, although among the buildings soldiers have found aged Chinese and homeless children who stayed behind or were lost during the urgent three-day period of mass withdrawals which ended at midnight Sept. 14.

The Chinese commanders said they were ready for the attack. One said it was possible the defenders could hold out for months, even disregarding the possibility of reinforcement or replacement of expended supplies and men by air.

China Begins Inquiry Into War Crimes

By the Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, Oct. 3.—A government investigating committee announced today it was ready to receive information on war crimes in China. The group said it would confer with any informant personally. The closest secrecy on evidence was promised.

The commission, headed by Dr. C. T. Wang, former Ambassador to the United States, was established last March. A long list of war crimes includes devaluation of the national currency, issuance of puppet banknotes and white slavery.

Tojo on Tour Of Manchuria

San Francisco, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Gen. Hideki Tojo, former Premier of Japan, is making an inspection tour of occupied Manchuria, Domei, the Japanese official news agency, announced today in a radio broadcast recorded by the FCC.

OIL CENTER HIT IN RAID ON BORNEO

60 Liberators Start Huge Fires in Attack on Strategic Target.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Wednesday, Oct. 4—(AP) Japan's 3,000,000-barrel oil storage center at Balikpapan, Borneo—"the most lucrative strategic target in the Pacific," Gen. Douglas MacArthur called it — was pounded powerfully Saturday by more than 60 Liberators.

They flew from advance bases from which they can repeatedly pound the center on which Japan leans heavily for her ability to wage air and naval war and to move essential cargo.

Start Towering Fires

Today's communique, disclosing the attack, said towering fires were started by the big bombers, three of which were lost. Headquarters said that parachuting Yank airmen from a crippled plane were strafed by machine guns of some of the 30 Zeros which bitterly opposed the raiders.

Seven Zeros were shot down and others were damaged.

The big bombers, finding their targets through clouds, accurately dropped 74 tons of bombs.

The power plant and oil refineries are the Japanese equivalent of the Ploesti fields in Europe. The communique called Balikpapan Japan's most important source of aviation gasoline and lubricating oils.

While destruction of the oil center was not claimed, the communique said the bombs caused heavy damage.

"The advance of our bomber line now has made possible heavy bomber attacks on Balikpapan, the major fuel oil storage center," the communique said.

"The destruction of this target curtails drastically and immediately the enemy's capacity to wage air and naval war and to move essential cargo.

"A lucrative, strategic target in the Pacific, it hitherto has been beyond range of bombers of the southwest Pacific area."

(Balikpapan has been raided before but never in force. In the past the bombers took off from Australian bases for a long perilous flight and had to go in on the target under cover of darkness).

Smoke that rose to 6,000 feet was visible over the target after the raiders struck.

A vessel of 2,000 tons was caught in the harbor and seriously damaged.

The air combat over and near Balikpapan lasted over an hour. The three bombers lost were victims of intense anti-aircraft fire.

9 Jap Freighters Hit By Planes in Clearing Route to Philippines

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Oct. 3.—Nine more small Japanese freighters have been sunk or damaged by Allied planes on the invasion route to the Philippines, headquarters announced today. Aerial warfare dominated the Pacific campaign, as it has before in temporary lulls preceding new Allied moves.

Patrol planes sank two small freighters near Manado, Northern Celebes; damaged four off Zamboanga, Southern Philippines, and two more near the Japanese naval base on Amboina Island. Bombers attacked airfields in the Moluccas and Celebes with 134 tons of explosives and hit the Amboina-Ceram area with 88 tons.

Ground resistance in the Southern Palaus, the northern end of the Allied surge toward the Philippines, was limited to "a few fanatical enemy troops," battling from caves with small arms, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported yesterday at Pearl Harbor. He announced formation of a military government on Angaur, southernmost of the invaded islands.

10,151 Japs Killed.

Admiral Nimitz announced that 55 Japanese have been killed for every one taken prisoner on Palau—10,151 killed on Peleliu and Angaur and 187 taken prisoner.

Of the total, 9,076 were killed on Peleliu and 1,075 on Anguar.

Marine pilots broke through intense antiaircraft fire to attack the Japanese airfield on Babelthuap, largest in the Palau chain.

Liberators of the 7th Air Force struck at Iwo Jima, in the Volcano Islands, and tangled with eight "aggressive" Nipponese interceptors. One Liberator was shot down and several others were damaged.

Jap Planes Ineffective.

The Japanese also showed increased but still ineffective aerial aggression in the Southwest Pacific. Five planes rose to intercept an escorted heavy bomber raid on airfields clustered around Kendari, Southern Celebes. Three were shot down and a fourth probably was destroyed. A lone Jap bomber, caught aloft nearby, also was downed.

Several enemy planes attempted to raid shipping off American-held Morotai Island. They were driven off and at least one was downed by ack-ack. A single Japanese plane twice bombed American positions at Sansapor, Western Dutch New Guinea, but caused no damage.

U. S. Liberty Ship Strikes Mine Killing 11, 22 Reported Missing

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 3—(AP) Eleven army men were killed and 22 others were listed as missing after the Navy-chartered Liberty ship Lilihu Thompson struck a mine while entering a South Pacific port Sept. 25, the Navy announced tonight.

There were no casualties among naval and merchant marine personnel. Patrol craft and boats of the Thompson removed survivors.

A Navy salvage unit took the Thompson in tow and beached her in a repairable condition.

The sinking was disclosed in a communique which reported a continuation of mopping up operations against Japanese holding out tenaciously at "Bloody Nose Ridge" on Peleliu island and in one pocket on Angaur island, both in the Palaus.

The Japanese indicated concern over the use by the invaders of captured Peleliu airfield, sending over a plane Oct. 1. But its two bombs fell in a swamp near the field.

Liberators dropped 81 tons of bombs on bypassed Truk, encountering anti-aircraft fire which damaged two of the big bombers.

Alaska Crash Victims Found

A UNITED STATES AIR FORCE BASE, Alaska, Oct. 3 (AP).—Discovery of the bodies of five of six men missing since a United States Army Liberator bomber exploded over the Alaska peninsula wilderness Sept. 3 was announced here yesterday. All the bodies were near the wreckage of the bomber, which caught fire while flying from a mainland base to the Aleutians. Six men parachuted and were rescued.

First U-Boat Sinking In Months Off Brazil

Natal, Brazil, Oct. 3 (AP)—A German submarine was sunk off the Brazilian coast September 28 by an American plane. It was the first U-boat destroyed in these waters in recent months.

Vice-Admiral Jonas Ingram, USN, decorated the crew of the plane yesterday.

Former High Colombian Gets 20 Months for Plot

By the Associated Press.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 3.—Gen. Eduardo Bonitto Vega, former secretary of the War Ministry who was convicted of participating in a plot to overthrow the government of President Alfonso Lopez, has been sentenced to 20 months in prison and expelled from the Army, the government announced yesterday.

He was accused of complicity in the July 10 uprising at Bogota, Ibague and Bucaramanga but not with promoting the revolt.

U. S.-CANADIAN PARLEY IS OPENED

Ottawa, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—The International Joint Commission today opened its semi-annual meeting here with attention centered on one of the most important jobs the Canadian-United States organization has tackled in its thirty-three years—a broad survey of the economic use of the Columbia River in the two countries.

The job, undertaken at the request of the two governments, includes recommendation of plans to assure the widest possible development of the waterway, which has potential power resources equal to the total water power now in use throughout North America.

The investigation is to involve water power development, storage of water by means of dams in the main river or its larger tributaries, irrigation and the reclamation of rich lands in the Columbia Valley, conservation of salmon and other fisheries, and improvement of navigation facilities.

Kearny Private Nazi Prisoner

OTTAWA, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Canadian Army reported today that Pvt. William Fowler Irwin, son of Robert Irwin of Kearny, N. J., is a prisoner of war in Germany. He was previously reported missing.

EDWARDS NAMED AS DEPUTY TO KING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 — (AP) Admiral Ernest J. King, a fighting man who has been tied down by the Navy's biggest desk job, soon may be able to spend more time on the Pacific front line.

This probability was disclosed tonight by a Navy announcement of the appointment of Vice Admiral R. S. Edwards to the newly created dual post of deputy commander in chief, U. S. Fleet, and deputy chief of naval operations.

Officially, the Navy said only that the magnitude of the task of directing activities of the world's greatest fleet made it necessary for King to "delegate some of his duties" as commander in chief and chief of operations to a deputy.

But friends of the tall lean admiral saw in establishment of the new post an opportunity for King to achieve his desire to spend more time closer to the front.

He always has taken advantage of opportunities to go close to the fighting, visiting both European and Pacific battle fronts frequently.

Under the new alignment, Admiral Edwards, who has been King's chief of staff, now will be second only to King in naval command. He is expected to take over the desk duties requiring presence of a top ranking admiral in Washington, leaving King free to make more and more frequent trips to the war zones.

Announcement of the new Naval post with its implications stirred speculation also that the headquarters of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander in chief, will be shifted westward from Pearl Harbor toward Japan. Nimitz has indicated he wants to make the move, possibly to Guam, and King may find occasion to spend some time in the future either at Pearl Harbor or at an advanced fleet headquarters.

Truman Favors Change In Approval Of Treaties

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri, Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, came out emphatically tonight for a constitutional change to permit approval of an international peace organization treaty by a mere majority vote in both Senate and House.

A two thirds vote is now required in the Senate, with the House barred from action on treaties.

Truman's position was made known as response to a question following an informal speech before the Women's National Press Club.

He said he "most certainly" would vote to change the two thirds treaty rule the first opportunity he had to do so.

He predicted approval of such a treaty in any event, saying: "I think we will accomplish what Woodrow Wilson intended in 1919."

Rankin Urges Probe Of Fight Involving 2 Naval Officers

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—An investigation of the fisticuffs at the Statler Hotel after President Roosevelt addressed the AFL Teamsters' Union there September 23 was urged today by Chairman Rankin (D., Miss.) of the House World War Veterans Committee.

Meanwhile, the accounts of two young navy officers, who said they constituted one of the battling forces, stood as the only official version of the affair. They said their opponents identified themselves as Teamsters' Union members.

Rankin Statement

Rankin said in a statement that while his committee did not have jurisdiction, "it seems to me that this might be within the jurisdiction of the Dies committee or the Naval Affairs Committee. Certainly, it is within the jurisdiction of the navy and the Department of Justice. . . . It should be thoroughly investigated at once because of its inevitable far-reaching repercussions."

Lieut. Com. James H. Suddeth, 33, identified himself today as the companion of Lieut. Randolph Dickins, Jr., 23, who gave the first account of the fisticuffs yesterday.

Suddeth corroborated Dickins' story that the trouble started when they refused to answer questions about how they were going to vote for President.

The White House and Daniel J. Tobin, head of the Teamsters' Union and Mr. Roosevelt's host that night, have disavowed any knowledge of the affair.

Shore patrol members, who intervened, submitted a report yesterday to Rear Admiral William Chambers, head of the Bethesda Medical Center, where Dickins is recovering from malaria and combat fatigue. Dickins said Admiral Chambers had told him that no disciplinary action against him was contemplated.

Story Goes Overseas

Army troops overseas have received stories of the incident through the War Department press branch, which said the facts were taken from press service reports. A naval spokesman said the story was not included in news reports sent to the fleet.

"The heavy load on naval communication necessitates limitations on the amount of material which may be included in the daily radio news digest," the spokesman said. "These limitations do not permit the inclusion of items of a controversial or political nature."

The Office of War Information also carried no overseas broadcast of the affair. William C. Bourne, OWI liaison officer, said: "It is of no importance to us."

Super-Bomber Output Sets Mark In September

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Production of long-rang super bombers in September was "the greatest yet in a single month," the War Production Board said today in announcing that total output of all aircraft was 7,598 planes or 98 per cent. of schedule.

Total production in August was 7,939 planes.

The actual number of B-29 and B-32 super bombers produced in September was not given because of security reasons but WPB said their output was "under schedule."

Production of Flying Fortresses, Liberators, the standard four-engine bombers, was "on schedule," the agency said. It added, however, that "generally speaking," the remainder of the tactical program, including fighters and medium bombers, was slightly under schedule."

December 20 Last Date For WASPs

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Gen. H. H. Arnold announced today the army air forces will inactivate the Women Air Force Service Pilots on December 20 "unless there are unexpected and much higher combat losses in the air war over Germany."

The announcement said the decision to release the volunteer women pilots from further service was based on present indications that by mid-December sufficient male pilots will be available to fill all flying assignments in this country and overseas. The WASPs have been largely used in ferrying services.

Recruitment of personnel for the WASPs was halted last spring.

General Arnold said in a statement: "I am proud of the WASPs and their record of skill, versatility and loyalty. They have done outstanding work for the AAF, even exceeding our expectations when the program was begun in 1942."

He added there are now approximately 1,000 members of the women's flying force capable of operating all types of aircraft, including the fastest fighters and super bombers. Thirty members of the corps have been killed in service.

Net receipts of the Government in September — an income-tax month—were $5,925,736,641, compared with $5,447,379,608 in September, 1943, and $2,568,320,811 in August of this year.

Total expenditures in September were $7,929,752,530, compared with $7,534,768,102 in September a year ago and $8,119,208,490 in August of this year.

May Was Record Month

Mainly because of heavy September receipts the public debt on September 30 stood at $211,063,598,633, about $300,000,000 less than a month earlier. On September 30, 1943, the debt was $162,320,519,664, and on September 30, 1942, it was $91,057,523,887.

Mass Sedition Sessions To Be Afternoons Only

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—The mass sedition trial becomes a strictly afternoon affair, beginning tomorrow, to give court-appointed defense attorneys an opportunity to make a living in other activity.

In its seventh month, the trial henceforth will convene at 1 P. M., four days a week, Mondays through Thursdays, for a lunch-less five-hour session.

Presiding Justice Edward C. Eicher ordered the change from regular courtroom hours today on the suggestion of P. Bateman Ennis, a defense attorney. The move will give the attorneys their mornings to devote to private practice. Those named by the court receive no compensation.

Twenty-six persons are on trial on charges of conspiring to set up a Nazi form of government in this country.

That creating the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion was "quite satisfactory" so far as it went, Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement, but it did not "adequately deal with the human side of reconversion."

Fails on Several Points

He observed that the bill as finally enacted failed to provide for transportation of migratory war workers back home or to places of new employment, failed to provide unemployment compensation for Federal employes, and failed to establish nation-wide minimum standards for unemployment benefits.

The measure leaves unemployment compensation to the states.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was glad to know that the House Ways and Means committee planned further study of these matters. "I hope that the deficiencies which I have pointed out in the bill before me will be promptly rectified," he said.

As for the Surplus War Property Disposal bill, the President said "I have considerable doubt whether many provisions of the bill will not make extremely difficult the accomplishment of its objectives."

"There is danger that the confused methods of disposition and the elaborate restrictions imposed by the bill will in many instances delay rather than expedite reconversion and reemployment," he said.

But it seemed best to get some organization set up, the President added, and therefore he was signing the bill with the hope that Congress will consider any changes the Surplus Property Disposal board may recommend after it has had some experience in operating under the act.

The measure creates a three-member board to direct disposal of surplus property. Mr. Roosevelt was not ready to say who would be appointed to the board. The administration had favored one-man control of surplus property disposal and Will Clayton, now acting surplus property administrator, has declared he would not accept an appointment under the plan approved by Congress.

Will Nominate Director

Mr. Roosevelt said that after Congress reconvenes Nov. 14 he would nominate for a two-year term a director for the new office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. This office, meantime, will absorb the Office of War Mobilization now headed by James F. Byrnes.

Byrnes, who has said he could not accept the new post, will direct the office under an interim appointment until a new director is appointed.

"Two years ago I asked Justice Byrnes to leave the Supreme Court and assist me in the war effort," Mr. Roosevelt explained in a statement. "He has done a magnificent job. His contribution to the successful prosecution of the war is recognized by a grateful nation.

"I fully understand Justice Byrnes' expressed desire not to remain as director for two more years. I have assured him that I will not ask him to continue to serve as director beyond the interim term."

SEPTEMBER WAR SPENDING DROPS

Falls Below Seven Billion First Time Since Last December

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—War spending of the United States Government fell below $7,000,000,000 in September for the first month since last December.

September war spending, as shown by Treasury figures today, was $6,997,921,971.

This was only about $46,000,000 above the same month a year ago. The record month was May, 1944, when war costs were $7,879,293,621. The figure for August, 1944, was $7,570,779,417.

FDR Signs Bill Setting Up Reconversion Machinery

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 — (AP) President Roosevelt accepted today the Congressionally-designed machinery for getting the nation back from a wartime to a peacetime basis but declared it would not run satisfactorily without further tinkering.

He announced at a news conference that he had signed with reluctance the Surplus War Property Disposal bill and had also signed the bill to establish an office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. Both measures, sharply varying from administration recommendations, were enacted by Congress just before it took a recess until after the national elections.

Roosevelt Statement on Reconversion

OCT 4 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP).—The text of President Roosevelt's statement explaining his signature of the bill creating the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion:

I have signed S. 2051, a bill "to amend the social security act, as amended, to provide a national program for war mobilization and reconversion, and for other purposes."

I have signed the bill because it is important as this bill provides, that the Office of War Mobilization should be promptly expanded and given clear statutory powers to direct and supervise the tremendous task of reconversion in all of its numerous and related phases.

Last October at my suggestion Justice Byrnes set up a unit in the Office of War Mobilization to deal with war and post-war adjustment problems. The work of this unit was placed in charge of Mr. Bernard Baruch. In February of this year Mr. Baruch and his associate, Mr. Hancock, made a report recommending that the co-ordinating powers of the Office of War Mobilization be extended to cover activities relating to reconversion and that separate units be established in that office to deal with the problems of contract settlement, war surplus property disposition and retraining and re-employment.

Shortly thereafter by executive orders, I set up separate units in the Office of War Mobilization to deal with these problems so far as was practicable under existing law until legislation clarifying the powers of these units and defining the basic policies to be pursued by them could be enacted by the Congress.

Last June the Congress passed legislation establishing the Office of Contract Settlement with adequate powers to supervise and expedite the settlement of war contracts.

Just before its recent adjournment the Congress passed H. R. 5125, setting up a surplus property disposal board and defining its powers, and S. 2051, the bill now before me, which expands the Office of War Mobilization into an Office of War Mobilization and reconversion and places within it the office of Contract Settlement, the Surplus War Property Administration, and the Retraining and Re-employment Administration.

So far as the bill goes, it is quite satisfactory. It applies the lessons which we have learned during the war as to the need of continuing co-ordination of related activities to the problems of reconversion to peace. It does not and cannot, of course, eliminate the problems and difficulties of reconversion, but it goes far to expedite and facilitate their solution.

But I feel it my duty to draw attention to the fact that the bill does not adequately deal with the human side of reconversion. When I signed the G.I. bill on June 22 last, I expressed the hope that "the Congress will also take prompt action, when it reconvenes, on necessary legislation which is now pending to facilitate the development of unified programs for the demobilization of civilian workers, for their re-employment in peace-time pursuits, and for provision, in co-operation with the states, of appropriate unemployment benefits during the transition from war to peace." The bill is not adequate to obtain these ends.

Provisions, which were in the bill as it passed the Senate, to provide transportation for war workers from the place of their employment to their bona fide residence or to the location of new employment arranged by the workers were omitted in conference. So also were the provisions, in the bill as it passed the Senate, insuring appropriate unemployment compensation to Federal workers.

Moreover the bill fails to prescribe minimum standards to govern the amount and duration of unemployment benefits which should be paid by the states to all workers unavoidably out of a job during the period of transition from war to peace.

We have rightly committed ourselves to a fair and generous treatment of our G.I. men and women. We have rightly committed ourselves to a prompt and generous policy of contract settlement to aid industry to return to peace-time work. We have rightly committed ourselves to support farm prices at a fair level during the period of reconversion. We should be no less fair in our treatment of our war workers.

I am glad to know that the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee has announced that his committee will give consideration to further amendments of the social security act after recess and I hope that the deficiencies which I have pointed out in the bill before me will be promptly rectified.

Surplus Property Statement

A separate Presidential statement on the surplus property bill follows:

On Feb. 21, 1943, I signed an executive order setting up the Surplus War Property Administration to direct and expedite the orderly disposition of surplus war property so far as possible under existing law, pending action by the Congress.

H. R. 5125, the surplus property disposal act of 1944, which is before me for signature, places the general disposition of surplus war property under a board of three and provides in considerable detail the methods to be pursued by the board.

It is with considerable reluctance that I have decided to sign this bill. While I am in full accord with the declared objectives of the bill, which are to aid reconversion from a war to a peace economy and to facilitate the orderly disposal of surplus property, I have considerable doubt whether many provisions of the bill will not make extremely difficult the accomplishment of its objectives. There is danger that the confused methods of disposition and the elaborate restrictions imposed by the bill will in many instances delay rather than expedite reconversion and re-employment. Our surplus property should speedily be placed into channels of disposition which should provide the most jobs and the greatest good for the greatest number.

But we must be in a position to get on with the organization of our plans for the disposition of surplus war property. I have, therefore, concluded that it would be best to let the bill become law in the hope that, after the surplus property board provided for in the bill has had some experience in operating under it, the Congress will give careful consideration to needed changes which may be suggested by the board.

Byrnes Appointment Statement

The President's statement concerning interim appointment of Justice Byrnes as War Mobilization and Reconversion Director:

Under the law creating the new Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion the appointment of a director must be confirmed by the Senate. The Senate will not in session until Nov. 14.

Justice Byrnes has agreed to accept an interim appointment as director and will serve until the Congress reconvenes, at which time I will send to the Senate for confirmation the appointment of a director who will serve for the two-year term provided in the statute.

Two years ago I asked Justice Byrnes to leave the Supreme Court and assist me in the war effort. He has done a magnificent job. His contribution to the successful prosecution of the war is recognized by a grateful nation.

I fully understand Justice Byrnes's expressed desire not to remain as director for two more years. I have assured him that I will not ask him to continue to serve as director beyond the interim term.

Burton Backs Dewey As Most Helpful to U. S. Foreign Policy

By the Associated Press.

Senator Burton, Republican, of Ohio, says he had "no hesitancy at all" in indorsing Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's presidential candidacy, because election of the New York Governor "would be helpful to our foreign policy."

Senator Ball, Republican, of Minnesota announced last week that he could not at this time campaign for Gov. Dewey because the Governor had failed to satisfy him in his position on foreign affairs.

Senators Burton and Ball were the Republican half of the Senate quartet—the Democrats were Senators Hill of Alabama and Hatch of Mexico—which strongly advocated committing the United States to participation in a world organization to enforce peace.

Whereas Senator Ball said he would not speak for Gov. Dewey, Senator Burton said he had offered all of October to the Republican National Committee and the Ohio State Committee and had lined up "quite a number" of addresses.

To reporters who inquired why he thought Gov. Dewey's election would strengthen America's foreign policy, Senator Burton remarked that the Senate will be anti-Roosevelt for the next two years and Republican for the two ensuing years.

"Our greatest problem," he said, "is going to be to get agreement between the President and two-thirds of the Senate. To get full co-operation on foreign policy, we need an anti-Roosevelt President. It will eliminate personalities, prejudices and partisanship to a greater extent if we have a Republican President than if we don't."

Senator Burton said he felt that the Senate was convinced of the need for a sound, firm, constructive foreign policy, and actually had declared for one when it adopted the Connolly foreign policy resolution, which pledged maintenance of international security.

"If we just have sense enough to keep the Allies together and the various branches of our own Government together," the Senator declared, "we're going to have peace."

DIES COMMITTEE

PROBER SEES P.A.C. LEADERS AS 'REDS'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 — (AP) The Dies committee heard the National Citizens Political Action committee described today as "the most active" Communist front organization in the United States.

That description was given by J. B. Matthews, research director for the Dies group, as it continued, through a two-man sub-committee, its investigation of the N.C.P.A.C. and the C.I.O. Political Action committee, which the Dies committee contends is the predecessor of the N.C.P.A.C.

Testifying before Representatives Costello (D.-Calif.) and Thomas (R.-N. J.), Matthews said his conclusion was based on a study of the names of the 141 N.C.P.A.C. members filed recently with the House Campaign committee by Sidney Hillman, N.C.P.A.C. head.

That study, Matthews added, showed that 82 of the 141 were affiliated with or had cooperated voluntarily with one or more of 25 organizations labeled by the attorney general as "subversive or Communist."

"Here, if ever, is a Communist front organization," Matthews declared, adding that "on the basis of past performance," it could be expected that the individuals he listed would "follow the Communist line" even if it were contrary to the best interests of the United States.

Joseph Curran, head of the National Maritime union and a member of the C.I.O. executive board, was described by Matthews as "perhaps entitled to the rank of indispensable man in Communist front organizations." Curran, he added, had a record of affiliation with 14 "Communist front" groups.

Listed as having records of affiliation with six or more of the organizations were: Louis Adamic, Elmer Benson, James B. Carey, Langston Hughes, Max Lerner, Carey McWilliams, Paul Robeson, Reid Robinson, Mary Van Kleeck and A. F. Whitney. Orson Welles was listed with two affiliations, Philip Murray with three, Ben Hecht with one, Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot with one each.

SMITH TESTIFIES AT HOUSE HEARING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 — (AP) Gerald L. K. Smith was called before the House campaign expenses committee today and made a series of remarks about Republicans, Democrats, New Dealers, President Roosevelt, Governor Dewey and Wendell Willkie.

Smith's appearance attracted the biggest house the committee has drawn in its investigations. Extra chairs and a police guard were brought in.

As a prelude Chairman Anderson (D-N.M.) touched off the hearing with a statement that 13 Republicans in Congress had franked 3,115,000 copies of a single speech at government expense—a speech by Rep. Busbey (R-Ill), attacking the CIO Political Action committee. Anderson said it probably wasn't illegal, but "anybody who did it will have a hard time defending their action."

Then Anderson turned to the American First Candidate asking Smith about a man named Mario Buzzi. Smith said that he had met Buzzi through a letter of introduction from Senator Nye (R.-ND). He asserted he had found Buzzi was an "agent of Italian Fascists" and turned him in to the FBI.

Anderson also produced letters from Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich) introducing Buzzi to Harrison Spangler, former chairman of the Republican national committee, and from Spangler presenting Buzzi to Thomas J. Curran, a New York Republican leader.

Smith observed that Spangler was "naive in writing the letter."

Then Anderson jumped on Smith for failing to file with the House a statement of his presidential campaign expenses, and said his publications were seeking to "undermine the war effort." Anderson said they hit at various rationing programs and were outspoken against U. S.-British and U. S.-Russian relations.

DEWEY PROMISES INCOME TAX CUT, ASSAILS 'WASTE'

G.O.P. Nominee Would End Levy on $11 a Week Pay Checks, He Says.

ASKS WIDE REVISION

Favors Peacetime Reduction in Corporation Taxes to Provide More Jobs.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 3 — (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, blaming the "waste and extravagance" of the New Deal for increasing the nation's high wartime tax bill, called tonight for postwar simplification and reduction of individual and business levies to help America "get ahead."

Speaking from the first floor study of the Executive mansion, the G. O. P. presidential nominee told a nationwide radio audience that if a Republican administration is elected it will lift the income tax off the man who makes as little as $11 a week, telescope excise levies and lower corporation imposts, which, he said, now "act as a drag upon production and barrier to jobs."

It was the first campaign address the New York Governor has directed exclusively to a radio audience and preceded a talk to Democratic party workers Thursday night by President Roosevelt.

Declaring that while the nation cheerfully pays high taxes to meet the cost of war, Dewey said that its peacetime objectives of expansion and recovery could not be reached "by taxes which eat into the income of those who are already below a decent American standard of living."

Hits New Deal Tax Laws

Assailing the New Deal for what he said were 15 changes in the revenue laws in 12 years, he proposed this program if the Republicans win in November:

(1) Revision of personal income tax exemptions "so that the man who makes as little as $11 a week no longer has an income tax taken out of his pay envelope."

(2) Reduction of personal income tax rates.

(3) Revision and lowering of the income levy on corporations "until it no longer acts as a drag upon production and a barrier to jobs," with attendant elimination of "special war time taxes which now rise to 95 per cent."

(4) Elimination "as soon as possible of excise taxes, except those on alcoholic beverages, tobacco and gasoline.

(5) Complete overhaul of "existing confused and complicated tax laws" and the creation of "a basic tax law which can be expected to remain simple and generally stable."

(6) Establishment of a "consistent national tax policy—one directed toward achieving full employment and a rising national income."

Dewey said that in the postwar years, with a national debt of 300 billion dollars, large Federal revenues would be needed.

"But it is stupid to suppose," he said, "that we can support our government by levying heavy taxes upon a dwindling national income. Our first aim must be to increase our national income by putting to work all of the productive resources of our country—industry, labor and agriculture."

Favors Low Tax, High Income

It was far better, he said, to have a low tax rate with a national income of 150 billion dollars than to have a high rate with a national income of 76 billion dollars "as we had under the New Deal at its peacetime best."

Observing that "it has reached a point where every time a woman powders her nose, there is a tax of 20 per cent on the powder," Dewey contended that "the taxes we are paying today are not just for the war."

"They also go to pay for the waste and extravagance of the sprawling bureaucracy built up by the New Deal in these last 12 years," he declared.

However necessary these and other taxes were in wartime, Dewey said, "there can be no excuse for them in peace." He said the objective of postwar expansion could not be achieved when a man who makes as little as $11 a week "has an income tax taken out of his pay envelope."

Calling some levies on corporations "almost confiscation," he declared tax laws must be made simple and formed in a pattern so that they could be adjusted from time to time by rate changes without requiring complete annual revision.

Reiterating his previously made charge that the New Deal "managed to make a three year depression last 11 years," Dewey said "our present administration never once established a policy of encouraging people to do business."

"Our tax laws should be the most stable," he declared. "They have been the most unstable."

tonight on "taxes:"

This year more than 50,000,000 Americans are paying income taxes. The man who makes as little as $11 a week now pays an income tax.

So taxes today are mighty important to every one of us. They are important because the amount of taxes taken out of your pay envelope decides how much will be left to take home.

Cites Need for Jobs

Taxes are also important because tax laws can either destroy our job making machinery or can permit it to go to work. And jobs, after the war, will be a first objective of your new national administration.

In speeches over the radio within the past few weeks, I have made constructive proposals for achieving our great objectives for the years ahead. These are some of the things we must do if we are to be successful both here at home after this war and in doing our share in bringing a lasting peace to the world.

As we all know, it took a war to get jobs under the present national administration. The New Deal was in office from 1933 until 1940 when the war finally reduced unemployment. Now, how is it that the New Deal managed to make a three year depression last nearly 11 years? Why, with all its borrowing and spending, with all its emergencies and unlimited powers, were there still 10,000,000 unemployed in the spring of 1940?

Need Stable Tax Laws

One of the most important reasons was that our present administration never once established a policy of encouraging people to do business. It never once had a stable policy that allowed people to make plans, to go ahead and carry them out. Our tax laws should be the most stable. They have been the most unstable. Consider just one startling fact. The New Deal changed our tax laws 15 times in 12 years. It actually passed two revenue acts that were out of date before they could even go into effect, because new laws had been passed in the mean time.

How in the world can people plan ahead when they don't know from one month to the next what their taxes are going to be?

Moreover, under this administration these laws have even been electrical equipment. It employs 1,300 highly skilled and productive workers who have enjoyed high wages for years. In 1941 those 1,300 employes made an average of $5,400 a year. But a Treasury agent went into that plant and announced: "a man who works with his hands should not be paid as much as $5,000 a year."

I have here photostatic copies of the Treasury department notice to the Lincoln company, marking the pay of worker after worker as "excessive."

New Deal Impedes Progress

That is the way the New Deal keeps Americans from getting ahead. That is the way it has been fighting for 12 years against the whole future of our country.

Now, when this war is over, 11,000,000 of our best men and women will be coming home. They will be eager for jobs or an opportunity to start in business for themselves.

Suppose one of these young men wants to set up a little business. He goes to some of his friends who have saved some money and they incorporate. His wife may go with him as secretary-bookkeeper. The first thing she finds out is that she has to be an accountant, a statistician, a lawyer, and a tax expert all at once.

But even the experts cannot advise her how to do business under the New Deal, because they can't understand the laws themselves. I have here a dozen examples. Just listen to this little gem from Section 23 (P) of the present tax law. It says that contributions to employes' pension plans "shall not be deductible under sub-section (A) but shall be deductible, if deductible under sub-section (Q) without regard to this sub-section, under this sub-section, but only to the following extent. . . ." From here on it gets technical.

Taxes Hurt Business

But suppose, in spite of everything, our veteran and his wife do succeed in building up their business and creating some jobs for other people. If they make any profit at all they must hand over to the government $25 out of every $100 the business earns. If they are still more successful, then the government takes $40 out of every hundred. And if they are really very successful under the present tax laws, the government takes $80 out of every hundred. . . .

Of course we cheerfully pay high taxes to meet the cost of war. But the taxes we are paying today are not just for the war. They also go to pay for the waste and extravagance of the sprawling bureaucracy built up by the New Deal in

Text of Dewey's Broadcast

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 3 — (AP) Following is the text of Gov Thomas E. Dewey's radio address used to discourage high wages. Here is an example. The Lincoln Electric company is a long established firm which manufactures these last twelve years.

Even Vice President Henry Wallace has now made a speech urging relief from "excessive taxation" and "excessive government regulation." And who do you think came out in this morning's papers for tax relief for business? Harry Hopkins, whose slogan has been "tax and tax, spend and spend, elect and elect." In other words, the highest New Dealers at last admit that this administration has created an impossible condition which urgently needs repair.

New Deal Has Failed

But they have had plenty of chances. They have had 12 long years of what they now admit is failure. They changed the tax laws 15 times in those twelve years and only made things worse. So they ask for 16 years and promise to do better. Unfortunately, experience shows that they only talk about improving at election time and then forget all about it. That is why it's time for a change.

But this is only part of the story. Not only does the man who makes as little as $11 a week now pay an income tax. But under the New Deal personal income taxes have been raised so that a man with a wife and one child who paid five dollars when the New Deal began, now pays 76 times as much on the same income. In addition, countless hidden sales taxes have been piled onto almost everything we buy or use today. It has reached a point where every time a woman powders her nose there is a tax of 20 per cent on the powder.

One of the first jobs of your new administration which takes office next January 20 will be a revision of our tax laws. We need a whole new point of view. We need an administration which believes in full employment and in opportunity for all. We need tax policy directed toward achieving and maintaining full employment and a rising standard of living for our people.

To that end I propose the following program to take effect immediately after victory is won:

(1) Revise the personal exemptions so that the man who makes as little as $11 a week no longer has an income tax taken out of his pay envelope.

Our objective in the peacetime years must be expansion and recovery. We cannot achieve that objective by taxes which eat into the income of those who are already below a decent American standard of living. However necessary these taxes may be in wartime, there can be no excuse for them in peace.

(2) Reduce personal income tax rates. The tax law now takes at least twenty-three cents out of every taxable dollar after credit for dependents. That cuts the living standard of everyone who lives on a small wage. It would slow up our recovery after the war. We want to speed recovery along.

Will Lower Income Tax

(3) Change and lower the income tax on incorporated business companies until it no longer acts as a drag upon production and a barrier to jobs. The special wartime taxes which now rise to ninety five per cent should end with the war. These taxes, of course, are almost confiscation. If continued after war, they would encourage waste and inefficiency, discourage low cost production, and block the expansion which creates job opportunities.

(4) Shorten the present endless list of excise or nuisance taxes. We should eliminate as soon as possible all excise taxes except those on alcoholic beverages, tobacco, gasoline.

(5) Completely overhaul our existing, confused and complicated tax laws. We must create a basic tax law which can be expected to remain simple and generally stable. It must be one which can be adjusted from time to time by changes in rates, without requiring a complete revision once a year or oftener.

Create Consistent Tax Policy

(6) Establish and proclaim a consistent, national tax policy—one directed toward achieving full employment and a rising national income—one that will assure us of a solvent nation and the ultimate reduction of our national debt.

In the years ahead we face a national debt of $300 billion. We face an annual cost of government, including adequate armed forces, far above the level of pre-war years. Just to meet the interest on this debt and the cost of government we shall need large Federal revenues. But it is stupid to suppose that we can support our government by levying heavy taxes upon a dwindling national income.

Increase National Income

Our first aim must be to increase our national income by putting to work all of the productive resources of our country — industry, labor and agriculture. It is far better to have a low tax rate with a national income of $150 billion, rather than a high tax rate with a national income of $76 billion as we had under the New Deal at its peacetime best. What we want is a thriving, progressive country with jobs for all. We want our tax laws to be stable and understandable, so they will no longer be a road block in the way of progress. We want them to be levied sensibly, with understanding for the human needs of our people.

That kind of tax policy we are going to have. We are going to have the kind of tax laws under which America may once more live and grow. We will have a government which wants to see every American get ahead.

First Lady Doesn't Think Roosevelt Plans A Trip

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today she does not believe that the President will make any extensive campaign trip before the November election.

However, the President's wife told her first press conference since D-day that she does not know the President's campaign plans. Her statements were in response to inquiries.

"I don't think the President is going to take any trip," the First Lady said. "I don't see how he can."

EDITORIAL STIRS SENATOR GREEN

Its Reprint Called Subject to Corrupt Practices Act.

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Basil Brewer, publisher of the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard Times, and Senator Theodore Francis Green (D.-R. I.) exchanged statements today over the publication as an advertisement in other newspapers of a Standard Times editorial, "The Truth of Pearl Harbor."

The Senator, chairman of the Senate committee to investigate campaign expenditures, in a statement released from his office in Providence, R. I., said he had called on Mr. Brewer by letter to explain why the publisher had not reported to the clerk of the House of Representatives the expense involved in publication of the editorial in "several widely circulated newspapers." Mr. Green asserted in his statement that the publications were intended to influence the election of candidates in two or more States and that the expense involved was reportable under the corrupt practices act.

"I have just received a letter," said the publisher, referring to Senator Green's statement, "and I have not had time to consider it fully.

Not Political, Says Brewer.

"The editorial is a re-publication of an editorial which appeared in the Standard Times," Mr. Brewer added, "and is in no sense political, which a careful reading of the editorial itself will disclose, and which Senator Green indicates in his letter." Mr. Brewer referred to a paragraph in the letter which read:

"In fairness to you it is necessary for me to state that careful reading of the copy does not disclose any mention of any candidate in the United States by name."

Senator Green also said:

"Nevertheless, according to my conception of political activity within the meaning of Senate resolution 263 and the Federal practice act, I judge this advertisement to be intended to influence the election of candidates in two or more States."

Mr. Brewer said that the editorial was one of a series in his newspaper bearing on the national welfare.

PLAN TO FREEZE RECONVERSION IN EAST BLASTED

OCT 4 1944

BOSTON, Oct. 4 — (AP) Terming as "characteristic of Hitler" the McCarran Senate Committee plan to freeze reconversion in eleven northeast states, Gov. Leverett Saltonstall tonight stepped out as a vigorous leader against any move to force post-war industry toward the west and south.

Alongside the statement of the Republican Gov. Saltonstall, who declared himself ready to "do everything possible to prevent the 'no conversion plan' aimed at the northeast," there ranged similar reactions from Democratic and Republican governmental and industrial leaders.

Declaring that "along with every good American I despise the spirit of sectionalism," Democratic Gov. J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island said: "I stand ready to work with other New England governor's to protect our common interests."

"This sort of legislation would tend to take away the last vestige of free enterprise," Gov. William H. Wills of Vermont declared and Governor Robert O. Blood of New Hampshire asserted "the freeze would do away with that which has made America great, namely private initiative and the results of efficient management."

Although Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut were the only New England states named as among those affected by the proposed reconversion freeze of $7,000,000,000 worth of government facilities, it was apparent that New England was solidly lined up against the proposals of the committee headed by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev.)

Dudley Harmon, executive vice president of the New England council, issued a statement that the plan "is sectionalism gone mad" but added "the recommendations of this group of Senators — not representatives of the country as a whole — will serve to put New England on the alert."

Declaring that Massachusetts and New England "cannot compete with the West and South in most farm and products of agriculture," Gov. Saltonstall continued:

"We can compete with industry. I will do my best to prevent any such steps through government agencies that will injure our opportunity for full employment of our citizens.

"As I read the proposals of the committee, this means in substance that the government will attempt to dictate to industry where it will go. That is one of the characteristics of Hitler and is one of the principles of government which our boys are fighting against all over the world."

Army Deaths of Disease Are Fraction of Last War's

Only 6 in 10,000 Die, Compared to 141 Then, Lull Announces

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 (AP).—Only about six men in every 10,000 in the Army die of disease now compared with 141 in the first world war, Major General George F. Lull, deputy surgeon general announced today.

In an address before the ninth national assembly of the International College of Surgeons, General Lull said the death rate from all diseases, with the exception of deaths due to influenza epidemic, dropped from 14.1 (per 1,000 Army strength) in World War 1 to 0.6 at the present time.

Dr. Charles M. Griffith, medical director of the Veterans Administration, discussing various benefits to which veterans are entitled, declared:

"There is widespread public ignorance of the fact that monetary awards are made by the Federal government for disability not attributed to armed service; and that hospitalization is offered veterans of any war, including the present one, for disease or injury having no relation to military or naval service."

He said veterans of both world wars who were "permanently and totally disabled" from conditions not incurred in or aggravated by service are entitled to pension payments just as are men so disabled through military service. (Men with only partial disabilities are entitled to pension payments if those disabilities were service-connected.)

FORESEES MESS AT WAR'S END

John T. Flynn Says Crisis Can Be Met and Worsted.

Chicago, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—The condition which will come at the war's end "will be a mess such as this country has never known in all its history and alongside of which the crisis of 1929 and 1933 were mild," John T. Flynn, economist and author, told the Controllers Institute of America today.

Mr. Flynn, in a prepared speech, said he made such a forecast "because I believe that crisis can be met and overcome."

The New Deal, Mr. Flynn said, merely ameliorated the nation's conditions following the stock market crash and the banking crisis, reducing unemployment from 13,000,000 to 8,000,000, "but that ceased to work."

"Then unemployment began to climb again to 9,000,000 in 1938 and to 10,000,000 in 1940, and were on our way to another crisis when the war came," he declared.

"The war is not a crisis. It actually interrupted the crisis. When the war ends will come the crisis toward which we were drifting when the war interrupted it. It will be the same crisis, only many times multiplied by the dislocations created by the war."

This future crisis, Mr. Flynn asserted, can be overcome, "but we must have in charge of the Government sane men and honest men. It will be our last chance to make a decision during the next thirty years."

Mr. Flynn said immediate post-war production of civilian goods for which there is a pent-up demand would in a sense have solved our employment problems "if it were not for the fact that we will have with us something we did not have at the end of the last war."

"We will have a debt of $300,000,000,000," he said. "That debt will go to work on us, on our economic system. The struggle with national debt was the curse of every country in Continental Europe for fifty years before fascism came along.

"Unless the American people have the vision to see and understand how their political system and economic system is being destroyed, and have the courage to drive out of power those who are doing it, they must make up their minds to face a generation of frustration and disorder and crisis."

BRICKER ASSAILS SPENDING BY FDR

CENTRALIA, Ill., Oct. 3—(AP) Gov. John W. Bricker said tonight that even with increased tax income the Federal government has spent more than it collected and declared that continuation of "deficit financing" would mean "an end to representative government and free enterprise in America."

"The most effective way to overthrow our republican form of government in America is to continue the New Deal fiscal policies in the postwar period," he said in an address.

The Republican candidate for Vice-President added "it is high time that every citizen knows where a continuation of the New Deal fiscal policy of spend, waste, borrow and tax will lead our country."

The first result of a continuation of the policy, he said, would be a weakening of the states because "the farther we follow the course of expanding our Federal expenditures and deficit financing, the less will be the resources available for state and local governments."

The second result, the Ohio governor continued, would be "the loss of representative government and free enterprise."

Governor Bricker asserted that "the necessary increase in the public debt caused by war, plus reckless non-war government spending, plus the cost of the tremendous New Deal political organization endangers the solvency of this nation if New Deal prewar policies are continued in the postwar era."

Socialist Senatorial Candidate Sent to Prison on Draft Charge

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Oct. 3—(AP) Arthur Goodwyn Billings, 33, Socialist candidate for Senator from Kansas and former professor of economics at the University of Texas, pleaded guilty today to a charge of failing and refusing to submit to induction in the armed forces and was sentenced to two years in prison.

Billings refused to take the army oath after he had been taken to Fort Leavenworth induction center in August, 1942.

He was placed in the disciplinary barracks and held there twenty-one months pending hearing of his case before the Supreme court. The court upheld his argument that he should be tried as a civilian rather than a soldier inasmuch as he had not yet taken the oath.

After Billings had pleaded guilty Judge J. Foster Syms asked him if he would go into the Army now.

"No, sir, under no circumstances," Billings replied.

"Then you will serve two more years in prison, the Judge said.

Billings had been free on bonds since his release from the barracks four months ago following the court opinion.

Billings had sought Selective Service classification as a conscientious objector but his request was denied by his Kansas draft board. He contended in his Supreme court action he was denied the classification because his objection to war was "rational rather than religious."

PACIFIC WAR PARLEY HELD

Forrestal And Naval Chiefs Confer In San Francisco

San Francisco, Oct. 3 (AP)—New moves in the war to crush Japan—conclusions on strategy that may give life and force to the decisions reached at the historic Roosevelt-Churchill Quebec meetings—were planned by America's naval chiefs and Pacific commanders during a recent San Francisco conference.

Twelfth district naval headquarters officially disclosed today that the conference here was attended by:

JAMES V. FORRESTAL, Secretary of the Navy.

ADMIRAL ERNEST J. KING, commander in chief of the United States fleet.

ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet.

ADMIRAL RAYMOND A. SPRUANCE, fifth fleet commander.

VICE-ADMIRAL D. W. BAGLEY, western sea frontier commander.

VICE-ADMIRAL C. M. COOKE, JR., chief of staff to the fleet commander.

VICE-ADMIRAL AUBREY W. FITCH, deputy chief of naval operations (air).

VICE-ADMIRAL RANDALL JACOBS, chief of naval personnel.

War On Japan Mapped

The official announcement was bare of any detail, stating merely that a conference "on aspects of the campaign against the Japanese" was concluded. But some observers of Pacific war developments felt the Navy Secretary and the array of admirals and their staffs, meeting on the heels of last month's Quebec conferences, mapped future strategy designed to carry out Roosevelt-Churchill plans for the "destruction of the barbarians of the Pacific."

The last previous Pacific war conference took President Roosevelt to Hawaii July 29. There he met with Admiral Nimitz and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander in chief in the southwest Pacific.

Pacific hostilities moved rapidly after the Pearl Harbor conferences. MacArthur's forces drove westward from Dutch New Guinea and landed on Morotai Island, in the Moluccas, only 300 miles south of the Philippines.

Move On Philippines Expected

Nimitz' marines and soldiers of the Wildcat Division smashed their way into the Palau islands, Japan's strongest guardian on the eastern approaches to the Philippines.

A powerful naval task force penetrated Japan's inner defense ring and sent heavy waves of carrier planes over Manila and the islands of the central and southern Philippines.

British carrier planes swept in on Sumatra island on the Japanese's southwest flank.

MacArthur's bombers blasted the southern Philippines and hit into the main islands of the Dutch East Indies.

Some observers believe the San Francisco conference indicates even greater Pacific war developments than those that followed the Honolulu sessions — developments that may take the American flag back into the Philippines and see intensification of naval hostilities closer to the Japanese homeland.

LONDON--FIRST ADD RUSSIAN XXX OF ESTONIA. EUROPE

THE POLISH SPOKESMAN IN LONDON SAID THE MESSAGE FROM WARSAW GAVE NO CLUE AS TO THE LENGTH OF THE TRUCE, BUT SAID THAT FIGHTING WOULD BE RESUMED "UNTIL THE LAST MAN IS KILLED."

AS THE POLISH MILITARY HEADQUARTERS PICTURED THE SITUATION, THE PEOPLE OF THE LONG-SUFFERING CITY HAVE BEEN LIVING IN CELLARS, BENEATH PILES OF RUBBLE, WHILE THE BATTLE ROARED AROUND THE CENTER OF THE CITY.

THERE, IN WARSAW'S CONCENTRATION OF OFFICE AND GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS, STAND THE REMNANTS OF THE RESISTANCE FORCES, PROBABLY NOT MORE THAN THREE DIVISIONS AT MOST, THEY SAID.

POLISH HEADQUARTERS HAS ACKNOWLEDGED THAT RESISTANCE IN ZOLIBORZ, NORTHERN SECTION OF THE CITY, ENDED YESTERDAY WHILE FIGHTING IN MOKOTOW, IN THE SOUTHERN AREA, CEASED ON FRIDAY.

REMNANTS OF THE FORCES IN THESE SECTORS, HEADQUARTERS SAID, PULLED BACK TO JOIN THE DIVISION IN THE CENTER. THE SIZE OF THE UNDERGROUND DIVISION WAS ESTIMATED ORIGINALLY BY THE POLES AT 10,000.

POLISH HEADQUARTERS REFUSED TO DISCLOSE THE LOCATION OF GEN. KOMOROWSKI, BEYOND SAYING THAT HE WAS IN "THE BATTLE AREA."

"WE COULDN'T DISCLOSE HIS HEADQUARTERS," SAID A POLISH LEADER HERE, "FOR THE OBVIOUS REASON THAT BOTH THE GERMANS AND THE RUSSIANS HAVE A PRICE ON HIS HEAD."

THE SOVIET-SPONSORED NATIONAL LIBERATION COMMITTEE HAS DENOUNCED THE NEW COMMANDER IN CHIEF AS A "CRIMINAL."

THE LANDINGS ON HIIU, NORTHERNMOST OF TWO ESTONIAN ISLANDS GUARDING THE APPROACHES TO BOTH THE GULF OF FINLAND AND THE GULF OF RIGA, WERE REPORTED IN A BROADCAST BY THE GERMAN INTERNATIONAL INFORMATION BUREAU HEARD BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

BERLIN SAID GERMAN RESISTANCE WAS AIDED BY NAZI NAVAL CRAFT WHICH ATTEMPTED TO INTERFERE WITH CROSSINGS FROM THE ESTONIAN MAINLAND, A BARE SIX MILES DISTANT, WHERE RED ARMY TROOPS HAD BEEN MASSING FOR A WEEK. BERLIN SAID NOTHING ABOUT THE ISLAND OF SAARE (OSEL) DIRECTLY TO THE SOUTH ACROSS THE MOUTH OF THE GULF OF RIGA.

LONDON, OCT. 3-(AP)-MAJ.GWILYM LLOYD GEORGE, MINISTER OF FUEL, TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TODAY A CRITICAL WINTER LAY AHEAD BECAUSE OF A 25 PERCENT INCREASE IN "VOLUNTARY ABSENTEEISM" AMONG COAL MINERS.

THE SON OF THE FORMER PRIME MINISTER REPORTED PRODUCTION HAD FALLEN ABOUT 100,000 TONS A WEEK SINCE THE WAGE INCREASES OF LAST APRIL, LARGELY BECAUSE OF ABSENTEEISM.

"THOUGH THERE HAVE BEEN NO REGIONAL STOPPAGES DURING THE LAST SIX MONTHS," HE SAID, "THERE HAS BEEN A LARGE NUMBER OF LOCAL AND UNOFFICIAL STOPPAGES....THE ONLY REAL AND IMMEDIATE REMEDY LIES IN THE HANDS OF THE MINERS."

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
LONDON, OCT. 3-(AP)-OPPORTUNITIES FOR EXHAUSTIVE TESTS UNDER COMBAT CONDITIONS MAY WELL PREPARE THE REVOLUTIONARY JET-PROPELLED PLANE FOR AN IMMEDIATE PLACE IN PEACETIME AVIATION, IN THE OPINION OF MANY AIR EXPERTS.

THE ALLIES AND NAZIS NOW HAVE JET PLANES IN OPERATION. BEFORE THE WAR WITH GERMANY ENDS IT IS CONCEIVABLE THAT GREAT DOGFIGHTS MAY TAKE PLACE BETWEEN THESE PROPELLORLESS SHIPS, DRIVEN AT INCREDIBLE SPEEDS.

BRITISH JET-PLANES ALREADY HAVE BEEN IN ACTION AGAINST THE GERMAN FLYING BOMBS AND HAVE PROVED HIGHLY EFFECTIVE. THERE HAS BEEN NO OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT, HOWEVER, THAT THE ALLIES HAVE BEEN USING JET PLANES ON ESCORT DUTY WITH THEIR HEAVY BOMBERS.

GERMANY'S USE OF THE JET PRINCIPLE IN THE ROBOT BOMBS AND IN SOME TYPES OF FIGHTERS NOW ON COMBAT SERVICE INDICATES HER DEVELOPMENT OF THE FIRST SUCH ENGINE PRODUCED IN BRITAIN WAS FLOWN IN 1937. AMERICA HAS BEEN EXPERIMENTING WITH JET PLANES FOR AT LEAST A YEAR AND NOW IS REPORTED READY FOR MASS PRODUCTION OF THE COMPARATIVELY SIMPLE ENGINES.

ALLIED FIGHTER AND BOMBER PILOTS TELL OF ENCOUNTERING TWO TYPES OF GERMAN JET PLANES. THEY ARE MEETING THEM IN INCREASING NUMBERS--IN GROUPS AS LARGE AS 20 AND 30.

THERE IS A SINGLE-ENGINED TYPE DESCRIBED AS ALMOST ALL WING AND RESEMBLING A HUGE BAT. THERE ALSO IS A TWIN-ENGINED FIGHTER BOMBER REPORTED BEING USED TO ATTACK GROUND FORCES. IT CARRIES TWO 500-POUND BOMBS. BOTH TYPES HAVE ESTIMATED LEVEL SPEEDS OF BETWEEN 500 AND 600 MILES AN HOUR, BUT ARE BEST NOTED FOR THEIR AMAZING RATE OF CLIMB.

PILOTS SAY THE NAZI VERSIONS LACK MANEUVERABILITY AND BECAUSE OF HIGH FUEL CONSUMPTION CAN REMAIN IN FLIGHT ONLY AN HOUR OR TWO. THE JET PROPULSION MECHANISM ON THE FLYING BOMB CREATED 500 HORSEPOWER, WHICH DROVE THE 4,700-POUND PROJECTILE 360 MILES AN HOUR. IT HAD SPACE FOR 130 GALLONS OF GASOLINE, ABSORBING THE FUEL AT EIGHT TIMES THE RATE OF A NORMAL AIRPLANE ENGINE.

IN THE LAST FIVE MONTHS PILOTS HAVE OBSERVED NO OUTWARD CHANGES IN THE GERMAN STANDARD MODELS--THE ME-109 AND FW-190--INDICATING THAT THE NAZIS HAVE CONCENTRATED ON PRODUCING THE FAST JET PLANES FOR THE FINAL SHOWDOWN AERIAL BATTLES.

THE GERMAN CRAFT SO FAR HAVE NOT BEEN TOO SUCCESSFUL AGAINST ALLIED BOMBER FORMATIONS AND FIGHTERS, BUT THE LONDON TIMES WARNS THAT THEIR "LACK OF SUCCESS IS DUE ALMOST ENTIRELY TO THE GERMAN PILOTS' LACK OF EXPERIENCE IN HANDLING AN AIRCRAFT WHICH CAN TRAVEL AT ALMOST THE SPEED OF SOUND."

LONDON, OCT 3-(AP)-BRITAIN TODAY RENEWED HER PLEDGE TO FERRET OUT WAR CRIMINALS FOR PUNISHMENT AND DISCLOSED THAT PATROLS HAD EVERY POSSIBLE ESCAPE ROUTE FROM EUROPE UNDER STRICT SURVEILLANCE TO PREVENT THEIR ESCAPE TO NEUTRAL COUNTRIES.

"USE IS BEING MADE OF THE PASSENGER AND CREW PATROL TO ENSURE THAT THEY SHALL NOT SUCCEED IN ESCAPING OVERSEAS."

LONDON, OCT 3-(AP)-THE BERLIN RADIO SAID TODAY THAT CARDINAL EDERICO TEDESCHINI, PAPAL NUNCIO TO SPAIN JUST BEFORE THE SPANISH IVIL WAR, WOULD BECOME THE VATICAN'S SECRETARY OF STATE. THERE AS NO WORD OF SUCH A DEVELOPMENT FROM THE VATICAN, HOWEVER.

LONDON, OCT. 3-(AP)-APPLICATIONS FOR HOME LEAVES BY BRITISH SOLDIERS SERVING IN THE MIDDLE EAST SO THEY CAN START FAMILIES BEFORE THEIR WIVES GET TOO OLD HAVE REACHED AN "UNMANAGEABLE NUMBER," WAR MINISTER SIR JAMES GRIGG TOLD COMMONS TODAY.

TWO MONTHS AGO AN ORDER WAS ISSUED THAT APPLICATIONS WOULD BE CONSIDERED FROM MEN WITH THREE YEARS SERVICE IN THE MIDDLE EAST WHO WISHED TO RETURN TO BRITAIN TO START FAMILIES. REQUESTS POURED IN. LAST MONTH IT WAS NECESSARY TO AMEND THE ORDER TO CONFINE THESE LEAVES TO CASES WHERE THE WIVES WERE OVER 35, CHILDLESS AND DESIROUS AND CAPABLE OF BEARING CHILDREN.

GRIGG SAID SOME MISUNDERSTANDING AS TO THOSE ENTITLED TO APPLY FOR SUCH LEAVES HAD RESULTED IN THE RUSH OF APPLICATIONS.

U.S. 9TH AIR FORCE ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, OCT 10-(AP)-ALL PLANES OF THE U.S. 9TH AIR FORCE, LARGEST TACTICAL AIR FORCE IN THE WORLD, ARE OPERATING NOW FROM BASES ON THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT WITHIN RANGE OF GERMANY, IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY.

MARAUDER MEDIUM BOMBERS, SOME OF THE LAST TO BE SHIFTED FROM BRITISH TO CONTINENTAL FIELDS, ARE INCLUDED IN THE 9TH AIR FORCE, ALONG WITH HAVOC DIVEBOMBERS, FIGHTERBOMBERS, BLACK WIDOW NIGHT FIGHTERS, AND MUSTANG, LIGHTNING AND THUNDERBOLT FIGHTERS.

FLYING THEIR FIRST OPERATION FROM CONTINENTAL FIELDS EXCLUSIVELY, MARAUDERS AND HAVOCS JOINED FIGHTER BOMBERS YESTERDAY IN BATTERING GERMAN STRONGPOINTS IN THE AACHEN AREA AHEAD OF THE NEW PUSH BY THE U.S. FIRST ARMY.

THE TREMENDOUS JOB OF MOVING WAS ACCOMPLISHED WITH A MINIMUM LOSS OF OPERATIONAL TIME.

A MARAUDER GROUP COMMANDED BY COL.WILSON R.WOOD OF CHICO, TEXAS, WAS THE FIRST ALLIED BOMBARDMENT GROUP TO OPERATE FROM FRANCE SINCE 1940. IT SET THE PATTERN FOR OTHER MEDIUM BOMBER OUTFITS IN MOVING FROM ENGLAND. MOST OF THE GROUND PERSONNEL AND ALL HEAVY EQUIPMENT CROSSED THE CHANNEL IN LSTS. SKELETON CREWS REMAINED BEHIND TO HELP WITH THE LAST MISSIONS FLYING FROM ENGLISH BASES.

AIRSTRIPS CONSTRUCTED IN THE EARLY DAYS OF THE INVASION NOW ARE FAR BEHIND THE FRONT. MOST BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS ARE OPERATING FROM FRENCH AIRFIELDS CAPTURED FROM THE GERMANS, ALTHOUGH FACILITIES ARE LIMITED BY BOMBINGS WHICH SOME OF THE AMERICAN AIRMEN PRESENT ADMINISTERED.

"WE DIDN'T KNOW HOW LUCKY WE WERE IN ENGLAND WHEN WE HAD PERMANENT INSTALLATIONS," SAID MAJ.JAMES E.WOMELDORFF, 111 W.SECOND ST., LITTLE ROCK, ARK., A SQUADRON EXECUTIVE OFFICER. "BUT THE BOYS HAVE ADAPTED THEMSELVES VERY WELL TO FIELD CONDITIONS."

GROENSTRAAT, HOLLAND, OCT 3-(AP)-THE POWERFUL DRIVE OF LT.GEN. COURTNEY H.HODGES' FIRST ARMY CRASHED THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE TODAY NORTH OF AACHEN AND OPENED A SECOND MAJOR BREAK IN HITLER'S WESTWALL DEFENSES.

IN A SPECTACULAR 36-HOUR DRIVE, TROOPS UNDER THE DIRECT COMMAND OF LT.COL.ERNEST FRANKLAND, OF JACKSON, TENN., AND SPEARHEADED BY A UNIT UNDER CAPT.ROBERT SPIKER OF WEST VIRGINIA, FOUGHT THEIR WAY THROUGH A BELT OF CONCRETE FORTS AND PENETRATED FOUR MILES TOWARD THE RHINE.

BATTLING HOUSE TO HOUSE, THE DOUGHBOYS TOOK UBACH, WHILE TO THE SOUTH ANOTHER UNIT CAPTURED THE 12TH CENTURY MOATED CASTLE OF RIMBERG, WHICH THE GERMANS HAD TURNED INTO A STRONGHOLD.

THE DOUGHBOYS KNOCKED OUT 39 PILLBOXES AND CAPTURED BETWEEN 400 AND 500 PRISONERS IN BREACHING THE LINE. BEYOND THE POINT OF PENETRATION THERE ARE OTHER DEFENSES, BUT THEY ARE NEW FORTIFICATIONS HASTILY THROWN UP IN ANTICIPATION OF THE TIME WHEN GEN.HODGES' ARMY MIGHT COME SMASHING THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED DEFENSES.

"WE ARE DEFINITELY THROUGH THE OLD SIEGFRIED LINE," AN ARMY OFFICER DECLARED. "WE HAVE A SECOND MAJOR BREACH. THERE ARE STILL FORTIFICATIONS AND ANTI-TANK DEFENSES AHEAD OF US WHICH THE GERMANS HAVE BUILT RECENTLY."

THE FIRST GAP WAS DRIVEN THROUGH THE WESTWALL SOUTH OF AACHEN BY THE FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION. THE NEW BREAKTHROUGH ALMOST PLACED THE AMERICANS ASTRIDE A MAIN HIGHWAY RUNNING NORTH FROM AACHEN.

HITLER'S ORDERS TO HIS TROOPS TO STAND OR DIE FAILED TO HALT THE FORWARD SURGE OF THE DOUGHBOYS, JUST AS THE SAME ORDERS FAILED ON THE BEACHES OF NORMANDY, AT CHERBOURG AND AT ST.LO. PROGRESS WAS HARD BUT STEADY AGAINST AN ENEMY ORDERED TO STAND OR BE SHOT.

AMERICAN OFFICERS SAID HITLER HAD ORDERED THAT ANY MAN RETREATING BE SHOT, AND THAT IF AN ENTIRE COMPANY SHOULD FALL BACK, ONE MAN IN EVERY 10 BE SHOT.

JUST SOUTH OF THE BREACH, THE AMERICAN TROOPS WERE HAVING TOUGHER GOING AGAINST ENEMY POSITIONS DUG IN STRONGLY SOUTH OF PALENBURG.

THE DOUGHBOYS FOUGHT SLOWLY THROUGH THE WOODS EAST OF THE MAIN NORTH-SOUTH RAILWAY FROM AACHEN, WHILE A TASK FORCE UNDER COMMAND OF LT.COL.DANSEL QUINN, OF ST.AUGUSTINE, FLA., WHEELED THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED GAP AND THEN TURNED SOUTH TO OUTFLANK THIS STUBBORN RESISTANCE.

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, OCT 3-(AP)-BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS HAVE SMASHED GERMAN CONCENTRATIONS OF TANKS AND INFANTRY MASSED FOR A HEAVY BLOW SOUTH OF ARNHEM. THE AIR ASSAULT LEFT THE NAZIS ABLE TO MUSTER ONLY WEAK JOBS THAT FAILED TO DENT THE BRITISH LINES.

SOUTH OF NIJMEGEN THE BRITISH DROVE SHARPLY SOUTH AND EAST IN A FIVE-MILE ADVANCE AND TOOK THE LITTLE VILLAGE OF MEJEL, EIGHT MILES FROM THE MAAS (MEUSE) RIVER.

WHILE THE SITUATION ESSENTIALLY IS UNCHANGED AT ARNHEM AND NIJMEGEN WITH RESPECT TO THE LINES, ALLIED AIR POWER STEADILY IS DRAINING THE STRENGTH OF THE ENEMY THROUGH A VAST RAIL CUTTING PROGRAM.

BEFORE METZ, OCT.3-(AP)-FLAME-THROWING DOUGHBOYS WERE REPORTED TONIGHT TO HAVE FOUGHT THEIR WAY ACROSS THE MOAT AND INTO FORT DRIANT, MAIN BASTION IN THE FORTRESS CHAIN GUARDING METZ ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE MOSELLE RIVER. THE ATTACK WAS PRECEDED BY A MASSIVE ARTILLERY BARRAGE WHICH TOUCHED OFF GREAT FIRES AND EXPLOSIONS.

THE BARRAGE HAD KEPT THE ENEMY'S ARTILLERY SILENT, BUT ADVANCING INFANTRY ENCOUNTERED HEAVY MACHINEGUN FIRE FROM GERMAN EMPLACEMENT.

WHILE THE DOUGHBOYS STORMED THE FORT, U.S. DIVEBOMBERS MAINTAINED A HEAVY ASSAULT ON SUPPORTING FORTS ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOSELLE BELOW METZ.

THE DIVE BOMBERS SMASHED AT FORTIFICATIONS KNOWN AS THE "VERDUN FORTS," WHICH HAVE PREVENTED AMERICANS FROM CUTTING AROUND BEHIND METZ.

SHORTLY AFTER THE FIRST WAVE OF DOUGHBOYS STORMED ACROSS THE MOAT INTO DRIANT, GERMAN PRISONERS, MANY OF THEM BADLY INJURED, BEGAN STREAMING TO THE REAR. AT THE SAME TIME ENEMY FORCES ATTEMPTING TO ESCAPE FROM THE FORT ACROSS THE MOSELLE WERE CAUGHT BY THE ARTILLERY AND ANNIHILATED.

CAPTURE OF FORT DRIANT WOULD GIVE LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S TROOPS A DOMINATING POSITION FROM WHICH POINT BLANK FIRE COULD BE POURED INTO METZ.

LAST WEEK THE AMERICANS HAD FOUGHT THEIR WAY TO THE BRIDGE ACROSS THE MOAT AND WERE THROWN BACK BY COUNTERATTACKS.

DRIANT, PART OF AN ALREADY FORMIDABLE CHAIN HAD BEEN VASTLY STRENGTHENED IN RECENT YEARS. THIRD ARMY TROOPS GAINED HIGH GROUND TODAY ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE MOSELLE RIVER NORTHWEST OF METZ WHILE THE 19TH TACTICAL AIR FORCE HAD A FIELD DAY AGAINST ENEMY COMMUNICATIONS DEEP BEHIND THE FRONT LINE.

THE AIRMEN ANNOUNCED DESTRUCTION OF 50 MOTOR TRANSPORTS, 29 LOCOMOTIVES, 150 FREIGHT CARS, THREE BRIDGES, 38 GUN POSITIONS AND FOUR VESSELS AS WELL AS CLOSING OF THREE TUNNELS AND CUTTING OF RAILWAYS IN 29 PLACES.

WITH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY IN FRANCE, OCT. 3-(AP)-"THEY'RE NO LONGER DELAYING--THEY'RE DEFENDING," THE OFFICER SAID AS HE FLUNG HIS ARM

TOWARD THE HIGH RIDGES BEYOND GRANDVILLERS WHERE THE GERMANS ONCE AGAIN HAVE TAKEN UP POSITIONS.

THIS OFFICER WAS A NEW OFFICER, BUT HE HAD PUT HIS FINGER SQUARELY ON WHAT THE GERMANS WERE DOING. IT WAS EIGHT O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING AND AMERICANS WERE CARRYING AWAY THE GERMAN DEAD FROM THE STREETS AND HOUSES OF THIS RELATIVELY UNIMPORTANT ROAD JUNCTION TOWN OF GRANDVILLERS WHICH HAD WITNESSED A THREE-DAY FIGHT BETWEEN THE DEFENDING NAZIS AND ATTACKING AMERICANS.

GRANDVILLERS IS IMPORTANT TO THE FORWARD MOVEMENT OF THE WHOLE AMERICAN LINE. IF YOU LOOK AT A GOOD ROAD MAP, YOU CAN SEE WHERE TWO VITAL ROADS "FORM" AT THIS POINT, ONE LEADING NORTHWEST TO RAMBERVILLERS THE OTHER NORTHEAST TO SAINT DIE.

AFTER THE FIRST DAY OF FIGHTING, AN AMERICAN INFANTRY UNIT HAD ITS COMMAND POST IN THE WEST END OF THE NEAR TOWN, WHILE THE GERMANS REMAINED ON ITS EAST SIDE.

THE AMERICANS BROKE INTO THE OUTSKIRTS IN SQUADS SUPPORTED BY TANKS. AS ONE HOUSE WAS KNOCKED OUT BY TANK FIRE, THE AMERICANS WOULD OCCUPY IT. SOMETIMES THE GERMANS WOULD TAKE THE RUINED HOUSES AND THE AMERICANS WOULD BE KICKED BACK INTO THE STREETS. AT OTHER TIMES, THE GERMANS WOULD INFILTRATE BACK INTO AREAS WHICH HAD BEEN SWEPT CLEAN OF ENEMY AND SET UP MACHINE GUNS IN THE TOP ROOMS OF THE SHATTERED HOUSES AND SUDDENLY RAIN FIRE ON ANYTHING THAT MOVED BELOW.

THE GERMANS ALSO HAD TANKS IN THE TOWN, PLANTED IN POSITIONS IN THE CASSINO, IN HOTEL LOBBIES AND IN CONVENIENT LARGE BUILDINGS.

AFTER THE BATTLE, MORE THAN 100 GERMANS LAY DEAD WHERE THEY HAD FALLEN, AND 180 LIVE ONES WERE MARCHED AWAY TO PRISONER OF WAR CAGES.

PARIS, OCT. 3-(AP)-FOUR YEARS OF GERMAN OCCUPATION HAVE CHANGED LITTLE IN PARIS FASHION SHOWS.

DESPITE OCCUPATION RESTRICTIONS, EXTREMELY HARD WORKING CONDITIONS, ABSENCE OF ELECTRICITY AND SCARCITY OF TRANSPORT AND MATERIAL, THE SECOND DAY OF PARIS' FIRST LIBERATION STYLE SHOWINGS BROUGHT THE SAME ELEGANT CROWDS. BEAUTIFUL MANNEQUINS WERE -- IF POSSIBLE -- A TRIFLE SLIMMER.

HOWEVER, A WARTIME NOTE CREPT INTO SHOWINGS AT THE ARISTOCRATIC HOUSE OF BRUYERE ON PLACE VENDOME. THERE WERE NO EVENING DRESSES.

KEYNOTE OF THE MADAM BRUYERE SHOW WAS FLUTED SKIRTS, FROCKS WITH NARROW BELTING, AND SWING COATS. HER COLORS ARE AUTUMN SHADES: DARK RED, GRAY, ALL BROWN SHADES AND A FEW GREENS. MILITARY INFLUENC IS EVIDENT IN A SMART PLEATED GREEN SILK DRESS WITH CAP TO MATCH, INSPIRED BY A SCOTTISH UNIFORM. THERE WAS A RUSSIAN NOTE IN THE STYLE OF COATS AND TRIMMINGS OF BLACK PERSIAN LAMB.

SPORTING COSTUMES HAVE THREE-QUARTER LONG SWAGGER COATS AND PLEATED SKIRTS JUST COVERING THE KNEES -- A TRIFLE LONGER THAN SUMMER SKIRTS.

AFTERNOON GOWNS APPEARED VERY DISCREET IN MATERIALS SUCH AS BLACK VELVET AND CREPE MAROQUAIN. BRUYERE SHOWED BECOMINGLY COMFORTABLE LONG TEAGOWNS IN SOFT, WARM MATERIALS.

THE SHOW HAD A STRIKING OPENING -- A TEAGOWN CALLED "LA MARSEILLAISE," A LONG WAISTFROCK OF SOFT SILK WITH WIDE RED SLEEVES AND BLUE SCARF, CREATING A TRICOLOR EFFECT.

THE SINGLE ECCENTRIC BIT WAS A BLACK DRESS OF STIFF BROCADE SILK, WITH PUFFED SLEEVES AND A SMALL WHITE FEATHER HAT ENDING IN A LARGE SNOOD OF BLACK VELVET.

PARIS,OCT.3-(AP)-UNDERGROUND DESIGNS EXECUTED BY AN AMERICAN GIRL DURING THE GERMAN OCCUPATION WERE AMONG THE STYLES EXHIBITED TODAY AS PARIS SWUNG INTO ITS FIRST LIBERATION FASHION SHOWS.

THE CLANDESTINE STYLE IS THE WORK OF ANNI K.MOULTON, FRENCH-BORN AMERICAN CITIZEN AND CHIEF DESIGNER FOR MADELEINE DE RAUCH. SHE ESCAPED INTERNMENT DURING THE OCCUPATION BY CHANGING HER ADDRESS FREQUENTLY AND WORKING BEHIND LOCKED DOORS.

THE HOUSE OF DE RAUCH, KNOWN FOR SPORTS AND TAILORED STYLES, BROUGHT OUT A REPERTOIRE OF COLORFUL AND ELEGANT BUT PRACTICAL CLOTHES. THE DISPLAY WAS, ON THE ONE HAND, AN EFFORT TO MAKE A SPECTAC LAR SHOWING, DESPITE THE HANDICAPS IN MATERIAL AND LABOR, AND, ON THE OTHER AN EFFORT TO BE RESTRAINED AND PRACTICAL LEST THE WORLD MISCONSTRUE IT TO BE UNSEEMING FRIVOLITY AND LUXURY AMID THE RIGORS OF WAR.

THE MILITARY INFLUENCE WAS CONSPICUOUS IN THE NEW MODES. FOR EXAMPLE, ARMY WATERPROOFS WERE COPIED EXACTLY IN A PUMICE-COLORED RAINCOAT LINED AND COLLARED IN GRAY OPOSSUM.

MISS MOULTON COMBINED THE STRICTLY CLASSICAL DOUBLE-BREASTED TAILOR-MADE GRAY WOOL SUIT WITH A FANCIFUL BLOUSE OF GAY PAISLEY, WITH SHORT SLEEVES AND DRAPED NECKLINE. THE SUIT IS TRIMMED WITH A MARTINGALE BELT, UNDERCOLLAR, POCKET FLAPS AND CUFF ENDS.

UNLIKE THE MAJORITY OF FASHION HOUSE FORECASTS, DE RAUCH FAVORS A PENCIL SILHOUETTE, AND SKIRTS GIVING FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT FOR CYCLING BY WIDE INVERTED PLEATS STITCHED 12 INCHES FROM THE HEM.

A GOOD ENSEMBLE WAS A GRAY, FANCY WOOL JERSEY DRESS WITH STRAIGHT TAILORED LINES, BUTTONED IN FRONT, WITH A FINISHED SIX-INCH WIDE RUST-RED WOOL SASH. OVER THIS GOES A SQUARE-SHOULDERED RUST-WOOL BOX COAT WITH WIDE-STITCHED SEAMS, LINED IN GRAY FUR.

PARIS, AUGUST 27-(DELAQED)-(AP)-THERE WAS NO MORE HAPPINESS IN ALL THIS LIBERATED CITY TODAY THAN IN THE PARIS BEAUJON HOSPITAL, WHERE 13 AMERICAN YOUTHS ARE WAITING EAGERLY FOR SOMEONE TO COME AND GET THEM STARTED ON THEIR WAY HOME.

OCT 4 1944

THERE ARE MANY AMERICANS IN PARIS HOSPITALS, MOST OF THEM FLIERS WHO WERE INJURED WHEN THEIR PLANES CRASHED OVER FRANCE.

A FEW ARE INFANTRYMEN WOUNDED AND THEN CAPTURED IN THE BATTLES AS THE AMERICAN FORCES MOVED TOWARD PARIS.

THE BIGGEST CONCERN OF THE GROUP I VISITED AT THE BEAUJON HOSPITAL WAS THAT THEY WANTED THEIR FAMILIES TO KNOW THEY WERE SAFE AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

OCT 4 1944

THESE BOYS WOULD BE IN GERMANY TODAY AS PRISONERS HAD IT NOT BEEN FOR THE COURAGE AND RESOURCEFULNESS OF F.F.I. MEN WHO SPIRITED MOST OF THEM FROM THE HOSPITAL AND HID THEM IN CELLARS, ATTICS AND TUNNELS A FEW HOURS BEFORE THE GERMANS WERE TO EVACUATE THEM ALONG WITH THE GERMAN WOUNDED. THE GERMANS TOOK 1,000 PATIENTS FROM THIS ONE HOSPITAL ALONE.

LATER THE FRENCH TOOK OVER THE HOSPITAL AND CIVILIANS VOLUNTEERED TO HELP. NEIGHBORS BROUGHT IN WINE, CANDY, FLOWERS AND WHOLESOME FOOD.

ONE OF THE BOYS SAID, "MY BIG WORRY IS THAT MY FOLKS WON'T KNOW WHAT HAPPENED TO ME. THEY HAVE BEEN TOLD I AM MISSING IN ACTION AND I KNOW MAMA IS WORRIED ALMOST TO DEATH. I SURE HOPE THEY GET WORD TO HER SOON THAT I'M ALL RIGHT AND WILL BE HOME BEFORE LONG."

THOSE IN THE HOSPITAL WERE:

LT.FRANK LUDWIG, (841 41ST STREET) WEST LOS ANGELES, CALIF.; LT.JAMES ANDERSON, ILION, N.Y.; TECH SGT.LEE FIELDS, SHERIDAN, WYOM.; TECH SGT, MARION CHURCH, HUNTERTOWN, IND.; TECH.SGT.LEO CANNON, CLAYTON, GA.; PFC. ROME, OCT.3-(AP)-THE GOVERNMENT OF PREMIER IVANOE BONOMI, UPON "ADVICE" OF THE ALLIED CONTROL COMMISSION, HAS POSTPONED INDEFINITELY A SPECIAL INVESTIGATION INTO CAUSES OF THE SWIFT ITALIAN CAPITULATION OF ROME TO THE GERMANS AFTER ITALY'S

ARMISTICE WITH THE ALLIES AUG.9, 1943.

OCT 4 1944

THE COMMISSION WAS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE TOLD THE ITALIANS IT CONSIDERED THE INVESTIGATION -- WHICH PROMISED FAR-REACHING POLITICAL CONSEQUENCES -- INADVISABLE AT A TIME WHEN MANY WITNESSES WERE IN NORTHERN ITALY AND WHEN IT MIGHT HAVE HARMFUL EFFECTS ON THE MORALE OF ITALIAN ARMED FORCES.

THE INVESTIGATION, WHICH MOST LIKELY WOULD HAVE RAISED QUESTIONS OF THE RESPONSIBILITY OF KING VICTOR EMANUEL AND FORMER PREMIER PIETRO BADOGLIO FOR MILITARY EVENTS, WAS TO HAVE BEEN CONDUCTED BY A NINE-MAN COMMISSION COMPOSED OF THREE GENERALS AND ONE REPRESENTATIVE OF EACH OF SIX POLITICAL PARTIES IN THE BONOMI GOVERNMENT.

RAPID DEPARTURE OF BADOGLIO AND THE ROYAL FAMILY FROM ROME AFTER ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE ARMISTICE HAS BEEN ATTACKED SHARPLY BY MANY SECTIONS OF THE ITALIAN PRESS AS DEFECTION AT THE CRUCIAL HOUR. ANTI-MONARCHISTS HAVE MADE THE KING'S DEPARTURE ONE OF THE KEY POINTS OF THEIR W CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE MONARCHY.

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, KANDY, CEYLON, OCT 3-(AP)-INDIAN TROOPS WHICH HAVE CUT IN BEHIND JAPANESE POSITIONS AT TIDDIM IN WESTERN BURMA AND ARE MENACING THE ENEMY'S MAIN EXIT FROM THE CHIN HILLS ARE NOW WITHIN TWO MILES OF THE VILLAGE, ALLIED HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

OTHER ALLIED FORCES WERE REPORTED CLOSING IN SLOWLY FROM THE NORTH, IN CONTACT WITH RETREATING JAPANESE REARGUARDS.

IT WAS REPORTED THE JAPANESE GARRISON COMMANDER HAD SENT AN URGENT APPEAL FOR MORE GUNS TO SUPPORT HIS POSITION.

BAD WEATHER, MEANWHILE, RESTRICTED ALLIED AERIAL OPERATIONS IN THE BURMA THEATER.

KWEILIN, CHINA, OCT 1-(DELAYED)-(AP)-CAPT.DON QUINN OF (502 ALLESON AVENUE) ROANOKE, VA., A MEMBER OF THE BITTER END CLUB AT AN AMERICAN AIRBASE HERE, HAS INVENTED A NEW KIND OF REVEILLE FOR HIS COMRADES--TWO POUNDS OF TNT FUSED AND PLACED JUST CLOSE ENOUGH TO THEIR HOSTEL BUILDING TO JOLT THEM OUT OF THEIR SLUMBER.

QUINN, ONE OF THE CREW LEFT AT THIS BASE, TRIED OUT A HALF-POUND BLOCK OF TNT YESTERDAY MORNING AND UPPED THE QUANTITY OF EXPLOSIVE THIS MORNING. IT'S A SUREFIRE METHOD OF WAKING PEOPLE, BUT HARD ON THE NERVES, WHAT WITH THE JAPANESE SO CLOSE.

IT WAS THE FIRST BLOW THIS YEAR ON THAT BIG BASE.

THE RAID TIED IN WITH JAPANESE BROADCASTS WHICH HINT THAT NIPPON IS PINCHED FOR VITAL OIL SUPPLIES. THESE BROADCASTS REPORTED INTENTION OF THE GOVERNMENT TO CREATE A SINGLE SYNTHETIC OIL CONTROL COMBINE IN JAPAN, KOREA AND MANCHURIA "TO BOOST PRODUCTION."

THE SMASH AT BALIKPAPAN FOLLOWED A RECENT SERIES OF AIR ATTACKS ON JAPANESE OIL INSTALLATIONS ON THE ISLANDS OF BOEROE AND CERAM.

THE JAPANESE SENT UP 30 INTERCEPTORS AND THE AMERICANS DESTROYED SEVEN OF THEM. THREE OF THE BIG BOMBERS WERE LOST.

THE RAIDERS HIT THE OIL STORAGE CENTER, CURTAILING THE SUPPLIES OF THE JAPANESE.

THE LIBERATORS CARRIED 74 TONS OF BOMBS THAT APPARENTLY DID HEAVY DAMAGE TO THE BALIKPAPAN INSTALLATIONS.

IN ADDITION TO THE RAID ON BORNEO, A NAVY LIBERATOR DESTROYED OR DAMAGED SEVEN SEAPLANES, THREE BOMBERS AND A FLYING BOAT IN A RAID ON ZAMBOANGA, SOUTHERN PHILIPPINES, SUNDAY.

THE UNIT WENT INTO ACTION LAST MARCH AND HAS LOST TWO MEN--BOTH OVER TRUK-CPL.GENE ROMINE, JUNEAU, ALASKA, AND CPL.JOHN MEDIALDEA, HUNTINGTON PARK,CALIF.

LT.THOMAS M.SCOTT, VETERAN HOLLYWOOD PARAMOUNT FILM EDITOR, IS IN CHARGE OF A UNIT COVERING FIGHTERS AND MEDIUM BOMBERS. HE HAS FILMED YAP, MOENFOOR AND SANSOPAR THROUGH ACKACK DURING BOMB GUNS. HE IS AIDED BY FIRST LT.HUGH L.WADE, OF HOLLYWOOD. ONE DAY AT LOS NEGROS ISLAND WADE WENT WITH AN INFANTRY JUNGLE PATROL, CAME BACK WITH SEVERAL HUNDRED FEET OF JUNGLE FIGHTING FILM AND A JAPANESE PRISONER. TWO OTHER AIRFORCE CAMERAMEN ACCOMPANIED HIM, SGT. RICHARD HERSHEY, PITTSBURGH,PA., AND SGT.JOHN IRWIN, ROCKVILLE CENTER, LONG ISLAND,N.Y.

SGT.WILLIAM ROGISTER, BOSTON, AND CPL.HAL KENT, NEW YORK, A FORMER CBS RADIO ANNOUNCER, ARE WITH THE UNIT.

IN THE HEAVY BOMBER GROUP, WHICH HAS FILMED RAIDS AT WOLEAI, YAP, PALAU, HALMAHERAS AND CERAM, IS CPL.BERN BARTHELEMY, DECATUR,ILL., WHO HAS 100 COMBAT HOURS.

AN ADVANCED SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AIRBASE, WEDNESDAY, OCT.4-(AP)-LIBERATORS WHICH STRUCK SATURDAY AT BALIKPAPAN, THE SOURCE OF MORE THAN 15 PER CENT OF THE ENTIRE JAPANESE OIL SUPPLY, CARRIED A RECORD LOAD FOR A SUCH A DISTANCE, ARMY OFFICIALS DISCLOSED TODAY.

SOME OF THE BIG SHIPS RETURNED TO THIS BASE ON THEIR LAST FEW DROPS OF GASOLINE. THE POINT OF TAKEOFF AND DISTANCE COVERED WERE NOT SPECIFIED.

THE HUGE BOMBERS WERE IN THE AIR FOR MORE THAN 15 HOURS ACCOMPLISHING THE FIRST GREAT DAYLIGHT STRIKE OF LAND-BASED HEAVY PLANES AGAINST THE RICH BORNEO OIL CENTER.

COL. THOMAS MUSGRAVE OF THE 13TH AIRFORCE'S FAMOUS "BOMBER BARONS," SAID AT LEAST 40 BOMB HITS WERE SCORED ON THE POWER PLANT AND THE GASOLINE REFRACTION TOWERS OF THE PANDANSARI REFINERY, WHILE OTHER BOMBS STRUCK SURROUNDING BUILDINGS OF THE PARAFFIN REFINERY. TWO HITS WERE SCORED ON A JAPANESE VESSEL AT THE DOCK.

THE RAID WAS CAREFULLY ENGINEERED BY MEMBERS OF THE 13TH AND THE 5TH AIRFORCES.

THE BOMBER BARONS, THE LONG-RANGE OUTFIT OF THE 13TH, HAD TO FIGHT THROUGH 30 JAPANESE FIGHTER PLANES AND ACK ACK THAT WAS INTENSE AND ACCURATE.

ONE BOMBER WAS SHOT DOWN BY ZEROS NEAR THE TARGET. THE OTHER FLIERS SAW SIX PARACHUTES OPEN BUT THE JAPANESE ZEROS STRAFED THEM.

ANOTHER PLANE WENT INTO THE OCEAN A SHORT DISTANCE FROM BALIKPAPAN AFTER THE CREW 'CHUTED.

SECOND LT.BERNARD STOUT OF SIOUX FALLS, S.D., AND TWO OF HIS CREWMEN, SECOND LTS.JAMES D.CONNOR OF BLADEN, NEB., AND ALFRED R.KARAHADIAN (163 BUSH ST) SAN FRANCISCO, SAID "IT WAS THE HEAVIEST ACK ACK WE EVER FLEW THROUGH."

THE PLANE ON THEIR WING WAS SHOT DOWN OVER THE TARGET.

SQUADRON LEADERS LTS.DONALD E.BONE OF GARLAND, UTAH, AND HOLLIS CHASE OF LARCHMONT, N.6., WERE CERTAIN "THE JAPS WON'T BE TURNING OUT MUCH AVIATION GASOLINE AT BALIKPAPAN FOR JAP ZEROS FOR AWHILE."

"SOME OF THOSE FIRES SENT SMOKE UP 2,000 FEET BUT IT WAS A MURDEROUS JOB AND WE SURE HAD TO SWEAT OUT THE RIDE HOME WITH OUR GAS GAUGES DROPPING LIKE POLAR THERMOMETERS," SAID LIEUTENANT BONE.

"SOME SHIPS LANDED WITH SCARCELY ENOUGH GASOLINE TO TAXI TO THE REVETMENTS."

LT.VERNON O.WOODARD (3416 I ST., SOUTHEAST) WASHINGTON, D.C., CAME HOME WITH HIS SHIP FULL OF HOLES.

HIS BALL TURRET GUNNER, STAFF SGT.MARVIN A.ANDERSON OF ESCANABA, MICH., SHOT DOWN A ZERO.

THE PLANE OF LT.ROGER M.LAKE OF PALMYRA, PENN., LIMPED HOME BADLY RIDDLED. ONE OF HIS GUNNERS, STAFF SGT.JAMES B.SHAW OF THOMASVILLE, N.C., ALSO SHOT DOWN A ZERO.

JAPANESE MEDIUM BOMBERS AROSE AND FLEW ON THE FLANK OF THE LIBERATORS TO GIVE THE JAPANESE ACK ACK GUNNERS THE CORRECT RANGE.

AMERICAN FIGHTERS COULD NOT ACCOMPANY THE BOMBERS BECAUSE OF THE GREAT DISTANCE.

WITH MACARTHUR'S FORCES ON MOROTAI--(DELAYED)--THE ISLAND OF MOROTAI IS A TRAVELOGUE CAMERAMAN'S DREAM. TO THE EYE, IT IS STRICTLY A NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC MAGAZINE ISLAND WITH ITS GROVES OF TOWERING COCONUT TREES, ITS PROFUSION OF BRILLIANT TROPICAL FLOWERS, ITS EXOTIC FRUITS, AND ITS UNBELIEVEABLY COLORED BIRDS FLASHING THROUGH THE TROPICAL FOLIAGE.

THE VERY THINGS WHICH WOULD DELIGHT A PEACETIME TOURIST ON MOROTAI, ANNOY THE VERY DEVIL OUT OF THE SOLDIER.

THE COCONUTS DROP ON HIS HEAD. THE FLOWERS ARE ATTACHED TO VINES WHICH BLOCK HIS PATH, TRIP HIM UP, AND FORCE HIM TO FIGHT HIS WAY WITH A MACHETE. THE BANANAS AND PAW-PAWS ARE MOSTLY GREEN, AND GIVE HIM THE STOMACH ACHE. THE INSECTS ALTERNATE BETWEEN HUMMING AND CHEWING ON HIM.

THE MYSTERIOUS RIVERS HAVE JUST ENOUGH CROCODILES TO MAKE BATHING IN THEM A FORM OF SUICIDE. THE CORAL REEFS CUT HIS FEET INTO TATTERS WHEN HE ATTEMPTS TO SWIM IN THE SOFT, WARM COMBERS THAT CURL ON THE BEACH. THE GLISTENING SAND IS INHABITED BY BILLIONS OF SAND FLEAS. THE DAZZLING SUN BLISTERS HIM. THE RAINS SOAK HIM. THE LUSH GROWTH OF THE JUNGLE WILDERNESS CONTRIBUTES TO JUNGLE ROT.

HIS HOME IS A HOLE IN THE GROUND JUST BIG ENOUGH TO PROVIDE STRETCHING-OUT ROOM FOR HIM AND HIS BUDDY. HIS MATTRESS IS A DIRTY, WET CANVAS SHELTER HALF, AND HIS COVER A DAMP, MILDEWY PONCHO. HIS ROOF IS ANYTHING HE CAN DEVISE TO KEEP OUT RAIN--LOGS, BRUSH, DIRT, THE DISCARDED TOP OF A TRUCK OR JEEP. HIS CLOTHES ARE THE DIRTY, GREASY FATIGUE SUIT. HE IS LUCKY IF HE CAN CHANGE HIS CLOTHES AND BOOTS ONCE A WEEK. HE BATHES OUT OF A STEEL HELMET. AND HE PLODS THROUGH AN OPEN AIR CHOW LINE TO GET

HIS FOOD PLOPPED INTO HIS MESS GEAR. THE RAIN WATERS HIS COFFEE, LIMPENS HIS PANCAKES.

THERE ARE NO NATIVES TO DO HIS WORK. HE WORKS FROM SUN-UP TO SUN-DOWN. IF HE ISN'T ON THE LINE, GUARDING AGAINST THE ENEMY, HE CLEARS AREAS OF BRUSH, OR UNLOADS SHIPS, OR TOTES RATIONS, OR PULLS KP, OR CLEANS WEAPONS, LUGS WATER, OR DIGS LATRINES.

WHEN DARKNESS CLOSES IN HE GETS IN HIS DIRTY FOX HOLE AND HOLES IN FOR THE NIGHT, WITH NOTHING TO LOOK FORWARD TO UNTIL CHOW CALL AT 5:30 IN THE MORNING.

YES, MOROTAI IS A LOVELY, LOVELY PLACE.

7TH AAF BASE IN THE MARIANNAS, OCT.3-(AP)-THE "BOMBS' LULLABY" SHOULDN'T HAVE COME BACK--BUT SHE DID.

IT WAS AFTER SHE BOMBED IWO JIMA IN THE VOLCANO ISLANDS THAT SHE RAN INTO TROUBLE.

SHE CAME HOME WITH HER ELEVATOR ALMOST USELESS. THERE WERE 400 BULLET AND SHRAPNEL HOLES IN HER, A SHELL HAD EXPLODED HER AUXILIARY GAS TANK, ONE ENGINE WAS OUT FOR LANDING AND A TIRE ON THE SAME SIDE WAS FLAT, SHE CARRIED TWO DEAD AND ONE CRITICALLY WOUNDED CREW MEMBER.

THE "BOMBS' LULLABY" HAD FLOWN THROUGH STRONG FLAK TO DUMP ITS BOMBS LOAD. THE PLANE WAS FLYING AT HIGH ALTITUDE ABOUT 1,000 FEET BELOW SOME LIGHT CLOUDS WHEN A HAIL OF SHELLS AND BULLETS TORE INTO THE BOMBER. LT.ROBERT L.NELSON, THE PILOT, 6146 PALMETRA STREET, BROOKLYN, SAW THE TRACERS AND INCENDIARY BULLETS, BUT NO ONE SAW THE 12 ATTACKING JAPANESE PLANES IMMEDIATELY.

(WX)...OTTAWA, CANADA, OCT 3-(AP)-A PLAN FOR WIDEST PRACTICABLE USE OF THE WATERS OF THE COLUMBIA BASIN IN THE FAR WEST WAS AN ANNOUNCED OBJECTIVE OF THE INTERNATIONAL JOINT COMMISSION AT THE OPENING OF A TWO-DAY SEMI-ANNUAL SESSION HERE TODAY.

THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA HAVE REQUESTED THE COMMISSION TO UNDERTAKE THE STUDY, JESSE B. ELLIS, SECRETARY OF THE UNITED STATES SECTION, SAID IN A STATEMENT.

THE CO

UMBIA WATERSHED EXTENDS FROM THE CANADIAN PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA THROUGH THE STATES OF WASHINGTON, IDAHO, MONTANA AND OREGON AND CUTS A CORNER OF TWO OTHER STATES.

"IN ITS CONSIDERATION OF THE PROBLEMS INVOLVED," ELLIS SAID, "THE COMMISSION WILL HAVE TO TAKE INTO ACCOUNT NOT ONLY THE INDIVIDUAL VALUE OF ANY PARTICULAR PROJECT, WHETHER OF WATER-POWER DEVELOPMENT, RECLAMATION OF LAND FOR AGRICULTURE, OR OTHER USES OF THE WATERS OF THE COLUMBIA, BUT ALSO TO BALANCE THE IMPORTANCE OF ONE USE TO OTHERS AND TO TAKE INTO ACCOUNT NOT ONLY THE INTERESTS OF THE TWO COUNTRIES AS A WHOLE BUT ALSO THOSE OF THE STATES AND THE PROVINCE."

IN WATER POWER ALONE, ELLIS SAID, THE AMOUNT CAPABLE OF DEVELOPMENT ON THE COLUMBIA AND ITS TRIBUTARIES IS AT LEAST AS GREAT AS THE TOTAL WATER POWER NOW IN USE IN ALL OF NORTH AMERICA.

THE FEDERAL POWER PLANT AT GRAND COULEE, WASH., WHICH ELLIS DESCRIBED AS "THE WORLD'S GREATEST," AND PLANTS AT ROCK ISLAND, WAUH., AND BONNEVILLE, ORE., ALREADY ARE OPERATING TO GENERATE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER ON THE AMERICAN SIDE OF THE LINE. ON THE CANADIAN SIDE, THE WEST KOOTENAY POWER AND LIGHT COMPANY OPERATES A SERIES OF FIVE PLANTS ON THE KOOTENAY RIVER, ONE OF THE COLUMBIA'S MAIN TRIBUTARIES.

SOME OTHER DEVELOPMENTS WHICH HAVE BEEN APPROVED BY THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT, AND OTHERS CONTEMPLATED, EITHER ON THE MAIN STEM OR ITS TRIBUTARIES, WILL BE CONSIDERED BY THE COMMISSION. COMMISSION MEMBERS AND ENGINEERS SPENT SEVERAL WEEKS IN JULY AND AUGUST TRAVELING DOWN THE STREAM FROM ITS SOURCE IN SOUTHEASTERN BRITISH COLUMB TO PORTLAND, ORE., NEAR ITS MOUTH.

WASHINGTON, OCT 3-(AP)-THE CHINESE DELEGATION TO DUMBARTON OAKS TO PRESENTED ITS DETAILED PLANS TO BE ADDED TO THE BRITISH RUSSIAN-AMERICAN BLUEPRINT FOR WORLD SECURITY ORGANIZATION, A STATE DEPARTMENT OFFICIAL SAID.

HE EXPRESSED THE OPINION THAT THE SECOND PHASE OF THE WORLD PEACE AGENCY DISCUSSIONS WILL COME TO AN EARLY CONCLUSION BECAUSE OF THE LARGE MEASURE OF AGREEMENT AMONG THE CHINESE, BRITISH AND AMERICANS.

IT WAS LEARNED ELSEWHERE THAT THE FOUR MAIN POINTS WHICH THE CHINESE FEEL THEY SHOULD TAKE UP IN PRESENTING THEIR VIEWS ARE:

1. ORGANIZATION OF AN INTERNATIONAL POLICE FORCE WHICH COULD BE CALLED OUT TO MAINTAIN PEACE WITHOUT DELAY.
2. A SUFFICIENTLY SPECIFIC DEFINITION OF AGGRESSION TO AVOID MISUNDERSTANDING AND LAST MINUTE DELAY.
3. MORE SPECIFIC PROVISION FOR WORLD ECONOMIC, SOCIAL AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATIONS UNDER THE INTERNATIONAL PEACE AGENCY THAN IS MADE IN THE BRITISH-RUSSIAN-AMERICAN DOCUMENT.
4. EMPHASIS ON MACHINERY FOR PEACEFUL CHANGE AMONG NATIONS SO THAT THE NEW WORLD ORGANIZATION WILL NOT BE AIMED AT PERPETUATING THE STATUS QUO.

UNDATED WARSAW (150)
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A MOSCOW BROADCAST DECLARED TODAY THE POLISH PATRIOT ARMY IN WARSAW HEADED BY GEN. TADEUSZ KOMOROWSKI (GEN.BOR) HAD SURRENDERED TO GERMAN FORCES AGAINST WHICH THEY HAVE BEEN WAGING AN UNEQUAL STRUGGLE FOR WEEKS.

THE BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, QUOTED A DISPATCH BY THE POLISH PRESS AGENCY, ORGAN OF THE SOVIET-SPONSORED POLISH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION WHICH HAS BEEN BITTERLY ATTACKING KOMOROWSKI.

THE AGENCY SAID THE DECISION TO SURRENDER WAS TAKEN BY A COL. MONTER IN THE NAME OF KOMOROWSKI, WHO, IT ASSERTED, "HAS BEEN ABSENT FROM WARSAW THROUGHOUT THE UPRISING." SOME PATRIOT FORCES, HOWEVER, DECLINED TO BEY THE DECISION AND ARE FIGHTING THEIR WAY OUT OF WARSAW, THE BROADCAST ADDED.

KOMOROWSKI RECENTLY WAS NAMED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF POLISH ARMED FORCES BY THE POLISH GOVERNMENT IN EXILE IN LONDON--DRAWING THE FIRE OF THE MOSCOW LIBERATION COMMITTEE WHICH HAS HELD THE UPRISING WAS PREMATURE.

THE GERMAN RADIO, IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS IN LONDON, ALSO ASSERTED TODAY RESISTANCE INSIDE WARSAW HAD ENDED WITH THE COLLAPSE OF THE LAST PATRIOT STRONGHOLD EXTENDING INTO THE EASTERN PART OF THE CITY. THE GERMANS SAID THE POLES HAD ATTEMPTED TO MAKE CONTACT WITH RUSSIAN FORCES EAST OF THE VISTULA RIVER BUT HAD FAILED.

THE JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY DOMEI, REPORTING TODAY ON A NEWSPAPER ARTICLE BY ADM.KICHISABURO NOMURA, QUOTED HIM AS WARNING THAT AMERICAN OPERATIONS AGAINST THE PHILIPPINES WERE PART OF U.S. STRATEGY TO BLOCKADE JAPAN AND DESTROY HER "NERVE CENTERS."

THE DOMEI TOKYO BROADCAST WAS RECORDED BY FCC.

NOMURA, LAST JAPANESE AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES, SAID "WE MUST BE PREPARED FOR THE TRANSITION OF THE WAR FROM A PRELIMINARY TO A TRULY SERIOUS STAGE." HE ACKNOWLEDGED THE JAPANESE DEFEAT IN THE MARIANAS ISLANDS BUT ASSERTED "RETREAT AND ADVANCE IN WAR IS ONLY A NATURAL COURSE." HE PREDICTED A LONG WAR.

THE DIPLOMAT SAID JAPAN EXPECTS TO FACE HARDSHIPS BUT "UNDER SUCH CONDITIONS IT IS CHARACTERIST C OF OUR PEOPLE TO BECOME STRONGER. OUR ONLY COURSE, THEN, IS TO MUCH AHEAD TOWARD FULFILLMENT OF OUR AIMS."

NOMURA WROE THAT JAPAN IS EXPERIENCING SOME PRIVATIONS BUT ADDED "THIS IS ALSO TRUE OF AMERICA." HE SAID THE AMERICAN PEOPLE AS A WHOLE ARE REFLECTING THE "OPTIMISM" OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT BUT THAT U.S. NAVAL AUTHORITIES "INVARIABLY WARN THE PEOPLE AGAINST UNDERESTIMATING THE ENEMY AND SAY THAT STRICT VIGILANCE MUST BE MAINTAINED."

Civilians Being Evacuated—Nazi Counterattacks

By HOWARD COWAN

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Oct. 4.—(AP) Squadrons of hard-hitting American tanks which had been held back for two days while Doughboys hacked a yawning hole in the Siegfried Line north of Aachen were sent charging through the breach today to blast German secondary defenses and help clear the path of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army to the Rhine.

Pouring into a gap two and a half miles wide in the vaunted Westwall, the Yanks tonight were fighting through minefields, tank traps and hastily-built rifle pits more than two miles inside the border of Germany after having thrown back three weak enemy counterattacks in the early morning hours.

Front dispatches said the Nazi commanders, for all their desperate need to halt the burgeoning Allied drive at the heart of the industrial Rhineland, did not have enough first class troops to throw against Hodges' crack infantry divisions and tremendous reserves of armor.

Battle Inside Fort

More than 100 miles to the south in France Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army veterans fought bitter hand-to-hand duels inside Fort Driant, a great rabbit warren of defenses guarding the vital city of Metz from the west bank of the Moselle river.

After Yank troops stormed into the gun-studded fortress and began driving the Nazis out of underground tunnels with blazing guns the enemy rallied from hidden machinegun and rocket nests wit in the mile-and-a-half-long ma and a deadly close-quarter batt raged into the night.

While headquarters announced c ficially that the fort—one of se eral similar strongholds protecti Metz—had been captured, a fie dispatch from Edward Ball of t Associated Press said that the Na garrison, composed of former st dents of the German officers sch at Metz, still was putting u "fierce resistance."

The American officer comman ing the attack told Ball, howev that he was optimistic his sho troops would stay inside Fort D ant this time. They were thro back in their first attack last we after fighting across a moat guar ing the fort.

Metz, which never has been tak by storm in all its war-torn histor stands between Patton's forces ar the Saar basin of Germany 30 mil to the east.

Capture of the elaborate for would open the way for an assault on Metz itself, strongest fortress city in western Europe. The attack on Driant, whose thick walls stood almost intact under heavy preliminary bombing and artillery fire, was delivered head-on by tanks and infantry who just kept going until they smashed through.

There were losses of American men and tanks, but information reaching headquarters said they were considerably lighter than were to be expected in storming one of the main fort rings of the German defensive system.

Crawl Under Guns

One factor in this, officers said, was that the Nazis apparently never expected infantry to slug through the barbed wire and moat defenses and that the fortress guns, consequently, would not depress far enough to cover the last close-up approaches. Patton's men wriggled under the big guns on their bellies.

A 48-hour truce stilled the roar of cannon at historic Dunkerque, last channel port to which a German garrison clung, while 20,000 refugees streamed out of the town into the safe countryside. British and Canadian troops there waited impatiently to storm in. The assault was to be resumed at 6 a.m. Friday, and it was doubted the 15,000 Nazis inside the port would put up much more than a token fight before surrendering.

By far, the most critical importance was attached to the First Army's smash toward Cologne and Dusseldorf. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Germany's mobilization director was reported by the German news agency DNB to have rushed to the west and implored the war-weary people to give the last ounce of effort.

"The German people cannot show any war weariness at all," he declared. "Their frontiers, their national existence and the existence of the Reich are immediately threatened.

"Our enemies have unleashed an all out offensive on our frontiers of gigantic impact."

In an effort to stem Hodges' drive today the Germans wheeled 12 of their dwindling force of tanks into the battle today and sharpshooting Yank gunners made blazing wrecks of the entire dozen.

Don Whitehead of the Associated Press, who witnessed the forward surge of American men and armor, said the breach in the West wall tonight extended roughly from Frelinberg, a village just south of Geilenkirchen, down to Finkenrath, with the deepest point of penetration east of Ubaach, which the Yanks captured in house-to-house fighting Tuesday.

Whitehead said the American spearhead had not yet reached a main road running north and slightly east from Aachen to Gladbach.

Beyond the present limit of the breach, Whitehead said, "the Germans have hastily prepared positions, but there is doubt whether they have had time to make them worthwhile with drainage, sandbagging and revetments to protect against the weather."

Nazis Bring Up Artillery

From Ubach south to Merkstein the battle was reported most intense, the Nazis rushing up artillery to meet the flood of American armor. Three times during the morning the enemy counter-attacked in this sector in from company to battalion strength, but each time Hodges' Doughboys smashed them back without loss of ground.

"Those counter-attacks didn't have the zip and sting normally to be expected from first line German infantry," a Yank officer commented after the third attack was repulsed.

As the Nazis fell back they turned their artillery on their own towns—an indication of what the Allies may expect as they drive deeper into Germany — and laid down a heavy barrage on bridges across the Wurm river boundary between Germany and Holland in an effort to stem the flow of American troops and armor across the stream.

Although the weather did not clear sufficiently to give the attacking American troops an elaborate aerial cover, dive-bombers assisted in breaking up the enemy's counter-attacks.

Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's British Second army beat off a small-scale Nazi counter thrust north of Nijmegen in the only sharp fighting reported from the northern Holland front. British troops pushed three miles east from Turnhout in Belgium and U. S. airborne troops advanced along the north bank of the Maas (Meuse) river to the town of Middelaar, near the edge of the Reichwald forest south of Cleve.

British, Polish and Canadian forces registered numerous small gains in western Holland and Belgium. A field dispatch estimated that 50,000 German troops remain on the Dutch island and in the area south of the Maas and west of the British Second army in the Holland corridor. There were signs of a general enemy withdrawal from the low countries.

Armor Rolls Through 2½-mile Breach in Support of Infantry—Patton's Men Are Inside Metz Fortress.

London, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—American tanks rumbled today into a two and a half-mile breach torn in Germany's Siegfried Line above Aachen and fanned out, bringing their guns and armor into support of an infantry drive against backstop defenses guarding Cologne.

The first Army assault had carried two miles into Germany itself, Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported. Supreme Headquarters earlier declared the drive had carried three miles beyond Ubach, a mile inside the frontier, to one of the enemy's main escape roads above Aachen.

Infantrymen had torn the broadening hole in the West Wall defenses, beating off three German counter blows.

The Germans were bringing up tanks and guns to meet the growing threat.

Some 125 miles to the South, American Third Army troops battled at Fort Driant, most formidable of the fortresses guarding Metz. Supreme Headquarters said the infantrymen had won full control of the fort, but a front dispatch told of bitter fighting continuing late in the afternoon against Germans in underground tunnels and fortifications.

German Attacks Feeble.

The breach in the West Wall seven miles above besieged Aachen now extends roughly from Frelenberg, south of Geilenkirchen, down to Finkenrath, Mr. White head said. The Siegfried defenses were penetrated more than two weeks ago southeast of Aachen.

German counter-attacks early today were surprisingly feeble, one Allied officer told Mr. Whitehead.

"Those counter-attacks didn't have the zip and sting normally to be expected from first-line German infantry," he said. "None of the attacks had that quality. The answer to that is that the enemy just hasn't got enough first-class troops."

There were indications that the Germans had been taken by surprise, and did not have reserves to mount heavy counter actions. Opposing units are watered down with old men, youths and non-Germans.

The battle for Fort Driant met intense resistance.

The Americans broke into the fort on the Moselle River's west bank after a two-day battle, and set fire to crude oil sprayed into tunnels to underground fortifications in efforts to burn out the Germans. Other units captured Maizeres Les Metz, seven miles north of Metz.

Fight to Widen Breach.

The First Army men above Aachen fought with air and artillery support to widen their new breach in the German West Wall defenses. The Germans were firing artillery in the heaviest conference of the invasion. The First Army battled along a main escape Road north of Aachen, and was cutting off that stronghold city in developing its wedge.

Lieut.-Gen. Courtney Hodges's First Army struck on east of Ubach, taken in breaching the Siegfried Line. Its units fought along and acros sthe main northeast road from Aachen to Gladbach. Aachen already was flanked on the south by the first major breach in the West Wall line.

Infantrymen smashed three German counter-attacks last night against the wedge driven three miles east of Ubach. The First Army was moving ahead in that sector, knocking out road blocks.

At Dunkirk, last channel port held by the Germans, a forty-eight-hour truce permitted evacuation of civilians before the final assaults by British and Canadian troops, eager to avenge the memory of the Dunkirk withdrawal in 1940.

British Repel Attack.

On the Dutch front, British troops repulsed a German attack north of Nijmegen, and Allied forces at Overloon to the southeast cut down half of the Germans who mounted an assault there. In Belgium slow advances were scored northeast of Antwerp.

On the southern sector in France, the American Seventh Army took three villages northeast of Epinal. Progress also was scored northwest of Belfort in the resuming push toward that gateway to southwestern Germany.

While the American First Army had completely penetrated the Siegfried Line above Aachen, a First Army officer said, more defenses lay ahead. But these were new and rushed, and probably less strong than the broken crust.

Not Yet a Breakthrough.

The penetration did not yet amount to a breakthrough, which is defined militarily as widening of a gap through which assaulting troops could fan out behind the whole defensive system. The first Siegfried penetration southeast of Aachen—made September 15—has not yet been exploited into such a breakthrough.

The Germans attacked west of Hurtgen at the southern end of the Americans' forty-mile-long Aachen assault front, but this diversionary thrust was stopped. Another small counterblow was halted around Stolberg, six miles east of Aachen.

The Ubach wedge was broadening as well as deepening. New gains were made near Merkstein, three miles below Ubach.

Weather again today interfered with aerial support of the Aachen front battle.

The right flank of Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army, beat off a German tank and infantry counter-attack near Anglemont, five miles southwest of Baccarat, and gained a mile or more through the Forest of Parroy southeast of Nancy.

Favored by clearing weather on the Vosges front, the American Seventh Army liberated Grandvillers, Deycimont and Lepanges, northeast and east of Epinal, and to the south edged farther into the valley entrance to the Belfort Gap.

Between Wallendorf and Bitburg, 60 miles southwest of Coblenz.

At none of these five positions has there been the full weight of a combined air and ground attack as in the operations which brought the two penetrations of the old line.

American troops who pushed across the German frontier two and three weeks ago have been occupied most of the time in patrolling and exchanging light blows. The Germans have counterattacked sharply, but the Yanks gained ground several times out of these exchanges.

Crack Nazi Troops Thought Behind Line

Allied Headquarters, France, Oct. 4 (AP)—American troops have punched through a belt of concrete fortifications of the Siegfried Line at two places and are in close contact with the outer crust of the old line at five other points.

Front dispatches describe the Siegfried Line, or west wall, as militarily antiquated and not nearly as strong as it was pictured in German propaganda.

Breached In September

Nevertheless, the line presents a definite barrier. Germans have followed the usual procedure of organizing their defense in depth. They have backed up the original line with recently constructed anti-tank defenses and fortifications. Mobile anti-tank guns are scattered throughout the rear.

American Sherman tanks made the first breach in the old line on September 15 just below the besieged German frontier fortress city of Aachen.

United States First Army infantry blasted the old line apart yesterday east of Ubach, 12 miles north of the original breach.

The two penetrations were 30 miles from Cologne at one point and 32 miles from Dusseldorf at the other.

American troops are in close contact with the outer crust of the old line's belt of dragons' teeth, steel and concrete forts and tank traps at these other positions:

Havert, 42 miles west and slightly north of Cologne.

Geilenkirchen, 33 miles west of Cologne.

Rotgen, below Aachen and 36 miles southwest of Cologne.

Brandscheid, 60 miles west of Coblenz.

Atlantic Wall Comparison

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has said that "no line is any better than the men who man it." Good, poor and indifferent Nazi troops have been defending the old line, but back of them a second force of crack SS (Elite Guard) units is believed ready, front dispatches said.

The engineers of the late Dr. Fritz Todt, who proclaimed the invincibility of his 12,000 steel and concrete forts stretching from Switzerland to the Netherlands, also built some fortifications along the coast and called that system the Atlantic Wall. The Allies broke through that wall in the invasion of Normandy. Now only a few segments of it still stand.

A dike which kept the North Sea out of the German defense zone on the Dutch island of Walcheren formed part of the Atlantic Wall system. Yesterday RAF Lancasters, using 12,000-pound bombs, tore open the dike, flooding the Nazi gun positions guarding the entrance to the Schelde estuary and the port of Antwerp.

Eisenhower hasn't used these six-ton "earthquake" bombs on the Siegfried Line yet. He hasn't had to

CIVILIANS LEAVE DUNKERQUE UNDER

ARMISTICE TERMS

CANADIAN FIRST ARMY HEADQUARTERS, France, Oct. 4. —(AP) Haggard civilian refugees streamed out into the countryside from Dunkerque today as Canadian and British troops impatiently awaited the end of a 48-hour truce before renewing their assault on the historic port where the "Miracle of Dunkerque" occurred in the spring of 1940.

At 6 a. m. Friday, after the beleaguered Nazi garrison has had time to dynamite and mine the entrances to the refugee road, Allied troops and armor will begin storming the last channel port still in enemy hands. There was a strong likelihood that the Germans would surrender quickly, as they did after making a similar gesture last week at Calais.

Armistice terms were agreed upon at a conference yesterday between representatives of the British and German commanders after Allied artillery had laid down a terrific preliminary bombardment on the town, which had a normal peacetime population of 35,000. The first of some 20,000 civilians remaining in Dunkerque began taking to the roads in today's first cold light.

It was from Dunkerque that 335,000 British, French, Belgian and Dutch troops were evacuated to England in six terrible days and nights that climaxed Hitler's smashing victories in the Low countries and France. The dramatic rescue by hundreds of warships and pleasure craft of the bulk of the British Expeditionary Force probably saved Britain from immediate invasion and defeat.

At the start of the desperate undertaking the British General Staff estimated that no more than 25 per cent of the stranded force could be saved. Yet the Germans, when they officially announced the capture of Dunkerque on June 4, 1940, claimed only 40,000 prisoners.

The British were forced to leave virtually all their equipment behind them in France and for a dangerous period Britain's army was short even of small arms. There was a heart-warming contrast between the bedraggled survivors of Dunkerque and the fresh, splendidly-armed British troops who stood outside the little port today and watched the refugees trudge to safety.

By none could the contrast have been more strongly felt than by the German troops inside Dunkerque, estimated at 15,000, waiting for the truce to run out.

Civilians Leaving Dunkirk

Canadian First Army Headquarters, France, Oct. 4 (AP)—In the cold gray dawn today, 20,000 haggard civilians started evacuating Dunkirk, last Channel port held by Germany, under a truce which will expire at 6 A. M. Friday. The Canadians and British then will resume their attacks.

The French started leaving the port at 6 A. M. after a 12-hour preliminary armistice.

Recalls 1940 Incident

After the period for withdrawal, an adidtional 12-hour truce will prevail during which the road will be dynamited and mined before hostilities are resumed.

The exacuation of the civilians through British infantry lines is in strange contrast to the bloody withdrawal of the British Expeditionary Force from Dunkirk under fire and bomb in 1940.

The armistice terms were agreed upon at a conference yesterday between representatives of British and German commanders. There was a strong likelihood that the enemy, as at Calais, will be ready to surrender shortly after cessation of the truce, although the garrison of 15,000 Nazis is about twice as large as that of Calais.

3 Nazi Attacks In Ubach Area Fought Off

By Don Whitehead

Rimberg, Germany, Oct. 4 (AP)—Savage, bitter fighting raged in and beyond the Siegfried Line today as doughboys battled to widen their new breach in Nazi defenses which Hitler has ordered held to the death.

With chill winds blowing across the fields and woods, American infantry was slowly driving the Germans from pillboxes, foxholes and houses. The Germans were using all the men they could scrape together in the attempt to halt the drive of Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges' First Army.

From Ubach south of Merkstein and Hofstadt the battle is flaming intensely. The Germans are rushing up 75 and 88 mm. guns for direct fire, and artillery is thundering all along the front.

Nazis Make 3 Attacks

Three times in the early morning the Germans attacked, trying to drive the doughboys back from hard-won positions. But each time United States infantry and artillery broke up the attacks with no loss of ground. These German thrusts were made in company to battalion strength.

The Germans are shelling their own towns as they are forced out of them—showing what can be expected as the Americans drive farther into Germany.

Ubach, which fell to Hodges' men yesterday, was heavily shelled by the enemy during the night.

Wurm Bridges Shelled

The Germans also turned their artillery—in the heaviest concentrations the Americans have faced in the invasion—on bridges across the Wurm river, trying to stem the flow of troops, guns and equipment across the stream.

The first morning attack came at 4 o'clock near Merkstein and Hofstadt. A company attacked through the woods, but its ranks were ripped and disorganized by artillery and small-arms fire.

At 5 A. M. the Nazis thrust toward Ubach and at 7 A. M. they moved in from the northeast toward Palenberg. But these attacks were also repulsed.

Dive Bombers And Artillery

Then our dive bombers went after the German positions, and United States artillery opened up.

"We put on an air strike," one officer said. "Then we gave 'em time to get their heads out of their holes and had in a serenade with every gun we have."

And with that tremendous barrage the doughboys again went into the attack.

Across the Wurm river in the woods near this village a battle is raging. Shells are swishing over and occasionally one crashes into Rimberg.

Rimberg Castle Damaged

The gray, old 12th century castle of Rimberg has been damaged by both American and German shells.

Doughboys, led by a young captain who was killed in the engagement, first captured the tower at the castle's moat. Then parties under Capt. Buford Toler, of Arizona, worked their way into the chateau and drove the enemy out room by room—rooms with old tapestries, dueling pistols and swords on the wall.

Vienna Uprising Reported By BBC

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—Revolts have broken out in Vienna and elsewhere in Austria and casualties and arrests have been reported, the BBC said tonight.

The report of an uprising in Austria, first country to be absorbed by Hitler, came two days after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the Moscow radio told the Austrians that "the time has come" for them to give positive and active proof of their willingness to dissociate themselves from their German masters."

The BBC, in a broadcast on its European service, said:

"Reports from Bern tonight stated revolts had broken out in Vienna and elsewhere. Casualties and arrests are reported. Unrest is also reported from the industrial district of Steyr, where workers are in some cases coming out on strike and carrying out considerable sabotage. This news follows the Nazis' announcement of a ten per cent. cut in rations."

6,000 U. S. Aircraft Used In Holland Invasion

United States Troop Carrier Headquarters, Britain, Oct. 4 (AP)—Approximately 6,000 American aircraft and gliders took part in the airborne invasion of Holland, it was disclosed today, with losses of less than three per cent.

Supplies and equipment carried to the American and British sky troops totaled almost 6,000,000 pounds, including ammunition, jeeps, artillery pieces and motorcycles.

"It amounted to about 160 pounds for each parachutist and glider infantryman landed," the official report stated.

These figures do not include the thousands of pounds of supplies flown in by the British troop carrier forces.

WHOLE BLOOD FLOWN TO FIGHTING ZONES

PARIS, Oct. 4 — (AP) Whole blood transfusions, credited as a factor in reducing deaths of American wounded, have exceeded estimates in Europe, and whole blood is being flown from the United States to meet increasing needs.

"I think one of the most dramatic things of this war is that four days after a housewife back home has given a pint of blood, that blood may be helping to save the life of an American soldier in the Siegfried line," said Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, chief surgeon of U. S. forces in Europe, in disclosing demands for this type of blood.

Such transfusions, Hawley said, are used in immediate treatment of badly wounded soldiers suffering from loss of blood and shock. Whole blood is superior, he added, because plasma lacks red cells.

War Ministry Suspends 5 French Army Generals

Bregard, Bridoux, Perne, Martin and Picard Shelved

PARIS, Oct. 4 (AP).—The War Ministry announced the suspension of five generals of the French Army today without giving any reason.

They are General of the Armies Charles Bregard, a former chancellor of the Legion of Honor; Army Corps General Eugene Bridoux, former secretary of the Ministry of Defense; Brigadier General Jean Paul Perne, former director of the Republican Guard; Jean Martin, former director of the national military police, and Charles Picard, former inspector of the Gendarmerie at Lyon.

The suspensions were announced as effective on the day of the liberation of Paris as "without prejudice or other disciplinary measures."

GUERRILLA PLANS MAPPED BY NAZIS

Goebbels And Himmler Outline Program For People

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—A Nazi blueprint for highly orgainzed and fanatical guerrilla warfare to nullify any Allied victory and make the civil administration of conquered German territory almost impossible was outlined today by Nazi officialdom.

Paul Joseph Goebbels, Propaganda Minister, in a speech to German workers on the Western front quoted on the Berlin radio by DNB, said the Allies had launched an all-out offensive to win the war before winter, but that conditions now favor the German army, and in any event the Nazis were prepared to wage guerrilla warfare to the death.

To Coerce All Into Fighting

The plan got an even more thorough airing in Heinrich Himmler's publication Das Schwarze Korps, which sketched a scheme designed to make this a war virtually without an end, to coerce every German into fighting the occupying powers on every inch of German soil, to murder as traitors any Germans who deal with the Allies, to make a hell for returning refugees and Jews.

Goebbels asserted "our enemies have unleashed an all-out offensive on our frontiers of gigantic impact in order to win a speedy, and above all, not too costly a victory," but added that if the Allies succeeded in advancing "temporarily," it would be only over "a rampart of bodies, young and old."

The article in Das Schwarze Korps said guerrilla fighting plans, to meet conditions already becoming evident around Aachen, were far advanced, and based on everything the Germans had learned in Russia, the Balkans, France and Belgium—where they, as the occupying forces, were harassed by insurgents behind their lines.

To Frustrate Orderly Control

To carry out this program, the article made it plain that Himmler intends by murder to frustrate any orderly Allied occupation of Germany.

"It is impossible to set up a German civil administration in an occupied Germany," said the article, "but even should some blackguards be found to do it, all of them—just like any traitor or anyone else who connives with the occupation power—would soon be shot. . . ."

The article summoned all Germans to make sure that "behind each street corner in conquered territory, death will lurk and the enemy's life be made one long torture."

Linked To Election

Goebbels, declaring the Americans wanted a cheap pre-winter victory to help reelect President Roosevelt and the British because they were war-weary, said:

"It will make no difference whether the Americans are destroying our machinery and factories or the Bolshevists are dragging our material and population to Siberia," he said. "Neither from one nor the other foe can we expect mercy."

His appeal for a last-ditch fight and "obedience only to Hitler" was accompanied by vague promises of "new weapons and new devisions" to overcome Allied superiority.

Declares United Nations Want to End European Conflict by November Polling.

London, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Paul Joseph Goebbels, German Propaganda Minister, declared today that the Allies have opened an all-out offensive against Germany and that the Nazis are prepared to wage guerrilla warfare to the death.

In a speech reported by DNB, official news agency, and broadcast by Berlin, Dr. Goebbels said: "Our enemies have unleashed an all-out offensive on our frontiers of gigantic impact in order to win a speedy and, first of all, not too costly victory."

The Propaganda Minister said that the Allies wanted to end the war in Europe before winter and before the November elections in the United States.

Roosevelt and Churchill.

"Roosevelt would like to enter the presidential election campaign with victory in Europe being achieved," Dr. Goebbels was quoted as declaring on a visit to western front defenses. "Churchill has no time to lose, either. He knows that, lacking any real war aims, the British public is utterly war weary, while, on the other hand, the German people cannot show any war weariness at all, because their frontiers, their national existence and the existence of the Reich are immediately threatened."

Another broadcast quoted Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler's publication, Das Schwarze Korps, as saying: "The Germans will fight better in the enemy's rear than the Russians or the Tito Partisans were ablt to fight."

Himmler's newspaper said that "one has to face the realities which can now be observed at Aachen." It asserted that it would be impossible to set up a German civil administration in zones occupied by the Allies "even if scoundrels should be found."

Call for Fanaticism.

"Every one of them, as every other traitor and every one who tries to make business with the occupying Power," it said, "would be shot in a very short time." DNB quoted Dr. Goebbels as declaring on a visit to the western front that the Allied invaders would be checked by "a rampart of bodies, young and old." In a speech to workers, it reported, Dr. Goebbels said:

"Every single building will be turned into a fortress in case the enemy, who so far has only occupied some fragments of German soil, should temporarily succeed in advancing. The enemy must be prepared to find a fanatical population at the front and in his rear which will harass him without pause. They will tie down large forces, giving him neither rest nor a chance to develop any successes he may score."

War-Maimed French Girl Adopted by U. S. Flyers

Fighters Carry Her With Them, Raise Fund to Buy New Legs

A UNITED STATES 9TH AIR FORCE FIGHTER BASE, France, Oct. 4 (AP).—Yvette Hamel, a seventeen-year-old French girl who was crippled in the Normandy fighting, has been adopted by officers and men of a Thunderbolt fighter group commanded by Colonel Bingham T. Kleine, of Gonzales, Tex.

She lost both legs and suffered permanent injury to her right arm when the farm home of her parents, near Le Haye du Puits, was destroyed by shellfire early in the invasion.

Since July 12 she has lived in a special tent, lined with parachute silk. When the men move forward to a new base Yvette rides in a C-47.

Major R. K. Glocker, of Royersford, Pa., flight surgeon, sees that she gets the best medical attention, and on the group's first anniversary, July 15, a fund was raised to buy her a pair of artificial legs.

No Action Against Japs In Paris Taken

Paris, Oct. 3 (AP—Delayed)—Although France is at war with Japan, some 40 Japanese residents of Paris still are circulating freely in this city, swarming with Allied troops.

While the Japanese are subject to arrest as enemy aliens, the French War Ministry said, no action has been taken thus far because of "administrative delays." The unofficial opinion is that they are being permitted freedom in informal reciprocity for the liberty granted thousands of French citizens in Japanese-occupied Indo-China.

Paris Couturiers Eyeing U. S.

Paris, Oct. 4 (AP)—A gorgeous gown draped on a cross-eyed mannikin would be a shock to anybody—but that's actually the spirit of the Paris fashion openings this year.

The lavish displays are looking in two contradictory directions.

One eye is cocked on the American women on whom depends to a considerable extent a revival of Paris as the world fashion center and revival of one of France's biggest industries.

The other is cocked nearsightedly down the Rue de la Paix, because actually this year for the first time in history the fashion openings are essentially a domestic matter. Export still is just a gleam in many eyes.

The lush velvets and slick satins which are unrolling along the famous boulevards are like a million-dollar check—very difficult to negotiate.

The matter of prices alone is a problem. Because of inflation, an ordinary 10-cent cotton handkerchief costs 60 cents.

The display of a black broadtail fur coat at a mere $12,800 evokes the same sighs of inaccessibility that might accompany a glimpse of the gold reserve at Fort Knox.

DIETRICH IN PARIS

LONDON, Oct. 4 — (AP) Marlene Dietrich has arrived in Paris and will make a stage appearance in the French capital before continuing her tour of troop centers, the Paris radio said tonight.

TO PROSECUTE PETAIN

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(AP) The first official move to prosecute Marshal Henri Philippe Petain for high treason has been taken, the Paris radio announced in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

Omitting Petain's title, the announcement said the Paris police were ordered by a judicial commission to investigate the activities "of a man named Philippe Petain, accused of treason and communication with the enemy."

Petain is in Germany where, the German radio announced, he serves as head of a German-created French "legal government."

BELGRADE'S FALL APPEARS NEAR AS REDS PUSH AHEAD

Soviets and Partisans Within 15 Miles of Capital City.

SEIZE RAIL CENTERS

Berlin Reports New Blow Aimed by Russia at Heart of Hungary.

LONDON, Thursday, Oct. 5—(AP) The Red army, now joined with Marshal Tito's Partisans in a campaign to drive the Germans out of Yugoslavia, gained a point only 15 miles from the capital city of Belgrade yesterday in a spectacular 27-mile advance across open country to the northeast.

Belgrade appeared ready to fall soon, perhaps in a day, unless the Germans offer more resistance than they have put up so far against the new offensive on the capital from the north and east, the opening of which was announced only 24 hours ago.

Knifing overland so swiftly as to suggest the Nazis were able to put up little fight after long harassing by the Partisans, th Russians captured the railway towns of Banatska Kraijevicevo, 15 miles northeast of Belgrade, Crepaja, 16 miles north of the capital, Debilyacha, 18 miles north, and Banaska Novo Selo, 18 miles northeast, Moscow announced in its midnight communique.

The plunge to Debilyacha represented a gain of 27 miles eastward from Ulma, capture of which was announced 24 hours earlier, and overran the rail stations of Alibunar and Vladimorovac enroute.

One hundred miles southeast of Belgrade other Red Army forces racing to smash the rail network over which the Germans must escape from the Balkans, outflanked the three-way rail junction of Zajecar, capturing the town of Vratarnica, nine miles to the south, and penetrated to within 40 miles of the important junction of Nis astride the main railway from Bulgaria and Greece.

The Soviet command in its communique announced that Red army forces had joined with the Partisans in this region "and with them fought engagements for the annihilation" of German troops—the first Soviet comment on a junction formally announced Monday night by Marshal Tito.

Overrun 13 Towns

Altogether the Russians overran 13 towns and railway stations in this area, including the town of Bor, center of the second largest copper deposit in Europe, and villages within ten miles of the Maidanpek goldfields. Bor is 50 miles north of Nis and the Maidanpek fields lie farther northward another 25 miles.

In their race to cut the Nazis' rail escape lines the Russians at captured Vratarnica stood 45 miles east of the main Belgrade-Nis railway and 80 miles east of Kraljevo on the last rail line the Germans could take out of the lower Balkans.

Berlin reported that the Russians in cooperation with Romanian troops had struck a new blow at the heart of Hungary along a broad front south of Oradea, but tonight's brief war bulletin from Moscow told only of actions on the Yugoslav front. Oradea is in Transylvania, 135 miles southeast of Budapest and 165 miles northeast of Belgrade.

Reports from Stockholm described the Soviet advance against Belgrade as a "landslide," and in Moscow Lt. Gen. Velimer Tersic, chief of the Yugoslav military mission in the Soviet Union, declared that the war in Yugoslavia now has reached a "decisive stage."

Capture of Belgrade would add to Moscow's prestige in the Balkans and provide a tonic for Marshal Tito's Partisans, who have fought the Germans at great odds, and militarily it would give the Russians control of one of the key points on the long Trans-Balkan railroad.

The Berlin correspondent of the German - controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau said in a dispatch published in Stockholm that eight Russian divisions were taking part in the drive on Belgrade from the north and the east.

The swiftness of the Yugoslav drive was fast exposing Hitler's southern flank, and in Hungary, the last Nazi satellite, alarms were broadcast.

Although Moscow has not yet announced a drive into Hungary, previously reported by both Berlin and Budapest, the Romanian communique Wednesday mentioned such an offensive. Without going into detail, it said both Russian and Romanian troops were taking part.

The German radio reported heavy artillery fire lasting several hours preceded the new attack, and the German radio commentator Von Olberg said the battle was reaching a "climax."

Danubian Iron Gate.

Scouts of Marshal Tito's Partisan army ferried across the Danube to meet Russians on the northern bank and help lead them westward.

Drive Is Arc-Shaped

On the map the Russian drive looked like an arc, one flank of which was hinged on the Danube several miles west of Bela Crvka. The other reached nearly to the Tisza, east of Petrovgrad. The enemy garrison in Belgrade seemed shortly due to be gripped in a pincers.

Front-line reports told of the Germans fleeing after the Russians broke up their counter-attacks in the vicinity of Petrovgrad.

Head For Railroad

East of Belgrade, Yugoslavia help speeded another Russian spearhead thrusting for the Trans-Balkan railway over which some 50,000 Germans in the lower Balkans still may try to escape.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky shifted powerful armored forces into the Yugoslav campaign while still hammering at the frontiers of Hungary.

Hungary Worse Off

Hungary's plight grew worse steadily as the Red army beat through northern Transylvania, smashing the Mureshul river line and capturing the west-bank town of Reghin.

The war-weary Hungarians are known to have been seeking through a variety of diplomatic channels to arrange an armistice, but the Germans are said to have threatened to raze Budapest and resort to every violent means of reprisal if Hungary deserted, like Romania and Finland.

If the present Russian pace is maintained, the embattled Serbian population of Belgrade may see a Red army victory parade before the week end.

Reds Nearing City.

Cluj, centuries-old Transylvanian capital, was reported echoing with the sound of Russian guns, now less than twelve miles southeast. Due eastward, forty-three miles, Marshal Malinovsky's forces captured Reghin after crossing the Muresul River. In the Hungarian-held Carpatho-Ukraine another Russian column reached the frontier south of Lawochne.

Cleaning up the north Baltic, Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad Army yesterday captured the Estonian Island of Hiiu (Dago), one of two major islands commanding the approaches to the Gulf of Finland and the Gulf of Riga. A communique last night said a full German infantry division was routed in the capture of Hiiu. The island of Saare (Osel), directly to the south, remains in the hands of the Germans.

The new drive upon Belgrade overran the important regional centers of Petrovgrad, Be a Crvka, Vrsac and a dozens other towns. Vrsac, a city of 30,000, is the junction of five railway lines and three highways. Ten miles to the southwest the Russians took Ulma in their closest reported approach to the capital.

The advances carried the Russians toward a full junction with Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans, operating in the vicinity of Belgrade.

Bulgars Under Red Command.

A dispatch from Sofia said Bulgarian troops now were fighting under Russian command.

Yugoslavia To Get Soviet Wheat

New York, Oct. 4—Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Council of National Liberation has been promised 200,000 tons of wheat by the Soviet Government, said a BBC broadcast monitored tonight by NBC.

Invaders Of Yugoslavia 20 Miles From Belgrade

Moscow, Oct. 4 (AP)—Russian machine gunners in American jeeps, with Yugoslav Partisans as guides, speared westward along the Danube less than 20 miles from Belgrade today.

Nearly all Yugoslav territory east of the big elbow formed by the confluence of the Danube and Tisza rivers was reported swept clean of German resistance by Red army forces advancing from the foothills of the Transylvania Alps more than 50 miles beyond the Danubian Iron Gate.

WARSAW FALL WIDENS RIFT

Recriminations Blast Hopes Of Unified Polish Regime

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—The outlook for political peace among the Poles was anything but bright tonight. Recriminations over Nazi suppression of the Warsaw uprising apparently wrecked, for the time being at least, any chance of forming a united provisional government.

In Moscow the Soviet-sponsored

Polish National Committee of Liberation made an issue of Gen. Tadeus Komorowski's (General Bor's) leadership of the Warsaw rebellion. German propagandists emphasized the split between Moscow Poles and the London Polish Government in exile, continuing efforts to drive a wedge between the Allies.

Paper Supports Committee

The Moscow News, the only English-language newspaper in Russia, supported the attitude of the National Committee with an attack on Komorowski and the London Polish Government.

"A criminal policy has been pursued by Polish emigre circles in London, who have done everything in their power to retard the development of the people's anti-Hitlerite movement," the paper said. "The latest events in Moscow afford a striking illustration of the provocative policy pursued by this group of adventurers, motivated by narrow personal interests."

The newspaper charged the London Poles had "sold the insurgents of Warsaw to Hitlerite executioners' and that Komorowski had "sent hundreds of thousands of patriots to their death, but did not risk visiting Warsaw himself. . . ."

Classed With Sosnkowski

General Komorowski, who was named commander in chief last week by the London Government to replace Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski as head of Polish armed forces in a move to placate Moscow, was "guilty of as many crimes against the Polish people as Sosnkowski himself," the article concluded.

The Polish Red Cross said in a report to Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk that 239,000 Warsaw civilians had been deported by the Germans for labor in the Reich and occupied territory.

The report said 4,000 others were held at the Pruszkow concentration camp, 15 miles southwest of Warsaw, where conditions were declared appalling.

The Polish Red Cross asked "immediate intervention by the Inter-

FINNS CLOSING IN ON PORT OF KEMI

Stiff German Resistance Reported in Helsinki Communique.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 4—(AP) Finnish troops fighting against stiff German resistance are closing in on Kemi, strong German held port on the Gulf of Bothnia, a Helsinki communique announced today.

The communique said that Finnish troops, pressing their campaign to disarm and intern Germans in Finland in accordance with the terms of their armistice with Russia, had crossed the Simo river, 20 miles south of the town, and advanced about halfway to Kemi."

North of the port, Finnish troops, which Sunday drove the Nazi garrison out of Tornio, 20 miles northwest of Kemi, beat off German counterattacks and destroyed three Nazi tanks. The Helsinki dispatch said Finnish fighter planes shot down two German Stukas which dive-bombed troops in Tornio yesterday. Swedish newspaper reports said the town was bombed again today with large fires started.

Describing the attack on Tornio, Associated Press War Correspondent Robert N. Sturdevant, writing from the Swedish-Finnish border near Tornio, said a number of Finnish troops were injured as the Stukas bombed and strafed the area, and that the Nazi resistance in the far north was "savage."

The Germans were using 88 millimeter guns in their attacks on the Finns in the Tornio area and hurling up a screen of machinegun fire in an effort to halt the infiltration of the Finnish forest fighters into their lines.

Sturdevant said that fanatical sick and wounded Nazis who were hospitalized in two schools in Tornio opened fire on the Finns who sought to take them prisoners Sunday after the rest of the garrison had been driven from the town. The Nazis held out for 24 hours until the buildings were set afire.

Premier Erhu Castren, in a radio address to the Finns, said the Germans were seizing hostages in northern Finland and a Helsinki dispatch to the Dagens Nyheter said the Nazis had taken 150 Finns at Kemi as hostages.

STUKAS STRAFE FINNISH TROOPS

Germans' Savage Attacks Embitter ex-Allies.

By ROBERT N. STURDEVANT.

Aboard a Finnish Ship, in the Gulf of Bothnia, Oct. 3 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Dive-bombing German planes and heavy gunfire testify to the increasing savagery of German resistance against their former allies, the Finns. An hour ago, at the debarkation pier near Tornea, where this small Finnish customs vessel prepared to depart with a party of Allied correspondents, German Stukas dive-bombed and machine-gunned the place. There were numerous casualties among hundreds of troops preparing to start for the front.

Finnish troops who landed in strength near Tornea and cleared the German garrison from the town in thirty-six hours' hard fighting are engaged about four miles southeast of Tornea on the road to Kemi. When I visited the front today, Finnish veterans of Karelia were pushing through deep woodlands at a point about seventeen miles from Kemi, an important Nazi base at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia.

[Finnish troops advancing along the gulf coastal road have captured Kuivaniemi and crossed the River Simo about halfway to Kemi, a Finnish communique announced today.]

Officers estimated the German strength at possibly a division, mainly SS and Austrian Alpine troops. Finnish reports said that the Nazis were rushing reinforcements to the Kemi sector from Rovaniemi.

Dead Germans, unburied after two days' fighting, were scattered on the roadside southeast of Tornea. Fanatical sick and wounded Germans, hospitalized at two of the schools in Tornea when the Finns arrived, fired on the troops who sought to take prisoners. They held out more than twenty-four hours until the buildings were burned.

15TH AIR FORCE RAIDS MUNICH

Yanks Also Pound Brenner Pass—RAF Hits Tirpitz

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—Up to 750 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the United States 15th Air Force hammered Munich railroad yards and the Brenner Pass area today while RAF heavy bombers dumped thousands of tons of explosives on German U-boat pens at Bergen, Norway.

The Air Ministry revealed that RAF Lancasters which used a Russian airdrome as an intermediate base recently scored a direct hit with a 12,000-pound bomb on the German battleship Tirpitz anchored near Altenfjord, Norway.

5,000-Mile Round Trip

The attack, made without loss, involved a round-trip flight of more than 5,000 miles between bases in England and the airdrome in Russia near Archangel.

While Allied heavy bombers were busy, Ninth Air Force mediums destroyed ten enemy gun positions that had been holding up the United States First Army drive into the Siegfried Line near Aachen. Other planes, supporting the United States Third Army near Luneville, knocked out one gun position, 35 locomotives and a viaduct.

The heavy bombers of the 15th Air Force, flying from Italian bases, smashed points on the Brenner Pass railroad and other Nazi communication routes into Italy.

Take Germans By Surprise

The plunge to Bergen by RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes, a 1,300-mile round trip, caught the Germans by surprise. It followed the spectacular puncturing yesterday of the seawall on Walcheren Island, which the Germans said trapped 6,000 troops in floods. A Berlin broadcast said "the fate of 3,000 others of our comrades who made for Flushing in small boats is not yet certain."

Escorted by Mustangs and Mosquitos the RAF bombers flew unopposed to Bergen except for flak over the target which brought down one Lancaster. The submarine pens attacked were mostly under construction.

The base is Germany's most advanced since the coast of France fell. Crews reported they saw vessels scrambling in all directions. Fires were started and a hit scored on a large ship, as well as on submarines in their pens.

Flight Feat In Itself

Of the Tirpitz mission, the 2,000-mile flight of the RAF Lancasters with heavy bomb loads from bases in England to Russia in 11 hours was described as a great feat in itself.

After refueling in Russia the heavies flew to Altenfjord, where the Tirpitz was directly hit with an "earthquake" bomb. Most attacks against the battleship have been made from the sea, the westward side. The assault from the landward side caught the Germans by surprise. The big bombers encountered no flak or enemy fighters.

Germans Claim Comeback

Although German fighter opposition has been scant over all parts of the Continent in the last three days, a German broadcast said that Nazi fighters "are staging a comeback." The announcer made no effort to explain the statement.

Heavy bombers of the English Air Force were grounded today because of the weather, but the United States Strategic Air Forces announced a total of 60,000 tons of bombs were dropped on German targets during September by the Eighth and the 15th Air forces.

The Eighth alone poured 35,000 tons out of its bomb bays.

ALLIED PLANES BOMB MUNICH

Brenner Rail Line and Norway Hit Too.

Rome, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Strong forces of heavy bombers today assaulted the Munich railyards and railpoints on the Brenner and other lines leading into northeastern Italy.

London, Oct. 4 (A .P.).—R. A. F. heavy bombers made a concentrated attack on German submarines and submarine pens at Bergen, Norway, today, the Air Ministry announced. One of the group of fighter-escorted Lancasters and Halifaxes failed to return.

With the loss of some of their most famous submarine havens in France, Bergen became the Germans' main advance U-boat base. An R. A. F. commentator said a number of the pens blasted today still were under construction.

Crews reported that when they came in over the target they saw many types of vessels slipping out in all directions. Several fires were started and one fairly large surface ship was seen to be hit, the Air Ministry said.

The 1,300-mile round trip to Bergen was one of the longest forays ever made in daylight by the R. A. F.'s four-engined craft.

Russian-based Lancaster bombers of the R. A. F. recently scored a direct hit with a 12,000-pound bomb on the German battleship Tirpitz, it was disclosed tonight.

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—Allied bombers kept up the pressure on Hitler's transportation system during the night as the Ruhr Valley, heart of industrial western Germany, lay paralyzed and cut off from many of the main rail and water connections with the rest of the Reich.

RAF Mosquito bombers attacked 31 trains, 20 barges and 25 motor transports in Germany and Holland after more than 1,000 American daylight bombers, out for the seventh time in nine days, had pasted important industrial targets in southern Germany and RAF heavies had started the flooding of the Dutch islands.

116 Trains

Last night's total brings to 116 the number of trains attacked by Mosquitos on three successive nights.

The Ruhr is reported to be completely isolated now by waterway, both from the North Sea and from central and eastern Germany, following the wrecking of the Dortmund-Ems Canal by British bombers September 23.

The Air Ministry called it the "most important air attack on German communications so far" and added that the economic and military effects would be far reaching.

Safety Gates Shattered

Reconnaissance photographs show long lines of barges lying helpless on the bottom of the canal. Some of the bombs shattered great safety gates and loosed floodwaters over hundreds of acres deep in the rear of the Siegfried Line.

A more serious flood threat faced German troops on Walcheren Island, off the Dutch coast, where RAF Lancasters yesterday blew out 120 yards of the seawall protecting the island from the North Sea.

The United States Eighth and 15th Air Forces together destroyed more than 1,200 German planes and dropped approximately 60,000 tons of bombs on military and industrial targets in Europe last month, headquarters of the United States Strategic Air Forces announced today. More than 35,000 tons of explosives were dropped on targets in Germany proper, the heaviest tonnage ever released on the Reich in a single month by the American air forces.

September victories showed 727 German aircraft destroyed on the ground and 530 shot out of the sky.

Combined Allied losses were 340 bombers and 243 fighters. Of this total, 265 of the Eighth's bombers and 197 of its fighters were checked off at missing.

BIG EARTHQUAKE

BOMB SCORES ON NAZI BATTLESHIP

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(AP) R.A.F. Lancasters based in Russia scored a direct hit recently with a six-ton "earthquake" bomb on the German battleship Tirpitz, in an attack involving a 5,000-mile round trip to and from Soviet fields, it was disclosed tonight.

The planes took off from British bases with heavy bomb loads for the 2,000-mile flight to Russia, which was made in 11 hours. They refuelled there and flew to Altenfjord, Norway, for the landward attack. Then the planes returned to the Russian bases and from there flew back to Britain.

Other R.A.F. heavy bombers today made a concentrated attack on German submarines and U-boat pens at Bergen, Norway, the Air Ministry announced, and one of the group of fighter-escorted Lancasters failed to return.

The Germans, with loss of some of their greatest submarine bases in France, have been obliged to make Bergen their principal U-boat haven.

Crews reported that when they came in over the target they saw many types of vessels fleeing in all directions. Several fires were started and one fairly large surface ship was seen to be hit. This 1,300-mile round trip was one of the longest daylight forays by the R.A.F.'s four-engined craft.

From the south strong forces of Allied heavy bombers today assaulted the Munich railyards and rail points on the Brenner Pass and other routes leading to Italy.

The R.A.F. attack on the Tirpitz was made without loss. The pilots met no flak or fighters. Heretofore most air attacks against the great German battleship have been made from the sea.

Pilot Talks 27 Nazis Into Surrendering

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—After talking 27 Germans into surrendering, a Ninth Air Force Thunderbolt pilot who had been shot down behind the Siegfried Line shepherded his flock into Allied custody recently.

First Lieutenant Emil Bertza, of East Chicago, Ind., was armed with only his quick wit and a meager knowledge of French when he was taken to a German prison camp.

30. 24 — 1939

One night when American fighter-bombers attacked the place, Bertza convinced six of his captors that they were surrounded by Americans and talked them into escorting him and five other prisoners to the Allied line.

Another 21 Nazis was added to the group when Bertza's detail was hailed by a German ober-lieutenant who also believed the Indiana boy's sales talk.

Bertza said he had to make seven other Nazis go back because "we didn't have enough rations to go around."

New Victory Uniform

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—Mass production on a new victory uniform for the British army—henceforth to be known as "V-U"—will be started shortly, it was disclosed today, so that it may be ready when Allied troops stage their expected victory march through Berlin.

The new uniform definitely will not be of the battle-dress type, and military tailoring experts describe it as "the smartest thing ever."

Cut from khaki cloth, the tunic will have lapels and shiny plastic buttons and will be worn with collar and tie. The trousers are a non-crease style.

AWARD GEN. CLARK SOVIET DECORATION

LONDON, Oct. 4 — (AP) The Moscow radio announced tonight that the Soviet government had awarded the order of Suvorov, first class, to Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the U. S. Fifth army in Italy, and to Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British 21st Army Group on the Western front.

The order, bestowed by the presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., is the highest army decoration given to any person outside the Soviet Union. General Dwight D. Eisenhower also holds it.

In addition, it also was awarded today to Lord Beaverbrook, British publisher and Lord Privy Seal in the Churchill government, and to Oliver Lyttelton, British Minister of production "for the important roles they have played in the struggle against the common enemy."

The broadcast, recorded here by the Soviet monitor, said the order of Kutuzov, first class, had been awarded to Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the 12th U. S. Army group on the Western front, and to Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, commander-in-chief of the Allied Expeditionary Air forces. This is the second highest army decoration to non-Russians.

King Peter II Sees Benes

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP).—King Peter II of Yugoslavia conferred today with Czechoslovakia's President, Eduard Benes, in a meeting regarded as a significant prelude to entry of Soviet troops into Belgrade.

TOP NAZI LEADERS ON CRIMINAL LIST

LONDON, Oct. 4. — (AP) The British war criminal list includes Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and Himmler, the House of Commons was assured today by Prime Minister Churchill, but he said that was no indication they would be put on trial.

"It should not be assumed," he said, "that the procedure of a trial will be necessarily adopted."

Caught by a surprise question, Churchill said he could not say whether the Nazi leaders were on the United Nations' criminal list and declined to debate whether international law failed to cover Germany's leaders.

"I do not think there is any immediate hurry about making any further announcement on this subject," he insisted.

In Washington, meanwhile, the State department announced that neutral governments had been requested to bar their countries as havens for enemy loot cloaked by puppet government transfers.

Hitler on Criminal List.

London, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Church told Commons today that Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and Himmler were on the British list of war criminals, but said he could not make any statement about the United Nations list at present.

Samuel Silverman, a Laborite, asked whether Mr. Churchill was aware that under present terms of the war crimes commission "none of these gentlemen would be indictable for any acts committed against any German nationals in Germany."

The Prime Minister replied: "We have not completed our job yet. I am not able to give full answers that affect international matters."

J. McGuvern, Independent Liberal, asked Mr. Churchill whether he would give "an assurance that if any German citizens should shoot any of these individuals, they will not be dealt with as the assassin of Darlan was dealt with."

Mr. Churchill said: "You are asking me to give assurances which cover such a vast field of uncertainty and are influenced on every side by hazard and chance."

The British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, told a questioner in the House today "that Nazi crimes against anti-Nazis in Germany could not be considered war crimes and therefore could not be dealt with on the same footing."

"Mr. Eden did not agree with a suggestion that the scope of the War Crimes Commission should be widened to include such matters," according to the BBC broadcast.

A London broadcast picked up by NBC stated that Mr. Eden told the House that Britain had received assurance from the Spanish Government that it will not grant asylum to war criminals.

GI Newspaper Begins German Lesson Series

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Stars and Stripes began a series of German lessons for GIs today with a translation of Ergeben sie sich—surrender.

On its editorial page the army newspaper published a picture of doughboys assaulting the German line and said: "The boys in the picture are talking German, too. They're talking the language the Germans understand better than any other. The language of fire and steel, of death and destruction."

N. Y.-London Air Line May Outstrip Sound

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP).—A House of Commons committee heard a prediction yesterday that in the not far distant future passengers may travel between New York and London faster than sound in pilotless stratosphere planes—like riding a flying bomb. [Sound travels about 720 miles an hour.]

The prediction was made by Sir Henry T. Tizard, formerly head of research in the Aircraft Production Ministry, in urging the government to allot $4,000,000 for civil aviation research.

DESTROYS 30 PLANES

London, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Capt. Henry W. Brown of Arlington, Va., has taken the lead among American fighter pilots now active in the European theater by destroying his thirtieth German plane, the United States Ninth Air Force announced last night. He has bagged sixteen in the air and fourteen on the ground.

GERMAN GIRLS PAY TO WED RUSSIANS

BERNE, Oct. 4—(AP) German girls are paying high prices and risking the death penalty in order to marry Russian workers in Germany in hopes that such marriage will enable them to escape reprisals for Nazi activities if the Soviet armies enter their country, the Berne newspaper, Nation, said today.

The paper published an account from a correspondent in Weissensee, Germany, who said he had witnessed one of the secret weddings there.

He related he was escorted into a house whose windows and door were barred with furniture. An orthodox priest, he said, quickly joined in marriage a girl of "good Bourgeoise family" to a Russian "half dead with hunger." The girl, he said, paid the priest 2,000 marks and 4,000 to her "husband," who also received clothes and a package of cigarettes.

YANKEES IN ITALY SLOWED UP BY MUD

American Fifth Army Troops Within 15 Miles of Vital Bologna.

ROME, Oct. 4—(AP)—American Fifth Army troops have reached a point within 15 miles of Bologna, important German communication center in northern Italy, in a drive slowed by mud and bitter Nazi resistance, Allied headquarters announced today.

Clearing skies allowed Allied bombers to resume support of the northern Italy offensive and gave promise of better footing.

The British Eighth army on the Adriatic sector was still stalled on the banks of the flooded Fiumicino, across which the Germans are heavily entrenched. However, patrols crossed the stream and probed enemy positions.

In the center of the battle line American troops moving along Highway 65 advanced two miles beyond captured Monghidor and were within 16 miles of Bologna while other American forces east of the highway reached the area just south of Boschi, 15 miles from Bologna, a city of 270,000 and a major supply base for the Germans.

Farther east American and Indian units moving toward Imola and Faenza, junction towns on the Bologna-Rimini highway, made slight gains.

On the west coast Brazilian troops of the Fifth army "continued to maintain pressure against the enemy" along their sector, headquarters reported.

German counterattacks against British forces holding Borghi, at the inland end of the narrow Eighth Army front spanning the southeastern corner of the Po Valley, were reported beaten off.

Americans Gain On 20-Mile Italy Front

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons today the British Government is opposed to returning colonies to Italy. He declared the Government would stick to its declaration that Italy's empire in Africa is irrevocably lost.

Rome, Oct. 4 (AP)—Fifth Army infantry made slight gains yesterday on a 20-mile front through the stiffest kind of German resistance, the Allied command announced today.

Deep mud and determined opposition slowed the Americans fighting along valley roads on the north side of the Apennines toward the Po Valley.

Clearing skies helped Fifth Army artillery observation, however, and the guns held German road movements to a minimum.

Halted By Floods

Near the coast, an official report said the Brazilian division with the Fifth Army "continued to maintain pressure against the enemy along its entire front."

In the Adriatic sector the Fiumicino river, behind which the Germans are strongly entrenched, was in full flood and only a few Eighth Army patrols managed to cross it to probe enemy positions.

Fighting was reported in Borghi, at the inland end of the narrow Eighth Army front, spanning the southeastern corner of the Po Valley. The town remained in British hands.

In the mountainous central sector the most striking American gains were made east of Highway 65, the main Florence-Bologna artery. The Americans reached the area just south of Boschi, 15 airline miles from Bologna.

Other American units driving northeast toward the Po Valley road junction of Imola mopped up Campeggio and advanced 1,000 yards.

16 Miles From Bologna

Along Highway 65, the Americans who cleared the junction town of Monghidor advanced two miles beyond to within 16 of Bologna. San Benedetto, three and one half miles west of Monghidor, and Sant' Andrea two miles farther west, also were seized.

Fifth Army British troops moving up toward Faenza repulsed sharp counterattacks and gained another hill position.

Clearing weather enabled bombers to resume support of the Allied armies on a moderate scale. Six planes were lost from 800 sorties.

Meanwhile, the Government of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, upon advice of the Allied Control Commission, has postponed indefinitely a special investigation into causes of the swift Italian capitulation of Rome to the Germans after Italy's armistice with the Allies August 9, 1943.

The commission was understood to have told the Italians it considered the investigation, which promised far-reaching political consequences, inadvisable at a time when many witnesses were in northern Italy and when it might have harmful effects on the morale of Italian armed forces.

Last Allied Flyers Quit Bulgaria

ROME, Oct. 4 (AP).—The withdrawal of 442 captured Allied flyers from Bulgaria was completed yesterday when twenty-four wounded men landed at an Italian air base from Cairo. The first men crossed the Bulgar border into Turkey Sept. 10 after Bulgaria's surrender. A 15th Air Force announcement said all the injured made the trip in good condition and, like those brought here earlier, told of overcrowded prison camps where food and medical care were poor.

Archbishop to Visit Pacific

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 4 (AP).—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, of New York, is expected to leave Rome soon to visit American troops in the Pacific area, a Vatican source said today.

Half Of Crete Nazis Reported Casualties

London, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Algiers radio declared today that half of the German occupation forces on Crete had been killed, wounded or captured by invading Allied troops.

Allied landings on the island were reported yesterday by the Morocco radio. Thus far there has been no official confirmation.

Jinnah Says Gandhi Aims To Discredit League

Bombay, Oct. 4 (AP)—Mahomed Ali Jinnah, President of the All-India Moslem League, accused Mohandas K. Gandhi tonight of attempting to discredit the league in his statements concerning the breakdown of conversations between Gandhi and Jinnah.

Jinnah deplored to a press conference Gandhi's reference to the presence of a third party (apparently meaning the British) hindering a settlement of the communal problem.

He added that Gandhi was an enigma and his proposals a veritable trap to Moslems. Their acceptance, he said, would mean burial of the Pakistan (the league's plan for partitioning India into separate Hindu and Moslem states).

9746 JAPS KILLED

Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. M. G. N. Stopford's Thirty-third Indian Corps has killed 9,746 Japanese and captured 450 in the last six months in a 295-mile advance from Dimapur to the gates of Tiddim, in western Burma, it was announced here today. In company with the British Fourth Corps, the Thirty-third has liberated more than 1,000 inhabited localities, the announcement declared.

It was the Thirty-third which turned back the invasion of India at its peak north of Kohima, removing a serious threat to the railway serving Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell in northern Burma.

JAPS CLOSER TO FOOCHOW

Fukien Offensive Drives Within 6 Miles Of City

Chungking, Oct. 4 (AP)—Japanese invasion forces are less than six miles from Foochow, last large East China coast port held by the Chinese, the high command announced tonight, acknowledging for the first time that the enemy had made a successful landing in Fukien province.

The new Japanese offensive in Fukien and the strong enemy drive in Kwangsi province toward Kweilin indicate here a Japanese plan to seize American air bases to deny any American force heading for the China coast the protection of land-based aerial support.

Hingan Falls To Japs

The high command said the invaders had captured Hingan, on the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad, 31 miles northeast of Kweilin, in a threat to outflank Kweilin on the west as well as on the east. Fighting was reported 12 miles west of Hingan.

At the same time the communique said the enemy had broken into Changning, 37 miles south of Hengyang and which for many weeks had kept the left flank of the Japanese drive on Kweilin exposed. The high command said street fighting still was in progress in the city.

On the right flank of the enemy's Kweilin offensive, fierce fighting was raging inside Paoching, west of Hengyang, the high command said, and between Monday evening and noon Tuesday 12 Japanese attacks were frustrated by the Chinese defenders.

Battle Near Tanchuk

The communique said there was no change in the situation on the West river front where last reports said Chinese and Japanese regulars were battling in the vicinity of Tanchuk and Pingnan, which the invaders have captured.

The Chinese command said enemy forces landed in Fukien province on the morning of September 27 from seven vessels, 18 miles northeast of Foochow. The invaders traveled westward through Lienkong and yesterday had reached a point just east of Foochow.

[A broadcast by the Japanese agency Domei said the Fukien landings were accomplished by a "huge convoy" that approached the coast under cover of darkness through a "very rough" sea.]

Fourteen Japanese planes were destroyed in combat by the United States 14th Air Force during the week ended Sept. 27 without the loss of a single American aircraft, General Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Reports Wuchow Air Battle

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Tokyo radio, heard by the FCC, said tonight "some ten" American planes had "attempted to menace" Japanese transportation today on the Peh river in China and had fought a battle with Japanese planes over Wuchow, 100 miles west of Canton.

An earlier Domei broadcast from Tokyo said American planes had raided Canton nightly beginning last Saturday.

Flyers Try To Halt Jap China Drive

An Advanced Base, in Eastern China, Oct. 1 (AP—Delayed)—A steady stream of bombers and fighters flew out from this last major American air base in eastern China today in a desperate effort to slow down the Japanese drive in Kwangsi province.

Combat units from a half-dozen or more fields already evacuated are crowded into this base, possibly one of the busiest in the world-wide war.

There is scarcely a minute planes are not taking off or landing. Mostly they are combat aircraft operating against the Japanese steadily closing in from the northeast and southeast. Strings of supply planes bring bombs, ammunition and gasoline.

Called Bewildering

For these advance elements of the United States 14th Air Force, this battle is one of the most bewildering and discouraging they have had. The mainsprings of the organization here are 29-year-old Brig. Gen. Clinton D. (Casey) Vincent, base commander, and Col. David L. (Tex) Hill, commander of a fighter group. Both are from San Antonio, Texas.

Although the Americans have had complete air superiority during the entire period of the Japanese East China drive which began last May, they have had to abandon field after field as Chinese troops fell back.

Bombed Often By Japs

Instead of having a string of bases in eastern China the Americans now have the full use only of this base. It is being bombed almost every night.

The Japanese won't venture out by day because when they do they lose from one-third to two-thirds of their bombers to American fighters.

Thousands of Chinese refugees poured through here today, some of them hundreds of miles from home, fleeing the Japanese invasion.

It was the first major migration in nearly four years. Most of the refugees came from the Kweilin area.

Packed Into Cars

They were packed into, underneath and on top of box cars and passenger cars as only Chinese refugees can pack. Household equipment and bags of rice were stacked to the ceilings of the cars while men, women and children burrowed into nooks and crannies between chair legs, on top of boxes and astride the bags of grain.

The boiling sun made the cars hot as furnaces. Scores of cars were jammed into the rail yards waiting for engines.

Cases of cholera had appeared and laboratories were set up to provide inoculation but the supplies of serum were pitifully small.

ALLIED AIR FORCES BOMB 10 JAP SHIPS

Port Of Makassar Pounded In Widespread Sweeps

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Thursday, Oct. 5 (AP)—Allied planes sank or damaged ten more Japanese freighters, pounded Japanese airfields and lashed at an important port in sweeps from the Philippines to Amboina, reported today by headquarters.

Heavy bombers ploughed through fairly heavy anti-aircraft fire to attack Makassar, major Japanese port on the southwest coast of Celebes. They started 17 sizable fires among oil tanks and wharves during the assault Monday night and early Tuesday morning. No Allied planes were lost.

Catalina partlo planes hit the largest ship of the bag in Amerong Bay, Celebes, during the same night. They left the 2,000-ton freighter burning and listing heavily.

The Cats also pounced on a cluster of smaller freighters and barges at Gorontalo, north-central Celebes, damaging three, sinking several barges and bombing land installations.

Earlier that day Lightning fighter planes sank four 1,000-ton freighters in Ambon Bay, Amboina Island. Heavy units struck the adjacent Laha and Haroekoe airdromes with 95 tons of explosives.

Victims Of Patrol Planes

Patrol planes damaged a medium tanker at Basilan Island, south of Zamgoanga in the southern Philippines, and sank a 1,000-tonner in the Soela Islands, east of Celebes.

Airdromes on Ceram were knocked out temporarily with 90 tons of explosives.

Meanwhile, Sixth Army troops on morotai Island, in the Halmaheras, mopped up enemy positions five miles north of the Pitoe airfield, now in American hands. Skirmishing at the headwaters of the Pilowo river resulted in 29 enemy killed. The Japanese total now is 70 dead and 12 captured in the virtually unopposed Morotai campaign.

Drive To Bottle Up Borneo Oil Launched

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Oct. 4 (AP)—Liberator bombers in the longest mass raid ever made in the Southwest Pacific have opened a drive to [illegible] out Japan's big source of [illegible] gasoline and lubricating oils at Balikpapan, on Borneo, Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today.

More than 60 bombers dealt a crippling blow Saturday, battled 30 Zeros for more than an hour, weaved through skies filled with ack-ack and all but three got back, some badly shot up, some with gas tanks almost empty.

Damage Is Heavy

But their 74 tons of bombs, carried from advance bases, caused heavy destruction at what MacArthur described as "the most lucrative, strategic target in the Pacific."

"The Japs won't be turning out much aviation gasoline at Balikpapan for Jap Zeros for awhile," reported two squadron leaders, Lieut. Hollis Chase, of Larchmont, N. Y., and Lieut. Donald E. Bone, of Garland, Utah.

Forty bomb hits were counted on the power plant and refraction towers of the 3,000,000-barrel capacity Pandansari refinery by airmen of the "Bomber Barons."

Chutists Strafed

General MacArthur's communique pointed out that the destruction of Balikpapan would curtail "drastically and immediately the enemy's capacity to wage air and naval war and to move essential cargo."

During the sky fighting, parachuting American airmen of one falling Liberator were strafed by Zero machine guns as they drifted down, a spokesman said.

Seven Zeros were shot down; others were damaged.

Huge fires swept the refinery area. Bomb hits were scored on a 2,000-ton ship in the harbor.

Base Not Located

(The takeoff point was not specified but MacArthur is known to have bomber bases in the Schouten Islands off Dutch New Guinea within 1,300 miles of Balikpapan. From his most advanced base at Morotai in the Halmaheras, his planes are less than 1,000 miles away.)

The Japanese sent up medium bombers to fly on the flanks of the unescorted Liberators to provide anti-aircraft batteries with the range. Returning flyers told Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent, "it was the heaviest ack-ack we ever flew through."

Parked Planes Hit

MacArthur also reported a lucrative strike by one navy Liberator at Zamboanga, southern Philippines, Sunday. It destroyed or damaged seven seaplanes, a large flying boat, three parked bombers and a fuel-laden coastal vessel.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's communique last night said the Japanese were holding out tenaciously at "Blondy Nose Ridge" on Peleliu and at one isolated point on Angaur, islands in the invaded Palaus. Betraying concern over American use of Peleliu airfield, within bomber range of the Philippines, an enemy plane raided it Sunday but its bombs fell in an adjacent swamp.

Nimitz also reported a 31-ton strike at by-passed Truk by Liberators, two of which were damaged by ack-ack.

Flyers Discover Crocodiles Win a Battle In New Guinea at Night

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC BASE—(AP) On a pocket handkerchief island in a tiny lake fed by one of Dutch New Guinea's longest rivers was stationed a wondering force of three Aussies and seven Americans. The island was on no map, military or civil. It was barely 45 yards wide and 500 long and not more than ten yards of the clearing were fit to walk on. The rest was crocodile-infested swamp.

Corp. Len Walker, an Aussie, detected a strange new note in the noise of the crocodiles. Then he saw in the darkness silhouettes of men in three native canoes. The silhouettes rushed at him, shouting. The shape in front made a vicious sweep at him with a sword. He ducked and the havy blade stuck in the palm trunk beside him.

Walker was shouting now, kicking and flaying with his rifle. He caught a bayonet thrust in the arm and another in the leg, but he managed to keep his feet and parry other thrusts as he backed toward the tents.

Now he heard the familiar chatter of an Owen gun. It was a mad scramble. In the darkness shooting was dangerous—you might hit one of your own men—so it was mostly bayonets and bare hands. Even the Owen gun stopped chattering after those initial bursts.

Then the enemy party withdrew to the coconut palms and began lobbing grenades at the tent. The Aussies and Yanks opened machine guns on the Japanese and forced them toward the water's edge, finally into the lake itself. Their struggles and screaming as the crocodiles went for them was horrible. After ten minutes it was quiet. Even the crocs let up in their jaw clacking.

Corp. Walker counted casualties. Seven of his party were wounded, none fatally, and three had minor scratches. Of the Japanese, six had been killed in the hand-to-hand fighting. One was found badly wounded. One had escaped into the swamp and was heard calling for his comrades. There was none to answer him. The few who had escaped the crocs drowned.

Boating More Dangerous

An Advanced United States Southwest Pacific Air Base, Sept. 23 (AP—Delayed)—Pleasure boating around a Southwest Pacific island air base can be more dangerout, at times, than a bombing mission against a tough target.

So discovered Sergts. Caesar Devita, of Tacoma, Wash., and Herman H. West, Shelburn, Ind., turret gunners on a 13th Air Force B-24 the other day.

Carried Miles Off Shore

Veterans of 10 bombing missions, they went boating in an old belly tank during their day off. The tide caught them and carried them several miles offshore, swept them down the New Guinea coastline and prankishly brought them ashore behind the Japanese lines of a mainland perimeter held by the Americans. They landed late at night, stark naked.

They stumbled down the beach toward American lines for two hours. Fortunately, no Japanese patrols were operating around the beach for without any clothing they were pretty conspicuous in the moonlight.

Presently they stumbled over some barbed wire and immediately a string of lights snapped on—defense measure in the American perimeter clearing. They were hustled inside the lines.

Chichi Jima Shipping Raided

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 4 (AP)—Striking within 615 miles of Tokyo, American Liberators bombed and hit a Japanese cargo ship at Chichi Jima in the

30. 24 — 19321

Bonin Islands while two enemy planes watched but declined to give battle, the navy announced tonight.

The bombers attacked shipping Chichi Jima harbor Monday.

Navy Venturas hit Paramushiro in the Kuriles. Other air raids were reported against Marcus Island, Pagan in the northern Marianas and Jaluit and Maloelap in the Marshalls.

In the invaded Palaus, where marines and soldiers are mopping up on Pelelilu and Angaur, the total enemy dead through Tuesday was given as 10,987, with 9,878 on Peleliu, 1,109 on Angaur.

Seven More Jap Admirals Die

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—The death of seven more Japanese rear admirals was reported by Tokyo radio today in a broadcast recorded here.

Within the last month Tokyo has reported the death of 19 admirals.

The latest seven were identified as Kanichi Hagihara, Sorokuro Morino, Tosaburo Ogura, Fuji Arimura, Shizuo Akasawa, Ryo Mori and Seiko Miyamoto. The broadcast gave no details of how they died.

"Decisive Battle Due"

In an earlier Tokyo broadcast of a Domei news agency dispatch, Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu was quoted as saying the forthcoming battle of the Philippines "will be the greatest and most decisive battle fought" in the Pacific.

The former commander in chief of the Japanese fleet described the issue "not as a mere battle for the Philippines but one which will decide whether Japan can maintain or be cut off from her communication with the vital resources in the southern regions," and would "decide the general war situation."

Sees Series Of Sea Fights

The naval strategist predicted there would be no one great naval engagement but a series of important engagements, determined largely by air power.

Other Japanese broadcasts reported a widespread series of American air raids in the Pacific and claimed the sinking of an Allied submarine. All these reports were without confirmation.

PFC And GI G-Man

CRIPPLED BOMBER BEATS OFF 12 JAPS

A Seventh Army Air Force Base in the Mariannas, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—The "Bombs' Lullaby" shouldn't have come back—but she did. It was after she bombed Iwo Jima, in the Volcano Islands, that she ran into trouble.

She came home with her elevator almost useless. There were 400 bullet and shrapnel holes in her, a shell had exploded her auxiliary gasoline tank, one engine was out for landing, a tire on the same side was flat, she carried two dead and one critically wounded crew member.

The "Bombs' Lullaby" had flown through strong flak to dump a bomb load. The plane was flying at high altitude, about 1,000 feet below some light clouds, when a hail of shells and bullets tore into the bomber. Lieut. Robert L. Nelson, the pilot, of 6146 Palmetra street, Brooklyn, saw the tracers and incendiary bullets, but no one saw the twelve attacking Japanese planes immediately.

The tail gunner and a photographer were killed. The left waist gunner was wounded in the head and shoulder. The right waist gunner held open a damaged window with one hand and fired his machine gun with the other.

While the blazing guns of the Bombs' Lullaby kept the Nipponese from coming in for a kill, Lieut. Nelson and his co-pilot kept the plane in formation and Bombs' Lullaby came home to a precarious landing.

BACKS THE ATTACK

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 4—(AP) New Zealand's $40,000,000 victory loan drive has exceeded its goal by a quarter million dollars, Prime Minister Peter Fraser announced today.

Army Finally Finds An Aleut In Aleutians

An Aleutian Island Base, Oct. 3 (AP)—Until recently thousands of American soldiers and sailors have spent months and years on the Aleutians without seeing a native, or recognizing one if they did see him. All the Aleuts were evacuated early in the war to southeastern Alaska except a few on Attu who were captured by the Japanese.

It took an army special service officer to locate a native Aleut on the Aleutians. He turned out to be Pfc. Ralph Prokopevff, who returned to the islands after being drafted more than two years ago from his home on Atka Island.

U. S. and Britain Ask Neutrals To Bar Loot of Nazi Leaders

Washington, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—The United States and British governments have sent notes to neutral nations requesting that they prevent Axis leaders from retaining their loot or finding safe haven for their wealth in neutral territories.

Reviewing methods by which enemy officials and particularly Nazi leaders have sought to plant wealth for their future use in neutral safety, a State Department statement issued today declared:

"In anticipation of impending defeat, the enemy is increasing these activities in order to salvage his assets and to perpetuate his economic influence abroad and his power and ability to plan future aggrandizement and world domination."

The request for measures against protecting the wealth of "enemy governments and leaders and their collaborators" apparently went to all neutral countries except Argentina.

Officials said that although Argentina is the one nation about which most apprehension has been expressed with respect to future Fascist activities, neither the British nor American request went to Buenos Aires.

Text of Statement.

The text of the American statement:

"On October 2 the Government of the United States requested the neutral governments to institute measures to prevent enemy governments and leaders and their collaborators from retaining their loot under neutral protection and from finding safe haven for their wealth in neutral territories.

"These representations were made in keeping with resolution six of the Bretton Woods conference and were directed at objectives similar to those of the United Nations' declaration of January 5, 1943, with respect to looted property, and the declaration of February 22, 1944, concerning looted gold. Similar representations were made by the British Government.

"The problem of uncovering and disentangling enemy and looted property is one of international character which can be most effectively handled in co-operation with the neutral countries. The enemy has been taking property of occupied countries and their nationals by open looting and plundering, by forcing transfers under duress, and by subtle and complex devices.

"The enemy has often operated through the agencies of public governments to give the cloak of legality to his robbery. The enemy has also been attempting to conceal his assets by passing the chain of ownership and control through occupied and neutral countries.

"In anticipation of impending defeat the enemy is increasing these activities in order to salvage his assets and to perpetuate his economic influence abroad, and his power and ability to plan future aggrandizement and world domination.

"This Government, in presenting its note to the neutrals, indicated that it considered co-operation in this matter to be of 'primary importance to the welfare of occupied nations and to the protection of the lives and property of their nationals and to the peace and security of the post-war world.'"

PLEDGES MORE HELP TO ITALY

Roosevelt Calls U. S. Supply Officers to Map Plans.

Washington, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt today summoned a delegation of supply officers from Italy to review measures for preventing civilian hunger, sickness and fear during the coming winter.

Steps are being taken, Mr. Roosevelt said, "to enable the Italian people to throw their full resources into the fight against Germany and Japan."

The President said in his statement:

Measures are now being taken to provide Italy with supplies necessary to prevent civilian hunger, sickness and fear, during the forthcoming winter. Steps are also being taken to restore the damaged transportation and electrical generating facilities of Italy.

"In addition to the substantial quantities of food and clothing which are now being shipped, and have for some time been shipped into Italy, 150,000 tons of wheat and flour are now scheduled for shipment," he continued, "steps are being taken to increase the bread ration. The distribution of food and essential supplies within the country has been seriously impeded by the damage done to the transportation system and the wholesale commandeering of trucks by the enemy. To meet this emergency need it is planned to send 1,700 additional trucks to Italy."

The aid which the Allies have already given to Italy has been substantial," the President pointed out. "Since the invasion of Sicily to the end of this year, 2,300,000 long tons of civilian supplies will have been shipped to Italy. Of this total, 1,107,000 tons were food and the balance consisted of coal, fertilizer, seeds, medical and sanitary supplies and clothing."

NEW BLOWS DUE AGAINST JAPAN

Washington, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Signs multiplied today that the Navy is getting set for new blows against Japan, possibly with Admiral Ernest J. King stepping personally into the campaign.

The Navy, following the disclosure of a West Coast meeting by its top-ranking chiefs, announced a shift of Washington command that will give Admiral King a chance to spend more time in war zones. Friends say the fleet commander in chief will welcome this opportunity.

It came in creation of the new office of deputy commander in chief, a position which the Navy said was made necessary by the size of the fleet—now the largest in world history.

With Vice-Admiral R. S. Edwards serving as his second in command, Admiral King will be able to shed many of the duties which have required his personal attention.

Strong possibilities exist that, with the war in the Pacific primarily a naval fight and growing in intensity, Admiral King will spend more time closer to the war zones there.

Gives Japs Year After V-E Day

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—Dr. H. H. Kung, Chinese Finance Minister, predicted today that Japan will be defeated a year after the war in Europe ends and remarked: "Don't worry about China—China will fight on with you."

300,382 Prisoners Of War In U. S. Camps

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—The War Department reported today there were 300,382 prisoners of war in the United States on October 1. The total included 248,205 Germans, 51,034 Italians and 1,143 Japanese.

The prisoners are held at 131 base camps and approximately 300 branch camps. The latter house prisoners near work projects.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of 192 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 65,594 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 25,906 are reported dead, 25,477 wounded, 9,731 missing and 4,480 prisoners of war. Included in the list today are the following with their next of kin:

Roosevelt Calls Top War Leaders

Washington, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt today scheduled a late afternoon meeting with top military commanders, but the White House gave no indication of the purpose of the conference.

On the calling list were Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff; Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations; Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the Air Forces, and Admiral William D. Leahy, the president's own chief of staff.

Second Witness Refuses to List Backers' Names

Kamp Takes Same Stand

as Rumely, as Latter Surrenders, Posts Bond

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP).—A second witness refused today to give requested information to the House campaign expenditures committee even as Dr. Edward A. Rumely, of New York, who had taken a similar stand, posted bond on a charge of "willful default" of a Congressional subpoena.

Joseph P. Kamp, of New York, subpoenaed as a representative of the Constitutional Educational League, told the committee he would "risk the possible consequences of refusing to supply names of financial contributors to the league.

He contended the league did not engage in political activities and hence did not come within the scope of the committee's activities.

Dr. Rumely, executive secretary of the Committee for Constiutional Government, took a similar position earlier in the House committee's investigation when he was asked to supply the names of all contributors of $100 or more to his organization, which publisher Frank Gannett, of Rochester, N. Y., founded in 1937.

Dr. Rumely's action was reported to the district attorney, and a grand jury indicted him. Surrendering today, he was fingerprinted and posted $500 bond for arraignment Oct. 13. Conviction on the charge is punishable by up to one year's imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

The House committee chairman, Representative Clinton P. Anderson, Democrat, of New Mexico, said Mr. Kamp's action would be considered by the full committee on Saturday.

On the stand, Mr. Kamp complained that two men from Attorney General Francis Biddle's office had come to his New York home to serve the subpoena "when there are any number of United States marshals in New York quite competent to take care of such a minor detail."

Dr. Rumely also was on the witness stand briefly during the day. Under questioning from Chairman Anderson, he said the Committee for Constitutional Government had employed T. R. Ewart, of Dallas, at $10,000 a year as public relations counsel in Texas last year and this year. Mr. Ewart however, was quoted in Dallas as saying: "It's not true. He just made it up."

Dr. Rumely said Mr. Ewart was paid to promote meetings to stimulate interest in the Constitution, but Representative Anderson contended Mr. Ewart was a "press agent" to "eliminate" four Democrats in Congress—Speaker Sam Rayburn, Wright Patman, Lyndon Johnson and Luther Johnson. All four won renomination in this year's primaries.

Poynter Says Dies Group Is Intimidating Press

Press Research Head Attacks It as Hearings Begin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Dies committee was accused today by the head of Press Research, Inc., of applying "Gestapo methods of intimidation to the press."

Nelson Poynter, publisher of the Washington research agency, made the accusation in a statement to reporters as the special House committee began inquiring into distribution of a pamphlet entitled "Special Report No. 1—Dewey," prepared by Mr. Poynter's organization.

Earlier, his managing editor, David Loth, had testified that Press Research, Inc., was not connected with or financed in any way by the National Citizens' Political Action Committee or any political committee. Mr. Poynter said he was a member of the N. C. P. A. C.

The Democratic National Committee has said it used the ninety-five-page pamphlet as "source material." Mr. Loth presented to the Dies committee copies which he said were reprints by the Democratic committee under a cover page caricaturing Governor Dewey thumbing a ride and saying: "Going My Way" to Uncle Sam astride a tank traveling in the opposite direction toward "victory."

Mr. Loth said Press Research, Inc., had given the Democratic committee permission to reprint the pamphlet without charge.

Mr. Poynter declared his organization was a research agency for bona fide newspapers and magazines and derived all of its revenue from "legitimate newspapers and magazines."

OPPOSE INCREASE IN SECURITY TAX

Sen. Vandenberg Urges Freezing of Social Security Tax Rate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 — (AP) Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) proposed today the freezing of social security payroll taxes at present levels for a fourth year, raising the possibility of another controversy between the Administration and Congress.

Asserting the social security reserve fund will reach an estimated $6,000,000,000 on January 1 and that collections at current levels will meet anticipated payments for the next five years without disturbing it, Vandenberg declared in a statement:

"Under these circumstances, and since every effort next year must be to reduce rather than increase taxes, I shall again ask that the 100 per cent increase in pay-roll taxes and workers be postponed."

The freezing of payroll taxes at one per cent against employers and one per cent against employes was made a part of the tax bill passed early this year over President Roosevelt's veto.

In his veto message, the President wrote:

"The elimination of automatic increases provided in the social security law comes at a time when industry and labor are best able to adjust themselves to such increases."

Unless Congress acts before that time the taxes automatically will be doubled January 1 on 40,000,000 workers and all of their employers, going to two per cent on each.

Vandenberg said that under the "reserve rule" he attributed to Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, contingent reserves need not exceed three times the highest annual expenditures anticipated during the five subsequent years.

The Senator said the present reserve is 12 times the low estimate of possible 1949 expenditures and eight times the highest estimate.

RURAL EDUCATION NEEDS EMPHASIZED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 — (AP) President Roosevelt said today the federal government should provide financial aid where needed to bring country schools up to the educational level of city school systems, but that such said should "never involve government interference with local administration."

Speaking to a Rural Education Conference at the White House, Mr. Roosevelt said, "frankly, the chief problem of rural education is the problem of dollars and cents" and he added, the basic reason for the variance between rural schools and city schools hinges on the pay for instructors.

"It is not patriotism alone that has taken teachers out of the classrooms," Mr. Roosevelt continued. "Most of them simply can not afford to teach in rural schools."

The President said the gap between educational standards in the richer communities and those in poorer areas is greater now than it was a century ago. He said the gap must be closed "by raising the standards in the poorer communities."

Within one school year after Pearl Harbor, he stated, several thousand rural schools were closed for want of teachers.

"One of the leading farm papers," he asserted, "recently reported that in one agricultural state of the midwest, nearly a third of the teachers in one-room schools are now persons holding only emergency licenses to teach, and nearly 800 schools face this coming school year without a teacher."

Mr. Roosevelt did not say what form federal financial aid should take but specified that it should go "only where it is needed—in communities where farming does not pay, where land values have depreciated through erosion or through flood or drought, where industries have moved away, where transport facilities are inadequate or where electricity is unavailable for power and light."

Petrillo Calls Meeting To Discuss FDR Request

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4. — (AP) After two years of trying, the government decided today that it cannot make the American Federation of Musicians sing in harmony with the recording companies, so President Roosevelt asked the union, on a personal basis, to follow Washington's baton.

In a telegram to James Caesar Petrillo, the union's president, Mr. Roosevelt said it would be "your country's gain" if the union would comply with a War Labor board order and drop its ban on making recordings. The WLB order was issued last June 15, and the union has ignored it.

In New York, Petrillo's office announced the federation leader had telegraphed the President that he had called a meeting of the union's international executive board to be held in Chicago Oct. 9, "at which time your request will be given careful consideration."

A spokesman said Petrillo would have no further comment prior to the board meeting.

"Your request that the American Federation of Musicians lift its ban against playing for mechanical reproduction of music for commercial use has been received. It is very gratifying to the American Federation of Musicians that the Director of Economic Stabilization is of the opinion that we are not unduly impeding the war effort, nor are we in violation of any statutory law.

"This opinion vindicates the position which we have taken throughout this entire controversy.

"The importance of this matter of necessity requires me to submit it to the International Executive Board of the American Federation of Musicians. Since members of this board reside in various parts of the United States and Canada, it will take at least four days for them to convene.

"I have issued a call for them to meet in Chicago on Monday, Oct. 9 at which time your request will be given careful consideration."

Petrillo told a Senate committee, in January, 1943, that if the President asked that the ban be lifted "the request would be granted."

Mr. Roosevelt's telegram said Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson had decided that the union's non-compliance with the WLB order "is not unduly impeding the war effort.." For the government to act, he noted, the statute requires a finding that a dispute does impede the war effort.

"But this non-compliance may encourage other instances of non-compliance which will impede the war effort," the telegram continued.

"In a country which loves democratic government and loves keen competition under the rules of the game, parties to a dispute should adhere to the decisions of the board even though one of the parties may consider the decision wrong."

Paul W. Kesten, executive vice president of Columbia Broadcasting system, said he was "disappointed and puzzled" by the finding that the dispute does not impede the war effort. "It is a ban not only against commercial transcriptions but against the making of all musical recordings, whether for commercial use, home use, or use by and for our troops," he commented.

The ban originally was issued Aug. 1, 1942. It forbade members of the union to make recordings and Petrillo declared its purpose was to force more use of "live musicians."

In practice, the ban now applies only to Victor, Columbia and the National Broadcasting company's transcription division. The union has made agreements with about 80 other companies.

Frank M. Folsom, vice-president of the Radio Corporation of America in charge of the RCA-Victor division, said the latter and the National Broadcasting company's radio recording division were "gratified that President Roosevelt has taken such a strong position," and added:

"We are hopeful that Mr. Petrillo will comply with the President's request and the dispute can be quickly settled to the satisfaction of all concerned."

DEWEY DRAFTING NEW APPEALS FOR INDEPENDENT VOTE

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(AP) Indications that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey planned to direct larger share of his presidential campaign appeals toward the so-called "independent" voters developed today as the Republican nominee labored on an address scheduled for Charleston, W. Va., Saturday night.

Ready to reply to any attacks President Roosevelt may make in a radio talk tomorrow night, Dewey huddled with Elliott V. Bell, his chief assistant in speech-writing.

Although lacking any inkling of what the President will say in his broadcast, most of the Dewey camp leaders appeared to believe the phase of the campaign represented by Mr. Roosevelt's attack Sept. 23 on the G.O.P., and Dewey's vigorous retort at Oklahoma City, may have ended.

To Visit Vital States

One close adviser, who preferred not to be quoted by name, said that barring unexpected developments, the Governor probably would spend a major share of his efforts until Nov. 7 attempting to convince undecided voters in such states as New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Minnesota, Massachusetts and others with large electoral totals that the time had arrived for a change in administration.

As this adviser analyzed the Republican campaign thus far Dewey's appeals in speeches and conferences on his swing to the West Coast and back were geared primarily toward the "independent" vote. He said the Oklahoma City talk appeared to have served as a stimulant to G.O.P. campaign workers besides offering the nominee's answers to the President's statements.

With the idea of taking advantage of developments as they occur, Dewey and his advisers are keeping his speaking dates for the remainder of the campaign subject to change.

Talks Planned in Mid-West

In New York, the Republican National committee announced Oct. 24 had been set for Minneapolis and the following day for Chicago. James C. Hagerty, the governor's executive assistant, said tentative arrangements had been made for Dewey to go to Boston Nov. 1.

Hagerty said Dewey would not go to St. Louis Oct. 12, contrary to previous reports, and there seemed to be doubt the nominee would revisit Missouri. He went to St. Louis for a Republican governor's conference early in the campaign and made train-platform appearances at Monnet and Springfield on his cross-country tour.

Under present plans, Dewey will leave Friday for Charleston. His special train will make a brief operating stop in Washington early Saturday. He plans to leave Charleston immediately after the address, arriving in New York city Sunday.

30 ARE INDICTED IN PHILADELPHIA STRIKE INQUIRY

OCT 5 1944

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4—(AP) A Federal grand jury indicting 30 men in connection with Philadelphia's six-day transportation strike in August, observed today that, "we have made a long step away from the company union which might, with the right motivation on both sides, have seemed the ideal method of relations in our industrial life."

After saying that there had been strife between four different labor organizations among Philadelphia Transportation company employes, "but chiefly between members of the former employes union of the new Transport Workers Union (C.I.O.), the jury's report added:

"We are interested also to raise the question whether our country can safely afford to leave wide open the way for a great organization to develop in the United States a strong central power and government reaching its tentacles into every community of any size in the land and in its principles of action seemingly subversive of the principles first declared and later constituted in this city of Philadelphia as the basis of the life and government of our great republic."

While the report stated that, "so far as there was flame or fire in the strike, the chief fuel therefore came from resentment over the upgrading of negroes to 'platform' positions," it added that "the great majority of the employes were not interested to strike on this basis."

The list of 30 men named in the single indictment, all employes of the PTC, was headed by the names of James H. McMenamin, William C. Dixey, Jr., Frank P. Carney and Frank Anthony Thompson, who were arrested during the strike on charges of violating the War Labor Dispute act, the same charge as that in the indictment.

In the section dealing with strife between the unions, the jurors stated that "union feeling was rampant among the leaders. This included members of the new 'bargaining agent.' (T.W.U.)

"The intense drive for members, the fact that election of officers had not been held, the loss of initiative in deciding local problems, the taking of orders from a so-called international officer x x x, the large increase in dues, the failure at the time to see any benefits from the new contract, the impression that the 'no discrimination' clause of the C.I.O. was based more on desire for members and income than on good will toward the negroes—each of these had its part in the spirit manifested in the strike."

Mrs. Marian C. Scott, wife of Rep. Hugh D. Scott (R.-Pa.) and a member of the grand jury, said in an interview after the findings had been presented that, in her opinion, the "C.I.O. and the government directive (for the upgrading of negro employes) caused the strike."

Mrs. Scott said she agreed with the principles embodied in the upgrading directive, which was issued by the President's Fair Employment Practices committee, but thought the FEPC could have handled the situation differently.

"The lower you go in the social scale, the more prejudice there is," she said, without explaining the remark. She suggested that the FEPC directive might have been withdrawn or suspended temporarily after the strike developed.

"The only fault I find with the Transport Workers union," she said, "is in its domination by international officers or by those who are dominated by international officers."

NEW VICTORY SHIP IN GRUELLING TEST

ABOARD S.S. FREDERICK VICTORY, CHESAPEAKE BAY, Oct. 4 — (AP) Relaxing censorship for the first time, the Maritime of this Victory ship today — the first vessel of its type constructed on the Atlantic coast — during a gruelling 11-hour trial run from Baltimore.

Faster than its smaller brother, the famed Liberty ship, the Frederick Victory is expected to be turned over to the commission and placed in service soon, less than a month after it was launched at the Bethlehem-Fairfield yard.

Under the critical eyes of the trial board, the 7,612 gross ton cargo ship first was sent at full speed for two hours, during which it was steered through a measured mile course both north and southbound.

Its normal speed is 16 knots. This compares with an 11-knot speed for the slower, less sturdily constructed Liberty ship.

The 455-foot oil-burning vessel is powered by a steam turbine engine, which generates 6,000 horsepower, compared with 2,500 horsepower for the 441-foot Liberty ship and has three decks, one more than the liberty.

Evidence that it is built for permanency are the comfortably finished quarters for a merchant and navy crew of 80, officers' and crews' mess in the modernistic style of your favorite lunch room.

STRIKERS DELAY RETURN TO WORK VOTE IN DETROIT

OCT 5 1944

50,000 War Plane Workers Kept from Jobs by Strike of 6,000.

CLASH ON WAGES

Union Officials Urge Men to Return to Jobs Pending Settlement.

DETROIT, Oct. 4—(AP) Maintenance workers whose strike made an estimated 50,000 Detroit area war plant employes idle today adjourned a stormy mass meeting tonight without taking any action to end the stoppage.

A plane bearing six representatives of the union who appeared before the National War Labor board in Washington was grounded in Pittsburgh and another plane bringing three high officials of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) from Atlantic City with back-to-work pleas also encountered delay.

When it became apparent that neither plane would arrive before midnight, the maintenance workers voted to adjourn the meeting, at which both parties were to have appeared, until tomorrow morning.

The strike directly involved approximately 6,000 maintenance men.

The stoppage begun despite pleas of International United Automobile Workers (CIO) officers that it be deferred pending a scheduled hearing with the WLB, closed nine factories and slowed down production in 15 others.

The strikers, included among the 38,000 members of the maintenance, Construction and Powerhouse council, UAW - CIO, voted Monday to quit work in 300 Detroit area war plants but were instructed to remain at work after the WLB advised UAW international officers it would "take no action under the duress of a strike threat."

The maintenance men are skilled and semi-skilled workers, including millwrights, steamfitters, tinsmiths, sheet metal workers, welders, blacksmiths, carpenters, electricians, machine repair men and other related trade workers.

Keep Production Lines Running

They perform no production jobs but they keep production lines and equipment in running condition.

As a council committee arrived in Washington today seeking a hearing before the WLB, the government agency advised it there could be no discussion of the maintenance workers complaints while the strike was in progress.

The factories closed by the strike included six units of the Briggs manufacturing company, one Chrysler corporation plant and two factories of the Kelsey-Hayes wheel company. Among factories where production was maintained although maintenance workers left their jobs were the Detroit Naval Ordnance arsenal operated by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company; the Chrysler Detroit Tank Arsenal; the Packard Motor Car company; Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corporation; Continental Motors Corporation, and several others.

Although a spokesman for Briggs and Chrysler earlier reported the Briggs Connor avenue plant and the Wyoming avenue De Soto plant of Chrysler Corporation closed this morning, they were operating on a restricted basis this afternoon.

The maintenance, construction and powerhouse council demanded a WLB fact-finding panel to investigate the entire wage structure of their craft which they maintain is not as high as that of AFL members engaged in the same type of work.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 70,000 workers were idle last night as new labor disputes slowed the nation's production of war materials, coal and flour.

The largest work stoppage occurred at Detroit where a strike by 6,000 maintenance workers in nine plants forced 50,000 other workers into idleness. The walkout, begun despite pleas of International United Automobile Workers (CIO) officers that it be deferred pending a scheduled hearing by the WLB over the wage dispute.

At Paterson, N. J., the Wright Aeronautical Corporation sent home 8,000 workers on all shifts at the company's Wood-Ridge plant as the result of a walkout of supervisory employes who are members of an independent union.

The company said the workers were sent home because there was "no adequate supervision" at the plant. These workers, the company said, would be recalled as soon as there was supervision available in the plant.

OCT 5 1944

In Washington the WLB termed the work stoppage "a violation of labor's no-strike pledge" and ordered the supervisory employes to return to their jobs.

At Akron, Ohio, a work stoppage of an estimated 1,000 workers threatened production of heavy duty and passenger car tires at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company's Plant No. 1. Paul W. Fuller, U. S. Commissioner of Conciliation, said the stoppage menaced production of 5,000 workers and eventually would impair operations in other Goodyear plants if it continued.

Fuller said the dispute started among a four-man mixer crew that objected Monday night to remixing old stock.

In Pennsylvania 2,200 miners in three Bethlehem Steel Corporation mines were out because of a local grievance. The men at one pit refused to work with the weigh boss who they said refused to join the supervisors' union. Employes in two other pits went out in sympathy.

Production of flour was halted in seven Kansas City mills as approximately 1,000 workers remained away from their jobs. J. A. Leveridge, district vice-president of the flour, feed and cereal Union (AFL), said the seven companies involved declined to negotiate a contract until the strikers return to work.

BRICKER DEMANDS STRAIGHT TALK ON CAMPAIGN ISSUES

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—(AP) Gov. John W. Bricker, appealing for a "sincere, straightforward and truthful" political campaign, told a nationwide radio audience tonight:

"Cynicism, innuendo, flippant remarks, evasion and synthetic humor have no part in this wartime campaign."

The Republican candidate for Vice President, speaking from Kiel auditorium, after attending the opening game of the world series, added in a text released by his campaign staff:

"Our sons are pressing the fight for freedom around the world. Many of them are suffering the agonies of death and disease. We owe it to them and to ourselves to conduct this campaign with the same devotion to duty and high spiritual purpose that they are showing on the field of battle."

The Ohio governor referred to the Sept. 23 speech of President Roosevelt for the first time with these words:

"It was a speech of evasion, of name-calling, of muddled humor. He tried to laugh off the confusion, incompetence, waste and bungling of the New Deal."

Bricker declared that "nothing could do more to strengthen the faith of the American people in representative government now than a sincere, straightforward and truthful campaign."

He remarked that campaign promises on both sides should be interpreted in "the light of experience" and tested "by the integrity of the candidates."

Then he stated the "New Deal" had risen to power by "granting special favors to special groups"; by setting "class against class"; by playing "minority groups for their political support."

Raising the question of motives, he said "I do not condemn the New Deal for promising American mothers and fathers that their sons would not fight on foreign soil, and then sending them abroad when America was so viciously attacked."

But, Bricker continued, "I do condemn the President of the United States for making such a promise when he knew that it likely could not be kept and that he was making it to secure votes."

BALL UNCHANGED ON DEWEY STAND

ST. PAUL, Oct. 4—(AP) Senator Joseph H. Ball, Minnesota Republican, in a speech tonight over KSTP, declared that "I meant what I said" when he announced he was unable at this time to campaign for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for President.

"I cannot forget that 25 years ago the League of Nations was sabotaged and killed by public officials who claimed to be for its general outline and purposes, but who fought every specific authority needed to make it effective," Ball asserted.

He declared that neither of the two presidential candidates had clearly stated his position as yet on what Ball said he considers two of the main questions involved in preventing future wars: "The demand that all peace settlements be completed before the United States should join an international security organization;" and the demand that Congress have the right to pass on decisions of a "world security council that a case of military aggression exists."

Senator Ball said in a statement last week that Dewey "has not as yet convinced me that his own convictions on this foreign policy) issue are so strong that he would fight vigorously for a foreign policy which will offer real hope of preventing World War III against the inevitable opposition to such a policy."

Senator Ball said that he regretted the issue of America's foreign policy could not be kept bi-partisan or non-partisan and he praised Dewey for joining Secretary Hull in maintaining a bi-partisan approach to the problem of forming an international security organization to guard against future wars.

"But," he added, "my desire to keep the issue non-partisan does not blind me to the fact that it is and of necessity must be a political issue. It is a political issue because the convictions and attitudes on it of the President and the congressmen and senators elected this fall will in the final analysis determine whether or not the United States will join an effective world security organization.

"Without the United States in it, such an organization cannot hope to succeed."

SAYS FILIPINOS WON'T FIGHT U. S.

San Francisco, Oct. 4 (A. P.). Filipinos won't take up arms against American troops when they invade the islands, a Japanese broadcast indicated today.

Domei news agency quoted Joe P. Laurel, puppet president of the Philippines, as saying that he could not allow "the remnant of Filipino manhood to be decimated on the battlefield and by disease or to take up arms and fight in this war."

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said Laurel reiterated his stand against conscription although otherwise promising co-operation to the Japanese.

Court Turns Down Appeal By Bridges

San Francisco, Oct. 4 (AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has denied a rehearing to Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader under order of deportation to Australia, who seeks to remain in this country by habeas corpus proceedings.

The action clears the way for Bridges' attorneys to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court.

Last June 26 the Circuit Court here affirmed the decision of a Federal District Court denying the labor leader's petition for a habeas corpus writ after he was ordered deported by Attorney General Francis Biddle. Biddle held he was a member of the Communist party, which teaches "violent overthrow of the United States Government." Bridges denies he is or has been a Communist.

Bridges is at liberty on $3,000 bail.

ROOSEVELT TALKS TO PARTY TONIGHT

President to Address Democratic Workers at 10; Rail Unions Back Him.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Roosevelt, on the eve of his second fourth-term campaign speech, yesterday was pledged support for reelection by officers of a group of railroad unions and the International Ladies Garment Workers (A.F.L.).

The Chief Executive speaks tonight at 10 p.m. (E.W.T.) to party workers by radio from Washington.

Continuing a series of labor conferences begun last week, Mr. Roosevelt met with leaders of railroad brotherhoods and rail unions. Afterward, George Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, said the union officials "assured the President that the railroad men are still for him and we are going to do the best we can to reelect him."

With Harrison were D. B. Robertson, Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers; H. W. Fraser, conductors; Elmer E. Milliman, maintenance of way men, and Harvey Brown, International Association of Machinists. Daniel J. Tobin, head of the International Teamsters Union (A.F.L.), was present. White House officials said Brotherhood of Trainmen representatives would be received later.

Earlier, David Dubinsky, head of the Ladies Garment Workers and vice chairman of the Liberal party in New York, left a White House conference telling reporters he was convinced the President will carry New York state.

"I'm not worried about the election, but we want to make sure," Dubinsky said, after asking the President's aid in getting his running mate, Senator Harry S. Truman, of Missouri, and Vice President Wallace to address a Liberal party rally in New York Oct. 31.

Dubinsky said he believed the Liberal party, which broke away from the American Labor party last Spring, has an excellent chance to bring supporters of Wendell L. Willkie into the fourth-term camp. The party is backing the Roosevelt-Truman electors in New York.

President Roosevelt will speak for about 20 minutes tonight. On the same half-hour program will be Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan and Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, assistant chairman of the National committee.

One party worker in each of 125,000 voting districts throughout the country has been asked to invite 10 persons to his home to hear the broadcast. After the speech, each of the listeners will be furnished a list of registered voters and asked to get these voters to the polls on Election day.

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

A U.S. FIGHTER BASE, FRANCE, SEPT 16-(DELAYED)-(AP)-FLIGHT OFFICER JOHN W.GINDER IS BACK AT HIS BASE AND FLYING AGAINST THE GERMANS AFTER TWO MONTHS OF ADVENTURE BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES.

HIS IS THE STORY OF ONLY ONE MAN, BUT IT IS TYPICAL OF THOSE NOW BEING TOLD BY DOZENS OF AMERICAN AIRMEN SHOT DOWN IN FRANCE WHO HAVE LIVED IN HIDING WHILE WAITING FOR ALLIED ARMIES TO LIBERATE THEM ALONG WITH THE FRENCH WHO SHELTERED THEM.

GINDER, 24, OF 907 EAST CHOCOLATE AVE., HERSHEY, PA., WAS NEVER A PRISONER OF WAR. HAD HE FALLEN INTO ENEMY HANDS, HIS STORY COULD NOT YET BE TOLD.

HE CRASHLANDED HIS THUNDERBOLT IN A FRENCH FIELD IN THE VICINITY OF RENNES AFTER THE ENGINE WAS DAMAGED BY FLAK OVER ST.MALO ON A DIVEBOMBING MISSION JUNE 10.

LIKE MANY OTHER ALLIED FLIERS, GINDER WAS HIDDEN FROM NAZIS BY FRENCH PEOPLE AND KEPT UNDER COVER UNTIL AMERICAN TROOPS WRESTED THAT SECTOR FROM THE ENEMY.

"THAT WAS THE HAPPIEST DAY OF MY LIFE," SAID GINDER. HE HELPED THE MAQUIS HOLD A TOWN. AN ARMORED RECONNAISSANCE PATROL FROM AMERICAN THIRD ARMY APPEARED AND RESCUED NOT ONLY THE THUNDERBOLT PILOT BUT FIVE OTHER AMERICAN AIRMEN HE HAD MET.

THERE WAS LT.FRANK HENDERSON, MUSTANG PILOT FROM NEW YORK CITY WHO WAS LIVING WITH THE SAME FAMILY TO WHICH GINDER WAS TAKEN BY THE UNDERGROUND. HENDERSON HAD BEEN THERE A MONTH WHEN GINDER ARRIVED.

TWO WEEKS BEFORE THEIR RESCUE AN AMERICAN PARACHUTE TROOPER ARRIVED TO MAKE IT A THREE-SOME. HE HAD ESCAPED FROM GERMANS WHO CAPTURED HIM ON D-DAY.

ONLY AFEW DAYS BEFORE THE APPEARANCE OF THE AMERICAN ARMOR, THE THREE WENT TO LIVE WITH THE MAQUIS. THERE THEY FOUND THREE MEMBERS OF A LIBERATOR CREW WHO HAD BEEN WITH THE FRENCH UNDERGROUND FIGHTERS SINCE THEY PARACHUTED FROM THEIR DISABLED PLANE JUNE 7. GINDER COULD NOT REMEMBER THEIR NAMES.

IN THE OPINION OF GINDER, WHO WAS CARED FOR SO WELL HE GAINED 15 POUNDS WHILE WITH THE FRENCH, "THE MAQUIS MADE GOOD USE OF THE ARMS THE ALLIES DROPPED TO THEM, BUT THEY LACKED ORGANIZATION."

GINDER SAID HE SUFFERED ONLY A FEW CUTS AND BRUISES IN THE LANDING AFTER HIS ENGINE QUIT.

"THE PLANE WAS BURNING WHEN I CRAWLED OUT AND RAN TO A FARMHOUSE AT THE EDGE OF THE FIELD", HE SAID.

"PEOPLE THERE COULDN'T UNDERSTAND ME. I COULDN'T UNDERSTAND THEM. BUT I CONVINCED THEM THAT I WAS AN AMERICAN. I COULD TELL THEY WERE TRYING TO WARN ME THE "BOCHE" WERE NEAR. SO I LEFT IN A HURRY AND WALKED ALL THAT DAY-- IT WAS 10:45 WHEN I WENT DOWN-- KEEPING IN THE FIELDS AND HEDGEROWS.

"LATE THAT NIGHT I CAME TO A ROAD AND RAN INTO SEVERAL GERMAN PATROLS, BUT I HID IN A DITCH AND THEY WENT PAST. FINALLY I WENT TO A FARM HOUSE WHERE THEY PUT ME UP FOR THE NIGHT.

"THE NEXT DAY I WAS CONTACTED BY "PROPER AUTHORITIES" AND THAT EVENING THEY MOVED ME TO ANOTHER PLACE, WHERE I FOUND HENDERSON LIVING.

"IT WAS A WELL TO DO FRENCH FAMILY AND THEY TREATED US SWELL. THEY GAVE US FOOD AND CLOTHING AND KEPT US INFORMED ON THE WHEREABOUTS OF GERMANS IN THE VICINITY. THE ONLY CLOSE CALL WE HAD WAS ONE DAY WHEN WE HEARD THE GESTAPO WAS GOING THROUGH A VILLAGE NEARBY LOOKING FOR MEMBERS OF THE RESISTANCE MOVEMENT. BUT THEY DID NOT TRY TO SEARCH THE HOUSE WHERE WE WERE.

"WE WANTED TO DO SOMETHING TO HELP, SO WE STARTED GOING ON NIGHT RAIDS WITH THE MAQUIS.

"THEN WE FINALLY JOINED UP WITH THEM AND WENT TO LIVE WITH THEM.

"IT WAS WHILE WE WERE HELPING THE MAQUIS HOLD A TOWN THEY HAD TAKEN THAT AN ARMORED PATROL FROM PATTON'S ARMY SHOWED UP. WE SURE WERE GLAD TO SEE THOSE FELLOWS.

"WE CLIMBED INTO THE BACK OF AN M-8 AND RODE ON WITH THEM. THOSE BOYS SURE DID A SWELL JOB.

"WE STAYED WITH THEM THREE HOURS, THEN STARTED MAKING OUR WAY BACK TOWARD AMERICAN LINES. WE HITCHHIKED TO AVRANCHES AND FROM THERE WE WERE TAKEN TO THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS, WHERE WE WERE INTERROGATED.

"THE NEXT DAY WE WERE ALL BACK WITH OUR RESPECTIVE OUTFITS.

BATTLE THAT MARKED THE ONLY FIGHTING OF NOTE ON THE DUTCH FRONT.
THE GERMAN ASSAULT WAS LAUNCHED JUST EAST OF BELLEW AND GAINED SOME GROUND INITIALLY, BUT BRITISH TANKS AND INFANTRY THRUST THE ENEMY BATTALION BACK.

TOWARD THE TIP OF THE ALLIED SALIENT IN THE NETHERLANDS THE SOLE FIGHTING WAS FOR A FACTORY ON THE SOUTH BANK OF THE NEDER RHINE RIVER SOUTH OF RANKUM. BRITISH ARTILLERY DEMOLISHED THE STRUCTURE DRIVING THE ENEMY OUT OF IT.

EAST OF TURNHOUT THE BRITISH RECAPTURED REUSEL. THE BRITISH THEN PUSHED NORTH TO LAGE MIERDE IN A THREE-MILE ADVANCE.

U.S.AIRBORNE TROOPS ADVANCED ALONG THE NORTH BANK OF THE MAAS (MEUSE) RIVER TO MIDDELAAR, NEAR THE EDGE OF THE REICHSWALD FOREST.

NORTH OF 'S HERTOGENBOSCH PATROLS REACHED THE BANK OF THE WAAL RHINE AND FOUND A SERIES OF LITTLE TOWNS CLEAR OF THE ENEMY--AMONG THEM WAMEL AND DREUMEL. THIS OPERATION BROADENED AND STRENGTHENED THE LEFT FLANK OF THE DUTCH SALIENT.

WITH U.S.THIRD ARMY IN FRANCE, OCT.4-(AP)-THIRD ARMY TROOPS BROKE INTO HUGE FORT DRIANT, MAIN BASTION GUARDING TH CITY OF METZ, AND CLUNG TONIGHT TO SURFACE POSITIONS AGAINST GERMAN OPPOSITION RISING IN VIOLENCE WITH ASSAULTS FROM COUNTLESS TUNNELS AND TRAPDOORS.

BY NOON THE DOUGHBOYS HAD SEIZED THREE CORNERS OF THE MOATED FORT AND FORTIFICATIONS AT ITS CENTER IN BLOODY HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING.

BUT AFTER THE AMERICAN INFANTRY AND TANKS HAD STORMED ACROSS THE MOAT INTO THE GUN-STUDDED FORTRESS, DISAPPEARING MACHINEGUNS SPEWED DEADLY FIRE FROM TRAP DOORS AND SOLDIERS WITH THE GERMAN VERSION OF THE BAZOOKA SLIPPED FROM HIDDEN TUNNELS TO KNOCK OUT SOME U.S.TANKS FROM BEHIND.

THE DOUGHBOYS BURNED THE GERMANS OUT OF MAIN FORTIFICATIONS IN THE FORT--A MILE AND A HALF LONG BY HALF A MILE WIDE--BY POURING IN CRUDE OIL AND SETTING IT AFIRE.

THE HILLY FORT IS LIKE A RABBIT WARREN WITH COUNTLESS TUNNELS, AND DOUGHBOYS HUGGING THE GROUND COULD HEAR THE ENEMY MOVING ABOUT BELOW THEM.

DESPITE THE FIERCE RESISTANCE FROM THE DEFENDERS--FORMER STUDENTS OF THE METZ OFFICERS TRAINING SCHOOL--THE AMERICAN OFFICER COMMANDING THE ASSAULT SAID HE WAS OPTIMISTIC THAT HIS MEN WERE THERE TO STAY THIS TIME. THE DOUGHBOYS WERE THROWN BACK FROM THE BRIDGE ACROSS THE MOAT IN THEIR FIRST ATTACK LAST WEEK.

THROUGHOUT THE DAY THE FIGHTING WAS HIDDEN BY ENORMOUS CLOUDS OF SMOKE FROM PHOSPHOROUS, AND FROM SMOKE BOMBS LAID DOWN TO CLOAK DOUGHBOY MOVEMENTS.

THE AMERICANS ADVANCED TRENCH BY TRENCH WITH THE AID OF TANK-DOZERS WHICH CHARGED AND BURIED GERMANS FIGHTING BACK FROM STONE AND LOG-PROTECTED POSITIONS.

LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S INFANTRY AND TANKS PLUNGED DOGGEDLY AHEAD AGAINST THE ENTRENCHED GERMANS, AND THE AMERICANS BURNED THE NAZIS OUT OF MAIN FORTIFICATIONS BY POURING IN CRUDE OIL AND SETTING IT AFLAME.

PATTON'S FORCES LOST SOME TANKS AS THEY OCCUPIED THE NORTHEAST, SOUTHEAST AND SOUTHWEST CORNERS OF THE FORT, WHICH IS A MILE AND A HALF LONG AND A HALF MILE WIDE.

IN THE NORTHEAST THEY SEISQODNEUXENBANCRETE BARRACKS AND OTHER IMPORTANT INSTALLATIONS, AND IN THE SOUTHEAST AND SOUTHWEST TOOK MACHINEGUN EMPLACEMENTS WHICH HAD CAUSED MUCH TROUBLE.

TROOPS DRIVING FROM THE SOUTHWEST OVERRAN TWO BIG GUN BATTERIES.

THE GERMANS BLASTED THE DOUGHBOYS WITH ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE FROM FORT MAREVILLE ON THE NORTH AND FORT MOSELLE, THE LATTER A SATELLITE OF DRIANT ON THE SOUTHWEST.

(CAPTURE OF FORT DRIANT WAS ANNOUNCED BY SUPREME INVASION HEADQUARTERS).

THE AMERICANS WERE MEETING ONLY SMALL ARMS OPPOSITION FROM THE GERMANS, WHO TOOK SHELTER IN THE NUMEROUS UNDERGROUND PASSAGES OF THE FORTIFICATION.

PROGRESS OF THE ATTACKING FORCE WAS SLOW BECAUSE OF THE WIDE FIELDS OF BARBED WIRE AND THE NECESSITY OF WORKING OVER EACH ENTRANCE OF THE PASSAGES WITH THE FLAMING OIL.

THE PART OF THE GREAT HONEYCOMBED FORT OCCUPIED BY THE AMERICANS WAS LARGELY ON THE SURFACE, WITH THE STRONGEST DEFENSIVE EQUIPMENT YET TACKLED.

THERE WAS SOME FIRE FROM SUPPORTING FORTS, BUT OUR ARTILLERY WAS KEEPING THE ENEMY'S BIG GUNS SILENT FOR THE MOST PART.

OUR ARTILLERY, HOWEVER, WAS HAVING THE EFFECT OF MAKING THE ENEMY'S DISAPPEARING GUNS KEEP THEIR HEADS DOWN SINCE EVEN SOME OF OUR BIGGEST SHELLS WERE TURNED BY WALLS MANY FEET THICK.

A CONCENTRATION OF ENEMY TROOPS NORTH OF FORT DRIANT, APPARENTLY PREPARING FOR A COUNTERATTACK, WAS SCATTERED LATE YESTERDAY BY DIVEBOMBERS.

NORTHEAST OF LUNEVILLE THE AMERICANS CLEARED THE GERMANS FROM HALF OF PARROY FOREST. THEY WERE MEETING NUMEROUS SMALL SCALE COUNTER-ATTACKS THERE.

THE 19TH TACTICAL AIR FORCE -- WHICH WAS ATTACKED FOR THE SECOND DAY BY AMERICAN-MADE, GERMAN-FLOWN P51S OVER SAARLAUTERN -- REPORTED THE FOLLOWING RESULTS FROM MORE THAN 300 SORTIES DURING THE DAY:

THIRTY-FIVE LOCOMOTIVES, 38 BOX CARS, ONE VIADUCT AND ONE GUN POSITION DESTROYED AND RAILROADS CUT IN 38 PLACES.

FIVE JET PROPELLED GERMAN AIRCRAFT WERE SEEN OVER KOBLENZ FLYING AT 18,000 FEET, BUT NONE ATTACKED.

(USE OF CAPTURED PLANES HAD BEEN REPORTED FREQUENTLY THROUGHOUT THE WAR. SOMETIMES THE PLANES ARE TAKEN ON OVERRUN AIRFIELDS, BUT IT IS MORE LIKELY THAT THE P-51S SIGHTED OVER SAARLAUTERN YESTERDAY WERE CRAFT BUILT FROM UNDAMAGED PARTS OF AMERICAN PLANES WHICH HAD CRASHED BEHIND GERMAN LINES. A DISPATCH FROM U.S. 9TH AIRFORCE ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE YESTERDAY SAID TWO MUSTANGS BEARING GERMAN MARKINGS HAD ATTACKED U.S. FIGHTERS AND THAT A MOSQUITO BOMBER, SUCH AS USED PROFUSELY BY THE RAF, HAD APPEARED OVER AACHEN WITH SWASTIKA MARKINGS AND BEEN SHOT DOWN).

MOSCOW, OCT.4-(AP)-INTRA-POLIS. RECRIMINATIONS OVER THE COLLAPSE OF THE WARSAW UPRISING APPARENTLY HAD WRECKED THE LAST CHANCE TODAY TO FORM A UNITED PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT THIS YEAR.

A SECOND TRIP TO MOSCOW BY PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK OF THE EXILED POLISH GOVERNMENT HAS NOT YET BEEN ARRANGED.

THE REPLACEMENT OF GEN.KAZIMIERZ SOSNKOWSKI AS COMMANDER IN CHIEF BY LT.GEN.TADEUSZ KOMOROWSKI, WHICH MIKOLAJCZYK ENGINEERED, NOT ONLY FAILED TO CONCILIATE THE LUBLIN NATIONAL LIBERATI N COMMITTEE, BUT MADE AN ISSUE OF KOMOROWSKI'S LEADERSHIP OF THE WARSAW REBELLION.

SIR ARCHIBALD JOHN KERR CLARK-KERR, BRITISH AMBASSADOR, IS EXPECTED TO GO TO LONDON NEXT WEEK ON A BRIEF LEAVE WHICH PREVIOUSLY WAS POSTPONED. HIS DEPARTURE WOULD INDICATE THAT THE POLISH QUESTION, AT LEAST TEMPORARILY, IS INSOLUBLE.

THERE IS DIPLOMATIC EVIDENCE HERE THAT THE AMERICAN POLICY IS COORDINATED WITH THE BRITISH ON VIRTUALLY EVERY POINT.

MIKOLAJCZYK IS IN THE PECULIAR POSITION OF BEING ACCEPTABLE PERSONALLY TO ALL SIDES--LUBLIN, MOSCOW, LONDON AND WASHINGTON. BUT THE SOVIET-SPONSORED LUBLIN COMMITTEE HOLDS THAT HE MUST ABANDON THE ENTIRE SETUP OF HIS EXILED REGIME.

CHANGING OF THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF MERELY PROVOKED FRESH ANIMOSITY AMONG THE LUBLIN POLES, WHO CHARGED THAT THE OLDTIME "PILSUDSKI CLIQUE" STILL CONTROLS THE HOME ARMY INSIDE POLAND AND THE ARMED FORCES ABROAD.

A DIPLOMATIC OBSERVATION MADE HERE WAS THAT MIKOLAJCZYK'S BARGAINING STRENGTH IS DIMINISHING CONSTANTLY AND THAT IF THE LUBLIN COMMITTEE OUTWAITS HIM, HIS POLITICAL FOLLOWING INSIDE POLAND EVENTUALLY WILL BE NULLIFIED.

THE LUBLIN GROUP ADMITS THAT THE PREMIER'S ENTRANCE INTO THEIR DE FACTO GOVERNMENT WOULD WIN OVER A HESITANT FRACTION OF THE POPULATION AND REDUCE THE CURRENT 10 PER CENT EVASION OF CONSCRIPTION FOR THE PEOPLE'S ARMY.

YET THE OUTLOOK IS ANYTHING BUT HOPEFUL FOR POLITICAL PEACE AMONG THE POLES.

KWEILIN, OCT 2 - (DELAYED) - (AP)--THE LAST HANDFUL OF MEN CLINGING TO THIS FOOTHOLD OF AMERICAN AIRPOWER IN SOUTHEAST CHINA, LIVING HIGH AS THEY EAT UP THE FOOD STOCKS, ARE READY TO WRECK THE BASE AND PULL OUT WHEN THE JAPS CREEP UP ON THEM.

FOR DAYS, THE DWINDLING GROUP HAS BEEN CRAYONING ITS MAPS TO MARK THE DEVIOUS APPROACH OF THE JAPANESE, AND AT THE SAME TIME STUDYING THE BACKDOOR RUN TO SAFETY, A RUN WELL LOADED WITH EXTRA GASOLINE, WATER RATIONS AND OTHER EXCESS IMPEDIMENTA OF ESCAPE.

PRESUMABLY, IF THE RXX ROADS ARE OPEN, THE MEN WILL JEEP AND TRUCK THEIR WAY OUT; IF NOT, THEY 'LL WALK.

MOST OF THE MEMBERS OF THIS "BITTER ENDERS CLUB" CLAIM THIS IS THE EASIEST TIME OF THEIR ARMY LIVES. AS I AM WRITING, I CAN HEAR THE SHOUTS OF GI 'S AT A VOLLEYBALL GAME. ACROSS THE FIELD AT HEADQUARTERS, THE MEN ARE SITTING AROUND WHILING AWAY THEIR TIME WITH MAGAZINES LIKE SO MANY PATIENTS WAITING FOR THE DENTIST.

LAST NIGHT, LIEUT. REX L. BROUILLARD, OF MORAN, KAS., FIRSTX LIEUT. CARL E. ROTHSCHILD, 105 BUCKINGHAM ROAD, BROOKLYN, N.Y., AND

SERGT. FRANK W. TUTWILER, 2328-18TH AVE., SAN FRANCISCO, HUNTED HUNGRILY FOR A FOURTH FOR BRIDGE. THEY NEVER FOUND IT--IT WAS THE FIRST COOL NIGHT IN MONTHS, GOOD SLEEPING WEATHER, AND MOST MEN PREFERRED "SACKTIME" TO CONTRACT.

BROUILLARD HEADS A SIGNAL OUTFIT OF 15 MEN, HIMSELF INCLUDED.

ROTHSCHILD, WHO WORKED AT MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL IN CLEVELAND BEFORE HE WENT INTO THE ARMY, IS THE ONLY MEDICAL OFFICER HERE AND WILL STAY TO THE VERY LAST. TUTWILER, OF THE COMBAT CAMERA UNIT, IS COMPLETING THE PHOTOGRAPHIC RECORD OF THE KWEILIN AIRBASE.

HERE ON A SOMEWHAT SIMILAR TASK IS TECH. SERGT. SAM SMITH, OF 108 SOUTH HARVARD ST., ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., A FORMER PORTRAIT PAINTER NOW ENGAGED IN THE WARTIME ART PROGRAM. HE HAS BEEN TRAVELLING ABOUT, USING A 35 MILLIMETER CAMERA TO MAKE NOTES FOR HIS DRAWINGS AND PAINTINGS.

THE MEN IN BROUILLARD'S SIGNAL OUTFIT ARE STAFF SERGT. ROBERT SPENGLER, R.F.D.1, WAUSEON, OHIO; SERGT. JOSEPH . PRESSNER, 3948 ALDER ST., EAST CHICAGO, ILL.; TECHNICIANS 4TH GRADE ATHEW A. NIEDBALA, 339 GOLD ST., BUFFALO, N.Y., AND JOHN R. BEGLEY, AYS CREEK, KY.; CORPORALS CHARLES R. MOULTON, 9 SCHOOL ST., SAINT JOHNSBURY, VT., JOSEPH N. PETER, JR., SILVER SPRING, MD., AND JOHN A. GRUND, R.F.D. 1, CHAMPION, MICH.; TECH. 5TH GRADE MICHAEL A. BUCK, 1014 PRAIRIE AVE., DESPLAINS, ILL.; PRIVATES FIRST CLASS WILLIAMS C. ROBBING, 38 PRESCOTT ST., NASHUA, N.H., AND JOHN B. RENDER, 4036 TAYLOR BLVD., LOUISVILLE, KY.; AND PRIVATES GORDON E. CURTIS, SOLTON, VT. (NOT LISTED IN POSTAL GUIDE), LEWIS PYLE, 11 W. 26TH ST., WILMINGTON, DELA., VIRGIL W. CORNELSON, BRANSON, MO., AND KILLIS HOWARD, 609 UPPER ST., DANVILLE, VA.

THE CAMOUFLAGED TENTS OF JAPANESE PATROLS HAD BEEN SIGHTED BY PILOTS FROM ANOTHER BASE ON A HILLSIDE 14 AIRLINE MILES NORTHEAST OF KWEILIN.

TWO OF THESE PILOTS, LIEUTS. BERT H. PETERSEN, 23, OF 943 E. 47TH ST., CHICAGO, AND HIRAM P. BUSHONG, 22, OF 325 JUNIATA ST., LANCASTER, PA., HAD A LAYOVER ON ACCOUNT OF ENGINE TROUBLE, AND A CORRESPONDENT MET THEM AT THEIR BASE DURING A LATE BREAKFAST YESTERDAY.

BOTH HAD BEEN OUT ON THE LINE SINCE SUN-UP HELPING THEIR CREW CHIEFS, STAFF SERGTS. E. J. MUNCZENSKI, 104 CHAMBER ST.,

LATROBE, PA., AND H. T. EXXNEXB ETHEIR, 1484 ALBANY AVE., HARTFORD, CONN., MAKE ENGINE REPAIRS.

BUSHONG HAD A NARROW SQUEEZE ON THIS VERY FIELD SEPT. 12 WHILE TAKING OFF IN A P-40 WITH A 1,000-POUND BOMB. THE MOTOR CONKED, AND THE BOMB RIPPED OFF AS HE BELLIED IN, AUTOMATICALLY ARMING ITSELF WHEN IT SLIPPED THE ARMING WIRE. ONLY A CLOD WHICH CAUGHT THE SPINNER KEPT THE BOMB FROM EXPLODING A FEW YARDS AWAY FROM THE PLANE AS BOTH CAME TO A HALT.

"I HAD TO WALK BACK PAST IT," SAID BUSHONG, "BUT BELIEVE ME, I HURRIED!"

OCT 5 1944

BOTH BUSHONG AND PETERSEN WERE DIRTY AND UNSHAVED, AND SEEMED TUCKERED OUT BY THE STRAIN UNDER WHICH THEY, LIKE ALL OTHER 14TH AIRFORCE COMBAT PERSONNEL, HAVE BEEN WORKING ON THIS FRONT.

IT'S A COMMON THING FOR FIGHTER PILOTS TO BE SENT OUT WITH NO SPECIFIC ORDERS EXCEPT THE SECTORS TO BE COVERED. WITHIN THOSE SECTORS THEY ATTACK "TARGETS OF OPPORTUNITY"--ALMOST ANYTHING THEY HAPPEN TO SEE THAT'S WORTH THEIR BOMBS OR BULLETS.

SINCE THE ORIGINAL MASS EVACUATION OF PERSONNEL AND THE MOST

30.24 — 19335

VALUABLE EQUIPMENT AND RECORDS OF THIS OLD BASE OF BRIG. GEN. CLINTON D. VINCENT'S EASTERN WING OF THE 14TH, JAPANESE BOMBERS HAVE LET KWEILIN ALONE. THERE SEEM TO BE NO MORE OF THE OLD BOMBING NIGHTS WHEN MEN TUMBLED ANGRILY FROM THEIR BUNKS AND HUDDLED FOR SAFETY ON THE ROCKY HILLSIDES BACK OF THEIR HOSTELS.

THAT DOESN'T MEAN THE JAPANESE AIRMEN ARE INACTIVE. THEY ARE MERELY BY-PASSING KWEILIN TO STRIKE MORE IMPORTANT TARGETS. MOST OF THE AMERICANS HERE BELIEVE, ALSO, THAT THE JAPANESE DON'T WANT TO MESS UP THIS OLD BASE ANY MORE THAN IT'S ALREADY MESSED UP BY THE AMERICANS.

OCT 5 1944

A TREMENDOUS INVESTMENT IN MONEY AND LABOR AND MATERIALS ALREADY HAS BEEN WIPED OUT BY THE RETREATING AMERICANS THEMSELVES AT THE KWEILIN FIELD. THE TOTAL LOSS MAY WELL AMOUNT TO $6,000,000,000 CHINESE, BUT MUCH OF THIS OUTLAY IS STILL SUBJECT TO THE RECKONING OF THE EXCHANGE RATE, AND THE INVESTMENT CANNOT BE REPORTED NOW IN AMERICAN DOLLARS.

MOST OF THE FIELD'S BUILDINGS ARE STILL INTACT, BUT THE BUILDINGS ARE ALL CLEARED AND THE MOST VALUABLE CONTENTS FLOWN AWAY OR ALREADY

ESTROYED. INFLAMMABLE ITEMS, LIKE FURNIT... REMAIN TO BE CONSUMED

ITH THE BUILDINGS. THE BASE, WHICH ONCE MADE KWEILIN ONE OF THE MOST

MPORTANT CENTERS OF AIR POWER IN CHINA--IF NOT THE MOST IMPORTANT--

ILL LIE IN UTTER RUIN WHEN THE JAPANESE COME.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS,NEW GUINEA,OCT 4 (AP)-BALIKPAPAN, BIG JAPANESE-HELD OIL CENTER IN DUTCH BORNEO, WON'T BE TURNING OUT MUCH GASOLINE FOR AWHILE.

MORE THAN 60 FOUR-ENGINED AMERICAN LIBERATOR BOMBERS RAIDED THE REFINERY SATURDAY, GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED TODAY, DROPPING 74 TONS OF BOMBS TO START HUGE FIRES WHICH SENT SMOKE TOWERING 6,000 FEET.

RETURNING PILOTS SAID THE POWER PLANT AND REFRACTION TOWERS OF THE 3,000,000 BARREL CAPACITY PANDANSARI REFINERY WERE HIT BY 40 BOMBS.

IN HIS COMMUNIQUE MACARTHUR POINTED OUT THAT DESTRUCTION OF BALIKPAPAN WOULD CURTAIL "DRASTICALLY AND IMMEDIATELY THE ENEMY'S CAPACITY TO WAGE AIR AND NAVAL WAR AND TO MOVE ESSENTIAL CARGO. X X X THE ADVANCE OF OUR BOMBER LINE NOW HAS MADE POSSIBLE HEAVY BOMBER ATTACKS ON BALIKPAPAN."

(TOKYO RADIO OF OCT.2, (U.S.TIME), SEVERAL DAYS AFTER THE BALIKPAPAN RAID, ANNOUNCED PLANS TO CREATE A SINGLE SYNTHETIC OIL CONTROL COMPANY "IN ORDER TO BOOST PRODUCTION OF SYNTHETIC OIL."

THE JAPANESE SENT UP 30 FIGHTERS TO INTERCEPT THE AMERICANS. SEVEN WERE SHOW DOWN AND OTHERS DAMAGED. AMERICAN LOSSES WERE THREE PLANES WITH MANY OTHERS DAMAGED.

SUNDAY A NAVY LIBERATOR DESTROYED OR DAMAGED SEVEN SEAPLANES, A LARGE FLYING BOAT, THREE PARKED BOMBERS AND A FUEL-LADEN COASTAL VESSEL IN A STRIKE AGAINST ZAMBOANGA, SOUTHWESTERN PHILIPPINES, MACARTHUR REPORTED.

THE JAPANESE ON "BLOODY NOSE RIDGE" ON PELELIU AND OTHERS ON ANGUAR ISLAND IN THE SOUTHERN PALAUS ARE STILL OFFERING STIFF OPPOSITION FROM CAVES, ADMIRAL CHESTER W.NIMITZ, PACIFIC FLEET COMMANDER, REPORTED.

TRUK IN THE CAROLINE ISLAND GROUP WAS HIT BY 3½ TONS OF BOMBS BY LIBERATORS, TWO OF WHICH WERE DAMAGED BY ACK-ACK.

INDICATIONS THAT ADM.ERNEST J.KING, FLEET AND NAVAL OPERATIONS COMMANDER, MAY SPEND MORE TIME IN THE WAR ZONES WAS SEEN IN A WASHINGTON ANNOUNCEMENT THAT VICE ADM.R.S.EDWARDS HAS BEEN APPOINTED TO THE NEWLY CREATED DUAL POST OF DEPUTY COMMANDER IN CHIEF, U.S. FLEET, AND DEPUTY CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS.

ABOARD A TROOPSHIP, SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC--(UNDATED)--

IT WAS TWO O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING. H HOUR WAS SET AT 8:30. SIX MORE HOURS AND THE MEN WOULD BE HITTING THE BEACHES OF THE JAPANESE-HELD ISLAND, BUT NOW THEY WERE SLEEPING.

THEY HAD BEEN TOLD THAT THEY WOULDN'T BE CALLED UNTIL 5. THEY WOULD THEN BE SERVED A WHOPPING BREAKFAST--STEAK, POTATOES, BEANS, FRUIT JUICE, AND ALL THE BREAD AND BUTTER THEY COULD EAT. "GIVE 'EM SOMETHING, LT. G. W. PRUE OF GREEN BAY, WIS., SKIPPER OF THIS LST SAID, "THAT WILL STICK TO THEIR RIBS AND KEEP 'EM FIGHTING ALL DAY WITHOUT WORRYING ABOUT EATING AGAIN." BY 7:30 THEY WOULD HAVE WASHED THEIR MESS GEAR, GIVEN THE LAST MINUTE TOUCHES TO THEIR PACKS AND WEAPONS, AND LOADED INTO THE TANKS AND BUFFALOES BELOW DECKS.

BUT NOW THEY WERE ~~XXX~~ SLEEPING. I PICKED MY WAY ABOUT THE DECK UNDER THE PALE LIGHT OF A WANING MOON. THEY WERE ASLEEP IN EVERY CONCEIVABLE POSITION. ON THEIR STOMACHS, ON THEIR BACKS, ON THEIR SIDES, CURLED UP IN KNOTS, WITH THEIR HEADS ON ONE ANOTHER'S SHOULDERS AND ARMS. THEIR HEAVY PACKS SERVED AS PILLOWS, AND NEARLY ALL OF THEM HAD AN ARM LOCKED THROUGH THE SLING OF THEIR RIFLES.

~~TXXXXXWXXXWXU~~

I LOOKED PARTICULARLY AT THE BOYS WHO WOULD RIDE IN THE SAME

BUFFALO WITH ME, AND HIT THE BEACH IN THE SECOND WAVE OF INFANTRY. I HAD COME TO KNOW THEM WELL. TECH SGT. CLYDE HARTLEY OF (1724 PERSONS AVE.) BIRMINGHAM, ALA. HE HAD BEEN A MINER. SGT. JOHN C. VINSON OF (15 BILDERS AVE.) UNIONTOWN, PA. AUTOMATIC RIFLEMAN CO PFC CLIFFORD FIELDS OF ROGERSVILLE, TENN. I REMEMBERED HIM TELLING ME, WHEN I ASKED HIM WHAT HE DID BEFORE THE WAR, THAT HE WAS A MOONSHINER. NEAR HIM WAS PFC PAUL TOMASETTI OF (48 PROSPECT ST.) BLOOMFIELD, N. J. AND PFC JAMES PRITCHARD, AMMUNITION BEARER FROM CLARKTON, MO.; PFC ROBERT SUMMERS, RT. 11, KNOXVILLE, TENN., A RADIO MAN.

ONLY ONE OF THE BOYS WAS AWAKE. I FOUND HIM PERCHED ON THE RAIL, JUST LOOKING OUT TO SEA. HE WASX CPL. TURMAN GHISM, A 21-YEAR-OLD FARMER FROM AMORY, MISS.

"WHAT ARE YOU THINKING ABOUT, SOLDIER?" I ASKED. "ABOUT TOMORROW MORNING?"

"NOPE," HE ANSWERED. "THINKING ABOUT MY GIRL—IF YOU KKKK CAN CAL A GIRL YOUR GIRL WHO JUST GOT MARRIED TO ANOTHER FELLOW. I GOT A LETTER FROM HER THE DAY WE LEFT FOR THIS LANDING. SAID SHE WAS SORRY TO HAVE TO TELL ME, BUT THERE WAS NOTHING ELSE TO DO. THAT'S A HELL OF A NOTE FOR A GUY WHO IS DRIVING THE POINT TANK TOMORROW, AIN'T IT."

OCT 5 1944

I AGREED IT WAS.

"GUESS I'LL STOP THINKING ABOUT HER, AND START THINKING ABOUT MY MAMA. BUY, WOULDN'T SHE BE FRETTING TONIGHT IF SHE KNEW WHERE I WAS. YOU KNOW, IF SHE KNEW WHERE I WAS, AND COULD BE HERE, YOU KNOW WHAT SHE'D DO? SHE'D COOK ME MY FAVORITE BREAKFAST BEFORE I TOOK OFF."

"WHAT WOULD THAT BE?" I ASKED.

"MAN, I'D HAVE SOME STRONG COFFEE, A DOUBLE PLATEFUL OF HOMINY GRITS, SOME COUNTRY HAM, SOME RED EYE GRAVY FROM THE HAM TO SLAP ON MY GRITS, AND ABOUT TEN BIG BISCUITS."

I TOLD HIM HE'D BETTER SHUT UP, ELSE THE SOUND OF OUR MOUTHS WATERING WOULD WAKE UP THE BOAT. WE WENT TO BED.

SAN FRANCISCO, OCT 4-(AP)-JAPAN HAS LAUNCHED A NEW NATION-WIDE "THOUGHT DRIVE" TO BOLSTER FIGHTING SPIRIT AND "FIRMLY MAINTAIN FULL CONVICTION OF CERTAIN VICTORY," TOKYO BROADCASTS, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, REPORTED TONIGHT.

THE DRIVE, SPONSORED BY THE DAI NIPPON EDUCATIONAL SOCIETY, IS TITLED "NATIONAL MOVEMENT FOR REPULSING THE ANGLO-AMERICANS BY THE COUNTER-ATTACKING OF THE 100,000,000 PEOPLE OF JAPAN."

IT BEGAN WITH A MEETING OF TEACHERS IN TOKYO WHICH ADOPTED THIS RESOLUTION, SAID TOKYO RADIO:

"....THOSE ENTRUSTED WITH THE MISSION OF EDUCATION RESOLVE THAT THEY WILL FIRMLY MAINTAIN FULL CONVICTION OF CERTAIN VICTORY AS THEY STAND AT THE HELM OF THE MARCHING THOUGHT-ARMY, AND DEVOTE THEMSELVES TO BOLSTERING THE FIGHTING SPIRIT, THAT THEY WILL EMLIGHTEN THE PEOPLE ON THE SPIRIT OF SERVICE AND DESTROY ARTIFICES OF THOUGHT, A THAT THEY WILL HEIGHTEN THE MORAL PRINCIPLES OF LIVELIHOOD AND COMPLY WITH THE SPIRIT OF FIGHTING STRENGTH."

(UNOFFICIAL OBSERVERS BELIEVED THE RESOLUTION IMPLIED A DOUBLE PURPOSE FOR THE MOVEMENT--MINIMIZING POTENTIAL DEFEATIST SENTIMENT, BY DESTROYING "ARTIFICES OF THOUGHT," AND SIMULTANEOUSLY ATTEMPTING TO REDUCE PROFITEERING AND WAR-BRED ECONOMIC INEQUALITY BY APPEALING TO THE "SPIRIT OF SERVICE.")

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, OCT. 4-(AP)-PREPARING THE GROUND FOR QUICK RESUMPTION OF AMERICAN TRADE WITH LIBERATED COUNTRIES, THE STATE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENTS HAVE INSTRUCTED DIPLOMATS TO GATHER ECONOMIC INFORMATION FOR BUSINESS AND GOVERNMENT USE.

A JOINT ANNOUNCEMENT TONIGHT SAID THAT AMERICAN DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR REPRESENTATIVES IN ALL AREAS FREED FROM THE AXIS HAVE RECEIVED "DETAILED AND SPECIFIC" INSTRUCTIONS ON REPORTS THEY ARE TO PREPARE AS SPEEDILY AS POSSIBLE.

THE MAIN POINTS THE GOVERNMENT WANTS TO KNOW ARE:

1. IMMEDIATE SUPPLY REQUIREMENTS AND ESTIMATES OF ECONOMIC CONDITIONS IN LIBERATED AREAS.

2. GENERAL SUMMARY OF SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC CONDITIONS NEEDED "AS AN ESSENTIAL GUIDE TO AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY."

3. ANALYSES OF SPECIAL ECONOMIC CONDITIONS AS A GUIDE TO RESUMPTION OF COMMERCIAL TRADE AND INVESTMENT.

THE BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE AND THE STATE DEPARTMENT WILL MAKE INFORMATION AVAILABLE TO BUSINESS AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE, THE STATEMENT SAID.

IF SPECIAL INQUIRIES ARE ADDRESSED TO THE BUREAU, IT WENT ON, THE GOVERNMENT WILL SEEK ANSWERS FROM ITS REPRESENTATIVES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

IN SOME PARTS OF THE WORLD, HOWEVER, THE STATEMENT SAID WAR DEVASTATION WILL PREVENT "IMMEDIATE AND FULL RETURN TO PRIVATE TRADE." TRADE REPORTING WILL BE PUSHED AHEAD IN THOSE ARAS SO THAT THE SITUATION CAN BE BROUGHT INTO HAND AS SOON AS NORMAL COMMERCIAL POSSIBILITIES OPEN UP.

THE REPRESENTATIVES ARE INSTRUCTED TO GATHER DATA ON THE CONDITION OF AMERICAN BUSINESS INTERESTS AND CONTACTS IN AREAS LIBERATED FROM THE NAZIS AND THUS CUT OFF FROM THE ALLIED WORLD AS MUCH AS FIVE YEARS.

THEY HAVE ALSO BEEN ASSIGNED TO CHECK UP ON AMERICAN PROPERTY AND INTERESTS STOLEN OR OTHERWISE TAKEN OVER BY AXIS AGENTS.

THE REQUESTED DETAILS, WHEN BROUGHT TOGETHER, WILL GIVE AMERICAN OFFICIALS AND BUSINESSMEN AN ECONOMIC PICTURE OF WHAT LIBERATED EUROPE CAN BUY FROM THIS COUNTRY, AND HOW GOOD AN INVESTMENT EACH AREA IS LIKELY TO BE.

AT THE SAME TIME, THE REPORTS ARE EXPECTED TO PROVIDE A RELIABLE INDICATOR OF EUROPE'S CHANCES FOR AVOIDING ECONOMIC AND RESULTING SOCIAL CHAOS IN THE TRANSITION FROM WAR TO PEACE.

YANKS SMASH FOUR MILES INTO GERMANY, BIG TANK BATTLE RAGING ON ENEMY SOIL

AMERICAN FORCES TAKE BEGGENDORF IN SWIFT ADVANCE

Hodges' Armor Surges Through Industrial Town into Open Country.

NAZIS RUSH UP RESERVES

First Army Drives into 'Emergency' Defenses North of Aachen.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Oct. 5.—(AP) American forces, battling four miles into Germany through the punctured Siegfried Line above Aachen, captured the fortified village of Beggendorf in a strong advance today. After pushing on eastward they were locked tonight in the first great tank battle ever fought on German soil.

The Germans rushed up reserves of armor in a determined attempt to stem the American drive, which carried approximately two miles beyond Ubach and threatened to plunge deep toward the Rhine.

Driving into the teeth of the heaviest German artillery concentration of the European campaign, Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' First army veterans slugged doggedly through the enemy's "emergency" defenses north of Aachen on the fourth bitter day of their offensive and by night virtually were astride the main Aachen-Gladbach highway.

Tanks Crush Defenses

Drying ground enabled heavy American tanks to cut across fields and crush the Germans' new earthworth defenses, manned in many instances by second-rate troops shifted hurriedly from either side of the wide gap in the Siegfried line. By mid-afternoon a total of 55 Nazi pillboxes had been destroyed in the four-day drive.

For several hours massed German artillery held up Hodges' armor outside Beggendorf, a "little Pittsburgh" of the Rhineland, but then on the Shermans went surging through the town and fanned out east and southeast in churning drives to exploit their local breakthrough.

Capture of Beggendorf, east and slightly north of Ubach, broke the back of a Nazi attempt to make the village a southern anchor of a second line of defense behind the ruptured West Wall, reported Hal Boyle, Associated Press field correspondent.

"The Nazis had tried to use Beggendorf as a tank harbor and an ambush," Boyle said, "send out civilians to try to get American artillerymen to withhold their fire on the spurious grounds that it had no military installations."

Beat Back Nazi Attacks

The American advance through a curtain of German steel [illegible] after Yank tanks and infantry beat back three more enemy counterattacks in the Ubach area and knocked out at least a half-dozen Nazi tanks, including one huge Mark-6. The roar of artillery was continuous as massed American guns met the challenge of enemy batteries.

In addition to newly-dug positions behind the original "dragons teeth" of the Siegfried Line, the enemy also utilized huge slag piles as supplementary positions.

"Things definitely are beginning to open up," declared an American staff officer. "We are definitely through his main fortifications. He is trying to stop us now with mobile guns instead of fixed concrete defenses."

He said the Germans were putting their poorest troops into static defenses and using their better units as a mobile reserve to try to plug up gaps.

Low clouds and fog clinging to the countryside prevented Allied planes from giving close support to Hodges' attacking forces and enabled the Germans to shift their reserves about without fear of aerial harassment.

Battle Rages Near Herbach

Some of today's toughest fighting — outside the armored engagement around Beggendorf — centered around a hill east of the village of Herbach, a mile southwest of Ubach, which American troops captured yesterday.

During Wednesday night American artillery gave the entire area three "serenades," in which every available gun, from 75s to huge 240s, blasted away for long periods. When a tank column moved up to storm the height early today its commander radioed back that "there are so many dead Germans on the road that it is tough going." Four Nazi pillboxes on the hill were knocked out in subsequent fighting.

Far to the south in the mud-bound Moselle valley of France, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army shock troops fought viciously for the second day inside the labyrinths of Fort Driant, one of three great strongholds defending the city of Metz.

During Wednesday night American troops in the southwest corner of the mile-and-a-half long fort penetrated underground and made the first breach in the enemy's underground fortifications, but the doughboys still were under constant fire from Nazi snipers and from heavy guns across the Moselle river.

Fight For Fort Driant

Tonight Patton's men, who once were prematurely reported by Allied headquarters to have captured the fort, were inching their way through the caverns of the medieval bastion against suicidal resistance from youthful Nazis who until recently attended a famous military school at Metz.

It was announced that the 48-hour truce declared to enable civilians to evacuate the channel port of Dunkerque had been extended four hours until 10 a. m. Friday morning, when British and Canadian forces were to resume their assault against a holdout German garrison of 15,000. Some 12,000 civilians were reported to have quit the town since the guns fell silent.

Canadian troops accelerated their drive to throw a protecting ring around Antwerp in Belgium, the only big shipping center yet captured intact by the Allies. The Germans had been pushed away from the northern edge of the city, and the Canadians had advanced north to the Dutch border at Putte.

Protect Antwerp

An eight-mile arc from northeast to northwest of Antwerp had been cleared of the enemy, and the east bank of the Schelde river leading into the port was held by Canadians as far as Lillo, eight miles to the northwest.

Allied lines tonight ran east from Lillo through Capellen, up to Baarle Nassau in Holland and across to a point north of Hilvarenbeek, placing Allied troops only three miles southeast of Tilburg, an important Dutch communications and industrial center of 80,000 population.

A brief battle which flared last night south of Arnhem in Holland dwindled into a series of minor attacks and counter-attacks, in the course of which Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's British Second army pushed within a mile of Arnhem.

It was disclosed that Allied patrols which penetrated the Reichswold forest, just across the German border southeast of Nijmegen, earlier in the week apparently had been withdrawn.

Tanks Exploit Breach—Begin Fanning Out in Secondary Defense Zone—Capture Anchor of Nazi Backstop.

LONG

London, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—American tanks and infantry advanced more than a mile, through the shattered main defenses of the West Wall at Ubach today and captured the town of Beggendorf, which the Germans had attempted to turn into an anchor of a backstop line.

Widening their wedge, the Yanks also captured Kerkrade on the Dutch-German border. Kerkrade, on the south side of the wedge, is two miles southwest of Merkstein and five miles north of Aachen.

Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's First Army scored the gains in a fiercely rising battle in which the Germans massed their biggest artillery concentrations of the western front. Three heavy armored counter-thrusts were turned back, and front line dispatches said a major tank battle was developing.

Tanks Fanning Out.

Beggendorf is more than a mile beyond Ubach, and its capture placed the Americans astride the Aachen-Geilenkirchen road and within a mile and a half of the main north road out of Aachen, the highway to Gladbach. The town is three miles from the nearest point of the Dutch border and about four miles from the general line of the frontier.

An Associated Press dispatch from the sector said Allied tanks in numbers were now back of the original Siegfried Line and were fanning out east and southeast on hardening ground to exploit an infantry breakthrough days go.

The tanks were coming up against earthworks hastily thrown up as a secondary defense, the dispatch said. The Germans were fighting from behind huge slag piles in this mining area, dubbed by the Americans "Little Pittsburgh."

The Germans, with at least fifty-five pillboxes smashed in their main fortifications, were now trying to stop the American push with mobile guns instead of fixed batteries, it was said.

To the north, heavy fighting flared along the British Nijmegen-Arnhem corridor. Infantry attacked in several sectors, gaining a mile in an eastward advance and several miles in a northwesterly direction.

Gap a Scene of Carnage.

To the south the American Third Army of Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton was engaged in a grim fight atop Fort Driant, a key stronghold southwest of Metz. Germans had holed up in the concrete fastnesses of an underground labyrinth.

An Associated Press correspondent of the Ubach front reported:

"Tanks, guns, infantry and supplies are pouring through the gap in the Siegfried Line to put mounting pressure on the enemy."

Three thunderous serenades from every American gun in the area—from 75s to 240 mm. siege pieces—tore German defenses to pieces in preparation for a new attack just south of Ubach, the dispatch said, and so many dead Germans were found that the bodies formed an obstacle to the infantry when it went forward.

The center of enemy resistance was a hill just east of Herbach and south of captured Ubach. The Americans, in spite of the dead Germans, stormed the height, knocking out three mutually supporting pillboxes and forcing a fourth to raise the white flag.

The Nazis, whose broadcasts admitted that the wedge had been widened, turned a record number of guns onto the corridor and rushed up men from pillboxes to the north and south in an effort to brace sagging defenses.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's main attack eastward was launched on a six-mile front from south of Arnhem and only about two miles from the bridge for which the British First Airborne division had battled in vain. It was aimed in the direction of Pannerdensch, eight miles southeast of Arnhem and the same distance northeast of Nijmegen. Pannerdensch is only about two miles from the German border north of Kleve and is at the fork of the Waal and Neder Ryn Rivers. The stiff opposition limited the advance to about a mile.

Farther south, Allied armor attacking from the eastern side of the Nijmegen corridor near Venray advanced several miles from Menjel, established a front along the Nooren Canal north of Venlo, and fought forward slowly across marshy land from Overloon.

Eight-mile Westward Gain.

Almost directly east of Nijmegen Allied infantry and artillery broke up a German concentration in the Reichswald, south of Kleve, where the enemy was preparing another counter-attack.

West of the corridor an advance of eight miles was made in a northwesterly direction by British troops on a ten-mile front south of Tilburg, and troops of the Canadian Army advancing from the other direction, the southwest, approached to within five miles of Tilburg.

However, the Germans launched a surprise counter-attack against Polish troops in the latter area, around Barrle Nassau, eight miles southwest of Tilburg, which forced the Allies to give ground temporarily. A British attack westward just below Arnhem reached the area around the village of Elden, about two miles southwest of Arnhem.

Canadians Mop Up Fort.

Farther west, the Canadians cleaned up the fort area north of Antwerp and ended a weird weeks-long battle of the suburbs in which German artillery in northern port districts periodically harassed Allied control of the Belgian port.

Canadian infantry and tanks, again rolling fast at the heels of retreating Germans, smashed through street barricades and raced to within a mile of the Dutch border town of Putte, only six miles from the escape road out of Walcheren and Zuid Beveland Islands, where the Nazis admitted some thousands of their troops were virtually trapped by floods loosed by Allied "earthquake" bombs.

"The Germans are pulling out, and we are jumping right ahead; it is hard to keep contact with the Jerries for they are moving back mighty fast," said a Canadian headquarters officer on this front.

To the west, Canadian troops drove the Germans back from Forts Cappellen and Starbroek, five to seven miles north of Antwerp, in a thrust within seven miles of the narrow land neck over which the only road runs from the mainland to the Dutch islands of Beveland and R. A. F.-flooded Walcheren.

To the south one of the strangest battles of the war developed amid gunfire and the smoke of fire grenades and burning oil at Fort Driant, key bastion to Metz. Infantrymen of the American Third Army held the surface, and the Nazi garrison fought with desperation in the maze of underground defenses.

First Armored Blow.

The counterattack against the American 1st Army, first of the Nazi defensive blows to be led with armor, blunted itself against the American lines near Herbach, a mile and a half south of Ubach, which is at the center of the 2-mile-deep wedge into Germany.

Drizzling rain and cold marked the fighting at Ubach.

At the peak of their wedge the Americans were edging forward under artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire beyond the eastern outskirts of Ubach.

Capture of the fort in front of Metz by the 3d Army was announced prematurely at Supreme Headquarters yesterday on the basis of information from front line headquarters before the full tenacity of the German stand was known.

Now it was a touch-and-go fight, with the Americans holding on grimly under crossfire from flanking forts and sniping from German trapdoor gun positions.

Some of Nazis Smoked Out.

The Americans smoked some of the Nazis out with phosphorus grenades and poured flaming oil down hidden passages on others, but still had the job of quarrying out the remainder of the German garrison.

The 3d Army repulsed a German counterattack near Sivrey, 9 miles north of Nancy.

West of the corridor in Holland an advance of 8 miles was made in a northwesterly direction by British troops on a 10-mile front south of Tilburg and troops of the Canadian Army advancing from the other direction, the southwest, approached to within 5 miles of Tilburg.

However, the Germans launched a surprise counterattack against Polish troops in the latter area, around Barrle Nassau, 8 miles southwest of Tilburg, which forced the Allies to give ground temporarily. A British attack westward just below Arnhem reached the area around the village of Elden, about 2 miles southwest of Arnhem.

Farther west the Canadians cleaned up the fort area north of Antwerp and ended a weird week-long battle of the suburbs in which German artillery in northern port districts periodically harassed Allied control of the Belgian port.

Smash Through Barricades.

Canadian infantry and tanks, again rolling fast at the heels of retreating Germans, smashed through street barricades and raced to within a mile of the Dutch border town of Putte, only 6 miles from the escape road out of Walcheren and Zuid Beveland Islands, where the Nazis admitted thousands of their troops were virtually trapped by floods loosed by Allied "earthquake" bombs.

"The Germans are pulling out and we are jumping right ahead; it is hard to keep contact with the Jerries for they are moving back mighty fast," said a Canadian headquarters officer on this front.

The 7th Army kept up its measured gains farther south in the face of slowly hardening resistance. Northeast of Epinal, the Yanks found going hard through newly reinforced German defensive positions, but in the Vosges foothills forests of Gehard and Longegoutte, between there and Belfort, they advanced several miles.

At Ronchamp, 10 miles due west of Belfort, French forces of the 7th Army mopped up one German hold-out pocket. Other Germans were fighting from fortified houses and factories in the city.

The lull in temporary truce hung almost unreal over Dunkerque. The Germans had cleared a lane through their defensive minefield and the first of 20,000 civilians began filing out, laden with possessions they could carry, into the Canadian lines. The evacuation will end tonight. Then, by agreement, the Canadians will give the Germans 12 hours to re-lay their mines before the all-out assault begins at dawn tomorrow.

300 GERMANS LIVE IN OLD COAL MINE

Men, Women And Children Are Discovered In Shelter

OCT 6 1944 AP

Palenberg, Germany, Oct. 4 (AP—Delayed)—In the dimly lit, evil-smelling tunnels of an old coal mine near here 300 men, women and children live like caged animals—waiting to see what their American conquerors are going to do with them.

They have lived there three weeks. For the past few days a battle has raged around their underground refuge.

They thought at first the Americans would behead them. When Lieut. Glenn Poppe, of Mason, Ohio, and Corporal William Reifsnyder, of East South Bend, Ind., accidentally discovered the shelter while taking cover from enemy artillery, people kneeled, praying to be spared.

200 Feet Long

The shelter is approximately 200 feet long, 6 feet wide and 7 feet high, with chambers leading off each side.

Along the walls flare tiny jets of light from a carbide gas pipe. Benches line each side of the corridor, and there are double-deck bunks in the chambers. Old men and women lie on the benches or sit in chairs cushioned with blankets and quilts.

Three weeks ago the Germans ordered civilians to evacuate Palenberg, which sits in the middle of the Siegfried Line. Most of the 6,000 inhabitants fled, but 90 coal miners and their families were ordered to stay and keep the mine operating as long as possible.

Workers Stayed Behind

Workers ordered to stay gathered up a few belongings and food and came with their families to the community shelter.

Staff Sergeant Roy Cestary, of Youngstown, Ohio, was shooting at a pillbox with a machine gun when a woman rushed from a house to his gun.

"It was the craziest thing," Cestary said. "She had her four kids in the basement and begged us not to hurt them."

Last Friday artillery fire became so heavy that work at the mine stopped entirely and people just huddled in the tunnel, waiting.

Attack Beaten Back

Then Poppe and Reifsnyder found the entrance. Yesterday the Germans counterattacked, but the attack was beaten back.

The people will be held in their shelter until it is safe for them to return to their homes. Meanwhile, sentries stand guard at the tunnel entrances.

Private Ludwig Klatt, of Detroit, and a young German girl who speaks English have been acting as interpreters, and civilians quickly obey every order given them. And every chance they get, they try to tell Klatt how much they hated the Nazis, and to explain that Rhinelanders never were strong for Hitler anyway.

CANADIAN TROOPS FREE DUTCH TOWN

WITH CANADIAN TROOPS NEAR THE DUTCH - BELGIAN BORDER, Oct. 5 — (AP) Canadian infantry liberated the first Dutch village in the push north of Antwerp when an Ontario unit sent back word in late afternoon that Putte just inside the frontier had been "secured."

With other units moving into Holland on the left and right, this portion of the Canadian First army is making the most of an apparent German decision to withdraw from the sector even at the cost of losing the strategic entrance to the south Beveland peninsula — the last overland escape route for troops there and on the island of Walcheren.

The unit which cleared Putte of the enemy did so in the bitterest fighting it has encountered in some weeks.

Other forces also encountered stubborn pockets but the advance went on apace once the crossing had been effected at the huge anti-tank ditch which starts almost at the bank of the Schelde river and runs generally eastward on both sides of the main highway leading from Antwerp to Bergen. The ditch is 80 feet wide from crown to crown with a 50 foot water surface which is 15 feet deep in some places.

REPORTER CHATS

WITH NAZI MAJOR

Officer Seen During Truce Predicts German Victory

By ROGER D. GREENE

British Siege Headquarters outside Dunkerque, Oct. 5 (AP)—I stood inside the German lines around Dunkerque today and calmly discussed the war with a German SS major whose guns at 10 A. M. tomorrow will be firing at us again.

This took place during the mercy truce arranged to permit the evacuation of the civilian populace from besieged Dunkerque.

"Germany will still win the war," the German major said as a five-mile long stream of refugees slowly plodded by. "Our new secret weapon will be turned against you on October 15. That will change everything."

Up to noon today, 12,800 civilians and several dozen badly wounded German and Allied soldiers had been evacuated from this scene of the British retreat from France in 1940. At least 4,000 others patiently were waiting in the bitter cold and rain this afternoon to "get under the wire" before the deadline.

Whole Blood From U. S. Saves Yanks Lives in Reich

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Whole blood being flown from the United States to meet increased battlefront needs has been used to save lives of American soldiers in the Siegfried Line only four days after it was contributed in the States.

Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hanley, chief surgeon of American forces in Europe in disclosing increased demands for whole blood, said it was superior to plasma for immediate treatment of badly wounded soldiers.

The Army began flying whole blood from the United States in August and now 60 per cent comes from there, according to Maj. Robert C. Hardin of University Hospital, Iowa City, senior consultant in blood transfusion in the European theater.

Nazi Jet Planes Met Over Siegfried Sector

Ninth Air Force Advanced Headquarters in France, Oct. 4 (AP—Delayed)—The new German fighter which the Berlin radio has boasted was going into action on the western front apparently is the jet-propelled Messerschmitt 262, Ninth Air Force pilots said today.

Allied heavy bombers and their fighter escorts have encountered these swift, twin-engined jet planes for weeks over targets deep inside Germany, but their first appearance over the Siegfried Line was on Monday, when Thunderbolt pilots saw four of them in the Munster area. Six more were sighted yesterday near Coblentz.

One of the 10 was destroyed. Lieut. Valamore Beaudarault, of White Plains, N. Y., a Thunderbolt pilot, forced it into a steep dive from which it never recovered, crashing at high speed near Munster.

Pilots say the jet fighters do not fly in formation, and most of them show no eagerness for combat. They are capable of great speeds, but need a wide area for turns, and American Mustangs and Thunderbolts can outmaneuver them.

Over 40,000 Arrested In Purge In Belgium

Brussels, Oct. 5 (AP)—More than 40,000 persons known or suspected collaborationists, have been arrested in a swift but calm purge of Belgians who sold out to the Nazis.

About 20 military tribunals have commenced trial of the accused, and at least ten have been condemned to death as traitors.

Two of these were sentenced in a Brussels court. They were Joseph Hoogeven, 49, a chauffeur who denounced a Belgian underground leader to the Germans, and Paul Herten, 50, newspaper editor.

Laval Reported Living With Petain In Reich

New York, Oct. 5—Radio Brazzaville, quoting a dispatch credited to the Geraman new agency Transocean, said today Pierre Laval and his wife "are living under the same roof with Marshal Petain in the same unnamed town in southern Germany."

The broadcast said the majority of the Ministers in the former Vichy Government escaped to Germany and are living in the same town.

MUD OF FLANDERS IS BACK AGAIN

London, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Autumn rains are increasing the difficulties confronting all Allied fighting men on the western front, the eastern front, and in Italy—and the first snows are not far away. Along the northern flank in France and the Low Countries, where the mud of Flanders is a byword twenty-seven years after the first world war, rains turn the land into quagmires. The Allied armies in Italy can expect heavy snows in about a month.

De Gaulle Tribunal Named to Try Petain

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Paris radio said today the De Gaulle government has named a tribunal of six French generals to try Marshal Petain and 50 leading members of his Vichy regime on charges of treason and collaborating with the enemy.

Gen. Charles Mast, active in the De Gaulle regime in North Africa, was placed in charge of the preliminary investigation, according to the broadcast.

Petain now is in Germany, where, the Berlin radio has announced, he is serving as head of a German-sponsored "legal French government."

Spanish Maquis Force Of 40,000 Reported Holding Part of France

Situation Worries Spain, But U. S. Officials See It As Fantastic, Not Critical

By the Associated Press.

A Spanish Maquis force of 40,000 men, defiant of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Paris government, is reported by diplomats here to be in control of a corner of France adjoining the Spanish frontier.

The situation, which reportedly worries the Spanish government, is regarded by American officials as more fantastic than critical.

By and large, these officials consider that France is now under effective control of the Paris administration and that it is a broadly representative regime rather than a one-man affair. They are reported to be urging its recognition as a government.

Recognition Up to Roosevelt.

The final decision on recognition must be made by President Roosevelt.

Until recently Gen. De Gaulle is said to have made it clear that he was not pressing for the immediate withdrawal of the Allied military supervision exercised by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower—the military and political situations inside the country were too unsettled. Now, however, he is said to be ready to assume full governmental powers with the lifting of Gen. Eisenhower's controls.

It is not certain here whether the situation in Southwestern France may complicate things.

Reports on the force of irregular fighters say they are centered around Perpignan, France, a town on the Spanish border which had a large part in aiding the flight of Spanish Loyalist refugees from Gen. Francisco Franco's Spain after the civil war.

When the Maquis units were springing up in organized underground resistance to the Germans the one in this area numbered more Spanish than French. The 40,000 Spanish members now dominate the organization, it is said, and all members are well-equipped with small arms.

Hope for Peaceful Settlement.

Among the places they hold are one or two Spanish consulates. It is apparently on this fact that Madrid has focused its worry. The French regime has displayed no evidence to Washington that it is distressed over the situation, although Gen. de Gaulle has dispatched representatives to the area and their orders are said not to have been obeyed.

Guerrillas Are Reported Fighting in North Spain

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AP).—The De Gaulle-sponsored Toulouse radio said early today that guerrilla fighting has broken out in Northern Spain and that the French-Spanish frontier at Andorra had been closed by Spanish authorities.

The broadcast, heard in London by the Ministry of Information, did not elaborate on the factions engaged in the fighting.

Meanwhile, the Madrid radio quoted the Falangist newspaper Arriba as declaring that Spain could "not look with indifference" on the political situation in Southern France, where it said "a minefield of politics" developed after the area's liberation from German occupation.

NAZIS GET NEW CUT IN FOOD RATIONS

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(AP) Beleaguered belt-tightening Germans got new cuts in food rations tonight from Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, total mobilization director.

Nazi party activity was ordered curtailed in another decree.

Atop a cut in bread and sugar rations announced last week to take effect Oct. 16, Goebbels decree: A three-ounce reduction in the weekly ration of ersatz coffee; an unspecified reduction in the ration of jam and artificial honey for children; suspension of the ration of cooking oils.

In other orders Goebbels sought to obtain more manpower for Germany's armies and war factories.

"Army medical corps stationed in the rear will have to look after civilians and military hospitals will have to set up outdoor departments for them," he said.

The new orders also hit at Nazi party affairs and frills. Flag days and canvassing for party funds were banned and party members were ordered to walk around to their block wardens to pay dues on "sacrifice Sundays."

Nazi party regional groups were ordered to cease all functions not directly aiding prosecution of the war. Appointments, promotions and regradings within the party were halted. The Hitler youth organization's sports and cultural contests were discontinued. Many Nazi party publications were suspended.

LELONG OUTARGUED NAZIS ON FASHIONS

Paris, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The French fashion industry was saved from transfer to Germany by the use of endless negotiations, Lucien Lelong, who for twelve years was president of the French Fashion Organization, declared today.

He said the spirit of resistance to Nazi efforts to dominate the industry went so far that throughout the occupation not one major hat model appeared in the German's color—green—and each time the Germans ordered less material the Parisians deliberately created bigger hats.

Lelong had a hectic time during the occupation.

"At the outbreak of the war I had a diplomatic passport for the United States but I preferred to stay and defend my corporation's interests," he said. One morning in 1940 he found six German officers in his office ordering him to Berlin immediately.

1,300 PLANES BATTER NAZIS

Air Force Centers And Rail Supply Lines Bombed

London, Oct. 5 (AP)—American and British air fleets, totaling more than 1,300 bombers, pounded German air force concentrations and railway supply funnels today in operations directly supporting Allied ground forces.

Exploiting a letup in the bad weather, approximately 1,100 American heavy bombers, escorted by more than 500 fighters, hit four airdromes near Munster and rail yards at Rheine and Cologne. (Rheine lies between the Dutch border and Osnabruck.)

Thirteen heavy bombers and five fighters were missing from the American attack, the Eighth Air Force announced in a communique.

RAF Bombs Wilhelmshaven

The RAF sent 200 heavies with fighter escort to bomb Wilhelmshaven in the morning, but clouds hampered observation and the result was undetermined. One bomber was missing.

The Second Tactical Air Force sent 100 medium bombers and 100 Spitfires to bomb and strafe enemy forces near Nijmegen.

Fortresses and Liberators worked over important German air fields at Handorf, Lippstadt, Paderborn and Loddenheide. Lippstadt and Handorf were known to be operational bases, Paderborn was a plane park and Loddenheide housed repair shops for ME-109's.

All Crowded With Planes

All had been crowded with Nazi planes forced out of France and Belgium, including some of the new jet-propelled fighters.

Today's operation was the eighth time in ten days that more than one thousand American heavy bombers have been over Europe.

The British disclosed that in yesterday's 1,300-mile round trip to the Bergen submarine pens, one Canadian group in the RAF bomber command hit four submarines, three in floating docks.

1100 U. S. BOMBERS BATTER GERMANY

London, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Upward of 1,100 American heavy bombers beat today at four airfields in northwest Germany near Munster, from which Nazi planes have been operating in increasing strength over the Siegfried Line, and hammered freight yards at Cologne and Rheine which feed the front. At the same time British heavy bombers attacked Wilhelmshaven and reconnaissance showed that their dike-breaching exploit at Walcheren Island on Tuesday had already resulted in the flooding of twenty-five of its 100 square miles, guarding the approaches to Antwerp.

The airfields attacked were at Handorf, Lippstadt, Paderborn and Loddenheide. Photographs had showed the runways crowded with planes which had been forced out of France and Belgium by Allied advances. Some were new jet-propelled fighters, a few of which were encountered today. Fighters escorting the bombers destroyed fifteen German planes on the ground.

Rheine is an important western front railway junction just across the Dutch border, northwest of Munster.

Today's great daylight operation was the eighth in ten days.

RAF Mosquitos kept the offensive going last night with an attack on 18 more trains in Germany and Holland. It was the 28th night of the last 34 that Allied bombers had visited the Reich.

Pilots reported all 18 trains were stopped dead, bringing the Mosquitos' total of trains attacked to 134 on four consecutive nights. Most of them have been caught shuttling between industrial cities in the Ruhr Valley.

Munich Attacked.

The only major attack on the continent yesterday was by between 500 and 750 heavy bombers of the American 15th Air Force that flew up from Italy and bombed the freight yards at Munich and points on the vulnerable Brenner Pass railroad.

British Lancasters and Halifaxes followed up their spectacular breaching of the Walcheren Island seawall by racing across the North Sea on a 1,300-mile round trip and cracking the Nazi submarine base at Bergen, Norway. Several new U-boat stalls are reported under construction there to replace those lost along the French coast.

Bad weather hampered reconnaissance activities over the Dutch island since Tuesday's "earthquake" bombing, but the German radio last night admitted 6,000 troops were trapped in floods.

RAF Bombs Tirpitz.

RAF Lancasters based in Russia scored a direct hit recently with a 6-ton bomb on the German battleship Tirpitz, in an attack involving a 5,000-mile round trip to and from Soviet fields, it was disclosed last night.

This was the first announcement that RAF planes had operated from Russian bases in recent months.

The planes took off from British bases with heavy bomb loads for the 2,000-mile flight to Russia, which was made in 11 hours. They refueled there and flew to Altenfjord, Norway, for the attack. Then the planes returned to the Russian bases and from there flew back to Britain.

The attack was made without loss. The pilots met no flak or fighters.

RUSSIAN FORCES ADVANCE THROUGH BELGRADE SUBURB

Soviet Army Strikes Within Eight Miles of Yugoslav Capital.

NEW DRIVE REPORTED

Nazis Claim Reds Open Big Offensive Aimed at East Prussia.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 6.—(AP) Russian troops converging swiftly on Belgrade yesterday fought their way through the Danube north bank suburb of Pancevo, only eight miles across the river and marshes from the Yugoslav capital, and Berlin announced that upwards of 120,000 other Red army men had begun a new offensive in western Lithuania aimed at German East Prussia.

Overrunning 50 localities in a swift offensive across the rich plains between the Danube and southern Hungary, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army units rolled the Germans back on a 100-mile front, aided by a second junction with Marshal Tito's hard-fighting Partisans. Gains ranged up to 20 miles.

New Offensive Reported

In the north the Germans said the Russians had hurled from 12 to 14 divisions supported by many tanks into the offensive west of Siauliai in Lithuania. The Russians in this area last were reported within 66 miles east of German East Prussia's annexed port of Memel on the Baltic and about the same distance from Tilsit to the southwest.

The aim of this offensive, about which Moscow kept silent, would be to seal off Riga, 75 miles to the northeast, along with the entire section of northwestern Latvia as a prelude to an invasion of East Prussia, whose border troops already are being kept groggy by Russian punches on the east and south.

Berlin meanwhile admitted that Russian troops invading Saare (Osel) island off the western Estonian coast had hammered out a bridgehead on this large island dominating the Gulf of Riga. Russian seizure of 1,000-square-mile Saare would cut the German seaward escape route out of Riga in cooperation with Col. Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's First Baltic army push west of Siauliai.

Fan Out from Petrovgrad

In the invasion of Yugoslavia north of Belgrade the Russians and Partisans were fanning out from the big pivot base of Petrovgrad, at the center of a long front. They were attacking southward toward Belgrade's approaches northward toward southern Hungary, and westward toward the web of roads and railways connecting the tottering German Balkan empire.

One Soviet column speared to within 33 miles of the southern Hungarian border and within 43 miles of Szeged, Hungary's second city. Szeged already is threatened by other Soviet units attacking in the Mako area 15 miles to the east.

Hungary's days are numbered, Moscow dispatches said, and the free Yugoslav radio said that 25 German divisions of perhaps 250,000 men "never will see their homeland again" as a result of the combined drive on Belgrade and other communications cities in Yugoslavia west of the Romanian and Bulgarian border.

Advance a Mile an Hour

The Russians gained almost a mile-an-hour during the day in their mobile war across the plains. Aside from the developing threat to southern Hungary the most important seizure was that of Pancevo, six-way road and rail junction eight miles northeast of Belgrade. Pancevo, terminus of the Banat railway system, is connected with the capital by a railway and also ferry services.

Among the 50 localities captured north and south of Petrovgrad, the intermediate Russian base 38 miles north of Belgrade were these points:

Starcevo, five miles southeast of Pancevo and 10 miles east of Belgrade; Glogonj, 10 miles north of Belgrade; Centa, 28 miles southeast of Novi Sad, big communications city on the Budapest-Belgrade trunk railway 40 miles northwest of Belgrade; Muzlja, 27 miles east of Novi Sad and one mile south of Petrovgrad; Melenci, eight miles northwest of Petrovgrad; Basaid, 16 miles north of Petrovgrad and 33 miles from Hungary's pre-war frontier; and the rail station of Nova Crnja, 20 miles northeast of Petrovgrad.

Other troops under Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky last were reported 80 miles southeast of Belgrade, attacking along the south bank of the Danube, but Moscow's bulletin did not mention that sector where the Russians made their first junction with Tito's men. These troops also were hampered by mountainous territory.

NAZIS SAY REDS LAUNCH DRIVE IN LITHUANIA

Big Offensive Reported On After Great Barrage Above East Prussia.

RUSSIANS CLOSE TO BELGRADE

Soviet Forces Said to Be in Suburbs — 27 Miles Gained in Twenty-four Hours.

BULLETIN.

London, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Pancevo, big railroad center less than nine miles from the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade, was captured today by Russian and Yugoslav Partisan troops, Moscow announced tonight.

London, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Russian troops in Lithuania have mounted an all-out offensive west of Siaulai, Col. Ernst von Hammer, the German News Agency's military commentator, said today in a broadcast.

The German report said twelve to fourteen Russian divisions attacked in the Siaulai area, eighty miles northeast of the East Prussian city of Tilsit, with the help of four tank corps. A drumfire artillery barrage of the heaviest guns preceded the drive.

The enemy said the offensive was on a broad front. One of its purposes might be to cut off the Riga garrison to the north. Successful Russian operations also would prepare a northern descent into East Prussia, along whose eastern frontier other Russians have been drawn up for many weeks.

The Germans said also that artillery was beginning to pound the German line on the Narew River below the southern boundary of East Prussia and added, "one must expect a simulataneous offensive in this section." The report said bitter fighting was in progress all along the activated front in Lithuania.

Road Dam Blown Up.

The Germans announced earlier that seven Russian divisions of perhaps 100,000 men had invaded the big Estonian island of Saare (Osel) at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga during the morning.

The Germans said the Russians prepared the attack on the island for four days and sprang from Muhu Island. A road dam which connected the two islands was reported blown up by German rearguards, but Berlin said the Red Army took to assault boats and small craft.

Saare is the last part of Estonia in German hands. It lies just south of Hiiu (Dago) Island, captured Tuesday. About 50,000 persons live on the island. Its southern extremity is 100 miles from Riga but less than twenty from the northwest coast of Latvia.

Meanwhile, the Rome radio said today that Russian troops were fighting in the suburbs of Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia.

[The British radio, quoting a Reuters dispatch from Moscow, said the Red Army is driving through outskirts of Belgrade at the bayonet point.]

Belgrade's Fall Appears Near; Russians Reported in Suburbs

Armored Spearheads Drive on Rail City Only 9 Miles North of Yugoslav Capital

(Map on Page 4-E)

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 5.—Russian armored spearheads advanced today on the rail junction of Pancevo, a city of 22,000, less than 9 miles northeast of Belgrade, and front dispatches indicated the Yugoslav capital may fall in a matter of hours.

(The Rome radio said Russian troops were fighting in the suburbs of Belgrade.)

The German position in the area was declared untenable. The Russians have a big encircling maneuver ready to put into effect if the enemy tries to dig in.

Closing in from the captured towns of Bela Crkva Kraljevicevo, 15 miles northeast of Belgrade, and Debilyacha, 18 miles to the north, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's forces cleared two rail lines leading to Pancevo and aimed toward cutting the main railway running northwest from the capital—major remaining rail escape route for the bulk of the German forces on the Balkan peninsula.

Led by Yugoslav Partisan scouts, Marshal Malinovsky's troops advanced 27 miles in 24 hours in taking Debilyacha. The official Russian communique described it as "a headlong advance."

A companion Russian offensive southwest of Turnu Severin and 100 miles southeast of Belgrade, however, ran into stiffer resistance. This resistance was reported faltering under the blows of Russians in front and Partisan detachments deep in the rear.

Yesterday's Rusisan communique, making the first official comment on the union of Russian troops with Partisan forces first reported Monday by Marshal Tito, said that in that sector the united forces were fighting "for the annihilation" of the Germans.

Racing to smash the main rail rotue in that region, the Russians outflanked the three-way rail junction of Zajecar, captured Vratarnica, 9 miles to the south, and drove to within 40 miles of Nis, key junction on the railway from Bulgaria and Greece.

A total of 13 towns and railway stations fell to this Russian thrust, including Bor, center of the second largest copper deposit in Europe.

The Soviet communique announced only patrol activity on other sectors of the eastern front.

Reds Charge Turks Try To Stir Allied Split

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 5.—The government newspaper Izvestia sharply criticized Turkish newspapers today for accounts which it said interpreted Allied landings in the Balkans as a move to block the Red Army rather than to expel the Germans. It termed the stories "provocatory."

"Several days ago rumors began to circulate in the foreign press about Allied troops in Albania," Izvestia said. "These rumors were not confirmed. But they were used immediately by some Turkish journalists to continue a suspicious campaign 'for the defense of the Balkan countries.'"

Reds Appeal to Hungarians.

Moscow, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The Russian press predicted today the early collapse of invaded Hungary and urged the Hungarian people to overthrow the existing regime. Soviet broadcasts and leaflets showered upon the country appealed to Hungarians to halt the nation's course "on the verge of catastrophe."

Soviet policy in Hungary was described as having the purely military aim of defeating Hitler. Hungarians were assured no foreign social system would be imposed against their will.

Mihailovich's Daughter Reported Joining Tito

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 5.—The official Soviet news agency, Tass, quoted a Geneva dispatch today as saying that Gen. Draja Mihailovich's daughter has volunteered for service in Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisan Army.

Mihailovich, former Yugoslav war minister, is leader of the Chetnik army which Tito repeatedly has accused of collaborating with the Germans.

NAZI TROOPS TAKE GEN. BOR PRISONER IN WARSAW BATTLE

SINGLETON

LONDON, Oct. 5—(AP) Lt. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski, (Gen. Bor) leader of a guerrilla army crushed in the streets of ruined Warsaw in a 63-day struggle, was captured by the Germans less than a week after the Polish government-in-exile had named him Polish commander in chief.

A German report that the general and his entire staff had been taken prisoner after the death or capitulation of their army Monday within sight of Red army troops across the Vistula was confirmed by a Polish government spokesman, whose words reflected sorrow at the loss but pride that Komorowski had shared the fate of his surrendered remnants.

Contradict Red Report

At the same time the spokesman said the development "gave the lie" to the assertion last Saturday by the rival Soviet-sponsored Polish National Liberation committee that Komorowski had ordered the ill-fated uprising Aug. 1 and then sought safe shelter 18 miles outside the capital.

Prime Minister Churchill paid tribute in the House of Commons today to the patriots of Warsaw, saying their uprising which failed despite supplies dropped by British, American, Polish and Soviet fliers, would "remain a deathless memory for Poland and for the friends of freedom all over the world."

Komorowski's capture, upsetting government plans for leadership of the Polish armed forces, may have any one of these three effects:

1. Appointment of a new commander acceptable to Moscow.
2. Return of the post to Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski.
3. Continuance of military authority under a triumvirate, the president, minister of defense, and chief of staff, which was formed to operate while Komorowski still was battling in Warsaw. Gen. Stanislaw Kopanski has been serving as Komorowski's deputy here.

Bor Called Criminal

Edward B. Osbuka-Morawski, president of the rival Polish group organized in Russia, had charged that Komorowski was a "criminal against the Polish people." Osubka-Morawski contended that Komorowski was responsible for a futile uprising which cost scores of thousands of lives.

Moscow dispatches have estimated that as many as 250,000 Poles died in the struggle but a Stockholm dispatch today quoted the German-controlled Swedish telegraphic bureau as saying that 50,000 Poles were killed in the second battle of Warsaw.

The Polish spokesman here said that the government still was in contact with the underground army in Poland.

A Polish telegraph agency dispatch said the Polish underground had uncovered a German plan to "soon massacre all prisoners in Oswiecim, largest Nazi concentration camp in Poland, to eliminate war-guilt witnesses."

A Polish Government spokesman declared that his capture gave the lie to the Moscow-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation, which is a rival to the London regime and which declared that the general had stayed away from the ravaged capital after ordering the futile uprising.

Berlin announced earlier today that Gen. Komorowski and his entire staff had been taken prisoner.

DNB, official German news agency, said:

"It has just been learned that the Polish Gen. (Bor) Komorowski, who was recently appointed commander in chief of all Polish forces and up to now was commander of the Warsaw rebels, was made a prisoner of war after the capitulation of Warsaw. The whole of his staff, as well as several other Polish generals, was taken prisoner with him."

There has been an argument in Allied quarters as to whether Gen. Komorowski was in Warsaw during the uprising. Polish spokesmen in Moscow declared he was not in the city, but the Polish government here insisted he was.

Churchill Praises Stand.

Prime Minister Churchill paid tribute in the House of Commons today to the patriots of Warsaw, declaring their 63-day uprising would "remain a deathless memory for Poland and for the friends of freedom all over the world."

Those who fought and lived inside the battered Polish capital, he said, have "undergone suffering unsurpassed even among the miseries of this war."

"British, American, Polish and

London Poles Declare His Loss Gives Lie to Moscow-sponsored Lublin Regime.

London, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Gen. Bor), the newly appointed commander in chief of the Polish military forces, was captured in the battle of Warsaw, the Polish Government in Exile announced tonight.

Soviet airmen did what they could to succor the Poles at Warsaw," Mr. Churchill said, "but although this sustained Polish resistance beyond what would have seemed possible, it could not turn the tide. The final fall of the city at a time when the Allied armies are everywhere victorious and when the final defeat of Germany is in sight must come as a very bitter blow to all Poles."

Says Reds Posed As Nazi Generals

London, Oct. 5 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, German high command spokesman, tonight attributed German defeats on the Eastern Front in part to "unscrupulous trickery" by Russians who infiltrated German lines dressed as German generals and issued faked orders.

"During the—for us so unhappy—battles of last summer," Dittmar said, "Soviet agents appeared in German uniforms, some even in uniforms of German generals, and contrived by faked orders to lead our troops repeatedly into unfavorable tactical positions."

Stockolm, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Finnish troops, pushing the Germans back along a line north of the Finnish waist, have captured Rannu and Sima and approached close to Livojaervi, a Helsinki communique announced today. East of Kemi, however, the Germans received reinforcements and compelled the Finns to fall back slightly from their attack on that port near the tip of the Gulf of Bothnia.

Livojervi is 100 miles east of Kemi in central Finland. Rannu is fifty - five miles northeast of Kemi, and Sima is on the coast twelve miles southeast of Kemi. Kemi has been under attack from two directions since the Finns cut off the German line of retreat by landing at Tornealv, a coastal point at the Swedish border fifteen miles northeast of Kemi.

Finnish Cabinet Shift Believed Necessary To Satisfy Soviet

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 5.—Belief that Finland eventually must form a government with more strongly Leftist tendencies if she hopes to live in harmony with Russia was expressed here today as the job of ejecting the Germans from Lapland hampered the Finns' efforts to readjust themselves after a lost war.

"The present government is too Rightist for successful collaboration with the Russians, on which Finland's future depends, and therefore a new government eventually must be formed," said informants who have followed Finnish affairs closely in recent months.

Men such as Trades Unionist Eero Vuori and Social Minister K. A. Fagerholm were said to feel a new cabinet must be built soon, but some other Finns inclined to the belief that this can wait until the general election, now scheduled for January or February, after the army is fully demobilized and evacuees are resettled.

More urgent is the question of disarming and interning Germans in Northern Finland, who are beginning to show signs of digging in.

"To insure determined fulfillment of armistice terms, Finnish units which had fought beside the Germans have been transported south and men from the Karelian Isthmus and the area north of Lake Ladoga were sent against the Germans," one informant said.

"Morale of the troops had been declining steadily before the truce (with Russia), but Germany's attack on Hogland brought a partial about-face in spirit. At that stage every one wanted the war to end so they could return home."

At present, with the population befuddled by years of anti-Russian propaganda, with shortages in raw materials and with food problems expected, much is believed here to depend on the way in which the Russian Armistice Control Commission acts.

"There is a strong desire for collaboration in Finland now that every one sees clearly that defeat is complete," one observer of the Finnish scene said. "But the Finns want to be masters of their own house. Any intervention in home affairs by the Russians could lead to desperate guerrilla warfare which might conceivably continue indefinitely in the forests of Finland. Moderate Russian control on the other hand would help foster good neighborly relations."

Murder Camp Found in Estonia

Reds Say Nazis Slaughtered 3000 Forced Laborers There on Sept. 19

By EDDY GILMORE.

Tallinn, Estonia, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Eighteen miles from this capital is what the Russians point to as evidence of the Germans' most recent mass horror—the Klooga labor camp. There, the Russians say, 3,000 Jews, Russians and Estonians were methodically murdered.

This camp was in the timber and cement country, where prisoners slaved to produce vital material for the Nazi war machine. People in the vicinity told the correspondents this story:

The Germans killed off the prisoners wholesale when they learned that the Russian Army was coming and that retreat was in prospect. It was on September 19—two days before the Germans pulled out of Tallinn. They announced that the prisoners would be moved, always a bad sign in a Nazi camp.

The first group of 300 were marched off into the woods, ordered to saw up piles of logs into pieces, and then were marched into a field in groups of about fifty, carrying the logs. They were forced to make a raft-like foundation, and then to lie down on it. The Germans shot them all.

A second group formed another layer on top of the first—and were shot. When there were six or seven layers of dead, gasoline was poured over all of them and a torch was applied.

'I Saw the Bodies.'

This is what the people told us—and then we went up to see.

In a little green field about seventy-five feet from the road and a half mile from the camp a mass of charred corpses were lying amid a few hundred pounds of ashes. Most of the corpses were about half burned. There were the bodies of men, women and children. I saw the bodies of at least three girls who must have been under 16. In the backs of their heads you could see what looked like bullet holes.

Off to the side was a stack of logs and, near by, a great pile of clothing, most of which bore the stenciled Star of David and prisoners' numbers. In another pile were shoes, and children's shoes were numerous among them.

In one place was a completely burned building. An escaped prisoner said that this was where the Germans drove a large number of men and women, locked the doors, set fire to the building and burned them alive. In another place a dozen or so bodies lay sprawled behind a barbed wire inclosure. These, an inmate said, were shot down or beaten to death.

Those who had escaped said that they were free because of the haste of the Nazis.

Some Who Escaped.

Many of those who worked here had had relatives in the United States. Among the fifteen or twenty who escaped—and their kinsmen in America—were listed: Leah Derzin, sister of Herman J. Robinson of Provincetown, Mass.; Merian Baruch, relative of Paul Rosen of St. Louis; Matla Gensel-Swerdlin, relative of Ber Solobeitschik of Boston; Rosa Aivruch, relative of Jacob Kivits of New York; Jeremiah Ratner, relative of Dr. Emma Bentsel Gubeski of Brooklyn, and still another woman who broke down utterly and was unable to speak her name after she had handed me the address of Br. Jacob Schulman of New York.

"Please tell them," Ratner said, "this old man is all right, but my poor boy of 15 lies burned to death over there."

We gathered in the little room in one of Klooga's buildings whose central piece of furniture is a wooden whipping rack.

"I once got twenty-five lashes there because I was caught stealing the ashes of my father who had been burned after dying of exposure in this camp," said Lazaraz Olejiski, a Wilno lawyer. "I know a woman who got twenty-five for stealing the ashes of a relative in the same way."

ROBOTS HIT ENGLAND IN RENEWED ATTACKS

LONDON, Oct. 5—(AP) The Germans opened up on southern England with a fresh salvo of flying bombs tonight, apparently releasing them simultaneously from Heinkel carriers ranging along the eastern coastline.

Several were seen in the sky about the same time, touching off a heavy antiaircraft barrage at one point. Night fighters also sprang to the defense and at least one robot was downed.

Several houses were demolished when one of the missiles crashed in a street. One woman was killed.

The Nazis picked late last night for a renewal of the nuisance attacks after a lull of several days.

Anti-Nazi Revolts Reported in Austria

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The London radio, quoting advices from Bern, said last night that revolts are reported to have broken out in Vienna and other parts of Austria. There was no immediate confirmation from other sources.

BBC declared that casualties and arrests had occurred in disturbances only two days after Gen. Eisenhower and the Moscow radio told the Austrians that "the time has come" for them to give active proof of their willingness to break with their German masters.

The broadcast said unrest was reported in the industrial district of Steyr, where "workers are in some cases coming out on strike and carrying out considerable sabotage."

Britain to Hold Women to Jobs

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AP).—The British government is not yet ready to release from war employment those married women who wish to return to full-time housework, Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin told the House of Commons today.

British Services Urged To Free Key Workers First

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The general council of the Trades Union Congress has recommended that key industrial workers be demobilized first from Britain's armed forces under a schedule that would allow no "wrangling."

In a 160-page report prepared for the TUC's seventh annual meeting at Blackpool beginning October 16, the council said:

"If release from the armed forces is merely on an 'age plus length of service' basis, unnecessary employment may result because frequently the men and women last released from civilian occupations will be among those first required to re-plan industry."

The report is one of a series setting forth viewpoints of the TUC board. Previously released reports called for government ownership and control of industry and centralization of union organization.

Stories Linking Army And Business Unverified

London, Oct. 5 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons today that stories of American and British officers engaging in private business in France had not been substantiated.

He added, however, that every effort was being made to allow the resumption of business contacts as soon as conditions permitted.

Handley-Page Hermes Seen In Post-War Role

London, Oct. 5 (AP)—The first British airline to bid for post-war world airways traffic probably will be a Handley-Page Hermes, whose powerful Bristol Hercules engines would be capable of lifting a payload of 16,000 pounds, or alternatively, up to 50 passengers.

The four-engined monoplane with pressurized cabin for substratosphere flight reportedly already is being manufactured.

The ship would have a normal range of 2,000 miles and an easy cruising speed of 240 miles per hour at an altitude of 10,000 feet.

British Occupy Patrai In Drive To Free Greece

Rome, Oct. 5 (AP)—The British have invaded Greece, landing troops by air and sea in the Peloponnesus, pushing forward rapidly and have reached the important port of Patrai, returning to the scene of their 1941 defeat by the Germans.

At Patrai, third among Greek ports, the invasion forces were only 70 miles west of the Isthmus of Corinth, the narrow neck which leads directly to Athens and links the Peloponnesus to the rest of the Greek mainland.

[The Cairo radio said in a broadcast tonight that the German garrison of Patrai had surrendered, and reported also that British landings had been made at Katakolon on the west coast of the Peloponnesus.]

[The Ankara radio said tonight the Germans were evacuating Athens and the Peloponnesus, moving hastily northward but hampered by Patriot forces which were blowing up bridges and blocking roads.]

[Cairo reports broadcast by the British radio said tonight Allied invasion forces operating in Greece have completely isolated the island of Corfu from communication with the mainland.]

Menace To Nazi Balkan Front

Closely coordinated with lesser Allied operations on the Albanian coast and the Greek island of Kythera to the south, and coupled with the Russian approach to Belgrade and the advances of Tito's Partisans in Yugoslavia, this newest invasion promises to speed the disintegration of Hitler's Balkan positions.

Announced only today by Allied force headquarters, the invasion was already several days old. It began with airborne landings which met no opposition, and the Tommies ran into fighting only as they neared Patrai.

There they found a German garrison, believed to be one of the few left in southern Greece, Sid Feder, Associated Press correspondent with the invasion forces, reported that the Germans made one offer to surrender to the British, but had not been able to come to terms. That was Monday—there has been no specific word since.

Air Of Triumphant Entry

Up to that point, the invasion had more of the air of a triumphant entry than of a military assault. The British soldiers were welcomed with wild enthusiasm by the natives, who swarmed around them with shouts and gifts of food, flowers and kisses.

Escorted by fighters, parachute troops made the first landings, establishing airfields from which Spitfires were operating by the time the seaborne troops arrived at a small port on the west coast, not many miles from the rocky island of Ithaca, home of the legendary Ulysses.

For the first time in history, amphibious assault troops found their air cover already operating from the territory they were scheduled to invade. They even found mail awaiting them as they came ashore.

Size Of Force Undivulged

There has been no hint from headquarters of the size of the force involved in the invasion, but it is believed to be much smaller than the armies which landed in Sicily or Italy, although obviously more ambitious than the commando units which for months have been jabbing at German positions along the Adriatic coast opposite Italy.

Greeks Help Invaders

Some of these Commando units are in the invasion force, plus naval forces, infantry, engineers and part of an RAF regiment. They landed three days after parachute troops had dropped into the western Peloponnesus and established an airfield. Since then, the troops have seized the Patrai airfield, and may have others.

The population—which failed to provide any sizable body of collaborators with the Nazis, and which suffered extreme hardship and hunger—rushed to help the invading British establish their supply dumps and airfields, and to offer food.

The British, said headquarters, countered with a promise that food and medicine for the Greek people would follow quickly behind the invasion troops.

For a fortnight preceding the invasion the airfields, ports and rail centers of Greece had been pounded by more than 1,100 American and British bombers in an effort to paralyze German attempts to evacuate the mainland and the Aegean islands.

Transport Planes Bagged

In addition to this main bombing attack, the planes of the Balkan Air Force were out daily after Ju-58 transport planes making evacuation flights to the north, as well as shooting up communications lines to an intense "operational strangle" attack which at one time was reported to have severed the main escape rail lines to Germany and left the highways choked with traffic.

The Greek invasion was accompanied by naval bombardment of enemy positions on Rhodes and other Aegean islands, and huge fires observed on Rhodes were taken as indication the Germans were carrying out demolitions preparatory to abandoning that important stronghold.

Commandos Attack Sarande

In Albania, Commandos were attacking the small but important port of Sarande, through which the enemy was trying to maintain its communications with its garrison on the strongly held island of Corfu, reportedly garrisoned by a regiment of Nazi troops.

Farther up the coast, British artillery continued to harass German communications and gun batteries on the mainland of Yugoslavia opposite the island of Brac.

Port of Patrai Entered by Sea And Land Forces

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 5.—Striking from the sea and air, British troops have landed in Western Greece, entered the port of Patrai and seized airfields from which RAF Spitfires already are operating in support of the effort to drive out or destroy German garrisons.

The Allied command, announcing the invasion today, said landing forces had made contact with the enemy both in Greece and neighboring Southern Albania, where other units went ashore 10 days ago.

The announcement gave no indication of the size of the new landing force, but it is believed the units operating both in Greece and Albania are small compared with previous Allied landings in Africa, Sicily, Italy and France.

There appeared a strong possibility the operations might swiftly end German rule throughout the Balkans.

(Reliable reports reaching Cairo said the Germans had carried out demolitions in the Corinth Canal to block movements through the Gulf of Corinth and to form a large obstacle for forces proceeding overland from the Peloponnesus.)

Extent of Resistance Not Given.

There was no immediate report on the extent of German resistance at Patrai, a city of 61,000 and Greece's third largest port, or elsewhere, but the Germans recently were said to have three divisions on the Greeek mainland as well as other elements evacuated from Crete and the Aegean Islands.

All these have been reported ready to flee northward on a moment's notice to escape the jaws of a great trap closing in on the whole Balkans with Russians advancing from the east and Allied forces with Patriot support striking from the west.

In Albania the Allied forces were attempting to cut enemy communications around the port of Sarande, supply base for the German garrison of the strongly defended island of Corfu (Kerkyra).

British parachute troops struck the first blow in Greece. They quickly seized an airfield on the Peloponnesus from which Spitfires were operating before the landings from the sea began. Air transport planes carried in other troops. By Tuesday night the invaders were entering Patras.

The parachute troops and seaborne units were given a joyful welcome by the Greek natives who under stern German rule have suffered severely from food shortages.

The Allies already have promised essential foods and medical supplies to the country, which for six months in 1940-41 fought an attacking Italian Army to a standstill and might have pushed it into the sea but for a German drive across the Balkans.

Lending support to the invaders, Mustangs from the United States 15th Air Force swarmed over the Kalamaki, Tatoi and Elevsis airdromes in the Athens area, destroying several grounded enemy planes, but meeting no air opposition.

Other planes blasted the threadbare enemy lines of communication through Yugoslavia, on which the Germans must pin their last hope of getting their Balkan garrisons back to the fatherland.

112 Miles West of Athens.

Patrai, the only area of invasion given in the first announcement of the landings in Greece, lies approximately 112 miles west of Athens near the entrance to the Gulf of Corinth. It is on the north shore of the Peloponnesus.

The invasion returned British troops to the Greek mainland for the first time since 1941, when an ill-fated expeditionary force was forced to flee before the then all-powerful German Army.

Earlier in the week Allied forces occupied the island of Kythera off the southern tip of the Peloponnesus without opposition.

Today's announcement said liberation of the Greek islands was continuing, but none of them was mentioned by name.

Other Allied units are proceeding with operations from newly captured Dalmatian islands off Yugoslavia, including Brac. This morning's communique said artillery on Brac were firing on German concentrations on the mainland.

This invasion was different from all others, although the wild welcome of the Greeks was familiar. Many of them were suffering from lack of medicines.

The landings coincided with the third anniversary of the founding of the Greek patriot organization Elas.

The amphibious forces found a full scale supply dump awaiting them. The Tommies who broke over the beaches and started the liberation of Greece had cover from their own air force, operating from the area to be invaded.

For the first two days, there was not a German to be seen, indicating the enemy had pulled out of this region except for garrisons to keep escape routes open.

Peasants Pitched in to Help.

Troop carriers dropped the first troops in Greece, and these established supply dumps with materiel also ferried by plane. Men and women in peasant dress greeted the parachutists enthusiastically and helped them assemble stores. A regular airport was established.

"The peasants tried to force eggs, tomatoes and even turkeys on us," one of the flyers recounted. "When we refused, they tried to slip eggs into our pockets. I told them nobody had time to cook the turkeys so they cooked them for us."

Word of the incursion spread and ragged and shoeless Italians came in and surrendered, saying they had been robbed of clothing by the Germans and abandoned one cow. A transport plane landing at night broke the animal's back."

On D day, naval forces with infantry Commandos, part of an R. A. F. regiment and engineers landed and worked in co-ordination with the Balkan Air Force.

Church Bells Ring Out.

Many peasants along the line of march were in pitiable condition because the Germans pillaged the countryside of medicine, food and clothing. Quinine especially was lacking, and it is needed in this area where malaria abounds.

The first invasion craft entering the beachhead harbor displayed a Greek flag. Greek natives showered the troops with flowers as they scrambled across a quay demolished by the Germans.

Throughout the night of D day church bells rang and word of the invasion traveled swiftly ahead of the column. Whenever a spearhead was halted by a blown bridge it was surrounded quickly by men and women offering food and drink. Some villagers even wove garlands into which the word "welcome" was worked.

Impressive religious services were held in the cathedral of one town.

Andartes Battle Patras Nazis.

Spitfire pilots said that when they landed natives rushed over and patted their planes shouting: "Long live our English friends." Practically every one wished to kiss their liberators.

"Most of the embracing was done by old women and men, and many of the men had beards," Flight Lieut. Derek Rake said. "The young girls didn't embrace us. They just shook hands and shouted: 'Wonderful, wonderful.' They had learned a little English in secret schools."

Seaborne forces immediately pushed out to join the originally landed troops, and then patrols slashed toward Patras.

At Patras, where the Germans were holding out, they were surrounded by native "Andartes"—a Greek name for patriots since the 1821 fight against the Turks. The Nazis were able to hold off the patriots with their mortars, which they immediately turned on the British.

The Germans made one offer to surrender because they were afraid of the consequences of falling into the hands of the Andartes. They were unable, however, to come to terms with the British.

Odyssey of Invasion of Greece

By SID FEDER.

In Western Greece, Oct. 2 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Not many miles from the mythical birthplace of the legendary Ulysses, the convoy carrying troops for the invasion of Greece ran into a set of circumstances that would have fitted exactly into his strange travels.

Just a few hours from the small port where the landings were made, a severe storm sprang up. Two waterspouts whirled up from the sea toward the convoy. Only by evasive tricks were the captains able to keep their vessels from being struck.

"It seemed as if the furies were trying to frustrate us," one officer said.

Mail Was Awaiting Troops.

The original plane landings were followed quickly by Spitfires and supply planes loaded with fuel and food which made ready for seaborne forces who landed three days later.

"When these fellows got off the boat on D day, they even had mail waiting for them," one officer said. "When the invasion ships landed, there were enough supplies and fuel already flown in to insure protection of forces on the peninsula. The only casualty in the whole operation was to the Greek patriots, who were reported doing yeoman work in harrying the enemy escape routes.

YANKS 14 MILES FROM BOLOGNA

Fifth Army Captures Peak Dominating Main Road

Rome, Oct. 5 (AP) — American Fifth Army troops battling yard by yard in the rolling mountain country south of Bologna have won positions just 14 miles from that Po Valley communications center with a one-mile advance through tenacious German defenses, Allied headquarters announced today.

In the face of Nazi artillery pouring all types of shells at them, the Americans captured Monte Venere, a high peak dominating the main road to Bologna, won positions to the northeast a short distance from Monte Morsino on the Imola road and in their deepest penetration toward Bologna seized a ridge just north of La Selva, five miles east of Highway 65 at Loiano.

Quinzano Also Falls

Just a 1,000 yards south of Loiano, an important road junction, the Americans were engaged in heavy fighting with Germans who were dug in and using heavy artillery. The Americans also took Quinzano east of Loiano after an advance of several hundred yards north of Lagune.

Yesterday's widespread advances put the Americans within 11 miles of the old Roman Aemilia road, running from Rimini to Bologna.

Fight Under Searchlights

Near Rimini, on the Adriatic, Canadian troops fought in artificial moonlight created by searchlights to gain the last German-held ridge overlooking the city. The Royal Edmonton regiment advanced, sometimes in single file, to win the summit in hand-to-hand fighting. Four hundred Germans were captured.

Between the Americans and the Canadians, British troops advanced to a point one mile northeast of Castagno. West of the Americans, South African units entered Lagaro on the Prato-Bologna road, and advanced to positions on the eastern slopes of Monte Vigese, a 3,500-foot peak offering a clear field of fire on Highway 64 from Pistoia to Bologna.

Americans Gain Mile Against Violent Fire On Road to Bologna

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 5.—American 5th Army troops drove a mile forward against violent fire from reinforced and hastily intrenched Germans yesterday on the bitterly contested road to Bologna to within 14 miles of that great communications center.

The doughboys seized a ridge just north of La Selva, 5 miles east of Highway 65 at Loiano.

The Americans gained new positions just short of Monte Morosino on the Imola road, 3 miles north of Castel del Rio. On their left flank, where the Germans poured in all types of artillery fire, they took the towns of Cuviola and Quinzano east of Loiano, after forcing their way against stiff resistance several hundred yards north of Lagune, which overlooks a secondary road to Bologna.

Yesterday's advances put the doughboys within 11 miles of the old Roman Aemilia road, running from Bologna to Rimini.

To the east, the British 8th Army advanced to a point up to 2 miles northeast of Castagno, and South African units entered Lagaro on the Prato-Bologna road. Other South Africans drove to positions on the east slopes of Monte Vigese, 3,500-foot peak which offers a clear field of fire against Highway 64 leading from Pistoia to Bologna.

In the Adriatic sector, 8th Army positions along the swollen Fiumicno River remained substantially unchanged. Indian units took San Donato, about 4 miles west of Scorticata, across the Rubicon.

While strong forces of escorted heavy bombers blasted railyards in Munich and rail communications in Northern Italy yesterday, mediums attacked rail bridges in the Po Valley. Light craft bombed and strafed troop concentrations, supply dumps and communications lines in and north of the battle area.

From these and other operations in the Balkans 21 Allied planes failed to return, including 13 heavy bombers.

Alexander Broadcasts To Italian Partisans

By the Associated Press.

30. 24 — 1934 7

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander told Partisans in Northern Italy over the Rome radio today: "You will soon have the opportunity of striking a mortal blow at the enemy."

The broadcast by the Allied commander in Italy instructed the Partisans to prevent the Germans from crossing the Alps and the Po River and outlined other phases of cooperation with Allied troops.

Jet Propulsion Pioneer Heads Air Command

Rome, Oct. 5 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, Cleves, Ohio, jet-propulsion pioneer, has assumed command of the United States 12th Air Force Fighter Command, Allied Mediterranean headquarters announced today.

Chidlaw, a West Pointer, was chief of the materiel division on the staff of the commander of United States Army Air Forces until April. He was awarded the Legion of Merit for his part in the development of jet-propelled aircraft, and was commended for his work on Gen. H. H. Arnold's staff.

Chidlaw arrived in the Mediterraneon theater in April and became deputy commander to Brig. Gen. Gordon P. Saville in the 12th Tactical Air Command, helping to plan the direct air offensive which laid the path for the breakthrough at Cassino and Anzio, the capture of Rome and the invasion of southern France.

Florentine Art Works Carried Off by Germans

Masterpieces by Michelangelo and Donatello Missing

ROME, Oct. 5 (AP).—Before their retreat from Florence the Germans rifled caches of priceless art treasures and carted away or ruined many masterpieces, inventories by an Allied fine arts and archives sub-commission disclosed today.

Fifty-eight cases of famous sculptures in marble and bronze, twenty-six cases of Hellenistic and Roman sculpture and 291 pictures were included in the partial list of announced losses.

Also listed as lost were twenty-five to thirty cases of smaller pictures and twenty-five sketches.

Italian art officials said the Germans took the treasures on the pretext of saving them "from the American barbarians."

The Germans caused irreparable damage and near-ruin to the world's most notable paleographic library, at the University of Florence. An entire collection of ancient documents was reported tossed into the damp basement corridors of a villa, where it was walked upon daily.

Flyer's Posthumous Award Goes To Wife

Rome, Oct. 5 (AP)—The Distinguished Flying Cross and oak leaf cluster awarded posthumously to Major Robert W. Raup, Milton, Pa., were presented today to his widow, an army nurse stationed in Italy.

Maj. Gen. John K. Cannon, commanding the 12th Air Force, presented the decorations to Lieut. Ruth W. Raup, Army Nurse Corps, in a ceremony arranged by the 350th fighter group.

Raup, who died in action July 25, only 17 days after his marriage, was cited for leading his squadron on a reconnaissance mission which resulted in the destruction of a large number of ships in San Stefano harbor last February.

Three Bring Rudderless Liberator Back Home

Rome, Oct. 5 (AP)—Three flyers brought a Liberator back from Munich yesterday without rudders.

That is something like putting an automobile into a garage with the steering gear locked, only a lot more dangerous.

The pilot, Lieut. Charles W. Wilson, Lyndhurst, Va.; the copilot, Lieut. R. A. Garforth, Akron, Ohio, and the engineer, Sergt. Henry Meyer, Jr., Geraldine, Mont., brought the rudderless bomber home, guided only by ailerons and stepped-up engines. The rudder cables were cut by flak over the south German city. Seven of the crew jumped over friendly Italian territory.

Pope Expresses Support Of Italian Relief Work

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP) — Pope Pius XII has expressed "his fullest support" to American organizations carrying on relief work in Italy.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said today his Holiness has sent the following message to Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican:

"To his Excellency, Myron C. Taylor:

"It was with real pleasure that we read your Excellency's letter of September 18, in which, on behalf of President Roosevelt and American Relief for Italy, Inc., your Excellency very kindly expressed appreciation of our encouragement of the national agency for distribution of relief supplies for Italy.

"Lofty Ideals And Efficiency"

"Constantly animated as we are by the resolve to avail ourselves of every occasion to alleviate the sad consequences of a conflict which alas we were unable to prevent, we are most happy to give our fullest support to an organization that has been set up with the object of bringing help to one of the peoples most severely tried by the war, all the more so because the elements constituting this national agency give every reason for confidence in its lofty ideals and thorough efficiency.

"Indeed, information already reaching us affords gratifying proof of the earnestness of its generous, zealous leaders. This confidence has now been increased by the assurance your Excellency gives that American Relief for Italy, Inc., has accomplished much, and we express the hope that under the able and enlightened leadership of your Excellency, other governmental and benevolent organizations will lend their hearty cooperation to further the most praiseworthy aims of this national agency.

Prays Work May Grow

"While then, we implore the most plentiful blessings of God on the united efforts of all concerned with these noble enterprises, we voice the prayer that the work already begun may develop and grow apace and that it may serve to offer suffering peoples an unmistakable testimony of the active presence in the world of that Christian charity without which justice would be inadequate to insure for mankind the inestimable gift of peace.

"We are happy on this occasion to renew the expression of our sincere good wishes to your Excellency."

TIDDIM ROAD CUT BY ALLIED FORCES

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 5 — (AP) Indian troops advancing on Tiddim in northwestern Burma have struck behind Japanese defenders and cut the Tiddim road just four miles north of the enemy base, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

By cutting the road behind the enemy's rear, Japanese infantry and gun positions "have been turned," the daily communique said. The action was along the "chocolate staircase" of steep ascents, sharp curves.

After establishing the road block the Indian troops beat off a strong Japanese counter-attack.

Frontline observers with the Fifth Indian division which is making the attack on Tiddim, from which the Japanese invaded India last year, reported seeing huge fires on two successive nights in the vicinity of the hilltop town. This indicated that the besieged enemy was destroying stores in preparation for an attempt to escape over roads already menaced by Allied infiltrations to the east.

Japs Believed Preparing To Flee From Tiddim

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 5.—Front dispatches from Western Burma today said large fires were burning in the Japanese advance base at Tiddim, indicating the enemy was destroying his stores preparatory to an attempt to flee.

The Japanese escape route to the south is menaced by Allied infiltrations.

JAPANESE SEVER COMMUNICATIONS WITH PAOCHING

CHUNGKING, Oct. 5—(AP) The Chinese high command announced tonight that all communication with the defenders of Paoching had been cut off for 14 hours, indicating loss of the strategically important center on the right flank of the Japanese advance on Kweilin.

Fall of Paoching would safeguard Japanese positions along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway in the drive against Kweilin, provincial capital of Kwangsi.

In the left flank off the offensive against Kweilin, Japanese who broke into the town of Changning received heavy reinforcements, and street fighting spread in the town, which is 37 miles south of Hengyang on the Japanese-held Canton-Hankow railway.

Thirty-one miles northeast of Kweilin fighting raged west of Hingan (Hsinganhsien), a rail town, the high command said. The Japanese who drove a column west through Hingang apparently are attempting to outflank the Kwangsi capital. The Chinese said three separate Japanese attacks on their positions west of Hingan were thrown back.

In the maritime province of Fukien, where the Japanese have made surprise landings for a drive on Foochow, the Chinese said the invaders were checked about six miles east of that port. Both sides suffered heavy casualties in days of hard fighting, the High command said.

American fighters of the 14th air force struck at a supply line in the rear of the enemy drive in Kweilin and also gave air support to Chinese troops in the Paoching sector and the area west of Hengyang. Other planes harried the Japanese on the Hunan-Kwangsi front, strafing supply lines and bombing Japanese positions.

On the Yunnan province front the Chinese have captured an enemy pillbox in the eastern part of Lungling, most important remaining Japanese base on the Salween river front. They threw back several Japanese attacks near Hsiangta, east of Manshih. The Chinese counter-attacked in the latter area Tuesday and killed about 60 Japanese, the high command said. Two hill positions were taken.

JAPANESE GAINING ON KWEILIN FLANK

Chungking, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Virtually acknowledging the loss of Paoching, the Chinese High Command said tonight it had no communication with the defenders of that important position of the right flank of the Japanese advance toward Kweilin.

Meanwhile the Japanese received reinforcements for their break-in at Changning, on the left flank of the push toward Kweilin, Kwangsi province defense center. Street fighting of mounting intensity was reported at Changning.

Tonight's communique said that the Chinese still were holding the Japanese in check about six miles east of Foochow, in the invasion of maritime Fukien province.

[A Japanese broadcast told of a "highly successful" air attack against an air base at Liuchow, also in Kwangsi province.]

Allied Planes Again Hit Balikpapan Oil Center

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Friday, Oct. 6 (AP)—Liberator bombers hit the major Japanese oil center at Balikpapan, Borneo, with 40 tons of bombs in another heavy raid reported today by headquarters.

Nineteen Japanese fighters were downed and seven Liberators were lost in a one-hour air battle over the Borneo Tuesday.

Second In Four Days

This was the second heavy assault on the vital objective in four days. Sixty Liberators Saturday hit Balikpapan, termed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur as "the most lucrative strategic target in the Pacific."

In that assault three Liberators were lost and seven Japanese interceptors were shot down in an air battle lasting over an hour.

[Domei reported Tuesday's raid was made by "about 40 large enemy aircraft" and claimed six were shot down. It added the usual assertion that "only slight damage" was inflicted on the installations.]

Amboina Bases Raided

The Tuesday attack was the sixth raid of the war and the second in force on Balikpapan.

Heavy Allied bombers also smashed airdromes and a Japanese seaplane base on Amboina Island, unloading 110 tons of explosives.

Nine more Japanese freighters were sunk or damaged in aerial attacks on shipping in waters near the Philippines, Amboina and Ceram.

11 More Jap Ships Hit In Raids to Within 615 Miles of Tokyo

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NEW GUINEA, Oct. 5.—Ship-hunting Allied planes, which sank more than 200 ocean-going vessels in September, began October impressively by hitting 11 more as Tokyo radio spoke frankly of a shipping shortage.

A communique today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and one last night at Pearl Harbor by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported the sinking or severe damaging of 11 supply vessels in raids reaching to within 615 miles of Tokyo. The raids occurred during the first three days of this month.

A cargo ship was bombed Sunday near Chichi Jima in the Bonin Islands, the closest approach to Tokyo.

A 2,000-ton freighter-transport and three small freighters were sunk or severely damaged Monday night and early Tuesday off Dutch Celebes.

Four small freighters were destroyed near Amboina. A 1,000-ton vessel was sunk off the Soela Islands, between Celebes and Amboina.

A medium tanker was heavily hit off the Southern Philippines. Gen. MacArthur's planes, which also have been concentrating on Japanese oil sources in the East Indies, struck Monday night at Makassar, Dutch Celebes, spreading fires in an area of oil tanks.

Admiral Nimitz said Liberators made two raids in a row on Chichi Jima by going back after more shipping Monday, but he did not report the results. His communique last night also reported air strikes in the Kuriles, Marianas and Marshalls and against Marcus Island.

Mopping up operations by Marines and soldiers on Peleliu and Angaur in the Palaus continued with the total counted Japanese dead through Tuesday amounting to 10,987.

(Tokyo radio's acknowledgement of a shipping shortage was contained in a broadcast, recorded in the United States by the Federal Communications Commission, which said that shipping, plus flood and drought, had contributed to a food crisis.)

LATEST LIST COUNTS 1,022 YANKS KILLED

Jap Losses In Islands Are 11,043 Known Dead And 187 Prisoners

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 5 (AP)—A total of 336 marines and soldiers were killed, eight listed as missing and 1,707 wounded between September 25 and October 5 in fighting in the southern Palaus against 2,755 Japanese slain in the same period.

A communique today announced these totals which increased American casualties since the September 15 invasion to 7,417 as against 11,043 Japanese killed and 187 taken prisoner.

Of the latest figures, the American dead included 191 marines and 145 soldiers. Among the wounded, 1,011 were marines, 696 soldiers.

5,688 In Marine Division

The total Palau casualties of the First Marine Division are 771 killed, 4,650 wounded, 267 missing. The 81st Army Division losses altogether were 251 killed, 1,456 wounded, 13 missing.

Today's communique reported air attacks on a Japanese destroyer and a large cargo ship northwest of Iwo Jima, in the Volcano islands, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

Marine Corsairs using the captured airfield on Peleliu in the southern Palaus bombed the airstrip and motor concentrations on Babelthuap, large enemy-held island in the northern Palaus and warehouses at Koror October 4.

Press On Pocket On Ridge

Ground troops continued to apply heavy pressure on an enemy pocket at "Bloody Nose" ridge on Peleliu.

Liberator bombers strafed a small cargo ship near Onnakotan in the Kuriles October 3. Near Paramushiro, also in the Kuriles, two enemy planes intercepted unsuccessfully.

The strike at the cargo ship and destroyer off Iwo Jima occurred the same day.

Marcus, Pagan in the northern Marianas, Ponape in the eastern Carolines and Jaluit in the Marshalls also were raided.

AMERICANS SINK 31 MORE JAP SHIPS

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 5 —(AP) Japan's frank admission today of a shipping shortage was accentuated by destruction or damaging of 31 more ocean-going ships, including three warships, by American planes and submarines.

The Navy department reported American submarines operating in Pacific and Far Eastern waters have sunk 11 more ships, including three combatant ships, raising the total of Japanese vessels of all types sunk or damaged by submarine action to 824.

In his last two communiques, Gen. Douglas MacArthur listed a total of 19 freighters hit by Southwest Pacific bombers. Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported a cargo ship was blasted Sunday by Central Pacific aircraft at Chichi Jima, in the Bonin islands, 615 miles south of Tokyo.

In September Allied planes sank more than 200 ocean-going Nipponese ships.

The submarines' bag included an escort vessel, four small cargo ships, one destroyer, one cable ship, one medium cargo transport, one converted seaplane tender, one medium cargo ship and one larger tanker.

American planes bombed and hit a Japanese cargo ship at Chichi Jima in the Bonin islands, 615 miles from Tokyo, Sunday. A 2,000-ton freighter transport and three small freighters were sunk or severely damaged Monday night and early Tuesday off the Dutch Celebes while four small freighters were destroyed near Amboina. A 1,000-ton vessel was sunk off the Soela islands between Celebes and Amboina.

Chilean Cabinet Resigns

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 5 (AP)—The Chilean Cabinet has resigned. The resignations were announced today by the office of the Government's general secretary, which said they were prompted by the Ministers' desires to give President Juan Antonio Rios a free hand in organizing a Cabinet that would meet the approval of the radical party.

This party, to which Rios belongs, recently placed itself in opposition to the Administration.

It was announced that a new administrative or non-political Cabinet would be formed, possibly tomorrow.

Causes No Excitement

Inasmuch as the President's differences with his own radical party have extended over many months, the resignations caused no excitement or nervousness in the country.

In presenting their joint resignations, the Ministers told the President that "during more than a year we have collaborated with your excellency and been honored with your friendship and reiterations of confidence."

The Cabinet was formed August 31, 1943.

Business Cabinet Seen

It was generally believed that Rios would call one or two military leaders into the new Cabinet and fill the other posts with businessmen. He has said several times that he intended to avoid political quarrels and hoped to form a purely business Cabinet.

It was believed Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez, a non-political member of the Government, would be retained.

CAROL IS THOUGHT HOMEWARD BOUND

Former King Of Romania Says Good-By To Avila Camacho

Mexico City, Oct. 5 (AP)—Former King Carol of Romania is going home, officials said he told President Avila Camacho here today.

Earlier reports were that he was leaving Mexico, where he has spent three years of his four-year exile, to go to Brazil.

Carol and his party, including Mme. Elena Lupescu, Ernest Urdareanu, former court chamberlain, and Mrs. Urdareanu, who married her husband in Mexico City, will go first to Brazil and from there to Lisbon.

Carol told President Avila Camacho he may remain in Lisbon for "the proper moment" to return to Romania, where his son Mihai has ruled since Carol abdicated in his favor.

Bids Farewell

The former King bade farewell today to the Mexican President, thanked him for the hospitable asylum Mexico gave him when he came there in June, 1941, and invited Avila Camacho to visit Romania, where, Carol said, he "personally" would be his host.

He was accompanied to the Presidential palace by Foreign Secretary Ezequiel Padilla.

Sunday Carol will give a farewell party to his friends.

He expects to leave on the SS Tunuyan, due at Vera Cruz October 10 or October 11.

U. S.-Mexico Draft Accord

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 5 (AP).—An agreement between Mexico and the United States regarding military service by their respective nationals has been published in the official government bulletin. Citizens of one country living in the other will be subject to military service according to the laws of the country of residence.

R. C. A. F. to Do No More Recruiting

Ottawa, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The Government announced today there would be no more recruiting for the Royal Canadian Air Force, which now has a strength of 204,000 men. Recruiting had been scheduled to resume this month after a summer moratorium.

RELEASES UP TO WAR TREND

Stimson Denies Other Factors Enter Into Demobilization

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, asserted today that "no economic or political factors" enter into the army's demobilization plans and declared that there was no truth in reports the War Department would delay the program in order to ease the job situation.

The Secretary made this statement at his news conference after he was told there "has been some comment" to the effect that demobilization would be geared to the employment situation.

[Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, in his first Presidential campaign speech quoted the Director of Selective Service as saying that "we can keep people in the army about as cheaply as we could create an agency for them when they are out."]

Two Factors Seen

Stimson said the speed of demobilization would be governed by only two things—the military necessity of retaining sufficient troops for the war with Japan, and available shipping. Except for those two limitations, the army is arranging to muster out those eligible for discharge as quickly as possible after Germany is defeated, he said.

To another question—what were his views on the reported proposal of Secretary Morgenthau for reducing Germany to the status of a pastoral state—Stimson had "no comment to make."

Asked if the War and Navy Department boards investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster might have their reports ready soon, he replied that the army board "is still working very hard and I do not know when its report will be submitted."

Military Talk Increasing

In a statement, the Secretary said there was a "tendency toward a public letdown in precautions taken to safeguard military information." He added that such a trend was dangerous and must be curbed before "the shifting of armed forces on a vast scale" from Europe to Asia begins.

He reported army casualties from Pearl Harbor through last September 21, totaled 351,293. A separate tally for Italy, covering the period from the American landings through last September 25 reported 15,889 killed, 56,178 wounded and 10,044 missing. These figures did not include personnel losses. The latest navy casualty figure of 65,792 brought the total for the armed services to 417,085.

Army Total Up 13,550

Stimson's over-all army total was up 13,550 from his last report of two weeks ago for the period ended September 6. The 351,293 was divided as follows: 68,568 killed; 185,921 wounded; 45,488 missing and 51,316 prisoners. Two weeks ago the army total of 337,743 stood: 64,468 killed; 177,235 wounded; 47,315 missing and 48,725 prisoners.

The navy casualties, with comparisons for two weeks ago: Total 65,792 and 63,017; killed 25,963 and 25,152; wounded 25,588 and 23,867; missing 9,761 and 9,532; prisoners 4,480 and 4,466.

Stimson said that 84,379 of the army wounded have returned to duty.

Stimson Sees Hard Fighting

Declares Enemy Has Formed Defense Line, but Faces Certain Defeat.

Washington, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Secretary of War Stimson predicted today much hard fighting in Europe. "Although his capacity to do it seemed doubtful at one time, the enemy has been able to form a continuous defensive line along his borders," Mr. Stimson told a news conference.

"The enemy has been sufficiently successful in raising additional recruits and rehabilitating the withdrawing armies to have strength for initial defense of the west wall. The resistance has been vigorous and German organization and discipline have thus far held firm," he declared.

Mr. Stimson added that German garrison troops at French coastal cities have given up and said: "It is our stern task to make the enemy troops inside Germany just as conscious that they are isolated and beaten."

Despite the German mobilization, Mr. Stimson said, the Nazis "do not have the full man power needed for the defense job."

Referring to the landing of British units in Greece and Albania, Mr. Stimson said that "these new points of Allied activity in southeastern Europe give another sign of the decay and destruction of German power."

No Mobilization Delay.

Secretary of War Stimson termed absolutely untrue reports that the War Department would delay partial demobilization in order to ease the job situation.

The statement was in reply to a reporter's question that there had been some comment to the effect that the War Department would delay its partial demobilization in order to ease the job situation.

Mr. Stimson replied with an emphatic "No" and then added:

"There are only two things that will affect the speed of demobilization of the Army. One is the military necessity of retaining sufficient troops in service to quickly and permanently defeat Japan.

"The other is available shipping. Except for these two limitations, the Army is arranging to return those eligible for demobilization as quickly as possible.

"No economic or political factors enter into that planning."

Button Up Lips.

A dangerous public trend toward letting down precautions for guarding military information was reported by Mr. Stimson.

This, he said, will prove harmful to security in the forthcoming huge transfer of troops from Europe to Asia unless it is curbed.

"While great victories have been won in Europe, and our ultimate victory is certain, we still have a tremendous job ahead both in Europe and in the Pacific," Mr. Stimson said. "In future months we shall see shifting of armed forces on a vast scale to points where their blows will fall most heavily upon the enemy.

"Our efforts to conceal from the enemy the nature and destination of our troop movements and other military matters must be redoubled. The Army and Office of War Information have carried on a successful drive to prevent such disclosures in the past. Success in the future depends on public co-operation."

NAZIS RESORT TO EXTORTION

Ransom Demands Being Made Accompanied By Threats

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—With other sources of loot being dried up by Allied reconquest, plain extortion directed by the Nazis against moneyed persons in the United States and elsewhere is on the increase, official sources said today.

The ransom demands usually follow closely the pattern set by individual kidnapers, to this effect:

"If you want to save the life of X, it will cost you such-and-such amount, to be deposited by a certain date to the account of so-and-so (usually in Argentina or another neutral country)."

Volume On Increase

"Great numbers" of such demands have been made on people in the United States, an official said, and recently the volume has increased.

Such notes, however, are intercepted by the Allies and seldom reach their destination.

The individuals addressed are not told about them.

It would be against United States law to pay such a ransom even if a person wanted to do so.

Those Addressed

The demands are likely to be addressed to almost anyone who has (1) money and (2) relatives in Germany or occupied countries.

Many such ransom demands, addressed to persons in German-occupied lands, have been paid.

This is one of the favorite methods of German looting, the official said.

It also was learned that German ransom notes are being addressed to persons in Latin American countries.

NAZIS PREPARE FOR RAINY DAY

Embassies in Neutral Lands Connive to Save Riches.

Washington, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—German embassies in neutral countries were reported today to be loaded down with gold, securities and currency with large staffs working full time to put the stuff—including loot from occupied countries—under cover.

Some of the tricks being used by German leaders to conceal their financial resources were disclosed after the State Department announced that the United States and Britain have asked neutrals to deny the enemy protection for his loot.

Other Governments which took part in the United Nations monetary conference at Bretton Woods, N. H., last July are expected soon to put similar pressure on the neutral group, which includes Switzerland, Argentina, Sweden, Spain and Portugal.

Washington sources said:

Devious Methods Disclosed.

That the German ruling clique is salting away assets not only for its personal salvation but as a war chest to keep underground organizations going after the war.

That in concealing funds the Germans are extending their power in foreign industry. They are cleverly cloaking this control and it will be hard to trace.

That the German leaders may know they are beaten militarily but they have utterly no intention of losing the war economically.

That Germans recently arriving in neutral countries are cocky. They tell the local industrialists that the war won't last much longer, but that it doesn't matter as they boast that German industrialists were better off than were those in England and the United States after the last war and will be so again.

These Germans are claiming that citizens in neutral countries who co-operate with them in developing the industries of those countries will profit too.

Examples Are Given.

The following examples were given of how the Germans are preparing for their rainy day.

Gold, securities and currency are being stored in safe deposit boxes and vaults, usually under some non-German's name.

A citizen in a neutral country, with no riches and only a small income, suddenly buys a valuable wolfram mine.

A small new company springs up in an occupied land. German-made goods then are shipped into that territory. The purchasers are instructed not to pay the manufacturers directly but to send their money to the new company. Secretly the firm is German-controlled, therefore funds are built up outside Germany's borders.

An individual in one neutral nation is receiving coal shipments from Germany. He is given preferential treatment and in return agrees to pay commissions to the German shippers. But the commissions, instead of being sent to Germany now, are allowed to accumulate to the Germans' credit. The Germans expect to use them later, when the nations relax their financial controls.

Lord Keynes Reaches Washington For Parley

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—Lord Keynes, noted British economist, is in Washington and for the purpose of his visit, says the British Embassy, is to discuss lend lease and related matters with United States Government officials.

Keynes was the British representative at the United Nations monetary conference last July at Bretton Woods.

To Decorate Quezon's Tomb

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—Delegate Farrington, of Hawaii, will decorate the Arlington Cemetery tomb of the late President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippines in behalf of the Filipino people of Hawaii, at a ceremony tomorrow morning.

U. S. to Take Inquiries On Citizens in Paris

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP).—The American diplomatic mission in Paris is now prepared to receive inquiries about the whereabouts and welfare of American citizens believed to be in the Paris area.

The State Department, making the announcement today, said some delay must be anticipated in the responses to inquiries, which should be addressed to the State Department.

'CHUTISTS CARRY COOK STOVE NOW

Washington, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The Army is adding still another item to the 100 pounds of equipment each parachute trooper carries when he drops into enemy territory — a folding cook stove that weighs just seventeen ounces.

He can use it to brew coffee or heat food.

Quentin Roosevelt a Major

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP).—Captain Quentin Roosevelt, grandson of the late former President Theodore Roosevelt, has been promoted to the temporary rank of major, the War Department reported today. He entered the Army shortly after leaving Harvard in 1941. Major Roosevelt's home is in Oyster Bay, L. I.

TOTAL CASUALTIES 417,085 ON SEPT. 21

Washington, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Secretary of War Stimson reported today that Army casualties on all fronts were 351,293 on September 21. The latest Navy casualty figure of 65,792 brought the total for the armed services to 417,085.

The campaign in Italy, Secretary Stimson said, has cost 82,111 ground force casualties. Secretary Stimson's over-all Army total was up 13,553 from his last report of two weeks ago for the period ended on September 6.

The 351,293 was divided as follows: 68,468 killed; 185,921 wounded; 45,499 missing and 51,316 prisoners. Two weeks ago the Army total of 337,743 stood: 64,468 killed; 177,235 wounded; 47,315 missing and 48,725 prisoners.

The Navy casualties, with comparisons for two weeks ago: Total, 65,792 and 63,017; killed, 25,963 and 25,152; wounded, 25,588 and 23,867; missing, 9,761 and 9,532; prisoners, 4,480 and 4,466. Secretary Stimson said that 84,379 of the Army wounded have returned to duty.

The separate report on Italian campaign casualties did not include Air Force personnel losses. It showed 15,889 killed, 56,178 wounded and 10,044 missing as of September 25. The last previous Italian casualty report, covering the fighting through August 7, had listed 91,823, but this included air operations, as well as ground action.

Marines Release Boyd Borgstrom

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—Twenty-three-year-old Boyd Borgstrom can go back to his parents' farm to resume the chores he and four brothers abandoned to serve their country. Three of them died in action; a fourth is listed as missing.

The young marine private (first class) was given an honorable discharge today on special orders of Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, marine commandant, who heeded an appeal from Mr. and Mrs. Alben Borgstrom, of Trementon, Utah.

The parents were grief-stricken over a series of messages that told them that—Clyde, 28, also a marine, was killed in the Solomons last March; Le Roy, 30, an infantryman, died in Italy in May; Rolon, 19, met death on a bomber mission over Europe in August, and that Rulon, Rolon's twin, has been missing since last month.

Elden Borgstrom, 15, too young to fight, is still at home.

URGE WORLD BROADCASTING

Davis and Rockefeller Make Post-war Plea.

Washington, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, and Nelson Rockefeller, co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs, today urged continued American international broadcasting after the war for the distribution of American news and expansion of the good neighbor policy.

Testifying at a Federal Communications Commission hearing, Mr. Davis said that short wave broadcasts undoubtedly would be continued by other nations and added:

"It is generally held, I believe, that our national interest will be served by a much wider dissemination of American news throughout the world than was known before the war.

"Our press associations, which will have the responsibility for this when the war is over, and indeed increasingly so in its later stages, are making preparations for a wide extension of their services abroad.

Favors Morse Broadcasting.

"The OWI's wartime experience has shown conclusively that the most efficient and speedy method for transmission of news to a considerable number of overseas outlets simultaneously is round-the-clock Morse broadcasting—a conclusion evidently reached also by the British Reuters Agency, which has a powerful battery of transmitters used exclusively for distribution of news in Morse."

Mr. Davis said that he agreed with a Radio Technical Planning Board recommendation, which he said he understood would be submitted at the hearing, that fifty-six frequencies be allotted for American international broadcasting. He added that if it were found this was too many, some of the frequencies could be reassigned.

Offers Recommendation.

Mr. Rockefeller said that prior to Pearl Harbor short wave radio programs from Germany, Japan and England were far more numerous and more popular in Latin America than those received from the United States, but that as a result of expansions and improvements this country's broadcasts are proving as popular with the Latin Americans as those they receive from England.

He recommended that United States short wave broadcasts to Latin America after the war be at least equal in number and quality to those of any other nation.

6TH WAR LOAN TERMS GIVEN

Five Billion Of $14,000,000,000 Flotation For Individuals

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, announced today the terms of the securities to be sold in the Sixth War Loan, November 20-December 16, and declared the goal of $14,000,000,000 is "urgently needed."

He said the direct costs of the war since January 1 have exceeded $69,000,000,000 and "the critical phases of the war are still ahead of us, and for that reason we cannot expect any material decline in expenditures during the next several months."

He said the major emphasis throughout the drive will be placed on the quota of $5,000,000,000 for individuals.

List Of Securities

The securities to be sold are as follows:

Series E, F and G savings bonds; series C savings notes; 2½ per cent. bonds of 1966-71; 2 per cent. bonds of 1952-54; 1¼ per cent. notes of 1947; and ⅞ per cent. certificates of indebtedness.

The 2½ per cent. bonds will be dated December 1, 1944, due March 15, 1971, callable March 15, 1966. They will be in coupon or registered form at the option of the buyers in denominations from $500 to $1,000,000.

2% Bonds Described

The two per cent. bonds will be dated December 1, 1944, due December 15, 1954, callable December 15, 1952, and will be in either coupon or registered form and in the same denominations as the 2½ per cent. bonds.

The 1¼ per cent. notes will be dated December 1, 1944, due December 15, 1947, and will be issued in coupon form only, in denominations of $1,000 to $1,000,000.

The ⅞ per cent. certificates of indebtedness will be dated December 1, 1944, due December 1, 1945, and will be issued in coupon form only, in denominations of $1,000 to $1,000,000.

5 MILLION PEOPLE SEEN CHANGING JOBS AFTER V-E DAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP) A "restricted" report of the Office of War Information which came to light today predicts "that dislocations in civilian life after V-E day (Victory in Europe) are likely to be widespread and, in some quarters, serious."

The survey, assembled three weeks ago, predicts the end of hostilities in Europe "before or not long after the end of 1944," but OWI Director Elmer Davis said it now appears the date "might be more remote."

4,000 Copies Distributed

Davis refused to make public the report, although 4,000 copies already have been distributed to persons in the advertising business. He said information in it was obtained from government agencies on the promise that the facts would not be made public. OWI officials said portions of it which have been published are correct excerpts but may be somewhat out of date.

Subsequently, Davis issued a statement saying OWI would ask all the agencies which contributed data for the report to release OWI from the secrecy pledge. If all consent, OWI said, the document will be made available for publication.

The report cites a War Production board estimate that about 5,000,000 people will be changing jobs in the year following V-E day, that a "substantial portion" will be absorbed in the reconversion of industry, but that "in most cases a war job will continue to be the best job for at least six months after V-E Day."

"Very difficult situations may develop in some areas where the (arms) cutbacks will have the heaviest impact," said the survey, citing WPB sources.

No Uemployment Estimate

OWI said there were no accurate estimates of how many persons would be unemployed at any single time during the changeover from war to peacetime production.

The employment problem between the ends of the Germans and the Japanese phases of the war will not be "unmanageable" it was predicted, and the ratio of unemployment to total population may be no larger than in 1929.

Davis explained the report had been prepared for firms and agencies aiding OWI in advertising campaigns. Its intent, he said, was to help advertisers plan their future programs and to let them know which OWI promotion campaigns might be dropped and which continued.

OWI predicted an increase in inflationary pressures after V-E Day and even after victory over Japan, adding the price controls may continue for "quite some time."

"The necessity for raising vast sums from the public will continue practically undiminished for some time after V-E Day, according to the Treasury department," the survey said.

Other forecasts included easing of gasoline rationing "very gradually" over several months, and the end of passenger car tire rationing within three months after V-E Day.

Senate Inquiry In Washington Brawl Is Begun

Committee Calls Witnesses to Dispute of Naval Officers and Teamsters

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP).—Senator Theodore Francis Green, Democrat, of Rhode Island, chairman, said today his Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee has begun an investigation into the so-called "Battle of the Statler" which followed President Roosevelt's opening campaign address.

Two naval officers were involved in the Sept. 23 disturbance, which they ascribed to political questions from members of the American Federation of Labor Teamsters Union who had heard Mr. Roosevelt's speech at the hotel.

A formal statement from the Senate committee today said:

"As a result of widespread demands for a thorough Congressional investigation into charges that members of the Teamsters Union and two naval officers were involved in a fracas on the evening of Sept. 23 at the Statler Hotel here in Washington, Senator Theodore Francis Green, of Rhode Island, chairman of the Senate Campaign Expenditure Committee, announced today that his committee had launched a probe.

"Senator Green stated that the committee proposes to make a careful examination of the facts surrounding the alleged controversy and that investigators of the committee were conducting an examination of witnesses in Washington today."

TREASURY DENIES CHARGE BY DEWEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 — (AP) Joseph D. Nunan, Jr., commissioner of Internal Revenue, tonight denied that a Treasury agent entered the plant of the Lincoln Electric company and announced that a man who worked with his hands should not be paid as much as $5,000 a year.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in his radio address Tuesday night from Albany related such an incident.

Nunan issued a statement saying "The Treasury department has never had any such rule."

He said that evidently James F. Lincoln, president of the company, is "using" Mr. Dewey for the purpose of "trying" a tax dispute with the Bureau of Internal Revenue in the press.

Nunan said the dispute is not over wages paid the employes, but relates to the validity of certain deductions for annuity premiums and shares in a profit-sharing trust.

As for wages actually paid, Nunan said the government in its final notice to the company allowed "every dollar" of the wages as a legitimate operating expense.

With regard to the Treasury agent entering the plant, Nunan said Dewey was "evidently" quoting Lincoln, who Nunan said has accused Jesse F. Gregory, head of the central division of the technical staff, Cleveland, Ohio, of making such a statement.

"Mr. Gregory has denied making any such statement," Nunan said, "and is supported in his denial by two employes of his office present at the time he was supposed to have made the statement."

BACKING OF REDS IN CAMPAIGN IS DISAVOWED BY FDR

Says He 'Never Sought, Does Not Welcome' Communist Support.

SEES 'RED HERRING'

He Charges 'Fear Propaganda' to Opponents, Urges Large Vote.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 — (AP) President Roosevelt, saying political propagandists are dragging the "red herring" of Communism into the presidential campaign, declared tonight that he neither seeks nor welcomes the support of Communist or Fascist groups or individuals.

The cry of Communism, he said has been raised by "labor baiters and bigots and some politicians, who apply the term to every progressive social measure and to the views of every foreign-born citizen with whom they disagree."

"I have never sought, and I do not welcome the support of any person or group committed to Communism or Fascism," he declared.

"Or any other foreign ideology which would undermine the American system of government or the American system of free competitive enterprise and private property."

Republicans have asserted that the C.I.O. Political Action committee, backing the fourth term campaign, is peopled by Communists and subject to Communist influence.

Mr. Roosevelt, making his second avowed political address of the fourth term campaign, said his expression on Communism "does not in the least" interfere with our relationship with Russia."

The speech broadcast by CBS and MBC, was addressed primarily to Democratic party workers. Mr. Roosevelt urged a maximum voter turnout next month and in passing took an obvious slap at the poll tax election laws of some southern states.

Slap at Poll Tax

"The right to vote must be open to our citizens irrespective of race, color or creed — without tax or artificial restriction of any kind," he said. "The sooner we get to that basis of political equality the better it will be for the country as a whole."

Without mentioning his Republican opponent, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, by name, the President hit out at Dewey's repeated charge that the administration does not plan to bring service men home as quickly as possible because it fears they cannot be provided with jobs.

Mr. Roosevelt cited administration announcements on demobilization plans and added:

"It seems a pity that reckless words, based on unauthoritative sources, should be used to mislead and to weaken the morale of our men on fighting fronts and the members of their families here at home."

The President referred to a statement by Chairman Anderson (D-NM), of the House Committee on Campaign Expenditures that a document had been sent through the mails by 13 Republican congressmen under their legislative franking privilege without paying postage.

"This document says," the President continued, "that the 'red spector of Communism is stalking our country from East to West, from North to South' — the charge being that the Roosevelt administration is part of a gigantic plot to sell our democracy out to the Communists."

3 Million Copies

The President said more than 3,000,000 copies of the document were printed by the Government Printing Office and continued:

"This form of fear propaganda is not new among rabble rousers and fomenters of class hatred who seek to destroy democracy itself. It was used by Mussolini's Black Shirts and by Hitler's Brown Shirts. It has been used before in this country by the Silver Shirts and others on the lunatic fringe."

His speech swept over many things he said have been dragged into the campaign. Some of his opponents, he said, "try to build up bogies of dictatorship although they know that free elections will always protect our nation against any such possibilities."

This year's election, he said, is being held despite "the prophecies of some politicians and a few newspapers who have stated that it was my sinister purpose to abolish all elections."

Charging that many men and women in the armed services will be unable to vote—an obvious reference to his displeasure with the soldier vote bill passed by Congress last winter—the President said the public "will be able to fix the responsibility for this state of affairs."

"They know," he continued, "that during this past year there were politicians who quite openly worked to restrict the use of the ballot in this election, hoping selfishly for a small vote."

Then pleading for a maximum turnout at the polls, the President said he would be "very sorry" to win or lose this election "on a small turnout of voters."

Cites Demobilization Plan

Declaring that demobilization and reconversion program has been working for some time within the administration, the President said. "It seems a pity that reckless words based on unauthoritative sources, should be used to mislead and to weaken the morale of our men on the fighting fronts and the members of their families here at home."

"When our enemies are finally defeated," he declared, "we will want to see an end at the earliest practicable moment to wartime restrictions and wartime controls."

He said such wartime measures as price, rent control and rationing are temporary and declared no administration would "dare" to ask their continuance beyond the time they were essential to the war.

Turning to the international aspect of the campaign, Mr. Roosevelt said "we will continue to be united with our allies in a powerful world organization which is ready and able to keep the peace—if necessary by force.

"We owe it to our heritage of freedom, we owe it to our God, to devote the rest of our lives and all of our capabilities to the building of a solid durable structure of world peace."

Mr. Roosevelt referred indirectly to Governor Dewey's repeated assertion that the administration intends to keep men in uniform after the war by declaring that the War department has its own plan for speedy demobilization "based upon the wishes of the soldiers themselves." That plan was issued Sept. 6, he said.

On June 12, he said, War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes announced that the armed services are entitled to first consideration in any plan of demobilization and the President quoted these words of Byrnes:

"Their orderly release at the earliest possible moment consistent with the effective prosecution of the war has ever been the primary consideration of both the President and the joint chiefs of staff."

Urges Women to Vote

Mr. Roosevelt spoke from the White House on a radio program arranged by the Democratic National committee. In asking for a heavy registration and vote next month, he expecially urged women to use their ballots, declaring that because of their war work and sacrifices "they have become more than ever a very integral part of our national effort."

Women have a double obligation, he said, "to express by their votes what I know to be their keen interest in the affairs of government—their obligation to themselves as citizens, and their obligation to their fighting husbands, sons, brothers and sweethearts."

Mr. Roosevelt said the right to vote must be open to all citizens regardless of race, color or creed and "without tax or artificial restriction of any kind. The sooner we get to that basis of political equality the better it will be for the country as a whole," he added.

The administration which must cope with the difficult problems of winning the war, and of peace and reconstruction "should be chosen by a clear majority of all the people and not a part of the people."

"It is, therefore, important that we here at home must not be slackers on registration or election day."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 — (AP) Following is the text of President Roosevelt's address tonight:

My fellow Americans — I am speaking to you tonight from the White House. I am speaking particularly on behalf of those Americans who, regardless of party, very much hope that there will be recorded a large registration and a large vote this fall. I know from personal experience how effective precinct workers of all parties throughout the nation can be in assuring a large vote.

We are holding a National election despite all the prophecies of some politicians and a few newspapers who have stated, time and again in the past, that it was my sinister purpose to abolish all elections and to deprive the American people of the right to vote.

Will Always Have Elections

These same people, caring more for material riches than human rights, try to build up bogies of dictatorship in this republic, although they know that free elections will always protect our nation against any such possibility.

Nobody will ever deprive the American people of the right to vote except the American people themselves — and the only way they could do that is by not voting.

The continuing health and vigor of our Democratic system depends on the public spirit and devotion of its citizens which find expression in the ballot box.

Every man and every woman in this nation — regardless of party — who have the right to register and to vote, and the opportunity to register and to vote, have also the sacred obligation to register and to vote. For the free and secret ballot is the real keystone of our American constitutional system.

U. S. at Peak of Vitality

The American government has survived and prospered for more than a century and a half, and it is now at the highest peak of its vitality. This is primarily because when the American people want a change of government — even when they merely want "new faces" — they can raise the old electioneering battle cry of "throw the rascals out."

It is true that there are many undemocratic defects in voting laws in the various states; and some of these produce injustices which prevent a full and free expression of public opinion.

The right to vote must be open to our citizens irrespective of race, color or creed — without tax or artificial restriction of any kind. The sooner we get to that basis of political equality, the better it will be for the country as a whole.

Candidates in every part of the United States are now engaged in running for office.

All Desire to Win

All of us are actuated by a normal desire to win. But speaking personally, I should be very sorry to be elected president of the United States on a small turnout of voters. And by the same token, if I were to be defeated, I should be much happier to be defeated in a large outpouring of voters. Then there could not be any question of doubt in anybody's mind as to which way the masses of the American people wanted this election to go.

The free and full exercise of our sacred right and duty to vote is more important than the personal hopes or ambitions of any candidate for any office in the land.

The administration which must cope with the difficult problems of winning the war, and of peace and reconstruction should be chosen by a clear majority of all the people and not a part of the people.

In the election of 1920 — one of the most fateful elections in our history — only 49 per cent of the potential voters actually voted.

Thus, more than one half of American voters failed to do their basic duty as citizens.

30.24 — 19351

Percentage Increases

We can be gratified that in recent years the percentage of potential voters in national elections who actually voted has been steadily going up.

In 1940, it was sixty-two and a half per cent.

But that still is not nearly good enough.

This year for many millions of our young men in the armed forces and the Merchant Marine and similar services, it will be difficult in many cases — and impossible in some cases —to register and vote.

I think the people will be able to fix the responsibility for this state of affairs, for they know that during this past year there were politicians who quite openly worked to restrict the use of the ballot in this election, hoping selfishly for a small vote.

It is, therefore, all the more important that we here at home must not be slackers on registration day or electon day.

I wish to make a special appeal to the women of the nation to exercise their right to vote. Women have taken an active part in this war in many ways — in uniform, in plants and ship yards, in offices and stores and hospitals, on farms and on railroads and buses — that they have become more than ever a very integral part of our national effort.

Many Face Difficulties

I know how difficult it is, especially for the many millions of women now employed, to get away to register and vote. Many of them have to manage their households as well as their jobs. A grateful nation remembers that.

But all women whether employed directly in war jobs or not—women of all parties and those not enrolled in any party—this year have a double obligation to express by their votes what I know to be their keen interest in the affairs of government — their obligation to themselves as citizens, and their obligation to their fighting husbands, sons, brothers and sweethearts.

War Not Won Yet

It may sound to you repetitious on my part but it is my plain duty to reiterate to you that this war for the preservation of our civilization is not won yet.

In the war our forces and those of our Allies are steadily, relentlessly carrying the, attack to the enemy.

The Allied armies under General Eisenhower have waged during the past four months one of the most brilliant campaigns in military history—a campaign which has carried us from the beaches of Normandy and of southern France into the frontiers of Germany itself.

In the Pacific, our naval task forces have advanced to attack the Japanese, more than five thousand miles west of Pearl Harbor.

But German and Japanese resistance remains as determined—as fanatical—as ever.

The guns of Hitler's Gestapo are silencing those German officers who have sense enough to know that every day that the fighting continues means that much more ruin and destruction for their beaten country. We shall have to fight our way across the Rhine—we may have to fight every inch of the way to Berlin.

But we Americans and our British and Russian and French and Polish allies—all the massed forces of the United Nations—will not stop short of our final goal.

Must Make U. S. Prosperous

Nor will all of our goals have been achieved when the shooting stops. We must be able to present to our returning heroes an America which is stronger and more prosperous, more deeply devoted to the ways of democracy, than ever before.

"The land of opportunity"—that's what our forefathers called this country. By God's grace, it must always be the land of opportunity for the individual citizen — ever broader opportunity.

We have fought our way out of economic crisis — we are fighting our way through the bitterest of all wars—and our fighting men and women—our plain, everyday citizens—have a right to enjoy the fruits of victory.

Soldiers To Return Quickly

Of course all of us who have sons on active service overseas want to have our boys come home at the earliest possible moment consistent with our national safety. And they will come home and be returned to civilian life at the earliest possible moment consistent with our national safety.

The record is clear on this matter and dates back many months.

Bills to provide a national program for demobilization and postwar adjustment were introduced by Senator George and Senator Murray last February.

This legislation, since May 20, 1944, has contained the following provision: "The War and Navy departments shall not retain persons in the armed forces for the purpose of preventing unemployment or awaiting opportunities for employment."

This provision was approved by the War department and by this administration.

Seek Early Return

On June twelfth, the Director of War Mobilization, Justice Byrnes, made a public statement in behalf of this bill. He said: "Our fighting men are entitled to first consideration in any plan of demobilization. Their orderly release at the earliest possible moment consistent with the effective prosecution of the war has ever been the primary consideration of both the President and the joint chiefs of staff."

On September sixth the War department issued its plan for speedy demobilization, based upon the wishes of the soldiers themselves.

The George bill has been passed by the Congress, signed by me, and is now the law.

That law is there, for all Americans to read—and you do not need legal training to understand it.

It seems a pity that reckless words, based on unauthoritative sources, should be used to mislead and to weaken the morale of our men on the fighting fronts and the members of their families here at home.

When our enemies are finally defeated, we all want to see an end at the earliest practicable moment to wartime restrictions and wartime controls.

Bills Have Time Limits

Strict provisions for the ending of these inconveniences have been written into our wartime laws. Those who fear that wartime measures, like price and rent control and rationing, for example, might be continued indefinitely into peacetime should examine these laws. They will find that they are all temporary—to expire either at an early fixed date, or at the end of the war, or six months after the war, or sooner if the Congress or the President so determines.

The American people do not need, and no National administration would dare to ask them, to tolerate any indefinite continuance in peacetime of the controls essential in war time.

The power of the will of the American people expressed through the free ballot is the surest protection against the weakening of our democracy by "regimentation" or by any alien doctrines.

It is a source of regret to all decent Americans that some political propagandists are now dragging red herrings across the trail of this national election.

Blasts Use of 'Communism'

For example, labor baiters and bigots and some politicians use the term "Communism" loosely, and apply it to every progressive social measure and to the views of every foreign-born citizen with whom they disagree.

They forget that we in the United States are all descended from immigrants (all except the Indians); and there is no better proof of that fact than the heroic names on our casualty lists.

I have just been looking at a statement by Representative Anderson, chairman of the House Committee on Campaign expenditures, about a document recently sent free, through the mails, by one senator and twelve representatives —all of them Republicans. They evidently thought highly of this document, for they had more than three million copies printed by the government printing office—requiring more than eighteen tons of scarce and expensive paper—and sent them through the mails all over the country at the taxpayers' expense.

Now—let us look at this document to see what made it so important to thirteen Republican leaders at this stage of the war when many millions of our men are fighting for freedom.

Paraphrases Document

Well—this document says that the "red spectre of Communism is stalking our country from east to west, from north to south"—the charge being that the Roosevelt administration is part of a gigantic plot to sell our democracy out to the Communists.

This form of fear propaganda is not new among rabble rousers and fomenters of class hatred—who seek to destroy democracy itself. It was used by Mussolini's Black Shirts and by Hitler's Brown Shirts and others on the lunatic fringe. But the sound and democratic instincts of the American people rebel against its use, particularly by their own Congressmen —and at the taxpayers' expense.

I have never sought, and I do not welcome the support of any person or group committed to Communism, or Fascism, or any other foreign ideology which would undermine the American system of government or the American system of free competitive enterprise and private property.

That does not in the least interfere with the firm and friendly relationship which this nation has in this war, and will, I hope, continue to have with the Soviet Union. The kind of economy that suits the Russian people is their own affair. The American people are glad and proud to be allied with the gallant people of Russia, not only in winning this war but in laying the foundations for the world peace which will follow the war—and in keeping that peace.

Met Challenge by U. S.

We have seen our civilization in deadly peril. We successfully met the challenge, due to the steadfastness of our Allies, to the aid we were able to give to our Allies, and to the unprecedented outpouring of American manpower, American productivity and American ingenuity—and to the magnificent courage and enterprise of our fighting men and our military leadership.

What is now being won in battle must not be lost by lack of vision or by lack of faith or by division among ourselves and our Allies.

We must and we will continue to be united with our Allies in a powerful world organization which is ready and able to keep the peace—if necessary by force.

To provide that assurance of international security is the policy, the effort and the obligation of this administration.

We owe it to our posterity, we owe it to our heritage of freedom, we owe it to our God, to devote the rest of our lives and all of our capabilities to the building of a solid durable structure of world peace.

AMERICANS GET A LOT OF ERSATZ

Miss Charl Williams of the National Education Association, speaking at the time said, "No one can compete with Fala at this time. I am going to give the floor to this distinguished visitor."

The educators promptly crowded around the White House pet and Mrs. Roosevelt said: "I'm not sure I can make him jump. I'll try." She did and Fala jumped, and sat up in response to her commands. He left the room in another burst of applause.

Fala Is In Again

Makes His First Public Appearance Since President's Speech on Sept. 23.

Washington, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Fala today made his first public appearance since the President's September 23 speech in which Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't mind being picked on himself but he did mind people picking on his dog.

It happened at the first White House conference on rural education.

Austin R. Meadows of Montgomery, Ala., and the Alabama State Department of Education started a report to the conference by saying his mission in Washington was to say hello to Fala from the folks who sent him here from Alabama. He added he was making public apology to his folks back home for not having seen Fala in the two days he had been here.

At that point, Mrs. Roosevelt who has attended all sessions of the conference, disappeared from the room. She returned shortly and in a few minutes Fala walked into the room to receive applause comparable to that accorded the President yesterday when he appeared through the same doors of the east room to address the delegates.

FOOD DURING WAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—(AP) Americans have been getting a lot of ersatz food in this war, mostly illegal, including even an ersatz whiff — asafedita substituted for garlic.

The report was made to the American Public Health association today by W. R. M. Wharton, chief, eastern district, U. S. food and drug administration, New York city, in a talk on war time food and drug adulteration.

He said that ground pecan shells, flavored with essential oils, became pure spices. Shelled pumpkin seeds were sold as almonds, and mixed with nuts were sold as salted nuts.

The report contained the following statements:

Grated carrots furnished a considerable percentage of the alleged fruit in fresh preserves.

Puffed wheat and soy beans were substituted for peanuts in peanut brittle. A cereal formed to the appearance of cocoanut shreds was used as topping for cocoanut bars.

Ground cocoa residue, largely cocoa shells, appeared in cakes and candy as a substitute for cocoa.

Mineral oil made its appearance in chocolate ice cream coatings, candy and popped corn. Wharton noted the antagonism of mineral oil to the body's absorption of vitamins A and D.

Alleged pure olive oil, imported from countries lacking tight adulteration controls, was largely adulterated with cottonseed and other less expensive edible oils.

Enough diethylene glycol to kill two million people a year was offered by a manufacturer as a substitute for glycerine in druge, medicines, foods, cosmetics and lotions. The administration caught it before harm was done and the manufacturer paid a $3,000 fine.

Nearly one million cases of Spanish and Portuguese brandy, itself perfectly good, was detained due to defective bottles which spread glass slivers through the drinks.

Lead tubes, substituted for tin, caused a chemical change that rendered a birth control preparation worthless.

Inferior rubber stoppers caused chemical changes in medicines with serious damage to patients.

Some people who bought sulfathiazole tablets, as they supposed, were put to sleep for a week, because the stuff was really phenobarbital, an error blamed on wartime working conditions in the factory which produced the drugs.

'F. D. R. Victory Bandwagon,' A Musical, Faces Boston Ban

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—The controversial "F. D. R. Victory Bandwagon,' a musical revue, went through its dress rehearsal here today undeterred by a demand of the Massachusetts Women's Political Club that it be banned in Boston.

Miss Margaret Birmingham, club president, protested to Boston city officials that the revue "insultingly" satirized Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee.

The show, with a cast of nine whites and eight Negroes, marks the initial producing venture of Edward Royce, a Manhattan art dealer.

Members of the cast include Will Geer, Bernie Hern, Billy Korff, Pianist Mary Lou Williams and various other musicians and dancers. Some of the acts are devoted to music and humor without political significance.

Theme Friendly To Democrats

Although the show's theme is friendly to the Democratic party and the Political Action Committee, Royce said that neither they nor any other organizations were connected with the management or production.

Local units of the party and of the PAC have arranged, however, to buy blocks of tickets in some of the 17 cities in which the show is scheduled to appear, said Sam Moscovitz, general manager of the production.

Moscovitz said any organization could sponsor a performance of the show by paying a stipulated sum to Royce, who in turn pays the salaries of the players and other expenses. The price per performance, Moscovitz added, ranged around $1,250, depending on traveling expenses.

At the Governor's office, it was said while Dewey had heard the radio talk he had not yet decided how or when he would reply to issues Mr. Roosevelt raised in a 20-minute address to Democratic rallies.

The Republican presidential nominee's first opportunity for a reply may come when he speaks Saturday night at Charleston, W. Va.

LAUDS JET PLANES

Buffalo, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—"Jet propulsion will completely revolutionize the aviation industry after the war," Lawrence D. Bell, president of Bell Aircraft Corporation, predicts.

Within five years, jet-propelled planes will definitely eliminate all other types of fighter aircraft, and sometime in the future jet propulsion will be used in bombers, transports and helicopters, Mr. Bell told newspaper men yesterday. The company manufactures the P-59A jet Airacomet.

Newspaper men saw the propellerless Airacomet during a routine test flight. The plane, capable of high speeds and high altitudes, has twin engines with two air intake vents, one on each side of the fuselage and below the wing.

DEWEY HEARS FDR TALK, MAY ANSWER SATURDAY

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 5—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey remained silent tonight on President Roosevelt's assertion the Republicans had brought a "red herring" of Communism into the political campaign.

There were unofficial indications, however, he would answer the President either in a forthcoming speech or in a news conference.

'Mechanical-Brain' Gunsight Is Announced

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 5 (AP)—Manufacture of a "mechanical-brain" gunsight which electrically directs combat plane machine-gun fire so as to assure bull's-eye accuracy was announced today by Eastman Kodak Company.

The pilot need only dial the type of plane his enemy is flying, the range, the air speed and altitude and keep the enemy target within a gyro-controlled circle, the company's statement said, as long as the plane remains in the ring, the pilot will register a bull's-eye despite the angle of attack.

The company said the device, adapted for manufacture in this country from British design, automatically computes the effects of gravity and air density on the bullet, relative motion of the target and other factors which previously the pilot had to estimate.

Philadelphia Jurors Hit Union Methods in 30 Transit Indictments

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—A Federal grand jury, indicting 30 men in connection with Philadelphia's six-day transportation strike in August, observed yesterday that "we have made a long step away from the company union which might, with the right motivation on both sides, have seemed the ideal method of relations in our industrial life."

After saying there had been strife between four different labor organizations among Philadelphia Transportation Co. employes, "but chiefly between members of the former employes' union and of the new CIO Transport Workers' Union," the jury's report added:

"We are interested also to raise the question whether our country can safely afford to leave wide open the way for a great organization to develop in the United States a strong central power and government reaching its tentacles into every community of any size in the land and in its principles of action seemingly subversive of the principles first declared and later constituted in this city of Philadelphia as the basis of the life and government of our great Republic."

Resentment Chief Cause.

While the report stated that, "so far as there was flame or fire in the strike, the chief fuel therefor came from resentment over the upgrading of Negroes to 'platform' positions," it added that "the great majority of the employes were not interested to strike on this basis."

The list of 30 men named in the single indictment, all employes of the PTC, was headed by the names of James H. McMenamin, William C. Dixey, jr., Frank P. Carney and Frank Anthony Thompson, who were arrested during the strike on charges of violating the War Labor Disputes Act, the same charge as that in the indictment.

McMenamin, Carney and Thompson were members of the old PRT Employes' Association (independent), which was replaced as collective bargaining agent by the TWU. Dixey's affiliation is not known, but the TWU said he is not a member of that union. The union affiliation of the other 26 named in the indictment could not be ascertained immediately.

Mrs. Marian C. Scott, wife of Representative Scott, Republican, of Pennsylvania and a member of the grand jury, said in an interview after the findings had been presented that, in her opinion, the "CIO and the Government directive (for the upgrading of colored employes) caused the strike."

Agrees "in Principle" With FEPC.

Mrs. Scott said she agreed with the principles embodied in the upgrading directive, which was issued by the President's Fair Employment Practices Committee, but thought the FEPC could have handled the situation differently.

"The lower you go in the social scale, the more prejudice there is," she said, without explaining the remark. She suggested that the FEPC directive might have been withdrawn or suspended temporarily after the strike developed.

James J. Fitzsimon, international vice president of the Transport Workers' Union, later issued a statement saying in part:

"The report of the grand jury, coupled with an indictment only of PTC employes, shows beyond doubt that it was dominated by reactionary, partisan, Republican thinking."

A PTC spokesman said some of the eight colored persons involved in the controversy are now operating streetcars, but he did not know how many.

Better News Coverage Of Pacific War Pledged

Navy and O. W. I. Setting Up System to Speed Stories

DETROIT, Oct. 5 (AP).—The accelerating war in Japan's front yard will be reported "quickly and realistically" to Americans at home through new arrangements made by the Navy and Office of War Information, George W. Healy, O. W. I. domestic director, reported today.

Acknowledging the validity of front-line correspondents' complaints that Pearl Harbor reports on the Guam and Saipan fighting failed to picture fully the deadly struggles that took place, Healy told a United War Fund campaign meeting that past coverage in the Pacific "left something to be desired."

The Navy now, he said, will make it possible for correspondents to report action at sea from the decks of flagships, and a fast courier-plane system is being set up to rush eyewitness stories to a transmitting base on Guam.

"Instead of being carried by plane to Pearl Harbor, once an outpost in the war but now far away from the scene of action, the Navy has arranged for news stories to be censored on the spot for speedy transmission by the Guam radio to the United States," Mr. Healy asserted.

DETROIT WORKERS CALL OFF STRIKE

DETROIT, Oct. 5 — (AP) Maintenance workers in Detroit area war plants—the men who keep machinery and assembly lines functioning—called off their strike today after a high union executive told them "you can't pressure the War Labor board into action through strikes."

The first of 8,000 men who strike over wage issues with the WLB had stopped or retarded the production of war materiel in 33 factories and made approximately 50,000 workers idle began returning to their jobs on afternoon shifts.

Representatives of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) and of the affected plants said that output, interrupted with the start of the strike yesterday, should be back to normal tomorrow. Seriously affected, according to management spokesmen, was the production of aircraft engines, bomber plane sub-assemblies, anti-aircraft guns, truck and tank parts and other materiel.

It was Walter P. Reuther, vice-president of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. and chairman of the Skilled Trades division of the union, who told the strikers the WLB would not listen to their wage contentions as long as they remained away from their jobs. He also condemned the strike, which threatened to spread into 300 Detroit area war factories, as a violation of the union no-strike pledge. At the same time he reported that the WLB had promised to "consider the merits of a union proposal for appointment of a WLB fact-finding panel when the strikers return."

The strikers are members of the maintenance, construction and powerhouse council, U.A.W.-C.I.O., of whom there are 38,000 in the Detroit area factories. A committee representing the council was in Washington to present a request for a fact-finding panel to the WLB when the strike, previously ordered deferred, began yesterday.

Fighting Duck Mascot Of Marines Comes Home

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 5 (AP)—Siwash, the duck, fighting mascot of the Second Marine Division, is home.

The conquering duck after breezing through all opposition it met on Tarawa, Saipan and Tinian, arrived here with Corporal Francis J. Fagan, Chicago, and 800 veterans of Pacific campaigns.

The duck is admired by marines as the bird which acquired prominence by routing a Japanese rooster on Tarawa a day after the invasion.

"The rooster didn't have a chance," Fagan related today. "Siwash whipped him and chased him 30 feet up the beach."

BRICKER PRAISES VALOR OF TROOPS ON WORLD FRONTS

ENROUTE WITH BRICKER, Oct. 5 — (AP) Gov. John W. Bricker, touring Iowa today, departed from a discussion of agricultural problems to express his ire about people who praise American allies while forgetting our own soldiers.

The Republican candidate for Vice President, speaking before a crowd that clustered about the rear platform of his special train, at Burlington, declared:

"I am so disgusted with people who constantly are praising our Allies and forgetting our own soldiers."

He quickly added that he was not detracting "from the valor" of those nationals fighting alongside the United States, remarking that Britain "has stood in the gap in the dangerous days" and "Russia has gallantly fought and sacrificed millions of lives".

But, the Ohio Governor added as his listeners cheered, "throughout it all we have helped them and "while our Allies may be fighting on limited sectors — maybe 500 miles, maybe 1,000 miles — the American soldier and sailor and marine fights on every battlefield of the world where liberty is being assailed."

Bricker wound up his heavy day, which included nine speeches in Iowa, with an address tonight in Rock Island, Ill., where he asserted "discord and incompetence" are the rule in the administration of the National Labor Relations act.

Referring to the report of a congressional committee which investigated from 1939 to 1941 administration of the act by the National Labor Relations board, he said:

"That report contains findings which are deeply shocking to every American who reads it.

"The congressional committee found that the New Deal board was unfair and biased in its conduct, its decisions and its interpretation of the law. It was grossly partisan in its attitude toward certain labor unions, and most deplorably biased in its relations to employers and employes. Board members were guilty of radical tendencies and entirely lacked judicial temperament."

Bricker declared that the whole field of labor relations "must be resurveyed in the interest of orderly business justice and humanity."

He said that if Thomas E. Dewey were elected President, an able Secretary of Labor would be appointed from the ranks of labor and the functions of the Department of Labor now scattered among a confusion of agencies will be restored to it."

WITH THE FIRST U.S.ARMY, OCT 5-(AP)-AMERICAN TANKS ADVANCING MORE THAN A MILE CAPTURED BEGGENDORF TODAY.

BEGGENDORF (CORRECT) IS THREE MILES INSIDE GERMAN TERRITORY FROM THE NEAREST TIP OF THE DUTCH BORDER, AND ITS CAPTURE PLACED AMERICAN FORCES ACROSS THE AACHEN-GEILENKIRCHEN HIGHWAY AND WITHIN A MILE OF THE MAIN HIGHWAY TO GLADBACH.

FIERCE BATTLES DEVELOPED AS THE TANK COLUMN SMASHED THROUGH WHAT FRONT LINE TROOPS DESCRIBED AS THE HEAVIEST GERMAN ARTILLERY BARRAGE OF THE EUROPEAN CAMPAIGN.

AFTER CAPTURING BEGGENDORF THE AMERICAN TANKS FANNED OUT TO EXPLOIT A BREAKTHROUGH.

TANKS REACHED THE AREA BEHIND THE MOST PERMANENT FORTIFICATIONS OF THE WEST WALL AND APPROACHED THE NAZIS' NEW EARTHWORKS, WHICH IN THEMSELVES ARE A FORMIDABLE BARRIER.

THE CAPTURE OF BEGGENDORF BROKE THE BACK OF AN ABORTIVE ATTEMPT BY THE GERMANS TO MAKE THE TOWN THE SOUTHERN ANCHOR OF A SHORT SECOND DEFENSE LINE BACKSTOPPING THE RUPTURED SIEGFRIED LINE. THE NORTHERN HINGE OF THIS LINE WAS AT WAURICHEN, A LITTLE OVER TWO MILES TO THE NORTH. THE GERMANS HAD BEEN UNABLE TO MAN IT FULLY.

THE NEW SURGE CAME AFTER AMERICAN TANKS AND INFANTRY HAD BEATEN BACK THREE COUNTERTHRUSTS BY ENEMY ARMOR. SHERMAN TANKS KNOCKED OFF A NUMBER OF ENEMY TANKS AND AMERICAN ARTILLERY POLISHED OFF THREE IN ONE CLASH.

LOW GRAY CLOUDS UNDER COLD SKIES GROUNDED ALLIED AIR SUPPORT.

THE GERMANS WERE BATTLING DESPERATELY TO PREVENT THEIR ENTIRE LINE NORTH OF AACHEN FROM CRUMBLING.

WE NOW ARE DEFINITELY THROUGH THE MAIN FORTIFICATIONS, AND THE ENEMY IS TRYING TO STOP US WITH MOBILE GUNS INSTEAD OF FIXED CONCRETE DEFENSES.

THE GERMANS HAD TRIED TO USE BEGGENDORF AS A TANK HARBOR AND AMBUSH POINT, AND HAD SENT OUT CIVILIANS TO TRY TO GET AMERICAN ARTILLERYMEN TO WITHHOLD THEIR FIRE ON THE SPURIOUS GROUNDS THAT IT HAD NO MILITARY INSTALLATIONS.

IT WAS HEAVILY BOMBARDED BY BOTH SIDES.

"IN ADDITION TO NEWLY DUG-IN POSITIONS MADE WITH CIVILIAN LABOR THE ENEMY IS USING HUGE SLAG PILES AS A SUPPLEMENTARY DEFENSE LINE," A STAFF OFFICER SAID. "OUR COMMANDING GENERAL CALLS THIS AREA 'LITTLE PITTSBURGH.'"

"THE GERMANS FOUGHT LIKE HELL IN THOSE PILLBOXES WHILE WE WERE IN FRONT OF THEM, BUT AS SOON AS WE BEGAN BUMPING THEM FROM THE REAR THEY GAVE UP. THEY DON'T LIKE ANYBODY BEHIND THEM."

THE OFFICER SAID THAT DESPITE UNFAVORABLE WEATHER WHICH ROBBED THE TANK OFFENSIVE OF AIR SUPPORT, THE GROUND WAS SLOWLY DRYING, ENABLING THE ARMOR TO ATTACK CROSS-COUNTRY INSTEAD OF DOWN THE ROADS.

THE FIRST ARMY ATTACK SWEPT THROUGH THE FOURTH DAY WITH FIGHTING MOUNTING IN BITTERNESS. NEVER HAVE THE GERMANS CONCENTRATED SO MUCH ARTILLERY IN ONE SECTOR OF THIS FRONT. GUNS THUNDER CONTIUOUSLY.

THE GERMANS ARE MAKING A RUBBLE HEAP OF THEIR OWN TOWN OF UBACH.

TANKS, GUNS, INFANTRY AND SUPPLIES ARE POURING THROUGH THE GAP IN THE SIEGFRIED LINE AND PUTTING MOUNTING PRESSURE ON THE ENEMY. THE GERMANS ARE FRANTICALLY RUSHING UP EVERY RESERVE TO BE FOUND AND TRYING TO CHECK THE ADVANCE.

ENEMY TROOPS ARE BEING BROUGHT FROM PILLBOXES NORTH AND SOUTH OF THE BREAKTHROUGH GAP AND THROWN INTO THE BATTLE RAGING NORTHEAST AND SOUTH OF UBACH.

THE ENEMY IS SUFFERING HEAVY LOSSES IN THROWING IN NUMEROUS SMALL COUNTERATTACKS.

LAST NIGHT, AMERICAN ARTILLERY GAVE THE GERMANS THERE "SERENADES" IN AWFUL, THUNDEROUS BLASTS. THEY TURNED EVERY GUN FROM 75-MILLIMETERS TO BIG 240-MMS. ON ONE AREA.

AND WHEN MAJOR DWIGHT MCREYNOLDS OF CLEVELAND, TENN., LED HIS MEN FORWARD SOUTH OF UBACH TO STORM HEIGHTS JUST EAST OF HERBACH, HE RADIOED BACK TO THE COMMAND POST:

"THERE ARE SO MANY DEAD GERMANS ON THE ROAD THAT IT IS TOUGH GOING."

LT.COL.SAMUEL MCDOWELL, ROCKY POINT, N.C., HAD CALLED MCREYNOLDS TO ASK WHAT WAS DELAYING HIS ADVANCE AND MCREYNOLDS REPLIED PROMPTLY:

"NOT A DAMNED THING BUT DEAD GERMANS ON THE ROAD. I'LL GET MOVING WHEN I GET THEM OUT OF THE WAY."

THE TOUGHEST FIGHTING CENTERED AROUND A HILL EAST OF HERBACH--A HEIGHT LOOKING DOWN ON THE TOWN AND COMMANDING THE APPROACHES THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE FROM RIMBERG.

BUT MCREYNOLDS' MEN STORMED UP THE HILL AND SMASHED THREE PILLBOXES. A WHITE FLAG FLUTTERED FROM A FOURTH.

THE SLOW, BITTERLY CONTESTED ADVANCE OF ARMOR AND INFANTRY THREATENED THE TOWN OF BEGGENDORF, TWO MILES EAST OF UBACH.

IN THE EARLY AFTERNOON, THE AMERICANS KNOCKED OUT 55 PILLBOXES AS THE DRIVE NEARED THE MAIN ROAD RUNNING NORTH FROM BESIEGED AACHEN.

AN OVERCAST SKY AND FOG CLINGING TO THE COUNTRYSIDE KEPT THE AIR FORCES FROM THROWING IN BOMBERS TO SUPPORT THE INFANTRY, TANKS AND ARTILLERY. BECAUSE OF THIS, THE ENEMY HAS BEEN ABLE TO MOVE RESERVES FREELY DURING THE DAY AND SHIFT POSITIONS WITHOUT FEAR OF AERIAL HARRASSMENT.

THE FEATURE OF THE ENEMY DEFENSE HAS BEEN A HEAVY CONCENTRATION OF ARTILLERY, INCLUDING SOME 240-MM GUNS. TROOPS SAY IT IS THE HEAVIEST THEY HAVE EXPERIENCED, INCLUDING THE CAMPAIGNS OF NORTH AFRICA AND SICILY.

FROM MY OWN EXPERIENCE, I KNOW THE GERMAN ARTILLERY IS HEAVIER THAN ANY OF THE NAZI CONCENTRATIONS IN FIVE MONTHS OF THE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN.

SOUTH OF RIMBERG ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE, INFANTRY DROVE THE GERMANS FROM THE TOWN OF KERKRADE AFTER FIGHTING FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE.

PARIS, OCT. 5-(AP)-FISHERMEN'S OILSKIN CAPS ARE BEING USED AS THE MODEL FOR BECOMING HATS, PARTICULARLY FOR SPORTSWEAR, BY PARIS' "GRAND OLD LADY" OF FASHION, 75-YEAR-OLD MME. JEANNE LANVIN.

HER FAVORITE COLORS ARE BRIGHT RED COMBINED WITH BLACK, AND FINE ALMOND GREEN COMBINED WITH DARK BROWN. AMONG HER CREATIONS WHICH LOOK EXTREMELY SIMPLE AND DISCREET, BUT WHICH HAVE SUPERIOR ART AND SCIENCE IN CUTTING, ARE TWO SMALL NOTES OF HUMOR -- A TINY PLEATED BLACK SILK APRON ON A WOOLEN AFTERNOON DRESS, AND A FUNNY, BIG, HEART OF PARIS."

IN HER FASHION SHOW, MME. LANVIN SHOWED AN ORIGINAL BRIDAL PLEATED BLACK SILK APRON ON A WOOLEN AFTERNOON DRESS, AND A FUNNY, BIG, HEART-SHAPED COLLAR OF RED QUILTED SILK FASTENED AT THE WAIST WITH A GOLD BUTTON, AND CALLED "HEART OF PARIS."

IN HER FASHION SHOW, MME. HLANVIN SHOWED AN ORIGINAL BRIDAL DRESS WITH VEIL OF SILVER-STITCHED CREPE DRAPED IN TURKISH HAREM.

MOSCOW, OCT.5-(AP)-SHARP ANNOYANCE WAS EXPRESSED BY A WRITER IN THE RUSSIAN ARMY NEWSPAPER RED STAR TODAY OVER CRITICISM PRINTED IN AN ENGLISH MAGAZINE ON THE SITUATION ON THE EASTERN FRONT. OCT 6 1944

THE RED STAR WRITER, A.OSIPOV, SAID AN ARTICLE BY GEN. HUBERT HOUGH HAD ASKED WHY A RED ARMY OFFENSIVE TOWARD BERLIN HAD NOT YET BEEN LAUNCHED AND ADDED:

"IT'S HARD TO ASK A MORE ABSURD QUESTION."

"HOUGH," HE SAID, "SEEMS TO IGNORE THE STRONG GERMAN FORTIFICATIONS IN EAST PRUSSIA, AT THE APPROACHES TO WARSAW AND KRAKOW AND THE FACT CONFIRMED BY CHURCHILL THAT A MAJORITY OF THE GERMAN TROOPS ARE ON THE EASTER FRONT."

BARI, ITALY, OCT. 5-(AP)-BRITISH PARACHUTISTS AND SEABORNE INFANTRY HAVE LANDED ON THE GREEK MAINLAND AND ENTERED THE WEST COAST PORT OF PATRAS, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

PATRAS AIRPORT HAS BEEN OCCUPIED, THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID.

PATRAS, GREECE'S THIRD LARGEST PORT, IS SITUATED ABOUT 112 MILES WEST OF ATHENS AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE GULF OF CORINTH.

A SECOND ALLIED FORCE IS FIGHTING IN SOUTHERN ALBANIA, TO CUT OFF CORFU FROM THE SUPPLY PORT OF SARANDE.

THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT GAVE NO DETAILS OF THE GREEK LANDINGS, BUT SAID ALLIED TROOPS WERE IN CONTACT WITH THE ENEMY. (IT HAS BEEN ESTIMATED THE NAZIS HAVE AT LEAST FIVE FULL DIVISIONS IN GREECE, THOUGH SOME OF THESE MAY HAVE BEEN WITHDRAWN NORTHWARD RECENTLY TO SUPPORT THE GERMAN FORCES BATTLING THE RUSSIAN DRIVE INTO HUNGARY AND YUGOSLAVIA.)

IT WAS THE FIRST TIME THAT BRITISH TROOPS HAD SET FOOT ON THE GREEK MAINLAND IN FORCE SINCE 1941, WHEN AN ILL-FATED BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE WENT TO THE ASSISTANCE OF GREEKS FIGHTING THE GERMAN INVADERS.

(THERE WAS NO INDICATION OF THE POINT FROM WHICH THE GREEK INVASION WAS LAUNCHED. PATRAS, HOWEVER, IS ABOUT 200 MILES ACRO THE IONIAN SEA FROM THE TIP OF THE ITALIAN BOOT.)

KWEILIN, CHINA, OCT 2-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE LAST HANDFUL OF MEN CLINGING TO THIS FOOTHOLD OF AMERICAN AIRPOWER IN SOUTHEAST CHINA ARE READY TO WRECK THE BASE AND PULL OUT WHEN THE JAPANESE CREEP UP ON THEM.

FOR DAYS, THE DWINDLING GROUP HAS BEEN CRAYONING ITS MAPS TO MARK THE DEVIOUS APPROACH OF THE JAPANESE, AND AT THE SAME TIME STUDYING THE BACKDOOR RUN TO SAFETY. PRESUMABLY, IF THE ROADS ARE OPEN, THE MEN WILL JEEP AND TRUCK THEIR WAY OUT; IF NOT, THEY'LL WALK.

MOST OF THE MEMBERS OF THIS "BITTER END CLUB" SAY THIS IS THE EASIEST TIME OF THEIR ARMY LIVES. AS I WRITE I CAN HEAR THE SHOUTS OF GI'S AT A VOLLEYBALL GAME. ACROSS THE FIELD AT HEADQUARTERS, THE MEN ARE SITTING AROUND WHILING AWAY THEIR TIME WITH MAGAZINES LIKE SO MANY PATIENTS WAITING FOR THE DENTIST.

LAST NIGHT, LT.REX L.BROUILLARD, OF MORAN, KAS., FIRST LT.CARL E. ROTHSCHILD, 105 BUCKINGHAM ROAD, BROOKLYN, N.Y., AND SGT. FRANK W. TUTWILER, 2328-18TH AVE., SAN FRANCISCO, HUNTED HUNGRILY FOR A FOURTH FOR BRIDGE. THEY NEVER FOUND HIM--IT WAS THE FIRST COOL NIGHT IN MONTHS, GOOD SLEEPING WEATHER, AND MOST MEN PREFERRED "SACKTIME" TO CONTRACT.

BROUILLARD HEADS A SIGNAL OUTFIT OF 15 MEN. ROTHSCHILD, WHO WORKED AT MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL IN CLEVELAND BEFORE HE WENT INTO THE ARMY, IS THE ONLY MEDICAL OFFICER HERE. TUTWILER, OF THE COMBAT CAMERA UNIT, IS COMPLETING THE PHOTOGRAPHIC RECORD OF THE KWEILIN AIRBASE.

HERE ON A SOMEWHAT SIMILAR TASK IS TECH.SGT.SAM SMITH, OF 108 SOUTH HARVARD ST., ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., A FORMER PORTRAIT PAINTER NOW ENGAGED IN THE WARTIME ART PROGRAM.

DIVIDENDS AFTER THE WAR.

THE 31-YEAR-OLD OWNER OF THE MILWAUKEE BASEBALL CLUB, THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION'S 1943 AND 1944 PENNANT WINNERS, IS ALWAYS ALERT FOR BASEBALL TALENT--HE MANAGES A TEAM IN HIS UNIT.

"SAY, THERE'S SOME PRETTY GOOD TALENT OUT HERE," HE SAID ONE DAY AFTER HIS TEAM DROPPED A 1-0 DECISION. "I HAVE MY EYE ON SOME GOOD PROSPECTS. OTHERS ALREADY ARE THE PROPERTY OF CLUBS."

BUT WHILE HE'S WATCHING THE YOUNGSTERS WHO MAY DEVELOP INTO ASSOCIATION OR MAJOR LEAGUE PROSPECTS, HIS FRIEND, MAJOR ROSCOE (TORCHY) TORRANCE OF THE MARINES, VICE PRESIDENT OF THE SEATTLE RAINIERS, IS DOING THE SAME THING. IN FACT, THE MAJOR AND BILL GOT TOGETHER DISCUSSING DEALS THAT MAY MATERIALIZE WHEN THE TIME IS PROPITIOUS.

VEECK SAID HE WAS SURPRISED WHEN HE HEARD CHARLEY GRIMM, WHO MANAGED THE MILWAUKEE BREWERS TO THEIR 1943 FLAG, WAS NAMED MANAGER OF THE CHICAGO CUBS.

SPEAKING OF PROBABLE "DEALS" FOR BALL PLAYERS AMONG THE SERVICE TEAMS IN THE PACIFIC AND OF HIS COMPETITION WITH MAJOR TORRANCE, THE BREWERS' PRESIDENT SAID:

"THE MAJOR GOT A JUMP ON ME AND HAS SOME GOOD YOUNG PLAYE[illegible] INTERESTED IN THE GAME ON A PROFESSIONAL BASIS AFTER THE WAR. [illegible] DO OKAY, THOUGH. ANYWAY, I'M PLEASED TO SEE THE GAME TAKING SUCH A HOLD OUT HERE. MEXICO CITY,OCT 5-(AP)-REPATRIATION OF EUROPEAN REFUGEES IN LATIN AMERICA WILL BE STUDIED BY THE UNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND REHABILITATION ADMINISTRATION, DR.EDUARDO SANTOS, DEPUTY DIRECTOR GENERAL OF THE ORGANIZATION, SAID HERE TONIGHT.

OCT 6 1944

DR.SANTOS, FORMER PRESIDENT OF COLOMBIA, WHO ARRIVED TODAY NOON WITH FOUR MEMBERS OF THE ADMINISTRATION, SAID A UNRRA COMMITTEE WILL BE NAMED TO STUDY THE REPATRIATION PROBLEM.

"I DON'T KNOW HOW EXTENSIVE THIS PROBLEM IS IN LATIN AMERICA", DR.SANTOS TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE. "I KNOW THAT IN COLOMBIA THE REFUGEE COLONY IS CONFINED TO SMALL INDIVIDUAL GROUPS, BUT IN OTHER COUNTRIES THERE ARE MANY MORE REFUGEES. UNRRA IS NOT CONCERNED WITH INDIVIKALS, ONLY WITH MASSES OF REFUGEES."

DR.SANTOS SAID HE OR OTHER MEMBERS OF HIS MISSION NOW HERE WILL VISIT EVERY LATIN AMERICAN REPUBLIC EXCEPT ARGENTINA IN ORDER TO CONFER WITH EACH GOVERNMENT ON THE MOST SUITABLE WAY OF PARTICIPATION IN THEIR WORK.

"OUR TOUR IS NOT FOR THE PURPOSE OF COLLECTING FUNDS BUT OF CONFERRING AND STUDYING", HE EMPHASIZED.

DR.SANTOS SAID HE AND OTHER MEMBERS OF HIS PARTY CALLED ON FOREIGN RELATIONS SECRETARY EZEQUIEL PADILLA TONIGHT, AND TOMORROW WILL BEGIN CONFERENCES WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF THE MEXICAN DEPARTMENTS OF ECONOMY, FINANCE, AGRICULTURE, HEALTH AND FOREIGN RELATIONS.

HE LAUDED BRAZIL AS BEING THE FIRST LATIN AMERICAN NATION TO PAY

MEXICO CITY, OCT 5-(AP)-APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO FURTHER PLANS FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF A SEA-AND-LAND ROUTE LINKING MIAMI, FLA., HAVANA AND MEXICO CITY WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY BY THE MEXICAN TOURIST ASSOCIATION.

THE PROPOSALS CALLS FOR FERRY BOAT SERVICE FROM MIAMI TO HAVANA AND FROM CUBA TO QUINTANA ROO, MEXICAN TERRITORY ON THE YUCATAN PENINSULA.

MEXICO WOULD CONSTRUCT A HIGHWAY FROM QUINTANA ROO TO LINK WITH THE PANAMERICAN HIGHWAY NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION, AND LEADING TO MEXICO CITY OR CENTRAL AMERICA.

OCT 6 1944

MIGUEL GONZALEZ RODRIGUEE, REPRESENTATIVE OF THE NATIONAL TOURIST CORPORATION OF CUBA NOW IN MEXICO IN CONNECTION WITH THE PROJECT, SAID THE NEW ROUTE WOULD OFFER ADVANTAGES FOR TOURISTS FROM THE UNITED STATES GOIGN TO CUBA.

"TOURISTS COULD GO FROM EL PASO, TEXAS, TO MEXICO CITY ON THE HIGHWAY NOW BEING CONSTRUCTED, OR FROM LAREDO, TEXAS, ON THE ROAD ALREADY COMPLETED," GONZALEZ RODRIGUEZ SAID. "THEY COULD PUT THEIR AUTOMOBILES ABOARD THE FERRY BOATS AND CONTINUE TO CUBA OR FLORIDA."

THE NEW COMMITTEE, INCLUDING ALEJANDRO BUELNA, HEAD OF THE GOVERNMENT TOURIST DEPARTMENT, LUCAS DE PALACIO, MANAGER OF THE MEXICAN TOURIST ASSOCIATION, AND JOSE J. MARCH, PUBLICITY DIRECTOR OF THE MEXICAN PETROLEUM CORPORATION, PLANS TO VISIT HAVANA SOON IN CONNECTION WITH THE PLAN. HG1125ACW

NEW YORK, OCT.5-(AP)-JAN CIECHANOWSKI, POLISH AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES, SAID TODAY THE RUSSIANS HAD PREVENTED AMERICA AND BRITAIN FROM GREATLY INCREASING THEIR AID TO EMBATTLED UNDERGROUND FORCES IN WARSAW BY FORBIDDING THEM TO USE AIR BASES NEAR THE CITY FOR A MONTH AND A HALF.

OCT 6 1944

"THE POLISH GOVERNMENT HAD APPEALED TO THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT FROM THE BEGINNING OF THIS FIGHT, BUT ONLY A MONTH AND A HALF LATER WAS THIS BAN LIFTED AND THE ALLIES COULD USE THESE BASES ON FLIGHTS FOR DROPPING FOOD AND MUNITIONS OVER WARSAW," HE DECLARED.

ADDRESSING A LUNCHEON MEETING OF THE ROTARY CLUB OF NEW YORK, THE POLISH AMBASSADOR EXPRESSED GRATITUDE FOR HELP RECEIVED BY WARSAW FIGHTERS FROM AMERICA, BRITAIN AND SOUTH AFRICA, BUT ADDED:

"THIS MOST WELCOME, BUT FOR TECHNICAL REASONS INADEQUATE, HELP

30-24— 19365

COULD HAVE BEEN GREATLY INCREASED IF AERIAL BASES HELD BY THE SOVIET FORCES IN THE VICINITY OF EMBATTLED WARSAW HAD EARLIER BEEN MADE AVAILABLE FOR THIS PURPOSE."

DEFENDING THE POLISH FORCES FOR INITIATING THE WARSAW RISING, CIECHANOWSKI DECLARED "FROM JULY 27 TO JULY 30, THE SOVIET OFFICIAL RADIO EVERY HOUR REPEATEDLY APPEALED FOR THE ACTIVE COLLABORATION OF THE POLISH PEOPLE."

OCT 6 1944

HE ASSERTED THAT THE POLISH HOME FORCES "UNDERTOOK A SERIES OF OPERATIONS IN COLLABORATION WITH THE SOVIET ARMIES AS THESE MOVED WESTWARD" UNDER ORDERS FROM THE POLISH GOVERNMENT IN LONDON.

IN PURSUANCE OF THESE ORDERS, HE CONTINUED, GENERAL BOR, NEWLY APPOINTED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE POLISH ARMY, ORDERED A GENERAL UPRISING WHEN THE GERMANS BEGAN TO DESTROY THE MOST IMPORTANT MILITARY AND INDUSTRIAL OBJECTIVES IN WARSAW.

(BERLIN ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT GENERAL BOR AND HIS ENTIRE STAFF HAD BEEN TAKEN PRISONER "AFTER THE CAPITULATION OF WARSAW.")

CIECHANOWSKI SAID THE WARSAW BATTLE LASTED 63 DAYS--"THE LONGEST FIGHT IN ANY HISTORY OF ONE CITY AGAINST SUCH ODDS," AND ADDED THAT THE POLISH PEOPLE "HAVE REMAINED UNITED DESPITE WHAT YOU READ IN THE NEWSPAPERS."

"SOME PEOPLE HAVE IT TO THEIR INTEREST TO SOW DISCORD IN THE POLISH NATION," HE DECLARED.

WASHINGTON,OCT.5-(AP)-THE WAR FOOD ADMINISTRATION ANNOUNCED TODAY DOUGLAS C.TOWNSON, CONSULTANT IN ITS OFFICE OF DISTRIBUTION, WOULD LEAVE FOR LONDON SOON TO JOIN AN ECONOMIC MISSION OF 11 UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AGENCIES IN GREAT BRITAIN.

THE WFA SAID TOWNSON WOULD CONFER WITH BRITISH FOOD AUTHORITIES ON LEND-LEASE OPERATIONS, AND REPRESENT THE ADMINISTRATION ON POST-WAR FOOD REQUIREMENT COMMITTEES STUDYING PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF FOOD. HE WILL ALSO OBSERVE FOOD MANAGEMENT METHODS IN ENGLAND.

NIGHT LEAD UNDATED TOYAMA

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESSO

MITSURU TOYAMA, "UNOFFICIAL EMPEROR" OF JAPAN, FANATICAL LEADER OF THE TERRORISTIC BLACK DRAGON SOCIETY AND AN INSTIGATOR OF THAT NATION'S WAR, HAS ENDED HIS FIERY CAREER.

THE LONG ADVOCATE OF JAPANESE EXPANSION DIED LAST NIGHT AT THE AGE OF 89 AT HIS SUMMER HOME NEAR TOKYO. NEWS OF HIS DEATH, BROADCAST AS A DOMEI NEWS AGENCY DISPATCH, WAS RECORDED IN THE UNITED STATES BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

FIVE MONTHS BEFORE THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK OF DECEMBER, 1941, HE LAUNCHED A CAMPAIGN FOR THE "ELIMINATION OF ABSURD PERSONS WHO FOLLOW FOREIGN WAYS," ADVOCATED A BIGGER NAVY AND OBSERVED:

"JUDGING BY MATERIALS, JAPAN IS FAR INFERIOR TO THE UNITED STATES IN MONEY AND MACHINERY,BUT JAPAN HAS THE FORCE TO EXPAND, AND THT MORE THAN MAKES UP FOR THE SHORTAGE OF MATERIALS."

HIS BLACK DRAGON SOCIETY DICTATED TO AN ESTIMATED 10,000,000 FANATICS SCATTERED ALL OVER THE WORLD, SOME OF WHOM WERE ARRESTED BY THE FBI IN THE UNITED STATES AT THE OUTBREAK OF THE PRESENT WAR.

BY THE TIME HE WAS 20, TOYAMA HAD BEEN TWICE JAILED FOR

ACTIVITIES IN BEHALF OF AN INVASION OD KOREA. FOUR YEARS LATER, HE HELPED FOUND THE BLACK OCEAN SOCIETY, FORERUNNER OF THE BLACK DRAGON, ADVOCATING DIRECT ACTION AGAINST NON-JAPANESE IN EAST ASIA.

THE JAPANESE DOMEI (NEWS) AGENCY TODAY REPORTED A STRONG FORMATION OF AMERICAN BOMBERS RAIDED BALIKPAPAN, MAJOR NIPPONESE OIL CENTER ON BORNEO, TUESDAY.

IN REPORTING A PREVIOUS RAID SATURDAY BY 60 LIBERATORS, GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR HAD DESCRIBED BALIKPAPAN AS "THE MOST LUCRATIVE STRATEGIC TARGETHIN THE PACIFIC."

TODAY'S JAPANESE BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION. SAID "ABOUT 40 LARGE ENEMY AIRCRAFT" MADE THE TUESDAY RAID. IT CLAIMED SIX WERE SHOT DOWN AND MADE THE USUAL ASSERTION THAT "ONLY SLIGHT DAMAGE" WAS CAUSED.

THIS WOULD BE THE SIXTH RAID OF THE WAR AND THE SECOND IN STRONG FORCE ON BALIKPAPAN WHICH MACARTHUR INDICATED WOULD BE POUNDED UNTIL ITS PRODUCTION CAPACITY HAS BEEN KNOCKED OUT, DEPRIVING JAPAN OF ITS "MOST IMPORTANT SOURCE OF AVIATION GASOLINE AND LUBRICATING OILS."

ANOTHER DOMEI BROADCAST REPORTED BOMBER RAIDS WEDNESDAY ON MARCUS ISLAND, ABOUT 1,200 MILES SOUTHEAST OF TOKYO, AND TUESDAY ON CHICHI ISLAND, 615 MILES SOUTH OF THE CAPITAL.

A WHOLLY UNCONFIRMED TOKYO BROADCAST SAID AN AMERICAN DESTROYER EXPLODED AND SANK MONDAY OFF PELELIU ISLAND IN THE PALAU GROUP, EAST OF THE PHILIPPINES.

"IT IS BELIEVED ONE OF OUR SUBMARINES WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR SINKING THE ENEMY DESTROYER," DOMEI SAID.

PHILIPPINE INTERPRETIVE (360)
BY RUSSELL BRINES
ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR EDITOR
(FORMERLY AN AP CORRESPONDENT IN TOKYO AND MANILA)

A HINT OF TURMOIL AND UNREST WITHIN THE PHILIPPINES HAS BEEN BETRAYED BY PUPPET PRESIDENT JOSE P. LAUREL'S SIGNIFICANT REPETITION THAT HE WOULD NOT AUTHORIZE MILITARY CONSCRIPTION.

JAPANESE AUTHORITIES, AS ALWAYS, APPROVED HIS SPEECH BEFORE HEMTOLD THE ISLANDERS YESTERDAY (WED.) THAT HE WOULD NOT ALLOW "THE REMNANT OF FILIPINO MANHOOD TO BE DECIMATED ON THE BATTLEFIELD AND BY DISEASE OR TO TAKE UP ARMS AND FIGHT IN THIS WAR."

HE MADE A SIMILAR STATEMENT PREVIOUSLY. BENIGNO S. ACQUINO, HEAD OF THE TOTALITARIAN PARTY, THE KALIBAPI, INDICATED ONE PROPAGANDA REASON FOR THIS POLICY BY SAYING "CONSCRIPTION IS UNNECESSARY BECAUSE THE JAPANESE ARE STRONG ENOUGH TO PROTECT ... ISLAN

MTHIS IS SERIOUS VERBAL BACKTRACKING. JAPAN'S COLONIAL PROPAGANDA IS BASED UPON THE CONCEPTION OF BROTHER "NATIONS" VOLUNTARILY JOINING THE NIPPONESE IN "ASIA'S BATTLE." IF THE PHILIPPINES, OFFICIALLY AT WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN, CONTINUED UNDER DIRECT ATTACK WITHOUT FILIPINO PARTICIPANTS, THE CONCEPTION WOULD COLLAPSE THROUGHOUT EAST ASIA. WITH IT WOULD GO JAPAN'S ELABORATE PLANS FOR A VAST NUMERICAL ARRAY OF NATIVE ARMIES.

LAUREL'S STATEMENTS PLAINLY WERE AN IMMEDIATE NECESSITY. THEY WILL BE FORGOTTEN, WHEN EXPEDIENT IN THE FUTURE, JUST AS EASILY AS YESTERDAY'S SPEECH IGNORED THE PRESIDENT'S EARLIER PROMISES TO "DEFEND THE FATHERLAND."

THE BLUNT TRUTH IS THAT THE JAPANESE, NOT LAUREL, WILL DETERMINE THE QUESTION OF CONSCRIPTION. WHEN THEY CONSIDER IT ADVANTAGEOUS, THEY WILL DRIVE FILIPINOS INTO THE BATTLE AREAS, WITH GUNS IF NECESSARY. THOUSANDS OF THE "REMNANT OF FILIPINO MANHOOD" -- THE SURVIVORS OF BATAAN AND CORREGIDOR -- PLEDGED MILITARY SERVICE TO THE JAPANESE AS THE PRICE FOR RELEASE FROM PRISON CAMPS.

LAUREL PLAINLY WAS ATTEMPTING TO QUIET A DEEP RESENTMENT AGAINST HIS DECLARATION OF WAR. THE UNPOPULARITY OF THAT POLICY, COUPLED WITH THE LONG-ANTICIPATED RETURN OF AMERICAN AERIAL POWER, UNDOUBTEDLY STIRRED PREVALENT ANTI-JAPANESE SENTIMENTS WHICH MIGHT HAVE ERUPTED INTO DISORDERS. LAUREL'S DECLARATION OF MARTIAL LAW A FEW HOURS AFTER THE FIRST AMERICAN RAID ON MANILA UNDERLINES THAT POSSIBILITY.

THE SITUATION IS SUFFICIENTLY TENSE SO THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE FAILED TO CONTINUE THEIR USUAL STAGE-MANAGED CREATION OF AN ARMED NATIONAL ARMY. PERHAPS THE FILIPINOS ARE TOO RESTLESS TO BE

SURPRISE ATTACK CATCHES GERMAN FORCES OFF GUARD

H-COWAN

Enemy Hurls All Available Reserves, Tanks Into Battle.

BRITISH ENTER ARNHEM

Heavy Nazi Blows Temporarily Drive Yanks from Beggendorf.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Oct. 6.—(AP) The U. S. First army dealt a great surprise blow at the Siegfried Line south of the German fortress of Aachen today, driving through the evergreen forest of Hurtgen to within 26 miles of Cologne and the Rhine behind the drumfire of massed artillery and swarms of warplanes.

This new assault was uncorked as the Germans, sucked 10 miles north to defend a breach torn in the line by a First army drive now five days old, hurled in all available reserves and 30 tanks and drove the Americans temporarily from Beggendorf, at the tip of a salient menacing the Ruhr valley.

Then the Doughboys, reinforced by tanks, swept back into Beggendorf and the German town was reported firmly in their grasp.

British Enter Arnhem

(British tanks also penetrated into Arnhem in Holland during the day; the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter said.)

Supreme headquarters said a force which by-passed Beggendorf was locked in a battle that was growing more bitter by the hour.

Fifty German fighterbombers strafed American troops, but alert ground gunners knocked down or probably destroyed 25 of them.

It was the first break in the weather in weeks, and word from Supreme headquarters that clear skies over the battle area could be expected for another 48 hours brought immediate speculation that the hour for knockout blows might be at hand.

NIGHT

It was too early to tell whether the savage new onslaught, 10 miles southeast of Aachen, caught the enemy off balance, but a front dispatch said Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges assault units were within six miles of Duren, 20 miles from Cologne.

Hundreds of fighter-bombers, loosed by the first clear weather since the big push opened, blasted at camouflaged bunkers and pillboxes hidden along the needle-carpeted floor of Hurtgen forest. But still advance units were met by a storm of mortar and small arms fire.

Stalled north of Aachen by the fury of German attacks rolling up from the east, Hodges sent his tanks lancing three miles northward to the southern outskirts of Geilenkirchen, key fortified German town 12 miles north of Aachen.

Withdraw at Beggendorf

The Doughboys at Beggendorf—little more than a mile from a main road stretching 30 miles northeast to Dusseldorf and the Ruhr valley—withdrew before a terrific attack by tanks, infantry and artillery.

Then as the mists lifted, Allied fighterbombers came snarling over attacking the exposed enemy tank and infantry positions and one of the heaviest engagements ever fought on German soil broke out.

A mile and a half to the south the Doughboys also were driven from the crest of pillbox hill overlooking Herbach, but dug in on its slopes, held on, then charged back and regained half the soil they had lost.

The Siegfried breach here now is seven miles wide at the base, is three miles deep and little more than two miles wide at the eastern apex.

(The German News agency DNB reported heavy fighting in this area north of Aachen and declared that the British and Americans were believed massing for a great Autumn offensive.)

On the south the U. S. Third army, pounded by an all-night barrage, clung to its foothold in the northwest corner of Fort Driant, one of a belt of fortresses guarding Metz, and beat off tanks and infantry charging out of the fog from the north.

Nazi Blows Repulsed

The British Second army, squelching five counterblows aimed at its Dutch corridor, poured more and more troops, tanks, guns and supplies into Holland for impending battles.

Canadian units to the southwest, charging behind massed flamethrowers which seared the enemy positions, crossed the Leopold canal in force between Brugge and Eekloo bent on wiping out 5,000 Germans still dug in on the south bank of the Schelde river between Antwerp and the sea.

Driving into Holland beyond Putte, 11 miles north of Antwerp, they also were within six miles of cutting the only mainland road link for German gun crews holding out on the islands in the Schelde estuary which deny the Allies the use of Antwerp's harbor and docks.

The Canadians on the French coast renewed their attack on Dunkerque after the expiration of a truce which permitted 19,000 civilians to quit the beleaguered channel port. Divebombers paced the assault and the thunder of explosions could be heard 50 miles across the channel.

The arrival of Gen. George C. Marshall to confer with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower after a nonstop flight from the United States added to the air of tension and expectancy gripping the 460-mile front.

For the moment, at least, the First army front was the focal point of fighting and the twin thrusts north and south of Aachen were testing to the utmost the enemy high command's order to the troops to make every village a strongpoint and every house a fortress.

Take Many Prisoners

The first prisoners streaming out of Hurtgen forest included an odd assortment of poorly trained middle-aged men and young men who two weeks ago were training at a military interpreters school in Czechoslovakia, a front dispatch said.

They were far from the crack troops which the Germans hustled to the Geilenkirchen front to check the drive on the Rhine and Ruhr.

Here, on the western edge of the plain before Cologne, the Germans struck at dawn and were met headon by Hodges' Sherman tanks.

Southeast of Ubach, almost due south of the fighting at Beggendorf, Doughboys rested on their rifles while artillery and divebombers blasted away at a cluster of four-story concrete barracks which had been converted into a gunbristling fortress.

It was slow, yard-by-yard fighting reminiscent of the First World War, for the Germans had dug anti-tank ditches and trenches so well-conceived that mobile guns could be whipped into them, fired and removed before counter-fire caught them.

The Germans also have massed mortars and artillery in their recently-completed earthworks, which spread back of their blasted Siegfried Line fortifications all the way to the Rhine.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army on the south was plagued by bad weather in its attempt to widen the crack in the defenses of the big French railway city of Metz.

The Americans were sorely beset as they withstood an all-night artillery pounding, met the dawn counterattack, and at the same time grappled with the garrison of Fort Driant fighting from the tunnels beneath their feet.

Big Artillery Duel

Third army guns were wheeled up to their relief and began blazing at the strongpoints on both sides of the fort from which the Germans had been directing their harassing fire.

A battle near Sivry, 10 miles north of Nancy, roared into its second day with little change in ground, but east of Nancy the enemy was cleared from three-fourths of the forest of Parroy. American positions at Lezey, 21 miles northeast of Nancy, were under heavy artillery fire.

British heavy bombers loosed blockbuster bombs last night on Saarbrucken, German assembly point 60 miles east of Metz, leaving it ablaze.

There was quiet along most of the British Second army front in Holland, but Canadians coming up from the south were within three miles of Tilburg, Dutch industrial city on the Second army's west flank.

There also were no new developments on the Seventh army front, where the Americans and French were last reported ten miles from Belfort, guardian of the gap leading to the southern Rhineland.

The only specific news at Supreme headquarters was that the town of Anglemont, 32 miles southeast of Nancy near the north flank of the Seventh army, had been captured.

OCT 7 1944

Canadians Near Border

Canadians in the cleanup of the south bank of the Schelde estuary were reported virtually at the Dutch frontier at one other point after driving to Santvliet, 13 miles northwest of Antwerp.

A late dispatch from the Canadian army front said the bridgehead across the Leopold canal between Brugge and Eekloo west of Antwerp had been widened to more than 3 1-2 miles and deepened to about 1,000 yards.

The veteran Canadian troops were forging ahead despite heavy concentrations of mortar and machinegun fire from troops of the German 64th infantry division.

SUDDEN BLOW STUNS NAZIS IN HURTGEN WOOD

Yanks Advance Mile in Dark Forest on Way to Duren, 20 Miles From Cologne.

LONG

PLANES HELP BIG OFFENSIVE

Tanks Reach Geilenkirchen, but First Army Suffers Two Setbacks Near Ubach.

London, Oct. 6 (A. P.). United States First Army forces, supported by hundreds of planes and guns, struck a solid new blow today southeast of Aachen which carried through the dark lanes of Hurtgen Forest to within six miles of Duren, twenty miles from Cologne on the Rhine.

OCT 7 1944

The new attack gained nearly a mile, in co-ordination with other First Army units which were locked in some of the fiercest fighting of the Siegfried Line battle in the Ubach breach, north of Aachen.

Armor from the latter forces curled behind the broken main Siegfried Line of steel and concrete and reached the southern outskirts of Geilenkirchen in a three-mile rush.

The fighting was as hot as any experienced at the Anzio beachhead, veterans of that Italian battleground said, and before the new gains were registered the Americans had given ground at two places, impelled by the heaviest armored counter-attacks yet thrown into the contest inside Germany.

Infantry's Task Hard.

The infantry has a weird and dangerous task of finding the enemy well hidden in camouflaged concrete and steel posts in the twilight of the evergreen forest, so dense that sun never pierces its needle-strewn floor.

"These woods remind me of the old days back home when Daniel Boone was running around loose," said Lieut. Francis J. Nugent, 25 Kensington avenue, Jersey City, N. J. "We could use a hundred scouts just like him." Lieut. Nugent said forward elements quickly ran into strong enemy mortar fire.

"It was quiet for the first fifteen minutes and then all hell broke loose," said Major Jack A. Houston of Compton, Cal.

The Germans, acknowledging their Siegfried defenses had been breached, threw their first sizable armored forces with hundreds of guns and infantry into their assaults in fierce determination to block the road to the Rhine. The Americans had to fall back from Beggendorf, a mile east of Ubach and three-to-four miles inside Germany.

Late today, however, the Americans had fought their way back into Beggendorf and established a firm grasp upon the city.

The first of these setbacks was at Beggendorf, about a mile and a quarter east of Ubach, where the Americans were forced to fall back slightly. The other was one and a half mile south of Ubach, where the Yanks were driven off the top of a hill. But they held on to the lower slopes, and braced with the aid of powerful Allied air support which took advantage of the first clear weather in a week to blast destructively at German armor.

The First Army's new attack was sprung through the pine-carpeted, six-mile-wide Hurtgen Forest. The town of Hurtgen lies at its eastern edge, nine miles southeast of Aachen.

"We have been past the first belt of the Siegfried Line of defense for the last two weeks—we now are on our way through the second," said an officer.

Thrust Toward Main Road.

The main thrust was toward the main road linking Hurtgen and Rollesbroick, four miles to the southwest, and was near the largest body of impounded water in Germany, a twisting reservoir below the town of Schmidt, which is three and a half miles southeast of Hurtgen. The reservoir serves Aachen and the Ruhr with power.

Duren to the northeast is the largest city between Aachen and Cologne and has a population of 41,000. It stands on the banks of the Roer River, and serves as a hub of half a dozen railroads.

The gain of nearly a mile was made in the first hour and a half of the attack which jumped off at 11:30 A. M. after a supporting barrage by artillery and hundreds of fighter bombers which scorched well-hidden German pillboxes and bunkers.

The Americans, who got off to the attack early today from Ubach, ran into new obstacles as they sought to exploit their gains behind the Germans' main belt of steel and concrete.

The first, east of Ubach, was a system of "community diggings"—freshly turned trenches dug by civilians. These proved formidable as they had been constructed to permit mobile guns to run into them, fire and change positions before Allied artillery could reply.

The second was southeast of Ubach, along a 500-yard stretch, where a "battle of the barracks" was taking place. Here in four-story concrete structures the Germans had concealed a veritable fortress about which they had clustered anti-tank guns, artillery and mortars.

The Americans had advanced to within rifle range and Allied planes were dive-bombing the buildings, while Sherman tanks and flight after flight of Allied planes met the enemy armored onslaughts headon.

To the north, the Germans declared, more Allied parachutists had been dropped in Holland to reinforce the Allied-held western loop between the Neder Rhine and the Waal west of Arnhem and Nijmegen in Holland.

Although the Americans at Ubach were through the main belt of Siegfried defenses, an Associated Press dispatch from the front emphasized that there was no prospect of a sudden breakthrough to the Rhine.

Have Defenses in Depth.

The Germans have defenses in depth, consisting of anti-tank ditches, minefields and trenches all the way back to the Rhine to slow up progress, correspondent Don Whitehead said, and will scrape up every available resource for counter-attacks.

In this secondary system was a group of German barracks buildings southeast of Ubach which the Americans leveled with eight-inch guns and divebombers yesterday.

To the south, Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's infantry, sprayed with shellfire from German strongpoints on either flank, fought into their third day for Fort Driant whose "buttoned in" garrison battled from underground passages and trapdoor gunposts.

Hold Their Positions.

The Americans after a five-day fight were clinging to slim positions at the northwestern and southwestern corners of the fort near Nornot, five miles southwest of Metz, under flanking fire from other forts on both sides of the Moselle. They had been forced to give up a hold at the northeastern corner. But Gen. Patton moved up 155-millimeter "Long Tom" artillery and was replying heavily to German guns which threw 600 shells into the fort.

The weather clear-up had not yet extended this far south. The battle swirled in low-drifting smoke, a murky haze and rain.

Another battle raged into its second day near Sivry, ten miles north of Nancy, with little change of ground. Farther to the south there was no news from the Seventh Army's push for the Vosges passes and the last ten miles to Belfort.

Canadians Advance.

In the north the Canadians, behind sheets of fire from flamethrowers, burst across the Leopoid Cana into the enemy pocket south of the Schelde and won a bridgehead north of Maldegem, forty miles west of Antwerp and nine miles east of Brugge Bruges).

The Canadians also wedged into Holland beyond Putte, eleven miles north of Antwerp. They were within six miles of cutting the only mainland road link for German gun crews and garrisons holding the islands of Zuid Beveland and Walcheren.

Flood waters now up to eight feet deep covered more than a fourth of dike-breached Walcheren.

British troops closed within three miles south of industrial Tilburg and held their line three miles east of the road junction town of 's-Hertogenbosch.

On the east side of the Nijmegen corridor American troops who pushed east of Overbloom buffeted back two German counterattacks.

The British threw back three more counterblows, one of which gained 1,000 yards before it was checked. This was at the western tip of the corridor between the Waal and Neder near Opheusden, twelve miles southwest of Arnhem and about the same distance northwest of Nijmegen.

Allied power still was flowing into the corridor in a steady build-up.

Dunkirk's strange truce ended at 10 A. M., after 19,000 civilians had been evacuated.

Nazis Predict Big Push

The Germans said a "great British-American autumn offensive is surely in the course of preparation" and declared Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the American 12th Army group, had shifted his strength heavily toward the Nijmegen-Aachen sector.

Swedish correspondents in Berlin reported that the last German civilians had been removed by night from Aachen, whose complete encirclement, the Germans said, was an objective of the Ubach drive.

Pittsburgh" area around Beggendorf, captured yesterday.

The Siegfried Breach

Supreme headquarters announced a new advance of a mile east of Herbach, the town is a mile and a half south of Ubach.

Thus the Americans had a breach at least a mile and a half to two miles wide, three to four miles into Germany, and were battling for the last mile and half to the Aachen-Gladbach road and the gateway to the Rhine.

The heaviest engagement was on heights overlooking Herbach, which the infantry stormed yesterday, knocking the enemy out of pillboxes. The summit of these heights commands the terrain south of Ubach. Doughboys fought their way to the top late yesterday. At 7 A. M. the Germans counterattacked in force. Infantry, supported by tanks, came out of the mists to the southeast.

air if necessary, all day long."

This good weather was the best break Hodges could have got at this time, for it gave the airmen a chance to strike at German reserves and traffic that had been able to move at will in the murky weather of the last few days.

The Germans appeared to be bringing all available reserves into the breakthrough area.

Critical Spot For Nazis

"If the enemy can scrape up anything, he is going to put it in here because this leads right to the heart of the Rhine industrial region," said an American officer.

There was no immediate prospect of a sudden breakthrough such as the army achieved at St. Lo, where the Germans had only a crust of resistance with nothing behind it. Here the Germans have defenses in depth all the way to the Rhine, plus heavy artillery. The defenses include anti-tank ditches, mine fields, trenches and fortified houses.

U. S. Artillery Has Edge

Fighting Now Called Vicious As That Of Hedgerows

With American Infantry at the Siegfried Line, Oct. 6 (AP)—American troops which entered Beggendorf east of Ubach yesterday had to pull back today under heavy enemy pressure.

With American Infantry at the Siegfried Line, Oct. 6 (AP)—Fighting as bitter and bloody as any in the entire invasion flamed with gathering intensity today around the First Army's breach in the Siegfried defenses as the Germans made their first sizable armored counterattack.

Progress was slow. It was yard-by-yard fighting for the infantry, just as in the thick hedgerows of Normandy—but this time through pillboxes instead of hedgerows.

The Germans, whose superiors have threatened them with death if they retreat or surrender, were backed by the heaviest artillery they had been able to concentrate against Americans since the war began.

Around Beggendorf, Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' tanks engaged in heavy fighting with enemy armor. South of Ubach doughboys fought savagely to stem an attack by a battalion of German infantry supported by tanks and heavy artillery.

The American tanks were reported to be fanning out on either side to the rear of the main line while advancing into newly dug earthworks which took advantage of huge slag piles in the "little

Allied Planes Get Chance

The first Nazi surge drove the doughboys from the heights and gave the Germans control of seven of the pillboxes they had lost, but on the side of the ridge the Americans held fast.

Then the sun burned off the mists, the first bright clear day in weeks developed and Allied planes roared in and made one of the closest air support missions yet flown. The Yank artillery dropped smoke shells to outline the enemy salient and the planes hit their targets right on the nose.

Weather Hodges' Best Break

"Thank God for this weather," said one officer. "We'll hit 'em every hour on the hour with our

SS troops are holding German infantrymen in their positions with threats that their families will be sent to concentration camps if they surrender or retreat.

Despite the enemy's heavy concentration, American artillery had the edge. But the Germans fired 100 rounds in a single concentration yesterday. There were numerous others with 20 to 50 rounds. This emphasizes the improvement in the Nazis' supply situation since they have been driven back on their own soil.

MARSHALL, BYRNES ON VISIT TO PARIS

Army Chief Of Staff Met By Eisenhower And Aides

Supreme Allied Headquarters, Oct. 6 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall arrived in Paris today after a non-stop flight from the United States, and conferred immediately with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his staff.

There was no explanation for the unheralded visit of the army Chief of Staff, nor for the presence of James F. Byrnes, director of War Mobilization, in his party.

They arrived, however, in the midst of increasing reports that the Allies are preparing for a winter of war on the Western Front.

Marshall, Byrnes and a small group of high-ranking army officers arrived at an airfield just outside Paris 20 hours after leaving Washington.

Met By Army Chiefs

As he stepped from the plane, the general was met by Eisenhower, Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the United States 12th Army group, and Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff.

With Marshall, in addition to Byrnes, were Lieut. Gen. Thomas T. Handy, Marshall's chief of operations, Maj. Gen. Howard A. Craig, assistant chief of air staff, and Col. Frank McCarthy, secretary of the general staff.

The plane which brought them to France was a specially fitted C-54 transport which the army operates to carry top-ranking American and Allied officials, civilian as well as military, on important missions.

First Flight On Regular Route

This trip of the big four-engined craft was said to be the first flight over what is soon to become a regular route between the United States and Paris, with frequent—possibly daily—flight carrying military personnel and other passengers, as well as transporting to the United States wounded soldiers in need of special treatment.

Pilot on the trip was Lieut. Col. Henry T. Myers, of Tifton, Ga., who recently flew the same plane non-stop from London to Washington in 17 hours and 55 minutes, returning Secretary of War Stimson from a tour of the European battle zones.

Roosevelt, Hull Have Used It

President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull have been passengers on the plane, also, and three weeks ago, Myers took the plane to Rio de Janeiro to fly Mme. Chiang Kai-shek to the United States.

The plane is unnamed. Myers and his men unofficially refer to it as the "Sacred Cow."

Just before the "Sacred Cow" landed at Paris today there was a commotion in the control tower at the airfield. A French aviator, practicing landings, had no radio in his plane and could not be warned off the field. The tower men tried blinker signals, but apparently the flyer did not understand them. Something else took him away, however, and he was in another part of the sky when the big plane came down to the runway.

GEN. MARSHALL FLIES TO PARIS

Paris, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Gen. George C. Marshall and James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization, arrived at Paris by plane today for a tour of the front and military installations in France.

Mr. Byrnes and the United States Army Chief of Staff were accompanied by Lieut.-Gen. Thomas T. Handy, Marshall's chief of operations; Major-Gen. Howard A. Craig, assistant chief of air staff, and Col. Frank McCarthy, secretary of the General Staff.

Their plane, specially built for scheduled flights between the United States and Paris which are expected to start in about three weeks, was met at a field outside Paris by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Lieut.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley and Gen. Eisenhower's chief of staff, Major-Gen. Walter Bedell Smith.

The piilot was Lieut.-Col. Henry T. Myers of Tifton, Ga., who often has piloted President Roosevelt's plane. He made the trip in eighteen hours and forty-five minutes actual flying time. With one stop the trip required twenty hours.

In addition to carrying military officials and other passengers between Paris and the United States, the scheduled new flights also will transport to the United States wounded soldiers requiring special treatment.

NAZIS REPORTED MAKING PLANS TO FLOOD HOLLAND

LONDON, Oct. 6.—(AP) Holland's exile government accused Germany tonight of "malicious and ruthless" preparations for demolition of the seawalls guarding the reclaimed Lowlands, an action which would mean the flooding of approximately 46 per cent of the country and disaster to nearly 65 per cent of its population.

Premier Pieter C. Gerbrandy, his usual solemn stoicism shattered by the desperate plight he pictured confronting his homeland, told a press conference that "famine, floods, cold and darkness in a matter of weeks threaten to engulf the densely-populated provinces of the Netherlands in the greatest disaster of their history."

This, he said, would be the result if the Germans in revenge carry out their threat to destroy the barriers the Dutch have built over long years against the North sea. He added that the enemy already was doing much damage.

"The campaign of demolition carried out by the Germans in the Netherlands," he said, "is probably more ruthlessly thorough and certainly is destructive of more national wealth than in any other German-occupied territory.

"Apart from the wrecking of dikes, locks and pumping stations, and the consequent destruction of agricultural property, recent reports from the underground tell of a systematic demolition of every type of industrial installation."

The Prime Minister maintained that this was being done by the Germans to prevent Holland's industrial and agricultural life from being resurrected.

The major Dutch cities, he said "are faced with the certainty that, unless the Germans are expelled in the immediate future, the available food supplies will be exhausted and all gas, electricity and power will be completely cut off before the month is out."

deportation and destruction "infinitely worse than anywhere else in western Europe."

The short, ruddy-faced premier outlined Holland's plight at a press conference with a plea "not for world pity, but for understanding."

"The larger part of my country is still under Germany's heel," he said.

The major Dutch cities, he added, "are faced with the certainty that, unless the Germans are expelled in the immediate future, the available food supplies will be exhausted before the month is out.

"Add to this the known German preparations for still more extensive and disastrous flooding, the systematic demolition of port installations, power plants and industrial objects of every kind and the paralysis of transport resulting from the railway strike.

"Then no doubt will be left about the desperate plight of the 7,000,000 men, women and children trapped between the Rhine delta and the sea and the burning and looting German armies."

Town Burned

Foreign Minister E. N. Van Kleffens said the Germans had burned to the ground the prosperous town of Berkel, between Rotterdam and The Hague, as a reprisal.

The diplomat estimated that 46 per cent. of the country would be flooded if the Germans destroyed the dikes which Dutchmen erected over hundreds of years.

In Holland, where the highest elevation is only 900 feet, this would destroy the greater part of industry and agriculture for years.

HITLER PLANS RULE IN EXILE

Secret Schools Prepare Nazis For Underground War

Nazis Ruining Holland, Dutch Premier Says

London, Oct. 6 (AP)—Premier Pieter S. Gerbrandy of Holland said that Germany was attempting to ruin his country with a systematic plan of famine and flood, inside Germany has come a story that Adolf Hitler intends to guide the destiny of the Reich through secretly trained, fanatical young Nazis even though he should flee into exile.

Hitler Youth and other young Nazis are being trained in secret schools to carry on National Socialism as an underground movement after Allied occupation of the Reich, according to this information.

It is said that the most fanatical of the Nazis preach a doctrine that nothing irreparable can happen to Germany as long as Hitler lives to keep the flame of National Socialism from being snuffed out.

Will Keep In Touch

Even though Hitler should flee into exile or go into hiding, they say, he will keep in touch with the graduates of his "Junkerschulen" or "schools for rulers" and through them rule the Reich.

Very little is known of this clandestine movement because its activities are closely guarded secrets and each student is sworn to reveal nothing about the schools or his affiliation with them.

One informant said there are believed to be eight of these schools operating in Germany to perpetuate the ideology of National Socialism even though Germany should be overrun and present Nazi leaders seized.

During 1936 and 1937 the Nazis established schools under Robert Ley, leader of the German labor front, and Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, so-called Nazi philosopher, which gave indoctrination courses for Kreisleiters, Gauleiters (local and regional leaders) and high SS (Elite Guard) members who were to take key roles within the Nazi party.

Extended Gradually

Since 1937 this educational program has been extended gradually. Hitler Youth were brought in for training, but none was permitted entrance except those whose background had been examined carefully with regard to racial purity and leadership ability.

They were to be future rulers of Germany, men devoting their lives to seeing that National Socialism as expounded by "der Fuehrer" should live. And it was to be their responsibility to run the underground movement.

After the United States entered the war and the tide of battle in the east swung against the German armies, schools began to stress a program of keeping National Socialism alive in defeat.

Religious mysticism is mixed into the schooling in true Nazi tradition. Each school is reported to have a secret chamber which only special students are permitted to enter. There at a high Nazi shrine they dedicate themselves to worship of the perfect man.

In Inconspicuous Jobs

Once a student has been examined and found acceptable he enters school for a period of intense National Socialist conditioning and then he begins study of a wide range of subjects.

In addition to technical subjects and languages, each participates in sports and flying.

Upon graduation they are urged to continue their studies of the sciences and are given income sufficient to make then financially independent.

According to the story of the informant, the names of students never are revealed and graduates do not disclose any connection with the party. Instead they hold key positions of an inconspicuous and unofficial nature.

One of the schools is said to be visited by Ley and Rosenberg frequently and at times by Hitler himself.

Nazis Count On Weather

London, Oct. 6 (AP)—Declaring that the western front is becoming an area of "fog, rains, cold and mud," the German news agency Transocean indicated today that the Nazis are counting on the weather to stem the Allied drive.

The broadcast asserted it was "easier for the German soldier to deal with cold and wetness than it was for the enemy."

Troops on both sides, it said, hardly know what it is like to wear dry clothes.

Himmler's Guards in Action

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Several "Volksgrenadiere Divisions"—Heinrich Himmler's home guard units—have gone into action on the western front.

French Paper Reports Nazis Hanged 8 Yanks

Paris, Oct. 6 (AP)—The newspaper Front National reported today that eight United States soldiers were hanged by the Germans in Compiegne Forest, 50 miles from Paris, before members of the French Forces of the Interior cleaned it out. The soldiers were not identified, nor was there confirmation from other sources.

Score To Even

After War

With the Army in France, Sept. 30 (AP—Delayed)—Just as soon as they get this fight with the Jerries finished there's a certain 36th Division infantry regiment which aims to settle a personal squabble with a certain 36th Division reconnaissance outfit.

And when that time comes Sergt. Edward J. Kilpatrick, Breckenbridge, Texas, allows as how he'll be happy as all get-out to strike the first blow for the infantry.

Here's the way Kilpatrick explains it:

The infantry boys captured a German bivouac area the other day with 130 Germans plus a self-propelled gun. In the middle of the bivouac area they discovered plenty of chickens, rabbits, bread, wine and 24 cases of whisky. They promptly sat down to "regroup forces."

Suddenly they got a call from the reconnaissance outfit, which reported Germans massing for a counterattack only 500 yards ahead. They dropped their food and drink and headed up to catch more Germans.

They hunted and hunted. No Germans. Finally they gave up and returned to the bivouac area.

There, they hunted and hunted again. No rabbits, no chicken, no bread, no wine, no whisky. Right now they are hunting again, but as yet, no reconnaissance outfit.

Today, 26 Years Ago, Marks First German Peace Move

(By the Associated Press)

Twenty-six years ago today, Prince Maximilian of Baden, who only four days earlier had succeeded Count Von Hertling as Chancellor of a tottering Germany, announced to the world he had sent President Wilson a message asking the opening of negotiations for peace.

Bulgaria had surrendered unconditionally on September 29, and all along the western front the Kaiser's army was being pushed backward by relentless Allied offensives that had reached a climax which made Germany's military defeat inevitable.

Americans and French were advancing victoriously in the Argonne and Champagne. The British were pressing on in the direction of Cambrai. The battle of the Hindenburg Line was shaping up as a total Allied victory. Everywhere the German military and what it represented was on the defensive.

Typical Prussian Arrogance

Yet, almost as if the proposition of imminent military collapse had not yet pervaded the consciousness of the German mind, the circumstances surrounding Prince Max's peace overture were typical of Prussian arrogance.

The language of the less than 100-word message merely said that Germany accepted the program set forth by President Wilson "as a basis for peace negotiations." There was no mention of surrender. Simultaneously with the announcement by Prince Max, the Kaiser, in a statement of his own, declared he had "resolved once more to offer peace to the enemy" but wished to have it understood that he "would only extend his hand for an honorable peace."

Berlin Misjudged

Berlin apparently thought the American public would seize the slightest pretext to end the war "with a view to avoiding further bloodshed," as the peace note put it.

But Berlin misjudged the American temperament. In the United States the German maneuver was denounced vigorously. London suspected the move to be a trick.

In any event, President Wilson at first sent no reply to Prince Max. Then he shifted the responsibility back to the Germans, saying in substance that the United States would not participate in any peace discussion in which the terms laid down by the President were merely "a basis for negotiation," and that if Germany wished him to carry an armistice request to the Allies she must first withdraw her troops.

Final Surrender Keynote

Germany's reply to the President was made on October 12 with the declaration that Germany was "ready to comply with the proposition of the President with regard to evacuation" of troops.

On October 23 President Wilson sent a final reply of which "not peace negotiations, but surrender" was the keynote.

The final armistice terms were transmitted to Germany on November 4. Marshal Foch awaited Germany's capitulation in a railway car in Compiegne Forest as the whole Western front blazed with Allied military might.

The German delegates arrived November 8 and November 11, at 1 A. M. was fixed for the final reply from the Kaiser. The armistice was signed that morning.

How Paris Stayed Style Capital

Paris, Oct. 6 (AP)—The French fashion industry was saved from transfer to Germany by the ruse of "endless negotiations," Lucien Lelong, who for 12 years was president of the French fashion organization, declared today.

He said the spirit of resistance to Nazi efforts to dominate the industry went so far that throughout the occupation not one major hat model appeared in the German's color—green—and each time the Germans ordered less material the Parisians deliberately created bigger hats.

Preferred To Stay In Paris

Lelong had a hectic time during the occupation.

"At the outbreak of the war I had a diplomatic passport for the United States, but I preferred to stay and defend my corporation's interests," he said.

One morning in 1940 he found six German officers in his office ordering him to Berlin immediately.

"Giving way to my arguments that French fashion could only be created in the Paris atmosphere, they seemed resigned," Lelong said, "but the Berlin orders remained and I had to go there."

Under Arrest Five Days

Lelong was under arrest for five days in Berlin before he argued his way into being returned to Paris, he said.

Then he negotiated for permission to hold a French fashion show at Lyon and invited 500 neutral buyers after it was granted. Lacking materials, he sold patterns for international copying.

A furious German general threatened Lelong with death punishment because no buyers showed up at a later Zurich show of Berlin fashions.

Creations Survived

Traditional French styles and creations survived the occupation. An example was the showing today of the latest collection of models created in the famous Molyneux fashion house.

British Captain Edward Henry Molyneux came over from London on a special mission in connection with the military canteen and took the opportunity to supervise the latest collection of models created by his fashion house. It was kept running during the occupation by his manager.

Soap Salesman Finds Good Field In France

Nancy, France, Oct. 6 (AP)—Capt. George Gorry London, of Ohio, who was a sales manager for a soap company before he got into uniform, found a golden opportunity for a soap salesman in an area of France which had been stripped of soap and all articles made of fats by the Germans. As soon as the war's over and the liaison officer stops dodging shells, maybe he'll have time to do something about it.

RUSSIAN FORCES SMASH 13 MILES INSIDE HUNGARY

Reds Capture Series of Key Towns Within 100 Miles of Budapest.

DRIVE ON SZEGED

Soviet Dispatches Say Magyar Home Front Might Collapse Any Moment.

LONDON, Saturday, Oct. 7—(AP) Russian troops invading tottering Hungary smashed 13 miles inside that last big Axis satellite nation yesterday, capturing a series of key towns and junctions within 100 miles of Budapest, the capital, and only 15 miles from Szeged, Hungary's second city, Moscow announced officially last night.

Striking across rich farmlands which offer little natural defense lines for the Hungarians and bolstering Nazi troops, the Russians seized more than 100 localities on a 75-mile fan-shaped front beyond Arad, big west Romanian jumping-off base, the bulletin said.

Front Might Collapse

Dispatches from the Soviet capital said the Hungarian home front might collapse at any moment, and the Russians already are planning for the invasion of Austria after knocking out Hungary.

Soviet planes dropped leaflets exhorting the Hungarians to quit the Axis and save their country before it is too late, and mobile loudspeakers went along with the ground troops for the same purpose.

In Yugoslavia other Soviet troops were steadily outflanking Hungary on the south, and were reported to have sent patrols across the Danube river into the Belgrade area. An unconfirmed Algiers radio report said the Germans were evacuating some troops from the Yugoslav capital with the use of big transport planes.

In the north Berlin said the Russians were beginning a big pincers movement in western Lithuania and northern Poland aimed at German East Prussia. Moscow was silent about this new offensive, but the communique did announce the seizure of almost one-third of Saare (Osel) island off the West Estonian coast by Russian amphibious forces invading that big island dominating the mouth of the Gulf of Riga.

Mako, six-way road and rail junction in the Mures valley 15 miles east of Szeged, a city of 132,000, fell to the southern most Red army invading Hungary's southeastern pre-war frontier. Mako is 39 miles west of Arad, and also only 15 miles south of Hodmczovasarhely, a Magyar city of 62,000 population.

Russians Take Ugra

At the top of the front the Russians took Ugra, a few miles inside the frontier and only 15 miles southwest of Oradea, west Romanian rail junction whose seizure would trap large Axis forces in Transylvania to the east. Ugra is 56 miles north of Arad.

The deepest penetration into Hungary was at Vegedghaza, 13 miles inside the frontier and 25 miles northwest of Arad.

Ketegyhaza, only eight miles from the eight-way rail junction of Bekescsaba, fell to an intermediate Soviet column and other Soviet units seized the important cross roads towns of Gyula and Battonya, just a few miles inside Hungary.

The seizure of Bekescsaba would effectively split an important communication line linking the Axis front east of the Tisza river. The town's capture was reported erroneously in the first Soviet monitor's version of the broadcast Moscow communique.

Moscow's belated announcement of the Hungarian invasion—reported as long ago as Sept. 25 by Berlin—was interpreted as meaning that Russia's patience with Hungary was at an end, and that the Red army now had built up enough supplies to carry them across the rolling plains to Budapest.

Hungary has been reported seeking peace, but there has been no official confirmation from Allied capitals. Berlin has threatened reprisals should any of her Axis partners, meaning Hungary, follow the example of Bulgaria, Romania and Finland.

The invasion of southeastern Hungary was coupled with steady Russian penetration of the Danube plains between Belgrade and the southern Hungarian border, and Berlin said 70,000 Russian troops were deployed along the north bank of the Danube opposite the Yugoslav capital.

During the day Soviet troops reached the Tisza river at Novi Becej in a nine-mile advance in the area northwest of Petrovgrad, 37 miles north of Belgrade. At this point the Russians were only 33 miles south of the lower Hungarian frontier, and three miles east of Stari Becej on the vital Budapest-Novi Sad-Belgrade trunk railway.

Cut Axis Escape Routes

Other Soviet troops spreading out along the Danube near Belgrade already had cut the Axis escape routes from the Balkans east of the Tisza, and the Russians were expected to cross that barrier shortly.

Rusko Selo, 27 miles northeast of Petrovgrad and only 32 miles below the Hungarian frontier in the Szeged area, also was seized as the Russians fanned out over the Banat plains.

South of the Danube other Soviet forces aided by Marshal Tito's partisans had surrounded "considerable forces" of Germans at three points southeast of Belgrade, the communique said. They are being exterminated, it added.

The Nazis were trapped at Malinovac, on the Danube 80 miles southeast of Belgrade, at Klokocevac, nine miles to the south, and at Zajecar, 30 miles south of Klokocevac, the Russians said.

More than 15 localities were seized in this mountainous area, including Zagubica, 75 miles southeast of Belgrade, and only 35 miles from the Nis-Belgrade railway—vital escape railway for Axis troops in the lower Balkans. Zagubica represented a 16-mile advance northwest of Bor, site of the biggest copper mines in Europe which was captured three days ago.

Twelve miles northwest of surrounded Zajecar, another Soviet column seized Sarbanovac, and the same distance on the southwest another Red army group captured Vrbova, which is only 36 miles east of the Nis-Belgrade trunk railway

Nis, big junction of the Belgrade-Athens and Orient express lines was threatened further when the Russians drove to within 34 miles northeast of it with the capture of Mali-Izvor, which is 11 miles south of Zajecar.

RUSSIANS PUSH INTO HUNGARY FROM ROMANIA

Capture Railway Junction and More Than 100 Other Towns.

FIGHT IN BELGRADE SUBURBS

Reds and Yugoslav Allies Cross to South Bank of Danube—Other Units Nearing Nis.

London, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Russian troops have invaded Hungary from Romania, Moscow announced tonight.

In a broadcast communique, Moscow said that the Russian forces which crossed the border north and northwest of the Romanian town of Arad had captured various railway stations, including the junction of Mako, fifteen miles east of Szeged, and more than 100 other populated places.

There have been frequent unofficial reports recently that the Red Army was fighting in Hungary, but this was the first official announcement.

The communique also disclosed that a beachhead twenty-five miles wide and fifteen miles deep had been won on the Estonian island of Saare, one of a group of four guarding the entrances to the Gulfs of Finland and Riga.

Nazis Attacked In Belgrade Outskirts

London, Oct. 6—The Paris radio said today that Marshal Tito, Yugoslav leader, has arrived in Moscow to talk with Marshal Stalin.

Moscow, Oct. 6 (AP)—Russian and Yugoslav troops fought the Germans in the outskirts of Belgrade today and front dispatches indicated patrols had crossed to the south bank of the Danube from captured Pancevo, less than nine miles from the capital.

Marshal Tito was reported near the front and it was believed troops of his Army of National Liberation would be the first formally to enter the fortified old city of 267,000. The range of hills at whose northwest corner Belgrade is located is ideal for Red army infiltration tactics.

Slavs Near Nis

Pravda said other allied Slavic troops had reached the vicinity of Nis, 130 miles southeast of Belgrade, where the Belgrade-Athens-Salonika and Belgrade-Sofia railroads meet.

In northern Yugoslavia along the Tisza river, other Russian troops were less than 30 miles across flat Hungarian frontier country from the second largest Hungarian city, Szeged, imperiled frontally from Romania as well. The conquest of Hungary was declared in Russian newspapers to be the first priority objective of Russian strategy.

(The first snows are falling in the Carpathian Mountains, where Russian troops are fighting on the frontiers of Hungary and Czechoslovakia, the German communique said today, London reported. Snow already had been reported on the Western front in the Vosges Mountains at the Belfort Gap.)

Fighting For Topola

Thirty-five miles south of Belgrade, Yugoslav units were locked in bitter battle with the Germans for the village of Topola, home of Karageorge—"Black George"—who beat the Turks a century ago and founded the royal dynasty from which King Peter descended.

The Timusul river, flowing into the Danube at the western edge of Pancevo, formed a minor German defense line, but it also formed the edge of a potentially dangerous pocket for the enemy because it already has been outflanked by the Russians.

Thousands of Partisans inside Belgrade were reported armed and ready to give blow for blow in the forthcoming battle.

Mum On Other Fronts

(Except for reporting patrol activity, Moscow communiques remained silent about any action elsewhere on the Eastern front. Berlin has reported beginning of a new Russian offensive in western Lithuania and invasion of the Baltic island of Saare.)

The Russian campaign was not confined to freeing Belgrade. With Petrovgrad, 37 miles northward as a base, Soviet troops cleared the enemy from an area of several hundred square miles on the east side of the Tisza river.

Russ Interested In Kiel Canal

Moscow, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Soviet naval organ Red Fleet emphasized today Russia's deep interest in the post-war status of the Kiel Canal, which cuts through German territory south of the Danish border to link the Baltic with the North Sea.

Declaring the "question of security of the Baltic Sea" was involved, the paper said:

"Twice during the last 30 years German imperialism has locked the Baltic Sea. This cannot be tolerated any longer."

Red Fleet added that "no other Baltic power prevented, and some did not want to prevent, German imperialism from acting as pirates."

"Only the country which exterminates the pirates by its own arms could appear as the guarantor of safety on this sea," the paper asserted.

Russians Drive Germans 20 Miles Inside Finland

Pursue Retreating Nazi Army as Far as Suomussalmi

WITH THE FINNISH ARMY WEST OF THE RUSSIAN BORDER, Oct. 6 (AP).—Russian troops have pursued retreating Germans inside the border of Finland to Suomussalmi, which is twenty miles west of the Russian-Finnish boundary in central Finland.

A Finnish officer said the Russians apparently had not penetrated farther into Finland than Suomussalmi, and there was speculation that their movements were largely the result of momentum gathered in their drive against the Germans who had held positions inside Russia to the east.

[At Helsinki a Finnish communique said Finland's troops were advancing against the Germans in the northern part of the country, and it reported capture of Maksniemi.

[The Swedish press reported severe fighting at the outskirts of Tornealv, with the Germans attempting to recapture the port, through which the Finns have been receiving fresh troops and supplies.]

Suomussalmi section has been completely cleared of Germans, but everywhere there is evidence of Teutonic destructive thoroughness, once the Germans turned upon their former brothers-in-arms.

NAZIS GAIN GROUND AT FINNISH PORT

Stockholm, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—The Germans in Finland, are exerting very strong pressure on Tornealv, on the Swedish border, in order to relieve the two-way threat to their forces at Kemi to the southeast, the Finnish communique said today.

Swedish reports said that there was severe fighting on the outskirts of Tornealv, seized by the Finns in a surprise landing nearly a week ago, and that the Germans were slowly gaining ground in an effort to recapture the port, through which the Finns have been receiving fresh troops and supplies. German bombers attacked the port area again yesterday.

German shells have fallen on Swedish soil and bullets have ripped into Swedish buildings, the Finnish radio said today, quoting a Stockholm report to the Helsinki paper Unsi Sumoi.

Some material damage has been caused by the German fire, but so far nobody has been injured, continued the broadcast, recorded at New Yok by CBS.

Swedish officers have visited the German battery guilty of this violation of Swedish neutrality to protest, the Finns said.

GERMAN MORALE WEAKENS IN EAST

By EDDY GILMORE

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 6—(AP) The morale of Germans is beginning to crack on the Eastern front—for the first time in three long years.

I gained this definite impression in an interview with the latest group of prisoners, representative of Estonia occupation units which committed the atrocities at the Klooga camp. The group is a good cross-section of the German army.

Lt. Anton Raczek, 42, wears the Iron Cross, a medal for distinguished service and spent 12 years in the German army.

"Do you think Germany is going to lose the war?" I asked him.

"As an officer, I don't believe I should comment."

"As a party member please tell us how you account for the fact that a coalition of Bolshevists, Capitalists, Jews, Negroes, Catholics and Freemasons are defeating Hitler."

Raczek replied thoughtfully:

"There's a German proverb—if the hare has many enemies that is the end of the hare."

Major Hans Happell, 47, was a lawyer in private life. He was a lieutenant in the first world war.

"Do you think the Germans are going to win the war?" he was asked.

"We assume so but—this really is only a hope."

"Do the troops on the Baltic front know the Allies are on German territory and that the Red army has knocked Romania, Bulgaria and Finland out of the war?"

After a pause Happell said "yes."

Private Alfred Schmittseder, 38, born near Vienna, was asked whether he had heard about the attack on Hitler.

"Yes," he replied. "I would have preferred it to have succeeded. Then the war would be over. I am hoping he will be killed sooner or later."

"Will Germany win the war?"

"There is not the slightest chance. Our men know this. We are sunk."

Estonians To Decide About Collective Farms

Tallinn, Estonia, Oct. 5 (AP—Delayed)—The Soviet Estonian republic, now freed from three years of German domination, will decide for itself whether to adopt the Russian system of collectivization of agriculture, declares Arnold Veimer, president of the Council of People's Commissars.

"If the Estonians do not want collective farms," he said, "they will not have them. But the party, naturally believing in it, will campaign for it by press and radio education."

"And the nationalization of stores and business?" a correspondent asked.

Small Enterprises

"Small enterprises of less than 10 employes will remain in private hands," he replied.

Currently all stores in Estonia are closed for inventory.

A land reform which was inaugurated in 1940—34 hectares of land to a peasant—has been reintroduced. A hectare is 2.47 acres. Veimer was asked how many hired hands a peasant may employ and how many cows he may own.

"There is no limit to the number of persons he may employ on a farm," he declared. "He may have as many cows as he can maintain."

Other Republics

The council president said he did not know what system would prevail in the other Soviet Baltic republics, Latvia and Lithuania, but there seems reason for believing there will be no forced collectivization or nationalization.

Veimer said the republic faced a tremendous task of reconstruction, especially with winter coming and stores depleted of almost everything by the Germans.

He estimated it would take two years to rebuild the shattered town of Tallinn. The port is wrecked. Between 40 and 50 per cent. of the city's buildings were destroyed.

POLES SEEK GERMAN TERRITORY TO ODER

MOSCOW, Oct. 6—(AP)A claim to German territory as far as the Oder river was announced in Polish circles today, the first specific indication of the land compensation expected by the pro-Soviet Polish Committee of National Liberation in return for eastern Polish territories claimed by Russia.

The Oder, flowing northwest from Breslau, comes within about 30 miles of Berlin before turning north to enter the Baltic.

Poles Planning To Annex All Pomorze

Moscow, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation expects to annex German territory to the Oder river, which flows within 31 miles of Berlin, and the Baltic port of Stettin on its west bank, the Polpress News Agency declared today.

The agency originally was organized by the Union of Polish Patriots in Russia and now is the channel for news from inside Liberated Polish areas.

Polpress declared the annexation "will not be an act of revenge, but one of historical justice."

"Duty To New Europe"

"The Pomorze (Polish corridor) bridgehead must not be left in German hands," Polpress said. "It is our duty to the new Europe. The Oder is a Polish river. Restoration of all Pomorze to Poland is in the political, strategic and economic interests of the United Nations."

The agency cited ancient historians to support claims that Slavic tribes settled the region before the Teutons.

In a renewed attack against Lieut. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Bor), whom the Germans captured at Warsaw, a Lublin paper asserted that his elevation to commander in chief in place of Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski was "nothing but a changing of the guard which smelled of provocation against the Polish people."

Premier Not Attacked

Another Lublin paper, Rzeczpospolita, said "there is no legend about Bor except crime, but there is a legend about the heroic soldiers of Warsaw, whom Bor was not among."

None of the press comment, however, attacked the Premier of the London Polish regime, Stanislaw Mikolajczyk.

Rzeczpospolita, possibly voicing an invitation for the Premier to break with his exiled colleagues, said: "The way is open for Democrats who desire to work in the program for a free and independent Poland which is formulated by the Committee of National Liberation."

Foreign diplomats in Moscow appeared to take the realistic, if harsh view, that the capture of General Komorowski removed at least one important obstacle to Polish unity.

Romanian Regime Under Fire

Bucharest, Oct. 5 (AP—Delayed)—Romanian Socialist and Communist leaders today attacked the present regime as being incapable of carrying out the tasks before it.

The outburst followed a meeting between King Mihai, Premier Constantin Sanatescu and the leaders of the four-party coalition government.

Communist Leader Lucretziu Petrascanu, in a declaration to the Communist organ, Romania Nouva, said:

"The government has left many of the most important obligations of state planning undone. Although it is one of the most urgent matters the purge of the nation's administration has not even begun. Further, officials directly from the gallery of war criminals have been nominated to vacant posts."

Petrascanu declared that "only a government of broad democratic concentration can assume the difficult tasks" confronting Romania.

Topics Discussed

Socialist Leader Titel Petrescu said the conference with King Mihai discussed the de-Hitlerization of the administration, multiplication of efforts to free Transylvania and measures to assure order and to supply the population with work for all.

The Communists and Socialists announced in their news organs that they have agreed on a common platform of action based on close collaboration with the Soviet Union and destruction of Fascist influences.

Allied and Red Drives Predicted in Moscow

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Moscow radio forecast tonight fresh Allied and Russian offensives which would smash deep into Germany soon.

"Everything shows that in the near future Allied troops from the west and the Red Army from the east will strike fresh, powerful blows at the enemy and will shift hostilities into territory of Hitlerite Germany," said the broadcast, recorded here by the Soviet monitor.

AIR OFFENSIVE GOING STRONG

1,000 RAF Bombers Follow Up Heavy Allied Day Blows

London, Saturday, Oct. 7 (AP)—American and British heavy bombers raided Germany yesterday and last night in a series of mighty attacks on Berlin and other targets, probably pouring more than 10,000 tons of explosives on Reich war plants in their cumulative assault.

Approximately 1,300 United States Fortresses and Liberators hit Berlin and Hamburg in one of the greatest daylight raids of the war, and another fleet of 500 British Lancasters and Halifaxes struck synthetic oil plants in the Ruhr.

These daytime blows were followed up during the night by another RAF operation by an estimated 1,000 heavy bombers which hit Berlin for the third time in 24 hours, as well as Dortmund, Bremen and Saarbrucken.

Much Damage Reported

Preliminary reports said the night raiders had caused great destruction, adding to the wreckage left by the previous attacks in daylight and on Thursday night.

Pilots said the greater part of the port city of Bremen appeared to be ablaze, Dortmund was hard hit, and fires started in Saarbrucken Thursday night had been kindled anew by the latest attack.

The Fortresses and Liberators, under escort of 800 fighters, rained explosives on oil refineries, tank factories, aircraft engine plants and ordnance dumps.

The British daylight raiders, also well protected by fighters, made a heavy attack on synthetic oil plants at Scholden-Buer and Sterkrade in the Ruhr Valley in good flying weather.

The day's operations cost 19 American bombers and 10 fighters. Our four-engined warplanes knocked down three German planes while fighter escort bagged 17 more.

36 Seaplanes Wrecked

Fighters also destroyed 36 enemy seaplanes and wrecked three other enemy planes on the ground.

An army air force spokesman described the attack on the Reich capital as "the most devastating since July 21," when 1,000 American heavies bombed the city.

The German air force again was absent over Hamburg, but some fighters were encountered at Berlin.

The big daylight blows followed a heavy night strike by 400 RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes which dumped 350,000 incendiaries and many tons of high explosives, including two-ton bombs, on the important German industrial city and railway hub of Saarbrucken, opposite the American land front near Metz.

Saarbrucken Attack Heavy

British Mosquito bombers hit Berlin Thursday night as a feint for the Saarbrucken raid, described officially as "very heavy" and one that "should seriously interrupt the flow of supplies to the front," less than 50 miles away.

Although no fighters were met, three British bombers failed to return.

The Fortresses and Liberators, in weather favorable for visual bombing, flew a round trip of more than 1,400 miles to Berlin. The targets were the Tegel and Borsigswalde factories making 88-mm. self-propelled guns, an ordnance depot, tank depot and an air-engine plant in the Spadau suburb.

Airdromes Raided

Airdromes at Neu Brandenburg and Stargard, about 65 miles north of Berlin, also were attacked.

Part of the forces of 1,300 bombers veered northeast, attacking the Rhenania and Ebane oil refineries at Harburg across the Elbe estuary from Hamburg, and the Klockner aircraft engine factory and Glinde ordnance depot at Hamburg. Results were described as "generally excellent."

By daylight fighter-bombers raided Dunkerque, on the French Channel coast, when the truce there ended, and pounded the German garrison.

Both the American and British tactical air forces hammered enemy tank columns around Beggendorf, Germany, where an armored battle was raging.

1,200 Bombers Hit Reich Targets

London, Oct. 6 (AP)—A fleet of more than 1,200 American heavy bombers attacked an airplane-engine plant in Berlin and numerous other industrial objectives and airdromes in Germany today.

Strong forces of British heavy bombers dumped a profusion of two-ton bombs and more than 350,000 incendiaries last night on Saarbrucken, a major rail center and arsenal in the Siegfried Line behind Metz. Enemy broadcasts said itwas a terror raid.

British Mosquitos before dawn gave the German capital a sample of the heavier shower of explosives rained by one large force of the four-engined American planes in daylight.

Attack "Very Heavy"

As a railway point and advanced base, Saarbrucken now is of critical importance to the Germans. It is a focal point for main lines from nearly every part of Germany. Army units are being outfitted there constantly.

The attack was described officially as "very heavy," one which "should seriously interrupt the flow of supplies to the front."

Bomber crews reported explosions and large fires that appeared to spread all over the city.

During the night other Mosquitos kept up their spectacular train-busting and barge-sinking activities in Germany and Holland. They attacked 12 trains in the Hamm area to run their total to 146 destroyed or damaged in five nights.

One Plane Lost

Forty-four barges were attacked, mainly on the Rhine south of Emmerich. One Mosquito was lost.

Thirty-eight more barges were destroyed or damaged in daylight yesterday by rocket-firing Typhoons and Spitfires operating over Holland.

The Saarbrucken raiders encountered no fighter opposition. Three aircraft out of the force of approximately 400 failed to return.

NAZIS SAY NEW PLANES WILL WIN AIR VICTORY

LONDON, Oct. 6. — (AP) Hitler apparently is planning to have one last desperate fling in the sky with his hot-tailed jet planes.

The Fuehrer has given top priority to the creation of a "new air arm," the German News agency reported today, and for a week DNB has been telling listeners about "certain special new formations of the Luftwaffe" in operation over the western front.

Addressing a group of Nazi airmen recently ,Propaganda Minoster Paul Joseph Goebbels declared "a German force is being built up which will soon abolish Allied air supremacy."

Planes Pounce On Dunkirk

London, Oct. 6 (AP)—Allied fighter-bombers swooped on Dunkirk at 10 A. M. today at the exact moment the truce with the stranded German garrison expired.

Indications were, however, that the Canadian and British besiegers had not yet mounted a full-scale ground offensive against the last of the German-held Channel ports, which was the evacuation point for the battered remnants of the British Expeditionary Force in 1940.

The battle had been halted to allow French civilians safe exit from Dunkirk. The German-controlled Dutch radio said fighting was "raging more fiercely than ever before."

SOUTHERN ENGLAND HIT BY NAZI ROBOT BOMBS

LONDON, Oct. 6 — (AP) The Germans sent flying bombs over southern England tonight for the second successive night.

In a brief period just before the moon came up several came in from over the North sea but appeared to be launched farther south than recent robots.

Terrific gunfire met the flying bombs. One blew up in the air after being hit and another fell in open country.

Flying Bombs, Launched From Planes, Hit London

London, Oct. 6 (AP)—After a week's lull, flying bombs struck parts of southern England and London during the night—launched from Heinkel aircraft ranging over the North Sea.

At least one of the robot-carrying planes—which give away their position by the flash of light emitted in launching the bombs—was shot down in flames by an RAF Mosquito pilot.

The attack lasted only a few minutes but covered a wide area and caused damage and casualties. Two robots were destroyed by ack-ack guns.

One bomb crashed on two cottages in a country lane, killing six persons, including three in one family.

Churchill Asks for Unity During Allied Offensive

Predicts Much Bloodshed in Next Few Months

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today, "A great deal of blood is going to be shed in the next few months." He referred to the Allied offensive against Germany.

Appealing for inter-party harmony during a debate on a post-war reconstruction bill, Mr. Churchill said: "At the present time we must keep our pugnacity, as far as possible, for export purposes.

"Liberal, Conservative and Labor blood is going to be shed. It is my duty above all, while pushing forth great social measures, as far as I can to make sure all is comfortable behind the troops, all is comfortable at home and that no needless cause of difference should rise to an undue height or proportion."

Winant Says War Victory Is Not Enough for Peace

Tells British Institutes World Must Fight Inner Weakness

NEW BRIGHTON, Lancashire, England, Oct. 6 (AP).—American Ambassador John G. Winant said in an address today: "Victory on the field of battle is not enough, only faith can fight a faith."

Speaking to the Union of Lancashire and Cheshire Institutes, he said: "To suppose that the military defeat of our enemies will close all acounts is to miss the main moral of the ordeal through which we are passing."

Ambassador Winant added: "The catastrophe which threatened at one time to overwhelm our civilization sprang not merely from menaces launched from without, but from weaknesses from within. The cause of truth is r to ignore them, but to search for their cores and spare no effort to remove them."

Disorders Are Reported Inside Spanish Border

Madrid, Oct. 6 (AP)—Groups of Maquis—Spanish republican exiles who aided the French against the Germans—crossed the frontier Wednesday and clashed with troops from near-by Spanish garrisons, it was learned tonight. Authorities now report the situation "under control." There were several dead and wounded on both sides.

FIFTH ARMY TAKES LOIANA IN ITALY

Yanks Drive Toward Bologna Against Fierce Enemy Resistance.

ROME, Oct. 6 — (AP) Pushing forward up to three miles through rain and mud against stout resistance by crack Nazi reinforcements the American Fifty army won positions 13 miles southeast of Bologna yesterday and drove to within nine miles of the strategic Bologna-Rimini highway, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Americans captured the large town of Loiano on the highway from Florence 14 miles below Bologna, the greatest communications center in that part of Italy, and cleared Munzuno, three miles to the west of Loiano.

Drive Over Mountains

The Fifth army Yanks made their principal advance — and closest approach to Bologna and the Bologna-Rimini road — by driving over snow-covered mountains to a point 2,000 yards south of Monterenzio, a village in the muddy hills between the Imola road and route 65 leading to Bologna.

The progress was made against a desperate attempt by the Germans to block the Allied push toward the Po valley. The enemy poured in reinforcements including experienced Austrian and German Alpine troops.

On the right flank of the Americans, British forward elements pushed their way forward and dug in on Monte Cece and Monte Della Vale, approximately 15 air miles from Imola, but were driven off again by fierce enemy counterattacks.

In the isolated hill country still farther east on the central sector, Indian patrols found Monte Caibano and Scarzana clear of the enemy.

On the Americans' western flank South African troops smashed two counterattacks in the vicinity of Monte Vigese and captured Ripoli.

British Take Vignola

On the Adriatic coastal sector enemy shelling was heavy, but Indian troops of the Eighth army captured Vignola on high ground west of Rimini.

The Allied position along the Fiumicino river near the coast remained unchanged, but in the mountain sector Indian troops pushing from Sant Donato attacked Sogliano Al Rubicane, half a mile beyond captured Vignola. Stubborn fighting continued in the area of Sogliano village and Sant Martino Di Bagnolo, 2,000 yards to the northeast down the ridge.

Other Eighth army gains were registered farther to the southwest, where Tezzo was captured on the night of Oct. 4.

The weather severely curtailed air activity, but fighters and fighter-bombers strafed rail targets and motor traffic north of the battle area and shipping in the Adriatic. Mediterranean air forces flew approximately 200 sorties yesterday and destroyed three German planes at a cost of three.

Yanks Advance Three Miles In Italy

Rome, Oct. 6 (AP)—American Fifth Army troops hammered out gains up to three miles yesterday over the rain-bogged, mountainous terrain on the approaches to the Po Valley. They captured the road junction of Loiano, less than 14 miles south of Bologna on the main road from Florence, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Nazis threw reinforcements of experienced Austrian and German Alpine troops into the central sector adjacent to the highway and unloosed fierce artillery barrages. But on both sides of the road the Allies pushed ahead.

Monzuno Captured

Headquarters reported the capture of Monzuno, three miles west of Troiano and two miles north of Monte Venere, which was taken Wednesday.

East of Loiano, American doughboys advanced to a point 2,000 yards south of Monterenzio in the muddy hills between Route 65 and Imola.

Capture of Loiano gave the Americans a position commanding the highway to the communications center of Bologna.

Dig In On Peaks

On their right flank, Americans and forward elements of British pushed forward and dug in on Monte Cece and Monte Della Valle, about 15 air miles from Imola, but were driven back by heavy German counterattacks. In the isolated hill country of the central sector, Indian troops of the Eighth Army pushed upon Monte Caibano and Scarzana and found them clear of enemy troops.

On the Americans' western flank South African troops smashed two counterattacks near Monte Vigese and seized Ripoli.

Despite the weather, airmen bombed and strafed rail and motor traffic north of the battle area and enemy shipping in the Adriatic.

BRITISH SEAL OFF GULF OF CORINTH

Capture Fortified Town of Rion, Advance Toward Athens.

ROME, Oct. 6—(AP) British invasion forces in Greece advanced today toward the Isthmus of Corinth, gateway to Athens, and it appeared that the Germans already had abandoned most of the Peloponnesus getting out of all of Greece as rapidly as they could.

Seizure of the fortified town of Rion, seven miles east of the captured port of Patrai, sealed off the gulf of Corinth at its narrow mouth.

Nazi Traffic Shelled

Up the Adriatic coast, British guns on the Dalmatian islands shelled enemy traffic along the coastal road. British planes on a raid near Salonika destroyed three enemy transport planes and shot up a dozen retreating Nazi motor vehicles.

(The Ankara radio reported tonight that Allied troops were fighting on Corfu and that troops crossing from Albania had linked up with others already engaging the enemy on the island. The Paris radio reported another landing in Albania about five miles from the besieged enemy supply port of Sarande).

Deserted by their German masters, "security battalions" of collaborating Greeks were reported surrendering without a fight at many points in the Peloponnesus, and the visit of a minister of the Greek government to cities well inland indicated strongly that more than half of the peninsula already was firmly held by British troops and Greek patriots.

Premier George Papandreou announced that Panahgiotis Kanellopolous, minister of finance and reconstruction, had landed at the island of Kythera, "where the inhabitants gave him a heartfelt reception," then had gone to the Peloponnesus.

He addressed a crowd at Kalamai, at the head of the Messene gulf, and visited Tripolis, a city in the east central Peloponnesus, 60 miles southeast of captured Patrai and only 75 miles southwest of Athens.

At Rion, the British turned captured enemy guns "with good results" on the Germans attempting to reach the north shore of the Gulf of Corinth, it was announced. Dozens of small craft, discovered loaded with fleeing Germans along the south shore of the gulf, were attacked by rocket-firing Hurricanes of the Balkan Air force. The enemy's guns at Andirrion, opposite Rion, were silent yesterday.

Patrai was captured after several days of fighting when the surrender of 1,500 troops of the security battalions made the German garrison's position untenable.

Battle in Streets

There was night skirmishing in the streets after the security forces threw down their arms, but the Germans used the guns of their ships—mostly small craft—to hold off the tightening ring of British and partisan forces until most of the garrison of 1,000 was able to embark. They did not have time to demolish the harbor facilities, and the port was found to be in excellent condition.

A few prisoners were taken as the British advanced on Rion, but the enemy withdrew rapidly, and the town fell quickly to the invasion troops.

In Albania, the small British force which went ashore 11 days ago found its operations hampered by bad weather. There was some skirmishing between patrols, and artillery continued to shell the enemy garrison still holding out in the small port of Sarande, supply funnel for the German troops on Corfu.

Capture of the Aegean Island of Samos was announced in a communique issued by Greek headquarters in Cairo. British and Greek troops overcame the Fascist Italian garrison in a short engagement and without Allied casualties. German troops already had withdrawn from the island.

Supplementing the attacks of the Balkan air force, Mustangs and Lightnings of the United States 15th Air Force strafed a number of German airdromes in Greece this afternoon.

British Capture Rion, Seal Off Corinth Gulf

Rome, Oct. 6 (AP)—Allied land forces of the Adriatic have sealed off the entrance to the Gulf of Corinth in their Greek invasion by capturing the fortified port of Rion, Allied headquarters announced today. Official Greek reports indicated that more than half the Peloponnesus was securely in the hands of British troops and Greek Patriots.

Greek Premier George Papandreou said in a statement that a Minister of his Cabinet had visited Tripols, where "security battalions"—Greeks fighting on the side of the Germans—had "surrendered to British officers without any skirmish."

75 Mles From Athens

Tripolis, in the east central Peloponnesus, is 60 miles southeast of captured Patrai on the Gulf of Corinth and 75 miles southwest of Athens.

Rion was overwhelmed in an eastward advance along the Gulf of Corinth from Patrai.

The Greek announcement also said the government member, landing from the Island of Kythera, off Greece's south coast, had visited Kalamai on the southwest coast.

This indicated the territory intervening between Kalamai and Tripolis was virtually free of Germans.

Many Prisoners

Enemy security battalions have surrendered at a number of other points in Greece, a communique said. Fifteen hundred prisoners were taken at Patrai alone.

Immediately after seizing Rion, seven miles up the coast from Patrai, the British turned enemy coastal guns captured there against large numbers of small craft in which the Germans were trying to flee northward across the Gulf of Corinth. An official statement said good results were obtained in this shelling.

German Guns Silent

German guns at Andirrion, immediately opposite Rion on the north shore of the narrow entrance to the gulf, remained silent yesterday.

The fall of Patrai, which had been the main enemy supply port on Greece's west coast, came after German security troops had surrendered near the town, making the position of the garrison untenable. At Rion, the Germans fell back quickly.

An official report said that before the fall of Patrai, British seaborne supplies had to be unloaded at the much less satisfactory port of Katakolon, about 50 miles to the southwest.

Advance Not Disclosed

Despite the announcement of the capture of enemy security battalions in several parts of the Peloponnesus, there still was no official word on how far the British have extended their lines.

In southern Albania other British units which landed 11 days ago continued to harass German communications leading to the small port of Sarande, supply base for the Corfu island garrison. The enemy retained artillery positions along the Sarande-Delvine road.

Allied guns on several Dalmatian islands continued shelling of the Yugoslav coast.

Germans Attempt To Flee

In Greece, the Germans appeared to be attempting to flee by every available means—air, land and sea.

Aircraft patroling the Salonika area Wednesday night destroyed two JU-52 transports, one Heinkel 111 and shot up a dozen motor vehicles.

An official report of the capture of Patrai said:

"After night skirmishing in the streets of Patrai, in which an RAF regiment took part with the land forces of the Adriatic, the remainder of the German garrison escaped in small craft, mostly Siebel ferries. Under the cover of darkness early Wednesday they used the ships' guns to hold off a tightening ring of British and Partisans until they were able to embark."

Charges Not Set Off

The enemy left so hurriedly that demolition charges intended to blow up harbor installations were not set off.

From Rion the British still had roughly 70 miles to travel to reach the Isthmus of Corinth, which would seal off the only land escape for any German forces in the south.

Roosevelt Calls News on Greece Deeply Moving

Hull Also Salutes Nation for Enduring 4 Years of German Oppression

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt issued a statement today declaring he was deeply moved over the news that the British had landed and begun the liberation of Greece.

The statement:

"I am deeply moved at the news that the liberation of Greece has begun. In a truer sense, its enslavement has never been a fact. For nearly four years an indomitable Greek nation has suffered the terrifying effects of aggression on an unprecedented scale.

"When many men—even stout-hearted men of good will—had almost lost hope, the Greek people challenged the invincibility of the mechanized monster, pitting against inhuman engines of war and cold-blooded, calculating strategy little more than the fierce spirit of freedom.

"Four years is a long time to starve and die, to see children massacred, to watch villages burn to rubble and ashes. But it is not a long enough time to extinguish the clear flame of the Hellenic heritage which throughout centuries has taught the dignity of man.

"It is more than fitting, it is inevitable, that as hopeless darkness is engulfing the ideals of Nazi barbarism the clear Greek air will once more be breathed by free men without fear of oppression, and that the Acropolis, for twenty-five centuries a symbol of man's accomplishment in an environment of human liberty, will again be a beacon of faith for the future."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull issued a statement in which he said:

"The present military action to liberate Greece and release the Greek people from the martyrdom which they have suffered for three and a half long years comes as welcome news to the American government and people.

"Greek resistance has never faltered, either inside or outside the country, despite the starvation of the population, the savage destruction of Greek towns and the wanton killing of Greek hostages by the enemy.

"The entire civilized world will rejoice in the expulsion of the Nazis from this cradle of our Western civilization, where the presence of these modern barbarians has seemed particularly odious."

Summey Would Qualify For Gunner-Ace Title

Rome, Oct. 6 (AP)—If there were such a thing as a gunner-ace, Sergt. Walker Summey, of Radford, Va., would have won that title.

Summey, who joined the air force at 18 in 1941, gave up the comparative safety of ground crew work to volunteer for the dangerous job of tail gunner. He has been on tours of duty with three separate air forces and has completed 57 missions. He wears the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal, with seven oak leaf clusters, and the European campaign ribbon with five major battle stars.

Summey counts two successive raids on Vienna among his toughest assignments. The first day from 50 to 60 German fighters jumped the bomber formation and Summey's tail gun accounted for at least one of them.

"I got my fourth fighter that day and the next I got my fifth," he said.

Allies Cut Tiddim's 'Chocolate Staircase'

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 6 (AP)—Indian infantry jungle fighters were reported today to have cut across the top of the so-called "Chocolate Staircase" highway which leads up the mountains by many twists and turns to the Japanese northwestern Burma base of Tiddim.

At the same time the main 14th Army advance down the Manipur road was closing a nine-mile gap and crushing Japanese trapped by a roadblock four miles north of Tiddim.

JAPANESE FORCES SMASH THROUGH FOOCHOW SUBURBS

CHUNGKING, Oct. 6.—Reinforced Japanese have reached the northwestern suburbs of Foochow, last Chinese-held major port on the East China coast, in their drive to forestall American landings from the Pacific, the Chinese high command announced tonight. Fall of the city seemed imminent.

Japanese forces which landed in the maritime province of Fukien early this week made swift progress toward the port, which they once previously had occupied.

(CBS quoted a Berlin broadcast which said Foochow was captured and that "the area of Foochow, which is opposite Formosa, is being furnished with a powerful defense system.")

Major fighting raged in four Chinese provinces—Fukien, Hunan, Kwangsi and Kwangtung. The Chinese communique said defenders operating behind the Japanese lines had recaptured the important town of Szewui, 47 miles northeast of Canton in Kwangtung province, but in Kwangsi, the fall of Paoching appeared near.

The high command yesterday admitted contact with the defenders of Paoching, key Hunan city 135 miles north of Kweilin, Kwangsi defense center, was broken off last Tuesday. However, the communique said a lone unit in the city which started a counterattack Tuesday had made contact with reinforcements the same evening in the northeastern section.

Fall of Paoching would remove a threat to the Japanese right flank in the enemy drive against Kweilin. At present the Japanese, at their nearest point, are only about 25 miles from Kweilin, Maj. Gen. Chang Tung Chuen, a new army spokesman, told a press conference.

The high command admitted still another reverse—Japanese occupation last Monday of Changning, a coveted position on their left flank 37 miles south of the enemy-held Canton-Hankow junction of Hengyang.

To the south in Kwangtung two enemy columns based on Pingham, a west river center 80 miles southeast of Liuchow in Kwangsi, attacked areas to the northwest and west, but were repulsed yesterday. Another enemy column crossed from the Kwangsi border from Kwangtung, heading for the west river, and reached a point 40 miles east of Pingnam. They joined with other forces pushing westward against Liuchow in an attempt to outflank Kweilin from the south.

The Chinese newspaper Ta Kung Pao appealed to Britain and the United States today to open a "second front" in China, which it said would be as important to victory in the East as it was in Europe.

JAPANESE REACH FOOCHOW SUBURBS

Chungking, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—The Japanese forces invading maritime Fukien province have reached the northwestern suburbs of Foochow, the Chinese High Command said tonight.

The Japanese, who have occupied the important port before, apparently expect to take it again without difficulty. The landings in Fukien were announced by Tokyo early this week and were pictured as part of an attempt to forestall American landings from the Pacific which would sever the Japanese communications with the south.

Tonight's Chinese communique sail that a lone Chinese unit isolated inside Paoching, a Hunan province town 135 miles north of the Kwangsi defense center of Kweilin, has made contact with reinforcements which counter-attacked and entered the city from the northeast. Paoching, on the right wing of the Japanese offensive against Kweilin, may be an intended jumping-off point for an enemy drive westward to cut highway communications somewhere south of Chungking.

In a broadcast picked up at New York today by CBS, the Berlin radio reported the capture of Foochow by the Japanese, adding: "The area of Foochow, which is opposite Formosa, is being furnished with a powerful defense system."

In a broadcast recorded by NBC, the Tokyo radio said that the Japanese forces are less than thirteen miles east of Kweilin.

U. S. PLANES BLAST JAP SHIPPING IN DUTCH EAST INDIES

Bombers Score Hits on Four Ships in Continuing Air War.

MINE LAYER DESTROYED

Raiders Attack Airdromes and Supply Depots on Celebes Isle.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Saturday, Oct. 7.—(AP) In the continuing Allied air war against Japan's shipping, planes sank or damaged four ships and spread havoc among small surface craft in the Dutch East Indies Tuesday and Wednesday.

Headquarters announced the results in today's communique.

An enemy mine layer and two cargo ships were sunk in the Celebes-Ambonia area.

Four More Ships

The bag of four ocean-going ships increased the total for October in the southwest Pacific theater to 23 sunk or damaged by planes.

Today's communique listed eight small surface craft sunk and 11 damaged.

At Celebes, the raiders attacked airdromes and supply depots and destroyed two grounded aircraft.

In the mopup drive against bypassed Japanese, 595 more have been killed and 153 captured on New Guinea and in the Solomons, headquarters reported.

Balikpapan, whose oil installations supply 15 per cent of the petroleum products of the Japanese war machine, was hit and badly damaged last Saturday by 60 bombers. The follow-up raid on Tuesday was made by 40 Liberators, Tokyo reported.

The importance which the Japanese attach to Balikpapan is apparent in the opposition to the Yanks on both raids. The first cost three Liberators and the Japanese lost seven zeros. The second attack was more costly to both sides. The Japanese lost at least 19 and perhaps 24 planes, the Yanks seven bombers.

Both raids touched off huge blasts among refineries and storage tanks, starting fires that sent clouds of smoke thousands of feet in the air.

Report Kita Raided

Domei, Japanese news agency, in a broadcast recorded by the FFC, said the American attack on Kita was met by Japanese planes and that two attacking Liberators were shot down in "a fierce air battle."

There was no American confirmation of the report.

This reported attack was the closest approach to the Japanese mainland ever made by American planes approaching from the Kuriles. Kita is 310 miles northeast of Hokkaido, northernmost of the main islands.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, last night made another report on Japanese and American casualties in the American invasion of Peleliu, Angaur and other islands in the southern Palaus.

Japanese dead, from Sept. 15 through Oct. 5 was placed at 11,043 against 1,022 Americans. Total American casualties, Marine corps and Army, were 7,408 including 6,106 wounded.

Fighting continued on Peleliu and Angaur against pocketed Japanese soldiers.

Borneo Oil Facilities Blasted Second Time

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Oct. 6 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today that a second crippling blow was dealt Japan's big source of aviation gasoline and lubricating oil at Balikpapan Tuesday by Liberator bombers, seven of which were lost in fierce sky battles with 40 Zeros.

At least 19 and perhaps 24 of the enemy planes were shot down over the Borneo base, while 40 tons of explosives touched off huge blasts among refineries and storage tanks.

The loss of seven Liberators was the largest number for a single raid yet announced by this headquarters.

Nine More Ships Hit

Three Liberators were lost while downing seven Zeros in the first mass raid on Balikpapan last Saturday.

Tokyo radio said that 30 Liberators made up the raiding party Tuesday against Balikpapan.

The communique also reported nine enemy freighters sunk or damaged during raids by Allied planes against the southern Philippines, Amboina and Ceram.

A communique last night at Pearl Harbor by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz told of the bombing of a Japanese destroyer and large cargo ship near Iwo Jima, in the Volcano Islands, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

Nimitz's communique brought casualty figures in the invasion of the Palaus up to date while maintaining the ratio of more than ten Japanese slain for every American.

From September 15, opening day of the invasion, through yesterday, the total of Japanese dead was placed at 11,043, against 1,022 Americans (771 First Division marines, 251 81st Division army troops). American casualties totaled 7,408, including 6,106 wounded (4,650 marines, 1,456 soldiers) and 280 missing (267 marines, 13 soldiers).

Borneo Defenses Sharp

Southwest Pacific Bomber Field., Oct. 6 (AP)—Japanese Zeros and gunners took the heaviest toll of Liberators of any raid in the Southwest Pacific when the "Suicide Boys" of the United States 13th Air Force smashed the great Balikpapan oil center on Borneo Tuesday.

The Japs put up a smart defense but the Liberators got through and bombed "hell out of Balikpapan," said First Lieutenant Herbert W. Woolard, Jr., of Clarksburg, W. Va., who flew his ship for seven hours on three engines.

Most Effective Raid

Maj. Gen. St. Clair Street, of the 13th Air Force, called this second raid in force on Balikpapan one of the most effective yet, "but it took every bit of our skill, courage and ingenuity to pull it off."

One direct hit destroyed a huge sulphuric acid tank sending yellow smoke billowing 8,000 feet. The Pandansari refinery, center of 15 per cent. of Japan's aviation fuel supply, and the Edeleanu refinery were hit. Bombs landed squarely on storage tanks, refinery, barracks, refraction towers and a barrel factory.

At Least 19 Bagged

Liberator gunners shot down 19 of 40 interceptors and probably six more.

The 13th's famous Suiciders accomplished this at a price of seven Liberators lost, a dozen damaged, and many returning crewmen wounded.

Zeros closed in on the Liberators ten minutes from the target and shot down the first bomber over Balikpapan. A Japanese bomber picked up the approaching Liberators and went over the target ahead of them, giving the anti-aircraft crews the exact level of the attacks.

Heaviest Flak Yet

The flak was described as the heaviest ever—thicker than Rabaul, Truk, Yap or Palau.

Despite serious damage to his plane, Lieutenant Woolard tried to cover the parachuting crew of one falling Liberator from strafing Zeros. Some of the chutes were machine gunned. Woolard also led one hopelessly crippled plane from the target and stuck with her until the pilot signaled him to go on home.

Edward S. Anderson, of Prospect Heights, Ill., and John J. Leffert, of 486 141st Street, New York, manning guns in the same Liberator, each shot down two Zeros, as First Lieutenant John E. Rodwick, of Williamsville, N. Y., took the plane over the target. It was a record for a single Liberator on one mission.

Japs Report Air Attack Deep In Kuriles

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—Twelve American Liberators bombed Kita Island Thursday morning in the deepest reported penetration of the Kurile Islands, the Japanese Domei news agency said today.

The broadcast claimed that two attacking planes were shot down in "a fierce air battle."

Tiny Kita Island is 310 miles northeast of Hokkaido, northernmost of the main islands of Japan. The closest previously announced approach to Japan proper by Aleutian-based bombers was in four attacks from mid-May to mid-June on Shimushiri, 400 miles northeast of Hokkaido.

Palau Isle Bombed

Fifty medium bombers, presumably operating from a former Japanese airfield on Peleliu, raided Babelthuap, largest of the Palau Islands, another Domei dispatch said.

Domei reported Premier General Kuniaki Koiso warned a Cabinet meeting that the Pacific war has "now reached a grave situation which will decide the rise or fall of imperial Japan." This has been a stock expression of Nipponese leaders for the last six months.

Aussie Suggests U. S. Pacific Bases

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 6 (AP). Australia and Britain would be glad to see American occupation of bases in the Pacific, Sir Keith Murdock, leading Australian newspaper publisher, said today.

Murdock, chairman of the Australian-American cooperation movement, said in an address that the United States had no territorial ambitions in the Pacific islands north of Australia, but he had no doubt American military leaders would recommend establishing bases there.

He said Australia's strategic position demanded a barrier across these islands—the Japanese mandated Carolines, Marianas and Marshalls.

200 Dead Whales Litter Australian Beach

Adelaide, Australia, Oct. 6 (AP)—Two hundred whale carcasses, ranging up to 16 feet in length, littered a five-mile stretch of Primes Beach on the South Australian coast today as residents pondered the malodorous problem of their disposal.

The mammals were left stranded by receding tides.

crews for the most part—are moving into the woods now in special armed trains. The Government, trying to help the pulp and paper industry meet its demand for 60,000 seasonal workers, boosted the number of prisoners to 10,000 from last year's 2,000 to 4,000 volunteers.

Not all are volunteer this year, and some of the Germans objected. Officials are reported taking the sternest measures permitted under terms of the Geneva Conventions: confinement to barracks or diets of bread and water. As far as escapes are concerned, the Canadians aren't worried. Intense cold, trackless forests, the question of food and the ease of trailing a fugitive through snow would make recapture comparatively easy, they feel.

Rios Expected To Name New Cabinet

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Chilean Cabinet which was formed August 31, 1943, has resigned to give President Juan Antonio Rios a free hand in organizing a new government meeting the approval of all parties, the office of the Government's General Secretary announced last night.

The announcement said a new administrative or non-political Cabinet would be formed, possibly today. Rios has said several times that he hoped to avoid political quarrels and form a purely business Cabinet.

The resignations caused no excitement or nervousness in the country.

"It Was No Good"

"I advised Hitler to come to some agreement with Russia. . . . I told him that we had lost the initiative since June, 1942, and that a country that loses the initiative loses the war.

"I tried to play on his superstition. . . . I asked him to remember that terrible first winter. Then I mentioned the disaster at Stalingrad. But it was no good. It was no good.

"At Salzburg (a Hitler-Mussolini conference in April, 1942) I told Hitler that we would never be able to go back to Africa, that the Italian islands would certainly be invaded and that there was only one way to prevent defeat. I told him: 'You must make peace with Russia'. . . But it was no good.

Again Urged Peace In Vain

"At Feltre (in July, 1943) our meeting was not a success . . . As usual the questions I wanted to raise were not raised; those Hitler wanted to raise were discussed instead. I repeated my theory of a peace with Russia. It was no good."

Maugeri quotes the Duce as having given this opinion of Count Ciano (Mussolini's executed son-in-law), who was dismissed as Foreign Minister:

"He is really an infamous figure."

"You know all went well until 1938," Mussolini continued. "There were great works. We built the empire. I gave Albania to the crown."

Vainly Warned Hitler Of Reds, Duce Quoted

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—A story telling how Mussolini endeavored to warn Hitler against the might of Russia, but to no avail, is told in the current issue of Life magazine.

The article is credited to Admiral Franco Maugeri, identified by Life as the head of Italian naval intelligence, and it records conversations between Mussolini and Admiral Maugeri as he escorted Mussolini to Ponza and Sardinia. Maugeri later joined the Patriots' Resistance Front in Italy, Life said.

"The Germans had thought they could liquidate Russia in a few months," the admiral quotes Mussolini. "They were diabolically deceived by the Russians. I myself would not have believed it if Hitler himself had not told me about in 1937 and I had died.

"And now think! If Russia wins the war, what prestige Stalin will have! Hitler thinks of Stalin as his real rival, the only rival worthy of him."

JAPANESE PREMIER ACCUSES CABINET

The Japanese Cabinet has failed to carry out some "decisive wartime measures . . . at this moment of national crisis," Domei, the Japanese government-controlled news agency, reported today, according to the Associated Press.

The words were attributed to the Premier, Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, in a propaganda broadcast beamed to America and Asia and recorded by the FCC.

Domei said that Koiso warned his ministers at a six-hour session that they must give fullest attention to matters that stand in the way of the prosecution of the war, that he expressed the earnest hope that all Cabinet ministers and Government offices would achieve complete unity, and that he referred to many cases in which failure to convey the Cabinet decisions to administrative officials had caused hitches in the war effort. It gave no further clue to the reported lapse in "decisive wartime measures."

In another broadcast Domei indicated that Japan was beginning to withdraw officials from the Axis and occupied countries in Europe. The Secretariat of the Finance Ministry and its staff members who have hitherto been stationed in Germany, Italy and France, it said, have been reassigned to occupied China.

Jap Fan Firms Make Wings

San Francisco, Oct. 6 (AP) — A business of '300 years standing" has been abandoned on Shikoku Island in Japan.

The Tokyo radio announced yesterday fan makers have plunged into aircraft production because "their delicate technique in fan making will henceforth do much toward increased production of airplane wings."

Jap Doctors Kill Own Wounded

Washington, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Evidence that Japanese Army doctors "are under orders to kill their own patients if their capture appears imminent" is reported by Brig.-Gen. R. W. Bliss, assistant surgeon-general of the Army.

Gen. Bliss, just back from the Pacific, also told reporters that the Japanese "have bombed their own hospitals with patients in them.

NAZIS BALK AT JOBS IN PULP FORESTS

Montreal, Oct. 6 A. P.).—Some German war prisoners are refusing to work in Canada's forests, where they were sent to cut pulpwood and help the Dominion's paper industry meet a worldwide demand for newsprint and other papers. Their balking, as the annual trek to the timber reserves for the season's wood harvest begins, raises serious questions in some quarters as to the value of prisoner labor.

CHINESE ACCEPT DUMBARTON PLAN

Washington, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—The Chinese delegation at Dumbarton Oaks has accepted without change, it was learned today, the blueprint for a world security organization drawn up by Britain, Russia and the United States in the first phase of the conference. The final session is expected to be held tomorrow with the resulting document scheduled to be made public next Monday.

It was said that when American and British delegates explained to the Chinese the document worked out with the Russians they were satisfied that the principles they supported either were included or implied.

The main questions dealt with in this manner were:

1. Assurance that quick international action would be taken to eliminate any threats to world peace without time-wasting debate.

2. A sufficiently concrete definition of aggression so that there could be no last-minute backing down by the international organization if the peace is broken.

3. Provision for tying in international economic, social welfare and cultural organizations with the future world peace agency.

Still to be settled, officials say, is the question of whether a major Power accused of aggression should be permitted to participate in the security organization's vote on the matter, a point which the Russians are reported to have favored.

With Pan American's proposed fares of thre and one-half to five cents a mile and 108-passenger planes, future American vacationists may be able to pass the major part of a two-week holiday in Rio de Janeiro or Buenos Aires, J. C. Roop, Pan American vice-president and treasurer, testified.

The four-engined planes, with cruising speeds of 296 miles an hour, will cover the 4,964 miles from New York to Rio, Pan American officials said, in less than twenty hours. A round-trip fare of $315 for the New York-Rio flight was proposed.

Pan American also plans to use the 108-passenger planes on flights from Miami to the Panama Canal Zone, Los Angeles to the Canal Zone and on a Pan American-Grace Airways flight from the Canal Zone to Buenos Aires.

The company listed these proposed round-trip fares: New York to Buenos Aires, $342.90; Miami to Rio de Janeiro, $300.60, and Los Angeles to Rio, $405. Mr. Roop asserted, however, that such fares would not be possible if another American-owned airline were allowed to operate in Pan American's present territory.

New York as a gateway for direct flights to Latin America was urged by Pan American in exhibits filed with the board. Pointing out that the eastern part of South America lies farther east than the east coast of this country, Pan American contended it is "wholly unnatural" for travelers from northeastern United States to begin a southeastward journey by traveling southwest to Miami.

The Florida terminal, however, Pan American said, should maintain its importance as eastern gateway to Puerto Rico, the Canal Zone and the Caribbean.

The company also opposed applications by American Airlines, Braniff Airways and Chicago & Southern Airlines to fly to Mexico City through Texas gateways because, it contended, such traffic "would make Pan American dependent for its passengers on hostile connections."

Pan American is seeking these new flights:

Los Angeles to Mexico City, New York to San Juan, Puerto Rico; Charleston to Nassau and San Juan; Tampa to Havana, New Orleans to Havana and Balboa, Houston to Mexico City and Houston to Merida, Mex., and Barranquilla, Colombia. The company is also seeking a permanent certificate on the route from New Orleans to Merida, Mex., and Guatemala, which it is now serving on a temporary certificate.

New Air Links to Latin America Are Outlined at C. A. B. Hearing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Plans of Pan American Airways for "mass transportation at low rates and high speed" between the United States and Latin America in post-war years were outlined today as the air line faced cross-examination before a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing by attorneys for fifteen other applicants.

Opposing applications for service to Latin America through Miami by Eastern and National Airlines, Pan American said:

"We would be faced with the problem that our passengers would have to travel to the gateway over the very air line competing with Pan American for the haul beyond."

2 Pension Types For Vets' Kin

By James Marlow

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Government pays two kinds of pensions to survivors of servicemen and veterans.

GROUP 1—Pensions are paid for death in service in line of duty or for a veteran's death—any time after his military discharge—caused by a disability connected with his military service.

This pension goes to the widow and unmarried minor children.

Widows and children in this group are automatically considered dependent and therefore get the pension no matter how large their private income may be.

Parents, If Dependent

Parents of veterans in this group are also pensionable, if dependent, but in their case dependency must be proved.

Death pension rates in all these cases, paid monthly, are:

Widow without child, $50; widow with one child, $65 (with $13 for each additional child, although the total monthly payment to widow and children cannot exceed $100); no widow but one child, $25; no widow but two children, $38 equally divided, with $10 for each additional child; dependent mother or father, $45, or both, $25 each.

Death Of Other Cause

GROUP 2—Pensions are paid for death of a veteran—after discharge from military service—who had a service-connected disability but died of some other cause.

The veterans' administration pays all death pensions. Its interpretation of Group 2—a veteran who had a service-connected disability but died of some other cause—is so liberal that almost any service-connected injury or disability will bring a pension to his family after his death from some cause not connected with his military service at all.

For example: Tom Smith, while in service, was shot in the hand. The hand healed, never bothered him again. Years after his discharge he was killed by a truck. There would be a pension in this case.

Limit On Income

These nonservice-connected death pensions go to widows and children only. Parents are no eligible. But this nonservice-connected death pension cannot be paid to a widow without children—or to an orphan—whose income exceeds $1,000 yearly, or to a widow with a child or children whose income exceeds $2,500 yearly.

(Thus widows and children in Group 2 get no pension if their private income exceeds a certain sum specified above. But widows and children in Group 1 get the pension no matter how much their income.)

The pension rates in Group 2 are: Widow, $35 monthly; widow with one child, $45, and $5 for each additional child; for one orphan (no widow), $18; two orphans, $27; three orphans, $36, with additional orphans $4 each.

Gratuity Pay

This is seldom mentioned but is worth remembering:

The Government will make a gift—called gratuity pay—to the survivors of any serviceman who dies while still in service from any cause not due to his own misconduct.

This payment is an amount equal to six months' pay at the rate received by the serviceman at the time of his death. It is not necessary that his death occur in line of duty. This is paid by the War and Navy Departments.

Connally Indorses Decentralization Plan

Washington, Oct. 6 (AP)—Decentralization of heavy industries in the post-war period, recommended by the McCarran committee of the Senate, was urged today by Senator Connally (D., Texas) to liberate the South and Southwest from "colonial status" in the national economy.

Strongly indorsing the post-war planning policies recommended by a special Senate group headed by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), Connally, in a statement, said:

"Reconversion policies followed during the next several months will determine the pattern of our economy for many years to come, and it is obviously in the national interest that these policies contemplate the decentralization of industry whenever possible and the reconversion of war plants in the South and Southwest to civilian production."

Reparations In Kind Urged

Washington, Oct. 6 (AP)—A plan to keep German industry and labor producing after the war as they have under Hitler, but turning over excess output to the Allies as reparations, was advanced today by Senator Reed (R., Kan.).

"This would not be asking the impossible of the German people," Reed said, "only what Hitler required of them. And you would make the industrial organization of Germany available for reparations in kind, not in money."

For ten years, he said, Hitler has kept the Germans on a certain basis of hours worked per week—a required number, not an optional one. And, by means of controlled prices and rations, he said Hitler had kept the people on a fixed standard of living.

Morgenthau Plan Hit

"Why not continue that indefinitely?" he asked.

Reed classified as "silly" a program advocated by Treasury Secetary Morgenthau calling for elimination of German industrial power and conversion of the country into a pastoral land.

"Germany is the most highly industrialized country in continental Europe," he said. "She has the most skilled technicians, the ablest scientists, the most advanced chemical and metallurgical works. Europe needs the things they produce."

$7,000,000 FOR LOST LINER

WSA Will Pay President Lines for the Coolidge, Sunk in Pacific

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Government will pay $7,000,000 as reimbursement for loss of the pre-war liner President Coolidge, which was sunk by a mine in the Southwest Pacific in October, 1942.

The War Shipping Administration said tonight that payment would be made to the American President Lines, Ltd., which chartered the ship to the Maritime Commission soon after Pearl Harbor. The vessel was being operated by the Navy when it was sunk.

The Coolidge was one of the largest combination freight-and-passenger vessels flying the American flag before the war. It was constructed at a cost of $3,017,690, WSA said, and had a dead weight of 17,200 tons.

CALLS LONG WAR ROOSEVELT'S AIM

Washington, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Senator Wherry (R.-Neb.) contended today that President Roosevelt is designing a "policy of perpetual war" which postpones "the final day of reckoning with injustice, tyranny and brutality."

The Senate's Republican whip said in a statement that the administration already has begun "the deliberate, planned attack on the two-thirds treaty making rule of the Senate," and added:

"We have been told that the main purpose of the organization being considered at Dumbarton Oaks is to provide for peaceful change within an ordered and peaceful society when, as a matter of fact, we are being driven into a state of perpetual war.

"If no peace treaties are to be presented for ratification, how will Congress be able to declare an end to the present state of hostilities?

Asserting the American people "are now being herded down the road of uncritical and unprincipled appeasement both of Russia and Great Britain," he asked: "was not Gov. Dewey right when he charged the President is afraid of peace?"

LIGHT CLOTHING SEEN AFTER WAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 — (AP) In the postwar world you may be fighting your way through a blizzard and you may encounter a man strolling in a light-weight sweater and thin slacks.

And he may be warmer than you.

An industrial expert of the Commerce department said today: "The idea that clothing has to be thick and heavy to protect against the cold is gradually being disproved. It is known today that Winter clothing may be of the lightest kind."

Contrary to the popular belief that the function of Winter clothes is to keep the heat in and the cold out, this expert says body heat and moisture must be allowed to pass through without admitting cold.

If the moisture stays in, it condenses, "making the wearer more susceptible to illness."

The information appears in an article by Margaret E. Wambsganss in the October issue of "Domestic Commerce." She says the new ideas about Winter clothes open a wide field of possibilities for new fabrics.

She says, too, that developments in the synthetic fiber industry in war-time have been "well-nigh miraculous" and that the public will have "many pleasant surprises" after the war.

Such as clothing that:

Won't get dirty, or if it does, the spots can be wiped clean in a jiffy.

Won't wrinkle (imagine a shirt that won't need to be ironed after washing);

Won't be a tasty dish for moths;

Won't burn;

Will retain perfect pleats, even when washed.

Eric Johnston Asks Hull To Allow Trade Travel

Reply May Stress Equality for Allies in Freed Areas

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, proposed today to Secretary of State Cordell Hull that American business men be permitted as rapidly as possible to go into liberated areas of Europe which are no longer combat zones.

Mr. Johnston wrote Mr. Hull conveying a resolution adopted by the Chamber directors Sept. 22, requesting action to permit American business men to get back into the European area as quickly as war conditions will permit.

Mr. Hull's reply, some advisers said, may stress the need for admitting American, British and other Allied business representatives on a basis of equal opportunity and also may note that immediate decision on when any business men may go to Europe is up to Allied military authorities. As soon as the military has given the word, State Department officials say there will be no barriers in the way of issuing passports.

Roosevelt Rap at Silver Shirts Brings Sedition Mistrial Move

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt's reference to the Silver Shirts in last night's campaign speech was cited by defense attorneys in the mass sedition trial today as cause for a mistrial.

Judge Edward C. Eicher directed that written motions be filed over the week end and said he would hear them on Monday.

William Dudley Pelley, one of the twenty-six defendants accused of conspiracy to undermine morale of the armed forces, formerly was leader of the Silver Shirts.

President Roosevelt, saying the Republicans had charged that the Administration would sell out American democracy to the Communists, added in his speech: "This form of fear propaganda is not new among rabble rousers and fomenters of class hatred who seek to destroy democracy itself. It was used by Mussolini's Black Shirts and by Hitler's Brown Shirts. It has been used before in this country by the Silver Shirts and others on the lunatic fringe."

Defense Attorney Ethelbert B. Frey called Judge Eicher's attention to this passage in the President's speech and said "it seems this case is a political issue."

Mr. Frey asked that further trial of the case be postponed until after the election, but J. Austin Latimer, another defense attorney, and Lawrence Dennis, a defendant acting as his own attorney, indicated they would ask a mistrial in written motions.

Mr. Dennis prepared an argument memorandum taking the line that the jurors must have been hopelessly prejudiced by the President's remarks; that while they had been instructed not to read about the trial, they could not have been expected to anticipate the President's reference to the Silver Shirts.

"The facts are painfully simple," Mr. Dennis said in a memorandum prepared by him for the court. "By the terms of the indictment the Silver Shirts are here on trial. Only yesterday and now today we are still cross-examining a witness who testifies to the circulation of Mr. Pelley's publications. That witness called Mr. Pelley's group a movement only yesterday. A few hours later the Chief Magistrate of the nation saw fit, over a nation-wide hookup in a political campaign address, to denounce Mr. Pelley's movement.

"We challenge the right of the President or any other Federal official," Mr. Dennis added, "to use free time given him over the radio to denounce a defendant in this trial during the course of the trial. We hold that this Executive intervention is the last straw."

SENATOR DEMANDS PROBE OF OPENED ABSENTEE BALLOTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 — (AP) Senator Willis (R-Ind.) said today he had sent to Secretary of War Stimson photographic copies of soldier vote envelopes censored en route to Logansport, Ind., and had demanded an investigation.

Willis added that if results of the inquiry warranted he would seek Justice department action.

The Senator also said he had received letters alleging intimidation of service men who wished to vote Republican.

(At a news conference two weeks ago, Stimson was told there had been charges that censors opened envelopes containing soldier votes in state primaries. Stimson said the War department had investigated such reports and its inquiry "has not disclosed to date a single ballot envelope opened by any censor." He said as early as Dec. 15, 1943, the Department issued specific orders for censors to leave unopened any envelope "plainly marked as ballot material.")

Willis said the photographs of censored ballot envelopes were sent him by Robert D. Schmidt, Cass County, Ind., clerk, who reported his office had received ten ballots that were opened by censors and three others that were tampered with.

"The envelopes were inspected although they had been clearly marked 'war ballot'," Willis said.

The Senator made public a letter he said was from a woman in Toledo, Ohio, who wrote that a soldier in the South Pacific had written her that he had "torn up his ballot because he wouldn't vote for Roosevelt and dared not vote for Dewey."

Another letter which Willis said was from a woman in Ottumwa, Iowa, quoted a Naval officer as saying that when he sought a ballot application, his superior officer asked how he expected to vote.

"When he said, 'Republican,' he was treated to a regular harangue by the officer, who accused him of voting 'against his Commander in Chief' and all sorts of ugly remarks.

"The Navy man waited and waited for the ballot. He said there is the same red tape for every man who wants a Republican ballot, but for those who say they are voting the Democratic ticket, there is no red tape."

WHITE HOUSE SAYS FDR ERRED ON FREE MAILING CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—(AP) Republicans and Democrats in Congress launched into fresh argument today over who is doing the most free mailing, after the White House announced that President Roosevelt has erred in stating that Republicans had 3,000,000 copies of a speech printed at government expense.

Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), listed by Chairman Anderson (D-N.M.) of the House Campaign Expenditures committee as having franked (mailed free) 310,000 of the 3,000,000 copies of the speech, declared "the number of speeches sent out under frank by the Democrats exceeds the number sent out by the Republicans 3 to 1."

Anderson promptly challenged Taber to present figures showing any Democrat had mailed at government expense "anything like 3,000,000 copies of one speech—or even 1,000,000 copies."

The speech in question, by Rep. Busbey (R-Ill.), referred to "The Red Spectre of Communism Stalking Our Country."

30. 24 — 19377

Mr. Roosevelt mentioned it in his radio address last night and went on to say that 13 Republicans "had more than three million copies printed free by the government printing office — requiring more than 18 tons of scarce paper —and sent them through the mails all over the country at the taxpayers' expense."

The text of his speech distributed in advance to the press did not include the word "free" and today the White House issued a statement saying the President interpolated it inadvertently and in error.

"This was an inadvertence because the actual paper and the printing were paid for by someone, but the mailing of more than 3,000,000 documents was free, under the franks of the 13 Republican members of Congress, "the White House statement said. "The cost of mailing far exceeded the cost of printing."

Anderson, discussing the mailing of this speech, said in a statement last Tuesday that the printing costs were paid by Emil Hurja of Pathfinder magazine, M. W. Pickering, clerk to Republican House members, and a "Miss Steffan" who was not further identified.

Before the White House statement was issued, Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.), listed by the Campaign Expenditures committee as franking 300,000 copies of the Busbey speech, made this comment on Mr. Roosevelt's radio references to it:

"Candidate Roosevelt with his usual sophistry and disregard for the facts when they hamper him tried last night to divert national attention from his own indefensible waste of billions in taxpayers' money to an item involving 19.5 tons of paper."

REPORT IS ISSUED ON STATLER BRAWL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(AP) The Senate Campaign expenditures investigating committee received from the Navy today a copy of the report made by shore patrolmen who were called when fisticuffs developed at the Statler hotel after President Roosevelt addressed the A.F.L. Teamsters union there Sept. 23.

Robert Murphy, investigator of the committee, said the report did not identify the persons who engaged in a fight with two young Navy officers, Lt. Cmdr. James H. Suddeth, 33, and Lt. Randolph Dick-ins, Jr., 25.

Murphy said he wanted to talk with Daniel Tobin, Teamsters union head, but that Tobin was out of town today. Tobin has told reporters he knows nothing about the fight which the Navy officers reported developed when they objected to being questioned by a group of men as to whether they intended to vote for the commander-in-chief.

In Seattle, Dave Beck, vice president of the Teamsters union, said in an interview today that the whole affair was "a lot of hooey." He was at the Statler, Beck said, and saw no fight and heard of none until he got back to Seattle and read of it.

Murphy said the Senate committee would not make any report on the affair before Monday at the earliest. Chairman Green (D-RI) is out of town and is not expected back until then.

Rep. Bolton Praises Army Hospital Setup

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—Rep. Frances P. Bolton, of the Twenty-second Ohio district, who said she probably was the first civilian woman to enter Paris after its liberation, arrived by clipper after two months in England and France studying army hospitalization.

"I have seen every kind of American army hospital and some British and Canadian," she said. "I went over to see the hospital setup. It was severely tested when General Patton was moving forward so fast and marvelous work was done."

Sorry, Said Stilwell, But I've Been Busy

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 6 (AP)—Joan Herald, 12, waited two years for a letter from Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell. When the reply came from China he apologized for the delay.

He said he had been busy.

DEWEY WILL TALK TO NATION TONIGHT

G.O.P. Nominee to Discuss Roosevelt's Repudiation of Communists.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6. — (AP) A few hours after President Roosevelt's disavowal of Communist support, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey asserted today the President "would like softly to deny the means by which he seeks election" and that "I shall be compelled to discuss it quite openly tomorrow night" at Charleston, W. Va.

Although the Republican presidential candidate did not say specifically that he referred to the President's statement last night that he does "not welcome the support of any person or group committed to Communism or Fascism," Paul Lockwood, Dewey's secretary, said such was the Governor's intent.

In a formal statement issued before he left Albany for New York city with Mrs. Dewey to visit the bier of Alfred E. Smith at St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Republican presidential nominee said:

"Mr. Roosevelt asked the American people not to look now because somebody is following him. Since he would like softly to deny the means by which he seeks election to 16 straight years in the White House, I shall be compelled to discuss it quite openly tomorrow night in Charleston on the radio."

Dewey's pledge to discuss his statement in his Charleston speech, his second major address of the week, was preceded by critical comment on Mr. Roosevelt's declaration by Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, G.O.P. vice-presidential nominee, and Herbert Brownell, Jr., Republican national chairman.

Bricker Hits F.D.R. Statement

At Milwaukee, Bricker reiterated his charge that the Democratic party had been "sold out" to "the Hillmans, the Browders and the radical elements in this country."

Sidney Hillman, chairman of the C.I.O. Political Action committee, and Earl Browder, Communist leader, are supporting a fourth term.

In Columbus, Ohio, Brownell said he hoped the President would "clarify his statement," adding:

"Action speaks louder than words. American citizens feel that the Communistic influences are centered in the activities of Sidney Hillman and the Political Action committee. I hope the President will let us know if he repudiates the support of the Communistic-controlled P.A.C."

Hits at New Deal

Before leaving Albany, Dewey also declared in a statement that the Roosevelt administration had exhibited a "deplorable" trend toward "a completely regulated adjustment" of postwar business.

Appointing an advisory committee on technical industrial development for New York, the Republican nominee said that while the state's businessmen recognized the attainment of full postwar employment "depends to a large extent upon the reconversion program that may evolve in Washington, they are nevertheless ready to take the initiative in plans of their own for peacetime expansion."

Following the visit to St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dewey planned to leave for Charleston, where he will speak at 9:45 p. m. (EWT) tomorrow. Tentative arrangements have been made for a rear-platform appearance at Hinton, W. Va., about 9:20 a. m. Saturday.

EXPLOSIONS STIR CROWD AT REVUE

Firecrackers Believed Fired During 'Victory Bandwagon' Show in Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 6—(AP) Several sharp explosions, as of large firecrackers, caused a flurry of excitement at Symphony Hall tonight during the intermission of the sell-out premiere of the controversial musical revue, "F.D.R. Victory Bandwagon."

The first act was ended; Earl Browder, American Communist leader, had just finished a speech to the audience.

There were eight or ten sharp explosions from the lobby, just outside the auditorium of the hall.

Several persons ran for the door. Police swung down the aisles and into the corridor.

There was no panic, however, and order was quickly restored.

Police Sergeant Frank Mullen expressed the opinion that firecrackers were hurled in a door abreast of the stage by someone who fled immediately.

He added that "some of my men found what seem to be the remains of exploded firecrackers."

As the explosions started, almost the entire audience stood.

Several men yelled "Sit down. Sit down."

Ann Burlak, who was speaking from the stage at the time, remained calm and exhorted the audience to be calm.

Browder Won't Discuss Speech By Roosevelt

Boston, Oct. 6 (AP)—Earl Browder, American Communist leader, declined comment tonight on President Roosevelt's statement that he neither sought nor welcomed the support of Communists or Fascists in the political campaign.

Browder, here to speak before a sellout symphony Hall audience for the controversial musical revue "F. D. R. Victory Bandwagon," added that his prepared remarks included no reference to Mr. Roosevelt's declaration that Communist help was not welcomed.

"I prepared my talk for tonight yesterday before the President spoke," said Browder.

Earlier, Miss Anne Burlak, president of the Communist Political Association of Massachusetts, said that Mr. Roosevelt's disclaimer would make no difference to members of her organization.

She had said it was her belief that Browder would also take a similar view.

WIDOW OF YANK LEAVES FAMILY TO GO TO FRANCE

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 6—(AP) The widow of an Army private quietly left her family, her job and her two-year-old baby daughter to start for France, where her husband died in action on June 9.

Rose Ann Webb disappeared yesterday and today her family received a postcard, mailed in Boston.

On the back of the card was written:

"Dear family:

"I don't know how to say it, but I'm going to try to get to France or die trying.

"I dreamed of Willie (Private William Webb of Valdosta, Ga.) last night. He was calling for me.

"I'm not happy here. Will turn over all the insurance to the baby. Take care of her.

"Love,

"Rose."

Webb, who died three days after the first Allied landings, had won the Silver Star for gallantry during the fighting in North Africa and Sicily.

The couple was married three years ago when he was stationed at Fort Devens.

As police of several cities began a check of hotels, bus lines, and railroad terminals, little Corrine, Mrs. Webb's two-year-old daughter, cuddled her doll in their Lawrence home, unaware of her mother's flight.

Brownell Says Honesty Is Big Campaign Issue

Asserts New Deal Exalts 'Most Blatant Exponents of Political Corruption'

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 6 (AP).—Herbert Brownell jr., Republican national chairman, declared tonight the "New Deal has exalted to a place of national influence the nation's most blatant exponents of political corruption and political degeneracy."

"The campaign of Governor Dewey and Governor Bricker—their truth-telling campaign—is more than an effort to put a Republican in the White House," he said. "It is an effort to put honesty in the White House."

Mr. Brownell spoke before the fall meeting of the Ohio Federation of Republican Women's Organizations in his first major address since becoming chairman of his party.

"We want honesty and integrity in our government," Mr. Brownell said. "There always have been corrupt forces in America. But decency has always been in the ascendency. There has always been dishonesty. But we have never condoned it. We have grown great, as a nation and as a people, because we have preferred openness to secrecy, forthrightness to devious dealings and straight from the-shoulder-honesty to deception.

"In these latter New Deal days a new doctrine has been preached new practices have been followed.

By the New Deal doctrine, the end justifies the means; below-board dealings are preferred to above-board dealings—and now, as the final affront to our consciences, the New Deal in this campaign has exalted to a place of national influence the nation's most blatant exponents of political corruption and political degeneracy."

Declaring that co-operation by Americans had made America what it is, Mr. Brownell added: "We have always been a united people until—in these latter New Deal days, we have had preached to us and practiced before our very eyes the old and dangerous doctrine of 'divide and rule.' Group has been set against group, and class against class—all in order to advance the New Deal's power regardless of the people's well-being.

"The campaign of Governor Dewey and Governor Bricker . . . is a campaign to unite America again."

Connally Demands Navy Bases

Durham, N. C., Oct. 6 (AP)—Senator Connally (D., Texas), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, tonight coupled a plea for United States participation in an international peace organization with a demand for air and naval bases in two oceans and the maintenance of the world's most powerful navy.

This nation, he declared, has been dragged into a second world war because after the first "we failed to create and adhere to effective peace machinery to crush international banditry."

"We must not fail again," he continued in an address at Duke University.

"The United States cannot, however, neglect its own security," he said. "We must secure naval and aviation bases in the Pacific Islands which we have conquered should be ours for such purposes. Bases in the Atlantic must be acquired and maintained to protect the mainland and the Panama Canal."

Tells Of Oaks Plan

To prevent Germany and Japan from preparing for another war, Connally said, they must be occupied by Allied forces, disarmed and rendered incapable of producing war materials, while their navies "must be rendered impotent."

"For our part," he continued, "we must maintain the most powerful navy on the globe. We now have such a navy."

The Texan told of the plan being drafted at Dumbarton Oaks for an assembly of nations with an executive and administrative council on which the United States, Russia, Great Britain and China would be permanently represented.

To Prevent War

The plan contemplates, he said, the use of military and naval power "to suppress international criminals and outlaws." Participation in the organization would not impair United States sovereignty, he said, since American forces could not be used without the consent of this country's representatives on the council.

The use of force to suppress aggression, he added, "is not an act of war," but "an act to prevent war."

'Fighting Father' Asks More

CAMP LE JEUNE, N. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—Major Fred D. Conderman, forty-nine years old, headed again today for the Pacific battlefront, where his exploits with the 1st Marine Division won him the National Fathers' Day Committee designation as "the fighting father of 1944." Major Conderman, determined to avenge the death of his aviator son, Lieutenant Robert J. Conderman, in the initial Japanese assault on Wake Island, managed to get into the Marine Corps as a mail officer after repeatedly being turned down by all branches of the service. On Guadalcanal he killed many Japanese.

'New Brawl' Is Held Barrier To Peace

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP)—Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican nominee for President, declared today that "the planned economy of the New Deal is an insurmountable barrier to durable world peace."

"Really and truly to support international peace—Mr. Roosevelt would be compelled to reverse 11 years of managed economy," Landon said. "Despite all the tumult and shouting by the New Dealers designed to distract attention from the record, there can be no world economic collaboration under the New Deal."

In an address before the Executives' Club, Landon said the "New Deal has become the new brawl" and that to achieve an orderly administration the voters next month must elect Thomas E. Dewey.

Theories Meet Head-On

At the ballot box, he added, two theories of government will meet head-on, one being the "New Deal theory of planned economy—of restraint and scarcity—of state capitalism," while the other "would overhaul the whole machinery of our Government so as to promote everywhere American production and world commerce."

He described the nation's war production as incomparable, and said it was made possible "only by that willing cooperation of the traditional American economic system, which the Roosevelt Administration "for the first nine years had done so much to injure."

Robert Taylor Reports For Duty With Navy

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP)—Lieut. (j.g.) Robert Taylor, the former movie actor, reported for duty today at the naval air station in suburban Glenview.

The public relations office announced he would serve as a flight instructor and an aircraft operations officer, and also would handle motion-picture films dealing with primary aviation training. He has been in the service since February 4, 1943.

BRICKER ASSAILS SECRECY IN PACTS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 6 — (AP) Gov. John W. Bricker, assailing "government by secrecy," declared tonight that "no one knows" how deeply the President of the United States has involved us in secret agreements."

The national administration, said the Republican candidate for Vice President, does not believe the American people "are able to govern themselves."

"For 12 years," he added in a speech in Municipal Auditorium, "we have been governed by secrecy, subterfuge and wilful withholding of information. Our freedom is threatened by the insidious propaganda of the administration at Washington."

While conceding the right of government to withhold information involving military security, Bricker remarked "there is reason for alarm when government officials secretly formulate international policy."

"No one knows," he continued, 'how deeply the President of the United States has involved us in secret agreements secretly negotiated. For the most part, Casablanca, Cairo, Teheran and Quebec are only names on the map. What happened at those conferences in terms of international commitments remains for the future to reveal. Neither our people nor their elected representatives were permitted to consider and decide their future obligations."

"That's the kind of stuff that splits the country and makes it harder for labor and industry to work together," Beck asserted last night.

No Political Figures Involved

"None of the principals in either the Republican or the Democratic party were involved. Neither was Tobin (Daniel J. Tobin), international teamsters' president) and neither was Beck."

"If there was a fight, as the naval officers have testified, let it be investigated as any other such affair would be in an orderly manner. Such individual affairs have no significance and nothing to do with the election."

"Sure, I was there (in the Statler lobby after the President's address September 23)," he added. "So were 16 others from this building. None of us even knew there was a fight until we were back in Seattle and read it in the papers.

Says No Newsmen Knew It

"By actual count, there were 76 newspaper and radio reporters in the banquet room, men supposedly who have reached the peak of their profession. They walked out of the hall, through the mezzanine floor and through the lobby. It's the only way they could get out. Not a one of them saw the fight. It wasn't dug up until ten days later.

"I don't say there wasn't one. But I didn't see it, my friends didn't see it and 76 of the best reporters in the country, all right on the spot, didn't see it. I bet it was some fight."

The two naval officers involved testified they were manhandled by Teamsters' Union members immediately after the President's address when they refused to answer questions on how they would vote. The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee has begun an investigation of the fight.

STRIKES SPREAD IN MOVIE STUDIOS

ed yesterday may burgeon into a full-bloomed strike.

"We're not mad at anybody and are ready for any conciliation efforts," said President Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions, adding, however, that the decorators and set designers are meeting tonight and may take a strike vote.

Set decorators at Columbia Pictures Corp., and two affiliated studios remained off the job this morning, and the painters and machinists went out shortly afterward. Sorrell said that he expected a similar walkout in at least one more major studio tomorrow.

The trouble started Tuesday when about 200 set decorators, painters and machinists went out at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. Sorrell estimated that between 50 and 100 more were involved today in the walkout at Columbia studio and its affiliates.

The machinists are following the decorators and painters out, he explained, "because they always cooperate closely" with the other groups.

A meeting of the Painters union has been called for Sunday, and Sorrell said in this case, too, he expected a strike vote will be taken.

Meantime, Commissioner Earl Ruddy of the U. S. Conciliation service was on the ground and was reportedly attempting to bring together the parties to the dispute.

'Battle Of Statler' Dispute Just 'Hooey', Beck Says

Seattle, Oct. 6 (AP)—Dave Beck, international vice-president of the Teamster's Union, says the prominence being given to the so-called "Battle of the Statler Hotel" in connection with the election campaigns of President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is "a lot of hooey."

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6 — (AP) Indications pointed tonight to a walkout of set designers, painters and machinists from one or more additional motion picture studios tomorrow, and a union representative said that "unless somebody does something pretty quick" the jurisdictional dispute which start-

Weight-Carrying Race 'Around Java' Reported

San Francisco, Oct. 6 (AP)—Three ten-man teams of porters are going to run a weight-carrying relay race "around Java" to promote the "task of training and transporting vital products by human energy," the Japanese-controlled Batavia radio announced today.

Each runner will carry a load of 75 to 100 kilograms (168 to 224 pounds) of agricultural produce and is expected to "run ten kilometers (6.2 miles) a day," said the broadcast, recorded by the FCC.

"The event is symbolic of the Indonesian determination to exert every ounce of energy to realize the promised independence," the announcer said.

FIRST U.S.ARMY HEADQUARTERS, OCT 6-(AP)-THE BATTLE OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE SPREAD TO SOUTH OF AACHEN TODAY AS DOUGHBOYS LAUNCHED A NEW ATTACK THROUGH HURTGEN FOREST AND AMERICAN TANKS REACHED THE EDGE OF GEILENKIRCHEN NEAR THE UBACH BREACH TO THE NORTH.

GEILENKIRCHEN IS THREE MILES NORTH OF UBACH AND FOUR MILES INSIDE GERMANY.

TH NEW DRIVE SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN CARRIED TO WITHIN SIX MILES OF DUREN.

THE NEW ATTACK WAS SUPPORTED BY HUNDREDS OF FIGHTER BOMBERS WHILE LIGHT, MEDIUM AND HEAVY ARTILLERY LAID DOWN A BARRAGE ON THE HURTGEN FOREST.

THEN AT 11:30 THE DOUGHBOYS JUMPED OFF IN THE "BATTLE OF THE FOREST."

NORTH OF AACHEN, FIGHTING RAGED ABOUT THE BREACH IN THE SIEGFRIED DEFENSES AND ONE OFFICER DESCRIBED THE BATTLE AS "EQUAL TO ANYTHING IN THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD" BELOW ROME.

AMERICAN TROOPS WHO ENTERED BEGGENDORF YESTERDAY HAD TO PULL BACK TODAY FROM THAT TOWN EAST OF UBACH UNDER HEAVY ENEMY PRESSURE.

THE NEW ATTACK WAS TEN MILES SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN AND IN ITS FIRST STAGE THE AMERICAN INFANTRY ADVANCED MORE THAN HALF A MILE DEEPER INTO GERMANY.

SKIES WERE CLOUDLESS AND THIS ALLOWED FIGHTER BOMBERS BY THE HUNDREDS NOT ONLY TO BOMBARD THE HURTGEN FOREST BUT TO BATTER AT THE SECOND BELT OF SIEGFRIED LINE STRONGPOINTS.

THE INFANTRY HAS A WEIRD AND DANGEROUS TASK OF FINDING THE ENEMY WELL HIDDEN IN CAMOUFLAGED CONCRETE AND STEEL POSTS IN THE TWILIGHT OF THE EVERGREEN FOREST, SO DENSE THAT SUN NEVER PIERCES ITS NEEDLE-STREWN FLOOR.

"THESE WOODS REMIND ME OF THE OLD DAYS BACK HOME WHEN DANIEL BOONE WAS RUNNING AROUND LOOSE," SAID LT. FRANCIS J. NUGENT, 25 KENSIGNTON AVE., JERSEY CITY, N.J. "WE COULD USE A HUNDRED SCOUTS JUST LIKE HIM."

NUGENT SAID FORWARD ELEMENTS QUICKLY RAN INTO STRONG ENEMY MORTAR FIRE.

"IT WAS QUIET FOR THE FIRST 15 MINUTES AND THEN ALL HELL BROKE LOOSE." SAID MAJ. JACK A. HOUSTON, COMPTON, CALIF., "THEY BEGAN THROWING TERRIFIC ARTILLERY AND SMALL ARMS FIRE AT US. IT WAS SO DARK YOU COULDN'T SEE MORE THAN 50 YARDS IN ANY DIRECTION."

HOUSTON SAID THAT INFANTRY WAS HELPED A LITTLE BY THE FACT THAT UNDERBRUSH HAD OVERGROWN FIRING LANES WHICH THE NAZIS HAD CUT IN THE FOREST AROUND PILLBOXES AND BUNKERS.

"MOST OF THEIR TROOPS HATE TO FIGHT IN THOSE PILLBOXES BECAUSE THEY FEEL THEY ARE DEATH TRAPS WHEN WE GET INTO POSITION TO ASSAULT THEM," HE SAID. "THEY PREFER TO FIRE FROM FOXHOLE DEFENSES BETWEEN THE PILLBOXES AND GO INSIDE THE PILLBOXES ONLY DURING THE HEAVIEST BOMBING AND SHELLING. IT TAKES BIG SHELLS TO BREAK OPEN SOME OF THOSE BUNKERS."

THE ADVANCING INFANTRY DROVE FORWARD THROUGH BLAZING FOREST AMBUSHES TOWARD THE MAIN RAOD LINKING HURDEN AND ROLLES-BROICH.

"THEY GAINED ONE KILOMETER IN THE FIRST 90 MINUTES, WHICH IS VERY GOOD CONSIDERING THE TERRAIN THEY ARE WORKING THROUGH," SAID LT. COL. FREDERICK C. FEIL, PHILADELPHIA. "WE HAVE BEEN IN THE FOREST BELT OF SIEGFRIED LINE DEFENSES FOR THE LAST TWO WEEKS--AND NOW WE ARE ON OUR WAY THROUGH THE SECOND ZONE OF DEFENSE."

THE ATTACK WAS NEAR THE LAREST BODY OF IMPOUNDED WATER IN GERMANY, THE TWISTING, SNAKE-LIKE RESERVOIR BELOW THW TOWN OF SCHMIDT. THE RESERVOIR SUPPLIES POWER FOR AACHEN AND THE RUHR DISTRICT. THE WATER IS IMPOUNDED BY A SERIES OF THREE DAMS, ONE OF WHICH IS 300 FEET THICK AT ITS BASE AND 50 AT ITS TOP. THE DAM IS MADE OF EARTH WITH A CONCRETE CORE. HIGH RANKING OFFICERS SAID HOWEVER, THAT NO MILITARY PURPOSE WOULD BE SERVED SHOULD EITHER THE AMERICANS OR GERMANS BREAK THE RESERVOIR.

FIGHTING AS BLOODY AND FIERCE AS ANY IN THE ENTIRE INVASION BLAZED AROUND THE DOUGHBOY'S WEDGE IN THE MAIN SIEGFRIED LINE AS THE GERMANS THREW THEIR FIRST SIZEABLE COUNTERATTACK, SUPPORTED BY ARMOR, AGAINST THE AMERICANS IN AN EFFORT TO SEAL OFF THE PENETRATION

THE GERMANS CONTINUED TO POUR HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE UPON UBACH, AND JUST TO THE EAST OF UBACH THE "BATTLE OF THE BARRACKS" WAS DEVELOPING INTO A STIFF BATTLE.

"IF THE ENEMY CAN SCRAPE UP ANYTHING, HE IS GOING TO PUT IT IN HERE BECAUSE THIS LEADS RIGHT TO THE HEART OF THE RHINE INDUSTRIAL REGION," SAID LT. COL. HAROLD HASSENFELT OF OCONTO, WIS.

THE ENEMY POURED 600 SHELLS INTO FORT DRIANT IN AN EFFORT TO BLAST OUT AMERICANS WHO HAVE A THIN HOLD AFTER FIVE DAYS OF BLOODY FIGHTING.

YESTERDAY WAS A DAY OF ARTILLERY ACTIVITY, REMINISCENT OF THE FIRST WORLD WAR. WITH INFANTRY BOGGED DOWN ON BOTH SIDES, THE ARMIES EXCHANGED HEAVY BARRAGES.

LEZEY, 21 MILES NORTHEAST OF NANCY, WASONE OF THE ENEMY'S MAIN TARGETS. MUCH OF THE HEAVY SHELLING APPARENTLY CAME FROM RAILROAD GUNS.

THE BATTLE FOR DRIANT WAS IN DRIZZLING RAIN AND MURKY HAZE AND THE AMERICANS WERE STRIVING TO SECURE FOOTHOLDS IN THE NORTHWEST AND SOUTHWEST CORNERS OF FORT DRIANT.

OTHERS WHO HAD DRIVEN INTO THE NORTHEAST CORNER WERE FOR OUT BY HEAVY MACHINE-GUN AND RIFLE FIRE.

GERMAN BATTERIES POURED HEAVY FIRE INTO THE AMERICAN POSITIONS FROM SUPPORTING POSITIONS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE MOSELLE, PUTTING ON THEIR SHOW BETWEEN BURSTS FROM OUR ARTILLERY, WHICH KEPT THE ENEMY GUNS SILENT FOR THE MOST PART.

WASHINGTON, OCT.6-(AP)-THIS WILL BE A PLEASANT SURPRISE, MRS. WESSELHOEFT--

YOUR HUSBAND, BOB, WHOM YOU THINK IS STILL IN INDIA CONVALESCING FROM INFANTILE PARALYSIS CONTRACTED LAST JUNE IN AN ALMOST UNCHARTED SECTION OF TIBET IS RESTING COMFORTABLY AT WALTER REED HOSPITAL.

YES, ARMY DOCTORS SAY HE'S COMFORTABLE, EVEN THOUGH HE ARRIVED ONLY YESTERDAY AFTER A 65-HOUR FLIGHT ABOARD A C-54 ARMY AIR TRANSPORT COMMAND PLANE FROM CALCUTTA, INDIA.

BUT THAT'S ONLY PART OF THE STORY...

("BOB" IS 2ND LT.ROBERT WESSELHOEFT, OF WESTWOOD, MASS., A 1939 HARVARD GRADUATE AND FATHER OF TWO CHILDREN--ONE OF WHOM HE HAS NEVER SEEN. HE WAS STRICKEN WHILE WITH AN ARMY AIR FORCES PHOTO-MAPPING PARTY IN REMOTE TIBET.)

WELL, MRS.W., AFTER BOB'S COMPANIONS HAD STRUGGLED TO GET HIM

OCT 7 1944

TO A HIMALAYAN OUTPOST, DOCTORS, ARRIVING SEVERAL DAYS LATER, ESTIMATED HE WAS 90 PER CENT PARALYZED FROM THE DIAPHRAGM DOWN.

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION BY HIS TWO COMPANIONS, LT.JOHN E.PARTANEN, AJO, ARIZ., AND STAFF SGT.CLYDE H.FOUSHEE, DURHAM, N.C., AIDED BY SIX CHINESE, KEPT BOB GOING UNTIL HELP ARRIVED. ON JULY 9--15 DAYS AFTER HE BECAME ILL--THE RESCUE PARTY WHICH HAD TRAVELED OVERLAND IN A JEEP TO REACH THE SCENE HAD PREPARED A RUDE RUNWAY WITH THE HELP OF 250 COOLIES THAT PERMITTED A SMALL PLANE TO LAND AND TAKE OFF.

OCT 7 1944

THAT TAKEOFF, WITH BOB ABOARD, WAS A PERILOUS OPERATION BUT YOUR HUSBAND, INTERVIEWED TODAY BY REPORTERS, SAID HE "NEVER HAD A DOUBT" THAT IT WOULD BE OTHER THAN SUCCESSFUL. HE WILLED IT THAT WAY. YOU SEE, HE WAS THINKING OF YOU AND THE KIDS...

PILOT OF THE PLANE WAS MAJOR FRED G.WELSH, WEST ENGLEWOOD, N.J. FOR MORE THAN A THOUSAND MILES--OVER THE HAZARDOUS HIMALAYAN "HUMP"--HE FLEW THE LIGHT LIAISON PLANE THROUGH SOME OF "WORST WEATHER" HE SAID HE HAD EVER ENCOUNTERED.

"FRED SAID WE'D MAKE IT," BOB RELATED TODAY, "AND THAT SATISFIED ME."

HOSPITALIZED, FINALLY, IN CALCUTTA, THE NEXT PROBLEM WAS TO IMPROVISE A RESPIRATOR FOR THE AIR TRIP HOME. STANDARD RESPIRATORS WERE TOO HEAVY--SO TWO MECHANICALLY-MINDED ENGINEERS OF THE MOTOR TRANSPORT CONSTRUCTED ONE OUT OF OLD AIRPLANE PARTS. IT WAS STRICTLY "HOME-MADE" BUT IT WORKED.

YOUR HUSBAND IS IN THE SAME ROOM GENERAL JOHN J.PERSHING ONCE OCCUPIED AT WALTER REED. AND, ODDLY ENOUGH, THE ARMY NURSE WHO JOINED THE PARTY AT THE AZORES, WAS FLIGHT NURSE LT.MARY E.HOADLEY, WHO HAD AS HER PATIENT IN PEACE-TIME, FRED SNITE, CHICAGO'S "IRON LUNG KID", WHO HAS LIVED FOR SEVERAL YEARS IN AN ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATOR.

LT.COL.E.A.ABBEY, NEW HAVEN,CONN., WHO ACCOMPANIED THE LIEUTENANT FROM CALCUTTA, SAID HIS PATIENT SUFFERED NO DISCOMFORT ON THE TRIP BUT ADDED:

"WE MADE THE TRIP AS FAST AS WE COULD BECAUSE WE DIDN'T KNOW HOW LONG OUR 'HOME-MADE' RESPIRATOR WOULD HOLD UP."

IN ADDITION TO HIS WIFE, THE WESSELHOEFT FAMILY INCLUDES A DAUGHTER, 4, AND A SON, SIX MONTHS--THE LATTER BORN FOUR MONTHS AFTER HIS DAD ARRIVED IN INDIA.

ATLANTA, OCT. 6-(AP)-TECH. SGT. CARLTON GRIFFIN, INJURED IN A PLANE CRASH OVER BELGIUM AND HELD PRISONER FOR NINE MONTHS BY THE GERMANS, FORGOT EVERYTHING BUT THE FACE OF THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND.

THE TOWNVILLE, S.C., BOY MET PATRICIA ANN MOORE OF MADISON, S.D., WHILE HE WAS ATTENDING RADIO SCHOOL IN SIOUX FALLS, S.D. THEY HAD PLANNED TO MARRY, BUT HE WAS SENT OVERSEAS AFTER FOUR MONTHS' COURTSHIP.

GRIFFIN'S LETTERS STOPPED COMING LAST WINTER. PATRICIA LEARNED FROM HIS PARENTS, MR. AND MRS. VAN GRIFFIN, THAT THE SOLDIER WAS A PRISONER OF WAR.

LAST WEEK SGT. GRIFFIN WAS RETURNED TO THIS COUNTRY ABOARD THE EXCHANGE SHIP GRIPSHOLM AND BROUGHT TO LAWSON GENERAL HOSPITAL HERE. HIS SERIOUS INJURIES HAD WIPED OUT ALL MEMORY SINCE JANUARY, 1943, WHEN HE ARRIVED IN ENGLAND.

INVITED TO TOWNVILLE FOR A VISIT, PATRICIA QUIT HER JOB AND RUSHED SOUTH. THREE DAYS AGO SHE AND MRS. GRIFFIN SAW CARLTON FOR THE FIRST TIME. THE SOLDIER REMEMBERED PATRICIA BUT NOT THEIR MARRIAGE PLANS. SO HE STARTED A NEW COURTSHIP UNDER THE EYES OF ENVIOUS FELLOW PATIENTS. YESTERDAY THE MARRIAGE WAS PERFORMED.

TODAY THE COUPLE SAID THEY HADN'T HAD TIME TO TALK OVER THEIR ORIGINAL ROMANCE.

"BUT WE'LL GET AROUND TO IT," SMILED PATRICIA. "I'VE GOT A LOT TO REMIND HIM OF. X X X I'M GOING TO TELL YOU THE TRUTH. I CAME DOWN HERE WITH MARRIAGE IN MY HEART. HE CAN ALWAYS HOLD IT AGAINST ME."

THE FOLLOWING STORY WAS WRITTEN FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BY PFC.BOYD BORGSTROM UPON BEING INFORMED THAT HIS REQUEST FOR HONORABLE DISCHARGE FROM THE U.S. MARINE CORPS HAD BEEN APPROVED. CAMP LEJEUNE AUTHORITIES SAID THEY HAD BEEN INFORMED BY MARINE HEADQUARTERS AT WASHINGTON THAT STEPS WERE BEING TAKEN TO ARRANGE THE DISCHARGE BUT NO DISCHARGE DATE HAS BEEN SPECIFIED AS YET.:

BY PFC.BOYD BORGSTROM, USMC
(WRITTEN FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)
CAMP LEJEUNE,N.C.,OCT 6-(AP)-EVEN THOUGH I HAVEN'T BEEN NOTIFIED OFFICIALLY, I HAVE BEEN TOLD MY REQUEST FOR A DISCHARGE FROM THE MARINE CORPS HAS BEEN APPROVED, AND I SURE AM HAPPY.
I'LL SOON BE BACK ON THE FARM HELPING MAMMA AND DAD. THEY NEED MY PERSONAL ATTENTION. MY DAD'S 25-ACRE FARM NEEDS A REAL WORK-OUT, AND I AM GOING TO TAKE CARE OF BOTH RIGHT AWAY.
THE MARINE CORPS HAS ALWAYS BEEN GOOD TO ME, AND I THINK IT'S THE BEST OUTFIT IN THE WORLD, BUT MY FIRST LOVE IS FARMING.
HOWEVER, YOU CAN SEE I'LL STILL BE IN THERE PITCHING--DOING MY PART TO HELP FINISH THIS WAR, BECAUSE THE SUGAR BEETS, ALFALFA, GRAIN AND CATTLE RAISED ON DAD'S FARM WILL BE A WAR EFFORT CONTRIBUTION FROM THE BORGSTROMS.
IF I EVER SEE MY SELF FAR ENOUGH AHEAD FINANCIALLY I AM GOING TO SPECIALIZE IN RAISING TURKEYS. I KNOW IT WILL TAKE MORE CASH THAN I HAVE ON HAND NOW TO BUY TURKEY BROODER COOPS, BUT I'LL MAKE IT.
FOR TWO YEARS BEFORE I JOINED THE MARINE CORPS IN 1940, I WORKED ON A LARGE AGRICULTURAL FARM THAT ALSO RAISED 5,000 TURKEYS EACH YEAR.
MY OVERSEAS DUTY WITH THE MARINES WAS SPENT IN THE JOHNSON ISLANDS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC. UNLIKE OUR FARM, IT WAS BARREN, HAVING NO GRASS OR TREES. I WAS AN ELEVATION TRACKER ON A 90MM ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN AND I OFTEN SLEPT IN A DUGOUT BEHIND IT. WE HAD VERY LITTLE EXCITEMENT WHEN I WAS THERE.
FISHING WAS MY FAVORITE PASTIME AND I HOOKED QUITE A FEW BABY SHARKS.
THERE'S NOT MUCH I CAN SAY ABOUT MY THREE BROTHERS BEING KILLED AND THE OTHER ONE WHO IS REPORTED MISSING IN ACTION, BECAUSE NOTHING I CAN SAY WILL BRING THEM BACK.
I KNOW MY HOME CERTAINLY WILL NOT BE THE SAME WITHOUT THEIR NOISE AND FUN. YOU CAN IMAGINE HOW MY FOLKS FEEL AND HOW THEY NEED NEAR THEM MORE THAN EVER NOW. THAT'S WHY I'M HAPPY ABOUT BEING DISCHARGED.
--DASH--
THREE SONS OF MR. AND MRS.ALVIN BORGSTROM OF TREMONTON, UTAH, HAVE BEEN KILLED IN THIS WAR AND A FOURTH HAS BEEN REPORTED MISSING IN ACTION. THE PARENTS PETITIONED THE MARINE CORPS TO RELEASE BOYD SO THAT HE COULD COME HOME AND HELP THEM WITH THE FARM, SAYING THAT IN GIVING FOUR SONS THEY FELT THEY HAD GIVEN ENOUGH. LT.GEN.A.A.VANDERGRIFT, MARINE COMMANDANT, REPLIED THAT BOYD WOULD BE GIVEN AN HONORABLE DISCHARGE.

TOYAMA (450)

BY RUSSELL BRINES
ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR EDITOR
(FORMERLY AN AP CORRESPONDENT IN TOKYO)
THE DEAD HAND OF MISURU TOYAMA, JAPAN'S HIGH PRIEST OF CONQUEST, WILL CONTINUE TO INSTIGATE AND SYMBOLIZE THE EMPIRE'S TURBULENCE.
WHEN HE DIED WEDNESDAY NIGHT AT 89, HE STILL HELD JAPAN'S PASSIONS IN HIS TIRED, BONY FINGERS, PLAYING ON THEM LIKE A DIABOLICAL VIRTUOSO.
FOR THE PAST YEAR HIS TITLE WAS PRESIDENT-EMERITUS OF THE INFAMOUS BLACK DRAGON SOCIETY, FOUNTAINHEAD OF THE MORE THAN 100 FANATICAL SECRET SOCIETIES WHICH WERE INSTRUMENTAL IN PRECIPITATING THE PACIFIC WAR. HE SUPPOSEDLY HAD RETIRED, BUT THE PERSONAL POWER HE CREATED THROUGH THAT 43-YEAR-OLD ORGANIZATION CONTINUED.
THAT POWER, BASED ON RUTHLESSNESS, MADE HIM KNOWN ABROAD AS JAPAN'S "UNOFFICIAL EMPEROR." BUT TOYAMA SLIPPED INTO THE TWILIGHT OF HIS FABULOUS CAREER AS AN HEROIC ROBIN HOOD TO THE JAPANESE. LEGEND GILDED HIM AS A MAN WHO DISTRIBUTED LARGESSE TO THE POOR, AN ESTHETE TOO TENDER TO KILL MOSQUITOES. HIS FRUGAL LIVING WAS IMITATED WIDELY. HIS ALMOST SAINT-LIKE FACE, FRAMED BY A LONG WHITE BEARD, DOMINATED JAPANESE IMAGINATION.
HE WILL LIVE ON THROUGH HIS RABID FOLLOWERS AND THE JAPANESE DEVOTION TO THE DEAD. WELL-TRAINED LIEUTENANTS WILL ENFORCE HIS POLICIES.
TOYAMA RULED A VAST, SHADOWY EMPIRE, COMPOSED OF THE 12,000 MEMBERS OF THE BLACK DRAGON SOCIETY AND THOSE OF NUMEROUS SUBSIDIARY SECRET SOCIETIES. SOME SOURCES ESTIMATE THE TOTAL AT 10,000,000 JAPANESE AT HOME AND ABROAD; ALL FANATICS, ALL BLINDLY OBEDIENT TO THE LEADER. THEIR HANDIWORK IS INTRIGUE AND ESPIONAGE ABROAD; ASSASSINATIONS, BOMBINGS AND BEETINGS AT HOME.
TOYAMA AND HIS FANATICS DREAMED OF WORLD CONQUEST. THEY LED AND BULLIED THE PEOPLE INTO EACH OF THE COUNTRY'S NUMEROUS WARS; INTIMIDATED OR KILLED OPPOSITION STATESMEN; CRUSHED "THREATENING" TRENDS, FROM LIBERALISM TO COMMUNISM. PERHAPS HUNDREDS OF STATESMEN TOOK ORDERS FROM TOYAMA.
IT WAS SAID IN RECENT YEARS THAT THE RUMOR OF HIS DISPLEASURE ALONE WAS SUFFICIENT TO CHANGE GOVERNMENT POLICIES.
TOYAMA AND THE MILITARISTS WHO NOW RULE BLUDGEONED THEIR WAY TO POWER TOGETHER. THEY WERE INTERDEPENDENT, THEIR POLICIES WERE PARALLEL, THEIR GOALS IDENTICAL.
THE MILITARISTS NEEDED TOYAMA AND HIS GUNMEN TO SPREAD THEIR DOCTRINES OF VIOLENCE AND CONFORMITY THROUGHOUT A SOMETIMES RECALCITRANT COUNTRY. TOYAMA NEEDED MILITARIST PROTECTION TO CONTINUE IN POWER AND GROW STRONGER, WITHOUT BEING BROKEN BY THE VICIOUS GENDARMERIE, THE MILITARY POLICE.
HE WAS ARRESTED TWICE IN HIS TWENTIES, BUT FOR THE PAST 69 YEARS HE HAS BEEN FREE FROM THE THREAT OF IMPRISONMENT OR POLICE INTERROGATION FOR CRIMES THAT ALL JAPAN KNEW BORE HIS TRADEMARK.
TODAY, HE IS REVERED AS A HERO, BECAUSE EACH OF HIS POLICIES WAS INFLICTED UPON THE NATION IN THE GUISE OF SERVING THE THRONE. HE NEVER SOUGHT TO DISPLACE THE EMPEROR.
TOYAMA, HIS METHODS AND HIS ORGANIZATIONS WERE PRODUCTS OF THE CALAMITOUS MALADJUSTMENT WHICH CHARACTERIZED JAPAN'S UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT TO LEAP FROM FEUDALISM INTO THE MODERN WORLD.

NAZI RESISTANCE CRUMBLES UNDER BIG ALLIED BLOWS

Infantry, Supplies Pour Through Huge Gap in Siegfried Line.

TANKS CRUSH PILLBOXES

American Power Drive Strikes at Doorway to Ruhr Valley.

LUNSOM

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Oct. 7.—(AP) Doughboys of the U. S. First army cracked German defenses wide open along a six-mile front north of Aachen today and swept up six German towns in a high-powered three-mile drive that encountered wilting resistance.

NIGHT

The Americans over-ran Beggendorf, Basweiler, Herbach, Merkstein, Hofstadt and Alsdorf as they hammered to a point five to six miles inside Germany in the onrush that was described by an American staff officer as a definite breakthrough. The U. S. troops are meeting less artillery fire and weaker opposition, field dispatches reported tonight.

Tanks, infantry, artillery and supplies poured into Germany through the gap torn by the Americans. Planes and tanks battered at the enemy as the U. S. advance units pressed ahead.

Make Definite Breakthrough

"This is definitely a breakthrough and not a withdrawal," a First army staff officer declared. "There still are defenses ahead of us, but we have driven through the main line of resistance in this sector."

The power drive, rolling over the bitterly fought Ubach sector nine miles east of the historic invasion gateway to Germany at Aachen, overran the German town of Basweiler, serving one of two main roads leading 30 miles northeast to Dusseldorf at the doorway to the rich Ruhr valley.

While this momentous fighting was raging, other Doughboys in almost division strength were rolling through the forests 25 miles southeast of Aachen in a new punch that has already carried through the first mine fields and dragons teeth of the West Wall against negligible resistance.

Between these two sectors, First army troops fighting within 25 miles of Cologne in the Hurtgen forest 10 miles southeast of Aachen hammered forward three-quarters of a mile, cleared the last of the West Wall's pill boxes and were tackling the earthworks beyond.

The going was slow and hard, but they were 10 miles inside Germany and widening the breach in the Siegfried Line.

Enter Fort Driant

On the Third army front, the Americans wrested the northwest and southwest corners of the great fort Driant from the German garrison, fought 100 yards down an underground passage leading to the main fortifications, but then found their way barred by steel and concrete bulkheads.

But this key fortress guarding Metz on the west was hotly pressed, German batteries could no longer depress their guns, so close were the American attackers, and one force seized positions atop artillery emplacements next to the main battery in the center of the fort.

On the southern end of the front, the U.S. Seventh army in gains of from five to seven miles closed on Le Thillot, 18 miles west of the 2,398-foot Bussang pass which leads through the heart of the Vosges to the Rhineland.

Rugged resistance slowed down the advances of the British Second army in Holland the Canadian First army to the west, but the Canadians made one vital gain—a drive of nearly two miles into Holland which captured the village of Ossendrecht, 11 miles north of Antwerp and only three miles from the only road of escape for Germans in the Schelde islands.

The rumble of artillery echoing across the English channel told south Britons the Canadians had begun the assault to recapture the channel port of Dunkerque, where the British made their escape from Hitler's legions in 1940.

Planes Pound Reich

The ground attack of the First army was timed with a record aerial blow at the Reich by more than 6,000 Allied warplanes striking at targets from Vienna to the front lines west of the Rhine.

In this surge eastward, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' troops captured Merkstein, two miles south of Ubach, the enemy supply center of Alsdorf nearby, and Hofstadt along the southern line of the breakthrough.

Enemy defenses collapsed abruptly, for only yesterday he was throwing in counterattacks that drove the Americans back around Ubach.

But the Germans may have spent their strength here, a front dispatch said, because they were unable to stand up under the terrible weight of the drive that rumbled out of the west this morning. More than 300 prisoners were taken in the first two hours.

The drive carried on east of Beggendorf, which was the tip of the salient yesterday, and had spread northward to the outskirts of Geilenkirchen, 12 miles north of Aachen, and Immendorf, two miles to the east.

Five miles northwest of Geilenkirchen other American forces battered the Germans back near Schierwaldenrath.

In the new operations 25 miles southeast of Aachen, the Germans appeared to have been caught unprepared, for their Siegfried Line outposts were manned by prisoners who never had seen action before.

Advance Through Minefields

The Americans were advancing slowly through the minefields in the soggy ground of the dense forest, aware that behind the raw recruits were battle-tested veterans waiting for them to come up.

Divebombers were summoned in the battle for Fort Driant, on Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's front, to tackle the flanking guns which had been blazing away at the Americans fighting inside the fortifications.

One long-range gun was spotted in a position 20 miles from Metz and divebombers sealed it in its tunnel.

30. 24 — 19391

The Germans counterattacked furiously along many sectors of the front, losing 13 tanks to Patton's forces north of Nancy, and 98 planes to Allied air and ground gunners. One counterattack gained some ground 10 miles north of Nancy.

The Seventh army on the south, in addition to closing in on the Vosges mountain pass, also scored advanc s through the Vannes forest northwest of Belfort, broadening their assault arc on Belfort, no more than 10 miles away.

Bombers Hit Kleve Flank

The British, while scoring no advances in Holland, sent 700 of their heavy bombers hammering at the Kleve flank of the Siegfried Line some 70 miles north of Aachen, and the Emmerich gap to the northeast.

As this big aerial operation was in progress, American parachute troops with the British Second army nine miles west of Kleve were breaking up a counterattack against the Dutch-German border town of Bergendal.

To the west more than 200 other Royal Air force heavies bombed the flooded Walcheren island, one of two in the Schelde where German gunners are perched commanding that waterway entry to Antwerp.

Canadian forces west of Antwerp were within a few thousand yards of the Dutch city of Tilburg, but making little progress against the stubbornness of German rearguards. They were close enough, however, to render this communications center useless to the enemy.

However it was believed the Germans were planning to pull back north ten miles or so to a line along the Mass river to the sea.

Canadians on the Leopold canal west of Antwerp were engaged in a series of bloody engagements, slugging it out with crack German infantry along the perimeter of their narrow canal bridgehead.

GERMANS COLLAPSE NORTH OF AACHEN

LONG — OCT 8 1944

U. S. Tanks and Troops Sweep Ahead 3 Miles —Five Reich Towns Fall—New Drive Further South Widens Assault.

London, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—German lines north of Aachen in Germany collapsed suddenly today and American First Army tanks and infantry swept forward three miles to points six miles into the Reich, seizing five towns.

Simultaneously another American offensive surged through forest lands twenty-five miles below Aachen, hitting through anti-tank traps, concrete obstacles and mines in a new sector. The Aachen front before Dusseldorf, Cologne and Bonn flamed over a forty-mile area.

The stubborn German stand-or-die defense above Aachen in the Ubach sector crumpled under the weight of an American First Army assault, and Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's men drove toward the Rhine, with tanks fanning out in sweeping moves.

"This is definitely a breakthrough and not a withdrawal," an American Army staff officer declared. "There still are defenses ahead of us, but we have driven through the main line of resistance in this sector."

Tanks pushed east of Beggendorf, Baeswiler, five miles inside Germany, and Alsdorf, Merkstein, Herbach and Hofstadt were captured.

The plunge sliced the road from besieged Aachen northeast to Gladbach. The First Army steadily was enveloping that ruined fortress city.

Even as the First Army advanced through the breached Siegfried Line above Aachen, another assault by the better part of a division was launched in a three-mile wide forest below Monschau at a point twenty-five miles south of Aachen and fifteen miles northwest of Prum.

Along the center, other First Army men struck east of Aachen. They drove nearly a mile through Hurtgen Forest, ten miles inside the Reich, and were fighting twenty-six miles from Cologne.

As land armies beat forward, the Reich was hit by one of the greatest air assaults of the war, with 6,000 planes including 3,000 big bombers raining down explosives.

Gen. Hodges's troops in the Ubach breakthrough seized 300 prisoners in the first two hours. The German collapse was unexpected, Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead said, for only yesterday the defenses were stubborn and appeared to be holding firm under heavy artillery support and continual straffing of American positions by German planes last night.

Seven Miles Between Wedges.

The gap in the Siegfried defenses now is about six miles wide and six miles deep. Advance elements were meting only light opposition. There are now only about seven miles separating troops north of Aachen from the troops in the breach south of Aachen.

The American line now roughly extends from the outskirts of outskirts of Geilenkirchen, three miles above Ubach, east to the outskirts of Immendorf, then south to Baesweiler and another half-mile south to Oidtweiler, Baesweiler is three miles east of Ubach. Seizure of Alsdorf and a road junction more than a mile to the south put American tanks astride important communications centers.

More American men, guns, tanks, and supplies were pouring up through the gap.

"At 8 A. M., the doughboys and tanks went into the attack," MFr. Whitehead wrote. "Heavy artillery roared in support. The Germans had reached the breaking point. They did not withdraw. They stood and fought. But the terrible weight of Gen. Hodges's attack was too much. Tanks and infantry overran enemy positions and the sweep to the east and south was swift.

The News Spreads Fast.

"The effect on the troops was electric," he continued. "News of the break swept back from the front lines and there was almost a jaunty air about the columns moving through the dust and occasional enemy shells to follow up the advance.

"The enemy could not halt this power drive which had been hammering them unmercifully day and night. The Germans made their last bid with ac ounterattack which hit the infantry men on aridge south of Ubach. That apparently expended what strength the Nazis had left and when the doubhboy came back this morning with tank support it was too much.

"Hundreds of prisoners were streaming back to the cages to swell the total of 2,000 officially reported taken during the first five days of the assault on this part of the West Wall."

Southeast of Ubach the infantry by-passed sprawling gray stone barracks which the Germans had converted into a fortress, but heavy artillery had done much to silence this formidable barrier, and there was only sporadic firing from the barracks this afternoon. Doughboys coming up behind later will clean out this strongpoint. Last night the Army's big eight-inch howitzers sent 100 shells hurtling into the barracks.

Fair Weather Aids Yanks.

Good weather was one of the decisive factors in the success of the breakthrough. With clear skies the air forces roared in to batter enemy positions and strike at supply lines. Cub observation planes hovered over the front spotting Nazi guns and directing the artillery fire.

"We were in a difficult position until the breakthrough," an officer said. "Our infantry and tanks were pocketed in the Ubach area and at our Wurm River crossing. This gave the Germans a chance to cencentrate their artillery on this small sector."

Since the break came, he added, the Americans have taken comparatively little punishment.

To the south, meanwhile, Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army men gained 100 yards in savage fighting in the six-day old battle for Fort Driant, five miles southwest of Metz on the Moselle.

Hold Corners of Fort.

The Americans here had taken everything the Germans could throw at them both from the inside and the outside while holding on to their northwest and southwest corners of the fort. They then began their assault on the enemy holed up in the underground honeycomb of the fortifications.

Yanks In Fort Tunnel

To the south, meanwhile, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army men, in savage fighting in the six-day-old battle for Fort Driant, five miles southwest of Metz on the Moselle, advanced 100 yards into one of the fort's underground passages.

The Americans there had taken everything the Germans could throw at them both from the inside and the outside while holding on to the northwest and southwest corners of the fort. They then began their assault on the enemy holed up in the underground honeycomb.

Seventh Gains Five Miles

On the south flank French and American soldiers of the Seventh Army beat their way eastward five to seven miles to positions on three sides of the copper mine town of Le Thillot, 18 miles north of Belfort and only six miles from the 2,398-foot Bussang Pass through the heart of the Vosges.

In lower Holland, Allied forces closed within a few thousand yards of the stronghold of Tilburg. Canadians established a bridgehead over the Leopold Canal west of Antwerp, although they met exceptionally fierce resistance. Other troops fought to Ossendrecht, 14 miles above Antwerp and only three miles from cutting the German escape road from the flooded Dutch lowlands at the mouth of the Schelde.

The Fort Driant Battle

American artillery and close-support bombers were working over the German gun positions which still made the Third Army's hold on Fort Driant difficult.

Some of the Nazi heavy guns had been pounding away from hidden emplacements as far as 20 miles beyond Metz, Associated Press Correspondent Edward Ball reported. He said Thunderbolts located one such gun position and bombed shut the tunnel from which it was firing.

The Germans had apparently managed to get reinforcements up along the whole southern front and were counterattacking repeatedly in an effort to keep the battle back from the Rhine, whatever the cost in troops.

Nazis Gain Near Sivry

One strong counterattack regained the Germans some ground near Sivry, ten miles north of Nancy. But east and southeast of Nancy the Third and Seventh armies maintained a slow, steady advance.

East of Luneville, 15 miles southeast of Nancy, the Seventh was more than halfway through the Forest of Parroy and had smashed an enemy tank and infantry counterattack in the southeastern part of the forest. Anglemont, 16 miles southeast of Luneville and six miles south of Baccarat, was liberated.

Near Bruyeres, 10 miles east of Epinal, the Americans were mopping up the last of German troops which infiltrated their lines in an attempt to seize control of key hilltop positions.

Munitions Dump Blown Up

Gains of a few hundred yards were made in hard fighting near Cleurie, 13 miles southeast of Epinal. East of St. Ame well-placed American artillery fire blew up a big German ammunition dump.

The Germans were routed out of a heavily fortified stone quarry near Cluaie, southeast of Epinal, and the Americans pushed on through the forests of Lonegoutte and Gehan in advances of a mile or more.

The greatest gain was the thrust which all but ringed Le Thillot, 36 miles across the Vosges from the Rhine.

French Advance In South

To the south, French forces of the Seventh gained through the dense forest of Vannes and broadened their assault arc at the entrance to the Belfort Gap 10 miles from the town of Belfort.

Canadian artillery, meanwhile, was systematically pounding the last German stand at Dunkirk.

The Holland Fighting

Canadians who burned their way with flame-throwers across the Leopold canal south of the Schelde estuary had a bridgehead 6,000 yards wide and 1,000 yards deep. They were running into some of their bloodiest fighting since Caen.

British and German troops were doggedly engaged northwest of Nijmegen and southwest of Arnhem in the thin, low battleground between the Waal and Neder Rhine.

The Germans said the Tommies had won a new bridgehead across the Rhine west of Arnhem—but there was no official suggestion in London that there was any truth in the report.

Dogs A New Nazi Worry

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Germans complained today that Allied canine reinforcements were cramping their style on the Western front.

"The Allies have set up special police troops with sleuth dogs to counter our reconnaissance formations," a broadcast said.

A Secret Army Led Belgium's Underground

Guerrillas, Set Up in 1940, Wore Overall-Uniforms; 'Pygmalion' Was General

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP).—A secret army formed in Belgium in 1940 furnished the core of the Belgian underground force of 50,000 that rolled into action a month ago ahead of the Allied advance. And even before the overall-uniformed troops began their guerrilla warfare, 400 separate teams totaling 5,000 men and women had carried out widespread sabotage on road, rail and telephone communications.

A cadre of officers gave the army shape and it grew under a general known only as "Pygmalion." It was disclosed tonight that "General Pygmalion" is fifty-year-old Lieutenant General Jacques Pire. A constant stream of instructions were radioed by the Belgian government in London to Pire's forces, and the signal for the sabotage teams to start was given in a broadcast from London on June 8.

It was to General Pire that General Dwight D. Eisenhower in mid-July sent his congratulations for the sabotage accomplished against communications.

Under a mask of secrecy and subterfuge the army had an official name, "L'Armee Secrete." It went under several other names after Premier Hubert Pierlot, by order from his headquarters in London, constituted the Belgian officer group into a formal army in 1942.

A year later Belgium was divided into five areas, each with its own command. There were sixty landing grounds to care for parachuted personnel, material, radios and other supplies.

Under the eyes of the Germans, 60,000 overalls were manufactured early this summer as uniforms. When the forces went into action they wore Belgian colors which had been dropped by parachute, giving them military status.

To help the sabotage teams, technicians were flown from England and dropped by parachute. When explosives ran low, the underground stole from quarries and from German ammunition dumps.

After D Day the saboteurs destroyed or damaged fifty-nine road and rail bridges, 600 rail sites, twenty-six telephone exchanges, 140 engines and 484 freight cars, as well as thousands of gallons of oil and gasoline.

Allied Hostages Called Nazi Plan

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—ABSIE (American Broadcasting Station in Europe) today quoted Reich Marshal Hermann Goering's Essener National Zeitung as declaring editorially that the Nazis were preparing to use the "most outstanding" Allied prisoners in Germany as hostages for the safety of high Nazis slated to be tried as war criminals after Germany's defeat.

Among the "most outstanding" Allied personalities now being held in Germany are King Leopold of Belgium and Edouard Herriot, the French statesman.

179 Parisians Held for Crimes

PARIS, Oct. 7 (AP).—The arrest of 179 Parisians during September on charges of murder, robbery and other crimes while posing as members of the French Forces of the Interior was announced by police last night.

246 Members In French Assembly

Paris, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Cabinet has fixed membership of the new Consultative Assembly at 246, it was disclosed today. The assembly will hold its first meeting in Paris November 7.

Rainy Day Fashions

Paris, Oct. 7 (AP)—A rainy day costume, including an umbrella of the same material as the dress and a funny little black gold-buttoned boot, was the feature of yesterday's show by Lucien Lelong. The emphasis on the weather reflected the present lack of transport in Paris.

Dutch Report Nazis Slay 450 Patriots

London, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—The Germans were declared by the Netherlands news agency Aneta today to have executed 450 Dutch Patriots in a concentration camp at Vught, a mile and a half south of 'S-Hertogenbosch.

Belgian Situation On Food Not Bad

Brussels, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Belgium, a country which suffered starvation after the last war, lacks many foodstuffs today, but the situation is far from critical, the head of a mission from Supreme Allied Headquarters said today.

Some foodstuffs have been imported thus far, said Maj.-Gen. George W. E. J. Erskine at a press conference, but relief on a large scale will depend on Allied success in getting Belgian ports back in running order.

RED TANKS CRUSH GERMAN DEFENSES ON MAGYAR FRONT

HERCHER

Swift Soviet Advance Gains 28 Miles East of Tisza River.

DRIVE ON BUDAPEST

Capture Vital Rail Town in Campaign to Knock Out Hungary.

LONDON, Sunday, Oct. 8—(AP) Swift Russian tank and cavalry forces crushed the entire Axis defense system east of the Tisza river in southeastern Hungary yesterday, racing through 300 more towns and villages in a 28-mile advance that carried to within 83 miles of Budapest, imperilled Magyar capital.

With the seizure of Gyoma, rail town on the Bucharest-Budapest trunk railway, the Russians had advanced 55 miles northwest of Arad, western Romanian jumping-off base, in their rapid campaign to knock out Hungary, last big Axis satellite still in the war.

Capture Rail Towns

The big rail junction towns of Bekescsaba, Oroshaza, Bekes, and other important points fell in the massive drive, which now has overrun 400 localities and by-passed Hungary's second city of Szeged, at the lower end of a 75-mile invasion arc.

Hungarian troops bolstered by Nazi reinforcements were battling fiercely at the lower end of the invasion line in the 15-mile sector between Szeged on the Tisza river and captured Mako, 15 miles to the east.

At the top of the front moving relentlessly across the plains the Russians announced the capture of Szeghalom, 35 miles west of the by-passed northwestern Romanian rail junction of Oradea, one of two major Nazi escape routes out of Transylvania.

Szeghalom, 21 miles inside prewar Hungary, is only 40 miles southwest of Debrecen, the flight exit for scores of thousands of Germans and Hungarians fighting far to the east of Transylvania's rugged uplands.

At Nagyszenas, 19 miles south of Gyoma, one Russian spearhead was only 30 miles east of a Tisza river crossing at Szentos, and only 23 miles from Csongrad, a town at the juncture of the Tisza and Koros rivers.

Once these rivers are bridged the Russians will have removed the two major natural obstructions ahead of them on the road to Budapest and Austria beyond. Moscow dispatches said Cossack cavalry and armored units were slashing easily through Axis resistance and by-passing large numbers of bewildered enemy troops. Berlin and Budapest both spoke of a "large scale" Soviet offensive.

Emphasizing the grave danger to southern Germany, a Yugoslav broadcast said Marshal Tito's partisans had linked up with Austrian anti-Nazi patriots, members of the "Austrian freedom front" on the Yugoslav-Austrian frontier.

Seize Communication Lines

In their Hungarian invasion the Russians had seized or neutralized all the major Axis communication lines east of the Tisza river between imperilled Szeged and Oradea. In throwing their main weight north and northeast of Szeged, the Russians at the same time threatened nearby Hodmezovsarhely, a Hungarian town of 62,000.

The capture of Totkomlos put one Soviet group only 18 miles east of Hodmezovasarhely, and Oroshaza's fall put them the same distance on the northeast. They were less than 15 miles away on the south, battling in the hills north of Mako.

In Yugoslavia's Banat district to the south, meanwhile, other Soviet troops were moving swiftly to outflank the lower Hungarian border, and preparing to cross the Tisza river above its confluence with the Danube not far from Belgrade, threatened Yugoslav capital.

With the seizure of the road and rail town of Velika Kikinda, 70 miles north of Belgrade, the Russians in this area were within 20 miles of the southern Hungarian frontier, and within 30 miles of Szeged, as they spread out along the Tisza water barrier.

Capture 400 Localities

Among the 400 localities taken were Sajan, seven miles west of Velika Kikinda; Nakovo, five miles northeast of Velika Kikinda; Bocar, eight miles southwest of Velikakikinda; and Beodra, three miles south of Bocar.

The column which ran through Sajan was only nine miles southeast of Senta, where a railway crosses the Aisza and runs through Subotica and approaches Budapest on the south.

Berlin disclosed that other Soviet forces, deploying along the north bank of the Danube opposite Belgrade had reached the mouth of the Tisza where it empties into the Danube. That point is 22 miles northwest of the Yugoslav capital and the same distance southeast of Novi Sad, junction on the Belgrade-Budapest railway.

At this point the Russians also would be only 10 miles northeast—across the Danube—from Indjija, strategic junction of the Belgrade-Budapest and Belgrade-Munich railways.

Other Soviet units across the eastern Serbian mountains below Belgrade were reported within thirty miles of the Belgrade-Nis railway, cutting of which would trap an estimated 150,000 German troops strung out through southern Yugoslavia and Albania and fighting the British invasion of Greece.

Moscow announced simultaneously that Red Army units had begun a great pincers movement on German East Prussia, attacking beyond Siauliai in western Lithuania, and also crossing the Narew River at Pultusk, twenty-nine miles north of Warsaw and thirty-eight miles from the lower East Prussian frontier. At least 200 Nazi tanks were knocked out in two days, Moscow said, when the Germans tried to liquidate our bridgehead on the right bank."

"Great battles" are going on west of Siauliai, seventy-five miles southwest of embattled Riga, the Russians said, adding, "fighting is proceeding with the superiority on the side of the Soviet troops."

A Berlin broadcast hinted at what Moscow has not yet told—that the Russians in this long dormant area—going over to the offensive with 200,000 troops—had penetrated within twenty miles of the northeastern corner of East Prussia. The Soviet units were astride the Siauliai-Tauroge road at a point west of Rasemiai, Berlin commentators disclosed.

"Deep penetrations" of the German lines in the area were acknowledged by Berlin, which said, however, that the Russians still had not achieved their major objective of breaking through to the Baltic Sea and thus cutting off all the German troops at Riga and in northwestern Latvia.

North and east of Riga, Russian troops renewed their drive on the Latvian capital, capturing 100 localities on an arc ranging from twenty-two to twenty-five miles from the city.

Cossacks Spread Death Back of Hungarian Lines as Defenses Crumble.

BELGRADE NOW BESIEGED

Algiers Says German Troops Are Being Taken Out of Capital in Big Transport Planes.

Moscow, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Russian infantry forces, surging across the Romanian frontier into Hungary on a seventy-five-mile front, today moved steadily toward the Tisza and Koros rivers, last great natural obstacles before Budapest.

The indications were that the backbone of the German-Hungarian resistance had been broken and that the Russians had an excellent chance of carrying the fight to the Budapest area within four or five days at the present rate of advance. Budapest was about ninety miles away early today.

Kuban Cossacks were reported spreading death and panic at the rear of the Hungarian troops, unable to disengage themselves on the shattered front in southeastern Hungary. "Our mobile units are chasing the retreating enemey," said a front line dispatch to Izvestia, "and light Cossack units are in their rear."

[The Berlin radio said that the Russians breaking into Hungary had achieved "breaches in major depth."]

100 Towns Taken so Far.

Already more than 100 communities of the last big Nazi puppet nation had been seized, the latest communiques announced.

Already thirteen miles inside Hungary the Red Army has seized three important railways and highways leading into Budapest. Driving swiftly across farmlands offering little natural defense the Red Army troops captured Mako, within fifteen miles of Szeged, Hungary's second city, and drove toward Orshaza and Bekes, ninety miles to the east, the war bulletin said.

Coupled with operations in the northeast corner of Yugoslavia, the Russian invasion of Hungary was now spread out along a ninety-mile front from north of Belgrade to the southeastern plains, and German tanks and anti-tank weapons seemed powerless to stem the tide.

Belgrade Besieged.

In Yugoslavia, Belgrade was virtually besieged.

There still was no indication whether the Germans were going to make a fight for the Yugoslav capital and there was no official report that Russians had crossed the Danube in the immediate Belgrade area. There was reason to believe, however, that the Russians and Tito's units were almost at the lowland suburbs across the river, if not already in them.

[The Algiers radio said the Germans were evacuating troops from Belgrade with the use of big transport planes.]

The new offensive in southeast Hungary fanned out from Arad, big west Romanian base.

Invasion of Austria.

The new thrust was announced as other reports in Moscow said that the Hungary home front might collapse at any moment, and the Russians already were planning an invasion of Austria after knocking out Hungary.

Hungary also was menaced by Russian military might from the north where along the Czecho-Slovak-Polish border Soviet troops fought toward a crossing of the Carpathian Mountains and sweep into the Magyar country.

In the Baltic, the war bulletin said, Russian troops on Saare Island, which guards the entrance to the Gulf of Riga, captured eighty populated places on a twenty-five-mile front and advanced southwestward fifteen miles.

Russia Sets Up Vast Net Of Airways in Siberia

Fields Near Japan and Alaska Easily Convertible for War

MOSCOW, Oct. 7 (AP).—A vast Far Eastern network of airlines is operating from permanent, all-weather airfields between the Soviet part of Sakhalin Island, the Kamchatka Peninsula and Kolyma, it was announced officially today.

The system gives the Soviets strong air protection for the Far East, because the fields could be converted almost immediately for military operations.

Finns Face Long Fight Against Nazis in Lapland

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 7.—(AP) Finnish general staff officers say the Finns must "fight a rather long war" in Lapland before they can eliminate an estimated 100,000 to 110,000 Germans who have moved supplies northward for a winter war.

President Gustaf Von Mannerheim of Finland is understood to have compared the task facing the Finns to the 1941 offensive against the Russians, which cost an unofficially estimated 30,000 Finnish lives.

Reliable sources from Helsinki said the Russians have modified the armistice to permit the Finns to use their air force, and have waived the armistice clause obliging the Finns to demobilize within two and one-half months. The Russians have not interfered with the Finnish campaign against the Germans, although they have observers attached to the Finn's army.

Heavy Fighting Near Tornealv

Stockholm, Oct. 7 (AP)—Heavy fighting, with large forces of Germans attacking in the neighborhood of Tornealv, at the tip of the Gulf of Bothnia on the Finnish-Swedish border, was reported today by the Finnish communique.

"The Germans continued pressure east of Tornealv throughout yesterday and succeeded in penetrating Finnish positions at some points but at the price of big losses," the communique said.

Nineteen planes bombed the Tornealv neighborhood twice, the announcement said.

Finns Facing Major War With Nazis

London, Oct. 7 (AP) — Finland, which has fought two wars since 1939—both of them against Russia—must brace itself for another arduous war, this time against Germany.

This estimate of the military situation confronting the little northern country after several weeks of fighting between Finnish and German troops was made by the Helsinki newspaper Suomen Sosialidemokratti, quoted today by the Moscow radio.

"Many of us," the paper said, "were credulous enough to hope for the voluntary withdrawal of the Germans from Finland. But the German command evidently decided to pursue in Finland the crazy tactics dating back to Stalingrad."

POLES COUNT ON ALLIED AID

Look For "Big Three" Parley To Avert Civil War

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—Poland's exiled Government counts upon the united support of Britain and the United States in an early meeting of the "big three" as the last hope for bridging its widening split with Russia and preventing the possibility of a Polish civil war.

Top-ranking Polish officials, mourning the disaster of Warsaw, have decided to halt their policy of conciliation, initiated under Prime Minister Churchill's pressure, and will sit tight waiting for Moscow to make the next move, it was learned today.

To Black Out News

As part of this stand, the government of Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk unofficially has decided to black out news of its diplomatic dickerings, aware that its case has become a dangerous factor in British-American-Soviet relations.

Cabinet members have developed an increasing reluctance to go as far as Mikolajczyk has proposed in dealing with the rival, Soviet-supported National Liberation Committee.

This reluctance began to crystallize after President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz ousted Gen. Kasimierz Sosnkowski as Polish commander in chief and named in his place Lieut. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski, only to have the new appointee assailed in Moscow as a "criminal."

In the stand-pat plan decided upon since the battle of Warsaw ended, there will be no immediate replacement of captured General Komorowski by a military man acceptable to the Russians. Instead, Raczkiewicz will wield the military powers.

Leaves Alternative

In effect, the plan will leave Britain and America with the alternative of sacrificing the Polish Government which they long have supported or of putting increased pressure upon Moscow for a compromise with the Poles in London.

Diplomatic circles in this international capital expect that the showdown will come when Churchill, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin meet again, perhaps in December.

This opinion is based upon the general belief in London that failure to settle the dispute before victory over Germany will result in civil strife in Poland and upon the premise that a quiet Poland is essential to the continued peace of Europe.

Warsaw Edict Reported

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Polish Telegraph Agency reported today that Germany had ordered the evacuation of the entire Polish population of Warsaw, estimated at 1,000,000 persons, and added "there is every reason to believe they intend to send a large proportion of these to concentration and labor camps."

The agency said the Polish Government in London has made "an urgent and desperate appeal to all the United Nations to help at all costs to prevent this new mass crime from being committed."

RECORD AERIAL BLOW HITS REICH

7,000 Planes Pound Targets in Greatest Assault of War.

LONDON, Oct. 7 — (AP) Germany's oil supply, armament works, airplane factories and explosives plants were struck today by the greatest Allied aerial blow of the war, with combined assaults sending from 6,000 to 7,000 Allied planes over the Reich.

A U. S. strategic air forces communique called the American part of the operation "the greatest coordinated aerial assault of the war."

51 Fortresses Downed

Heavy opposition was reported from flak and enemy fighters, and the Eighth air force alone reported 51 heavy bombers and 15 fighters missing from daylight operations.

Tonight several German cities were in flames and there was fresh devastation over the length and breadth of German territory from more than 16,000 tons of bombs cascaded down in 24 hours.

High explosives and incendiaries seared Germany, Austria, Hungary and the Nazi Western front, as fine weather gave Allied flyers their chance to strike.

Enemy fighter opposition was concentrated in the Leipzig area, where Fortresses were engaged in a brief sharp attack by more than 50 Messerschmidts and Focke-Wolfs.

Bomber gunners reported destroying 11 German fighters, while U. S. fighters shot down 22, including four jet-propelled planes.

The Swiss radio reported tonight that a German hydroelectric power station near the Swiss frontier and a large dam on the Rhone-Rhine canal in upper Alsace had been hit in today's raids.

Tiger and Panther tank factories were hit at Magdeburg and Kassel. Other targets included chemical and explosives plants, an aircraft repair depot, airdromes, and a truck factory in the area of Clausthal-Zellerfeld, south of Brunswick, and at Swickau, south of Leipzig.

Hit Oil Refineries

Squeezing the southern prong of the scissors, more than 800 Flying Fortresses and Liberators from Italy hammered a string of Nazi oil refineries a few miles southeast of Vienna, Austria, and also ranged into Hungary, where a number of railways were blasted.

Another blow was struck by nearly 700 Lancasters and Halifaxes, which blasted with heavy concentrations of bombs two advance German army bases at Emmerich and Kleve, near the Dutch border.

As these attacks proceeded, 200 other RAF heavyweights staged a second spectacular attack on the Dutch island of Walcheren, southwest of Rotterdam, this time breaching the sea dikes at Vlissingen on the south side of the island.

More than [illegible] British heavy bombers struck at Germany, Britain and Italy participated in the widespread daylight attacks. With 3,000 Allied fighters providing escort and making auxiliary attacks, the day's sorties surpassed Friday's 6,000 figure.

2,300 From 8th Air Force

The United States Eighth Air Force dispatched by far the greatest fleet, sending over 1,400 Flying Fortresses and Liberators with a bodyguard of 900 fighters. These plastered more than a dozen targets in nine different cities in central and eastern Germany.

Six synthetic oil plants were attacked, at Politz, near the Baltic; Ruhland, Magdeburg, Bohlen, Merseburg and Litzkendorf. The latter three are in the Leipzig area, and Ruhland is northeast of Dresden.

GIGANTIC ALLIED ARMADA OF 6000 PLANES HIT FOE

Many Nazi Targets Blasted by Combined American and R.A.F. Units.

London, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Approximately 6,000 Allied planes—including nearly 3,000 heavy bombers—dealt Germany one of the heaviest aerial blows of the war today.

More than 1,400 American heavies from Great Britain, the second largest force ever sent out from here, attacked more than a dozen targets while 800 Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the United States Fifteenth Air Force struck the Reich from the south and 700 British heavies pounded communications centers on the Western front. The remainder of the attacking force was made up of American and British tactical aircraft based in France and Belgium.

The Air Ministry hailed the air operations as the beginning of a new offensive against Germany.

[The Berlin radio warned its listeners of a weak Allied Air Force formation flying toward Upper Silesia. CBS recorded the Berlin broadcast.]

Vienna Area Hit.

The Italian-based heavy bombers hit oil refineries a few miles southeast of Vienna and rail communications and an airfield in Hungary.

Most of the Eighth Air Force targets were synthetic oil [illegible], tank factories and engine plants in central and northern Germany. Several of the major blows were in the Magdeburg-Leipzig area. Another heavy attack was at Politz, north of the Baltic port of Stettin.

For the second straight day the R. A. F. attacked Nazi rail communications at Emmerlich and Kleve, across the Dutch border in Germany at the northern end of the Siegfried Line.

Other British bombers attacked Walcheren Island off the Dutch coast. This tiny island at the mouth of the Schelde on which the Germans had many heavy gun emplacements, was previously reported one-third flooded by the first bombing which breached the sea wall.

Weather Good

The Allied bombers and fighters soared over Germany in good weather, piling up new destruction in the wake of more than 6,000 flights by bombers and fighters yesterday.

The Eighth Air Force and the RAF sent heavy bombers in night and day operations against oil and industrial plants and airfields, with Berlin, Dortmund, Bremen, Hamburg and Ludwigshafen among the targets.

Germans In Balkans Attacked

Incomplete reports indicated the Second Tactical Air Force flew 1,500 sorties and the Ninth Air Force flew another 1,500 yesterday in support of the United States First and Third armies.

Bad weather restricted operations of the Mediterranean air force, but Germans in the Balkans were attacked during the night by bombers.

Berlin was attacked twice yesterday. Fortresses and Liberators hit a tank assembly plant, military and ordnance depots, and an aircraft engine plant in the first daylight raid since June 21. The RAF was over the Reich capital at night in a diversionary flight while other planes were dropping more than 1,500 tons of bombs on Dortmund and more than 1,000 tons on Bremen.

New Offensive Seen

The Air Ministry hailed the operation as the beginning of a new offensive against Germany and said that from 3 P. M. until midnight more than 1,200 bombers flew to their targets.

Crews said both Dortmund and Bremen were burning fiercely and that Saarbrucken, attacked the night before, was still ablaze.

Forty bombers were lost yesterday, 12 by the RAF in its night attacks. Ten fighters were reported missing.

Dortmund, site of large steel factories and other heavy industry, took on new importance as a railroad junction with reconnaissance disclosure that the entire eighteen-mile stretch of the Dortmund-Ems Canal is dry and that at least 110 barges are stranded in the canal. R. A. F. bombers broke down its embankments September 23.

Stockholm, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Eight American planes made forced landings in south Sweden today, and six flyers were killed and ten were injured. One plane burned.

FLYING BOMBS BLAST SOUTHERN ENGLAND

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP) The Germans exploded flying bombs into southern England tonight for the third consecutive night as rescuers still dug for victims of last night's attacks.

The bombs which sailed in over the North sea from the east after dark touched off thunderous anti-aircraft fire. Some got through and were heard to explode inland.

Night and day rescue and demolition work proceeded at places bombed last night. There were casualties but a number of persons were removed alive from the wreckage of business buildings.

Allies Seek Way Of Weeding Out Arch-Criminals

Axis Heads May Be Tried in a United Nations Court, Not in Land of War Crime

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP). — The United Nations War Crimes Commission has been attempting to find a dividing line between "war criminals" and "arch criminals," it was learned today. Presumably this is a preliminary toward establishing a high Allied court for trial of leaders of Axis aggression.

Still proceeding cautiously, the commission thus far has concentrated chiefly on procedure. Fewer than 1,000 persons have been listed for prosecution.

The basis for post-war prosecutions, according to an authoritative source, will remain the decision to return those who escape vengeance within their homeland to the country where the crimes were committed. But while this method is expected to prove workable in the vast majority of cases, the problem becomes more complicated in dealing with such arch criminals "as Adolf Hitler, Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Paul Joseph Goebbels and Heinrich Himmler, for whom several countries are expected to enter demands.

If these Nazi leaders survive the collapse of organized German resistance, it is expected they will be tried by a high tribunal on which will sit representatives of the three big powers as judges, and perhaps with a jury composed of representatives of the countries which Germany overran.

[The American Broadcasting Station in Europe yesterday quoted Reich Marshall Hermann Wilhelm Goering's "Essener Nationalzeitung" as declaring editorially that the Nazis are preparing to use the "most outstanding" Allied prisoners in Germany as hostages for the safety of high Nazis slated to be tried as war criminals after Germany's defeat.

[Among the "most outstanding" Allied personalities now being held in Germany are King Leopold II of Belgium, and Edouard Herriot, French statesman. ABSIE's broadcast was recorded by the Office of War Information.]

Hitler-Bomb Hurts Kill Another General

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—Gen. Rudolf Schmundt, chief adjutant of the Germany army, died of wounds suffered in the July 20 attempt to kill Hitler and was given a state funeral at Tannenberg yesterday, a German news agency broadcast said today.

The broadcast said the 48-year-old general was the third to die among the men wounded by the explosion. The others were Col. Gen. Gunther Korten, chief of the air force general staff, and a man named Berger, who has been identified as "adviser to Hitler."

Post-War Rent Control

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—Post-war control of British rents at a fair figure through the establishment of courts all over the country is under consideration by an interdepartmental committee on the future of Rent Restriction Acts.

Britain To Increase Fleet In Pacific

South Shields, England, Oct. 7 (AP)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, said today that the Royal Navy already had a formidable fleet in the Indian ocean and that plans to move warships to the Pacific were going ahead rapidly.

He told a meeting of seamen that the British Home Fleet constantly was on guard against any activity by what remains of the German fleet, which he said still must be considered seriously.

Alexander disclosed that 9,000 convoys have entered or cleared through United Kingdom ports since the war began.

V-3 Trials Reported

Weapon Said To Be Manned by Two S. S. Air Force Men

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Free German Press Bureau, recently founded here by German refugees, reported today that the Nazis had completed their first trials with the V-3 — nicknamed the "American Bomber" — somewhere in Austria.

Designed for long-distance attacks on England, the V-3, like the V-1 and V-2 cannot return to base, but unlike the others, which are robots, the V-3, is manned by two crew members picked from the recently created S. S. (elite guard) air force, it was said.

NAZIS DRAWING BACK IN ITALY

Inability To Stabilize Line Facing Americans Reported

Rome, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Germans, with eight divisions reported opposing the American Fifth Army, have again failed to stabilize their front in central Italy and apparently are trying to build a new defensive line farther north, Allied headquarters said today.

The Americans drove forward two miles past the captured town of Loiano to a point only 12 miles from Bologna, at the edge of the Po Valley.

Remove War Materials

The Germans were reported working frantically to ship war materials from northern Italy to Germany before their front collapses. One report said the Nazis were ripping up railway lines and sending the rails to their homeland. Another said the enemy was attempting to remove whole factories, including workers.

In order to gain more time for looting the Po Valley and the industrial centers of northern Italy, Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring is moving in reinforcements from other parts of the front to impede the American drive, an official Fifth Army report said.

Gains Along Highway

Today's Allied communique said that "the enemy has again failed to stabilize his front in the central sector, where American troops of the Fifth Army continue to make a methodical progress." At headquarters the belief was officially expressed that the Nazi command was hoping of finishing preparation of another defensive line to the north.

There was no intimation, however, as to where the enemy could hope to reestablish a front short of the Alps, once both the Fifth and Eighth armies flood on to the plains.

The most significant American gains were made along the main Highway 65 running northward from Florence to Bologna. It was here that the doughboys drove the Germans from positions around Loiano and advanced two miles beyond.

To the east another Fifth Army thrust north from the mountain village of Sassoleone carried to within ten miles of Castel San Pietro, which lies on the all-important Bologna-Rimini highway and rail routes.

Monte Vigese, 22 miles southwest of Bologna, was taken by South African troops moving up the Pistoia-Bologna highway.

Taken By South Africans

On the Eighth Army front Indian troops crossed the Fiumicino river in the mountains near its source, drove the enemy out of San Martino di Bagnolo, 14 miles southwest of Rimini, and captured the town of Sogliano, a mile to the south. In that area the Germans counterattacked fiercely and laid down a screen of shellfire.

In the rugged area farther inland, the Eighth Army captured the village of Tezzo and 65 prisoners, but on the Adriatic sector only patrol action was reported along the lower Fiumicino.

Allied headquarters said today the Germans again had failed to stabilize their lines in the central Italian sector. Doughboys who cleared the enemy from Loiano were fighting yesterday two miles north of that important road junction town on the main Florence-Bologna highway, No. 65.

Peak Is Captured

On both sides of the highway other Fifth Army units kept abreast of the central salient. To the west, British and South African troops occupied Monte Vigese, which dominates the Pistoia-Bologna highway, and to the east a spearhead north of the mountain village of Sassoleone carried to within 10 miles of Castel San Pietro, which is on the Bologna-Rimini higaway.

Meanwhile, in the Adriatic sector Indian troops of the Eighth Army crossed the Fiumicino river near its mountain source, slugged the Germans out of San Martino di Bagnolo and captured Sogliano, 15 miles southwest of Rimini. Farther west in the valley of the Upper Savio, British troops took Tezzo.

Airdromes Strafed

The weather continued to hamper operations and the Mediterranean Allied Air Force was severely restricted in its support of ground troops. However, fighters carried out strafing attacks against airdromes in Greece and the Balkan Air Force attacked military objectives in northeastern Italy, Yugoslavia and Albania. Eleven planes were reported missing.

Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring continued moving German reinforcements from other parts of his lines to impede the American drive. Eight German divisions were reported resisting the Fifth Army attacks with increasing intensity.

One report said the Germans were ripping up railway lines in northern Italy and shipping them to the Reich.

The skies were clearing again, but mud and swollen streams continued to hamper all operations.

Nazis Reported Taking Supplies From Italy

Rome, Oct. 7 (AP)—United States Fifth Army troops have shoved ahead another two miles to within 12 miles of the Po Valley communications center of Bologna as the Nazis were reported working frantically to evacuate strategic war materials from northern Italy to the Reich.

2 German Spies in Rome Trapped by Hep-Cat Talk

By The Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 7—Second Lieut. Robert E. Berry of Jackson, Miss., on leave in Rome from his P-51 piloting job, uncovered an escaped German prisoner with a bit of hepcat talk.

Lieutenant Berry was questioning a suspicious-looking individual in the uniform of an American Army captain when another dressed as a private stepped up to explain that he and the "captain" were in special propaganda work.

"Are you a zoot-suiter with a reat pleat?" Lieutenant Berry demanded suddenly.

"No, I'm from the Fifth Army," the German replied. Both men were taken away by military police.

ALLIES OVERRUN GREEK PENINSULA

Reuters Says Germans Abandon Corinth, Planes Strafe Athens Airfields.

ROME, Oct. 7—(AP) British invasion forces have overrun most of the Peloponnesus, home of the ancient Spartans, it was announced today, and Allied strafing of Athens' airfields indicated that they would soon cross the Isthmus of Corinth to the Greek mainland, scene of their bitter 1941 retreat.

(A Reuters report from Cairo said that the Germans had abandoned Corinth and that Allied occupation was imminent.)

Behind the liberating Tommies came a Greek government-in-exile representative who took over administration of the peninsula and told a crowd clamoring in the north port of Patrai for a peoples' rule that their exiled monarch, King George II, and his government would try "to satisfy your wishes."

Pilots returning from strafing missions, during which they blasted at least a score of planes, said German units were in flight from Greece, leaving their air force without land force protection.

Greek patriots at Patrai, where their ancestors in 1821 plotted the overthrow of Turkish overlords, said that the Germans had cleared out of the northern part of the peninsula, just as they had fled the southern ports and central regions earlier.

There was no further information on a light force which landed in Albania.

Communiques on Greek operations have been far behind accomplishments, and it may be assumed that second phases of the invasion, the drive to the Greek mainland, is well under way.

Behind them the Germans left a hungry population and Greek puppet "security battalions," which have been surrendering readily to the British.

The Germans had attempted to hold Patrai and Rion, a smaller port to the east commanding the mouth of the Gulf of Corinth, but they yielded after a short fight and the loss of their airdrome in that sector.

Mustangs and Lightnings swarmed over Greece, strafing troops knocking down attempts to evacuate personnel by air, shooting up six airfields near Athens and Salonika despite heavy flak, and destroying or damaging more than 20 planes on the ground.

The air superiority was a far cry from the days of 1941 when the thin British line of troops fleeing Greece before the German army was at the mercy of the enemy's planes.

(A dispatch from Cairo said the Germans had blocked the Corinth canal, cutting across the Corinth isthmus between the Peloponnesus and the mainland, by blowing two bridges and sinking a blockship. Greek sources in London said fighting had broken out inside Athens and the Germans had blocked all roads into the capital.)

An official announcement said the Germans had been thinning their forces in the Peloponnesus for two and a half months, beginning with the abandonment of the southern ports of Monemvasia, Gytheion and Kalamata.

It was assumed that as the Germans reduced their garrisons on Greece's outer rim of defenses in the Peloponnesus, they also were pulling out of the Greek islands along the Turkish coast and in the southern Aegean, the Dodecanese. An exception is the big island of Crete.

Seize Half Of Island

An Allied communique announced that British ships bombarded the island of Levitha Thursday, then sent landing parties ashore which seized the commander and the eastern half of the island. Levitha is a small island 43 miles west of the Turkish coast.

A dispatch from Cairo said British naval and air power had "sealed the fate of German garrisons left in the Dodecanese and other islands."

There were reports of widespread starvation and suffering for lack of medicine in Greece, and some estimates were that 500,000 Greeks had died of these two causes in the more than three years of Nazi rule.

When Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Greek Minister of Reconstruction, arrived at Patrai to take over as administrator of the peninsula, he was met by a crowd of about 3,000 chanting "we want rule by the people."

"The government will do all in its power to satisfy your wishes," he replied. "First, however, we want obedience to the government."

King George has announced he will not return to Greece unless the people summon him.

Peloponnesus Is Virtually Cleared

Rome, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Peloponnesus was virtually cleared of the Germans today and a minister of the Greek Government in exile took over administration of the peninsula as British forces pushed eastward toward the Isthmus of Corinth.

A field dispatch from the captured port of Patrai said the northern rim of the Peloponnesus had been vacated by Nazi troops in the exodus noted earlier in the southern and central sections.

(A dispatch from Cairo said reconnaissance photographs showed the Germans had blocked the Corinth ship canal, which cuts across the narrow isthmus, by demolishing two bridges and sinking a blockship. Greeks in London said they had heard that the Germans blockaded all roads to Athens and that fighting was in progress at the heart of the capital.)

No Major Stand

Relatively light units of the land forces on the Adriatic moved forward to liberate areas abandoned by the Germans. When the Germans failed to make a major stand at Patrai and Rion to cover the rereat, there was little to bar complete liberation.

It was assumed here that as the Germans shrank the outer perimeter of the Greek defenses, they also abandoned islands along the Turkish coast and in the southern Aegean, with the exception of Crete. Even the Crete garrison has been considerably reduced, with most of the troops reported swarming to the western end of the island in the hope of escaping through the Allied air and sea blockade.

Garrisons' Fate Sealed

(A dispatch from Cairo said British naval and air arms "have sealed the fate of German garrisons left the fate of German garrisons lost in the Dodecanese and other islands.")

30. 24 — 19395

British ships bombarded the Greek island of Levitha on October 5 and then landing parties captured the eastern half of the island. The German commander on the island surrendered after a further bombardment.

Levitha is a small island 43 miles west of the Turkish coast.

Allied planes strafed six German held airfields near Athens and Salonika on the Greek mainland in the face of heavy flak but met no fighter opposition.

Evacuation Attempts

Conducting effective strafing attacks, United States 15th Air Force Mustangs and Lightnings countered German attempts to evacuate or supply troops by air and destroyed more than a score of enemy planes on the ground.

Four of the enemy airdromes attacked are within a twelve-mile radius of Athens. Airdromes at Sedes just south of Salonika were strafed by Lightnings which hit parked aircraft, motor transport and a radio station.

Spitfires and Hurricanes of the Balkan air force swept the Gulf of Corinth, shooting up a convoy of Germans attempting to escape from the Peloponnesus. Despite heavy flak, a Siebel ferry and a landing craft loaded with troops were left burning.

Nazi H. Q. Hit

Italian-based Balkan air-force planes also gave support to Allied troops in Albania, where the German headquarters at Delvino was demolished by a salvo of rockets.

Enemy gun positions also were blasted in Albania and Spitfires destroyed motor convoy transport in northern Greece. Eleven Allied planes are missing from 150 sorties.

British naval units roamed the Adriatic and the Aegean. A German battery on Corfu was bombarded, shells were poured into Crete, a Junkers transport plane was shot down over Maleme and direct hits were scored on a beached coastal vessel off the island of Melos.

Stores Of Arms Seized

Associated Press Correspondent Sydney A. Feder, in a delayed dispatch from captured Patrai, told of Allied seizure of stores of arms —many of them of American and British manufacture—held by Greek Quisling units.

Feder reported that Patrai's waterfront streets have been found considerably chewed up by bombing and mortar fire. The enemy attempted to dynamite the entire quarter-mile long concrete dock area, planting explosives in specially prepared sunken stone emplacements. But they succeeded chiefly in wrecking only a 35-ton crane.

Eleven Allied Planes Lost.

Enemy gun positions also were blasted in Albania and Spitfires destroyed motor convoy transport in northern Greece. Eleven Allied planes are missing from 150 sorties.

The Nazi withdrawal from the Peloponnesus began with the abandonment of the port bases of Monemvasia, Gytheion and Kalamai (Kalmata), all in the southern part of the peninsula. At Tripolis, near the center of the peninsula, the Germans left behind more than 2,000 collaborating Greeks, who surrendered to the British on October 2.

British naval units meanwhile roamed the Adriatic and the Aegean. A German battery on Corfu was bombarded, shells were poured into Crete, a Junkers transport plane was shot down over Maleme and direct hits were scored on a beached coastal vessel off the island of Melos.

Nazis to Scuttle Ships.

London, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—The German Navy is preparing to scuttle its ships in Ægean harbors, a German transocean agency naval commentator said today.

Many vessels brought from Romania along the Danube to the Iron Gate already have been sunk, he said, "thus constituting a not easily removable obstacle for enemy shipping on the Danube and hampering their supplies. Similar tasks are now taking shape in the Ægean Sea."

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—Radio Ankara, quoting the Brazzaville radio, said today that Allied airborne troops had landed on the Aegean Island of Rhodes. The broadcast was reported by NBC.

Greeks Describe 'Massacres' By Nazis In 1,300 Towns

By Sydney A. Feder

Patria, Greece, Oct. 5 (AP—Delayed)—Greek Patriots estimated today that some 1,300 villages and towns in Greece had been burned and pillaged by the Germans during three years of occupation and the most brutal was the "massacre of Kalavryta."

At Kalavryta, large district capital 50 miles south of here, the Germans machine-gunned 700 men and boys—the entire male population—sacked and burned the town and failed in cremating some 1,300 women and girls only because an Austrian soldier unlocked the doors of the burning building in which they had been herded. The Germans shot him.

Others Have Same Fate

Fifty to 60 other towns in the region suffered the same fate as Kalavryta in the German reprisal campaign of 50 Greeks for each Nazi killed.

Just how many civilians were slain this way throughout the country it is impossible to estimate. It is known that some 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 were made homeless and that many died because of exposure, disease and starvation.

The same savage treatment went on in the large towns as well as the small ones. This seaport of 100,000 population saw several of the Germans "50-for-1" reprisals.

Women Dig Ditch

On one occasion all the women and children in the town were ordered to dig a huge ditch near a monastery on the outskirts of the community. The Germans then brought 50 Patriots to the scene and shot them so that their bodies fell into the ditch. The women and children were then ordered to cover the bodies with dirt. Most times, however, the Germans would not reveal the place of execution and families discovered the fate of their men folks only when lists of those executed were posted.

Describes Torture Chamber

The Germans had a torture chamber here. Greeks who refused to collaborate were placed in small cabinets, large enough to hold four people standing up. The walls of the cabinets were lined with glass and nails to prevent the victims from leaning against them.

Victims were made to stand erect until they finally collapsed from exhaustion.

Dr. P. A. Harris, a dentist who graduated from the University of Illinois and who practiced in Chicago's West Side for 15 years until he returned to Greece in 1935, said, "Wherever the Germans went they stole everything" and shipped it to Germany.

"Their favorite trick," he related, "was to steal our furniture and ship it home to Germany in cases marked 'gifts from the Greek population for German victims of British and American bombings.'"

At Kerpine, near here, when the Germans first arrived, they picked 80 people at random and shot them.

Fifty others were killed at Rogoi, and the vallages of Sudena Theotokos and Sudena St. Basil were sacked. All the men were taken prisoner and there has been no word of their fate.

$1 Will Get You 300 Million Greek Drachma

Patrai, Greece, Oct. 4 (AP—Delayed)—Nazi manipulation of Greek currency during three years of occupation had reached such a fantastic stage that today in this liberated fourth largest port of Greece one American dollar is worth 300,000,000 drachma, and a one-pound loaf of bread costs 18,000,000 drachma.

Before the war the rate of exchange was 125 drachma to the dollar, according to John Moustacopoulos, who is agent for several steamship lines. Today three cigarettes cost 5,000,000 drachma.

The liberating forces which reached here last night had trouble with their currency—mostly American ten-dollar gold seal notes and British one-pound occupation currency notes. There was no one in town with enough drachma to make change for these bills.

The price lists in local food shops today read something like this:

One pound of beef—136,000,000 drachma.

One egg—1,000,000 drachma.

A pound of sugar—40,000,000 drachma.

A pound of grapes—6,600,000 drachma.

Nazis Tried to Round Up Allied Citizens at Patras

Head of Legion Post There Says Effort Was Foiled

PATRAS, Greece, Oct. 5 (Delayed) (AP).—An American veteran of the World War who heads the Patras American Legion post said today that Gestapo agents tried to round up all American, British and Russian nationals of Greek descent six weeks ago and ship them to Germany.

He is Dmitrios E. Alex, who had a wholesale crockery business in Chicago twenty-four years ago. He said he was forced by his health to return to Greece in 1934. His business still is being run in Chicago by his brother George and his uncle John.

"The Gestapo ordered all Americans, British and Russians to report," said Alex, who served in France with the American Army in 1918. "There are about 1,000 in this area. They were planning to send us to Germany either as prisoners of war or to work in labor battalions. So, except for two or three, we didn't check in at all."

Alex said there are four American Legion posts in Greece, numbering about 1,000 members. Until the war they usually sent delegates to the Legion conventions.

Alex said the Germans rounded up about 70,000 Jews in Greece and shipped them mostly to Poland. Recently he received a report that only about 4,000 of them were still alive.

Greek Pledge On Democracy

Patrai, Greece, Oct. 5 (AP—Delayed) — Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Greek Minister of Reconstruction, took over as administrator of the liberated Polapannesus today with a pledge that shouted demands for democracy — "rule by the people" would be considered.

The former University of Athens professor spoke from the balcony of the former United States Consulate, before a crowd of about 3,000. He was interrupted by a chant: "We want rule by the people."

"The Government will do all in its power to satisfy your wishes," Kanellopoulos replied. "First, however, we want obedience to the Government.

King George II of Greece has announced that he will not end his exile until his people ask him to return.

ALLIES CONTACT

JAPANESE IN INDIA

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 7—(AP) British west African patrols have made contact with reinforced Japanese who penetrated two miles inside the extreme southeast border of India, a headquarters spokesman announced tonight.

This penetration into eastern Bengal was the first officially disclosed Japanese incursion into India since last March, although headquarters conceded it was possible the enemy had been back and forth across the frontier on several occasions.

Presence of a small number of enemy troops in upper Burmese Kaladan had been reported throughout the monsoon season and they have been reinforced in the last month. This was looked upon as a Japanese reaction to Allied advances further penetrating into Burma, and a preparation for the approaching dry weather, with subsequent improved battle conditions.

The spokesman disclosed that Japanese had been milling about the India-Burma frontier in the area adjoining Kaladan, and said the Allied patrols had located them in "very difficult" country.

The previous penetration of India was the drive into Manipur which almost overran the state before the invaders were thrown out. Tiddim, which was the jump-off point for that operation, is now threatened by Allied forces.

Japs Yield Tiddim's 'Chocolate Staircase'

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 7 (AP)—With strong air support, Allied forces today were reported laboriously wiping out Japanese entrenched in bunkers and other strong points on the approaches to Tiddim in northwestern Burma.

The enemy now has abandoned defense of the "Chocolate Staircase" section of the Tiddim road, which winds up 3,000 feet in 40 hairpin turns, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said.

The Tiddim-Fort White road has been brought under Allied attack, a communique said.

JAPS IN NEW CHINA LANDING

Move To Control Fukien Coast Seen—Tokyo Claims Foochow

Chungking, Oct. 7 (AP)—A new enemy landing southeast of Foochow, already the target of a swift advance of Japanese invasion forces from the northwest, was reported tonight by the Chinese high command.

The operation evidently was designed to secure Japanese control of a coastal stretch of Fukien province in which airfields might be built against the threat of American landings.

[A Japanese communique broadcast by Tokio said that three days ago "our units . . . completely occupied" Foochow after crushing the Chinese 80th Division, which offered stubborn resistance from positions around the city.

Reports Outskirts Reduced

[A later broadcast of a Japanese Domei agency dispatch, however, failed to claim complete occupation, but said the invaders "completely reduced the outskirts of the city the morning of October 4."]

The Chinese high command said the Japanese, who landed in Fukien September 27, still were held in the northwest suburbs. "Brisk fighting" was reported. The Chinese gave no indication that the enemy had penetrated the city, last remaining major East China port not under Japanese control.

The new landing was made on the south bank of the Min river opposite Mamoi, from which the invaders drove to a point 15 miles southeast of Foochow. The port, lying across a narrow strait from Formosa, has been held by the Chinese since April, 1939, when they retook it after the enemy had occupied it for five months.

Renewed Drive Halted

In Kwangsi province Japanese units attempting to outflank Kweilin on the west began a fresh drive yesterday, but were halted about 12 miles west of Hingan and 25 miles north of Kweilin, the high command said. Heavy fighting continued in the area.

The Chinese also acknowledged enemy progress in the push against the west river region in the general direction of Liuchow, one of the most important rail junction cities in the whole of Free China. The city is south of the Kwangsi defense center of Kweilin.

The Chinese said the Japanese Thursday night lunged out 12 miles northwest of their base at Pingnam, which is about 80 miles southeast of Liuchow. They were met by the Chinese and engaged in brisk fighting.

In Yunnan province the Chinese yesterday reoccupied an important position just southwest of Lungling, most important remaining Japanese base on the Salween front. They repulsed a Japanese attempt to drive them out, a communique said.

Enemy patrols made unsuccessful attempts to penetrate the Chinese lines, and Japanese artillery shelled two Chinese positions in the area but caused little damage.

Japanese Claim Capture Of Foochow

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—Foochow, capital of Fukien province and the last major port held by the Chinese on the East China coast, was captured by a Japanese invasion force three days ago, a Tokyo broadcast of a Japanese imperial communique said today.

There was no immediate confirmation of the claim from Allied sources, but the Chinese high command yesterday said Japanese troops had reached the northwestern suburbs of the city, located across a narrow strait from the northern tip of the Japanese-occupied island of Formosa.

Once Taken In 1939

Foochow, occupied by the Japanese previously in April 1939 and retaken by the Chinese in September the same year, was the target of Japanese troops landed in Fukien province in what Tokyo said was a drive to forestall American landings from the Pacific.

Meanwhile, an Associated Press dispatch from Chungking said a Chinese communique announced Chinese troops had completed the reoccupation of an important position southwest of Lungling, in Yunnan province to the southwest, with the capture of a high peak.

Fighting also raged in Kwantung province to the south where the Chinese high command yesterday said defenders operating behind Japanese lines had recaptured the important town of Szewui, 47 miles northeast of Canton.

The fall of Paoching, key Hunan city 135 miles north of Kweilin, Kwangsi defense center, appeared imminent. Fall of the city would remove a threat to the Japanese right flank in the enemy drive against Kweilin.

Aircraft of the 14th United States Air Force bombed the Mangshieh area October 5 causing fire and explosions, and on October 4 the 10th United States Air Force bombed a bridge at Wanting, as well as other targets in the vicinity, the Chinese communique said.

(Reuter reported from Chungking that General Stilwell announced American aircraft sank a 3,100-ton freighter and damaged another freighter in the Straits of Formosa.)

4 More Jap Ships Bombed In Indies

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Oct. 7 (AP)—Army airmen whittled four more ships from the Japanese fleets in East Indies raids, today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported.

October's shipping toll thus was enlarged to 23 ocean-going vessels sunk or damaged by planes, a good start toward bettering last month's bag of 210 surface craft. (These figures are for the flying forces only and do not include Japanese ships destroyed by the United States Navy.)

Minelayer Sunk

The day's communique said a minelayer was sunk near Soela Island, east of Celebes; a 3,000-ton freighter transport probably was sunk off Celebes; a 1,000-ton vessel was sunk near Amboina and a 3,000-ton merchantman was blown up by a direct hit.

Eight small surface craft also were sunk and 11 damaged.

Airdromes Attacked

United States planes raided airdromes and supply depots at Celebes and destroyed at least one plane. Airdromes were attacked in the Moluccas, where another plane was destroyed.

The communique reported 595 more Japanese killed and 153 captured on New Guinea and in the Solomons.

Gen. MacArthur Praises Feats Of 'Lone Wolf' Raiders in Pacific

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Sunday, Oct. 8.—(AP) The seventh fleet's "Lone Wolf" air raiders—the pilots of the Black Cats and Liberators who courageously are collecting a heavy toll of Japanese shipping off the Philippines—were singled out for praise today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"No command in the war has excelled the brilliance of their operation," he said in a message to Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, commander of the Seventh fleet.

The big Navy Liberator bombers and the Black Cats—the night flying Catalina patrol boats—are under command of Rear Adm. Frank D. Wagner, commander of the Seventh Fleet Air force.

Recently a Catalina audaciously attacked a seaplane tender and two small warships alongside it and sank all three in one bombing run. In another outstanding feat one plane attacked an entire Japanese convoy.

The latest strike was at shipping moored off Zamboanga, southwestern Philippines. Five freighters, from 300 to 1,000 tons, were strafed by a lone Navy Liberator. Another hit two ships off Dutch Celebes. The raids were Thursday and Friday.

Other American planes battered both sides of Celebes, hitting Kendari and leaving its two airdromes unserviceable Thursday. Then they struck that night on the other side of the island, attacking Makassar with its docks, wharves and shipping.

12,211 of Foe Slain in Palaus, 224 Captured

Marine Bombers Operate From Airfield Seized From Japanese at Peleliu

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 7 (AP).—American marines and soldiers invading the Palaus have killed 12,211 Japanese and captured 224 since Sept. 15, the day of the landings, the Navy announced today in a communique.

On the airbase island of Peleliu, 11,083 Japanese have been slain and 214 captured but the enemy still was clinging to one pocket of resistance on Umorbrogol Mountain (Bloody Nose Ridge). Today's communique said American tanks and artillery had reduced that pocket Friday.

The other 1,128 Japanese slain and ten captured were accounted for on Angaur, south of Peleliu in the plains.

[It was announced on Oct. 5 that 1,022 American soldiers and marines had been killed, 6,100 wounded and 280 were missing since the beginning of military operations on the Plaus on Sept. 154. During the same period 11,043 Japanese were killed and 187 taken prisoners.]

Operating from Peleliu's captured airfield, marine Corsair plannes ranged north in the Palaus to the big island of Babelthaup Friday, damaging villages, sixteen supply dumps, two buildings and twenty-eight trucks and strafing three boats and seven barges.

The communique told also of air action against the Kurile Islands, northeast of Japan. Mitchells bombed Paramushiro and Shimushu Tuesday, sinking a cargo ship, damaging a barge, fighting off fifteen to twenty enemy planes, probably destroying two and damaging two others. Liberators also bombed Paramushiro.

Near the Palaus, a navy Search plane struck at Yap the same day.

Liberators dropped thirty-three tons of bombs on by-passed Truk in the central Carolines Thursday.

Costa Rica Holds American

Soldier of Fortune Accused of Aid to Nicaraguan Revolutionaries

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Oct. 7 (AP).—An American soldier of fortune, listed by the Costa Rican government as Jeremiah Francis Barry, a former United States marine, was arrested and interned last night on charges of participating in an unsuccessful attempt to unseat Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza.

Barry, captured in Costa Rican's northern jungles by a Costa Rican patrol was accused of joining Nicaraguan revolutionaries led by General Noguera Gomez. The American Embassy said it would not intervene.

Air Power Exceeds U. S.', Japanese Say

San Francisco, Oct. 7 (AP)—Japan now has aircraft "ready for action" which "far exceed the enemy's first-line air force," a Tokyo propaganda broadcast beamed to the United States claimed today.

The broadcast declared Japan is now "posed for dealing a sledge-hammer blow on the enemy."

Big Change Reported

It quoted Capt. Keizo Matsumura, chief of the press section of the Japanese fleet in China waters, as saying:

"A thing which we must not lose sight of is that the Japanese combined fleet has undergone a big qualitative change, enabling it to operate with a powerful air force as its nucleus."

In this broadcast intended for American consumption, Matsumura was said to have found "numerous weaknesses in the enemy's strategy" because of extended supply-lines, "as seen in the operations in the Morotai and Peleliu areas."

1,000 Jap Internees 'Mourned' By Tokyo

San Francisco, Oct. 7 (AP)—"Memorial services" will be held in Tokyo October 18 for "more than 1,000 Japanese internees in America, Canada, Australia and India" who, the Tokyo radio said today, had died since January. United States Government monitors reported the English-language propaganda broadcast.

War Needs Get First Call On Jap Railroads

San Francisco, Oct. 7 (AP)—A "wholesale reorganization" of Japan's crowded railroads will become effective Wednesday, the Tokyo radio reported today.

"Ordinary passenger trains" and "those trains of no immediate importance" will be "reduced to the minimum," the report said.

The purpose is to provide more coaches for war workers and more freight cars for the "war goods transport services."

(Shortage of rail facilities is a major bottleneck causing Japan's domestic food shortages.)

Buddhist Funeral Planned For Toyama

San Francisco, Oct. 7 (AP)—A Buddhist funeral will be held Tuesday for Mitsuru Toyama, powerful Japanese secret society leader, who died Wednesday at 89, a Tokyo broadcast said today. United States Government monitors intercepted the report.

Toyama, sometimes called Japan's "unofficial emperor," was president-emeritus of the powerful Black Dragon Society and ruled millions of Japanese fanatics who belonged to the extra-legal secret societies.

DELEGATES DRAFT WORLD PEACE PLAN

Program Similar to League of Nations, Will Be Made Public Monday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—(AP) A master design for World security was formally concluded at Dumbarton Oaks today.

But from the time it is made public Monday by the American, Russian, British and Chinese governments until it is finally acted on by each of the United Nations months later it probably will be subjected to sharp world wide debate and criticism.

Similar to League

In broad outline the design is somewhat similar to that for the League of Nations, consisting of an assembly of all nations and a council of a few, including permanent membership for the great powers. Still unsettled is the crucial issue of voting on questions of aggression when some nation threatens to start a war.

However, Undersecretary of State Stettinius, winding up the conference, predicted that the United States, Russia, Britain, and China would "take early steps" to complete a four power plan for world security organization.

Addressing the closing session Stettinius said the plan would be critically received but eventually would be accepted by all peace loving peoples.

Except for the issue of whether a major power on the top council of the proposed peace agency should have veto power on an accusation of aggression against itself, the plan for world security organization is substantially complete.

"The peace loving peoples of the world will soon have opportunity to judge what we have accomplished here" Stettinius declared. "They will appraise our work critically for they are deeply earnest in their search for means to rid the world of the horrors of war and insecurity under which they have suffered so cruelly and so long.

"I am fully confident that the proposals upon which we have agreed will meet the test of their scrutiny."

The voting machinery could not be finally fitted together because Russia desired to retain a veto power over any charge of aggression which might be brought against her. The United States and Britain insisted that any of the great powers so charged should leave the decision up to the others.

Some compromise proposal will have to be worked out eventually if the council is to function effectively. Informed officials here believe that a compromise may best be achieved through a meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

The concluding phase of the Dumbarton Oaks conferences, held by Chinese, British and American delegations, lasted just a week. The opening phase of the British, Russian and American talks, lasted six weeks, about twice as long as originally scheduled, prolonged by the argument over a big powers right of veto.

Reds Distrust World

This controversy is said by some authorities to stem from Russia's suspicions of the rest of the world, the belief in Moscow that the rest of the world is suspicious of Russia, and the different approach of the Russians domestically as well as internationally to questions of judicial procedure and justice.

The problem ties in too with several current international conditions which constitute a background of difficulty for Anglo-American-Soviet-Chinese cooperation in the postwar world. The chief conditions now emphasized by officials here as bearing on this situation are:

1—The conflict of Russian and British interests in the Balkans. For many years the British dominated Balkans politics thereby protecting the Eastern Mediterranean flank of their empire lifeline to India through the Suez canal. It is now considered quite apparent that the Russians plan to dominate the Balkans after this war.

2—The Russian-Polish split for which, officials here believe, there is now less prospect of a satisfactory solution than at any time since the split developed.

3—Russia's reluctance to regard China as one of the big four powers. The United States, considers China of such potential future importance that it has more or less pledged itself to China's development into a strong modern nation.

4—The lack of basic decisions on the disposition of conquered Germany after this war has left wide open a field for British-Russian power politics which also may have to be settled in an early big three conference.

Dumbarton Oaks Statements

OCT 8 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP).—The text of concluding remarks made by the chairmen of the British, Chinese and United States delegations at the close of the Dumbarton Oaks conversations today follows:

Edward R. Stettinius jr., chairman of American delegation:

During the last week we have had opportunity to consider the document of proposals with our colleagues from China. Our thoughtful re-examination of these proposals, in plenary session, in the formulation group and in the steering committee, has been most fruitful. We have benefited greatly from the close study which Dr. Koo and his advocates have given the document and from their penetrating observations and their new perspectives. I am deeply gratified that the members of the Chinese group have found in the proposals, based as they are upon the documents submitted by all four participating groups, an acceptable body of principles for an international organization to maintain peace and security. Out of our discussions during this phase have emerged many points to which we shall all want to give consideration in preparations for a full conference.

It has been rightly said of war-makers that they destroy in days that which has taken generations to build. Our task has happily been to construct. I sincerely hope it may sometime be said that the men of peace who have sat around this table have reached agreement in days upon principles which strengthen the promise of security and peace for generations.

The common understanding we have achieved and the agreements we have reached in so brief a period have been possible because of the great qualities of statesmanship of my fellow chairmen, Dr. Koo and Lord Halifax, and of the constructive spirit of co-operation which has prevailed among all who have worked with us. I wish to express my deep appreciation and that of the American group for the cordiality and the wisdom which our British and Chinese colleagues have brought to the task and for the spirit of harmony which has prevailed in our deliberations.

The peace-loving peoples of the world will soon have opportunity to judge what we have accomplished here. They will appraise our work critically, for they are deeply earnest in their search for means to rid the world of the horrors of war and insecurity under which they have suffered so cruelly and so long. I am fully confident that the proposals upon which we have agreed will meet the test of their scrutiny. Within these proposals are contained the more important principles for an organization that will make possible, in our era, effective international co-operation for peace and security.

As we conclude this final phase of our conservations at Dumbarton Oaks I am deeply conscious of the bonds of friendship and common purpose which join us with China and with the United Kingdom in our common struggle to defeat the Japanese and German aggressors. I anticipate with full confidence that the unity which the United Nations have achieved in war, and which has so richly manifested itself in our present conversations, will strengthen in peace. The four nations which have participated in these conversations will, I am sure, take early steps to complete the task we have begun at Dumbarton Oaks and thereby make possible in the not-too-distant future the calling of a general conference for the establishment of the organization which we have projected here and which is so devoutly desired by the peace-loving peoples of the world."

Dr. Koo's Statement

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, chairman of the delegation of the Republic of China:

Mr. Chairman, gentlemen:

I have listened with deep appreciation to the generous tribute which you, Mr. Chairman, have paid to the Chinese delegation and the fair appraisal which you have made of the work of the Dumbarton Oaks conversations. I wish to say how grateful we of the Chinese delegation feel toward you, Mr. Chairman, for having acted as chairman of our meetings over which you have presided with such marked ability and unfailing courtesy. We wish also to express our thanks for the hospitality of the government of the United States, which left nothing to be desired in affording facilities for our meetings and comfort for the delegates. The efficient secretariat provided by the State Department has also been a very great help to us in our work.

In our deliberations we found the achievement of the first phase of the conversations excellent groundwork. The set of proposals which has now received the indorsement of the different participating delegations furnishes a preliminary and concrete plan for the formation of an international organization to maintain peace and security. We hope that the fruits of our labor will contribute in the end to the strengthening of the foundation of this new structure to be reared.

From the outset we were animated by an earnest desire to promote the success of our joint task. We are glad and delighted to be able to say that our spirit of collaboration was fully reciprocated by our colleagues on the American and British delegations. At all the meetings we had, whether of the plenary session, the steering committee, the formulations group, or of the military experts, an atmosphere of frankness and cordiality prevailed. The learning and wisdom of our American and British colleagues made a deep impression on us. All this made our deliberations and participation both pleasant and profitable.

We believe that this important series of conversations initiated by the United States government has accomplished its purpose. The set of agreed proposals, when approved by the four governments and finally embodied in a more complete form, will constitute a most valuable instrument for consideration and adoption by all the interested nations at a general conference. It is our hope that this conference can be held in the near future so that the ardent wish of all the peace-loving peoples to see the establishment of a universal organization to safeguard international peace and security after the achievement of victory over our common enemy in the east and in the west can find its early fulfillment.

Remarks by Halifax

Lord Halifax, chairman of the British delegation:

Mr. Stettinius, and Dr. Koo and ladies and gentlemen, the conversations just concluded under your able chairmanship have in my own view and in that of all the members of the British delegation made a great contribution to the eventual establishment of the international organization that we seek. The Chinese delegation I have no doubt feel with us that we have owed much to the rare personal qualities that you, sir, have brought to your duties in the chair, and to the large-minded participation of the whole American team. We have throughout the consideration of these problems been much influenced by the views which the Chinese delegations were good enough to place before us at an early date, and we were much encouraged by finding that the line of approach which we ourselves favored was very similar to that advocated by our Chinese friends. On most questions of the first importance we found ourselves in close agreement with them.

Thus, the plan which we have worked out together at Dumbarton Oaks owes much to the wise and consistent thinking of the Chinese delegation. Dr. Wellington Koo has, as always, given to us freely and candidly the results of his long experience of international affairs, and the exchanges which we have had with him and with his colleagues have been both searching and constructive. The large measure of agreement that we have reached shows that there is no barrier between the East and the West on these questions, which mean so much to the future of the world.

We have all recognized the common interest in the solution of these large issues and, if we have not resolved all of them, that is because some of them require more prolonged and intense study than we have been able to give. But a great deal has been accomplished, and I can say frankly that when the suggestion was first made that these conversations should take place, I have no expectation that we should have been able to go so far as this stage. That we have done so, Mr. Chairman, is of good augury for the future.

We must all be very conscious of the difficulty of the problems that will confront us, but if we handle them with the same spirit of good will and common sense which has shown itself at all our meetings in these hospitable quarters, I am certain that we can find answers for them which all peace-loving nations can accept, and thus make possible the creation of an international society in which mankind can find the opportunity to reach a higher level of civilization than has previously existed.

A great Greek philosopher said that the state came into existence in order that men might live, but that its justification was to be found only if men lived nobly, so, (and I believe that in this thought I have the full agreement of all those who have taken part in these conversations) the international organization should be brought into existence in order that nations may be saved from destruction; but it also will only be justified if through the years all humanity is enabled by it to find the way to a better and a nobler life.

Tanker Outguns A Submarine in 12-Hour Battle

Eludes 5 Torpedoes, Fires Shot for Shot Till Plane Routs Enemy in Pacific

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7. (AP)—Exchanging shot for shot, the American tanker Yamhill "outmaneuvered and outfought" a Japanese submarine in a day-long battle in the Pacific recently, the War Shipping Administration reported today.

The tanker, Kaiser-built in the Swan Island shipyard at Portland, Ore., eluded five torpedoes and many shells from the deck guns of the Japanese raider, said the W. S. A. report. The encounter was broken off when arrival of a Navy PBY plane forced the enemy craft to dive for safety.

The Navy gunners and eighty merchant seamen were at battle stations just three minutes after the lookout, Carman J. Nappa of Union, N. J., broke the early morning calm with the shout: "Tin fish on the port side."

Nappa was almost thrown out of the crow's nest by the violence with which Quartermaster Richard C. Durant, Washington, Ill., put the helm over. The torpedo missed by about five feet. Four more came over in quick succession, but all missed.

Captain Philip W. Shinn of Long Beach, Calif., kept the ship zigzagging and the gun crews stood ready. The submarine surfaced and let fly two shells. Both went over. The tanker's first shell was short. The second bracketed the submarine and the Japanese hastily submerged to avoid the third shot which would have been on the target.

Smoke from the submarine's Diesel exhaust was sighted half an hour later five miles away, but the enemy kept moving on a course outside the tanker's range. One shot from the merchantman, at extreme range, fell twenty-five yards short but the two replying shells from the submarine were 200 yards short.

For twelve hours the game went on, with the submarine taking advantage of its greater speed to keep out of range. The tanker fired more than thirty shells and the Japanese twice that number.

"Many shots had landed near the tanker when the perspiring crew and gunners heard the hum of motors," W. S. A.'s report said. "A Navy PBY was coming out of the sun in response to the distress signal, flashed earlier by radio operator Herbert H. Haley, of Pullman, Wash. The day-long battle was over."

The Yamhill is operated for W. S. A. by the Los Angeles Tanker Operators, Inc. It was delivered Dec. 5, 1943.

European Art Less Damaged Than Expected

Metropolitan Director Says Many Collections Are Intact, Churches Suffer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP).—European art has suffered far less damage than any one dares hope, Francis H. Taylor, director of the New York Metropolitan Museum reported today after London conferences on restitution of looted treasures.

Many famous collections of France and Italy are "almost wholly intact," but England has suffered more extensive damage to landmarks, museums and libraries by blitz and robot bombing, he reported.

Mr. Taylor said 4,000 historic English churches have been damaged and 2,800 destroyed. Most badly damaged cathedral, he said, is the famed Exeter, considered one of the finest examples of Middle Gothic architecture. All of the great Christopher Wren churches of London were seriously damaged, and almost all the Grinling Gibbons seventeenth century woodcarvings were lost.

OCT 8 1944

Working libraries in London are almost a total loss, but rare editions had been stored for the duration and are safe, Mr. Taylor reported. Eighteenth and nineteenth century newspaper files suffered serious damage as did the libraries of art and archeology.

"Brilliant artillery direction and precision bombing from maps laid out by fine arts officers resulted in saving of ancient buildings in France," Mr. Taylor asserted.

Paris, except for industrial outskirts, is unharmed, only the Palais de Luxembourg, where Goering had Luftwaffe headquarters, being a military target, he said. The Louvre and most of its seventy storage depots escaped damage and are in Allied hands now, Mr. Taylor said.

The Nazis, however, looted private collections of art in France, he reported, the Rothschild collections of paintings, sculpture and books having been completely rifled.

Rome remains untouched except for the Church of San Lorenzo, Mr. Taylor said, and repairs to the west front vestibule and the roof of that structure are almost completed.

Individual art pieces of Florence are reported safe, although historic buildings and bridges were blasted.

At Pisa the fresco of Campo Santo, "The Triumph of Death," was destroyed but the Leaning Tower and Cathedral appear to be undamaged.

Among paintings which have vanished from the Naples National Gallery collection are two Titians, a Raphael, a Luini, a Claude Lorrain and the famous Peter Breughel painting, "The Blind Leading the Blind."

"There is no positive evidence that Germans removed the pictures, but the Breughel has recently been reported to be in Stockholm," he said.

Indications from Belgium and Holland are that state collections have not suffered extensively, but no predictions on the state of fine arts and historical monuments in countries east of Germany may be made now, Mr. Taylor said.

Lublin Poles Expected To Handle UNRRA Aid

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—United Nations officials now expect that the Soviet-sponsored Polish Liberation Committee may have full control of distributing relief supplies in liberated areas of Poland.

A United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration commission probably will be sent into the area to estimate needs and to work out plans for distribution.

A similar commission may go into the areas of Yugoslavia controlled by Marshal Tito, but the Yugoslav plans are generally less advanced than those for Poland. The Yugoslav situation is less complicated since Tito, while he controls the Yugoslav Committee of Liberation, is also associated with King Peter's exiled Government so that no question of jurisdiction arises.

Polish Puzzle

UNRRA's predicament over Poland stems from the split between Russia and the Polish government in exile. Its solution is believed to lie in the common interest of feeding and clothing cold, hungry millions.

UNRRA officials wrestling with the problem here have fallen back on two stated principles of the organization: (1) Relief must be distributed without regard to race, religion or politics, and (2) UNRRA may deal with whoever is in administrative control of an area in which supplies are to be distributed.

Pan American Appeals For Sole Rights on Route

Wants To Be Only U. S. Line Flying to South America

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP).—Pan American Airways renewed today its plea that it remain the only American-owned company operating flights between this country and South America, a post-war privilege sought by fifteen other air lines and steamship companies.

In the second day of Pan American's presentation before the Civil Aeronautics Board, John C. Leslie, Atlantic division manager, urged that no other lines be permitted to operate between the United States and Bermuda because, he said, the amount of traffic involved did not justify it. He also asserted that his company could give better service and was in a position to compete with British and Canadian lines.

J. G. Borger, assistant to the company's chief engineer, disclosed that the air line planned post-war use of new DC-7 planes for long-range flights of from 1,200 to 3,000 miles. Delivery of these planes by Douglas Aircraft should start early in 1946, he said.

Latin America And U. S. Plan To Spur Trade

OCT 8 1945

Favor Credit Organizations Owned and Run Locally to Back Foreign Buying

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP).—American bankers, foreign traders, and government officials are discussing the possibility of setting up locally-owned and operated commercial credit organizations as "middle-men" for the financing of trade between the United States and individual Latin-American countries, it was learned today.

Government officials who were willing to talk about the projected plans, provided they were not quoted, said the discussions were more or less in the "dream stage," but that the idea is being given encouragement from all quarters.

The plan, as outlined here, calls for the establishment of commerfinanced and operated locally in each Latin-American country. These organizations would have sufficient backing to finance the purchase of American goods for local importers in dollars while collecting from the importers in local currency.

This idea stems from similar American-owned and operated commercial companies that existed before the war in many Latin-American countries principally to finance the export of American automobiles and radios. These became inoperative when American automobile and radio factories were converted to war production.

Proponents of the plan feel that this setup would be a favorable solution to the long-standing problem of financing trade between this country and the American nations. It would, they said, meet the demands of American bankers and exporters for receiving cash or short-term payments for American exports and at the same time would give the Latin-American exporters the "breathing spell" they say they need to make their payments.

However, these persons would prefer to have the proposed commercial credit houses run by nationals of each country with the added support and aid of the local ministries of finance for the principal purpose of currency exchange.

Admittedly, sources here said, the plan is not as simple to operate as the broad outline suggested appears. Some of those discussing the plan, they say, feel strongly that the plan cannot work without the active support of the United States Export-Import Bank and the central banks in each of the Latin-American countries.

A spokesman for the Export-Import Bank, speaking of this angle, said the bank has been in on the discussions to some extent and has encouraged the idea right along.

Medical-Training Aid Is Urged

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—Dr. John P. Peters, professor of medicine at Yale, said today that like the public at large, the military authorities seem to have considered numbers and distribution of physicians in their plans for medical care of the armed forces, rather than quality.

"Their educational program was so set up," he declared in an address before the District of Columbia Medical Society, "that the quality of young physicians has been compromised for more than five years unless some means can be found to allow the young medical officers to complete or supplement their education."

"Competitive Practice" Urged

He asserted that the problem of rehabilitation and relocation of physicians could be solved by reorganizing around hospitals the present "competitive practice" of medicine and defraying the cost of medical care by some kind of a national prepayment plan.

Dr. Peters said that in response to questionnaires, 60 per cent. of the medical officers in the armed forces "announced a preference for group practice."

Wounded's Care "Best Ever"

The record achieved by American army surgeons in care of the wounded is "unparalleled in the history of warfare and is little short of miraculous," Army Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk told the society.

"The survival rate among our wounded at the present time is higher than it has ever been in any army in any war at any time," he declared.

Beyond saving more lives, he said, military surgeons are developing new treatment techniques designed to hasten wound-healing and prevent deformity and disability. One is a method of leaving certain wounds open for a time until all danger of infection is past.

In very complicated wounds, he said, the availability of penicillin has allowed "surgical procedures that would otherwise not be possible."

CUTBACK OF 32 P. C. TO FOLLOW V-E DAY

Washington, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—War production throughout the country in the year after victory in Europe will be cut back about 32 per cent from the August rate, with reduction in prime contracts for West Coast plants running somewhat lower—about 25 per cent—Chairman J. A. Krug of the War Production Board wrote Representative King (D.-Cal.) today.

The letter to the Californian, based on preliminary results of a WPB study, was in reply to the expressed fears of Mr. King and other West Coast Representatives that their section might not be allowed to reconvert on a par with other areas because of the necessity for continued production for the Japanese war after V-E day.

"There shall be equality of opportunity for all in reconversion," Mr. Krug promised.

A $20,000,000 cut-back in the production of steel landing mats has been ordered by the Army, the Office of War Information announced today, adding that the reduction will affect twenty-one plants scattered throughout the country and cause the gradual lay-off of 585 employees. Present production will be reduced during a period extending through next March, the OWI said. The cutback was attributed to changing needs of the war.

"The small number of workers to be released is due to the gradual paring down of the program and also to the fact that the plants generally are loaded heavily with other war work," the OWI said.

The principal cut-backs are planned in areas of labor shortage. Six of the plants affected will absorb in other departments all of the labor which has been producing landing mats, it was said.

CONGRESS MAY LIMIT FRANKING

White House Admits Error in Roosevelt Speech.

Washington, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Representative Anderson (D.-N. M.), chairman of the House Campaign Expenditures Investigating Committee, indicated today that Congress might be asked to put what he termed reasonable limits on its free mailing privileges.

This was the latest in a series of fast - breaking developments following a report filed by Mr. Anderson with his committee that thirteen Republicans had mailed 3,116,000 copies of one political speech at Government expense.

After President Roosevelt had quoted the Anderson report in his Thursday radio address, Representative Taber (R.-N. Y.), retorted that "the number of speeches sent out under frank by the Democrats exceed the number sent out by the Republicans three to one." The New Yorker, ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, gave no specific figures.

The White House, meanwhile, issued a statement saying that Mr. Roosevelt inadvertently and in error had interpolated the word "free" in referring in his address to the printing of more than 3,000,000 copies of the speech, by Representative Busbey (R.-Ill.). The Busbey speech attributed a sinister purpose to the C. I. O. Political Action Committee, and declared that the "red specter of Communism is stalking our country."

"This was an inadvertence," the White House said of the printing cost, "because the actual paper and printing were paid for by some one, but the mailing of more than 3,000,000 documents was free, under the franks of the thirteen Republican members of the Congress. The cost of mailing far exceeded the cost of printing."

WALLACE LEAVING ON SPEAKING TOUR

Washington, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Vice-President Wallace has set Tuesday night for his departure on an extensive stumping tour of the Mid-West. His executive secretary, Harold Young, said today the Vice-President will stop in Cincinnati October 11, drive through portions of Ohio and appear in Cleveland October 13.

The following day he will call on Senator Samuel Jackson, Democratic candidate for Governor of Indiana, at his home in Fort Wayne, and he will turn up in Indianapolis October 15.

Mr. Wallace will move into his home State, Iowa, to address a political meeting at Mason City October 17. He will spend the following two days in the State including a stop in his home town of Des Moines. A major speech has been scheduled for Minneapolis October 21. Mr. Wallace will spend the next day in Minnesota, then move into Wisconsin on October 23, 24 and 25, probably with a visit to Milwaukee on the last day. October 26 and 27 have been set aside for Michigan, with another major address in Detroit on 27th.

The Vice - President will speak in the Chicago Stadium on October 28 and make an address the afternoon of the following day on Chicago's South Side.

He is going to try to get to St. Louis on October 30, but may be unable to do so because another big speech is set for Madison Square Garden in New York city October 31. He may appear in Philadelphia November 1 or 2.

FDR WILL DELIVER TALK IN N. Y. OCT. 21

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 — (AP) President Roosevelt, accepting an invitation to address a dinner of the Foreign Policy association in New York, Oct. 21, today scheduled his first speech outside Washington since he formally opened his fourth term campaign.

The speech will take Mr Roosevelt to New York state, biggest prize in the electoral college with 47 votes, just 17 days before the election.

Whether the address will be classed by the White House as political in nature was a question which went unanswered for the time being. Mr. Roosevelt's aids declined to amplify an announcement which consisted of making public the invitation from Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, president of the association, and the President's acceptance.

The speech will be broadcast, Democratic headquarters said.

However, the Foreign Policy association always has emphasized its non-partisan nature. A private research organization, it was founded 26 years ago with the announced aim of fostering understanding and development of foreign policy.

Berle Charges Dewey With Twisting Sentence

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—Adolph A. Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, said tonight that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had misrepresented the sense of a memorandum which Berle submitted to the temporary national economic conference in 1939.

Dewey, in an address at Charleston, W. Va., quoted Berle as saying in the memorandum, "over a period of years, the Government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants in the United States." The Republican Presidential candidate asserted this showed that the New Deal was aiming at setting up an unAmerican system.

Berle told newsmen that the sentence had been "twisted out of context" and that it actually was a prefactory statement of "the evil" the TNEC "wanted to cure."

A Pitcher, Minus Right Hand, Gets Wish

Oct 8 1944

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—There'll be a strange uniform in the Cardinals' dugout at the World Series in St. Louis today—a United States marine, with all the equipment for success in baseball, except a pitching right hand.

He is Corporal Johnny Spillane, who holds two Presidential citations, the Navy Cross and the Purple Heart. But he'd rather talk about the time the Cardinals offered him a contract.

In fact, even the story of how he won his Navy Cross November 20, 1943, is as much a story of baseball as it is of war.

Refused Offer, Joined Corps

Johnny refused the Cards' offer and instead joined the marines in 1941. That's how he happened to be in an amphibious landing craft taking part in the battle of Tarawa.

Going in the craft stuck on a coral reef, making it a perfect target for the enemy.

"The Japs started lobbing hand grenades like high fouls," Johnny said. "One landed near us and I figured it was me or 21 other guys."

Pegs Grenade Back

He grabbed the grenade and pegged it back, just as though he were trying to get a man on first. But the grenades kept coming.

"I didn't have time to think. I just kept picking them up and throwing them back," said the Waterbury (Conn.) Marine. "Finally one came over with a lot of blue smoke coming out of it. I picked it up anyway and just as I pushed back my hand to throw it went off. I was stunned for a minute.

"There wasn't much left of my hand, but I felt no pain."

Later, a navy doctor aboard the mother ship amputated the hand.

"No Baseball For Johnny"

And that night, the marine admitted, all he kept thinking was "no baseball for Johnny Spillane."

After 11 other operations, the Leatherneck began to practice throwing left-handed. He can peg a ball from short-stop to home plate.

And when he gets his artificial hand, Johnny hopes to go back to baseball.

Spillane, at a Philadelphia hospital, had said he would trade his other arm for a chance to see a World Series game. Reading all this in a dispatch about the marine William White, general manager of the Skouras Theaters Corporation, decided the place for Johnny was at Sportsman's Park and made arrangements for a plane trip.

The Marine Corps cooperated with a ten-day furlough and the Cards offered what Johnny had been dreaming about since he pitched his first baseball—a seat in the St. Louis dugout. A dispatch from St. Louis said Johnny arrived there this morning.

Mrs. Chiang's Recovery Promised

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—Physicians attending Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek, First Lady of China, announced today that "her ultimate complete recovery can be assured," but said a long convalescent period "is essential to attain this end."

The wife of the generalissimo is a patient in the Harkness Pavilion of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, which she entered September 11 after undergoing treatment in Brazil.

The nature of her illness has not been disclosed.

Mead Sees Party Sweep Swelling House Majority

Says Roosevelt Victory Will Encompass Congress, Too

ELMIRA, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP).—A sweeping victory for President Roosevelt and a gain of at least thirty-four Democratic members in the House of Representatives in the November election were predicted today by Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York.

Forecasting continued Democratic control of both houses of Congress, in an address to Chemung County party workers, Senator Mead said Mr. Roosevelt would be supported "in the enactment of a genuine peace program which will prevent another world war in our time and in the generation of our children."

Senator Mead declared his party's representation in the House would be increased from its present total of 216 members to beyond the 250 mark.

"Such a healthful legislative situation will be reflected on both the House and Senate Foreign Affairs Committees of the far-sighted leadership necessary for a workable international organization to outlaw war and the people of America can rest assured that this is the determined objective of the Democratic administration," he said.

He declared Republicans in Congress had fought against the naval expansion bill in 1938 and voted against a measure to increase the air force to 6,000 planes in 1939.

Production Of Secret Fighter Plane Halted

Cleveland, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Army Air Forces today announced termination of contracts with the Fisher Body Cleveland aircraft division for production of a new secret fighter plane because of "changes in military requirements."

In announcing termination of the Fisher production schedule, Col. Alfred H. Johnston, central procurement district supervisor for the Air Technical Service Command, said the air forces would continue experimental development of the fighter known as the P-75.

Production of the fighter has been under way for several months, but details of the ship are a military secret. The Fisher plant began work on the P-75 in July, 1943, and the first experimental model was in the air within four months, company officials said.

DEWEY DECLARES PRESIDENT KEEPS SUPPORT OF REDS

Oct 8 1944

New Deal Program Is 'Forerunner of Corporate State,' He Claims.

REPLIES TO FDR

Says 'Record' of Administration Refutes Move to Disavow Communists.

MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM, Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 7.—(AP) Looking upon the New Deal's industrial program as forerunner of a "corporate state", Governor Thomas E. Dewey said tonight that the record of President Roosevelt's administration is the answer to why Communists consider the President's election essential to their aims.

The Republican nominee for President also asserted that the administration works both sides of the street as he asked a cheering audience which more than filled this 5,000-seat auditorium:

"How can we trust our future to an administration which talks out of one side of its mouth about government ownership of our factories, while out of the other side of its mouth it softly disavows its Communist supporters?"

Points to Record

In his single-shot journey to West Virginia, the New York governor asked "why is my opponent's election so essential to the aims of the Communists?" and replied to himself with "the answer is right in the record of this administration."

He said that Adolph Berle, now assistant secretary of state, in 1939 had said that over a period of years the government would gradually come to own most of the country's productive plants.

Dewey said that meant "a system where the government would tell each of us where we could work, at what, and for how much."

"Now, I do not know whether my opponent calls that system Communism or National Socialism," he added. "He can take it any way he likes it. It's his program, not mine. But I do know it is not an American system and it's not a free system."

(Berle in Washington asserted that Dewey had misrepresented the sense of the 1939 memorandum which the Republican nominee mentioned).

Dewey said that "little by little the New Deal is developing its own form of corporate state. It becomes clear why they twice convicted Earl Browder and his friends are so eager for the re-election of my opponent."

Hits 'Tired Administration'

The New York governor, renewing his assault on what he described as a "very tired administration" declared President Roosevelt "has no answer" to the specific proposals he said he had presented as the Republican presidential nominee.

Speaking behind a rostrum on which red carnations formed a "Victory V" on a bank of white carnations, Dewey said that in a broadcast last Thursday Mr. Roosevelt had "softly" denied welcoming the support of Communists or Fascists.

"But doesn't this soft disclaimer come a trifle late" Dewey asked "only last week in Madison Square Garden Earl Browder, head of the Communist party in America proclaimed to 15,000 cheering adherents that the election of my opponent was essential to his aims."

Confers with Miners

Dewey, who came here for a single speech plus a round of conferences with coal miners and other groups was met by a standing ovation lasting a minute and a half. He said Mr. Roosevelt was relying on the votes of a block of states where "millions of American citizens are deprived of their right to vote by the poll tax and by intimidation."

"Not once in 12 years,' he said, "has my opponent lifted a finger to correct this and his platform is cynically silent on the subject."

He made no reference to Mr. Roosevelt's call Thursday night for an end to the poll tax and "other artificial" obstacles to a free ballot.

The crowd cheered loudly when the Republican nominee said:

"On Thursday night of this week my opponent repeated his charge that "there are politicians and others who quite openly worked to restrict the use of the ballot in this election." Now I do not know who Mr. Roosevelt means because he seems to lack the courage to name names and say what he means."

Earlier, after a press conference, the New York governor, as a visitor to the nation's greatest bituminous coal producing state, declared himself for legislation to stabilize the industry.

Favors Coal Legislation

"I have long favored legislation to stabilize the coal industry to prevent the return of ruinous cut throat competition," he said without specific reference to the now-expired control acts under which the industry operated for years.

He also said, in answer to a question put after the press conference, that he was confident that coal has a secure future.

Although Dewey turned aside a press conference question as to his attitude on the support of United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis, a group of UMW leaders came away from a meeting with the nominee, expressing themselves as "decidedly satisfied" with him.

Dewey held that the Lewis support had not been proffered to him and any questions about it would be "academic."

A few hours later, however, President George J. Titler of United Mine Workers District 29 left a conference, saying that his union would be "much better off if Dewey becomes president" and that "I think the United Mine Workers can support him wholeheartedly."

Says New Deal "Tired"

Dewey in his prepared address asserted that it has become "dreadfully clear" that President Roosevelt's administration is "too tired even to do the job at hand."

Therefore, he contended, that same administration "is obviously too tired for the job ahead."

A Republican victory in November, Dewey added, "will mean an end to a very, very tired administration in Washington."

Dewey, asking "why is my opponent's election so essential to the aims of the Communists" declared "the answer is right in the record of this administration."

The "aims of the New Dealers," he continued, were set out in a memorandum prepared in May, 1939, by Adolph Berle, now assistant secretary of state, which Dewey quoted as saying: "over a period of years, the government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants in the United States."

"That means, of course," Dewey declared, "a system where government would tell each of us where we could work, at what, and for how much.

Hits FDR Program

"Now I do not know whether my opponent calls that system Communism or National Socialism or Fascism. He can take it any way he likes it. It's his program, not mine. But I do know it is not an American system and it's not a free system."

Contending the "New Deal is developing its own form of corporate state," Dewey said 55 government corporations or credit agencies with 27 billion dollars of assets were listed in a recent congressional committee report, and the Federal government now operates one fifth of the manufacturing plants in the country.

The New York governor, making a sortie into a political borderline state, laid down a double barreled attack on the Roosevelt-Truman ticket. He declared "my opponent's hand picked running mate Harry Truman" was nominated by the Democrats for vice president "because he was 'cleared with Sidney'."

Oct 8 1944

Referring to Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO Political Action committee, Dewey said Hillman's performance as co-chairman of the Office of Production Management had led Truman, as chairman of a Senate Investigating committee, to say:

Quotes Truman

"If Mr. Hillman cannot or will not protect the interests of the United States, I am in favor of replacing him with someone who can and will."

Amplifying remarks in a brief rear platform speech in Hinton, W. Va., en route to the Municipal auditorium here, Dewey said:

"We need a house cleaning in Washington. We need clear lines of authority with competent men to carry out their jobs. We need team work in our government. That's why it's time for a change."

"The American people," he said, "have succeeded in the face of every difficulty in sending overwhelming supplies to our armed forces. With a new administration we can speed victory and also be ready for reconversion to peacetime jobs."

Attributing "bungling, fumbling and incompetence" to the present administration, Dewey reiterated that his election would mean no change in the military leadership of the war. He said:

"Just for a moment let's look at the way this tired administration bungled its way into conversion for war production. Then we will know how well they can convert for peace and for jobs.

"In August, 1939, more than six years after Hitler came to power, Mr. Roosevelt finally created a War Resources board under Edward R. Stettinius. It worked for three months and brought in a report.

Report Kept Secret

"But the report was buried and the board quietly died. The report is still a secret after five years. Like so many other things, we will never know about it until a new administration opens the record of these past twelve years."

Dewey, who arranged to return to New York tonight directly after his speech here, continued his direct attack on President Roosevelt by declaring:

"And what has been the answer of the New Deal to the specific proposals of our platform and the detailed statements of policy I have made on the radio in these recent weeks we have heard nothing but glittering generalities, ghosts of the dead past and wise cracks. We have heard no answer because my opponent has no answer."

In his speech of last Thursday, Dewey said, Mr. Roosevelt "softly denies that he welcomes 'the support of any person or groupu committed to communism, or fascism.'"

"Now, that is news," the GOP candidate went on. "But doesn't this soft disclaimer come a trifle late? Only last week in Madison Square Garden, Earl Browder, the head of the Communist party in America, proclaimed to 15,000 cheering adherents that the election of my opponent was essential to his aims.

"This is the same Earl Browder, now such a patriot, who was convicted as a draft dodger in the last war, convicted again as a perjurer and pardoned by Franklin Roosevelt in time to organize the campaign for his fourth term. The soft disclaimer does come a little late."

"How can we trust our future to an administration which talks out of one side of its mouth about government ownership of our factories, while out of the other side of its mouth it softly disavows its Communist supporters?" He demanded.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 7—(AP) Following is the prepared text of Governor Thomas E. Dewey's campaign address here tonight:

Even as this terrible war moves toward our inevitable victory, we are preparing to decide the whole future of our country at the polls. If every American who believes in freedom for his country will register and vote, free America will win an overwhelming victory here at home on Nov 7th.

That victory at the polls will mean an end to a very, very tired Administration in Washington. It will mean the beginning of a new, a competent and an honest government in Washington.

Will Speed Axis Defeat

This victory at the polls will also serve to speed the defeat of Germany and Japan because it will bring an end to bungling, fumbling and incompetence in Washington.

I have already made it clear that a change of administration will mean no change in the military leadership of the war. It should be equally clear that with a change in administration the work of international organization for peace will proceed with only increased competence and zeal. I have taken unprecedented steps to put that work upon a non-partisan basis. I intend to see that it remains a non-partisan effort, with the help of the ablest Americans of both parties in command.

Beyond victory, what kind of a country will our American men and women come home to? This election will decide that question.

We have a fateful decision to make but that decision must be made not on vague and irresponsible political discussion, but on the facts. On Thursday night of this week my opponent repeated his charge that "there are politicians and others who quite openly worked to restrict the use of the ballot in this election." Now I do not know who Mr. Roosevelt means because he seems to lack the courage to name names and say what he means. So let's look at the facts.

Hits FDR Voting Stand

He sadly complained that not enough people vote. But he pointed with pride to the fact that in 1940, 62 1-2 per cent of the eligible voters of this nation went to the polls. Well, in the state of New York, not 62 1-2 per cent, but 77 per cent of the eligible soldiers and sailors of our state have had ballots mailed to them already. Despite my opponent's attempt to play politics with the soldier vote every evidence indicates that as a nation we will have an even larger percentage of soldier votes than we will of civilians. Let's have no more of this political pretence on a matter of importance to us all. Now we know where the truth is. And let me point out my opponent is relying for his main support upon a solid block of votes in states where millions of American citizens are deprived of their right to vote by the poll tax and by intimidation. Not once in 12 years has my opponent lifted a finger to correct this and his platform is cynically silent on the subject.

In his speech of Thursday night, my opponent softly denies that he welcomes "the support of any person or group committed to Communism or Fascism. Now, that is news. But doesn't this soft disclaimer come a trifle late? Only last week in Madison Square Garden, Earl Browder, the head of the Communist party in America, proclaimed to 15,000 cheering adherents that the election of my oppenent was essential to his aims. This is the same Earl Browder, now such a patriot, who was convicted as a draft dodger in the last war, convicted again as a perjurer and pardoned by Franklin Roosevelt in time to organize the campaign for his fourth term. The soft disclaimer does come a little late.

Wish to Control Plants

Now, why is my opponent's election so essential to the aims of the Communists? The answer is right in the record of this Administration. The aims of the New Dealers were stated on May 23, 1939, by Adolph Berle in a carefully written memorandum submitted to the temporary National Economic committee, an official agency set up to decide upon our future for us. There he said: "Over a period of years, the government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants in the United States."

Now, who is this Adolph Berle? He is one of the original brain trusters and today he holds the Office of Assistant Secretary of State.

What does he mean by the government owning "most of the productive plants in the United States." That means, of course a system where government would tell each of us where we could work, at what, and for how much.

Now, I do not know whether my opponent calls that system Communism or National Socialism or Fascism. He can take it any way he likes it. It's his program, not mine. But I do know it is not an American system and it is not a free system.

Reviews New Deal

Let's just see how far we have travelled down that New Deal road. A report just released by a Congressional committee headed by a Democratic United States Senator shows there are 55 government corporations and credit agencies with net assets of 27 billions. The Federal government now owns or operates one fifth of the manufacturing plants in the country.

Little by little, the New Deal is developing its own form of corporate state. It becomes clear why the twice convicted comrade Browder and his friends are so eager for the re-election of my opponent. There is another reason. They love to fish in troubled waters. Their aims can best be served by unemployment and discontent. They remember that the New Deal in all its seven peace time years never cured unemployment. They remember that in the Spring of 1940 we still had 10 million unemployed. They remember that under the New Deal we had to have a war to get jobs. That's why they want a fourth term and 16 years of the New Deal. That is one of the very good reasons why it's time for a change.

Blasts War Conversion

Just for a moment let's look at the way this tired Administration bungled it's way into conversion for war production. Then we will know how well they can convert for peace and for jobs. In August, 1939, more than six years after Hitler came to power, Mr. Roosevelt finally created a War Resources board under Edward R. Stettinius. It worked for three months and brought in a report, but the report was buried and the board quietly died. The report is still a secret after five years. Like so many other things, we will never know about it until a new administration opens the record of these past twelve years.

With Poland conquered, Hitler took Norway and invaded the Lowlands. At last, in response to public pressure on May 25, 1940, Mr. Roosevelt acted. He created the office for emergency management under Executive Order No. 8,248.

Creates Advisory Group

But just four days later he piled on top of this one a seven man advisory commission. In doing this he was repeating with exact fidelity the most notorious blunder of the first World War. Of course it failed.

So next we are handed the prize monstrosity of all, the Office of Production Management under two different heads, William Knudson and Sidney Hillman.

It was Sidney Hillman's performance in this job that led the chairman of a Senate Investigating committee to say, "if Mr. Hillman cannot or will not protect the interests of the United States, I am in favor of replacing him with some one who can and will."

The Senator who said that is now my opponent's hand-picked running mate, Harry Truman. In spite of his unkind remarks the Democratic National convention was allowed to nominate Mr. Truman because he was "cleared with Sidney."

Agency Also Fails

Of course that agency was a failure, too. So Mr. Roosevelt piled on still another one, the Supply Priorities and Allocations board. That was on August 28, 1941, and of course that failed too. It was not until five weeks after Pearl Harbor that Mr. Roosevelt did what should have been done at the beginning. At last we got a War Production board with a single responsible administrator at the head of it.

But that was not the end. By way of coordinating all this confusion, and, as he said, "to resolve and determine controversies," my opponent created a sixth agency, the Office of War Mobilization. That was on May 27, 1943, eighteen months after Pearl Harbor. Still conflicting orders, overlapping responsibilities, backbiting and character assassination handicapped the war effort.

WPB Falls Apart

So the inevitable happened again, a little over a month ago, the War Production board itself, fell apart. One official after another resigned in a torrent of recrimination and the head of the Board was given a ticket to China.

Now, during all these months that the war effort was being hampered by open warfare in Washington, the responsible head of our government was doing nothing about it. For weeks our daily papers carried stories of internal dissensions within the Board. After it finally blew up, Mr. Roosevelt's only comment was that he had, of course, been aware of dissension but he had "hoped it would disappear." Judging by the words of my opponent it has become dreadfully clear that his administration is too tired even to do the job at hand. It is obviously too tired for the job ahead.

Need House Cleaning

We need a house cleaning in Washington. We need clear lines of authority with competent men to carry out their jobs. We need team work in our government. That's why it's time for a change.

The American people have succeeded in the face of every difficulty in sending overwhelming supplies to our armed forces. Within a new administration we can speed victory and also be ready for reconversion to peace time jobs.

Is there any chance the New Deal can ever do this job ahead? Not according to its own best friends. Even Henry Wallace last year described the whole picture as "bureaucracy at its worst" and he added "it is utterly inexcusable in a nation at war."

Now listen to Richard T. Franenstein, vice president of the CIO Auto Workers union and delegate to the National convention in which the great Democratic party was taken over by Earl Browder and Sidney Hillman. Here's what he said: "The trouble is that no adequate overall planning is being done to insure orderly reconversion which will lead into a postwar period of full employment."

How in the name of the future of our country can such an administration be entrusted with the vital task of creating peace time jobs? How can we move ahead to peacetime jobs and opportunity under an administration that has no cure for dissension within its own ranks except for the feeble hope that "it would disappear?" How can we trust our future to an administration which talks out of one side of its mouth about government ownership of all factories, while out of the other side of its mouth it softly disavows its Communist supporters?

Will Restore Honesty

On January 20 of next year we shall restore honesty to our government so that it's spoken word can be trusted. We shall proceed to put into effect a program to recover those things we have lost and to make them secure.

This program I have already outlined in part.

To labor we are pledged to restore the Department of Labor with an able and experienced man from the ranks of labor at its head. We are pledged to abolish or transfer to the Department of Labor the almost countless bureaus with which the working men and women of our country now have to struggle. We are pledged to full support of the guarantees of free, collective bargaining through the National Labor Relations act and to restore freedom from government dictation to labor in this country.

We are pledged to work it with all our hearts and souls to bring about a lasting peace through international organization with adequate force to back it up. And I may add, I have stated such a program at Louisville in detail, something my opponent has never yet done.

Will Expand Social Security

We are pledged to an expanding Social Security for the people of this country. Twenty million Americans have been forgotten by this administration in the nine long years the old age pension laws have been on the books. We propose to bring security to them as well as to make our Social Security system sound and supportable by an expanding economy. For there can be no security without a strong, free society to support it.

We are pledged that our government shall not again use its power to set race against race, creed against creed, or class against class. We are pledged to a government which has equal respect for the rights of agriculture, labor and business, and for every race, creed and color.

We are pledged to a future of freedom and abundance for agriculture with assurance by government that the former will never again suffer ruinous prices. We are pledged to a scientific and expanding soil conservation program so that the soil of our country may be preserved and built up.

We are pledged to a specific program of tax relief which will permit our job-making machinery to go to work. We are pledged to bring an end to the tired defeatism of this Administration which talks glibly of opportunity and did nothing about it for seven peace time years.

No Answer from FDR

And what has been the answer of the New Deal to the specific proposals of our platform and the detailed statements of policy I have made on the radio in these recent weeks? We have heard nothing but glittering generalities, ghosts of the dead past and wisecracks. We have heard no answer because my opponent has no answer. We have had no answer because, in truth, as the New Deal itself has said, it wants a government owned America. It has no other solution.

I say there is a better way. I have outlined much of that way in detail. Ten million returning heroes will demand that better way under the freedom they have fought to win. Under divine guidance they will have a land of security with freedom and opportunity for all.

DEWEY GETS HAND; —NEW DEALERS'

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 7 (A. P.). — Several upraised hands confronted Gov. Thomas E. Dewey at Hinton, W. Va., today when he repeated his campaign phrase. "I know there's not a New Dealer in the crowd."

Gov. Dewey, addressing a crowd from the rear platform of his train en rounte to Charleston, quizzically remarked when he noticed one upraised hand:

"Is there one? I'll go to work on him."

At that, several other hands shot up.

TRUMAN SEES 'DEMAGOGUERY'

GOP Candidates Charged With Use Of "Garbled" Reports

Caruthersville, Mo., Oct. 7(AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, today accused the Republican national standard bearers of "dema-goguery and chicanery" in current campaign speeches, and said it would be serious and dangerous "to take a chance on creating distrust with our Allies by placing an inexperienced leader in the White House.

Truman, in a speech before the American Legion Fair here, at which he has appeared annually since 1934, said the Republican standardbearers had made garbled quotations from a speech delivered by President Roosevelt October 5, 1937, had letf words and sentences out of their proper context and have deliberately misrepresented the facts.

"Political Chicanery"

"I consider this the lowest form of political chicanery," Truman said.

He also charged that the report and recommendations of his investigating committee "have been garbled and have been made to appear as partisan criticism of the Administration, when, in fact, the committee efforts were in cooperation with the Administration, and for the welfare and benefit of the fighting men of the country."

"I don't believe the American people can be fooled by any such demagoguery and chicanery," he continued.

Truman Committee Record

He preceded this denunciation with the statement that "the candidate for Vice-President on the Republican ticket has been endeavoring to show that, because I was chairman of the investigating committee, I have made an attempt to impeach the Administration in its conduct of the war."

Truman said his committee pointed out errors which were corrected, and that President Roosevelt was consulted and wholeheartedly approved the committee's work. This committee, he stated, had been credited with saving billions of dollars, and countless lives "in its discovery of faulty equipment which was being made by dishonest contractors."

Warns Of Inexperience

The war is being won, Truman stated, but is not yet won. He added that "it would be a very serious and dangerous matter to take a chance on creating distrust with out Allies by placing an inexperienced leader at the helm of the Government of the United States at this time." He charges isolationism still lives in the Republican party.

Truman drove here from St. Louis today for his customary appearance, perpetuating a practice begun in 1934 when Pemiscot county gave him a big majority in his first Senate campagin.

After remaining here until late tomorrow for the concluding horse races on the fair program, Truman will go to Memphis and then to New Orleans to begin his national speaking tour which opens in Los Angeles October 16 and closes at Kansas City, November 4.

Brownell Hit For 'Butting In' On Georgia Row

State Official Charges He Raised Racial Issue by Attack on Party Ruling

ATLANTA, Oct. 7 (AP).—Secretary of State John B. Wilson today accused Herbert Brownell jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, of "dragging out the red herring by raising the racial issue" in the Georgia intra-party squabble decided yesterday by the State Supreme Court.

The court upheld Mr. Wilson in certifying a so-called "all-white" Republican faction headed by former state chairman Clint Hager, as the official Republican party in Georgia, although the national committee had recognized another faction headed by National Committeeman Wilson Williams and Ben Davis, Atlanta Negro.

Mr. Brownell told a press conference in New York on Aug. 16 that the Georgia action was "one more evidence" that "New Deal leaders who slapped down the legitimate claims of the Negroes of this country at the New Deal convention in Chicago are maintaining that same attitude at the present time."

He charged that the Republican group recognized by Mr. Wilson were "bogus Republicans." This same group, he said, was not recognized at Chicago, because "among other reasons, they had denied Negroes the right to vote in their selection of delegates to the convention."

Mr. Wilson, in a letter mailed today to Chairman Brownell, said that he had declined to make public comment on the controversy while it was in the courts, and added:

"I want to say to you now that your nefarious purpose in butting into this affair was to deliberately and maliciously drag out the red herring by raising the racial issue. No one else that I know of raised that issue except yourself.

"Your purpose was an attempt to mislead certain voters in some of the so-called 'doubtful' states which have a large Negro vote with the purpose of gaining them for the Republican party. You know that the list of electors you wanted and that I refused to certify for the ballots does not contain any Negroes.

"You know that you did not tell the truth when you stated that the group that I recognized had denied the Negroes in Georgia the privilege of participating in their Republican party affairs in Georgia."

The Republican group recognized by Mr. Wilson filed the same slate of electors as the Independent Democratic party of Georgia formed in 1940 to oppose a third term for President Roosevelt. The slate consists of six Democrats and six Republicans.

Wilson said that the faction he certified held a convention at which 120 counties were represented, while the meeting of the other group "spectators, interlopers and whoever was present" were permitted to participate and vote.

"You know," Mr. Wilson wrote the Republican chairman, "you and others were promised Negro electors from Georgia in your Chicago convention. In spite of your public utterances you know then and know now that that promise was not fulfilled."

BRICKER HITS 'CRISIS' RULE

Cites 59 Declarations Of 'Emergency' By President

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 7 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker said tonight that President Roosevelt had declared the existence of a "national emergency" 59 times as reason for Government actions.

"We have had 12 years of government by crisis," remarked the Republican candidate for Vice-President as he concluded a day in Minnesota with a speech in the local armory.

Bricker said the "emergencies," were an example of measures used by Mr. Roosevelt in an attempt to "dominate Congress." The President, he added, also resorted to "coercion," executive ultimatums, patronage, political favors, reprisals, fault-finding. . . .

Congress Reasserts Self

Congress, the Ohio Governor continued in a prepared text released by his campaign staff, almost lost its independence, but has "courageously" reasserted itself within the last two years.

"Legislation by crisis has been a work-a-day technique with the President," he told his audience. "When everything else failed to move the legislators, there was always this handy device available. . .

"The messages and addresses of the President since his inauguration in 1932 disclose that he has declared the existance of a 'crisis,' emergency, 'danger' or 'serious situation' at least 92 times.

The Issue

"Of these 92, there are 59 distinct was decases in which a national emergency was declared to exist or was cited as the reason for some emergency action."

Bricker declared the basic issue of the November 7 election was "whether one man shall personally govern and permanently regiment 130,000,000 Americans or whether they shall continue to govern themselves through time-tested institutions of self government."

Contending that Congress "never was intended to be a rubber stamp," he went on:

"The way to restore a people's government in Washington is to restore Congress to its rightful place as the policy-making agency and as a restraining force on the impulse of the President."

Bricker Demands Pay-roll Cut

Calls President's Order to Reduce Number of U. S. Employees a Campaign Gesture.

St. Cloud, Minn., Oct. 7 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt's order that his budget director plan a reduction in Federal Government employees was described as "only a campaign gesture" by Gov. John W. Bricker today.

The G. O. P. candidate for Vice-President, delcaring that the number of Federal workers had increased under the Democratic administration from 572,000 to more than 3,000,000, asked:

"Why simply plan to get rid of some of these jobholders after the war as the President suggests? Why not do it now?"

Gov. Bricker, in a prepared text released by his campaign staff in advance of his speech in the Paramount Theater, quoted Senator Byrd (D.-Va.) as estimating that 300,000 to 400,000 civilian employees could be dismissed now without impairing Government efficiency.

"On September 19," he said, "President Roosevelt ordered the budget director to make plans for liquidating war agencies and reducing Government personnel to a 'peace footing', that is an excellent idea but very late.

"But the American people will refuse to accept that proposal as a promise that will be kept by the New Deal . . . Broken promises, subterfuge, fence-straddling and political expediency have characterized the entire Roosevelt Administration.

"Immediate planning to liquidate the Government's wartime agencies and cut back the great expansion of activities and personnel needs to be done. But it will not be done by the New Deal. This amounts to only a campaign gesture."

Comment on Ball.

Earlier today, in a press interview in St. Paul, Gov. Bricker said he was "very much disappointed" in the position taken by Senator Joseph H. Ball, who announced he would not campaign for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey because of differences with his foreign policy.

"There is no easy formula in international affairs," Gov. Bricker said. "We must pay constant attention to developments as they arise to threaten our peace. We have not been given the facts on international affairs by the present administration because of the secrecy which has clouded all of the administration's negotiations.

"Senator Ball would be much more useful if he would go along with the Republican ticket, which I believe is going to be elected. If the Senator has any information on what is going on at Dumbarton Oaks he should reveal it immediately. All we have had out of that meeting is a general statement."

Democrats for Dewey.

Milwaukee, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Gov. Bricker disclosed last night, prior to his auditorium address, that he had been informed of the organization of Wisconsin Democrats for Dewey. He said plans for the Democratic group were revealed to him by William R. Callahan of Milwaukee, an unsuccessful candidate for delegate to the Democratic national convention last April.

He said Mr. Callahan predicted that the new organization would be instrumental in producing 90,000 Democratic votes for the Republican ticket in Wisconsin.

ONE OBJECTIVE OF THE NEW ASSAULT BELOW AACHEN WOULD APPEAR TO BE TO KEEP THE GERMAN DEFENSE SPREAD OUT AND OFF BALANCE.

THE IMPROVING WEATHER WAS REFLECTED YESTERDAY AND LAST NIGHT IN A SERIES OF MIGHTY AIR ATTACKS ON GERMANY, INCLUDING BERLIN.

BEATING OFF FIVE ENEMY COUNTERBLOWS AIMED AT ITS CORRIDOR IN HOLLAND, THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY POURED MORE TROOPS, TANKS, GUNS AND SUPPLIES INTO THAT SALIENT FOR IMPENDING BATTLES.

THE CANADIANS HAVE RENEWED THEIR ATTACK ON DUNKERQUE. THEY ALSO HAVE CROSSED THE LEOPOLD CANAL IN FORCE BETWEEN BRUGGE AND EEKLOO AND ARE DRIVING TO WIPE OUT 5,000 GERMANS STILL DUG IN ON THE SOUTH BANK OF THE SCHELDE RIVER BETWEEN THE IMPORTANT BELGIAN PORT OF ANTWERP AND THE SEA.

THE GERMANS EXPECT ANOTHER 12 ALLIED DIVISIONS TO BE THROWN AT THEM, EITHER IN A NEW LANDING ALONG THE NORTH SEA OR BY DEPLOYMENT ALONG THE WEST FRONT, THE TRANSOCEAN CORRESPONDENT LUDWIG SERTORIUS SAID IN A BROADCAST THIS MORNING.

ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT DON WHITEHEAD, WRITING FROM THE FIRST ARMY FRONT, SAID IN A DISPATCH LAST NIGHT THAT GERMAN TROOPS WERE OBSERVING TO THE VERY LAST LETTER THIS ORDER ISSUED SOME DAYS AGO BY NAZI FIELD MARSHAL WALTHER VON MODEL:

"EVERY VILLAGE MUST BECOME A STRONGPOINT, EVERY BLOCK OF HOUSES A FORTRESS. HE WHO HAS A WEAPON AND DOES NOT USE IT DOES NOT DESERVE TO LIVE, AND WILL BE ANNIHILATED ON THE SPOT BY HIS COMRADES."

THIS ORDER ALSO HELD OUT THE PROMISE OF A GERMAN COUNTERBLOW--APPARENTLY WITH SOME NEW WEAPON.

DISPATCHES FROM THE DUNKERQUE SIEGE LINE WHERE THE NAZI COMMANDER, CAPTAIN SCHNEIDER, HAS HAGGLED FOR TIME, SAY HE AND HIS GARRISON OF 15,000 OR MORE ARE TRYING TO HOLD ON UNTIL OCT.15 ON THE BELIEF THAT A NEW NAZI WEAPON BY THEN WOULD BE READY AND DECISIVE.

WITH THE FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, OCT. 7-(AP)-THE GERMANS BITTER STAND-OR-DIE DEFENSE NORTH OF AACHEN COLLAPSED SUDDENLY TODAY UNDER GROWING AMERICAN FIRST ARMY PRESSURE, AND U.S.TANKS AND INFANTRY SURGED FORWARD ON A SWEEPING DRIVE.

THE DEFENSES WHICH YESTERDAY WERE SO STUBBORN AND APPEARED TO BE HOLDING FIRM UNDER HEAVY ARTILLERY SUPPORT GAVE WAY THIS MORNING WHEN THE DOUGHBOYS LAUNCHED AN ATTACK.

MORE THAN 300 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN IN THE FIRST TWO HOURS.

TANKS RUMBLED EAST OF BEGGENDORF AND INFANTRY FANNED OUT SOUTH OF UBACH AND OVERRAN HERBACH, MERKSTEIN, HOFSTADT, ALSDORF AND BAESWILER. THE YANKS NOW ARE SIX MILES INSIDE OF GERMANY NORTH OF AACHEN.

THE BREAK CAME WITH VIRTUALLY NO INDICATION THAT THE ENEMY HAD REACHED THE BREAKING POINT OR WAS PREPARING A WITHDRAWAL. LAST NIGHT THE LUFTWAFFE CAME OVER AND KEPT UP A CONTINUOUS BOMBING AND STRAFING FROM 7 P.M., UNTIL 6 A.M., THIS MORNING. TWO TO SIX PLANES WERE OVER THE FRONT LINE AREAS IN WHAT APPEARED TO BE SHUTTLE BOMBING.

DOUGHBOYS COMING UP BEHIND LATER WILL CLEAN OUT THIS STRONGPOINT.

LAST NIGHT THE ARMY'S BIG EIGHT-INCH HOWITZERS SENT 100 SHELLS HURTLING INTO THE BARRACKS.

GOOD WEATHER WAS ONE OF THE DECISIVE FACTORS IN THE SUCCESS OF THE BREAKTHROUGH. WITH CLEAR SKIES THE AIR FORCES ROARED IN TO BATTER ENEMY POSITIONS AND STRIKE AT SUPPLY LINES. CUB OBSERVATION PLANES HOVERED OVER THE FRONTLINES SPOTTING NAZI GUNS AND DIRECTING THE ARTILLERY FIRE.

"THE AIR GAVE US SPLENDID SUPPORT AND IT WAS IMPORTANT IN THE SUCCESS OF THIS OPERATION," AN OFFICER SAID.

TO THE NORTH THE YANKS NEARED SCHIERWALDENRATH WHILE SOUTH OF AACHEN TROOPS ATTACKING THROUGH HURTGEN FOREST ADVANCED TWO KILOMETERS IN THE DARK WOODS TO WITHIN LESS THAN A MILE OF VASSENACK.

THE ROAD TO THE RHINE IS NOT YET WIDE OPEN FOR THE GERMANS HAVE POSITIONS PREPARED IN DEPTH BUT THIS TOUGH CRUST OF RESISTANCE AROUND UBACH IS SHATTERED TO EASE THE WAY OF ARMOR AND TROOPS IN THEIR DRIVE EASTWARD.

"WE WERE IN A DIFFICULT POSITION UNTIL THE BREAKTHROUGH," AN OFFICER SAID. "OUR INFANTRY AND TANKS WERE POCKETED IN THE UBACH AREA AND AT OUR WURM RIVER CROSSING. THIS GAVE THE GERMANS A CHANCE TO CONCENTRATE THEIR ARTILLERY ON THIS SMALL SECTOR."

SINCE THE BREAK CAME, HE ADDED, WE HAVE TAKEN COMPARATIVELY LITTLE PUNISHMENT.

AN OFFICER OF AN ARMORED UNIT GAVE HIGH PRAISE TO THE TANK DESTROYERS FOR THEIR WORK.

"WE NEVER HAD TO WORRY ABOUT THEM," HE SAID. "ALL WE HAVE HAD TO DO WAS TO TELL THEM TO GO AND THEY GO WITH OR WITHOUT INFANTRY SUPPORT."

THERE NOW ARE ONLY ABOUT SEVEN MILES SEPARATING TROOPS NORTH OF AACHEN FROM THE TROOPS THROUGH THE BREACH IN THE WESTWALL SOUTH OF AACHEN.

VISITED ON THE PEOPLES OF EUROPE.

IN AN AIR RAID SHELTER AT THE EDGE OF THIS SHELL-TORN TOWN, BATTERED BY BOTH GERMAN AND AMERICAN HEAVY ARTILLERY, A SCORE OF PERSONS ARE WAITING UNTIL THEY ARE PERMITTED TO RETURN TO THEIR OWN HOMES.

THEY SAID THERE WERE HUNDREDS MORE HIDING IN OLD MINE TUNNELS AND IN THE COUNTRY. THEY CAME TO THE SHELTER TO HIDE FOUR WEEKS AGO-- MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN WITH LITTLE BUNDLES OF CLOTHING, FOOD, AND TINS OF WATER. FOR THREE DAYS THEY HAVE HAD LITTLE TO EAT.

CPL. WALTER J. BEDNARZ OF LYNN, MASS., IN A LONE, DARING STROKE, MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR HIS BUDDIES TO OPEN FIRE ON THE NAZIS BY THRUSTING HIMSELF BETWEEN ADVANCING GERMAN PARATROOPERS AND FOUR PRIESTS, MARCHING ABREAST OF HIS POSITION AND PASSED HIM.

BEDNARZ WAS IN A FOXHOLE DEFENDING A ROADBLOCK, AWAITING THE EXPECTED ATTACK. BUT THE MANNER OF THE ATTACK SHOCKED EVEN BATTLE-TOUGHENED PARATROOPERS. THE GERMANS, WEAPONS IN HANDS, STROLLED TOWARD THE STRATEGIC LITTLE VILLAGE IN FULL VIEW, WITH FOUR PRIEST IN FRONT OF THEM, A PROVISION AN EFFECTIVE SCREEN.

ALL THE AMERICANS SAW THEM COMING. THEY COULD HAVE OPENED UP AND CUT DOWN THE ENTIRE PARTY, BUT THE AMERICANS COULD NOT BRING IT UPON THEMSELVES TO MOW DOWN INNOCENT MEN. THEY HELD THEIR FIRE AND WAITED.

BEDNARZ MADE HIS DECISION. HE WORMED OUT OF HIS FOXHOLE AND SNAKED AND WRIGGLED ALONG A DITCH TOWARD THE ADVANCING ENEMY. THE PRIESTS ME ABREAST OF HIS POSITION AND PASSED HIM.

THIS WAS THE MOMENT.

PARIS, OCT. 7 (AP)—COUNTESS HENRI DE MAUBLANC, A SISTER OF ELIZABETH ARDEN OF NEW YORK, TOOK MANY RISKS TO AID ALLIED AVIATORS SHOT DOWN OVER FRANCE IN THE HOPE THAT SOME MOTHER SOMEWHERE WOULD HELP HER AMERICAN AVIATOR SON IF HE SHOULD EVER NEED AID, AND AS A RESULT OF HER ACTIVITIES SHE SPENT SIX MONTHS IN A GERMAN PRISON CAMP.

TALKING IN A SOFT VOICE RECENTLY SHE RELATED HOW WOMEN IN FRANCE HAD DARED GRAVE PERSONAL DANGER TO FEED, CLOTHE, HIDE AND BUY RAILWAY TICKETS FOR AIRMEN PASSING THROUGH THE COUNTRY.

OCT 8 1944

"MUCH HELP WAS DONE BY WOMEN," SHE SAID, "THAT IS WHY THERE WERE SO MANY WOMEN IN PRISON."

THE COUNTESS WAS INTERNED AT RAVENSBRUCK IN NORTHERN GERMANY, WHERE MANY THOUSANDS OF WOMEN—POLES, RUSSIANS, CZECHS, FRENCH, BELGIAN, NORWEGIANS AND EVEN GERMAN—WERE IMPRISONED. AT THE TIME SHE WAS THERE SHE WAS THE ONLY AMERICAN. SHE WAS XXXXX REMOVED FROM THE PRISON LAST AUGUST AND PLACED IN A INTERNMENT CAMP. SHE WAS FREED WHEN THE CAMP AREA WAS CAPTURED BY THE ALLIES.

THE XXXXXXX TORONTO-BORN COUNTESS ACQUIRED AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP-- WHICH SHE HAS RETAINED--BY HER FIRST MARRAIGE. SHE HAD A SON, JOHN BARBOSA, BY THAT MARRAIGE AND WHEN SHE LAST HEARD OF HIM THROUGH THE XXXXX INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS HE WAS A LIEUTENANT IN THE U.S. AIR CORPS STATIONED AT SANTA ANA, CALIF.

OCT 8 1944

"THE BELGIAN WOMEN AT RAVENSBRUCK WERE WONDERFUL," SHE SAID. "THEY COULD HAVE BEEN TORN APART AND THEY WOULD HAVE REVEALED NOTHING."

A FRAIL WOMAN, HER HAIR TINGED WITH GREY, THE COUNTESS LOST NEARLY A THIRD OF HER WEIGHT WHILE IMPRISONED.

SHE WAS ARRESTED BY THE GESTAPO WHO TOLD HER: "WE USUALLY SHOOT PEOPLE LIKE YOU BUT HAVE A FATE WORSE THAN DEATH FOR YOU."

"IT ALMOST WAS," SHE SAID.

"AT THE END OF LAST JANUARY," SHE RELATED, "ABOUT 1,200 WOMEN, COLLECTED FROM ALL OVER FRANCE, WERE STUFFED INTO CATTLE TRAINS, 60 TO A CAR. WE WERE SO CROWDED WE COULD NOT STRETCH OUT. WE WERE ON OUR WAY FOUR DAYS AND FOUR NIGHTS. WE HAD NO WATER. OUR FOOD WAS A LOAF OF BLACK BREAD AND SAUSAGE SO DECAYED I THREW MINE AWAY. WE WERE SERVED SOUP ONCE BY THE GERMAN RED CROSS.

"WE ARRIVED IN THE DARKNESS AT 3 A.M., AND WERE BUNDLED OUT BY SS MEN WITH WHIPS AND DOGS. IT WAS FREEZING COLD. WE HAD TO WALK FOR HALF AN HOUR. WHEN WE REACHED THE CAMP THE GERMANS, SCREAMING COMMANDS, JAMMED THE WOMEN INTO TWO SMALL ROOM AND LEFT THEM THERE THREE DAYS. THERE WERE NO BEDS.

THE COUNTESS SAID THEY WERE GIVEN A PRISON DRESS OF GREY WITH WIDE BLUE STRIPES AND A SHORT UNLINED JACKET, IT WAS MADE OF WOOD FIBER AND HAD NO WARMTH. THEY HAD NO HATS AND THEIR SHOES WERE HEELLESS WOODEN SABOTS.

SIX HUNDRED WOMEN XXXX WERE HOUSED IN EACH BARRACKS WITH ONLY NINE TOILETS AND 15 LAVATORIES. THE BEDS WERE IN TIERS AND THE WOMEN HAD TO SLEEP TWO TO A BED/ THERE WAS NO HEAT. AT 3:30 A.M., THEY WERE AWAKENED DAILY BY SIRENS AND ALL HAD TO GET UP AND GO OUTSIDE FOR ROLLCALL REGARDLESS OF THE WEATHER.

A U.S. AIR BASE IN CHINA, OCT.4-(DELAYED)-(AP)-JAPANESE SUCCESSES IN DRIVING CHINESE GROUND AND AMERICAN AIR FORCES OUT OF EASTERN CHINA ARE FORCING A RECASTING OF STRATEGY WHICH EVENTUALLY MAY CALL FOR AN AMPHIBIOUS STROKE AGAINST JAPANESE-HELD SINGAPORE AND THE MALAYA PENINSULA BY ADMIRAL LORD LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN'S SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND.

ESSENTIAL LANDING EQUIPMENT AND OTHER REINFORCEMENTS MUST BE RECEIVED FROM THE EUROPEAN FRONT FOR ANY SUCH AN OPERATION. WHETHER IT WOULD BECOME A MAJOR OR SECONDARY THRUST IN THE INDIA-CHINA THEATER STILL IS DEPENDENT ON DEVELOPMENTS IN THE NEXT FEW WEEKS IN CHINA AND NORTH BURMA, WHERE THE AMERICANS ARE THE KEYSTONE OF THE SITUATION.

U.S. GROUND AND AIR FORCE COMMANDERS SEE EYE TO EYE ON MATTERS OF STRATEGY. IN RECENT WEEKS WHEN MAJ. GEN. CLAIRE L. CHENNAULT'S AIRMEN HAVE BEEN COMPELLED REPEATEDLY TO EVACUATE EXCELLENT BASES BUILT UP DURING THE PAST TWO YEARS, THE VOICES OF COMPLAINT AT THE LACK OF ESSENTIAL SUPPLIES WERE HEARD. GEN.JOSEPH W.STILWELL, OVERALL AMERICAN COMMANDER, DETERMINEDLY PURSUED BUILDING OF LAND SUPPLY LINES ACROSS NORTH BURMA INTO CHINA TO SUPPLEMENT THE AIRLINE OVER "THE HUMP" FROM INDIA TO CHINA.

A BURMA ROUTE WAS CLEARED OF THE JAPANESE JUST ABOUT THE TIME THAT THE JAPANESE LAUNCHED THE PRESENT OPERATION AIMED AT ESTABLISHING NORTH-SOUTH COMMUNICATIONS IN CHINA AND AT DRIVING THE AMERICANS FROM AIR BASES WHENCE SPECTACULARLY SUCCESSFUL FORAYS HAD BEEN MADE AGAINST THE JAPANESE AND THEIR SHIPPING OFF THE CHINA COAST.

FROM FORWARD BASES AIRMEN ARE FIGHTING ON TO TRY TO STAVE OFF

WHAT LOOKS LIKE AN INEVITABLE LOSS OF THE LAST REMAINING BIG BASE IN EAST CHINA--LIUCHOW, 80 MILES BELOW THE ABANDONED KWEILIN BASE.

BRIG. GEN. CLINTON D. CASEY VINCENT, SO YOUNG HE STILL LOOKS LIKE A COLLEGE FOOTBALL PLAYER, DECLARED TODAY THAT "EVEN IF WE ARE COMPELLED TO GIVE UP LIUCHOW, THE JAPANESE NEVER WILL BE ABLE TO USE THEIR NORTH-SOUTH LINE OF COMMUNICATIONS."

"WE ALREADY HAVE BLOWN OUT MANY BRIDGES ALONG THE ROUTE, AND WE'LL CONTINUE TO BLOW THEM OUT IF NECESSARY," HE SAID.

VINCENT'S PILOTS OFTEN FLY TWO AND THREE MISSIONS DAIL ND FIGHT OFF JAPANESE RAIDERS WHO COME ONLY BY NIGHT.

EVEN AS VINCENT WAS SPEAKING BOMBER SQUADRONS WERE COMING IN AND OTHERS TAKING OFF, WHILE FIGHTERS ROARED OFF IN FORMATION TO STRAFE THE JAPANESE. THEY ARE WINNING IN THE AIR EVEN WHILE THE GROUND IS BEING CUT FROM UNDER THEM.

CLEVELAND, O., OCT.7-(AP)-THE ARMY AIR FORCES TODAY ANNOUNCED TERMINATION OF CONTRACTS WITH THE FISHER BODY CLEVELAND AIRCRAFT DIVISION FOR PRODUCTION OF A NEW SECRET FIGHTER PLANE BECAUSE OF "CHANGES IN MILITARY REQUIREMENTS."

IN ANNOUNCING TERMINATION OF THE FISHER PRODUCTION SCHEDULE, COL.ALF[illegible] H.JOHNSON, CENTRAL PROCUREMENT DISTRICT SUPERVISOR FOR THE AIR TECHNICAL SERVICE COMMAND, SAID THE AIR FORCES WOULD CONTINUE EXPERIMENTAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE FIGHTER, KNOWN AS THE P-75.

PRODUCTION OF THE FIGHTER HAS BEEN UNDER WAY FOR SEVERAL MONTHS BUT DETAILS OF THE SHIP ARE A MILITARY SECRET. THE FISHER PLANT BEGAN WORK ON THE P-75 IN JULY, 1943, AND THE FIRST EXPERIMENTAL MODEL WAS IN THE AIR WITHIN FOUR MONTHS, COMPANY OFFICIALS SAID.

A STATEMENT ISSUED TO FISHER EMPLOYES AND SIGNED BY COL.JOHNSON, COMPANY OFFICIALS, REPRESENTATIVE OF THE WAR MANPOWER COMMISSION AND THE WAR PRODUCTION BOARD AND UNION OFFICIALS, SAID "IN MODERN WAR X X X VICTORY FAVORS THE SIDE WHICH ADAPTS ITSELF MORE QUICKLY TO CHANGING CIRCUMSTANCES, AND CHANGES IN MILITARY REQUIREMENTS HAVE REDUCED THE IMMEDIATE NEED FOR QUANTITY PRODUCTION OF THE P-75."

COMPANY OFFICIALS SAID THAT OTHER HIGH-PRIORITY AIR FORCES WORK WILL BE ASSIGNED TO THE FISHER PLANT, ABSORBING MANY OF THE EMPLOYES WHO HAVE BEEN BUILDING THE FIGHTER PLANE. OTHER WORKERS WILL BE TRANSFERRED TO PRODUCTION OF B-29 SUPERFORTRESS PARTS, THEY ADDED.

A COMPANY SPOKESMAN SAID THAT APPROXIMATELY 40 PER CENT OF FISHER'S 22,000 EMPLOYES HAVE BEEN WORKING ON THE NEW FIGHTER.

WASHINGTON, OCT 7-(AP)-SENATOR WILLIS (R-IND), BELIEVING IT "UNWISE" FOR THE PRESIDENT TO ATTEND THE WORLD PEACE CONFERENCE IN PERSON, SUGGESTED TODAY THAT THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE APPOINT THE SECRETARY OF STATE OR "A COMMISSIONER WITH THE SAME RELATIVE POSITION" AS HIS REPRESENTATIVE.

"AT THE CONFERENCE THE PRESIDENT IS ASSOCIATED WITH MEN WHO HAVE GREATER POWER TO SPEAK FOR THE GOVERNMENTS THAN HE HAS," WILLIS SAID IN AN INTERVIEW. "THEY ASSUME HE SPEAKS WITH COMPLETE AUTHORITY FOR HIS NATION AND HE IS THUS SOMETIMES LED TO MAKE COMMITMENTS FAR BEYOND THOSE AUTHORIZED BY OUR CONSTITUTION. IF OUR COUNTRY WERE REPRESENTED INSTEAD BY A COMMISSIONER IT WOULD BE UNDERSTOOD THAT ANY COMMITMENT MADE BY HIM WOULD HAVE TO BE RATIFIED BY THE SENATE."

WILLIS SAID HIS PROPOSAL WOULD PREVENT THE DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED AFTER THE LAST WAR WHEN PRESIDENT WILSON MADE COMMITMENTS THE SENATE REFUSED TO APPROVE.

WASHINGTON, OCT 7-(AP)-PAN AMERICAN AIRWAYS, FORESEEING KEEN BRITISH COMPETITION ON THE UNITED STATES-BERMUDA PASSENGER LINE, URGED THE CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD TODAY TO LEAVE IT AS THE SOLE AMERICAN CARRIER ON THIS ROUTE.

JOHN C. LESLIE, MANAGER OF THE ATLANTIC DIVISION OF PAN AMERICAN, TESTIFIED THAT GRANTING OF APPLICATIONS BY OTHER AMERICAN AIRLINES TO ENTER UNITED STATES-BERMUDA SERVICE WAS "NOT IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST."

NTENDED, "THE AIRLINE WHICH HAD THE VISION AND COURAGE TO BRING THIS ROUTE THROUGH THE PIONEER PERIOD OF TECHNICAL DIFFICULT AND FINANCIAL LOSS SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO CARRY THE DEVELOPMENT THROUGH TO A PROFITABLE CULMINATION WITHOUT HAVE THAT STATUS POSTPONED BY DILUTION OF THE BUSINESS BETWEEN TWO OR MORE AMERICAN CARRIERS."

"WE BELIEVE THAT BRITISH AND CANADIAN COMPETITION IS LIKELY TO BE VERY KEEN ON THIS ROUTE AND WILL DEMAND THAT THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE AMERICAN FLAG OFFER THE VERY BEST SERVICE AT THE LOWEST RATES," LESLIE SAID.

"THE BRITISH HAVE BEEN IN THE TRADE FROM THE OUTSET, AND THEY PLAN TO STAY IN. IF THEY SHOULD FIND THEMSELVES UNABLE TO ATTRACT A REASONABLE SHARE OF THE TRAFFIC BY ORDINARY COMMERCIAL MEANS, WHICH SEEMS MOST UNLIKELY CONSIDERING WAGE SCALES, THEIR EXCELLENT CABIN SERVICE, ET CETERA, THEY WOULD ALWAYS HAVE IT IN THEIR POWER TO SAFEGUARD THEIR POSITION BY LIMITATIONS ON SCHEDULE FREQUENCY."

SAN FRANCISCO,CALIF.,OCT.7-(AP)-THE JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY DOMEI, IN A TOKYO BROADCAST RECORDED BY FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION TODAY, QUOTED TAKETORA OGATA, PRESIDENT OF THE NIPPON BOARD OF INFORMATION, AS STATING THE PEOPLE OF THE EMPIRE WILL BE TOLD FRANKLY "THE FACTS ABOUT THE WAR."

OCT 8 1944

EXPLAINING THE NEW GOVERNMENT PROGRAM FOR THE "DIRECTION OF WARTIME PUBLIC OPINION," OGATA SAID IT WAS DESIGNED TO PERMIT ANY "FAIR" EXPRESSION OF PUBLIC OPINION AND TO "BRING ABOUT THE NATION'S DEEPER UNDERSTANDING OF THE CRUCIAL SIGNIFICANCE OF THIS WAR AT THE PRESENT DECISIVE STAGE." HE ADDED THAT THE PROGRAM WAS INTENDED TO DEVELOP AN "ATMOSPHERE OF BRIGHTNESS" IN CONNECTION WITH WARTIME ACTIVITIES.

THE INFORMATION BOARD CHIEF ASSERTED THE GOVERNMENT IS READY "TO LET ANY SPONTANEOUS NATIONAL MOVEMENT ORIGINATING AMONG THE PEOPLE WITH A 'GENUINELY MORAL OBJECTIVE' TO TAKE ITS OWN COURSE WITHOUT SUBJECTING IT TO ANY OUTSIDE INTERFERENCE."

OGATA FURTHER SAID THE PROGRAM, ALREADY APPROVED BY THE CABINET OF PREMIER GEN.KUNIAKI KOISO, WAS BASED FUNDAMENTALLY ON THE GOVERNMENT'S "FIRM CONFIDENCE IN THE PEOPLE'S LOYALTY AND ITS DESIRE TO PUSH AHEAD HAND-IN-HAND WITH THE GENERAL PUBLIC IN THE NATION'S DETERMINED STRUGGLE FOR SURVIVAL."

JAPAN HAS INTENSIFIED HER FINANCIAL EXPLOITATION OF CONQUERED TERRITORIES TO HELP FINANCE A STRATOSPHERIC WAR BUDGET.

EXTRAORDINARY MILITARY APPROPPRIATIONS, OBEDIENTLY APPROVED IN THE RECENT SPECIAL DIET SESSION, RAISED THE CURRENT BUDGET TO 76,352,000,000 YEN (ABOUT $19,088,000,000 AT PRE-WAR EXCHANGE RATES.)

THIS IS MORE THAN FIVE TIMES GREATER THAN THE UNUSUALLY HIGH 1939 BUDGET AND MORE THAN 70 TIMES THE NORMAL NATIONAL EXPENDITURE BEFORE THE CURRENT WAR PERIOD BEGAN IN 1931.

MILITARY APPROPRIATIONS TOTAL 63 BILLION YEN, NEARLY DOUBLE THE 1943-44 EXPENDITURES.

BUT "GREATER EAST ASIA" WILL PROVIDE MUCH OF THIS REVENUE THROUGH TRIBUTE EUPHEMISTICALLY TERMED "LOANS." THE MAIN SOURCE WILL BE FROM NOTES ISSUED BY THE SOUTHERN REGIONS DEVELOPMENT BANK, A GIGANTIC MONOPOLISTIC AGENCY EXPLOITING THE RAW MATERIALS OF THE PHILIPPINES, THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES AND MALAYA.

CURRENCY MANIPULATION, ABNORMAL TRADING PROFITS AND THE LOOTING OF RESOURCES ARE STANDARD JAPANESE PRACTICES THROUGHOUT THE EMPIRE. PYRAMIDED TAXES AND ENFORCED PURCHASES OF WAR BONDS REACH MOST OF THE CONQUERED SUBJECTS.

BOND SALES, KNOWN AS "SAVINGS" CAMPAIGNS, RECENTLY INCLUDED A NEW WRINKLE IN MANCHURIA, THE LABORATORY WHERE EXPLOITATION MEASURES ARE TESTED FIRST. ALL PATRONS OF RESTAURANTS AND BARS ARE REQUIRED TO BUY, ON THE SPOT, "SAVINGS" STAMPS CORRESPONDING TO A CERTAIN PERCENTAGE OF THEIR CHECKS.

A SERIES OF JAPANESE BROADCASTS, HEARD BY U.S. GOVERNMENT MONITORS, REPORTED THESE DEVELOPMENTS.

THE TOKYO RADIO ALSO REPORTED THAT JAPAN'S MILITARY EXPENDITURES TOTALLED 139,128,000,000 YEN (ABOUT $34,782,000,000) SINCE THE OUTBREAK OF THE SINO-JAPANESE WAR IN 1937. THIS FIGURE MAY HAVE BEEN DOCTORED DOWNWARD.

DEAD HERO GIVEN MEDAL OF HONOR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — (AP) Posthumous award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to Pfc. John W. Dutko, of Homer City, Pa., was announced by the War department today.

Single-handedly, Dutko killed 11 Germans who were manning an 88-millimeter cannon and three machine guns, and then fell dead himself over the bodies of the enemy.

His widow, Mrs. Thel M. Dutko, Riverside, N. J., will receive the medal Saturday, Oct. 14, at Fort Dupont, Del. The presentation will be made by Major Gen. Henry Terrel, Jr., commanding officer of the 12th corps.

Dutko's heroic one-man assault occurred last May 23, the day American forces broke out of the Anzio beachhead in Italy. The enemy guns were barring the path of Dutko's infantry battalion near Ponte Rotto on the road to Rome.

The German guns had the battalion pinned down in a trench until Private Dutko, 28, went into action.

"I'm going to get that 88 with my heater," he shouted, referring to his Browning automatic rifle, and jumped out of the trench in clear view of the enemy gunners.

An eye-witness, Pvt. Anatole J. Simon, of Ponchatoula, La., later said: "He must have known he would be killed when he left the cover of the trench; we knew it. But he did it anyway."

14 Killed In Crash Of Heavy Army Bomber

Dallas, Texas, Oct. 8 (AP)—A heavy bomber crashed and burned on the edge of the tank farm at the Texas Company refinery near here about 12.30 P. M. today. All the members of the crew were killed.

Lieut. W. E. Dowell, assistant operations officer at Hensley Field, said 14 men were killed in the crash.

The huge craft clipped a power line, cut a corner off a refinery warehouse and burst into flame within 50 feet of two big gasoline and kerosine mixing tanks, witnesses said.

Second Lieutenant Stephen Tuore, Hensley Field operations officer, who assumed charge of an investigation, said the home of the four-engine bomber had not been determined.

Heroic Search For Aleutian Flyers Brings Death To 3

Miami, Fla., Oct. 8 (AP)—The story of three soldiers who perished in an arctic storm and a fourth who survived incredible hardships in a gallant attempt to save the crew of a wrecked army craft was told today for the first time by Chaplain Charles M. Buck, of Algona, Iowa.

This the chaplain's story:

Last February 14 an army plane radioed the remote gale-swept cabin weather station where the four enlisted men kept monotonous vigil that the craft with its crew of nine had been wrecked on the Aleutian Island's rocky edge.

Two Start Out

Sergt. William E. Black, of Grove City, Pa., and Corporal George H. Bailey, of Cincinnati, Ohio, set out immediately. One-hundred-mile-an-hour winds turned them back.

Their buddies, Sergt. Wilfred R. Scarem, of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and Corporal Clarence B Clements took over. Sleet and rain forced them in turn back to the station.

Early February 15, a lull in the storm enabled Scarem and Clements to make their way over nine miles of rough, pock-marked tundra before a furious wind and snow drove them to shelter at the base of a cliff.

Clements Went For Help

Overcome by fatigue, Scarem slumped to the ground. Clements, crawling on hands and knees over the jagged terrain most of the way, struggled stationward for help.

Black and Bailey dragged him to safety in the cabin when they heard his cries. Then they set out to rescue their exhausted friend.

Partially refreshed, Clements followed the pair a short time later, and met Black and Bailey, drenched, exhausted and half frozen, returning from a futile hunt.

He left them pushing toward the station. They were never seen alive again.

Couldn't Find Refuge

After being battered helplessly for more than two hours without finding a sign of Scarem's cliff refuge, Clements, too, groped toward the cabin.

Half delirious on his return, he did not notice the absence of his two friends.

On a final attempt in the face of the storm and sub-zero weather, he located Scarem's body, but was unable to muster strength to bring it back.

A doctor from an army barge dispatched to the island found Clements bruised and half conscious in the cabin. He insisted on leading a rescue party to Scarem's body to make sure it was lifeless.

Search Party Arrives

On February 17, Chaplain Buck and 14 officers and enlisted men summoned from another outpost miles away arrived on the barren island to take over the search for Black and Bailey, and the rescue of the army craft crew.

Twelve days later the surf and storm abated sufficiently to permit Chaplain Buck to guide a small boat along a line shot ashore to the castaways from a rescue craft.

On February 29, the chaplain, painfully injured himself when dashed by waves against the rocks, directed operations which brought all nine of the shipwrecked crew to safety.

Months later, soldiers who replaced the four heroic enlisted men at the lonely weather station stumbled across the bodies of Sergeant Black and Corporal Bailey.

STRIKING AUTO WORKERS VOTE TO RETURN TO JOBS

DETROIT, Oct. 8—(AP) Some 1,000 striking maintenance workers at Packard Motor car company voted today to return to work on their earliest respective shifts.

The Packard plant was one of 33 war factories in which production was hampered or halted last week by a 27-hour strike of about 7,000 maintenance men, who returned to work Thursday and Friday. The Packard workers, members of local 190, United Automobile Workers (CIO), however, continued to strike.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW-CIO International vice president, told the Packard men that he would make a fight for upward revision of maintenance workers' wages.

He said the War Labor board would consolidate all maintenance, construction and powerhouse workers' wage cases and hear them before a fact-finding panel of the WLB's automotive section, which in turn would make recommendations to the WLB.

The strike, which made approximately 50,000 production employes idle, began last Wednesday when the maintenance men, members of the UAW's maintenance, construction and powerhouse council, demanded a WLB inquiry into their wage structures to eliminate inequalities.

50% of Empire's Crude Comes as Reverse Lend-Lease

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP).—British Commonwealth sources this year are supplying the United States with 78,000 tons of crude rubber on a reverse lend-lease basis, the Foreign Economic Administration announced today.

Representing more than half the total Commonwealth production for the year, the shipments are appreciably larger than anticipated United States crude rubber imports from all other sources this year, F. E. A. said. About 70,000 tons are coming from Ceylon, representing more than two-thirds of that island's output.

50 Million Gallons of Alcohol Manufactured During 'Holiday'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—(AP) The nation's distilleries, granted a month's holiday from production of industrial alcohol, produced approximately 50,000,000 gallons of spirits for beverage purposes in August, the Treasury reported today.

This compared with a normal annual production of about 150,000,000 gallons.

In addition to the 129 beverage distillers, most of whom converted completely to beverage production in August after making nothing but industrial alcohol for 22 months to meet war needs, some commercial alcohol plants devoted part of their output to beverage alcohol.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue, which keeps tabs on alcohol production for tax purposes, give these figures on production for this August:

Whisky 13,584,910 gallons; rum 201,705 gallons; gin 897,221 gallons; brandy 4[illegible] (including some redistillatio[illegible]

Also av[illegible] for beverage purposes, the Treasury unit said, were: 23,083,499 gallons of spirits produced in registered distilleries; 3,785,734 gallons of "unfinished spirits" (which may be used in part for drinking) and 11,514,000 gallons alcohol produced at industrial alcohol plants.

"It is therefore apparent that at least 50,000,000 tax gallons of distilled spirits of all kinds were produced for beverage purposes," the Treasury declared.

During August 9,783,894 gallons of whisky, rum, gin, brandy and other spirits were withdrawn from government-bonded warehouses for marketing.

This compared with withdrawals of 7,213,521 gallons in August, 1943.

In addition 2,264,871 gallons of alcohol were withdrawn from warehouses in August this year, making a total of 12,048,765 gallons of alcohol and beverages taken out of storage for commercial sale.

10,000,000 Autos Swell Deferred Civilian Needs

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 — As an example of the deferred demand for consumer goods, the OPA cites these figures as an estimate, based on 1941 output, of civilian production choked off since early 1942 by the war:

Automobiles, 10,980,000; refrigerators, 10,500,000; washing machines, 6,042,000; vacuum cleaners, 6,351,000; electric irons, 16,755,000; toasters, 7,923,000; radios, 41,100,000; clocks and watches; 82,380,000; furnaces and heaters, 10,400,000, and stoves and ranges, 14,010,000.

Army Air Forces Get Three Flying Forts in a Day

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8 (AP).—The 10,001st B-17 Flying Fortress, mighty four-engined bombers, was delivered today to the Army Air orces. The Aircraft Was Production Council announced that the Army in rapid succession took delivery of No. 9,999 from Douglas Aircraft Company in Long Beach; No. 10,000 from Boeing in Seattle, and No. 10,001 from Lockheed in Burbank.

Boeing was the original producer of the ortress, but was joined in May, 1941, by the other companies for a pool production of the big ships. To date, 6,143 of the ships have been built by Doeing, 1,932 by Douglas and 1,876 by Lockheed, the council reported.

Army May Relinquish 'A Few' Hotels Shortly

Will Use Existing Camps as Redistribution Centers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—(AP).—Existing Army camps will be used as redistribution centers for soldiers returning from overseas, the Army announced today, adding that it may be possible to release "a few" of the hotels now used for that purpose.

Numerous hotels now are operated by the Army for housing soldiers while they are being reclassified and reassigned after coming back from overseas duty.

Saying that these hotel facilities now are taxed to capacity and that it is becoming increasingly difficult to find additional hotels, the War Department announced it will use existing camps as centers in connection with a general expansion and altering of its program.

"Pending the establishment of the camp type redistributing centers and in order to avoid taking over additional hotel facilities in housing-shortage areas," the statement said, "Negro returnees will be processed with white returnees through existing northern redistribution centers.

"Thereafter, all returning soldiers, white and Negro, certified by a medical officer as being most in need of this type of accommodation, will be housed in hotels retained for convalescents in the same manner in which they are at present being cared for in the hospitals or convalescent centers."

RAILROADS URGE '100-YEAR' PLAN TO PAY U. S. DEBT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. — (AP) Predicting a $300,000,000,000 national debt when the war ends, the Association of American Railroads today proposed that plans be made to pay it off within a 100 year period at the rate of one per cent annually.

This idea was given the Republican Postwar Tax Study committee by R. V. Fletcher, vice president of the Railroad association, in a letter to Representative Reed (R-NY) the committee chairman.

Reed said the suggestion would be given serious consideration by the committee, set up by the Republicans to make an independent analysis of the Federal financial structure.

The railroads' plan, Reed added, "contains the first detailed proposal submitted to the committee on behalf of any of the scores of industries whose views were sought."

The program, he explained, assumes that the national debt will have soared to approximately $300,000,000,000 by the end of the war and that national income during the first five years of the post-war period will amount to $120,000,000,000 annually.

To liquidate the debt over a period of one century, one per cent of the principal would be paid off annually. This $3,000,000,000, with carrying charge sestimated at $6,000,000,000, would require $9,000,000,000 per year during the early years of the post-war period.

The railroad's post-war tax program also calls for an increase in normal income tax rates and a lowering of personal exemptions to bring in more taxpayers; a reduced tax rate for persons with incomes of less than $2,000; substantial reduction of personal surtaxes; revision of the corporate income tax structure; repeal of the excess profits tax, the capital stock tax and the declared value excess profits tax, and cooperation with state governments to prevent overlapping and competing forms of taxation, with the Federal government being exclusive in the field of income taxes and the state governments having jurisdiction in the sales tax field.

HILLMAN DROPS PART IN FORUM

Should Represent PAC, Not Democrats, He Says

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, withdrew today as a New York Herald Tribune Forum speaker, almost simultaneously with a protest by Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic National Chairman, at the choice of Hillman to present the Democratic viewpoint.

Hannegan told a press conference that Hillman was an officer of the American Labor party and that "I would have suggested a regular Democrat" to present the party's viewpoint at the forum October 18.

Later, Hillman said in a telegram to the Herald Tribune:

". . . I have decided that your placing me in the position of speaker for the Democratic party at the Herald Tribune Forum necessitates my withdrawing from any participation whatever."

Question Of Representation

Hillman said that when he accepted the invitation of Mrs. Helen Rogers Reid, vice-president of the New York Tribune, Inc., to speak at the forum he understood he was to speak "as chairman of the Political Action Committee."

The Herald Tribune had said in a story today that Hillman "will represent the Democratic side on the Presidential election program" that will close the Forum and that Robert F. Bradford, Massachusetts candidate for Lieutenant Governor, would be the Republican spokesman.

The Herald Tribune expressed regret, in a statement issued tonight, that its news story "carried the inference that Mr. Hillman was representing the Democratic party," and expressed hope "that Mr. Hillman will reconsider his statement and address the Forum as scheduled."

Hillman was on his way to Cleveland by train when the Herald Tribune's statement was issued.

Referring to the newspaper article, Hannegan said:

"The Democratic party hasn't suggested any speaker for that program to take the Democratic side, nor have we been asked to furnish any speaker.

"If I had been asked to furnish one, I would have someone from the Democratic party and not a representative from the American Labor party."

Hillman said in his telegram that the Herald Tribune story "underscores the implication that I would speak as a Democrat in a partisan debate."

Would Have Spoken For PAC

"Nothing I could say would correct this erroneous implication," Hillman continued.

"I should have been glad to speak . . . as chairman of the Political Action Committee. As such, I would have stated the reasons why this organization, though non-partisan in nature and purpose, is supporting the reelection of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Under the circumstances, I feel that I cannot do this and am neither willing nor am I authorized to speak on any other basis. I must therefore ask you to cancel my appearance for the forum."

Ickes Spies 'Trojan Horse' With Dewey In His Campaign

Los Angeles, Oct. 8 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, declared today that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is trying to lead into the White House a Trojan horse filled with followers whom Ickes called "isolationist, and semi-isolationist."

Campaigning for the reelection of President Roosevelt, Ickes said at a dinner of the Hollywood Democratic Committee:

"This prize group of isolationists and rabble rousers who are supporting Mr. Dewey . . . will leap from the Trojan horse if Mr. Dewey is elected President and will proceed to take over and foist upon the people of this country and of the world their own destructive and vicious ideas of isolationism and hatred. . . .

Lists His "Trojan Horsemen"

"I know that there are decent, sincere people who are also in Mr. Dewey's corner," Ickes added, "but their voice is lost in the clamor of the powerful and vindictive men who are sitting comfortably inside of the Trojan horse."

Among those whom he called "Trojan horsemen," Ickes listed John Foster Dulles, Dewey's foreign relations aide; Col. Robert R. McCormick, Chicago publisher; William Randolph Hearst, Eleanor and Joseph Medill Patterson, New York and Washington newspaper publishers; Gerald L. K. Smith, James S. Kemper, of Chicago, chairman of the National Republican Finance Committee; Senator Brooks, of Illinois, and Representative Ham Fish, of New York.

"In fact," Ickes asserted, "the list of the opponents of any sort of international collaboration who are lying in wait inside of Mr Dewey's Trojan horse, is long and formidable.

Others In Congress Named

"It includes Senator Nye, Congressman Clare Hoffman, Congressman Ralph E. Church, of Illinois, another McCormick 'me-too' man; Congresswoman Jessie Sumner, of the same State; Congressman Charles E. Halleck, of Indiana; Senator Clyde M. Reed, of Kansas; Congressman Harold Knutson, of Minnesota; Congressman Dewey Short, of Missouri; Senator Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, and Congressman J. Parnell Thomas, of New Jersey."

Ickes said he was "not cataloguing some of the people inside of Mr. Dewey's Trojan horse merely to paint with a tarbrush the man whom they are ardently supporting."

"Nor am I charging that Mr. Dewey shares all of the objectionable views of Colonel McCormick or Gerald L. K. Smith," he added.

Fears Their Influence

"The point which I am making is that this man, without maturity or experience, whose convictions, if he has any, wobble from side to side, from day to day, is bound to be influenced by the people who are supporting him."

Dewey has denounced Gerald L. K. Smith, Ickes said, but added that Smith hopes "to ride to bigger and better things" with Dewey.

Ickes also said it was to Dewey's credit that he had opposed Fish's renomination for Congress on the Republican ticket, adding, "but if Dewey has renounced Fish, Fish continues to adhere to Dewey."

Held Unsuited As War President

Ickes asserted that Governor Dewey "has been running as a peace President," and said "it may well be that this is merely the seventh inning of the war."

"Even Mr. Dewey has not ventured to assert that he is qualified as a war President," Ickes declared. "Even he admits that this war has been so well run that he has no criticism to make of it. . . ."

Asserting Governor Dewey is unqualified to serve as a peace President, Secretary Ickes said "if the war is still raging it would unquestionably be catastrophic to change to Dewey and his Trojan Horsemen."

Bricker Finds Himself In North Dakota Middle

En Route with Bricker, Oct. 8 (AP)—North Dakota's rival candidates for United States senator and for governor took turns today presenting Gov. John W. Bricker to the voters of that State.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, who is seeking re-election, came aboard the Republican Vice-Presidential special train at Fargo as Lynn W. Stambaugh, who is running against him as an "individual nominee," was getting off.

Meeting for the first time since the primary election, in which Nye defeated Stambaugh by 972 votes, they said "good morning" and posed with Bricker for a photograph.

Both disclaimed any desire to embroil the Vice-Presidential candidate in the intra-party quarrel stemming from their primary fight and Bricker himself declined to comment on the unusual arrangement, asserting it was in his policy not to discuss politics on the Sabbath. He chatted, however, with each.

URGES LIGHT AS TO EUROPE

Dewey Calls For End Of 'Secrecy' On Post-War Plan

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey called for an end of the "secrecy" which he said was shrouding some post-war European planning today as he stopped off here to pay tribute to Poland's hero of the American Revolution, Count Casimir Pulaski.

The Republican Presidential nominee, homeward bound from a speech in Charleston, W. Va., reviewed the annual Pulaski Day parade from a stand on Fifth avenue and declared all sensitive Americans would like to see Poland reestablished as "an independent and sovereign nation reborn upon a basis which will be permanent."

"We would like to know more about the plans for that consummation," he said. "We would like to know more about the results of the private deliberations of those who now discuss Poland's future in secrecy.

Wants It 'In The Light'

Dewey, who said earlier he had received assurances that he would be kept advised of developments at the Dumbarton Oaks post-war planning conference, declared Polish-Americans "would do well to do everything in their power to bring discussions of Poland's fate from the dark to the light."

The New York Governor headed back to Albany after reviewing the Pulaski Day parade and receiving Republican workers at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

His plans for the rest of the campaign remained incomplete, although speaking engagements have been announced for Minneapolis on October 24, Chicago on October 25, and Boston on November 1.

Sits Near Hoover

In the reviewing stand on the steps of New York's public library, Dewey occupied a seat three places away from former President Herbert Hoover. The two exchanged only a few brief remarks of greeting. It was their first public meeting since Dewey's nomination.

Bareheaded and smiling, Dewey watched the parade of Polish-American organizations for more than an hour before making a short broadcast over a local radio station.

OCT 10 1944

Says Americans Has Grieved

Declaring Polish "valor and tenacity have contributed much toward victory," the Governor said:

"Be assured that whatever transpires in the next few months, the American people will not be satisfied unless we meet the just claims of the Polish people upon our gratitude, sympathy and admiration, upon our desire that all people shall have the freedom to which they are entitled."

"For five years," he said, "we in America have had cause to grieve with you for the unprovoked devastation inflicted upon the country of your origin by an enemy whose character and actions cannot be described in terms fit for public utterance.

"We have shared with you your just pribe in the indomitable valor of Polish resistance to the Nazi bestialities.

"We now claim a right to share in your pride and relief and the end is within sight."

Hoover and the Polish Ambassador, Jan Cienchanowski, also spoke briefly.

ans Open New Offensive in South, Hammer at Fort Driant.

WHAT

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 9.—(AP) While a powerful new offensive put the U. S. Third army 6 miles on a 20-mile front between Metz and Nancy last night, the hard-hitting American First army was on the verge of throwing a noose around the Germans at Aachen.

NOT

Fighting inside Aachen itself was reported in three London newspapers this morning, but there was no confirmation of this from Allied headquarters. The British papers, attributing their reports to front-line dispatches but not giving their source, said American troops had entered Aachen from the southeast and that house-to-house fighting raged in the city.

Dispatches from First army headquarters reported only that the city was almost isolated by American troops encircling it.

Throw in More Tanks

The German radio said the Americans had thrown two fresh tank divisions into the battle north of Aachen "where attacks now have assumed the character of a major assault."

Their newest assault, launched before dawn from east of Aachen carried to within 1,000 yards of the enemy's last road to Cologne. Above the rubbled city, other troops from the Upach breakthrough in the Siegfried Line, struck a mile deeper south, bringing in the upper jaw of the vise.

Even as the Aachen front blazed along a 30-mile sector, the Third army to the south in France struck between Metz and Nancy on a 20-mile front, quickly toppling eight towns in a six-mile advance. But ground was lost farther north in the furious, bloody struggle for Fort Driant which guards the southwestern approaches to Metz.

Planes supported the two American army drives.

Probe Aachen Defenses

A small task force with tanks and self-propelled guns probed the defenses of Aachen itself, biggest city encountered in the invasion of Germany. Thirty-seventh city of the pre-war Reich, it was the size of Nashville, Tenn., or Hartford, Conn.

With a little more progress, the city will be pinched off, an American officer said.

Staging one of their rare night assaults, Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' men southeast of Aachen caught the Germans by surprise, hit up east of the besieged city, and late today seized Crucifix Hill, dominating the ground near Haaren, 1 1-4 miles northeast of Aachen.

They were within little more than half a mile of the Aachen-Cologne road, sweeping that last escape route for the Nazis in Aachen with shell and heavy machinegun fire. The strength of the Aachen defenders was not known, but a Reuters dispatch estimated it as low as 1,500 S.S. troops.

In the upper wing of an Aachen squeeze, First army men who scored the Siegfried breakthrough at Ubach cleaned out Alsdorf, seized Afden, and thrust within four miles of their comrades near Haaren.

A three-pronged German counter-attack toward Alsdorf was flung back. Generally resistance north of Aachen appeared to be melting.

In the Hurtgen forest area southeast of Aachen, other Doughboys advanced through the dense pine woodlands, and were within seven miles of Duren, 20 miles from Cologne.

Capture Several Towns

Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton's Third army attack was aimed at wiping out a shallow German salient. The towns of Clemery, Lixieres, Serrieres, Jeandelaincourt, Mcavrons, Fessieux, Ajoncourt and Arraye et Han were captured in a sector a dozen to 20 miles below Metz.

In Fort Driant, most formidable bastion protecting Metz, Doughboys battled against odds, and a Nazi night counterattack erased half the Americans' 100-yard gain of Saturday inside the mile and a half long fortress.

Germans made sallies from bulkheaded underground passages, and also fought from pillboxes raised by hydraulic lifts. Allied planes pounded supporting forts across the Moselle river, knocking out guns that had taken a toll of Driant's attackers, and sending huge chunks of concrete gun emplacements sailing into the sky. Dispatches from the front said a hill chain east of the river was knocked nearly bald by the fierce air attack and enemy guns were temporarily silenced. But late in the day one of the German long-range guns opened up again.

OCT 10 1944

Between Metz and Aachen, Third army men captured Echternach, Grevenmacher and Wormeldange on the Luxembourg-German border. Only a few German patrols remained in the tiny duchy.

Along the seaward flank of the Allied armies, Canadians made slight advances above Antwerp against stubborn resistance and captured the hamlet of Hoogerheide, only 1,500 yards from the Germans' flight road on the Flushing Spit, which connects the islands north of the Scheldt River Estuary with the mainland.

Repulse Nazi Attack

To the northeast, American airborne infantry throttled a German effort to push into the area north of Nijmegen, killing or capturing at least 200 of the enemy.

The British between Nijmegen and Arnhem straightened their line, taking the village of Halderen. Supplies were steadily rolling into Holland.

The Seventh army, composed of U. S. and French forces, on the southern end of the Allied front took two villages in the Vosges foothills, but yielded ground northeast of Epinal to a tank-led enemy counter-blow. Enemy counter-assaults were driven off in the Le Thillot area 18 miles above Belfort.

RUSSIANS STRIKE WITHIN 10 MILES OF EAST PRUSSIA

Crash 62 Miles Through Nazi Lines in Four-Day Offensive.

DRIVE TOWARD MEMEL

Capture 4,000 Prisoners in Hungary, Reach Tisza River.

Herald

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 9—(AP) Two huge Soviet armies have crashed 62 miles through crumbling German lines in Lithuania on a 174-mile front in a new four-day offensive which has carried Red army troops within 10 miles of German East Prussia and only 29 miles from the Baltic port of Memel, Premier Joseph Stalin announced last night.

Ripping through heavy fortifications built for several years by the Germans, the Russians also were closing in fast on the Latvian port of Liepaja, and were threatening the approaches to the East Prussian rail center of Tilsit, Stalin's order of the day and a communique disclosed.

Drive on Budapest

Simultaneously, other flying Soviet columns invading Hungary sped to within 72 miles of Budapest, capturing 4,000 prisoners in two days and reaching the Tisza river, last big hurdle before the imperilled Magyar capital.

Moscow ditpatches said a Hungarian capitulation soon would come as no surprise, and there were reports of a cabinet crisis in Budapest.

In Yugoslavia the Russians crossed the 3,000-ft. Homoljske mountains in Eastern Serbia and captured positions only 51 miles southeast of Belgrade, the Soviet bulletin said, while Berlin said that other Red army troops had crossed the Danube 23 miles northwest of Belgrade, which Marshal Tito's headquarters declared now was surrounded.

The Germans placed the two Danube bridgeheads at the mouth of the Tisza river, which is only 10 miles from a rail network whose seizure would trap perhaps 150,000 Germans in the lower Balkans.

In the north Gen. Ivan Bagramian's First Baltic army, aided by troops of Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian army, swept through 2,000 localities in a great arc northwest, west, and southwest of the Lithuanian base of Siauliai.

Moscow dispatches early today said that the entire Axis center in the Baltics now had been crushed, and that 15 German divisions of upwards of 150,000 men were on the verge of being trapped between menaced Memel, annexed East Prussian port, and desieged Riga, Latvian capital.

Extend Hold on Saare

This new Baltic disaster for the Germans came as other Russian troops seized most of Saare island. Estonian territory dominating the seaward escape routes from Riga, and as the Red army drove closer to Riga itself.

Striking 41 miles northwest of Siauliai, along the highway and railway to Liepaja, west Latvian port of the Baltic, one Russian column captured Mazeikiai, 48 miles southeast of Liepaja.

Seda, 12 miles southwest of Mazeikiai and only 44 miles southeast of Liepaja, also fell to the Russians.

On the Siauliai-Memel route the Red army pushed 41 miles west of Siauliai and captured the big road junction of Telsiai, then drove on through plunge only 20 miles from the East Prussian frontier and 29 miles from Memel.

The Soviet communique said that Red army troops in Yugoslavia, south of the Danube, had captured Petrovac, on the Mlava river 51 miles from Belgrade, and a number of other localities on a front stretching 55 miles southeast to Zajecar. The Russians in this area were only 12 miles from the Belgrade escape railway.

At Zajecar and Klokocevac, far to the rear, two German groups which had been surrounded were wiped out, the bulletin said.

Berlin said the Russians were using 500,000 troops in Hungary and Yugoslavia.

Crisis In Hungary

The Paris radio quoted Budapest diplomatic reports that a crisis had occurred in Premier General Vitez Geza Lakatos' Cabinet, that a state of siege was imminent, and that German nationals had been ordered to flee to the Reich. A majority of Nazi administrative officials in Budapest already have gone, the broadcast said.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, the Nazi military commentator, attributed Russian successes to a German decision to man front lines thinly and keep back reserves "in order not to be robbed of a freedom of movement by tying down strong forces at one point."

The Germans announced that Russian troops had thrown two bridgeheads across the half-mile-wide Danube near the Tisza River, twenty-three miles northwest of Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, and Marshal Josip Broz's (Tito) Free Yugoslav radio said "the struggle for the liberation of Belgrade has begun."

The German official news agency, D. N. B., said other Soviet units attempting to cross the Tisza above the Danube in a westerly direction had been "frustrated in hard fighting."

The Russians in Yugoslavia were only ten miles from Indjija, junction of the Belgrade-Budapest and Belgrade-Munich railways, which are the major escape routes for perhaps 150,000 Germans in the lower Balkans, Berlin disclosed.

Fifth Column In Belgrade

Inside Belgrade, where thousands of Tito's underground members are waiting to spring to arms, the Nazi-controlled radio appealed to the Serbs to remain quiet, saying the "general military situation does not give any ground for alarm." It also said "Serbian national forces" under puppet Premier Field Marshal Milan Nedic were ready "to secure peace and order" if necessary.

Far to the northwest the Free Yugoslavs said their Partisan units already had reached the Hungarian frontier on a 20-mile front in the Virovitica area, 135 miles southwest of Budapest, and also had contacted "Free Austrian" units on the Austrian border north of Zagreb.

Hungarians Called On To Rise

As the Russians flooded into southeastern Hungary, smashing the Axis defense system east of the Tisza and Koros rivers, the Hungarian council in London called on Hungarians to rise against the Germans and the Nazi-dominated Magyar government of generals.

There still were more Soviet forces ready to plunge into the Hungarian battle. Von Hammer said the Russians were concentrating strong forces outside Cluj, Transylvanian capital, far to the east of the Soviet tide moving across the Hungarian plains, and also in the snowswept Carpathian Mountains along the Czechoslovak border north of Hungary.

SECURITY PLAN TO BE LAID BEFORE THE WORLD TODAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 — (AP) The American-British-Russian-Chinese plan for an organization to keep world peace is ready to be laid before the world tomorrow.

It is understood that points on which delegates of the four nations failed to agree in seven weeks of closed-door discussions have been omitted from the final document. Chief among these is whether veto power shall be accorded a large nation when it is accused of aggression.

Outlines Proposed Plan

The document, as it now stands, outlines the main points of a proposed organization — first of the united and associated nations, later neutrals and finally all countries—aimed at preventing the outbreak of future wars and quelling any which might start.

Only the first leg of a long journey toward the goal of a functioning peace organization has been covered, however.

The next indicated step is a conference of higher-level officials—perhaps President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, Marshal Stalin and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek themselves — to resolve the veto question.

After that the hurdles of approval and filling in the details in a full-dress conference of the United Nations, final okay from governments, and in the case of the United States congressional sanction in one form or another, still will lie ahead.

Highlights of the conference agreement are understood to be:

1—Quick and ready force to be used an aggressor, with each nation assigned a minimum quota, under direction of an international military board.

2—An executive council of eleven members, with permanent seats for Britain, Russia, China, the United States and eventually France, and rotating seats for six smaller countries representing the rest of the world, to decide when peace is threatened and whether concilation is possible, and to vote the use of sanctions and force when necessary.

3—An assembly in which all nations would have one vote, to make recommendations to the council in periodic meetings and to receive reports from the executive body.

Court of Justice

4—An international court of justice to decide disputes which can be settled by international law and to work out new codes and broaden the scope of the law among nations.

5—A secretariat general with a permanent head to keep the records of the organization.

6—Provision for liaison with international cultural, economic and welfare organizations which would work directly with the security agency as props for the structure of peace.

7—Regional councils under the central organization.

The central remaining issue is voting unanimity among the big nations holding permanent seats, which would give each of these powers a veto on action against itself. The United States, Britain and China oppose such veto powers.

The probability of another stumbling block appears in the proposal to set up the United States' quota of international force in such a manner as to avoid the delays of Congressional debate before it is thrown into action.

BOMBS SMASH 132 NAZI GUNS

Ninth Air Force Batters Siegfried Line And Supply Centers

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—While industrial Germany still smoldered from Saturday's record aerial blow in history, Ninth Air Force fighter-bombers gave the Siegfried Line a super "buzz job" today, destroying 132 heavy gun positions that has been slowing down the American First and Third armies.

German communications and supply depots in the Rhineland also were raked as the Ninth Air Force planes flew about 1,500 sorties from Saarbruken to Dusseldorf. Weather was described as "universally good" inside Germany, but there was heavy fog over Holland, Belgium and northeastern France that kept Eighth Air Force and RAF heavy bombers grounded.

Smash Ammunition Train

Lightning bombers smashed an ammunition train and a passenger train in Germany, while a Thunderbolt squadron raked German airfields, destroying three planes and damaging seven.

More than 300 fighter bombers joined today's actions and flew against opposition of more than 200 Nazi fighters.

Two of the Germans' largest tank production plants were heavily hit and seriously damaged by Eighth Air Force Liberators in Saturday's raids, reconnaissance photographs showed.

All Buildings But One Hit

According to photographs, bombardiers over Kassel sent explosives and incendiaries into every building except one of the Henschel Worke Plant 111, which manufactures nearly all of Hitler's Tiger tanks, and 21 or 23 buildings at the Krupp Mark IV tank works at Magdeburg were struck. The Magdeburg plant is also believed to be producing heavy guns and armor.

"Three of seven large workshops and a test bed were damaged at the Daimler aera engine plant at Kassel. Both assembly buildings at the Zwicka Focke Wulfe assembly and repair plant were hit," the air force announced, adding that "freight yards and railroad repair centers at Kassel, Zwicka and Dresden were damaged considerably."

R. A. F. Hits Dam, Cuts Power

BASLE, Switzerland, Oct. 8 (AP).—Bombing of Germany's hydro-electric plant at Kembs, France, two miles north of here, by Allied planes late yesterday, paralyzed the electrical supply of the German province of Baden and crippled Rhine River trafic between Switzerland and Germany.

One of the several six-ton bombs dropped struck and heavily damaged the gatelock supplying water for the turbines of the Kembs power plant, one of the largest in Europe. Large areas of southern Germany were flooded as the air attack shattered the plant.

The level of the Rhine here dropped ten feet in thirty minutes, stranding boats. A special alarm called all possible aid to move boats and barges to deeper water. Damage was so great it is not known when it will be possible to resume Rhine navigation at this point.

Coventry's Raid Losses 1,200

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP)—German air raids have destroyed or damaged 70,000 homes and killed 1,200 people in Coventry—England's automobile manufacturing center of approximately 220,000 population—since the start of the war, Home Secretary Herbert Morrison told a parade of 1,400 defense workers today.

Lord Swinton Made Aviation Minister

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—Britain took a big step today toward an outline of her position in post-war world air competition with the appointment of Lord Swinton as Minister for Civil Aviation.

His appointment was announced at 10 Downing Street simultaneously with the selection of Sir William Jowitt as Minister for Social Security under the Government's recently announced "cradle to the grave" security program.

Lord Swinton, 60, will hed the British delegation to the forthcoming post-war air conferences in Washington.

The appointment of Lord Swinton, since 1942 Minister Resident in West Africa, gave Britain a Minister of Cabinet rank and a top-drawer commercial executive to devote full time to planning the nation's commercial aviation bid for competition on imperial and world airways.

It followed persistent parliamentary and press demands that commercial aviation be removed from "stepchild" control of the air ministry and given its own ministry lest Britain fall hopelessly behind the United States in air transport planning and plane development. Lord Swinton was Air Minister from 1935 to 1938.

Mystery Blast In Sky Heard In Robot Attack

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—Anti-aircraft gunners spraying the sky with an intense barrage of fire during two flying bomb attacks tonight against southern England and the London area heard a tremendous mysterious exlosion in the sky louder than usual buzzbomb blasts.

Gun crews pumped so many shots at the intruders that hundreds of coastal families were driven to shelter to escape the falling flak.

The first attack, at the dargest hour before moonrise, caused damage and casualties for the fourth successive night.

The terrific explosion was heard when the second wave of flying bombs came in four hours later. Two lesser explosions also were heard as either act-ack men or Mosquito patrol pilots downed a pair of buzzbombs in flight.

The bombs came from the east. One demolished a group of three houses and damaged a hospital so badly that patients had to be evacuated.

Ship That Led Invasions 4 Times Returns to U.S.

Liner Ancon Went to Pacific, Africa, Italy, Normandy

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP).—The Ancon, an ocean liner which the United States turned into a floating military headquarters, has gone home after successfully leading four invasions of two continents.

A $5,000,000 passenger and cargo liner intended for the Caribbean tourist trade, the Ancon first served as a transport taking soldiers to Australia.

Next the Ancon landed American soldiers on the beaches of French Morocco in the invasion of North Africa in November of 1942.

She carried the leaders of the thrust at Salerno. Aboard her were Vice-Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, directing all naval operations; Lieutenant Mark W. Clark, commander of the 5th Army, and other ranking American and British officers.

At Salerno Bay she withstood four flaming days and nights. While being attacked sixteen times from the air in less than fifteen hours, her radio intercepted a German message ordering her sunk at all costs.

Yet on June 6, 1944, she was back for the greatest single movement of ships and men the world has ever seen.

Bishop Oldham Urges Christian-Basis Peace

Albany Prelate Speaks at Westminster Abbey

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP).—The Rev. G. Ashton Oldham, Episcopal bishop of Albany, told a Westminster Abbey congregation today tthat the Allies must have sufficient influence to see to it that the peace is patterned on Christian principles. He said: "It should be our determination to work together in peace as we have in war."

Bishop Oldham, member of an American Episcopalian delegation now visiting Great Britain, said that it was easy to stand together under the threat of calamity but that later selfish viewpoints might tend to separate the Allies. He lauded the war effort of the British and Russians.

"Britain was an instrument," he said also, "which God had been preparing to stand in this crisis in defense of world freedom. The hearts of those of us in America go forth to the brave people of this land."

15 Picasso Paintings Torn From Salon Walls

Paris, Oct. 8 (AP)—A group of unidentified persons started a hostile demonstration today in front of the paintings of Pablo Picasso, the Spanish artist, at the autumn salon, tearing 15 of them from the walls but not damaging them.

The demonstrators fled as the police intervened. Picasso is exhibiting 74 paintings in the show, including surrealist monsters and distorted anatomical studies.

Two German Tanks Play Hide and Seek in Alsdorf

By The Associated Press.

ALSDORF, Germany, Oct. 8—Two German tanks, survivors of six that led a bitter but beaten counter-attack this morning against American infantry holding this town, are being stalked through its streets this afternoon block by block by our bazooka squads.

None of the people of Alsdorf is seeing this strange hunt. All of them are crouched quietly in their cellars and basements in obedience to orders of the regimental commander, Lieut. Col. W. M. Johnson of Missoula, Mont., which were issued from his command post—located in a cellar.

The tanks are playing a strange game. They lurk momentarily in the middle of one block, then dash across the next intersection into the middle of the next block. Their purpose is to prevent us from bringing up our big anti-tank guns in the confined space formed by the littered streets.

"I'm trying to catch them at the corner of one of these damned streets," Colonel Johnson said, "and they know it."

Sad Sacks Indeed See Belgian Ponies

Brussels, Oct. 8 (AP)—The ponies ran at Brussels' Boitsfort race course today and left in their wake a lot of sad sacks—American officers and enlisted men.

The Americans found that difficulty with the language and lack of familiarity with the Belgian racing system added to the ordinary and world-wide laws of chance to create an insuperable barrier to intelligent betting.

At least 15,000 civilians also thronged to the track and patronized the pari mutuels althongh the front is a bare 60 miles from here. Smartly dressed and beautiful women and well-grounded men sipped champagne between races.

The curious and game Americans tried to appear intelligent while they studied the programs printed in French, but they were still sadly ignorant of the horses' reputations, the weights of the jockeys, the length of the race or the odds when they planked down their francs for tickets.

The only reason none of the Americans had to walk home is that Brussels' streetcars are free to anyone in uniform.

Major General Eddy Revealed As Head Of 12th Army Corps

Nancy, Oct. 8 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, of Chicago, an American fighting general who came up through the army the hard way, was disclosed today as the commander of the United States 12th Army Corps which is leading the new advance between Nancy and Metz.

Units participating in the push on the Nancy-Metz front included the 35th Infantry Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Paul W. Baade, the 18th Infantry Division, under Maj. Gen. Horace L. McBride, and the 6th Armored Division, led by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow.

Eddy is the 52-year-old general who outmaneuvered Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt to crack the German stand on the Moselle river. Before that he had made the Ninth Division famous in the North Africa, Sicily and Cherbourg peninsula campaigns. It was his outstanding work as commander of the Ninth which led to his elevation to command the Twelfth Corps.

General As Traffic Director

Strictly a front-line general, Eddy hasn't changed in the higher command. When a critical point was reached in crossing the Moselle, Eddy was on the river bank under artillery fire, personally directing traffic over a key bridge.

The need to build up supplies after the rapid advance had brought him to a halt along the Moselle for a number of days, and the Germans had time to regroup. They were firmly established on high ground across the river and plastered every attempt to get over from the Luxembourg border to Nancy. Eddy then sent part of the Fourth Armored and most of the 35th Infantry Division south of Nancy.

Gambled On Hitler's Dictum

He gambled that the Germans would believe Hitler's dictum that the Allies are "military idiots," and would not expect us to try crossing in the south because, instead of just one river, there were six sizable tributaries to negotiate with temporary bridges.

The German command, turning to guard the southeast, took its eyes off the vital sector between Metz and Nancy, and Eddy was quick to take advantage.

He had held back the armored combat team from the Fourth and most of the 80th Division. The infantry crossed the river near Lousy at night. Two bridges were built. On September 12 the Germans realized their mistake. A counterattack almost reached a pontoon bridge.

Orders Armored Force Across

At the most critical moment, up rolled Eddy in a jeep, and with German shells falling all round, he ordered the armored force across to attack. For most of September

30. 24— 19423

13 the armored division rolled across, and by nightfall the battle was won and German defenses on the Moselle were broken and outflanked.

Eddy, who looks like a kindly college professor, rose from lieutenant to major in the last war and fought over much of the same ground around St. Mihiel which his command took in this war.

Awarded The DSC

In the peace years he rose steadily in the army, and when the African invasion began he was in command of the Ninth, which landed three combat teams in French Morocco and Algeria, took Bizerte and spearheaded fighting in Sicily.

For personally leading his troops time after time under machine gun and artillery fire in the Cherbourg campaign, Eddy was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

Wilhelmina Broadcasts Her Thanks To British

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Queen Wilhelmina, of the Netherlands, in an address broadcast by the BBC today thanked the people of Britain for their hospitality to her, to the Ntherlands armed forces stationed in England and to Dutch refugees, Aneta, official Netherlands news agency reported.

Finns Report Capture Of Kemi, 500 Germans

Helsinki, Oct. 8 (AP)—Capture of the port of Kemi, 20 miles east of Tornealv, and the internment of 500 Germans taken in the town by Finnish forces was announced today by the Finnish army command.

A communique issued by the German high command today reported that four Russian divisions on the extreme northern wing of the Finnish front had launched an attack on the Nazi line south of the Ribachii peninsula and succeeded in pushing back advanced German positions.

FINNISH TROOPS STORM OUTSKIRTS OF KEMI PORT

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 8 — (AP) Finnish troops, steadily driving their former German partners from Finnish soil, have stormed into the outskirts of the port of Kemi where a fierce battle is in progress, a communique from Helsinki announced today.

Kemi is at the northern end of the Gulf of Bothnia near the Swedish frontier some 400 miles north of Helsinki.

The Finnish war bulletin also announced the capture of the large village of Hosio, 10 miles northeast of Kemi, but said the Germans were making violent attempts to break into Tornealv, 15 miles northwest of Kemi, seized by the Finns a week ago in an effort to cut off German retreat.

Germans Tell Finns To Obey Nazi Orders

New York, Oct. 8—Colonel General Rendulich, German commander in Finland, on October 4 proclaimed that Finnish authorities in German-occupied territory are to take orders from German military commanders, the Berlin radio said tonight. The broadcast said Rendulich decreed that Finnish soldiers caught behind German lines would be disarmed and interned, but would not be treated as prisoners of war "in view of the former comradeship in arms between Germany and Finland."

RED ARMY NAMES MAYOR

Mako Is First Hungarian Town With Russian-Appointed Head

MOSCOW, Oct. 8 (AP)—Little Mako, near the Hungarian-Rumanian border, has become the first Hungarian town to have a Mayor appointed by the Red Army.

A Red Star dispatch said today that the former Mayor together with a number of pro-Nazi families fled when the Russian troops approached.

Within twenty-four hours after Mako was occupied a local lawyer was named by the Russians as head civilian administrator.

YANKS IN ITALY WIDEN FRONT

Germans Reported Building Defense North Of Bologna

Rome, Oct. 8 (AP)—American troops have broadened their front menacing Bologna to 12 miles, and pushed through mud and stout German opposition to within ten miles of Castel San Pietro, important station on the Bologna-Rimini rail and highway route.

Though still a dozen miles from Bologna itself, the Yanks widened the sector below that key north Italian city by a westward push across the Bologna-Prato road, Allied headquarters disclosed.

The enemy has been reported attempting to build a new defense line farther north in Italy, while still stubbornly defending Bologna.

On Slopes Of Mount Castellazi

The Americans reached the southern slopes of Mount Castellazi and the village of Giulietto in their closest approach to the big communications city, Castelnovo east of the main Bologna-Florence road was captured.

Negro troops of the United States 92nd Division on the western end of the front won the twin heights of Mt. Costa and Mt. Canala, 20 miles southeast of La Spezia naval base and three miles inland in the first significant gain on that sector in recent days.

Indians Take Mount Farneto

On the Eighth Army's Adriatic front, Indian forces knocked the enemy from Mount Farneto, a mile and a half northwest of the upper Fiumicino river and 15 miles west of Rimini. Hampering flood waters of the Fiumcino river have dropped slightly, headquarters said.

Italian patriots are fighting alongside British Eighth Army men in the mountain sector, official reports said, and have increased their activities far behind Allied lines, attacking German garrisons at Trieste, Imperia, and on the Bologna-Rimini highway.

Eighteen Allied planes were lost yesterday in blows against targets in Austria, Hungary, the Balkans and Italian battle area.

NAZIS FLEEING FROM GREECE

British Report Foe Escapes By "Land, Sea And Air"

Patrai, Greece, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Germans were reported fleeing from Athens today before British forces hammering at the gate to the Greek mainland at Corinth.

Corinth, guarding the southern entrance to the Corinth isthmus leading 45 miles eastward to the capital of Greece, was itself reported deserted except for several hundred Greek puppet troops.

British commanders said the Germans were in flight from Greece "by land, sea and air."

Would Escape Balkan Trap

They are hurrying to get back to the fatherland before the Russians and hostile forces of the Balkan countries slam the door.

The report that the flight from Athens had begun came from Spitfire pilots, operating from Greek bases, who saw ferry-type craft and at least two fairly large ships massed in the harbor. This shipping was attacked with rockets.

Allied warplanes have been strafing the airports around Athens and Salonika to break up attempts to evacuate by air.

The Germans are believed to have left Greek "security" battalions in Corinth.

2,000 Security Troops Taken

So far, in the whirlwind campaign through the Peloponnesus the British have captured close to 2,000 of these security troops along with large stores of arms. The arms are antiquated and largely ineffective.

In fleeing, the Germans left the usual demolitions behind. Seven bridges over a main highway on a short stretch near Rion, east of here, were blown up.

Royal engineers quickly bridged the gaps by using empty steel oil drums which the Germans had left behind.

British Nearing Corinth

ROME, Oct. 8 (AP).—As British light forces racing virtually unopposed across the Peloponnesus neared the outskirts of Corinth today a brief communique announced also capture of the port of Navplion, twenty-five miles south of Corinth and at the top of the Gulf of Nauplia, in the northeastern part of the Peloponnesus.

Capture of Corinth, which in ancient times was a rival of Athens, would trap any Germans still in southern Greece, but it was apparent from the lack of resistance that most of them had fled.

The British destroyer Termagant, harassing enemy shipping and the Greek coast to head off any enemy units seeking to withdraw from the multitude of Greek islands, ventured into the northern Aegean and sank one enemy destroyer and seriously damaged another near the entrance of the Gulf of Salonika Friday night.

The communique announced also that British warships had moved in close to the Albanian shore Thursday and shelled enemy targets north of the Island of Corfu, which is off the west coast of Greece. In the related invasion of Albania, the Balkan air force attacked enemy vehicles near Babie, Albania, with rockets, while others knocked out enemy gun positions.

Since the brief Balkan communique mentioned no fighting in Greece, it was assumed here that the land forces were occupied mainly in seizing strategic points already abandoned or else held by ineffective small German forces or Greek puppet battalions.

Land forces engaged in the invasion are small in comparison with the huge armies fighting on other fronts, but for the last four months they have been harrying the enemy on a front nearly as long as the Russian front.

Greek Drachma Is Set At 150,000,000 to $1

PATRAS, Greece, Oct. 6 (Delayed) (AP).—Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Greek Minister of Reconstruction and Administrator for the Peloponessus, has set the value of the Greek drachma at 150,000,000 to one American dollar.

Before the war 125 drachmae were worth $1, but as a result of German inflation of Greek currency during the last three years the rate of exchange became fantastic.

ARAB CONFERENCE ENDS

Participants Agree on Creation of League for Common Action

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Oct. 8 (AP)—A preliminary pan-Arab conference ended today with the signing of a protocol providing for the creation of an Arab League in which the separate states would have common foreign and economic policies and act together on political questions.

The document was signed by delegates of Syria, Trans-Jordan, Iraq, Lebanon and Egypt. The representatives of Saudi Arabia and Yemen referred it to their sovereigns.

The protocol pledges support to the Arabs in Palestine and expresses the hope that a new Jewish problem will not be created there. Clauses guaranteeing the independence of Lebanon were also included.

The findings of this preliminary committee will now be submitted to the individual Governments. After that, actual implementation of the protocol will be started.

EGYPT CABINET IS DISMISSED

King's Action Laid To Desire For Constitutional Rule

Cairo, Oct. 8 (AP)—King Farouk has dismissed the Egyptian Cabinet under Nahas Pasha.

The news has caused a sensation in Cairo, where it was made known by official radio announcements.

It has long been known that differences existed between the King and Prime Minister. It was believed no questions of foreign policy were involved.

Cause Of Action

Formation of a new government was entrusted to Achmed Maher Pasha.

Palace circles said the King's action was motivated "by his desire to see Egypt ruled constitutionally," the inference being that the previous Premier was governing in a dictatorial manner.

Extra police were patrolling Cairo streets, but the city was quiet.

Former Finance Minister

Maher Pasha formerly was Finance Minister. His brother, Ali Maher Pasha, was imprisoned by Nahas Pasha for alleged anti-British activities and other political work.

Nahas Pasha is president of the WAFD party, the largest and most influential political group in Egypt.

JAPS WITHDRAW FROM INDIAN AREA

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 8 — (AP) An official spokesman at Allied headquarters said today a Japanese reconnaissance force which penetrated two miles into India in the lower Sangu river border area had retreated after being contacted by west African patrols.

The spokesman said the Japanese force was estimated at 400 and the operation by the enemy was "to test our hold on the Indian border."

The Japanese penetration into eastern Bengal was disclosed yesterday and was the first officially announced incursion of the enemy into India since last March when a strong Japanese force almost overran Manipur state to the north.

A communique from Admiral Lord Mountbatten's headquarters said the Western African patrols were "in close contact with the enemy." The Sangu parallels the Kaladan river but flows in the opposite direction, northward.

Enemy forces in the Tiddim area were subjected to heevy aerial assaults.

R.A.F. Liberators made a 2,000-mile night round trip and bombed the new Thailand-Burma railroad, concentrating their attack from 100-foot altitude near Pitsanuloke, 240 miles north of Bangkok, Thailand.

Planes of the Eastern Air command during the past 48 hours were reported to have heavily assaulted bridges, oil dumps, rolling stock and supplies areas on all Burma fronts.

14th Air Force Lists 4,000 Of Foe Killed In Month

Chungking, Oct. 8 (AP)—Planes of the United States 14th Air Force destroyed more than 163,000 tons of Japanese shipping and killed nearly 4,000 enemy troops in attacks during September, a communique from Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Most of the enemy troops attacked by the planes were crack Japanese cavalry outfits, the announcement said.

The Chinese high command reported that the enemy's drive to outflank Kweilin momentarily was stalled and that Chinese troops had scored minor successes against the newest Japanese offensive in Fukien province.

Held 25 Miles From City

The high command said the enemy was being held at bay by Chinese forces about 12 miles west of Hingan and 25 miles north of Kweilin, where Chinese defenders were reported prepared to make the city China's Stalingrad.

In Fukien province, where a Japanese amphibious force landed ten days ago, the high command said Chinese troops had recaptured Diongloh, 15 miles southeast of Foochow, last Chinese-held port on the east coast.

[A Japanese broadcast from Tokyo yesterday claimed the invaders had captured the port.]

Suburbs Penetrated

The Japanese offensive in Fukien

province is aimed at preventing any possible American landing from the Pacific on the China coast. The high command said yesterday that the enemy had put ashore additional troops northwest of the capital, and that the force had penetrated into the northwestern suburbs of the city.

On the west river front below Kweilin the high command said that Japanese troops were within 12 miles of Pingnam.

General Stilwell's communique on activities during September of the 14th Air Force said that a total of 42 enemy planes were destroyed against a loss of three for the Americans.

In another communique the 14th Air Force reported that a long enemy cavalry column was attacked by fighters in a mountain pass southwest of Wuchow and that 150 Japanese soldiers were killed and 200 horses slain.

Allied Airmen In Pacific Blast 25 Enemy Ships

Hit Japanese Craft Around Ceram and Halmahera, Bomb Base on Mindanao

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Oct. 9 (Monday) (AP).—Allied planes have sunk or destroyed twenty-five Japanese coastal vessels and small craft in strikes around Ceram and Halmahera, headquarters announced today. Airfields also were bombed during the widespread raids on Friday.

Four Japanese float planes were destroyed at Zamboanga, on Mindanao Island in the southern Phillipines, by a heavy patrol plane. The assault was aimed at Wolfe Field and the seaplane base. Ramp installations, a hangar and a bomber were damaged.

Patrol planes scored hits on the important Pandansari oil refinery at Balikpapan, Borneo, Thursday night and Friday morning. This petroleum center has been raided in force twice recently.

Twenty-three of the coastal vessels were hit off Ceram by medium bombers, fighter-bombers and patrol planes. Thirty-four tons of explosives were dropped on airdromes and barracks.

Fighter-bombers hit the Kaoe airdrome on Halmahera with 1,000-pound bombs and set fire to a small freighter and a coastal vessel.

Allied bombers, continuing attacks on by-passed Japanese positions in the Bismarck Archipelago and Solomon Islands, dropped fifty tons of explosives on Rabaul defenses and enemy troop concentrations at Wide Bay, New Britain. Other planes attacked New Ireland and Bougainville targets with a total of forty-three tons of bombs. One Allied plane was lost.

NEW PELELIU GAINS COUNTED

Marines And Soldiers Advance Against Jap Remnants

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 8 (AP)—New land gains against Japanese remnants in the southern Palaus and American aerial attacks against the largest northern island of the chain were reported today in a navy communique.

On Peleliu, marines and soldiers advanced yesterday against Nipponese holding out on Umorbrogol Mountain (Bloody Nose Ridge) in mopping-up activities. Supporting marine Corsairs dropped 1,000-pound bombs on Japanese positions.

American planes attacked Babelthuap, in the northern part of the archipelago, destroying a fuel dump and two small buildings in two villages.

Raid On Koror Reported

A German radio correspondent in Tokyo reported, without confirmation, a raid on Koror Island, administrative center of the Palaus, by "approximately 1,000 American airplanes" over the week end.]

Widespread American air raids, reported in the communique, included unopposed strikes at Iwo Jima, 750 miles south of Tokyo, and Wake Island. There was no anti-aircraft fire.

Today's communique disclosed that military government was established on Peleliu September 16, the second day of the invasion. This jurisdiction was extended to nearby Kongauru and Ngesebus islets two weeks later, when the previously disclosed military regime was set up on Angaur.

12,233 Dead, 225 Captured

Mopping-up operations also continued on Angaur, six miles south of Peleliu, today's announcement said.

The Japanese toll since the invasion started: On Peleliu, 11,083 killed, 214 captured; on Angaur, 1,150 dead, 11 imprisoned.

Neutralization air raids on enemy-held positions in the Marshall Islands continued. The airfield and gun positions on Nauru Island were bombed Thursday. Anti-aircraft fire was "ineffective."

Flyer Near Death 3 Times Is Saved

Fifth Air Force Headquarters, New Guinea (AP—Delayed)—Three times Lieut. Robert D. Best, of Frankfort, Ind., faced death and three times he escaped—all within a matter of hours.

First he nearly burned to death in the pilot's seat of his Mitchell as flames flickered around him from burning hydraulic fluid touched off by a Japanese bullet.

Then he nearly drowned when his bomber broke in two after landing on the sea and, strapped to the seat, he plummeted to the bottom with the plane's forward section.

Toward Jap Island

Third, after fighting his way 40 feet to the surface and swimming to a life raft with his crew they paddled until nearly exhausted to keep from washing ashore on a Japanese-held island. They had drifted one third of the way when a Catalina rescued them.

The worst of all his experiences, however, came in the first few minutes the plane was afire.

"I thought I was dead for a while," he said, "for the pain from the burning was pretty bad. I kept my head out of the window because it was cooler. The thought passed through my mind that this would be a hell of a time for my wife to get a telegram that I had been killed."

Best's wife, Theana, of Sandersville, Ga., gave birth to a daughter two days later.

Army Mitchells Raid Paramushiro Shipping

Eleventh Air Force, Aleutians, Oct. 4 (AP-Delayed)—Army Mitchells battled through Japanese fighters off Paramushiro today to strike at enemy shipping.

It was the third straight day that army and navy Aleutian-based planes harassed the enemy's north flank in the battle of the Pacific.

Mitchels of the "new broom" squadron which has more than 15 enemy ships to its credit fought off 15 to 20 fighters during today's offensive sweep along the Kuriles. One small ship probably was sunk and one barge damaged.

Philippines And Palaus Raided, Axis Radios Say

San Francisco, Oct. 8 (AP)—Broadcasts by Axis radio stations today told of week-end American air blows at the southwestern Philippines.

The German Transocean agency reported "approximately 1,000" Yank planes hit Koror, in the Palaus, over the week end.

Koror is north of the nine Palau islands already held by American forces.

53-Plane Raid Reported

The Japanese agency Domei said 53 United States pla—12 bombers and 41 fighters—blasted Zamboanga, southwestern Philippines, Saturday. Domei said Damage was "slight" and claimed one Liberator aws shot down by ack-ack fire.

In another broadcast heard by Government monitors, Domei said Col. Naoyuki Kuzume was promoted posthumously to the rank of lieutenant general for "brilliant service" on Biak Island, off Geelvink Bay, Dutch New Guinea. Kuzume commanded the Japanese garrison on Biak, now held by American troops. Domei said he was killed in action.

GREATER OUTPUT ASKED BY JAPANESE PREMIER

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8—(AP) An appeal to the Japanese to increase war production to assure that the Empire's military machine may carry out successfully the opportunity it awaits "to crush the enemy forces with a single stroke," was made today by Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso.

Koiso's broadcast over the Japanese home radio was recorded by the Federal Communications commission.

The Premier called especially for increased production of aircraft. He said that if the replenishment of aircraft and other munitions is not sufficient, brilliant war results cannot be expected.

"Production on the home front has just barely reached a point where one can harbor hopes, and it certainly cannot be said that this is sufficient."

Havana's Inauguration Festival Begins Today

Havana, Oct. 8 (AP)—Popular, 62-year-old Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin will be inaugurated as President of Cuba Tuesday, succeeding Maj. Gen. Fulgencio Batista, and Havana plans a four-day celebration.

The public will celebrate from Monday through Thursday with parades, street dances and mass meetings.

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek Removed From Hospital

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Mme. Chiang Kai-shek has been removed from the Harkness Pavilion of Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center to the Bronx home of Dr. L. K. Kung, member of her official party, Dr. Kung said today.

The wife of China's Generalissimo was not immediately informed of the death of Wendell L. Willkie, whom she met in China, because her doctors feared the news might affect her adversely, Dr. Kung said. It was Willkie who introduced her to an overflow audience at a Madison Square Garden rally in her honor in 1943.

After undergoing treatment in Brazil for an illness, the nature of which has not been disclosed, Mme. Chiang entered the medical center September 11.

Her doctors, Robert F. Loeb and Dana Atchley, said yesterday that her "ultimate complete recovery can be assured," adding that a long convalescent period "is essential to attain this end."

BULLETIN (withheld)

WITH THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY, OCT 8-(AP)-AMERICANS ARE THREATENING AACHEN WITH ENCIRCLEMENT AFTER A SURPRISE NIGHT ATTACK, AND FIGHTING NOW IS RAGING ALONG A 30-MILE FRONT.

LATE TODAY THE INFANTRY WAS ABOUT 1,000 YARDS FROM THE MAIN ROAD RUNNING EAST FROM AACHEN TO COLOGNE, AND THIS LAST ESCAPE ROAD FOR GERMANS INSIDE VIRTUALLY-ISOLATED AACHEN WAS UNDER FIRE OF AMERICAN BIG GUNS.

OCT 10 1944

DOUGHBOYS WERE FIGHTING THEIR WAY UP "CRUCIFIX HILL,"--A BALD EMINENCE DOMINATING THE TERRAIN IN THE REGION OF HAAREN, A MILE AND A QUARTER NORTHEAST OF AACHEN.

INFANTRY ATTACKED FROM SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN TWO HOURS BEFORE DAWN IN ONE OF THE RARE NIGHT ASSAULTS OF THE AMERICANS DURING THE INVASION.

UNDER COVER OF DARKNESS INFANTRY ADVANCED ACROSS OPEN GROUND TO THE JUMP-OFF POINT WITHOUT CASUALTIES. THEY WERE ON THE INITIAL OBJECTIVE BEFORE THE GERMANS KNEW WHAT WAS UNDERWAY.

ANOTHER CLEAR DAY GAVE THE AIR FORCE A CHANCE TO WORK IN CLOSE SUPPORT OF THE TROOPS AND TO RANGE BEHIND THE LINES, HARASSING THE ENEMY'S SUPPLY ROUTES AND CONCENTRATION POINTS.

WHILE THE INFANTRY ATTACKED FROM THE SOUTHEAST OF THE CITY, A SMALL TASK FORCE WITH TANKS AND SELF-PROPELLED HEAVY GUNS PROBED INTO AACHEN'S DEFENSES, BLASTING SOME PILLBOXES CAMOUFLAGED AS HOUSES WITH DIRECT FIRE.

IT IS NOT YET KNOWN JUST WHAT STRENGTH THE GERMANS LEFT IN THE RUBBLE OF AACHEN TO DEFEND THIS BIGGEST CITY WHICH THE AMERICANS HAVE ENCOUNTERED SINCE THEY DROVE INTO GERMANY.

AS YET THE DOUGHBOYS HAVE MADE NO ATTEMPT TO ENTER AACHEN IN FORCE AND FOR THE PAST TWO WEEKS HAVE CONTENTED THEMSELVES WITH FEELING OUT THE DEFENSES WITH PATROLS.

DURING THIS TIME THEY WERE BUILDING UP FOR THE NEW DRIVE WITH WHICH THE FIRST ARMY HAS BROKEN THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE NORTH OF AACHEN, THE SECOND MAJOR BREACH IN THE DEFENSES.

THE GERMANS ESCAPE GAP FROM AACHEN IS NOW ONLY ABOUT FOUR MILES WIDE EXTENDING FROM CRUCIFIX HILL, NEAR HAAREN NORTH TO THE TOWN OF AFDEN WHICH THE DOUGHBOYS OVERRAN TODAY IN THEIR DRIVE FROM THE NORTH.

LATE IN THE DAY THE YANKS FOUGHT THEIR WAY UP THE HEIGHTS OF CRUCIFIX HILL--SO NAMED BECAUSE OF THE CROSS ON THE SUMMIT--AND DROVE THE GERMANS FROM THIS IMPORTANT GROUND WHICH IS ONLY A HALF A MILE FROM THE MAIN ROAD RUNNING OUT OF AACHEN TO ESCHWEILER.

THIS ADVANCE BROUGHT THE ROAD NOT ONLY UNDER ARTILLERY FIRE BUT ALSO UNDER HEAVY MACHINEGUN FIRE. THERE ARE SOME SECONDARY ROADS

OVER WHICH THE GERMANS MIGHT PULL BACK FROM AACHEN TOWARD THE RHINE BUT THE YANKS ARE CLOSING IN ON THESE ALSO.

NORTH OF AACHEN THE INFANTRY CLEANED OUT ALSDORF, CAPTURED AFDEN, ENTERED SCAUFENBERG AND WERE WITHIN LESS THAN A MILE OF BARDENBERG WHICH IS FIVE MILES FROM THE CENTER OF AACHEN.

SCRAPING TOGETHER RESERVES INTO A BATTLE GROUP, THE GERMANS THREW IN A THREE-PRONGED COUNTERATTACK TOWARD ALSDORF TODAY BEHIND ARTILLERY PREPARATION BUT IT WAS BEATEN OFF AND NONE OF THE POSITIONS WAS LOST.

THE ATTACKS CAME FROM THE SOUTH, EAST AND NORTHEAST, BUT ALL WERE CONTAINED.

OCT 10 1944

THE ATTACK HAD THE SUPPORT OF ABOUT 20 ASSAULT GUNS. ONE PRISONER SAID THE TROOPS WERE TOLD BEFORE THE ATTACK THAT THEY WOULD GET SUPPORT FROM EIGHT BATTALIONS OF HEAVY GUNS.

"THAT WAS JUST HOMERIC EXAGGERATION AND THE TYPE OF STUFF THE GERMAN OFFICERS FEED THE MEN BEFORE THEY FIGHT," SAID ONE AMERICAN OFFICER.

DISCUSSING THE ADVANCES FROM THE NORTH AND SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN AN OFFICER SAID "JUST A LITTLE MORE PROGRESS AND AACHEN WILL BE SURROUNDED."

WITH THE ESCAPE CORRIDOR ALREADY BEING RAKED BY FIRE THE SEALING OFF OF AACHEN IS NEARING THE FINAL STAGES. IF THE GARRISON INSIDE THE CITY OPPOSES THE DOUGHBOYS' ENTRANCE THEY WILL BE BLASTED FROM THE AIR AND BY BIG GUNS.

OCT 10 1944

A38

THE NIGHT ATTACK SEEMED TO HAVE GIVEN THE ENEMY A BAD SHAKING UP BECAUSE THE ADVANCE WAS CONTESTED MOSTLY WITH ONLY SMALL ARMS FIRE. INDICATIONS WERE THAT THE GERMANS WERE PULLING BACK THEIR ARTILLERY TO NEW POSITIONS.

TORN LOOSE FROM THE SIEGFRIED LINE DEFENSES, THE ENEMY IS MOST LIKELY TO FALL BACK ON THE ROER RIVER, FIVE TO TEN MILES EAST OF THE PRESENT FIGHTING, AS THE NEXT BEST DEFENSIVE POSITION.

WHILE HODGES' TROOPS CLOSED IN AROUND AACHEN, OTHERS CONTINUED TO DRIVE THROUGH THE HURTGEN FOREST IN THE DIRECTION OF DUREN AND WERE ABOUT 7 1/2 MILES FROM THE TOWN ON THE COLOGNE ROAD.

IN THEIR THRUST INTO AACHEN, A SMALL TASK FORCE BROUGHT BACK THE FIRST PRISONERS TO BE TAKEN FROM THE CITY, WHERE ALL INDICATIONS ARE THAT TROOPS UNDER SS (ELITE GUARD) OFFICERS ARE PREPARING TO TRY TO MAKE A SUICIDE STAND.

REPORTS CONTINUE TO SEEP THROUGH THE LINES OF GERMAN CIVILIANS HIDING IN HILLS, TUNNELS AND HOUSES IN DEFIANCE OF NAZI ORDERS TO EVACUATE BEFORE THE AMERICAN ADVANCE.

MANY OF THEM HID THEIR LIVESTOCK ALSO AND HAVE REFUSED TO BELIEVE PROPAGANDA THAT THE AMERICANS WILL COMMIT ATROCITIES.

"THIS INDICATES NAZI LOSS OF CONTROL OF THE CIVIL POPULATION AND IS AN ENCOURAGING SIGN," ONE OFFICER SAID.

TO ARRANGE THIS THEY SENT A MISSION TO PARIS COMPOSED OF THE TOWN'S STOUTEST FIGURES, MAJ. ELIE CHABRIER AND CAPT. HENRI MAYSLICH, MEMBERS OF THE 500 MAN " GROUP LAFAYETTE" IN THE FRENCH FORCES OF THE INTERIOR, WHICH WAGED GUERRILLA WAR AGAINST THE GERMANS THROUGHOUT THE OCCUPATION.

PATRAS, GREECE. OCT. 7 DELAYED-(AP)— GREEK CONTRACTORS WHO DID SUCH WORK FOR THE ITALIANS AND GERMANS AS IN THE LAST THREE YEARS AS THE CONSTRUCTION OF FORTIFICATIONS AND THE REDECORATION OF FASCIST HEADQUARTERS - WORK WHICH WAS PAID FOR OUT OF THE GREEK GOVERNMENT TREASURY- WILL BE BROUGHT TO TRIAL AND PUNISHED FOR IT, IT WAS REPORTED TODAY.

OCT 10 1944

AN OFFICIAL EXPLAINED THAT THIS WAS A FORM OF "CRAFT" SAYING THAT IN MANY CASES MERE THE ENEMY MERELY HAD THE WORK DONE

TO TAKE MONEY FROM THE TREASURY AND CAUSE F URTHER INFLATION OF THE CURRENCY -- AND ALSO PUT A BIT INTO THEIR OWN POCKETS.

ONE STUNT WAS TO TAKE WIRE FROM FARMS AND CONVERT IT INTO BARBED WIRE AND HAVE CONTRACTORS INSTALL IT AS A " FORTIFICATION". THE GERMANS T LD THE GREEKS THE BARBED WIRE DEFENSES WOULD STOP BRITISH AND AMERICAN TANKS.

PATRAI, GREECE, OCT 8-(AP)-IT TURNS OUT THAT IN GREECE THE GREEKS REALLY HAVE THREE WORD FOR IT--"I'M AN AMERICAN."

FOR IT SEEMS THAT JUST ABOUT EVERY OTHER PERSON YOU MEET TELLS YOU HE OR SHE IS AN AMERICAN CITIZEN CAUGHT HERE WHEN THE WAR BEGAN, OR ELSE HAD BEEN IN THE UNITED STATES AT SOME TIME.

MANY RAN RESTAURANTS IN THE STATES, AND IN SOME CASES, LIKE THOSE OF JIM PAPPAS OF 619 SEVENTH AVE., BIRMINGHAM, ALA., AND DMITRIOS ALEX, 160 LADE ST., CHICAGO, RELATIVES STILL ARE RUNNING THE BUSINESS UNTIL THEY RETURN.

OCT 10 1944

TO THESE GREEK-AMERICANS, THE GERMAN OCCUPATION WAS EVEN MORE TERRIBLE--IF THAT IS POSSIBLE--THAN THE STARVATION AND BRUTALITY SUFFERED BY THE NATIVES WHO HAD NEVER BEEN OUT OF GREECE.

"IT WAS HORRIBLE," SAID MRS.PHILLIP PHILEPAKAPOULOS WHO LIVED IN PROVIDENCE, R.I., BEFORE RETURNING TO GREECE IN 1938 TO MARRY. SHE HAS TWO SISTERS STILL IN THE UNITED STATES--MRS.DMITRI MARAGOS, 143 LOCKWOOD ST., PROVIDENCE, AND MRS.ALECK ANDROS, RICHMOND HILL, L.I.

OCT 10 1944

MRS.PHILEPAKAPOULOS DECLARED "WE WERE AFRAID EVEN TO RAISE OUR EYES WHEN WE WALKED DOWN THE STREET."

DMITRIOS ALEX HAD BEEN A WHOLESALE CROCKERY MERCHANT IN CHICAGO FOR 20 YEARS, WAS AN AMERICAN VETERAN OF THE FIRST WORLD WAR, AND COMMANDED A LOCAL CHAPTER OF THE AMERICAN LEGION. FOR MONTHS HE WORRIED OVER LEGION RECORDS WHICH HE KEPT HIDDEN.

PERSONAL RECORDS--A PASSPORT PARTICULARLY--ARE WORRYING JIM PAPPAS AND SPIROS HAIKALIS, WHO FOR NEARLY 20 ~~DECADES~~ years WAS A WAITER IN VARIOUS ROCHESTER, N.Y., HOTELS.

OCT 10 1944

PAPPAS' RESTAURANT IN BIRMINGHAM NOW IS BEING RUN BY HIS WIFE, ZENIA. HE HAS NO MONEY, AND IS RAGGED AND SHOELESS. WHEN THE GERMANS CAME HE WAS AFRAID TO KEEP HIS CITIZENSHIP PAPERS AND PASSPORT, SO HE BURIED THEM IN AN ISLAND OFF THE COAST, AND HOPES THEY ARE STILL THERE.

A23

HAIKALIS, WHO WAS A SHOOTING MEMBER OF THE GREEK PATRIOT FORCES, HAD TO BURN HIS PAPERS, FOR THE ITALIANS WERE SEEKING HIM EVEN BEFORE THE GERMANS CAME. NOW HE IS WONDERING WHAT TO DO.

LOUIS ELEOBLOLOS TRIED TO RETURN TO CLEVELAND IN 1939, BUT THERE WAS SOME MISUNDERSTANDING IN THE CONSUL'S OFFICE WHETHER HIS WIFE AND CHILD COULD ACCOMPANY HIM. BY THE TIME IT WAS STRAIGHTENED OUT THE WAR HAD BEGUN, AND HE COULDN'T GO. HIS RESTAURANT AT 228 WEST 12TH ST., AND A SHOE REPAIR AND HAT CLEANING SHOP AT 2067 EAST FOURTH ST., CLEVELAND, NOW ARE BEING OPERATED BY HIS BROTHERS

PETER, GEORGE, AND CASSAS.

"NO AMERICAN CAN REALIZE THE SUFFERING WE WENT THROUGH HERE," SAID ELEOBLOLOS WHO HAD BEEN IN THE UNITED STATES 30 YEARS. "IN 1941 PEOPLE DIED IN THE STREETS. THERE WAS NOTHING TO EAT."

THERE IS ALSO ELIAS MICHAPAULOS, CHIEF PILOT OF PATRAI HARBOR WHO WAS IN AMERICA SEVERAL TIMES AS A SAILOR. THE BRITISH SAY HE GAVE INVALUABLE INFORMATION CONCERNING THE HARBOR.

OCT 10 1944

THEN THERE IS GEORGE PIERAKOS, ASSISTANT HARBOR COMMANDER, WHO HAS A SISTER, MRS.PENELOPE LATCHONA, IN CHICAGO, AND HIS FATHER, THEODORE, LIVING AT 460 FRANKLIN ST., DE KALB, ILL. HE, TOO, SUPPLIED VALUABLE AID IN CONNECTION WITH ATRAI PORT.

ANDREOB LAMPROLOS, WHO LIVED IN CANTON, OHIO, FOR SEVERAL YEARS AFTER 1910 AND STILL REMEMBERS THE "NICE GIRLS THERE--ESPECIALLY CLARA LONG WHO WORKED WITH ME AT THE REPUBLIC ENAMELLING COMPANY" --SAID HIS BROTHER SPIROS NOW RUNS A FRUIT STORE IN DETROIT.

HE INTRODUCED HIS DARK-EYED NIECE, AND SAID "I'D LIKE TO HAVE HER MARRY AN AMERICAN AND GO TO THE UNITED STATES."

RED ARMY OFFICERS IN DISPATCHES FROM THE FLUID BATTLE APPROACHING WITHIN 80 TO 90 MILES OF BUDAPEST ON A SECTOR 70 MILES IN WIDTH CLAIMED THAT HUNGARIAN MORALE WAS SHAKEN AND THE ENEMY TEMPORARILY WA HELPLESS TO USE STRATEGIC RESERVES.

MASSES OF TANKS, CAVALRY AND MOTORIZED INFANTRY UNDER STRONG AIR COVER SURGED CLOSE TO THE TISZA, THE ONLY MAJOR NATURAL BARRIER ON TH HUNGARIAN LINE BETWEEN THE RUSSIANS AND BUDAPEST.

THE RED ARMY VICTORIES NOT ONLY CREATED A REAL MENACE TO THE MAGYAR CAPITAL BUT THREW A SHADOW OF FUTURE CATASTROPHE ON GERMAN AN HUNGARIAN FORCES NOW DEEP IN NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA AND THE CARPATHO-UKRAINE.

PUNCHING NORTH AS WELL AS WEST THE RUSSIANS SEEMED INTENT ON ARRIVING ACROSS THE ROAD AND RAIL ROUTES IN THE REAR OF THESE ENEMY GROUPS. THEY WERE BARELY 10 MILES FROM THE MAIN BUDAPEST-CLUJ RAILWAY WHOSE LOSS WOULD DECISIVELY CRIPPLE RESISTANCE IN NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA. THEY WERE 50 MILES OR LESS FROM THE CHIEF RAIL COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN THE CAPITAL AND THE CARPATHO-UKRAINE.

FURTHER GAINS WOULD BE A CERTAIN GUARANTEE OF AN EARLY LINKUP INSIDE HUNGARY OF THE FORCES OF MARSHALL RODION Y.MALINOVSKY AND COL.GEN.IVAN PETROV. PETROV'S FOURTH UKRAINIAN ARMY NOW HAS WON THE TOPMOST RIDGE OF THE CARPATHIANS.

(WX) PELELIU, PALAU ISLANDS (DELAYED)--THE JAPANESE SET UP AN AMBUSH, SPRANG IT TWICE--AND LEARNED A LESSON FROM THE FEW MARINES WHO SURVIVED. THE STORY ENDED WITH 60 JAPS DEAD.

A MACHINE GUN SECTION WAS ADVANCING IN HEAVY UNDERGROWTH ALONG THE EDGE OF THE PELELIU AIRPORT WHEN THE FIRST SQUAD RAN INTO THE TRAP. THERE WAS NO REASON TO SUSPECT DANGER. A MARINE RIFLE SQUAD HAD JUST PASSED THAT WAY, APPARENTLY BEING PERMITTED TO GO THROUGH WHILE THE JAPS WAITED FOR BIGGER GAME. THE ENEMY, MOSTLY OFFICERS, OPENED UP ON THE MACHINE GUNNERS, KILLING OR WOUNDING ALL FIVE WITH GRENADES. THE AMERICANS NEVER HAD A CHANCE.

THE FOURTH SQUAD, HOWEVER, MOVED QUICKLY FORWARD KNOCKING DOWN THE ENEMY WITH RIFLES AND GRENADES. THEY DIDN'T HAVE TIME, HOWEVER, TO MOP UP, AS THE INFANTRY WAS ADVANCING ACROSS THE AIRPORT AND THE FLANK WAS FALLING BEHIND.

OCT 10 1944

THEN CAME THE THIRD SQUAD, LOADED WITH GEAR AND AMMUNITION.

"SOME OF THE JAP OFFICERS HAD PLAYED 'POSSUM," SAID CORPORAL PAUL A. DOWNS, 23, OF 3335 GOODMAN STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA., "AND GAVE US THE WORKS ON ONE SIDE, WHILE SOMETHING LIKE 50 JAPS JUMPED US FROM THE OTHER. LOADED DOWN WITH GEAR AS WE WERE, MANY OF US COULDN'T EVEN FIRE A SHOT."

SERGEANT LEN B. THOMAS, 28, OF BROADWAY, S.C., HOWEVER, DID THE JOB OF SEVERAL MEN. WHEN HIS SQUAD PUSHED ON, HE TURNED BACK TO CHECK THE REMAINDER OF HIS MEN. HE WAS JUST BEHIND THE JAP OFFICERS WHEN THEY QUIT PLAYING 'POSSUM. HE IS CREDITED WITH WIPING OUT THAT GROUP SINGLE-HANDED.

IN THE MIDDLE OF THAT DEADLY MELEE WAS A MARINE PRIVATE FIRST CLASS, JACK JEAN (FRENCHY) FRENCH OF 608 EAST CHENEY STREET, SULLIVAN, IND., WHO WAS RUNNING WILD. HE EMPTIED ONE RIFLE, PICKED UP A CARBINE, EMPTIED THAT, THEN FINDING NO MORE WEAPONS AVAILABLE, HE TURNED TO SAVING HIS GEAR-LADEN BUDDIES.

"HE CERTAINLY PULLED OUT SIX WOUNDED AMMUNITION CARRIERS," DECLARED SERGEANT THOMAS.

THEN THE JAPANESE WITHDREW INTO THE BRUSH AGAIN, AND THE FEW MARINES STILL ON THEIR FEET WERE ORDERED FORWARD. A RUNNER WAS BS...

SENT BACK FOR CORPSMEN TO CARE FOR THE WOUNDED.

THE JAPANESE PROMPTLY CAME OUT OF CONCEALMENT, DRAGGED THE WOUNDED MARINES TO THE EDGE OF THE UNDERGROWTH AND SET UP ANOTHER TRAP AROUND THEM.

OCT 10 1944

TWO THINGS WERE HAPPENING AT THE SAME TIME. THE SECOND AND REAR SQUAD OF THE MACHINE GUN SECTION WAS JUST MOVING INTO THE AREA. AND DOWN THE LINE, PRIVATE FIRST CLASS FRENCH WAS APPEALING TO A RIFLE SQUAD LEADER, SERGEANT A.E. CRAWFORD, 25, OF 145 CROSBY STREET, SAN ANTONIO, TEX.

"THERE'S WOUNDED BACK THERE. LET'S GO GET 'EM OUT. HEAR THEM YELLING FOR HELP?" FRENCH TOLD THE SERGEANT.

OCT 10 1944

"I DIDN'T WANT TO GO," SAID THE BIG TEXAN, "BUT THE FIRST THING I KNEW, THERE I WAS ON MY WAY BACK WITH THAT KID. I HAD MY TOMMY GUN AND ON THE WAY PICKED UP A BROWNING AUTOMATIC RIFLE. WE GOT TO THE EDGE OF THE CLEARING AS THE LAST MACHINE GUN SQUAD CAME THROUGH AND TURNED IN THE DIRECTION OF THE WOUNDED MEN. THAT WAS WHEN THE JAPS--THERE MUST HAVE BEEN A HUNDRED--JUMPED THEM."

"IT WAS PRETTY TOUGH ON THE MACHINE GUNNERS WHO HAD LITTLE CHANCE TO DEFEND THEMSELVES BEFORE THEY WERE CUT DOWN BY GRENADES AND MACHINE GUN FIRE."

OCT 10 1944

THE TEXAN EMPTIED HIS BAR. "UNDERSTAND I GOT 10 JAPS WITH IT," HE SAID. "BUT YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN THAT BOY FRENCH. HE WAS IN THE MIDDLE OF THE MESS, TRYING TO DRAG OUT WOUNDED MEN. WHEN A JAP SHOT AND FINISHED THE CHAP HE WAS DRAGGING, FRENCHY RACED BACK AND STARTED BRINGING OUT ANOTHER WOUNDED MAN."

OCT 10 1944

SERGEANT CRAWFORD HAD THROWN AWAY HIS EMPTY BAR BY THIS TIME. HE DIDN'T RECALL FIRING HIS TOMMY GUN BUT FOUND LATER HE HAD EXPENDED MORE THAN 250 ROUNDS OF AMMUNITION. SOME OF THE OTHER MARINES HAD RALLIED BY NOW AND WERE GETTING IN THEIR LICKS. THAT WAS ENOUGH FOR THE JAPS. THEY WITHDREW, LEEVING 60 DEAD ON THE FIELD.

MEXICO CITY, OCT.8-(AP)-FORMER KING CAROL AND MADAME ELENA LUPESCU BADE FAREWELL TO THEIR FRIENDS HERE TONIGHT. EARLY TOMORROW THEY START FOR BRAZIL WITH THE UNDOUBTED HOPE OF RETURNING TO ROMANIA BEFORE VERY LONG.

CAROL HAS SAID NOTHING OF HIS FUTURE. HE GAVE ME HIS WORD THAT "I HAVE NO PLANS BEYOND BRAZIL." HE SAID HE DID NOT KNOW WHAT MAY HAPPEN.

ALTHOUGH HE WILL NOT PUT IT INTO WORDS, IT IS OBVIOUS THAT HE HOPES HE IS ON HIS WAY BACK TO HIS OWN COUNTRY. FROM BRAZIL HIS NEXT VOYAGE NATURALLY WOULD BE TO PORTUGAL, WHERE HE WAS WELCOMED BY PREMIER SALAZAR WHEN HE WAS OBLIGED TO FLEE FROM ROMANIA AND THEN FROM SPAIN, WHERE HE WAS ALMOST A PRISONER AND GERMAN AGENTS WERE WATCHING HIM.

CAROL AND MADAME LUPESCU RECEIVED IN A LARGE SALON OF MEXICO CITY'S NEWEST RESTAURANT, "AMBASSADEURS." THERE WERE ABOUT 300 GUESTS.

GENERAL STILWELL SAID IN THE TRANSCRIPTION, MADE AT HIS HEADQUARTERS AND FLOWN TO THE UNITED STATES, THAT HE WAS MAKING HIS ADDRESS TO ACQUAINT THE PUBLIC WITH THE IMPORTANCE OF THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER OF WAR.

THE JUNCTION OF THE NEW AND OLD ROADS, HE SAID, WILL RESULT IN A GOOD SUPPLY ROUTE TO CHINA.

WHILE ALLIED TROOPS IN THE PACIFIC ARE MAKING GOOD PROGRESS ON THEIR WAY TO THE HEART OF THE JAPANESE EMPIRE, HE CONTINUED, "THE ONLY OTHER POSSIBLE WAY TO GET AT JAPAN IS THROUGH CHINA. AS YOU KNOW, CHINA IS OUR ALLY. SHE HAS BEEN FIGHTING THE JAPS SINCE 1937, SHE WAS LOST ALL HER PORTS, AND SHE HAS NO WAY OF GETTING THE MUNITIONS AND OTHER HELP SHE SO SORELY NEEDS.

"OPENING A PORT ON THE COAST STILL IS IN THE FUTURE. IN THE MEANTIME, THE ONLY WAY TO HELP IS TO REOPEN THE BURMA ROAD AND GO IN THROUGH THE BACK DOOR."

HE RELATED HOW, SINCE CHRISTMAS EVE LAST YEAR, THE ALLIED FORCES HAD STAGED A COMEBACK IN NORTHERN BURMA, HAD ANNIHILATED SUPERIOR JAPANESE FORCES, "AND THE LEDO ROAD, THE INCREDIBLE FEAT OF ARMY ENGINEERING, HAS BEEN BUILT IN THE WAKE OF THE FIGHTING," PUTTING THE ENEMY IN "A VERY BAD HOLE" IN THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER.

Yanks Battle in Outskirts of Aachen, Cut Escape Route to Mile and a Half; Several Nazi Counterattacks Repulsed

OCT 11 1944

OCT 11 1944

AMERICANS DRIVE TO APPROACHES OF DUREN AND JULICH

U. S. Forces Command All Roads Leading from Beleaguered Fortress.

ADVANCE AT METZ

Doughboys Smash Into Underground Defenses of Fort Driant.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Tuesday, Oct. 10—(AP) Aachen shook today under assault by American forces who cut all main roads, narrowed the escape route to a shell-raked mile and a half, and fought into the southern outskirts of that German frontier industrial city of 165,000 population, now reduced to ruins and a slim garrison of 1,500.

The last main road out of the city was severed yesterday when U. S. First army troops stormed the hamlet of Haaren, while Doughboys driving down from the north fought to Wurselen, only a mile and a half to the north and commanding all small roads still left to the Germans.

Nazi Attacks Repulsed

Supreme headquarters declared that every counterattack which the Germans had thrown in to relieve the city had been repulsed (Berlin radio said the latest counterattacks were launched nine miles north of Aachen during the afternoon.)

(The German propaganda machine began preparing the invaded nation for the shock of hearing that the old seat of Charlemagne's government had fallen.)

(A Berlin military commentator declared that a general assault "on the inner walls of fortress Europe" had begun and the Allies, determined on ending the war before Winter, were striking with equal fury" from the east, west and south.")

OCT 11 1944

The great drive of the U. S. First army rolled on toward the heart of Adolf Hitler's war potential in the Ruhr and Rhineland, and spirited fighting was reported at the approaches to Duren and Julich.

Duren is east of Aachen and 20 miles from Cologne, and the road junction of Julich, 10 miles northwest of Duren, is 23 miles from Cologne. The Americans last were reported little more than seven miles from Julich and six from Duren.

A field dispatch said the Doughboys driving into Aachen were attacking the garrison with bazookas, machineguns and rifles.

The main assault on the city, which Hitler has ordered defended to the last, had yet to begin, however, and the fact that the First army was forced to smash back three fierce counterattacks today before resuming the advance showed that the battle was far from over.

Yanks Gain at Metz

A similar fate appeared shaping up for the fortress of Metz in northern France. There the U. S. Third army cut 300 yards deeper into the underground defenses of Fort Driant, four miles west, while its offense on a 20-mile front to the south was swinging slowly northward toward an encirclement.

On the southern end of the 460-mile front, the vengeful French of the U. S. Seventh army were slugging down the last eight miles to Belfort on the road to the southern Rhineland and the Black Forest of Bavaria.

The Canadian First army along the sea opened a drive to clear some 20,000 Germans from the Schelde river blocking use of the Belgian port of Antwerp, landing forces in a bold amphibious operation behind enemy troops fighting on the south bank, and all but cutting the last escape road to the east.

The grinding drive of the U. S. First army was threatening a break-through on a 20-mile front before Cologne, on the west bank of the Rhine, and Dusseldorf, at the gateway to the Ruhr valley. The two cities were from 26 to 30 miles beyond Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' advanced elements.

Before the road from Aachen, ancient coronation city of Teutonic kings, northeast to Cologne finally was slashed the Germans dealt three counterblows at commanding heights north of the village of Verlautenheide, three miles northeast of Aachen.

The first came before dawn, but the biggest broke just before noon and wilted in an artillery barrage that left German dead strewn on the battlefield. The Germans were emboldened by the bad weather which kept the fighterbombers away, but they sadly miscalculat American artillery strength.

Then the Doughboys swung over to the attack, and broke across the main highway, leaving only a few secondary roads leading north from Aachen open to any German wanting to brave that dangerous alley.

Seize German Village

Their comrades on the north seized the village of Bardenberg and fought a mile south to the edge of the village of Wurselen, through which these secondary roads thread Wurselen, is three miles north of Aachen.

American forces pressing on east from their original Siegfried Line breakthrough north of Aachen at Oidtweiler, were within 7 1-2 miles of Julich, a communications center where one good all-weather road runs 26 miles northeast to Dusseldorf and another heads 23 miles due east to Cologne.

Meanwhile, patrols and small tank forces nudged into Aachen itself, and infantry moved into the southern outskirts, digging out the stand-and-die SS (Elite guard) garrison from the artillery-wrecked houses with bazookas, machineguns, grenades and rifles.

Aachen had lost its military value for Germany, but it apparently was being held for political reasons, since Hitler has declared German soil inviolate. One of its superhighways begins here.

Battle in Hurtgen Forest

Southeast of Aachen, First army forces fighting through the gloomy Hurtgen forest were within two miles of the town of that name, and were engaged in heavy fighting within six miles of Duren, 20 miles from Cologne.

OCT 11 1944

More than 110 miles to the south, the 3d Army was making equally menacing moves toward the Saar Basin, with its rich store of coal and its far-flung industry.

Lieutenant General George S. Patton's troops, armed with acetylene torches, cut through five steel doors in their advance through the tunnels of Fort Driant, key to Metz.

His forces on the south, who seized 1,700 prisoners in the opening of their assault on Sunday, in an advance of about two miles captured Letricourt, sixteen miles south of Metz. Chenicourt, eighteen miles southeast of Metz, also fell. Altogether, ten towns had been taken in the advance.

The concentration of Allied power on the hard centers of resistance at Aachen and Metz was viewed unofficially as the possible first step in applying a giant pincers on the heart of the Reich along a 100-mile front.

The disposition of the Allied armies, with the British second in Holland firmly on the north flank of the U. S. First, and the Seventh on the south flank of the Third, favored such a plan.

The Seventh, besides threatening Belfort frontally by beating past Champagney, 8 miles to the northwest, and shelling the fortress city's outer defenses, was edging closer to the Vosges mountain passes to the north.

The French fought up to within a mile west of the copper mining town of Le Thillot, six miles from Bussang pass, and captured Ramonchamp, one mile north of the town.

Threat in Schlucht Pass

Schlucht pass, 12 miles north of Bussang pass, was threatened by Seventh army forces which drove off a German attack east of Vagney, 13 miles from the strategic passageway to the Rhine.

The Canadians were embarked upon one of the most vital mop-up operations of the European campaign, for opening of the docks of Antwerp to Allied shipping will greatly shorten supply lines for the climactic battles.

The objective of their daring amphibious operation, carried out under the muzzle of German guns on the islands across the Schelde estuary to the north, was to ease the pressure on their comrades pinned to a thin bridgehead across the Leopold canal west of Antwerp.

They took off in assault boats from near Terneuzen and landed east of the village of Hoofdplaat, 33 miles west of Antwerp. They were in some strength and Supreme headquarters described the maneuver as successful.

They were in the rear of 5,000 Germans, who have been attacking the Canadian positions along the Leopold canal, and were threatening to cut off their escape to the Schelde islands in the estuary.

The estimated 11,000 to 15,000 Germans on these islands, the Walcheren and Zuid Beveland, were in some straits themselves.

6 OCT 11 1944

The main dike on Walcheren was breached again yesterday by British bombers west of Vlissingen (Flushing) and the only enemy defenses peeping above the flood around that port were a few gun positions atop the dike.

Their position was made more untenable by a Canadian advance north of Antwerp close to the town of Korteven, which straddles the only road on a causeway out of the islands. Korteven is 15 miles north of Antwerp.

There was no news from the British Second Army front beyond the usual patrol activity. The British were still only a few thousand yards from Tilburg. Some Germans continued to filter across the Neder Rijn Rhine west of Arnhem, but their operations were confined, headquarters said.

Yanks Begin House-to-house Fighting—Patton's Offensive Gains Two Miles—Canadians in Leap-frog Landing.

LONG

London, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The American First Army

clamped a death grip on Aachen today in a twin drive which left an escape corridor only a mile and a half wide northeast of that ancient coronation place of Teutonic kings.

Despite desperate German counter-attacks, three of them up Crucifix Hill overlooking the city from the northeast, Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's men cut the last major road out of Aachen, the Adolf Hitler Highway running to Julich and Cologne, and severed most of the secondary roads.

Driving south from the Ubach breakthrough zone in the Ziegfried Line, the Americans overran Bardenburg and reached the edge of Wurselen, through which runs the only secondary road remaining for an estimated Aachen garrison of 1,500 SS Guards.

Already American clean-up squads were moving through the outskirts of Aachen, mopping up Germans who clung to their positions house by house in obedience to orders to stand and die.

On the southern fronts, the Seventh Army had moved up to within eight miles of Belfort in the mountain gap fringing Switzerland and were shelling Belfort's outskirts. Lieut.-Gen. Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's shock troops of the Third Army cut their way through 300 yards of underground tunnel in Fort Driant at Metz, burning down five steel bulkheads in the advance.

The Third Army has scored a further two-mile advance in its offensive between Metz and Nancy, entering Letricourt, sixteen miles southeast of Metz.

Canadians in Bold Landing.

To the north of the 460-mile Allied front the Canadian Army drove an amphibious spearhead two miles across the fog-wreathed waters of a Schelde River inlet and landed at the rear of a die-hard garrison of 5,000 men holding a pocket south of the estuary.

The landing, just east of the village of Hoofdplaat, thirty-three miles west of Antwerp, was described at Supreme Headquarters as in "some strength" and was declared to have been carried out successfully.

It was hoped the operation would be of aid to Canadians holding a bridgehead across the Leopold Canal, ten to fifteen miles to the southeast. This bridgehead had been subject to heavy pressure for three days since the waterway was crossed in the wake of a flamethrower attack. The bridgehead was further reduced today, however, and was described as split and driven back to the dikes of the canal itself.

Nazis Are Washed Out.

Across the river German defenses on Walcheren and Zuid Beveland Islands, guarding the seaward approaches to Antwerp, were washed out by Allied bombings which had cut the seawall west of Vlissingen (Flushing) and at the western tip of the islands.

Canadian troops virtually isolated a garrison of 11,000 to 15,000 on the two islands by driving north of Antwerp to the edge of Korteven at the neck of the causeway to the two islands, and were nearing Bergen Op Zoom, which the Germans were attempting to establish as a strongpoint. This advance and the flooding of organized defenses on the islands, robbed the Germans below the Schelde of prospects of escape.

Gen. Hodges's multiplied blows, which threatened a twenty-mile wide breakthrough toward Cologne and Dusseldorf, coincided with the declaration of a Trans-ocean military commentator broadcasting from Berlin that a general assault against the "inner walls of Fortress Europe" had begun with the Allied objective of winning the war before "the beginning of winter."

Across Main Highway

Hodges was bringing up fresh forces, the Germans said, and the battle in the Aachen area from Geilenkirchen to Stolberg was "raging with increasing ferocity."

Hodges' doughboys, fighting six miles inside Germany north of Aachen, battered their way across the main Aachen-Gladbach road at two places and to within seven and a half miles of Julich. At Julich the main road from Aachen forks to Cologne, 23 miles to the east, and to Dusseldorf, 26 miles to the northeast.

First Army units which advanced from southeast of Aachen were within a few hundred yards of crossing the main Aachen-Cologne highway. This last escape road in a narrow four-mile corridor was under fire.

Nine Towns Taken

The Third Army, which began a new attack on a 20-mile front yesterday and struck forward as far as seven miles between Metz and Nancy, had captured nine towns in its initial blow. Chenicourt, a mile north of Ajoncourt and 13 miles southeast of Metz, was the latest town captured. Fossieux and Sivry were reported captured by Reuter.

To the south, French troops of Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army were within a mile of the outskirts of Le Thillot, six miles from Bussang Pass through the heart of the Vosges. They beat their way beyond Champagney, only eight miles from the town of Belfort, and captured Ramonchamp, a mile north of Le Thillot.

Weather over the front was thickening again after a week-end clear spell had permitted great air attacks.

Penetrate To Oidtweiler

The deepest penetration of German soil north of Aachen was at Oidtweiler, within seven and a half miles of the Julich junction.

At Oidtweiler and southeast of Orden, three miles to the south, the Americans were across the concrete highway north from Aachen to Gladbach.

Cutting up to the northeast from south of Aachen the new wedge of the offensive begun at dawn Sunday had driven three miles or more against surprised Germans.

The original Aachen breakthrough into the gun-bristling fir forest of Hurtgen, southeast of Aachen flamed into action anew as the doughboys all but burst into the clear beyond the woods, within six miles of Duren and two miles from the town of Hurtgen itself.

There was no news from a supporting drive through the Monschau frontier forest 13 miles farther south.

Size Of Nashville

Aachen, reputed to be the birthplace of the Emperor Charlemagne, was the 37th city of pre-war Germany and is about the size of Nashville, Tenn., or Hartford, Conn.

The towns of Clemery, Lixieres, Serrieres, Jeandelaincourt, Moivrons, Fessieux, Ajoncourt and Arraye et Han, were quickly taken by Third Army units as they scored a six-mile advance in their new offensive.

GEN. EDDY HEADS PATTON'S THRUST

Nancy, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Manton S. Eddy of Chicago, Ill., 52-year-old strategist who outmaneuvered German Field Marshal von Rundstedt on the Moselle River, is leading the new American assault between Nancy and Metz as commander of the American Twelfth Army Corps, it was disclosed yesterday.

Gen. Eddy directed critical phases of the Moselle attack in the midst of enemy artillery fire. He previously had distinguished himself with the Ninth Division in North Africa, Sicily and on the Cherbourg Peninsula.

In recognition of his work with the Ninth Division, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower advanced him to command of the Twelfth Army Corps, which spearheaded the Third Army's breakout and advance through Brittany.

In June, 1944, Gen. Eddy led his troops repeatedly under machine-gun and artillery fire in the advance on Cherbourg. During one German counter-attack, he rushed to the front in a jeep, gathering truck drivers, cooks and clerks on the way to surprise the enemy with a flank assault, which killed 100 Nazis.

Gen. Eddy outmaneuvered Von Rundstedt by brilliant strategy after first attempts to bridge the Moselle River had failed. He sent one force in a surprise attack across six tributaries of the Moselle south of Nancy. When the Germans wheeled to meet this assault, he threw another force across the river north of Nancy and within a few hours the Nazi Moselle River line was shattered.

Yanks Closing Pincer Around Aachen

By Don Whitehead

With United States First Army, Oct. 9 (AP)—The jaws of Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' pincers closing on Aachen cut the main road to Julich and Cologne today and were within a mile and a half of the complete encirclement of Aachen itself.

This highway is the main escape road left to an estimated 1,500 enemy troops entrenched in the rubble of industrial Aachen.

Good Escape Roads Scarce

The Germans have only a few secondary roads left over which to pull out troops and equipment.

The thrust from the north toward Aachen pushed south of Alsdorf, overran Bardenburg and reached the edge of Wurselen, only three miles north of Aachen. This was the opper jaw of the pincer.

(A Reuter dispatch said the First Army captured Shaefenburg this afternoon. The town is located one mile beyond Alsdorf, northwest of Aachen.)

The lower jaw, which hooks around from the southeast is at Crucifix Hill, near Haaren. The distance between Haaren and Wurselen is only a mile and a half, the width of the escape corridor.

Counterattacks Failed

The Germans put in counter-attacks today in a desperate bid to hold open the jaws. One of these was toward Alsdorf, with ten tanks, a small infantry force and a heavy concentration of artillery. But it was beaten back.

A German shell fell in a column of Nazi prisoners and 40 of them were killed or wounded.

South of Aachen the American troops fought their way through Hurtgen Forest, yard by yard, against the strongly entrenched enemy.

Three Counterattacks Fail

Three times the Germans counterattacked up Crucifix Hill in a desperate effort to break the pincers, but each time the doughboys hurled them back.

The Germans' losses were heavy.

Along the southern outskirts of Aachen itself, American troops worked methodically from house-to-house, digging out defenders who were obeying Hitler's orders to stand and fight to the death.

No Blows At City Itself

However, there has been no main assault on the city. The main thrusts are from the north and toward the north on the east side of the city, with less than four miles separating the two spearheads threatening to surround the city.

(The German high command asserted today that "tough resistance and heavy counterattacks" had halted American tank forces attempting to encircle Aachen. The broadcast communique also reported heavy fighting northeast of Nancy.)

Stubbornness of the enemy defense is plainly indicative of the military and political importance the Germans attach to Aachen, an important road center and beginning of the great Adolf Hitler Highway, a multi-lane speedway to Cologne.

Considered Valuable Politically

There would be political implications, too, in the American capture of Aachen. It would be the first large city inside Germany to fall to the Allies, and its capture might have repercussions throughout Germany, for Hitler promised that the Allies would not set foot on German soil.

In the house-to-house fighting, an officer said, "It's a job for bazookas, machine guns, grenades and rifles. We'll just have to winkle them out one by one."

The city, reduced to rubble, no longer is of any value to an army except for the highway which runs through it.

Artillery Gives Support

The heaviest German counter-attack came just before noon when a battalion of infantry supported by artillery moved against the doughboys.

A call came to the command post from Lieut. Col. John Williamson, of Brooklyn, for artillery support.

"There is an attack coming in," he reported to Major Kenneth Lord, whose father is Brig. Gen. Kenneth Lord, chief of staff of the Eastern Defense Command at Governors Island, N. Y.

"Then why don't we pulverize that whole area?" said Lord, and we asked Major Wilson McNamara of Northfield, Vt., to get his guns going.

Explosive Response Quick

In not more than two minutes the artillery began to roar.

The first Nazi counterthrust was at dawn and it was driven back after the Yanks took 100 prisoners and killed many others. The attacking unit was a hodge-podge of troops. One German marine in a gold-braided uniform was among the prisoners.

He said he had been taken from his ship and given one day's training as an infantryman before being rushed into line without a chance even to change his uniform.

Marshall At 7th Army Quarters

With United States Seventh Army in France, Oct. 9 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, arrived at Seventh Army headquarters today by plane from Holland, where he conferred with Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, head of British ground forces in Europe.

Marshall and James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director, arrived in Paris last Friday from Washington. The chief of staff was accompanied to Holland by Lieut. Gen. Omer Bradley, commander of American ground forces.

Talking with war correspondents here, Marshall said the full disposition of American air strength throughout the world had been completed and allocation of ground forces was being carried out rapidly. He said there was adequate replacements for all ground force operations.

Discussing action in the Pacific, he told the correspondents:

"Our greatest trouble in the Pacific is that we are a long way ahead of our schedule. You know the success our navy had in recent operations in the Philippines. It was tremendously successful against the Japanese, who were subpar in efficiency and not formidable in numbers."

Canadians Land Behind Pocket In Holland

With Canadian Forces in Holland, Oct. 9 (AP)—Canadian infantry opened an assault before dawn today on the "back door" to the enemy's Schelde estuary pocket.

An amphibious operation carried them across some two miles of Schelde water from the vicinity of Terneuzen and put them ashore east of the small village of Hoofdplaat.

Some Gunfire Encountered

The opening phases of the operation were completely successful. The first forces to touch shore at 2 A. M. encountered some mortar and scattered artillery fire, but by daylight one of the two initial assault groups already had Bren carriers and anti-tank guns ashore and another unit was on its way.

It was too early, however, for the new attack to ease the pressure on the Canadians holding the Leopold Canal bridgehead — holding it so thinly now in one sector in the face of bitter German attacks that they were literally dug in on the north bank of the canal itself.

The first forces came out of the mouth of the Gent-Terneuzen Canal in amphibious assault craft about midnight and, although well within range of German gun emplacements on Walcheren, south of Beveland, they drew no fire from that quarter.

By 8 A. M. Canadian medium and heavy field guns from positions in fields below Terneuzen already were blasting away at objectives singled out by the landing forces. Vehicles already were returning with the first prisoners. Others were worming down the bank of a dike, carrying additional troops and guns to the far shore.

Noise Spoils Surprise

Because the vehicles made considerable noise in coming up the canal and then moving to marshaling areas, the operation could not be rated a complete surprise.

But as yet there has been no heavy resistance from the enemy, whose principal strength in the pocket has been directed against the hard-pressed holders of the Leopoland Canal crossing.

The main dike on Walcheren Island across the Schelde was breached again yesterday by Allied bombings, this time west of Flushing, and the enemy's extensive defenses around that historic Dutch port had been reduced to a series of isolated gun positions on top of dikes and causeways by flooding.

GI FINDS UNCLE A WAR CAPTIVE

Reunion Comes When Yank Interviews Prisoners

With the Seventh Army in France, Oct. 9 (AP)—Private Louis Gatterer, of St. Louis, a signalman with the 36th Infantry Division, was laying a wire at the front when a soldier came up to him and said:

"We have a bunch of prisoners here. You speak German, don't you?"

"I was born in Berlin," Gatterer said, walking over to where several doughboys with tommy guns were guarding a group of German medical corpsmen.

Gatterer began talking to them in German. A German captain stepped forward to do the talking for his men. He looked fixedly at Gatterer who demanded to know what the German was staring at.

Suddenly the German leaped past the muzzles of the tommy guns and threw his arms around Gatterer's neck.

"I'm your uncle, Louis, don't you remember me?" he said.

Gatterer waved aside his buddies who were on the German with tommy guns pointed at his breast.

"I had a hard time explaining to them that it was okay," Gatterer said. "Though I was born in Berlin I never saw my uncle until I went back there for a visit eight years ago. Asked how my cousins were. He said they were fine."

The last Gatterer saw of his uncle he and the rest of the prisoners were being herded into the prisoners-of-war cage.

Rundstedt Makes Appeal

New York, Oct. 9 (AP) — Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, commander in chief of German forces on the Western Front, has appealed to his Seigfried Line troops to "defend our holy German soil to the last with all your strength," a Nazi broadcast to German army newspapers said today.

THE MILEAGE TO BERLIN

1. Western Front—302 miles (from north of Venlo).
2. Russian Front—310 miles (from Warsaw).
3. Italian Front—564 miles (from Loiano).

Gen. Urquhart Is Knighted

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Major General R. E. Urquhart, who commanded the "lost" British Air-Borne Division at Arnhem, was knighted today as a Commander of the Bath.

Share-Warmth Plan In Paris

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP)—The United States Army has instituted a "share-the-warmth" plan among its personnel in shivering Paris so that official "rich folk" in hotels like the Crillon and Ritz will have to take cold baths along with everybody else—or not take any.

While some hotels, due to the severe coal shortage, have had no hot water since liberation, others used coal left on the premises by the Germans.

"Bath invitations" by fortunately billeted individuals had become a social institution.

Starting today army officials said these inequalities were going to be eliminated and the scant supply of coal would be distributed on a rigorous system of a pound and a half a person daily for both cooking and heating. This is a pound less than the British army's field allowance for cooking alone, so not much heating will be done with it.

Government Announces Bank Of France Changes

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP)—The official Government journal disclosed today that Emmanuel Monick had been named governor of the Bank of France succeeding Yves Breart de Boisanger.

Monick's appointment and Breart de Boisanger's resignation took place Friday.

Breart de Boisanger was governor of the bank at the outbreak of the war and served throughout the German occupation. He is returning to his old post as Inspector General of Finances Department, an indication the Government considers his political record satisfactory.

Monick formerly was financial attache at the embassies in Washington and London and has been serving as temporary secretary of finances in the Cabinet of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Patou Observes 'Restrained Mood'

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP) — A smartly dressed crowd applauded today the presentations of Jean Patou which were in "the restrained mood of this serious moment," according to an announcement from this house whose creations long have represented Parisian elegance.

Patou's collection, unlike those of other houses, was presented in a flood of bright lights since the firm has its own electric plant.

Patou's hats returned to sporty forms like the classic cloche to match tweed tailored costumes. Gray, Patou's favorite color for afternoon and evening wear, and velvet and black Persian lamb are much used in this huse's models.

One of Patou's most practical creations consists of a three-piece gray tweed, with a short coat, pleated coat and a hooded cape in the same material. Another success is a light gray coat trimmed with black, fur-lined silk worn over a black afternoon dress with discreetly elaborated embroidery and a gold scarfpin.

Move To Oust Franco Begun

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP)—The National Spanish Union, composed of anti-Fascist Spaniards in France, said today it plans to hold a congress in Paris on October 15 or shortly thereafter to inaugurate a campaign to have Generalissimo Francisco Franco deposed and a "constitutional regime" established.

Its announcement coincided with reports of disorders in Spain which members of the union said indicated the opposition of the bulk of the Spanish population to Franco.

The congress likely will make a formal request to the United States and Britain to withdraw their recognition of the Franco Government, it was reported.

U. S., Britain Cited

Union members say that the attitude of the United States and especially Britain is the only substantial remaining bulwark keeping Franco in power.

The union is made up of Spanish refugees who entered France after the fall of the Loyalist Government and includes several groups such as the National Alliance of Catalonia, the Basque "Agrupacion," the Young Republican Combatants and the Spanish Intellectual Group.

Stars Meet In Paris— Dietrich And Chevalier

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Marlene Dietrich and Maurice Chevalier met Saturday in Paris, ABSIE, the American Broadcasting Station in Europe reported today in a broadcast recorded by United States Government monitors.

The Hollywood star, who has been entertaining troops, was signing autographs on the Champs Elysees when she learned of Chevalier's arrival in the city. ABSIE said details of their meeting were given by the French information Agency, which reported:

"Their meeting was moving. Marlene, like so many people, had heard thousands of stories concerning Maurice. The truth is that Chevalier . . . went to Germany once and succeeded in obtaining the release of ten prisoners. He then lived in Cannes and later in the Dordogne."

French Execute Chief of Police

Paris, Oct. 9 (A. P).—Former Police Inspector Mayade of Pierre Laval's home town of Clermont-Ferrand, has been executed on charges of dealing with the Germans, Paris newspapers reported today. The arrest of a score more public figures also was reported.

Nazi Dressed as Civilian Hung.

Paris, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—A German soldier found in civilian clothes behind the Allied lines was hanged last night in accordance with the rules of war, a United States Army announcement said today.

3 Prominent Vichyites Imprisoned Near Paris

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP)—Three prominent figures of the Vichy regime, Pierre Etienne Flandin, Marcel Peyrouton and Gen. Jean Borgeret, have been brought by plane from North Africa and jailed near Paris to await trial on charges of treason, it was announced tonight.

Flandin was a member of several pre-war cabinets, Peyrouton was Vichy's Governor-general in Algeria, and Bergeret was head of the French air forces under the Vichy Government.

RUSSIAN FORCES DRIVE TO WITHIN 3 MILES OF REICH

Sweep Through Western Lithuania in Big Attack on East Prussia.

NEAR PORT OF MEMEL

Soviet Troops Cross Last Water Barrier Before Budapest.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 10—(AP) Russian troops yesterday battered their way 17 miles through western Lithuania, capturing points only three miles from the German East Prussian frontier and 12 miles from the big port of Memel, and sweeping to within artillery range of the last Axis escape roads out of the Baltic.

Hurling fresh forces against some of the strongest German defenses in the east, the Russians also drove to within 30 miles southeast of the Latvian Baltic port of Liepaja, and were only 22 miles north of Tilsit, big German rail center. A crossing into East Prussia appeared to be imminent.

Use Massive Army

Berlin said the Russians now were using nearly 1,000,000 troops in the double effort to seal off 15 Nazi divisions and break into Germany's easternmost province from the north.

In Hungary the Russians began storming Szolnok, only 50 miles southeast of Budapest, after crossing the Tisza river—last water barrier before the Hungarian capital, broadcasts from Berlin and Moscow disclosed. The communique itself announced the seizure of Rakotsi, six miles southeast of Szolnok and 56 miles southeast of Budapest. At Rakotsi and another Hungarian airdrome the Russians captured 40 German planes, the bulletin said.

Capturing a 25-mile stretch of the Debrecen-Budapest railway in their powerful strides through the country of the last big Axis satellite, the Russians cut the major escape route out of Transylvania. Berlin announced that German troops were fleeing Transylvania.

Soviet troops in northern Yugoslavia crossed the lower Tisza river on a 32-mile front, capturing points only 12 miles from Szeged, Hungary's second city, in a flanking movement.

In western Lithuania the Russians overran 300 more villages, advancing up to 17 miles on a 175-mile front between the Latvian border and the Niemen river. They were on the verge of crossing into East Prussia and trapping perhaps 150,000 Germans strung out between Memel and Riga, Latvian capital.

Riga itself was further imperilled by Soviet troops seizing points only 13 miles from the strongly-defended citadel, already outflanked on the north by a Red army invasion of Saare island at the top of the gulf of Riga.

Vezaiciai, 12 miles due east of Memel, was among the villages taken, and the capture of Kerviai, on the Latvian border at the top of the front put other Soviet units only 20 miles southeast of the Latvian Baltic port of Liepaja. Vezaiciai is only three miles from East Prussia, as constituted after the March, 1939, seizure of Memel territory.

Near German Border

Kuliai, 14 miles northeast of Memel, was taken by one Soviet column in a 10-mile advance from Plunge, taken Sunday, and the Russians were nearing the East Prussian frontier at many points on a curving line extending southeastward to captured Jubarkas, on the Niemen river six miles from the German border and 34 miles east of Tilsit, Nazi rail center.

By reaching Jubarkas on the Niemen river the northern wing of Gen. Ivan Chernikhovsky's Third White Russian army virtually had joined with the central wing already drawn up on the eastern side of East Prussia along the Sesupe river border.

The lower arm of the Soviet pincers was developing in northern Poland where Gen. G. F. Zakharov's Second White Russian army units again successfully repulsed savage German attacks on their west bank bridgehead across the Narew river just below pre-war German territory in the Pultusk sector, 30 miles north of Warsaw.

Russ Nearer Budapest

London, Oct. 9 (AP)—Russian troops in Hungary were fighting within 56 miles of Budapest, the capital, Col. Ernst von Hammer, German News Agency military commentator, said today in a broadcast heard in London.

He reported the Red army had crossed the Tisza river and made one attempt to take the city of Szolnok, 56 miles southeast of Budapest on the famous Orient Express route.

The German communique, broadcast earlier, also reported the Russians had forced a crossing of the Tisza.

In northern Hungary, where the Russians had crossed the Koros river, another obstacle to the advance on the Hungarian capital, the Russians were said to have reached "the area of Debrecen," 135 miles east of Budapest.

Crossing Places Identified

(The Nazi Transocean Agency, in a broadcast to the European press reported by the FCC, said Russian army formations had crossed the Tisza river in southern Hungary at two points "on a stretch between Szeged and Szentes," 100 to 110 miles southeast of Budapest.

(To the north of the Tisza bridgehead, the broadcast said, Russian troops cut two roads to Budapest from the Debrecen area.)

At the same time Col. Ernest von Hammer, German news agency commentator, acknowledged in a Berlin broadcast that the Russians driving through Lithuania had reached a point only 15 miles east and northeast of Memel.

Reds Gain 62 Miles.

Moscow, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—A powerful new Russian offensive, advancing sixty-two miles through the German Baltic front, appeared today to have virtually cut off at least fifteen German divisicns north of the port city of Memel, while Russian columns invading Hungary from Romania were reported within seventy-two miles of Budapest.

The Baltic breakthrough on a 175-mile front west of Siauliai in Lithuania, a Soviet communique said, enveloped over 2,000 populated places in four days and carried to within twenty-five miles of Memel, presaging a quick capitulation of that port and a thrust southward on the German soil of East Prussia.

The Russians destroyed the backbone of a force of more than 800 German tanks and 200 self-propelled guns and captured large numbers of prisoners, with the German dead and wounded mounting to several thousands, Pravda reported.

Massed Guns Blasted Foe.

A tremendous concentration of Russian artillery blasted the narrow strip on the Baltic coast still connecting the German Baltic positions with East Prussia. One wing of the First Baltic Army battled into Memel's perimeter defenses, while another pushed northward within forty miles of the Latvian port of Leipaja.

However, the entire East Prussian front has been fortified and refortified by the Germans, while recently troops of all ages and classes have been moved there with instructions to "protect the gates to Berlin."

In Yugoslavia, combined Russian and Yugoslav Partisan units cleared the southern approaches of Belgrade, less than fifty miles from the capital, which is already outflanked on its northern outskirts.

Long stretches of the Belgrade-Athens railway through Serbia have been wrested from the enemy, further menacing the escape routes for German troops bottled-up in the lower Balkans.

NAZIS REPEAT LIDICE MASSACRE IN SLOVAKIA

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(AP) The massacre of Lidice has been repeated in two more Czechoslovak villages, the Czechoslovak information service in London has announced, according to NBC short wave monitors.

On Oct. 4, the hamlets of Solnaa Bama and Huilcik, in Slovakia northeast of Presov and not far from the present battleline, were completely obliterated by the Nazis and their inhabitants were slaughtered, the information service reported.

400 TRAPPED NAZIS GIVE UP IN FINLAND

Stockholm, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Four hundred Germans encircled north of Torneajv, in the north of Finland near the Swedish border, have surrendered, and at other points the Finns were continuing their advance, Helsinki announced today.

Finnish forces were, meanwhile, reported converging on Rovaniemi, the Germans' most important base in Lapland. A Helsinki dispatch said Finnish troops had advanced beyond Ylimaa and Canua to a point thirty-five miles southeast of Rovaniemi, From Kemi, Finnish troops also can more on the town from the southwest up the Kemi River.

In a broadcast picked up at New York today by CBS, the Finnish radio declared that Gen. Lothar Rendulic, commander of the German forces in the north, has issued a proclamation placing Finnish territory under Nazi administrative control. "Any Finn committing an act injurious to German interests will be tried by a German military tribunal," the proclamation was quoted as saying.

The Finnish and Moscow radios both reported that Baron Mannerheim, the President of Finland, received the Russian chairman of the Allied Control Commission, Col.-Gen. Zhdanoff, in Helsinki last Saturday, and that fifteen more members of the commission arrived yesterday.

LENINGRAD LIGHTS UP

LONDON, Oct. 9 — (AP) Street lights have gone on again in Leningrad, Russia's northern metropolis besieged so long by the Germans, said a Moscow radio broadcast heard here tonight by the Soviet monitor.

Churchill And Stalin Open War Conferences In Moscow

London, Tuesday, Oct. 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin already have conferred, the Moscow radio announced early today.

Anthony Eden, British Foreign Minister, and V. M. Molotov, the Soviet Foreign Commissar, attended this conference held yesterday and then met separately, the broadcast said.

Silent On Nature Of Talks

The brief Moscow announcement, heard in London by the Soviet monitor, gave no details of the nature of the conference. It said only:

"On October 9 talks took place between the chairman of the Council of the Peoples Commissars of the USSR, J. V. Stalin, and the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Winston Churchill.

"Present at the talks were the Peoples Commissar of Foreign Affairs of the U. S. S. R., V. M. Molotov, the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Great Britain, Anthony Eden, and the British Ambassador, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr."

Then in another communique Moscow revealed that Eden and Molotov had conferred separately. The Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister A. Y. Vishinsky, attended this meeting.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Oct. 9.—Prime Minister Churchill, accompanied by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and other high British officials, arrived in Moscow by plane today for conferences with Premier Josef V. Stalin, with organization of the final military blows against Germany and a multitude of European political questions expected to be high on the discussion agenda.

This will be Churchill's first talk with Stalin since the Tehran conference in November, 1943, and the third since the war began. Responsible quarters said tonight that the meeting was at Churchill's request and that the discussions might last about a week.

Churchill made what was described as "a fighting speech" at the airport for Soviet newsreel men. Attired in a dark overcoat and a black hat instead of his usual flying suit, Churchill paid a glowing tribute to the achievements of the Red army.

(A Moscow radio broadcast reported Churchill said:

("I have arrived here on the waves of hope, on the waves of certainty that victory will be achieved and in the hope that when it is achieved we will strive to make the world a better place for the life of the great mass of people."

(In a tribute to the Red army, Churchill declared, "it was the first to smash the spirit of the military machine of the German army," the broadcast said. Then he added, "we also on our side—the United States and the British commonwealth of nations—have exerted our forces to the limit and it is for you to judge if we have dealt heavy blows or not.")

Churchill and Stalin were expected to review postwar political problems that will require a close harmony of views and coordination of policy among the major Allied powers. These included the current disputes between the Polish Government-in-Exile at London and the Lublin Committee of National Liberation in which the two groups constantly have been exchanging recriminations.

Polish Unity To Be Sought

Steps which might achieve Polish unity are known to have absorbed much of Churchill's attention lately. He is on record as supporting a "safe" Soviet frontier on the west with Poland and the formation of a Polish Government committed to Soviet friendship.

Allied unity of purpose already has found expression in the Romania and Finnish armistices. It was believed that Churchill and Stalin might discuss the Bulgarian armistice, still in process of diplomatic completion, and the armistice with Hungary that may be expected in the near future as Red armies fight toward Budapest, the capital.

The imminence of the American Presidential election was believed to be the reason the meeting was not made a tri-power affair. The United States Government is expected to be kept fully informed, as was Russia during the Roosevelt-Churchill talks at Quebec a month ago.

(In London it was announced that Ambassador W. Averell Harriman would represent the United States.)

Nearly 50 In Delegation

When a British spokesman was asked the purpose of the meeting, he said: "The War Office, War Cabinet and Foreign Office are all represented. Use your own judgment."

Nearly 50 persons were in the British delegation, arriving yesterday and today in British planes. Churchill, Eden, Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the British Imperial Staff, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, Military Secretary to the British War Cabinet, arrived at the heavily guarded airport at 11.45 A. M. today. Lord Moran, Churchill's physician, also was along.

They were met at the airport by Vyacheslav Molotov, Foreign Commissar; Ivan M. Maisky, Foreign Vice-Commissar; Andrei J. Vishinsky, Soviet representative of the Allied Advisory Council for Italy, and members of the Red army General Staff.

and a black hat instead of his usual flying suit, Churchill paid a glowing tribute to the achievements of the Red army.

Churchill and Stalin were expected to review past-war political problems that will require a close harmony of views and coordination of policy among the major Allied powers. These included the current disputes between the Polish Government in exile at London and the Lublin Committee of National Liberation in which the two groups constantly have been exchanging recriminations.

Churchill had a good trip. He looked well and was only outside the airplane a short time before the familiar cigar was in his mouth. Beaming, he strode forward and greeted Molotov, who broke into a wide grin. Then the two foreign secretaries shook hands.

Churchill, Eden Arrive In Moscow

Moscow, Oct. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill flew into Moscow today for his first meeting with Premier Marshal Stalin since the Teheran conference.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden accompanied Churchill, along with the chief of the British imperial staff, Sir Alan Brooke, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, military secretary to the British War Cabinet. It was announced that Churchill and Eden would confer with Stalin and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov.

(The announcement promptly raised speculation in London over the possibility that Stalin and Churchill would be joined later by President Roosevelt to settle problems of post-war control of Germany and the differences in plans for maintaining peace which cropped up at the Dumbarton Oaks discussions. There was no indication, however, that this speculation would be borne out, and it was stated in London that W. Averell Harriman, the Ambassador, was representing the United States at the conference.

Met By Molotov

(London dispatches said the Polish problem was expected to be at the forefront of the Churchill-Stalin discussions.)

Churchill's party, which numbered just under 50 persons, arrived in two groups, yesterday and this morning. The Prime Minister and Eden came in at 11.45 A. M. today. They were met at the airport by Molotov, Ivan M. Maisky, Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs; Andrei J. Vishinsky, Soviet representative on the Allied Advisory Council for Italy, and members of the Red army general staff.

A Russian band played "God Save the King," and then the Soviet hymn. Churchill and Eden stood at attention as the anthems were played.

Reviews Troops

It was a gray day, but the sun came out for a few minutes as the Prime Minister reviewed a march of crack troops of the Moscow garrison.

Molotov was the first to greet the Prime Minister. He took off his hat and broke into a wide grin.

Churchill clasped his hand and shook it briskly as the two men met for the first time since Teheran.

Eden was beside Churchill and he moved forward. When Molotov saw him, he beamed and the two Foreign Secretaries shook hands.

Through interpreters Churchill and Molotov exchanged greetings.

Well-Kept Secret

W. Averell Harriman, United States Ambassador to Moscow, and Maj. Gen. J. Russell Deane, chief of the United States military mission to the Soviet, were the Americans in the greeting party.

Churchill's arrival in Moscow for a second time during the war to see Marshal Stalin and Molotov was a well-kept secret.

The airport ceremony was closed to all except official guests.

As the big Rolls Royce from the British Embassy hurried the Prime Minister through Moscow along Gorki street, however, it attracted much attention.

"Who was that?" asked many a Russian.

There was nothing official from the United States Embassy on what part the United States would play in the conferences. Harriman said he had nothing to say.

In London Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee described the conference as a sequel to the meeting at Quebec between President Roosevelt and Churchill.

30. 24— 1943

Attlee told Commons.

"Marshal Stalin, who was unable to accept the invitation to go to Quebec, welcomed this opportunity of meeting the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary so soon afterward."

Attlee added the meeting had "the fullest approval of the United States Government."

London dispatches said it was believed there that a wide-open Anglo-Soviet rift over Poland's future was a major motivating factor in the Churchill-Eden trip.

Their departure came only a few days after an impasse had been reached in British-backed efforts to effect a reconciliation between the Polish exiled Government of Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk on one hand, and Russia and the Soviet-sponsored Polish National Liberation Committee on the other.

Seriousness Underscored

The seriousness of the Polish diplomatic situation was underscored by Churchill in his address to Commons September 28, when he made it clear Britain would support Mikolajczyk, but cautioned the members against "violent words" which might endanger the task of carrying out "our special responsibility toward Poland."

He said at the time that "it would be affectation to pretend that the attitude of the British Government, and I believe of the United States Government, toward Poland is identical with that of the Soviet Union" and expressed hope a solution would be found "on which to rest a lasting structure of European and world peace."

While there was speculation in London that President Roosevelt might later join the Churchill-Stalin conference, it was generally believed there, a dispatch said, that the full-dress meeting of the three United Nations leaders would be deferred until late November and December—partly because of the Presidential elections and partly to await further progress in the battle of Germany.

The fact that Churchill and Eden were accompanied by the chief of the imperial general staff made it evident that military as well as diplomatic questions will be raised, and the possibility that Britain will present a bid to Stalin to sign up in the war against Japan cannot be ruled out, London said.

In his speech to commons 11 days ago Churchill indicated that he considered a new meeting of himself, Stalin and President Roosevelt essential before peace plans are revealed.

Cites Need For Meeting

Everything depends upon agreement of the three great powers, he said then, and "I do not think a satisfactory agreement will be reached . . . until there has been a further meeting of the three heads of the governments, assisted as may be necessary by their foreign secretaries."

The Prime Minister added that he earnestly hoped "it may be possible to bring about such a meeting before the end of the year."

CHURCHILL, STALIN TO SEEK SOLUTION TO POLISH DISPUTE

LONDON, Oct. 9—(AP) An attempt to effect an agreement between the exiled Polish government and Soviet Russia was believed here to be one of the prime aims of Prime Minister Churchill's trip to Moscow today for conferences with Premier Marshal Stalin.

The dynamite-laden Polish dispute has been generating increasing acrimony and has been seized upon by the Nazi propaganda machine in its campaign to split the Allies.

Comes After Impasse

The journey of Churchill and Foreign Minister Anthony Eden to Russia came only a few days after an impasse was reached in British-backed efforts to reconcile the Polish exiled government led by Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk with the Soviet-sponsored Polish National Liberation committee.

In an address before the House of Commons Sept. 28, Churchill indicated there was a wide difference of opinion between the British and American governments on one hand and the Soviet government on the other regarding Poland, but he expressed confidence a solution would be found.

Also high on the agenda of the Anglo-Soviet conference at Moscow, sources here indicated, would be the troublesome problems of postwar control of Germany.

To Discuss Nazi Defeat

On the military side, the coordination of final blows against Germany, plans for occupation after the collapse of organized resistance within the Reich and the possibility of Russia's entry into the war against Japan all were considered likely topics of discussion.

It was generally believed here that a meeting of President Roosevelt with Churchill and Stalin was on the schedule but that it would not be held until late November or early December because of the national election in the United States and also because the United Nations leaders probably wished to defer such meeting to await further progress in the battle of Germany.

George Schroeder, chief political correspondent for the German Transocean agency, said in a broadcast recorded here by the Associated Press:

"Churchill merely went to Moscow on a visit and he had to invite himself. The coming communique will in no way differ from the Teheran communique in which Poland, the Baltic states, Finland and the Balkans were given to Russia's orbit."

Schroeder also asserted Churchill went to Moscow only after Stalin had refused an invitation from him and Roosevelt to meet them in Alaska.

Bases In Siberia Reported Pledged

London, Tuesday, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Daily Express, in a special dispatch from Washington, said today Marshal Stalin is reported to have pledged Siberian bases to the United States as soon as the war ends in Europe.

The Express is published by Lord Beaverbrook, British Cabinet Minister, regarded as one of Russia's stanchest supporters, as well as a strong advocate of closer Anglo-American relations.

The story said:

"Washington hears that Stalin has pledged to the United States the use of Siberian bases immediately the European war ends.

"The pledge is said to have been given to an American official of high rank.

"Russia is not expected to take an active part in the war to defeat Japan."

BOMBERS HAMMER NAZI STEEL CENTER

Hit Supply Lines Behind Siegfried Line, Meet Little Opposition.

LONDON, Oct. 9—(AP) A force of 500 RAF Lancasters tonight bombed steel plants in the Ruhr after American airforces had set what is believed to be an all time low of eight losses for a 2,000 plane raid on German supply centers behind the Siegfried Line.

Midnight announcement of the night attack on Bochum, chief center of the Nazi steel and iron industry, more than six hours ahead of the usual time for air bulletins indicated the RAF also must have met little opposition from ground fire or enemy planes.

Lose Eight Planes

Eighth Airforce Liberators and Fortresses, 1,100 strong, escorted by 900 Lightnings, Thunderbolts and Mustangs from both Eighth and Ninth Airforces, hit Coblenz, Mainz and Schweinfurt. Five bombers and three fighters failed to return.

Returning fliers reported there was no enemy fighter opposition over these cities behind the Siegfried Line but some that jet-propelled aircraft were sighted. Anti-aircraft fire over Coblenz and Mainz ranged from meager to intense but little flak was encountered at Schweinfurt.

Some of the eight missing planes may have become lost in the extremely bad weather and may have landed safely in France.

American Fighters shot down one enemy plane in the air and destroyed another about to take off.

Enemy Bombed Continuously

The American assaults into the Reich followed heavy week-end attacks during which a record number of 10,000 Allied planes pounded Germany and Holland.

The Liberators and Flying Fortresses with their escorts of Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs loosed a bomb-load on Coblenz, which for days has been swarming with activity as trains rushed supplies to the Nazis facing the U. S. First army. Then they swooped on 650 miles from their British bases and gave Schweinfurt, 65 miles east of Frankfurt, its ninth raid of the war. Mainz, 60 miles southeast of Coblenz, also got its share of 2,000-pound bombs.

Airmen on the long mission were forced to fly through soupy skies nearly all the way to their targets and back and were forced to bomb by instrument.

Bombed Once Before

Coblenz had been bombed only once before by the heavies, which struck two railroad yards there September 25. Three months ago the Schweinfurt ball bearing plants were hammered to the ground and have had just about time to renew operations. The city also has several aircraft assembly plants.

An ordnance depot and the railroad yards at Mainz have been bombed eight times before by the RAF and American heavy bombers. The last raid was less than two weeks ago.

Bad weather curtailed most other air activity during the day, but RAF Mosquitos and Beaufighters attacked a German convoy off the Norwegian coast, reporting the sinking of two merchant ships and hits on several escort vessels.

2,000 U. S. Planes Raid Reich

London, Oct. 9 (AP)—Another great armada of 2,000 American planes, resuming the battering of Germany after the hardest blows of the war over the week end, soared deep into the Reich today and attacked military objectives in the Schweinfurt, Coblenz and Mainz areas.

The three-sided raid was carried out by approximately 1,100 Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 900 fighters of both the Eighth and Ninth air forces.

The bombers encountered very bad weather over the targets and bombing was done through heavy clouds.

Nazi Convoy Attacked

Schweinfurt is the home of several vital Nazi war industries, including a large aircraft assembly plant, and it was in this vicinity that many of the greatest air battles of the war were fought. Coblenz and Mainz are key communications centers on the Rhine.

Bad weather curtailed other air activities today, but RAF Mosquitos and Beaufighters that attacked a German convoy off the Norwegian coast reported the sinking of two merchant ships and hits on several escort vessels.

Despite murky weather that grounded many planes Sunday, a record number of 10,000 Allied planes pounded Germany and Holland over the week end.

1,500 Sorties Flown

American and British tactical fleets based on the Continent flew more than 1,500 sorties in support of the ground armies.

Ninth Air Force fighter-bombers, roaming the length of the Western Front, were credited with destroying 132 enemy guns opposing the American First and Third Armies.

Meanwhile, RAF fighter and medium bombers slashed at German troops, railways and barges in the Nijmegen and Tilburg areas of Holland.

Krebs Dam Smashed

The Ninth also knocked out 43 locomotives, 104 freight cars, cut railroad tracks in 29 places and destroyed three German planes parked on the ground.

While great damage was done to German oil plants, tank works, aircraft factories and railway centers, the most spectacular week-end raid was carried out by a force of 13 RAF Lancasters that smashed the Kembs Dam across the lower Rhine with 12,000-pound delayed-action "earthquake" bombs.

River Impassable

The Germans probably intended to dynamite the dam themselves as soon as they had crossed the Rhine. The resultant floods already have made the river impassable for the Nazis caught on the wrong side.

For the fourth successive night winged bombs were launched on England from German bombers over the North Sea. One was destroyed off the northeast coast of Scotland.

683,000 Tons Dropped By RAF During The War

London, Oct. 9 (AP) — From the beginning of the war to the end of September, 1944, the RAF Bomber Command dropped 609,868 long tons (683,000 United States tons) of bombs on targets in Germany, Italy and occupied Europe, with more than half of the total weight falling on the Reich proper.

The figures were released today by the Air Ministry on the heels of the greatest 24-hour assault in the history of air-war attacks, which led the Daily Mail to predict:

"It is now considered conceivable that if Germany continues to fight until 1945, the end of the war will find her entire industrial power virtually out of existence."

The British dropped the first 100,000 tons during the first three and a half years of the war. Since the first of this year they carried 263,082 tons over objectives, with 124,519 tons labeled for targets in Germany. The total RAF tonnage on Germany alone was 328,173.

Incendiaries More Bulky

"The figures of bomb tonnage give to some extent a misleading view of the comparative weight of attack on Germany and the occupied territories," the Air Ministry commented.

It pointed out that in attacks on German industrial towns fire bombs form a high proportion of the load, whereas targets in occupied lands usually were attacked with high explosive bombs. Incendiaries are more bulky. Hence the weight load alone does always give a true picture regarding the scale of the attack.

Damage by fire bombs often is far greater than by explosives.

In Hamburg, Germany's second city, destruction was estimated to be greater than the damage to all of England prior to the introduction of robot bombs.

Bomb Damage Is Hotly Debated

London, Oct. 9 (AP)—A statement by a Government spokesman that there was a split in the Churchill War Cabinet over a bomb damage reconstruction bill today touched off probably the most heated House of Commons debate of the current session of Parliament.

Clement Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, opened a special session of the House with a remark that he "hoped agreement would be reached in the Cabinet" this week on a clause in the town and country planning bill concerning compensation on damaged properties.

"Intended For Donkeys

Prime Minister Churchill found it necessary to make a peace plea to the House last week when a fight started over the bill, which one member asserted today "is intended for donkeys as far as I can make out."

A suggestion that the discussion be dropped caused another member—Sir Herbert Williams, a Conservative—to cry that this showed a "Fascist mentality."

Sir Herbert, after declaring that he represented "the most bombed constituency in England," was interrupted by Lady Astor, also a Conservative. He continued with the remark that "perhaps the noble lady will not understand."

Calls Him Hypocrite

"I understand what a hypocrite you are," Lady Astor replied. Told that she would have to withdraw the remark, Lady Astor said: "I am perfectly willing to withdraw, but he intimated that I was an idiot. If he will withdraw, I will."

Sir Herbert at first refused to withdraw, saying "the noble lady is too fond of imputing improper motives to other people." He never did withdraw in so many words, but after Lady Astor caused laughter with a remark that "I withdraw gallantly and reverently," he ended the interlude with "we all have our own interpretation of good manners and I leave it at that."

Aneurin Bevan, a Laborite, declared that the Prime Minister had "come to the house as an enthusiastic volunteer for the defense of land racketeers." This was greeted by cries of "nonsense," but Bevan added:

"He came down to the House and made a lie of his broadcast last March."

The main point of dispute and the one on which the Cabinet is split is a clause calling for compensation on the basis of 1939.

Later the House voted to delete the disputed clause. Churchill indicated Friday it might be necessary to deal with compensation problems in a separate bill.

OCT 10 1944

GERMAN ROBOT BOMBS HIT SOUTHERN ENGLAND

LONDON, Oct. 9—(AP) For the fifth consecutive night the Germans fired flying bombs against southern England tonight as rescuers still dug for dead and injured in debris caused by last night's raids.

Fierce antiaircraft fire and night fighter action met tonight's missiles on the east coast.

Last night's missiles which destroyed a number of buildings killed at least 16 persons and was believed to have buried others. Thirty patients escaped injury when a hospital was damaged.

New Device Spots Robots

London, Oct. 9 (AP)—Mosquito planes are now equipped with secret detecting devices in their night war against German flying bombs and Heinkel aircraft which the Nazis are using to launch the robots.

With their twin engines muffled, the Mosquitos have caught the German launching planes by surprise, shooting down at least three and destroying at least six robot bombs during four successive German night raids on southern England and London.

Ack-ack defenses during two attacks last night filled the sky with such a load of exploding steel that hundreds of families in east coast towns sought safety in shelters from the rain of fragments.

During the concentrated gunfire last night observers were startled by a mysterious explosion in the sky—a blast so shattering that it dwarfed the sound of two flying bombs which blew up a short time before.

England Selects Social Security Head

London, Oct. 9 (AP)—The appointment of Lord Swinton, since 1942 minister resident in West Africa, as Minister For Civil Aviation was announced last night simultaneously with the selection of Sir William Jowitt as Minister For Social Security under the Government's recently-announced "cradle to grave" security program.

Lord Swinton's appointment gave Britain a minister of cabinet rank and a top-drawer commercial executive to devote full time to planning the nation's commercial aviation program in post-war air competition.

Nazis' Mass Executioner Named Guerrilla Leader

Reported Chosen by Himmler to Carry On After Defeat

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP).—S. S. (Elite Guard) Obergruppenfuehrer General von dem Bache has been appointed by Heinrich Himmler supreme commander of Germany's post-surrender underground resistance forces, according to usually reliable sources at the German frontier.

Von dem Bache, while stationed in Poland, boasted that he personally enjoyed mass executions and had taken a direct hand in some of them with a sub-machine gun. Although little known outside Germany, he has been a high-ranking Nazi for years.

STOCKHOLM-BERLIN PHONES STILL OUT

Stockholm, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Telephone communication between Stockholm and Berlin was still broken off today, more than twenty-four hours after it was first cut. Telephone communication was impossible all day yesterday between Stockholm and both Berlin and Hamburg.

No confirmation could be found for a rumor published in the Stockholm Tidningen of a new officers' revolt in Germany. The newspaper based its story on a report that an SS police general had been named commander of Warsaw over units of the German army.

Telegraphic communication with Berlin continued, but Swedish correspondents there were apparently unable to use it. Early afternoon editions here appeared without Berlin-dated dispatches. A Berlin plane arrived with only four passengers, three of them legation employees.

Air Force General Arrives in Sweden

Stockholm, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Gen. E. P. Curtiss of the United States Strategic Air Force Staff, has arrived in Stockholm. The purpose of his visit was not disclosed.

Berlin, Stockholm Phones Cut

Stockholm, Oct. 9 (AP) — Almost all telephone communication between Stockholm and Berlin remained shut down tonight, 36 hours after the first interruption in service. No explanation has been given for the unprecedented break in communication.

FRESH TROOPS MEET 5TH ARMY

Yanks In Italy, However, Gain Two More Miles

Rome, Oct. 9 (AP)—The Germans have thrown fresh and refitted troops into their defense line south of Bologna and Imola in an effort to check American Fifth Army attacks which have brought the network of railways and highways radiating from Bologna within range of big American guns.

The latest reported gains carried Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's troops two more miles along Highway 65 between the twin mountains of Castellazi and Barbarolo, and placed them only ten miles from Bologna's southern outskirts, but the Nazis still held strong hill positions from which to fight delaying actions.

Mud And Rain Hamper Supplies

Deep mud in the Apennines and frequent blinding rainstorms complicated the Allied supply problem and made it difficult to bring concentrations of artillery against the enemy's prepared positions.

There were renewed indications that the Nazis are preparing to flee to the Alps when the Allies finally break out into the Po Valley. Patriot forces reported increasing disorder in the enemy's ranks in the Milan area and said the Germans there already were placing demolition charges in anticipation of a general withdrawal.

Monte Cece Battle In Third Day

On the right flank of the 12-mile front south of Bologna, British Fifth Army troops of the British 13th Corps fought through a third bitter day for possession of strategic Monte Cece, overlooking the Palazzuolo-Castel Bologna road.

Near the Adriatic the Germans made repeated fierce counterattacks against British and Indian troops fighting for bridgeheads across the Fiumicino river. Indian units captured Monte Gattona, a dozen miles west of Rimini and more than a mile beyond the Fiumicino.

American Negro troops near the west coast crossed the Serra river and entered Seravezza, 21 miles southeast of the big naval base of La Spezia, and Brazilian troops made limited gains farther inland. A sharp Nazi counterattack drove units of a South African battalion off Monte Stanco, near the Pistoia-Bologna road 19 miles southwest of Bologna.

Americans Shell Bologna, Say Reports

Rome, Oct. 9 (AP) — American troops have advanced nearly two miles more along the main road north to Bologna, bringing them within 10 miles of that major communications center of the Po Valley. Allied headquarters announced today.

The newest advance was made in bad weather along Highway 65, between the twin mountains of Castellazi and Barbarolo and against strongly reinforced enemy positions.

Bologna Reported Shelled

(A Reuter report from London said that Bologna was reported to be under shellfire from Fifth Army guns. A front-line dispatch to the United States Army newspaper Stars and Stripes, quoted by David Brown, Reuter special correspondent, said that no fewer than 188 pounds of long-range shells had already been set crashing on targets in the outskirts.)

The Germans, meanwhile, continued to mass reinforcements in front of both Bologna and Imola and were reported bringing up heavy artillery for a further delaying action.

Germans Cleaned Out

In the Adriatic sector Eighth Army troops, advancing across the Fiumicino river, have cleaned up German reistance on Monte Gallo, the communique said.

British and Indian troops beat back fierce German counterattacks in crossing the Fiumicino during severe thunder storms. A particularly strong Nazi counterthrust was aimed at the British at Monte Gallo, 11 miles west of Rimini.

Indian Forces stormed Monte Gattona, a mile and a half southwest of Monte Gallo and 2,000 yards beyond the Fiumicino.

Still Fight For Peak

On the right flank of the 12-mile front south of Gologna, British Fifth Army troops for the third straight day battled Germans for possession of strategic Monte Cece, overlooking the Palazzuolo-Castel Bolognese road. It was officially disclosed that British and Indian troops in the Fifth Army command comprise the British 13th Corps, commanded by Lieut. Gen. S. C. Kirkman.

In the west coastal area Negro troops of the American 92d Division crossed the Serra river and entered Seravezza, about 21 miles southeast of La Spezia.

Advance Limited

Headquarters said Brazilian troops continued limited advances against snipers, machine gun and artillery fire in rough and difficult terrain to the east of the 92d Division sector.

Farther to the right elements of a South African battalion reached Monte Stanco, on the right of the Pistoia-Bologna road, 19 miles southwest of Bologna, but a sharp night counterattack compelled them to withdraw.

Despite bad weather, a few Allied planes attacked barges and schooners at Sestri Levante on the Gulf of Benoa.

Blackout Imposed On News Of Greece

Rome, Oct. 9 (AP)—The Allied command slapped a security blackout today over news of British invasion troops who last were reported racing virtually unopposed across the Peloponnesus peninsula of Greece and to be nearing the city of Corinth, only 45 miles from Athens.

Capture of Corinth would close the only overland escape route for any Nazi troops remaining in the Peloponnesus, but it was considered unlikely that the bag of prisoners would be large. British fighter-plane pilots said there were indications the Germans were preparing to flee Athens.

No Report From Albania

Official silence also was maintained on the activities of Allied ground forces attacking enemy communications to the little port of Sarande in southern Albania, the supply base for a German garrison on the island of Corfu.

Rocket-firing British fighters fired a Nazi tug off the east end of the Corinth canal and left a big Junkers transport plane blazing on Kalamaki airfield near Athens.

Before today's censorship was imposed, British commanders reported the Germans were fleeing Greece "by land, sea and air."

Nazis Reported Preparing To Quit Athens

Rome, Oct. 9 (AP)—German forces were reported preparing to evacuate Athens today as British troops, racing virtually unopposed across the Peloponnesus, neared the southern entrance to the Isthmus of Corinth, gateway to northern Greece.

Dispatches from the front yesterday said British troops were approaching the outskirts of Corinth, at the base of the narrow isthmus, after seizing the port of Navplion, and it appeared possible they may already have entered the city.

Escape Route Periled

Fall of Corinth would seal off the only overland escape route for any German troops remaining in the Peloponnesus and would place the Allies only 45 miles from Athens.

It was believed unlikely, however, the Germans had left many troops in southern Greece.

Reports that the Nazis had begun evacuating Athens came from British fighter-plane pilots operating from Greek bases, who said they had observed a considerable concentration in the port, including a number of ferry type craft and several large ships.

Puppet Troops Captured

British commanders asserted the Germans were fleeing Greece "by land, sea and air," apparently exerting all efforts to withdraw before the onrushing Russian forces, bulwarked by Bulgarian troops and Yugoslav guerrillas, cut off their escape routes.

Approximately 2,000 Greek puppet troops have been captured in the Allied drive, along with stores of antiquated equipment.

Allied planes continued to pound enemy airports around Athens and Salonika over the week end, while British naval forces ranged along the Greek coast on the alert for any Nazis attempting to escape by sea.

Former Italy Bank Head On Trial

Rome, Oct. 9 (AP)—Vincenzo Azzolini, former governor of the Bank of Italy, went on trial for his life before the High Court of Justice today and declared himself innocent of charges that he wilfully turned over 120 tons of gold to the Germans.

The 62-year-old defendant, who was decorated for valor in the first World War, told the court he had no fear of death.

"All my life I have had a passion for my country," he declared. "I tried to defend the bank the best I could against the Germans."

"Opposed Decrees"

Azzolini said he tried in every possible way throughout the Nazi occupation to hold down the printing of paper money, often at severe risk, and that he fought against anti-Jewish decrees to the utmost.

The 120 tons of gold was shipped to northern Italy in September, 1943, upon the decision of Hitler and Mussolini that it would be safer from bombardment there, he said.

Azzolini conceded that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, who was Premier at the time, previously had advised him to transfer the gold to Piedmont, near the Swiss border. The defendant said he had not done so because he believed the gold would be safer in Rome than in the north, nearer the German frontier.

Nazi Ultimatum

On receiving an ultimatum from the Nazis to deliver the gold, Azzolini said, he called a meeting of the bank directorate and that they agreed "nothing could be done."

The court president told the white-haired defendant he would be shot in the back if found guilty, the same punishment that recently was dealt Pietro Caruso, former Rome police chief, for having supplied hostages to the Nazis.

Cruising Unmolested Off Crete

New York, Oct. 9—A large British aircraft carrier, whose planes have destroyed ten German supply ships, has cruised for several days less than a mile offshore from

Crete in daylight and not a single German shot has been fired at it, the British Broadcasting Corporation, monitored by NBC, said tonight.

NEW GOVERNMENT FORMING IN EGYPT

Cairo, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Achmed Maher Pasha undertook today to form a new Egyptian Government after abrupt dismissal by King Farouk I of the Cabinet headed by Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha, president of the W. A. F. D. party.

The King's action excited political speculation in Cairo. Extra police patrolled the captial's streets, but the city was quiet.

Nahas Pasha, leader of the large and most influential political group in Egypt, became Premier on invitation of King Farouk on February 4, 1942. Palace circles said the King's dismissal of Nahas Pasha was caused by his desire to see Egypt ruled constitutionally—the inference being drawn that Nahas Pasha had been dictatorial.

Differences between King Farouk and his Prime Minister had been known to exist for some time, but there was no indication that foreign policy was involved.

King Farouk invited Maher Pasha, Finance Minister under the ousted premier, to form a new Government.

New Japanese Push Into India Blocked

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 9 (AP). West African troops have driven the Japanese from a village northwest of Mowdok in the newly activated Arakan combat area on the India side of the India-Burma frontier, Allied headquarters announced today.

It also was announced that small enemy groups were engaged near Taung Bazaar and that casualties were inflicted.

Four Jap Planes Hit

The resurgence of Japanese aerial activity in Burma after the long monsoon lull was disclosed in the announcement that 10 enemy fighters intercepted United States Mitchells near Mandalay on October 6. The American bombers destroyed three enemy planes and probably destroyed four others. One American aircraft was lost.

It was announced that Allied Beaufighters patrolling the Gulf of Martaban on October 7 cannonaded four schooners.

Two-Mile Penetration

The Japanese force which penetrated two miles into India was described as a reconnaissance group with an estimated strength of 400 men. It was contacted by West African patrols in the Sangu river border area.

This penetration was the first officially announced incursion of the enemy into India since last March, when a strong Japanese force almost overran Manipur state to the north.

Chinese Dig In For Defense Of Kweilin

Chungking, Oct. 9 (AP)—Determined but ill-equipped Chinese troops dug in today for a "Stalingrad" defense of strategic Kweilin, in southeast China, after momentarily checking a Japanese drive to outflank the once-important United States air base.

While Chinese forces blunted the enemy's encirling spearhead at Hingan, 25 miles north of the Kwangsi province city, other Chinese units scored minor successes against another new Japanese offensive in Fukien province, on the China coast. There Chinese recaptured a village 15 miles southeast of Foochow, last Chinese-held port. (The Japanese claim to have captured the big port.)

New Supply Line Seen

(Meanwhile, in New York, the Blue Network broadcast a transcribed address by Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell disclosing that United States, British and Chinese troops in the Salween river area in Yunnan province have reached a point where junction of the new Ledo and old Burma roads can be foreseen.

(General Stilwell, in the transcription made at his headquarters, said the junction of old and new roads would reopen China's back door for badly needed supplies.)

Seek To Block Landing

The Japanese offensive in Fukien province was undertaken in an an enemy move to forestall possible American seizure of a foothold on the Chinese coast. The Kweilin offensive is aimed at completing the job of splitting China and neutralizing United States air bases in eastern China.

Despite withdrawals from several important airdromes ahead of the present drive, planes of the United States 14th Air Force destroyed 163,000 tons of Japanese shipping and killed 4,000 enemy troops during September, General Stilwell's headquarters said.

Japs Claim 44 Planes

(The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast communique, reported Japanese planes made a surprise raid on a group of American airfields nears Chengtu, in Szechuan province, on October 7, and said 44 United States aircraft were destroyed against the loss of one Japanese craft.

(The Tokyo report was not confirmed by any Allied source.

(Tokyo asserted that 23 of the planes reported destroyed were Superfortresses of the United States Air Force. The broadcast said the attacks were carried out in "extremely bad weather.").

Airmen Curtailed

Adverse weather curtailed American aerial operations over the week end, Stilwell's headquarters said, but fighters attacked enemy rail and river communications. Two enemy planes were reported destroyed in combat for the loss of one United States craft.

The Chinese high command, meanwhile, belately announced that Chinese forces operating behind the Japanese lines in Kwangtung province had scored minor successes with the recapture September 30 of Loting, 115 miles southwest of Canton, and dislodgment of the invaders at Wanfow, 80 miles west of Canton.

Their recapture, however, was not likely to affect the general Japanese push westward toward Liuchow, from which the enemy was but 20 miles distant.

Dr. Sun Demands Changes

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 9 (AP)—The first open demand by a high Chinese official for reorganization of the Chinese Government was made today in a statement issued by Dr. Sun Fo, Cabinet Minister and son of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, founder of the republic.

Dr. Sun, president of the legislative Yuan, advocated an end of political tutelage—a period of one-party rule prescribed by his father to educate the Chinese people for democratic government.

Liberators Batter Mindanao

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Tuesday, Oct. 10 (AP)—More than 25 Liberator bombers, making their first big neutralization strike at Zamboanga, important seaplane base and second largest city of Mindanao in the southern Philippines, set huge fires along the water front and around "other targets," headquarters announced today.

The heavy bombers were protected by a screen of fighter planes, despite the long overwater hop, but they met no air resistance. Anti-aircraft fire was ineffective.

Destroy 6 Float Planes

The fighters made strafing runs at minimum altitude. Six float planes were destroyed in the harbor and a 1,000-ton vessel was set afire, along with two small freighters and a barge.

Liberators also bombed Balikpapan, the Borneo oil center that produced about 15 per cent. of Japanese aviation gasoline until it became the target of recent American attacks. In the latest raid, on Saturday night, fires were started in the refinery area.

Mitchells raided Celebes, destroying ten buildings and six warehouses and damaging the shipbuilding center on near-by Sanana Island.

U. S. TROOPS LAND ON GARAKAYO ISLE

Forces Meet Light Resistance on Island North of Peleliu.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 9.—(AP) Elements of the 81st Infantry division landed Sunday on tiny Garakayo islet, 2 1-2 miles north of Peleliu in the Palau group, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced tonight.

They quickly established and secured a beachhead, advancing inland against light opposition, the Admiral said in a communique.

10 Islets to be Invaded

This is the tenth islet in the southern Palaus to be invaded by American forces, since the main landings of Peleliu Sept. 14 (U. S. time). The other nine islands are securely held by the Americans, except for small last-ditch resistance pockets on Peleliu and Angaur, six miles southward.

Garakayo lies north of American-held Ngesebus island and is one the largest of the small lands surrounding Peleliu.

Little known Garakayo is a circular island a mile in diameter.

The landings caused speculation that although it apparently was lightly defended, it may be the base for heavy shore batteries which shelled American troops on Peleliu.

Garakayo, it is believed, has no important installations. The islet is fairly flat, with a small peak at the northern end.

Yanks Mop Up on Peleliu

Marine Corsairs meantime bombed Japanese pockets of resistance on "Bloody Nose Ridge" (Morbrogol mountain) on Peleliu, while Marine troops continued mopping up on the ground.

Marine planes also struck Babelthuap, largest of the Palaus, bombing fuel dumps and warehouses and strafing small craft in Ngatpang bay, on the island's west coast.

American Fleet Bombards Marcus Isle; Facilities Fired

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 9 (AP)—Big guns of American warships bombarded tiny Marcus Island, one of Japan's most important eastern outposts, all day yesterday (United States date), Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced in a surprise communique at 2 A. M. today.

The heavy units from Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet silenced "the greater part of the coast defense batteries" and inflicted "considerable damage" on shore defenses and installations.

It was the fourth attack by fleet forces on the tiny island, 1,135 miles southeast of Tokyo.

Fires Are Kindled

The gunfire was "deliberate and destructive." Buildings were hit and fires started. There was no mention of participation by carrier planes, either by Nimitz or by radio Tokyo which earlier had hinted that battleships with their 16-inch guns joined in the bombardment.

Nor did Nimitz's communique mention any aerial opposition. Nor did Radio Tokyo.

But Marcus, which should be the Japanese most important observation post in that area of the Pacific, undoubtedly is feeling deeply her severe plane losses under repeated crushing aerial defeats in the central and western Pacific.

Tokyo Blow Feared

Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitcher's carrier forces, operating with Admiral Raymond A. Spruance's Fifth Fleet, destroyed more than 1,200 enemy airplanes in the Marianas operations and the Philippines sea battle. The Halsey-Mitscher carrier force destroyed more than 1,100 in repeated thrusts on the Philippines, Bonins and Palau.

Tokyo admittedly is preparing for a tight fight-to-the-death defense of the homeland and thus is forced to base a majority of its planes in Japan, Formosa and China. Admiral Halsey's force has demonstrated such force that Japan fears he may strike at the homeland as he did in April, 1942, when he took Maj. Gen. James Doolittle's bombers to within a few hundred miles of Tokyo.

May Be Virtually Abandoned

The fact that Halsey's long-range units were able to slip only 5 to 15 miles offshore apparently undetected and then fire salvo after salvo without any aerial opposition might mean that Japan has virtually abandoned Marcus, which is so isolated it might be difficult to defend.

A coral triangle only one and a half miles at its widest and longest, Marcus was hit previously by carriers. Each time the Japanese offered aerial opposition. The first strike was by U. S. S. Enterprise planes in March, 1942, the second by a carrier task force in August, 1943, and the last by another carrier group in May, 1944. Each time Marcus' triangular airfield was neutralized and each time large fires were started, necessitating extensive rebuilding.

25 More Vessels Hit

Meanwhile, an American advance in the last-ditch battle for Peleliu Island, in the southern Palaus, and widespread aerial attacks which destroyed or damaged 25 more small Japanese vessels were officially reported last night and today.

Nimitz announced the Peleliu advance by marines and soldiers moving under thunderous aerial cover against Japanese remnants on Umorbrogol Mountain (Bloody Nose Ridge.) Supporting Marine Corps planes dropped 1,000-pound bombs on the entrenched Nipponese.

Southwest Pacific planes sank or damaged 25 Japanese coastal vessels and small craft, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported, in raids around Ceram and Halmahera. Patrol bombers hit the recently-raided enemy oil center at Balikpapan, Borneo, and the airdrome and seaplane base at Zamboanga, southern Philippines.

Nimitz reported the Japanese death toll has reached 12,233 since the September 14 (United States time) invasion of the Palau chain. On Peleliu 11,083 were killed, 214 captured; on Angaur, six miles southward, 1,150 were killed, 17 captured.

American planes attacked Babelthuap, largest of the Palaus, destroying a fuel dump and buildings in two villages.

Government Set Up

The naval communique disclosed that military government was established on Peleliu September 16, two days after the invasion. Two weeks later this administration was extended to Angaur and two small islets.

Central Pacific bombers hit Iwo Jima, in the volcano group, and Wake Island without encountering aerial or anti-aircraft opposition.

Southwest Pacific airmen scored hits on the important Pandansari oil refinery at Balikpapan; blasted Halmahera's Kaoe airdrome with 1,000-pound bombs and hit aeriel installations on Ceram.

NIMITZ JOKE FOOLS PRESS

Report Of Jap Fleet Loss Was

News Back In 1592

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 9 (AP)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz put over a fast one on correspondents today, and his joke was sent out as a startling piece of news.

At the end of a press conference in which he outlined the importance of weather in Pacific operations, he said:

"You might be interested in this communique:

"'Powerful Allied naval forces have attacked portion of the Japanese fleet lying at anchor near the entrance to Fusan harbor on the southeast coast of Korea. Twenty-six of approximately 80 ships present in the harbor were set afire and the remainder dispersed.

Told Of Later Engagement

"'In a later engagement more than 70 Japanese vessels, including warships and transports, were encountered by the Allied fleet and sunk. The devastating blow has isolated enemy armies in Korea and cut them off from their home bases.'"

The admiral added that "this communique, incidentally, is dated late June, 1592."

The admiral referred to a Korean-Chinese exploit during an early Japanese invasion of the peninsula and evidently was quoting from a Korean communique. He went on to say that this proved the Japanese had been defeated at sea. He also referred to the hurricane destruction of Kublai Khan's fleet, which almost invaded Japan in 1281, to prove the importance of weather in Pacific operations.

Typhoons Handicap Drive

In his discussion of the weather, Admiral Nimitz disclosed that the typhoon season is handicapping American operations in the Pacific, particularly at Palau, but reaffirmed that the Pacific Fleet will be at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's disposal for moves against the Philippines.

"We must make landings on the China Coast," he added, "in order to secure a land mass close enough to the Japanese Empire to enable us to employ the air forces which will be at our disposal."

The Pacific commander told correspondents:

"I assure you that we are moving as rapidly as possible in the Pacific area to extend our power westward, and in due time that power will include the east coast of China."

U. S. Operations in Pacific

QUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 9—(AP) Adm. Chester W. Nimitz today disclosed that the typhoon season is handicapping American operations in the Pacific, particularly at Palau, but reaffirmed that the Pacific fleet will be at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's disposal for moves against the Philippines.

Speaking at a press conference, he added:

"We must make landings on the China coast in order to secure a land mass close enough to the Japanese empire to enable us to employ the air forces which will be at our disposal."

In an hour-long response to 21 written questions, the Pacific commander told correspondents:

Move to Extend Power

"I assure you that we are moving as rapidly as possible in the Pacific area to extend our power westward and in due time that power will include the east coast of China.

"So long as Formosa is in the hands of the Japanese, it will be a very strong point, as they can continue to supply it with air power.

"China coast cities such as Foochow, menaced by the Japanese, have not been of much influence in this war yet, but the China situation is serious.

"To the extent, that the Japanese improve their situation in China, our task will become more difficult. But when we have the means to do it, we will get the bases in China that we want."

The Admiral added that "judging from Gen. MacArthur's past performance, I predict he will do the same job in the Philippines that he did in New Guinea; perhaps even more thoroughly.

"Certainly the resources of the United States—including the Pacific fleet—will be with him."

Nimitz said the Japanese have a defensive advantage during the typhoon season, from June to December.

"During the past two weeks," he added, "the typhoons have given us much trouble. They handicapped the landing of stores at Peleliu (southern Palaus) under storm conditions almost duplicating those that threatened the Normandy invasion.

Yanks Gain Airfield

"In Peleliu we have gained an airfield from which we in the central Pacific can support whatever operations General MacArthur has for the Philippines.

"We gained an anchorage which is somewhat mediocre at present but which will improve—which we can use for surface forces. Its value in such close proximity to the Philippines is obvious."

(Peleliu is 575 miles east of the Philippines).

"Furthermore, with Peleliu we have cut the Japanese from such bases as they are still occupying in the Carolines.

"The capture of the Marianas group cut their lines from the north. Peleliu cuts them from the west.

"Planes can fly from the Philippines to Yap or Wolea,i but they can't make the round trip. From Peleliu and Guam, various Japanese island bases can be attacked frequently.

"The Peleliu base will become more satisfactory as the weather moderates. The typhoon season has a great influence on our operations.

Adm. Nimitz, with a sly grin, startled assembled correspondents today when at the end of the hour-long press conference, he said:

"You might be interested in this communique:

"'In a later engagement, more than 70 Japanese vessels, including warships and transports, were encountered by the Allied fleet and sunk. The devastating blow has isolated enemy armies in Korea and cut them off from their home bases'."

The Admiral added that "this communique, incidentally, is dated late June, 1592."

"It shows the weather long ago aided in the defense of Japan. Kublai Khan twice almost invaded Japan, only to have his ships destroyed by gales."

ACE WINS PACIFIC CROWN

Comdr. David McCampbell Tops Navy Fliers With 18½ Planes

ABOARD U. S. CARRIER, off Luzon Island, Philippines, Sept. 21 (Delayed) (AP)—Comdr. David McCampbell, 34, increased his combat bag to eighteen and one-half planes today during the second carrier force attack on Manila, becoming the Navy's top ace in the Pacific.

In addition the husky skinner of an air group based on this carrier is credited with five probables in the air and between fifteen and twenty planes aground. Formerly of West Palm Beach, Fla., he now calls Los Angeles home.

Commander McCampbell took the leadership from Lieut. (j.g.) Ira Kepford of Muskegon, Mich., credited with sixteen enemy planes.

It didn't take long for Commander McCampbell to pile up his record. He shot down his first plane June 11 over Saipan.

Wayne Morris On Air Raid

Aboard United States Carrier off Luzon, Philippines, Sept. 22 (AP—Delayed)—Lieut. Bert de Wayne, Jr., the real name of Wayne Morris, former film star—and Lieut. (j. g.) Arthur Singer, of Milwaukee, Wis., firing rockets from navy carrier planes in the attack on Manila, each hit what they believe were submarines berthed in the south harbor in Manila Bay.

The former film star and his companion were among the scores of navy carrier plane pilots participating in the first American attack on Manila in which one of the greatest air victories of the war in the Pacific was scored.

PLAINVILLE MAN GETS GOOD CONDUCT MEDAL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WITH THE AMERICAL INFANTRY DIVISION SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—Two New England soldiers have been awarded the Good Conduct medal "for demonstrating fidelity through faithful and exact performance of duty."

They are Pfc. John C. Usher, son of Mrs. Altha Usher, of 15 Farmington avenue, Plainville, Conn., and Pfc. Joseph Faria, son of Mrs. Mary Faria, of 315 Beechwood street, Cohasset, Mass.

Usher, overseas 11 months, has served in Fiji islands and on Bougainville and is entitled to wear one star in his Asiatic-Pacific campaign ribbon.

Faria, overseas 32 months, has served in New Caledonia, Guadalcanal, Fiji islands, and Bougainville and is entitled to wear two stars on his Asiatic-Pacific campaign ribbon for active participation in action against the Japanese in the latter theater.

Flyers Describe Manila Raid

On September 20 and 21 carrier pilots of the United States Third Fleet attacked Manila and dropped the first American bombs that have fallen there since the Japanese captured the city. The Americans damaged harbor installations, destroyed 244 planes, sank 35 ships and damaged or sank another 27. An Associated Presss correspondent, aboard a carrier, interviewed returning pilots.

By Morris Landsberg

Aboard a United States Carrier off Luzon, Philippines, Sept. 22 (AP — Delayed) — The weather over Manila was beautiful. Japanese set hundreds of smudge pots burning trying to blackout the city from American eyes. Huge columns of black smoke arose from Manila Bay. Many ships were in the water, like ducks too paralyzed to fly from the blasts of a hunter's shotgun. But the ack-ack was bad, and there were Japanese fighters in the air.

Three Dozen Ships Down

Almost three dozen Japanese ships were at the bottom of the sea. Planes were burning on Nichols and Clark fields, and 24 enemy craft had been destroyed.

That was the picture returning pilots brought today to this carrier force that struck at Manila. There is no doubt it was one of the greatest air victories of the Pacific war. More than 1,500 sorties were made.

Lieut. (j. g.) Walter Fontaine, of New Orleans, described his attack:

"The first thing that struck my eye was Manila Bay—it's very big, you know—and Corregidor, sitting out there like a big rock.

"The harbor was full of ships and, coming in, we could see the torpedo planes making their attacks.

Hits On Nichols Field

"The Japanese had started smudge pots to haze over the city. But I saw a lot of good hits made on Nichols Field.

"I think we surprised them."

Lieut. John D. Bridgers, son of the advertising manager of the Greenville (N. C.) Reflector, said he and his dive-bomber division were headed for Nichols field, but when he saw that another group had the hanger area "fairly well smashed" he hit an ammunition dump. The explosion gave his plane "quite a jolt," he said, and when he looked back smoke was several thousand feet high.

Fighter sweeps were made over Manila first to clear the way for bombers. Dogfights flared and one group of Hellcats, led by Lieut. Com. Frederick Bardshar, whose wife lives in Vancouver, B. C., shot down 33 of the enemy. Bardshar shared two kills with his wingman, Ensign Arthur Munson, of Rochester, N. Y.

Intense Ack-Ack

"Throughout both days the ack-ack fire was intense," said fighter skipper Lieut. Com. James Riggs, of Norkolk, Va.

Dive-Bomber Pilot Lieut. (j. g.) Warren Parish, of Richmond, and ARM 3/c Ronald Guilbeau, of New Orleans, said ack-ack was so heavy they were sure they saw cannon balls zooming past the plane.

Another who participated in this first American raid on Manila since its capture by the Japanese 30 months ago was Lieut. (j. g.) Charles Hurd, Silver Spring, Md.

IMPORTANT OPERATIONS SEEN FOR AUSTRALIANS

MELBOURNE, Tuesday, Oct. 10—(AP) Australia's imperial forces will be engaged in future operations as important or even more important than any in which they have already participated, Francis E. Forde, Army minister, said today.

"There is a fallacious idea," the Minister said, that the AIF (Australian Imperial force) consists of only three divisions and that the rest of the Australian army comprises the so-called militia. Although I cannot disclose figures I can say there are no completely militia formations in the Australian army. More than 85 per cent of the militia is now in the AIF."

(The famed Australian Ninth division made history at El Alamein when it turned Marshal Erwin Rommel's flank and started the German rout that ended in the Allied victory in North Africa. It later plunged into the New Guinea jungle to wage the terrific Lae and Finschaffen campaigns. The Australian Seventh and Sixth divisions also have won fame.

(Some 90,000 Japanese troops remain in New Guinea, New Britain and Bougainville and Forde might mean the Australians will kill or capture them as well as aid British forces in attacks on the Dutch East Indies.)

Tribune Is Allowed To Print In Australia

Melbourne, Tuesday, Oct. 10 (AP). It was disclosed today that the Australian Government has given the Chicago Tribune permission to publish a specified number of copies in Australia for circulation among American troops in Southwest Pacific operational areas.

Replying to a question as to whether the Tribune's Southwest Pacific edition would be permitted to carry "anti-British propaganda," the Customs Minister, Senator Keane, said "there has been a satisfactory understanding on this and the matters."

Carol Leaving Mexico

On First Lap of Journey That May Take Him to Romania

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9 (AP).—Former King Carol of Romania and Elena Lupescu, his consort, departed from Mexico City by automobile today on the first lap of a journey which may take them back to Bucharest.

They and their party are expected to arrive tonight at Vera Cruz, where they will board the Argentine steamship Tunuyan later this week for a voyage to Brazil. Carol has announced he has "no plans beyond Brazil," but his friends here are confident he intends to return to Romania.

NICARAGUAN LEADER KILLED IN SKIRMISH

SAN JOSE, Costa Itica, Oct. 9—(AP) War ministry officials said today that Gen. Noguera Gomez, leader of an uprising of Nicaraguans, was killed last night in a bloody skirmish between Costa Rican forces and Nicaraguan revolutionaries near the border town of Loschiles.

In the clash, which climaxed Gomez' dramatic attempt to invade Nicaragua for the purpose of beginning a revolution, between eight and 10 Nicaraguans were killed and several Costa Rican soldiers were wounded.

New Cuban President In Office Tomorrow

Havana, Oct. 9 (AP).—The administration of Major-Gen. Fulgencio Batista, outgoing President of the Republic of Cuba, took final steps today to assure a peaceful transfer of power tomorrow to President-elect Grau San Martin. All members of the national police force were put on reserve duty at barracks for the four-day perid of colorful fiestas in which thousands from all the provinces will celebrate the inauguration.

Typhoon Season Handicaps

Cigarette Shortage Is Also Felt In Japan

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 9 (AP)—There is a cigarette shortage in Japan, too.

The Japanese Domei (news) Agency in a broadcast said seven expensive brands of cigarettes were suspended today.

A new tipless cigarette will be issued, along with a shredded tobacco for "roll your own" exponents, Domei said.

Japan Requisitions Platinum

San Francisco, Oct. 9 (AP)—Compulsory sale of all family platinum has been ordered by Japan's Munitions Ministry to offset the shortage of this "important and indispensable war material," Tokyo radio reported today.

Big Four Security Plan Would Keep Peace by Force

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — (AP) A tentative blueprint for a world peace enforcing agency, backed by powerful land and sea forces and by special aerial armadas ready to slash swiftly at any aggressor, was made public today by the big four of the United Nations.

The plan is incomplete, and publication at this time had the effect of summoning world opinion into council to help hammer it into final form. One notable gap was the absence of a decision on the question whether a big power, if accused of aggression, should have power to stymie any action against itself.

A high authority declared late today that the plan leaves open the question whether use of American armed might will require Congressional approval each time aggression is opposed. The plan proposes that each nation pledge a quota of air, land and sea force to be used to keep peace "on the call" of the council of the future agency, and maintain air units "immediately available".

According to the official who would not be quoted by name, "immediately" was not defined by the delegates who wrote the plan. While an American requirement for congressional approval each time force is used would necessarily delay action considerably, he said this is strictly a domestic United States issue.

Secretary of State Hull will resume discussions soon with Senate and House leaders on this point. It is understood that the Administration hopes to secure a single congressional authorization for the use of force whenever necessity arises without further legislative review.

There were indications that conferences among the actual top officials of the powers aimed at agreement on issues too big and too close to national interests for the experts who set up the outline may be already in progress.

British Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden arrived in Moscow for talks with Marshal Stalin and Foreign Commissar V. N. Molotov. There was little doubt here that the unfinished sections of the outline for future peace by force would get a share of their attention.

Russia has been holding out for a provision under which a big nation would have veto power over any action against itself.

Otherwise the conferees who met here at Dumbarton Oaks—the British, Russians and Americans for six weeks and the British, Chinese and Americans for another week—set up a detailed procedure to assure, as President Roosevelt said in comment on their plan, that "no other would-be aggressor or conqueror shall even get started."

The President, asserting that the task of designing a structure of security "has been well begun," offered the project for "full discussion by the people of this country." He said it represents a major objective for which this war is being fought."

Secretary Hull, joining in, the President's implied call to the people to help finish the job, said "much work still remains to be done" before a full United Nations conference can be held to set up the organization, and urged a "nonpartisan spirit" in discussions.

They had no more than issued their invitation for public participation in perfection of the plan, when responses began to come back, led off by the assertion of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, that "a fine beginning in a momentous task" has been made.

Governor Dewey underscored again his often-expressed position that "not only the great but the small nations must have a full share in shaping the peace structure if it is to work."

"We know," he said, "that there is already a large measure of accord with our British, Russian and Chinese friends, and that our approach to other nations is animated by a genuine desire to deal with them as equal partners. With all of this we can not fail."

The plan divides the structure of the organization, entitled "the United Nations", into five parts. Most powerful is the eleven member "Security council," which is effect is an executive branch. Other agencies proposed are the "General Assembly," "International Court of Justice," "Secretariat" and "Economic and Social council."

The United States, Britain, Russia, China and eventually France would have permanent representatives on the Security council, with the assembly choosing six other nations to serve two year terms.

It is understood that except when one is charged with aggression, the Big Four have agreed permanent members on the council must be unanimous on important questions. Decisions would require their votes plus those of enough rotating council members to make a majority or two-thirds.

The Council would act in behalf of the "United Nations" to ensure "prompt and effective action."

Armed Forces, to Balk Threats To Peace, Are Recommended

Staff Chiefs of Five Major Powers Would Direct Military Controls; 11-Nation Council, General Assembly, International Court Provided

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The texts of documents released today outlining tentative plans for a world security organization as drafted at the Dumbarton Oaks conferences follow:

Hull's Statement

The proposals for an international organization for the maintenance of international peace and security, upon which the representatives of the United States, the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union and China have agreed during the conversations at Dumbarton Oaks, have been submitted to the four governments and are today being made generally available to the people of this nation and of the world.

All of us have every reason to be immensely gratified by the results achieved at these conversations. To be sure, the proposals in their present form are neither complete nor final. Much work still remains to be done before a set of completed proposals can be placed before the peace-loving nations of the world as a basis of discussion at a formal conference to draft a charter of the projected organization for submission to the governments. But the document which has been prepared by the able representatives of the four participating nations and has been agreed to by them as their recommendation to their respective governments is sufficiently detailed to indicate the kind of an international organization which, in their judgment, will meet the imperative need of providing for the maintenance of international peace and security.

These proposals are now being studied by the four governments which were represented at the Washington conversations and which will give their urgent attention to the next steps which will be necessary to read the goal of achieving the establishment of an effective international organization.

These proposals are now available for full study and discussion by the peoples of all countries.

We in this country have spent many months in careful planning and wide consultation in preparation for the conversations which have just been concluded. Those who represented the government of the United States in these discussions were armed with the ideas and with the results of thinking contributed by numerous leaders of our national thought and opinion, without regard to political or other affiliations.

It is my earnest hope that, during the time which must elapse before the convocation of a full United Nations conference, discussions in the United States on this all-important subject will continue to be carried on in the same non-partisan spirit of devotion to our paramount national interest in peace and security which has characterized our previous consultations. I am certain that all of us will be constantly mindful of the high responsibility for us and for all peace-loving nations which attaches to this effort to make permanent a victory purchased at so heavy a cost in blood, in tragic suffering and in treasure. We must be constantly mindful of the price which all of us will pay if we fail to measure up to this unprecedented responsibility.

It is, of course, inevitable that when many governments and peoples attempt to agree on a single plan, the result will be in terms of the highest common denominator rather than of the plan of any one nation. The organization to be created must reflect the ideas and hopes of all the peace-loving nations which participate in its creation. The spirit of co-operation must manifest itself in mutual striving to attain the high goal by common agreement.

The road to the establishment of an international organization capable of effectively maintaining international peace and security will be long. At times it will be difficult. But we cannot hope to attain so great an objective without constant effort and unfailing determination that the sacrifices of this war shall not be in vain.

Report to Hull

Report to Secretary of State Hull, by Under Secretary Stettinius, chairman of the United States delegation to the Dumbarton Oaks conference:

I take great pleasure in submitting to you the results of the exploratory conversations on international organization held in Washington between representatives of the governments of the United States, the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union and China. The first phase of the conversations, between the representatives of the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union, took place from Aug. 21 to Sept. 28; the second phase, between representatives of the United States, the United Kingdom and China, were held from Sept. 29 to Oct. 7. The results of the work accomplished in both phases are embodied in the attached proposals which each of the four delegations is transmitting to its respective government as the unanimously agreed recommendations of the four delegations.

I am happy to report that the conversations throughout were characterized by a spirit of complete co-operation and great cordiality among all participants, the proof of which is evident in the wide area of agreement covered in the proposals. The few questions which remain for further consideration, though important, are not in any sense insuperable, and I recommend that the necessary steps for obtaining agreement on these points be taken as soon as possible.

It is proper to emphasize, at the conclusion of these preliminary conversations, that the proposals as they are now submitted to the four governments comprise substantial contributions from each of the delegations. It is my own view, which I believe is shared by all the participants, that the agreed proposals constitute an advance over the tentative and preliminary proposals presented by each delegation. This has resulted from a single-minded effort of all the delegations at Dumbarton Oaks to reach a common understanding as to the most effective international organization capable of fulfilling the hopes of all peoples everywhere.

I wish to take this opportunity to express my grateful recognition of the contribution to the successful outcome of these conversations made by the members of the American delegation and to commend the advisers and the staff for their most helpful assistance. Above all, I wish to express my profound appreciation to the President and to you, Mr. Secretary, for the constant advice and guidance, without which our work could not have been accomplished with such constructive and satisfactory results.

Prefatory Note

The State Department's prefatory note and the statement of tentative proposals for an international security organization:

The government of the United States has now received the report of its delegation to the conversations held in Washington between Aug. 21-Oct. 7, 1944, with the delegations of the United Kingdom, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the Republic of China on the subject of an international organization for the maintenance of peace and security.

There is annexed hereto a statement of tentative proposals indicating in detail the wide range of subjects on which agreement has been reached at the conversations.

The governments which were represented in the discussions in Washington have agreed that after further study of these proposals they will as soon as possible take the necessary steps with a view to the preparation of complete proposals which could then serve as a basis of discussion at a full United Nations conference.

Proposals For the Establishment of a General International Organization

There should be established an international organization under the title of The United Nations, the charter of which should contain provisions necessary to give effect to the proposals which follow.

CHAPTER I Purposes

The purposes of the organization should be:

1. To maintain international peace and security; and to that end to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace and the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means adjustment or settlement of international disputes which may lead to a breach of the peace;

2. To develop friendly relations among nations and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international co-operation in the solution of international economic, social and other humanitarian problems; and

4. To afford a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in the achievement of these common ends.

CHAPTER II
Principles

In pursuit of the purposes mentioned in Chapter I the organization and its members should act in accordance with the following principles:

1. The organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all peace-loving states.

2. All members of the organization undertake, in order to insure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership in the organization, to fulfill the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the charter.

3. All members of the organization shall settle their disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security are not endangered.

4. All members of the organization shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the organization.

5. All members of the organization shall give every assistance to the organization in any action undertaken by it in accordance with the provisions of the charter.

6. All members of the organization shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which preventive or enforcement action is being undertaken by the organization.

The organization should insure that states not members of the organization act in accordance with these principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER III
Membership

Membership of the organization should be open to all peace-loving states.

CHAPTER IV
Principal Organs

1. The organization should have as its principal organs:
   - A. A general assembly;
   - B. A security council;
   - C. An internationl court of justice; and
   - D. A secretariat.

2. The organization should have such subsidiary agencies as may be found necessary.

CHAPTER V
The General Assembly

Section A
Composition

All members of the organization should be members of the general assembly and should have a number of representatives to be specified in the charter.

Section B
Functions and Powers

1. The general assembly should have the right to consider the general principles of co-operation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulation of armaments; to discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by any member or members of the organization or by the security council; and to make recommendations with regard to any such principles or questions. Any such questions on which action is necessary should be referred to the security council by the general assembly either before or after discussion. The general assembly should on its own initiative make recommendations on any matter relating to the maintenance of international peace and security which is being dealt with by the security council.

2. The general assembly should be empowered to admit new members to the organization upon recommendation of the security council.

3. The general assembly should, upon recommendation of the security council, be empowered to suspend from the exercise of any rights or privileges of membership any member of the organization against which preventive or enforcement action shall have been taken by the security council. The exercise of the rights and privileges thus suspended may be restored by decision of the security council. The general assembly should be empowered, upon recommendation of the security council, to expel from the organization any member of the organization which persistently violates the principles contained in the charter.

4. The general assembly should elect the non-permanent members of the security council and the members of the economic and social council provided for in Chapter IX. It should be empowered to elect, upon recommendation of the security council, the secretary-general of the organization. It should perform such functions in relation to the election of the judges of the international court of justice as may be conferred upon it by the statute of the court.

5. The general assembly should apportion the expenses among the members of the organization and should be empowered to approve the budgets of the organization.

6. The general assembly should initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of promoting international co-operation in political, economic and social fields and of adjusting situations likely to impair the general welfare.

7. The general assembly should make recommendations for the co-ordination of the policies of international economic, social and other specialized agencies brought into relation with the organization in accordance with agreements between such agencies and the organization.

8. The general assembly should receive and consider annual and special reports from the security council and reports from other bodies of the organization.

Section C
Voting

1. Each member of the organization should have one vote in the general assembly.

2. Important decisions of the general assembly, including recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security; election of members of the security council; election of members of the economic and social council; admission of members, suspension of the exercise of the rights and privileges of members, and expulsion of members; and budgetary questions, should be made by a two-thirds majority of those present and voting. On other questions, including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority, the decisions of the general assembly should be made by a simple majority vote.

Section D
Procedure

1. The general assembly should meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require.

2. The general assembly should adopt its own rules of procedure and elect its president for each session.

3. The General Assembly should be empowered to set up such bodies and agencies as it may deem necessary for the performance of its functions.

CHAPTER VI
The Security Council

Section A
Composition

The security council should consist of one representative of each of eleven members of the organization. Representatives of the United States of America, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the Republic of China, and, in due course, France, should have permanent seats. The general assembly should elect six states to fill the non-permanent seats. These six states should be elected for a term of two years, three retiring each year. They should not be immediately eligible for re-election. In the first election of the non-permanent members three should be chosen by the general assembly for one-year terms and three for two-year terms.

Section B
Principal Functions and Powers

1. In order to insure prompt and effective action by the organization, members of the organization should by the charter confer on the security council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and should agree that in carrying out these duties under this responsibility it should act on their behalf.

2. In discharging these duties the security council should act in accordance with the purposes and principles of the organization.

3. The specific powers conferred on the security council in order to carry out these duties are laid down in Chapter VIII.

4. All members of the organization should obligate themselves to accept the decisions of the security council and to carry them out in accordance with the provisions of the charter.

5. In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion of the world's human and economic resources for armaments, the security council, with the assistance of the military staff committee referred to in Chapter VIII, Section B, paragraph 9, should have the responsibility for formulating plans for the establishment of a system of regulation of armaments for submission to the members of the organization.

Section C
Voting

(Note—The question of voting procedure in the security council is still under consideration.)

Section D
Procedure

1. The security council should be so organized as to be able to function continuously, and each state member of the security council should be permanently represented at the headquarters of the organization. It may hold meetings at such other places as in its judgment may best facilitate its work. There should be periodic meetings at which each state member of the security council could if it so desired be represented by a member of the government or some other special representative.

2. The security council should be empowered to set up such bodies or agencies as it may deem necessary for the performance of its functions, including regional subcommittees of the military staff committee.

3. The security council should adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its president.

4. Any member of the organization should participate in the discussion of any question brought before the security council whenever the security council considers that the interests of that member of the organization are specially affected.

5. Any member of the organization not having a seat on the security council and any state not a member of the organization, if it is a party to a dispute under consideration by the security council, should be invited to participate in the discussion relating to the dispute.

CHAPTER VII
An International Court of Justice

1. There should be an international court of justice which should constitute the principal judicial organ of the organization.

2. The court should be constituted and should function in accordance with a statute which should be annexed to and be a part of the charter of the organization.

3. The statute of the court of international justice should be either (a) the statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, continued in force with such modifications as may be desirable or (b) a new statute in the preparation of which the statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice should be used as a basis.

4. All members of the organization should ipso facto be parties to the statute of the international court of justice.

5. Conditions under which states not members of the organization may become parties to the statute of the international court of justice should be determined in each case by the general assembly upon recommendation of the security council.

CHAPTER VIII
Arrangements for the Maintenance of International Peace and Security Including Prevention and Suppression of Aggression

Section A
Pacific Settlement of Disputes

1. The security council should be empowered to investigate any dispute, or any situation which may lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether its continuance is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

2. Any state, whether member of the organization or not, may bring any such dispute or situation to the attention of the general assembly or of the security council.

3. The parties to any dispute the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security should obligate themselves, first of all, to seek a solution by negotiation, mediation, conciliation, arbitration or judicial settlement, or other peaceful means of their own choice. The security council should call upon the parties to settle their dispute by such means.

4. If, nevertheless, parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Paragraph 3 above fail to settle it by the means indicated in that paragraph, they should obligate themselves to refer it to the Security Council. The Security Council should in each case decide whether or not the continuance of the particular dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, and, accordingly, whether the Security Council should deal with the dispute, and, if so, whether it should take action under Paragraph 5.

5. The Security Council should be empowered, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Paragraph 3 above, to recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

6. Justiciable disputes should normally be referred to the International Court of Justice. The Security Council should be empowered to refer to the court, for advice, legal questions connected with other disputes.

7. The provisions of Paragraphs 1 to 6 of Section A should not apply to situations or disputes arising out of matters which by international law are solely within the domestic jurisdiction of the state concerned..

Section B
Determination of Threats to the Peace or Acts of Aggression and Action With Respect Thereto

1. Should the Security Council deem that a failure to settle a dispute in accordance with procedures indicated in Paragraph 3 of Section A, or in accordance with its recommendations made under Paragraph 5 of Section A, constitutes a threat to the maintenance of international peace and security, it should take any measures necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security in accordance with the purposes and principles of the organization.

2. In general the Security Council should determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace or act of aggression and should make recommendations or decide upon the measures to be taken to maintain or restore peace and security.

3. The Security Council should be empowered to determine what diplomatic, economic, or other measures not involving the use of armed force should be employed to give effect to its decisions, and to call upon members of the organization to apply such measures. Such measures may include complete or partial interruption of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio and other means of communication and the severance of diplomatic and economic relations.

4. Should the Security Council consider such measures to be inadequate, it should be empowered to take such action by air, naval or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade and other operations by air, sea or land forces of members of the organization.

5. In order that all members of the organization should contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, they should undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements concluded among themselves, armed forces, facilities and assistance necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security. Such agreement or agreements should govern the numbers and types of forces and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided. The special agreement or agreements should be negotiated as soon as possible and should in each case be subject to approval by the Security Council and to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their constitutional processes.

6. In order to enable urgent military measures to be taken by the organization there should be held immediately available by the members of the organization national air-force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action should be determined by the security council with the assistance of the military staff committee within the limits laid down in the special agreement or agreements referred to in Paragraph 5 above.

7. The action required to carry out the decisions of the security council for the maintenance of international peace and security should be taken by all the members of the organization in co-operation or by some of them as the security council may determine. This undertaking should be carried out by the members of the organization by their own action and through action of the appropriate specialized organizations and agencies of which they are members.

8. Plans for the application of armed force should be made by the security council with the assistance of the military staff committee referred to in Paragraph 9 below.

9. There should be established a military staff committee the functions of which should be to advise and assist the security council on all questions relating to the security council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, to the employment and command of forces placed at its disposal, to the regulation of armaments and to possible disarmament. It should be responsible under the security council for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the security council. The committee should be composed of the chiefs of staff of the permanent members of the security council or their representatives. Any member of the organization not permanently represented on the committee should be invited by the committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the committee's responsibilities requires that such a state should participate in its work. Questions of command of forces should be worked out subsequently.

10. The members of the organization should join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the security council.

11. Any state, whether a member of the organization or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of measures which have been decided upon by the security council should have the right to consult the security council in regard to a solution of those problems.

Section C
Regional Arrangements

1. Nothing in the charter should preclude the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action, provided such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the purposes and principles of the organization. The security council should encourage settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies, either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the security council.

2. The security council should, where appropriate, utilize such arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority, but no enforcement action should be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the security council.

3. The security council should at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX
Arrangements for International Economic and Social Co-operation

Section A
Purpose and Relationships

1. With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations, the organization should facilitate solutions of international economic, social and other humanitarian problems and promote respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. Responsibility for the discharge of this function should be vested in the general assembly and, under the authority of the general assembly, in an economic and social council.

2. The various specialized economic, social and other organizations and agencies would have responsibilities in their respective fields as defined in their statutes. Each such organization or agency should be brought into relationship with the organization on terms to be determined by agreement between the economic and social council and the appropriate authorities of the specialized organization or agency, subject to approval by the general assembly.

Section B
Composition and Voting

The economic and social council should consist of representatives of eighteen members of the organization. The states to be represented for this purpose should be elected by the general assembly for terms of three years. Each such state should have one representative, who should have one vote. Decisions of the economic and social council should be taken by simple majority vote of those present and voting.

Section C
Functions and Powers of the Economic and Social Council

1. The economic and social council should be empowered:

A. To carry out, within the scope of its functions, recommendations of the general assembly;

B. To make recommendations, on its own initiative, with respect to international economic, social and other humanitarian matters;

C. To receive and consider reports from the economic, social and other organizations or agencies brought into relationship with the organization, and to co-ordinate their activities through consultations with, and recommendations to, such organizations or agencies;

D. To examine the administrative budgets of such specialized organizations or agencies with a view to making recommendations to the organizations or agencies concerned;

E. To enable the secretary-general to provide information to the security council;

F. To assist the security council upon its request; and

G. To perform such other functions within the general scope of its competence as may be assigned to it by the general assembly.

SECTION D
Organization and Procedure

1. The economic and social council should set up an economic commission, a social commission, and such other commissions as may be required. These commissions should consist of experts. There should be a permanent staff which should constitute a part of the secretariat of the organization.

2. The economic and social council should make suitable arrangements for representatives of the specialized organizations or agencies to participate without vote in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it.

3. The economic and social council should adopt its own rules of procedure and the method of selecting its president.

CHAPTER X
The Secretariat

1. There should be a secretariat comprising a secretary-general and such staff as may be required. The secretary-general should be the chief administrative officer of the organization. He should be elected by the general assembly on recommendation of the security council, for such term and under such conditions as are specified in the charter.

2. The secretary-general should act in that capacity in all meetings of the general assembly, of the security council, and of the economic and social council and should make an annual report to the general assembly on the work of the organization.

3. The secretary-general should have the right to bring to the attention of the security council any matter which in his opinion may threaten international peace and securtiy.

CHAPTER XI
Amendments

Amendments should come into force for all members of the organization, when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the general assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by the members of the organization having permanent membership on the security council and by a majority of the other members of the organization.

CHAPTER XII
Transitional Arrangements

1. Pending the coming into force of the special agreement or agreements referred to in Chapter VIII, Section B, Paragraph 5, and in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 5 of the four-nation declaration, signed at Moscow, Oct. 30, 1943, the states parties to that declaration should consult with one another and as occasion arises with other members of the organization with a view to such joint action on behalf of the organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. No provision of the charter should preclude action taken or authorized in relation to enemy states as a result of the present war by the governments having responsibility for such action.

Note

In addition to the question of voting procedure in the security council referred to in Chapter VI, several other questions are still under consideration.

Main Points of Tentative Plan For World Security Organization

Washington, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Main points of the tentative plan worked out by the United States, Britain, China and Russia for a new world security organization:

1. A general assembly of all peace-loving nations based on the principle of sovereign equality, with each nation to have one vote. The assembly's powers would be mainly to make recommendations.

2. A security council of eleven members with permanent seats for the United States, Britain, Russia, China and, "in due course," France; the other six members to be elected by the assembly to rotating seats. The council would decide when peace is threatened and when to use force to restrain aggression. Voting procedure remains to be decided.

3. An economic and social council of eighteen members elected by the assembly to co-ordinate international economic, welfare and cultural organizations, work with the security council and make recommendations.

4. An international court—the four Powers left unsettled whether to continue the permanent World Court at the Hague, or set up a new one.

5. A permanent secretariat-general, with a secretary-general to be elected by the assembly on the recommendation of the security council.

6. Regional organizations to function under the general security organization and in accordance with its purpose of maintaining peace.

In connection with the use of force to keep peace, the plan provides:

1. Member nations should conclude special agreements, presumably in treaty form, making armed forces and facilities available to the security council.

2. They should make contingents of their air forces "immediately available" to the council for "combined international enforcement action."

Text of Roosevelt's Statement

Washington, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt's statement on the plan for an international security organization follows:

I wish to take this opportunity to refer to the work of the Dumbarton Oaks conversations between the delegations of the United States, the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union, and China, on the plan for an international organization for the maintenance of peace and security.

End of Conversations.

The conversations were completed Saturday, October 7, 1944, and proposals were submitted to the four governments for their consideration. These proposals have been made public to permit full discussion by the people of this country prior to the convening of a [illegible] conference on this all-important subject.

Although I have not yet been able to make a thorough study of these proposals, my first impression is one of extreme satisfaction, and even surprise, that so much could have been accomplished on so difficult a subject in so short a time. This achievement was largely due to the long and thorough preparations which were made by the governments represented, and, in our case, were the result of the untiring devotion and care which the Secretary of State had personally given to this work for more than two and a half years —indeed, for many years.

The projected international organization has for its primary purpose the maintenance of international peace and security and the creation of the conditions that make for peace.

Spirit of Unity.

We now know the need for such an organization of the peace - loving peoples and the spirit of unity which will be required to maintain it. Aggressors like Hitler and the Japanese war lords organize for years for the day when they can launch their evil strength against weaker nations devoted to their peaceful pursuits.

This time we have been determined first to defeat the enemy, assure that he shall never again be in position to plunge the world into war, and then to so organize the peace-loving nations that they may, through unity of desire, unity of will and unity of strength, be in position to assure that no other would - be aggressor or conqueror shall even get started.

That is why, from the very beginning of the war, and paralleling our military plans, we have begun to lay the foundations for the general organization for the maintenance of peace and security.

War's Major Objective.

It represents, therefore, a major objective for which this war is being fought, and, as such, it inspires the highest hopes of the millions of fathers and mothers whose sons and daughters are engaged in the terrible struggle and suffering of war.

The projected general organization may be regarded as the keystone of the arch and will include within its framework a number of specialized economic and social agencies now existing or to be established.

The task of planning the great design of security and peace has been well begun. It now remains for the nations to complete the structure in a spirt of constructive purpose and mutual confidence.

Two Pacts for Security Plan

Two Treaties Will Go Before U. S. Senate—House Action Also Required.

Washington, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Action by both the Senate alone and the entire Congress is envisaged in the tentative outline for a world security organization made public today. At least two treaties would come before the Senate for ratification, while both houses would have to act on at least two pieces of legislation.

Treaty ratification would be required for:

1. The charter of the new organization.

2. A master agreement, or series of special agreements, guaranteeing armed forces and facilities of the member nations for use of the security council in maintaining peace and stamping out aggression.

The legislation would embrace:

1. A measure setting up the way in which American forces would be made available. It is understood that the administration will press for the creation of a special unit which could be sent into action without further specific congressional approval.

2. Appropriation measures for the international organization and the United States armed force.

Connally Praises Plan.

Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee described the Dumbarton Oaks peace plan today as holding the means for preventing future wars and as "a document that ought to receive the support of the American people, Senator Willis (R.-Ind.) told reporters that it represents "considerable progress" toward the formation of an effective world peace organization.

"It meets the world demand for permanent peace machinery," Senator Connally said in a statement. "It follows closely the American plan as framed and discussed in conferences between Secretary of State Hull and representatives of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate.

"As a whole, the plan adopted meets with my full approval. Its insistence upon the employment of peaceful measures of settlement is of the highest importance. Armed force is to be employed only as a last resort against recalcitrant and defiant aggressors who would disturb the public peace."

DEWEY ENDORSES OUTLINE OF AIMS ON POSTWAR PEACE

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 9. — (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today endorsed the Dumbarton Oaks postwar security recommendations as "a fine beginning," but declared there still was much to be done to complete the structure "we plan."

In a statement issued after publication of the "Big-Four" plan for forceful preservation of peace, the Republican aspirant for President Roosevelt's post said he was "very happy over the result" of the initial negotiations.

"All peace-loving people must rejoice that we have found so large an area of agreement about world organization for peace," he said. "The unanimous recommendations open the way to the next steps.

"We must take advantage of that mood of common purpose to assure continuing unity for peace. This makes it important to act promptly rather than to delay in the search for perfection.

"We must not be discouraged or become disunited if every detail is not immediately solved to perfection. The initial organization will in any event need to be perfected as we go along."

Thus Dewey apparently sought to allay any fears that a change in administration would alter America's fundamental postwar foreign policy as enunciated at the recently concluded four power conferences in Washington.

The Governor, who has been placing increasing stress lately on the international aspects of his campaign, was kept informed of conference developments through John Foster Dulles, New York lawyer, who acted as liaison agent between Dewey and Secretary of State Hull.

Only this morning Dewey issued a proclamation setting aside tomorrow as "Free China Day" and called for an "ever greater degree of aid" to that country. Thursday, he will review the annual Columbus Day parade in New York, an event that usually brings a large outpouring of Italian Americans.

Reiterating in his statement on the Dumbarton Oaks conference that "not only the great but the small nations" should have a full share in the projected world organization, Dewey called for a quick canvass of the views of other eligible nations. The Washington talks were confined to representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China.

"We know that there is in this country bi-partisan agreement upon the end to be achieved; that there is already a large measure of accord with our British, Russian and Chinese friends," he said, "and that our approach to other nations is animated by a genuine desire to deal with them as equal partners. With all of this we cannot fail."

Tomorrow Dewey plans to attend funeral services in New York city for Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 Republican presidential nominee who died Sunday.

Dewey will leave tomorrow at 9:40 a. m. for New York, returning to Albany on the 4:40 p. m. train after the funeral. He will travel again to New York this week to fulfill the Columbus Day engagement.

SECURITY PLAN SEEN STOPPING FUTURE WARS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — (AP) Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee today described the Dumbarton Oaks peace plan as holding the means for preventing future wars and as "a document that ought to receive the support of the American people irrespective of party affiliations."

Senator Wills (R.-Ind.) told reporters it represents "considerable progress" toward the formation of an effective world peace organization.

"It meets the world demand for permanent peace machinery," Connally said in a statement. "It follows closely the Americna plan as framed and discussed in conferences between Secretary of State Hull and representatives of the committee on foreign relations of the Senate.

ANARCHY PERIL IN FRANCE SEEN

Texan Urges Allied Recognition Of A Government

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Representative Poage (D., Texas) predicted today on his return from Europe with five other House members that anarchy will threaten France unless the Allies get together on recognition of a government.

"Unless we step in and set up a government for France or recognize some one element and stabilize internal affairs," he said, "chaos and anarchy will exist."

Problem When Winter Comes

With minorities clarmoring for control, Poage said, there "will be a problem to retain law and order when winter comes and food and fuel shortages haunt the people of Paris and other big cities."

Advocate of "hard" peace terms for Germany, Poage said he was surprised "to find so many people in England" favoring relatively easy terms of surrender.

Representative Fisher (D., (Texas), who also made the trip, suggested that peace terms should be severe enough to prevent future aggression. Fisher said he believed that most Englishmen favor destruction of German militarism.

Handling Of GI Vote Criticized

Representative Miller (R., Neb.), another member of the group, criticized the army's handling of absentee voting for servicemen, saying there was pressure for use of the short Federal ballot rather than the State ballot.

Representative Hays (D., Ark.) said his talks with members of Parliament convinced him that politics in England had been suspended for the duration of the war. He added that he was impressed by a determination of the British to prevent Germany from rebuilding its war machine.

Statement Warns Of U-Boat Effort

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Allied losses to German submarines were close to the wartime low in September, but the monthly Anglo-American statement on U-boat warfare warned today that Nazi undersea activity may soon increase.

"This year, as last, the enemy may hope to renew his offensive in the autumn and may rely on new types of U-boats to counter our present ascendency," said the communique, issued by the Office of War Information under authority of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of 160 carualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 66,344 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total, 26,203 are reported dead, 25,925 wounded, 9,736 missing and 4,480 prisoners of war. Included in the list today are the following with their next of kin:

EARNSHAW CITED BY ADM. NIMITZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — (AP) Big George Earnshaw, whose high hard one fanned many an American league hitter, struck out three Japanese planes in an attack on Truk and thereby won a special citation from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, the Navy revealed today.

The six-foot four Swarthmore, Pa., pitcher earned the commendation ribbon as gunnery officer on an aircraft carrier.

Earnshaw teamed with Bob Grove and Rube Walberg to pitch the Philadelphia Athletics to three consecutive pennants from 1929 to 1931 inclusive. Traded to the Chicago White Sox, Earnshaw later quit baseball and took up a Navy reserve commission as a lieutenant-commander.

He took part in a carrier strike on the big Japanese base at Truk on April 29 this year and his citation by the Pacific commander in chief said.

"For meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service as gunnery officer of a United State Aircraft carrier during operation against the enemy at Truk April 29, 1944. With exceptional ability and judgment, and commendable calmness he controlled and directed effective anti-aircraft fire against three fast, low-flying, enemy torpedo planes and contributed directly in saving his ship from serious damage. x x x."

LIMITED SERVICE CLASSIFICATION IS ELIMINATED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — (AP) National Selective Service today ordered an end to the "limited service" classification for draft registrants, and took action to halt the re-induction of veterans who have been honorably discharged from military service.

In still another change in regulations, draft headquarters ruled that men of 38 and over henceforth will be placed in class 4-A, instead of 1-A-H. Although this change is mainly a formality to simplify draft rules, it takes some "work or fight" pressure off men of that age by removing them from a classification technically subject to call.

Registrants in the 4-A group previously have been 45 and older. Placement of men 38 and up in this category means they can not be called for service without a blanket change in draft procedure for the entire 38-45 age group.

Abolition of 1-A-(L) covering men who are physically acceptable for limited duty only was ordered because the Army and Navy have not made calls for limited service registrants since June.

"The local boards will reopen the classification of all such registrants who have heretofore been placed in class 1-A-(L) and the registrants will be classified into other deferred classifications," Selective Service said.

All servicemen discharged under honorable conditions will be retained in class 1-C, local boards were notified. This is the classification given all men who enter the Army and Navy. Continuation in 1-C after discharge means that veterans will not be called again since they are, in the eyes of Selective Serive, still in the armed forces.

Previously, only registrants who had been discharged for physical or mental disability were retained in class 1-C, all other discharged men being classified into other groups.

Although there is no official estimate of the number of men called up for service after a previous discharge, there are known to have been cases in which men discharged for physical reasons have been re-inducted after a new medical examination.

Supreme Court Bars Ruling on Federal Ballot

It Rejects Plea for Speed, Reaffirms Its Decision on Insurance Control

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—A request for a hurry-up ruling on the validity of the Federal ballot in states which have not certified its use by service men and women was turned down today by the Supreme Court.

At the same time, rejecting the plea of forty-two states for a rehearing, the tribunal announced that it is standing pat on its decision that insurance is interstate commerce and subject to regulation under the Sherman anti-trust act.

Lieutenant William Downey and four other Illinois service men had sought a swift decision on the Federal ballot, asserting that the failure of Illinois to certify the ballot would deprive them and 300,000 other Illinois service men of a vote on Nov. 7.

Their attorneys said that a court decision upholding the constitutionality of the ballot in Illinois would make possible its use by service men from all states. More than twenty-five states have not certified its use.

The soldier vote law provided that the short-form Federal ballot could be used by service personnel in the event that they did not receive a state ballot and the governor of their state had certified that the Federal ballot would be acceptable.

Want All of Court to Decide

The insurance decision was made on June 5 by a 4-to-3 vote, with Associate Justices Owen J. Roberts and Stanley F. Reed not participating. A rehearing was sought by the Southeastern Underwriters' Association, whose indictment on anti-trust charges was upheld by the ruling. Attorneys General of forty-two states joined in the appeal.

The association contended that a decision of such far-reaching effect should have been decided by a majority of the whole court and asserted that the decision itself had made the conduct of the insurance business a "perilous" operation.

In other actions today, the court:

Let stand a ruling of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia that courts do not have the right to review orders of the National War Labor Board. The lower court, in a decision involving the employers' group of motor freight carriers, held that the W. L. B. orders were "informatory and at most, advisory."

Refused to review a Massachusetts state court's issuance of an injunction limiting picketing to two persons at each entrance to a plant involved in a labor disturbance. The review was asked by a voluntary trade union association which was restricted in picketing the New England Novelty Company plant at Leominster, Mass., in 1941.

Decided to review a lower court decision that the Republic Aviation Corporation violated the national labor relations act by prohibiting employees from soliciting union memberships at the company's Suffolk County, New York, plant and by forbidding workers to wear union "shop steward" buttons while at work.

Rejects Salary-Freeze Case

Asserting there was lack of a substantial Federal question, declined to consider an appeal by Charles D. Offhouse and other employees of the Paterson, N. J., Board of Education that their constitutional rights had been violated when the board froze salaries at 1932 levels and abandoned a salary schedule.

Refused to review suits by the New York Yacht Club and Mary Stevens Baird against the New York Stock Exchange for damages resulting from conversion of securities by Richard Whitney, former Exchange member.

Refused to review litigation growing out of refusal by a legitimate theater in New York City to admit a ticket holder to a performance. The Forty-sixth Street Theater Corporation, and the Select Operating Company, Inc., asked the review after a $500 penalty was ordered paid to the ticket holder, Robert Christie.

Agreed today to review conviction of Morris Malinski and Sidney Rudish, under death sentence in the killing of Patrolman Leon Fox in a hold-up at Coney Island, Brooklyn.

Refused a request by the New York State Guernsey Breeders' Cooperative, Inc., that it review an order by Claude Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, regulating the handling of milk in the New York City marketing area.

Army To Raise Output Of Heavy Ammunition

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Construction of an additional $150,000,000 worth of facilities for producing rockets and heavy ammunition was announced today by the War Department.

More than one third of the construction is completed, the department said.

Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of Army Services Forces, recently said that heavy artillery ammunition was among the items in which production had lagged behind schedule. He added that by the end of this year monthly output must be stepped up to more than a million and a half rounds.

The new construction involves projects ranging from $3,000 to one costing over $29,000,000. Largest of the jobs is at the Badger Ordnance Works at Baraboo, Wis.

Brass Hats' Gold Braid Finds Balm In Tax-Deduction Gilead

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—The gold-braid boys of the army and navy got a break today from Uncle Sam's income-tax collector.

The Internal Revenue Bureau ruled that braid, lace, shoulder marks, chin straps and other doodads are a "legitimate business expense" and thus deductible on tax returns.

It represents quite an item.

Admiral's Millinery

Take an admiral, for instance. He dolls up in about 75 bucks' worth of gold braid every time he gets up in the morning unless he's at battle station aboard a carrier or slogging around on jungle beaches. He may have as many as eight or ten uniforms.

A navy lieutenant commander who offers his case as typical says he has spent $1,000 in four years on uniforms and probably 10 or 15 per cent. of that was for sleeve stripes, buttons, and other insignia that fall in the tax-deductible category.

Just those little stars on the sleeve cost $2.50 a pair. When a navy man gets to the rank of commander, he wears a cap with special scrolls on the visor—known to every sailor as "scrambled eggs"—and that costs $18.

Wears What The Book Says

There isn't any choice about it, either. An officer wears what the book says until he gets to such a high position he can rewrite the book.

The tax ruling covers changes in uniforms brought about by promotions. That suits just fine the junior officers who'll tell you they're sometimes scared to death of a promotion because they don't have the dough to look the part.

Hull Disavows Reported Plan To Serve Dewey

Says His 'Loyalty Belongs to the Government and Present Official Head'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—In an extraordinary formal statement, Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, objected today to published reports that he would be asked to serve Thomas E. Dewey as a foreign-policy adviser should the Republican nominee be elected President.

"I wish to make clear," Mr. Hull said, "that my support and loyalty belong primarily to the government and its present official head, President Roosevelt. And in order that no American citizen may be misled this will continue to be my attitude."

Three New York newspapers, "The New York Times," the Herald Tribune and "The Daily News," reported there are indications that Mr. Dewey, if elected, would ask Mr. Hull to stay on with the Administration, the Herald Tribune's story asserting that Governor Dewey, if elected, plans to ask Mr. Hull "to remain with the government and work toward the building of an international peace organization."

The story said it was not known exactly what arrangement would be proposed, whether Mr. Hull would be asked to remain as State Department head or serve under Mr. Dewey as an adviser.

"The prospect of this arrangement is based upon two things," the Herald Tribune said. "First, Governor Dewey's conviction that the working out of international peace plans must be bi-partisan through the leadership of both political parties; and, second, his high regard for Mr. Hull."

Mr. Hull's statement follows:

"Referring to certain statements in the press today relating to my possible service in international affairs at a future period it is not known whether this publicity was authorized or unauthorized.

"While the subject matter of the publicity is complimentary to that portion of the work done by the present national Administration to insure lasting peace, I must object to it or anything of the kind regardless of whether it is authorized or unauthorized.

"To correct at this early stage such reports as contained in this morning's press will preserve the policy of non-partisan efforts rather than the contrary.

"I wish to make clear that my support and loyalty belong primarily to the government and its present official head, President Roosevelt. And in order that no American citizen may be misled this will continue to be my attitude."

At no point did the statement say specifically that, if Mr. Dewey were elected and did ask Mr. Hull to stay as an adviser, the seventy-three-year-old Secretary would refuse to do so.

'SECTIONALISM GONE MAD' HIT

Saltonstall Assails Plan To 'Freeze' Industries

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Republican Governor Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts tonight termed as "sectionalism gone mad" the plan of a Senate committee headed by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) to freeze reconversion of Government-owned war plants in northeastern States.

He called istead for "a program of stimulation and aid to private industry in planning its own part in the reconversion."

McCarran is chairman of the special committee studying decentralization of industry.

Saltonstall addressed the opening rally of Washington Dewey-Bricker backers from the same rostrum in the Hotel Statler where President Roosevelt opened his re-election campaign in a speech to the teamsters' union September 23.

Urges Forward Look

Saltonstall urged that in the current campaign, in which he is a candidate for the United States Senate, persons "stop discussing what happened in 1932 or before."

"Let us quit calling each other names," he implored.

Address by Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt will make a brief address to the other American republics on Columbus Day, Oct. 12.

Stephen Early, Presidential secretary, said today Mr. Roosevelt had been asked by Secretary of State Cordell Hull to make the address. Mr. Early said the speech would be non-political.

Arrangements are being made to broadcast the speech, which will be delivered at 4 p. m., Eastern war time, and which is expected to extend about ten minutes.

Ambassadors, ministers and other representatives of the other republics will be invited to attend the broadcast, which will be made from the White House diplomatic reception room.

Exports This Year At Record Figures

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—August exports were valued at $1,200,000,000, slightly more than in July but 17 per cent. less than the record figure of last May, the Commerce Department reported today.

Total value of exports for the first eight months of 1944 was $9,606,000,000, a record. These totals included lend-lease shipments, but not shipments to American forces abroad.

Lend-lease exports in August were $940,000,000, slightly more than in July but 19 per cent. below last May. The lend-lease total for January through August was $7,674,000,000.

General imports of merchandise in August amounted to $302,000,000. For the second straight month this figure is less than the corresponding month of last year. However, general imports for the first eight months of 1944 were running about 22 per cent. above 1943.

Imports of merchandise entering consumption channels during August were valued at $297,000,000, about 10 per cent. under the average of the first seven months of the year.

General imports of newsprint were valued at $11,049,000, compared with $13,506,000 in July, which was the high mark for the year so far.

Information on trade with Latin American republics, reported on a six-month delayed basis, shows an increase of 43 per cent. in exports last March as compared with February, and an increase of 40 per cent. in imports.

Mead Asserts Curb on Rentals Is Up to Dewey

Urges Him to Call Session of Legislature to Halt Business Abuses in N. Y.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, declared tonight that state action is needed to curb "exorbitant increases" in commercial rents in New York City and urged Governor Thomas E. Dewey to convene the Legislature in special session for that purpose.

If the state government fails to act, he said in a statement, the Senate Small Business Committee, of which he is a member, will "not hesitate to take necessary measures."

Senator Mead said the Senate committee, in a report made public earlier today, had found that the commercial rent increase problem was "particularly acute" in New York City, but that the city government lacked any legal authority to act.

"In view of this concentration of commercial rent abuses in New York City and lack of legal authority in the city government to deal with them effectively it is clearly the duty of the state government to act and to act promptly," Senator Mead said.

"Mayor F. H. LaGuardia already has called upon the Governor to convene the State Legislature in special session," the Mead statement continued. "In my opinion, he should grant this request immediately.

Sees Heavy Business Toll

"Otherwise these exorbitant rent increases are likely to result in a heavy toll of small business enterprises at a time when every practicable government aid should be extended to them."

Senator Mead added that correspondence put into the record of the Senate committee hearings showed that Governor Dewey's office was "for some time laboring under the misapprehension that the O. P. A. had power to regulate commercial rent." Senator Mead said this might account for "delaying his executive attention to this urgent small business problem."

"In any case, I trust that the New York State government will now act promptly," he continued. "However, if the situation should grow in extent and the state governments fail to act, our committee will not hesitate to take necessary measures."

Meantime, Price Administrator Chester Bowles announced today that a special survey of residential rents in Westchester County, N. Y., will be made this week to determine whether the county should be brought under rent control.

Mr. Bowles said the survey would show the extent to which rent increases, reported to be in prospect for Oct. 1, have actually taken place. Any decision to impose control, the O. P. A. chief said, will be made "only if it is shown that rent increases have materialized for a substantial number of dwelling units."

Senator Meade said the Small Business Committee decided not to advocate any Federal legislation aaffecting commercial rent because of the finding that the problem was "not national in scope."

1,300 Complaints in N. Y. C.

The Small Business Committee report made public today was based on testimony covering 1,500 complaints of excessive commercial and industrial rentals, 1,300 of them from New York City. It asserted the problem is not "national in scope" and declared:

"The record establishes prima facie the necessity for state or local control of commercial rents in New York City, and to a far lesser extent, perhaps, in Philadelphia, Washington and New Orleans."

The Office of Price Administration's control over residential rents does not extend to commercial establishments.

Immediate Need Stressed

While sixteen cases surveyed in the District of Columbia revealed "some individual cases of grossly unconscionable dealing," the report said, there is nothing to show they are "typical or widespread" or upon which to base a recommendation for Federal control here. Moreover, it pointed out that separate committees dealing with the district are looking into the problem.

While the committee report made reference to a possible need for commercial rent control in Philadelphia and New Orleans, there was no further mention of these two cities, except in an attached summary from the Smaller War Plants Corporation, which says of Philadelphia, simply "no significant number of complaints," and adds:

"New Orleans district reports that, while about half of the plants are self-owned, about 75 per cent of the plants contacted that had short-term leases are having to negotiate new leases at increases of from 100 to 400 per cent.

"The lessors are demanding rental increases because of high prices and increased incomes and the lessees, not being protected by any restrictions of the Office of Price Administration, have preferred to pay the increases in preference to moving."

The practice in New York, the report said, has been to demand renewals for long periods, conditioned in some cases upon discontinuance of valuable services customarily furnished by landlords.

INDEPENDENT INDIA URGED TO AID U.S. TRADE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(AP) Belief that India should achieve complete self-government after the war by concerted action among the Indian leaders themselves, was expressed tonight by Vernon L. Whitney, a director of the Standard-Oil Vacuum company.

In an address prepared for a meeting of the Far East session of the National Foreign Trade convention, Whitney said:

"As an American, speaking from a purely selfish national standing, I trust that we shall see our ally of today, India, elect to remain within the orbit of the free democratic nations, a free partner of the others of the British Commonwealth."

Whitney said that a stable government is a requisite to expanded trade with the United States.

"My reasons for believing there will be post-war expansion of India's foreign trade and all-round economic growth," he said, "are based on the planning in India today by the government and businessmen alike."

Hillman Asked To Reconsider, Speak

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune has asked Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, to reconsider his withdrawal from the speakers' list for the newspaper's October 18 forum meeting.

Hillman notified the newspaper yesterday that he could not "speak as a Democrat in a partisan debate" after the Herald Tribune had printed an article that Hillman "will represent the Democratic side on the Presidential election program," which will close the forum.

At a press conference, Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan said of the choice of Hillman: "I would have suggested a regular Democrat."

Paper's Explanation

In today's editions the Herald Tribune said: "The New York Herald Tribune wishes to state that Mr. Sidney Hillman agreed to speak at the Herald Tribune forum as chairman of the Political Action Committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. He is a member of the American Labor party and represents an independent point of view in his support of President Roosevelt for reelection.

Regulations Are Eased On East Coast Flying

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. George Grunert, commanding the Eastern Defense Command, announced today the easing of regulations governing civilian flying and military pilot training in some hitherto restricted East Coast areas.

The anouncement stated that the former 50-mile-wide vital air defense area, a coastal strip extending from Weston, Maine, to Corolla, N. C., in which flying not essential to the war effort was prohibited, has been reduced to 25 miles in width.

The new defense area excludes parts of the States of Maine, New Hampshire, and Pennsylvania and Hartford, Conn.

Predicts Big Advances In Aviation Turbines

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Guy W. Vaughan, president of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, announced today that aviation turbines as well as conventional type engines would be produced by Wright in the post-war period, and predicted that gas turbine aircraft engines of as much as 10,000 horse power would be available for giant aircraft within the next decade.

Vaughan said development of a turbine of this power would mean more energy in one unit than in all four engines of the mightiest bombers now in use, adding:

"The lightest-weight engine per horsepower in use today is the Cyclone 9, which weighs only 0.97 pounds per horsepower. The gas turbine offers the possibility of decreasing engine weight well below this mark. On a giant transport plane of the future, the turbine engine may mean a saving of as much as 8,000 pounds over present types of engines."

Dewey Urges China Get More Aid In War

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP)—Calling for an "ever greater degree of aid to China," Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today projected his Presidential campaign definitely into the arena of international affairs.

The New York Governor, returning from West Virginia, where he spoke Saturday night, proclaimed tomorrow as "Free China Day" after demanding more public information about Poland's post-war future.

Published reports that Dewey would like to retain Secretary of State Hull in at least an advisory capacity on international affairs if elected next month brought no confirmation from Dewey or his campaign managers.

Dulles Frequently Mentioned

John Foster Dulles has been mentioned most frequently as Dewey's choice for Secretary of State in event of a Republican victory.

Although he professedly was kept advised of Hull's post-war planning talks at Dumbarton Oaks through Dulles, a Dewey-appointed and Hull-accepted intermediary, the candidate yesterday remarked:

"We would like to know more about the results of the private deliberations of those who now discuss Poland's future in secrecy."

This was in a brief broadcast saluting Poland's hero of the American Revolution, Gen. Casimir Pulaski, during a Polish-American parade on New York's Fifth avenue.

Turns To China's Plight

Dewey turned quickly from Nazi-battered Poland to Japanese-mauled China with this proclamation:

"We in this country, for the last three years comrades in arms with the people of China, have sent military aid, however inadequate, to our allies across the Pacific. . . . Nevertheless, today China finds herself in a more desperate condition than at any time since the beginning of the Japanese invasion.

"It is our obligation to our Chinese ally, to the speediest possible defeat of Japan and to a strong and lasting peace after victory, to speed an even greater degree of aid to China as soon as possible."

Grand Finale Planned

Indicating that a grand finale for the Dewey campaign now is being worked out, Dewey was surrounded by a full complement of strategists as he traveled from New York city to Albany last night. They included Herbert Brownell, Jr., Republican national chairman; J. Russel Sprague, national committeeman from New York, and Edwin F. Jaeckle, New York State committee chairman.

Dewey's assistants said he would return to New York city either late Wednesday or early Thursday to review the annual Columbus Day parade up Fifth avenue. No speaking arrangements have been made.

Japanese Ignoring Laws On U.S. Prisoners of War

Many Camps Barred to Red Cross Representatives

BUFFALO, Oct. 9 (AP).—Japan is giving "only lip service" to the Geneva Convention covering treatment of war prisoners, and United States authorities are "very much in the dark about prisoners" there, a regional Red Cross conference was told today.

Captain Wilbert J. Lincoln, chief of the records and identification subsection, Prisoner of War Information Bureau, Office of the Provost Marshal General, declared:

"We have had only sixty-two new prisoners reported by the Japanese since spring, and in August had only our third large mail from the Far East in two years.

"So far, representatives of the International Red Cross . . . have not been permitted by the Japanese to visit camps in the Philippines, Java, Borneo, French Indo-China, Thailand, or Burma, 'for reasons of security.'"

The officials, he said, have been permitted visits to camps in Formosa and Shanghai, and in Mukden, Manchuria, but "the last visit was between April and June this year." Germany, he added, permits periodical visits, sometimes once a month.

Saying the mail situation may be relieved, he asserted: "Negotiations are on now between the American and Japanese governments, through the Russian government, for expediting two-way mail and delivery of bulk relief supplies."

To Aid U. N. R. R. A. in Italy

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP).—The Rev. John P. Boland, Buffalo clergyman and former chairman of the state Labor Relations Board, is on his way to Italy to assist in the administration of relief in that country. The Most Rev. Joseph A. Burke, administrator of the Buffalo Catholic diocese, said the Rev. Mr. Boland is representing the Catholic war relief section of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Will Not Count Ballots Of Killed Servicemen

Boston, Oct. 9 (AP)—Absentee ballots of servicemen killed between the time they cast their ballots and the November election will not be counted in Massachusetts, Frederic W. Cook, Secretary of State, announced today.

Warship Builders Walk Out

Navy Tells Quincy Strikers of 'Terrible Need' for Carriers and Cruisers.

Quincy, Mass., Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Workers at the Bethlehem-Quincy shipyard, estimated variously at 500 to 6,000—walked off their jobs today in what spokesmen said was a protest against wage conditions.

As they quit the yard a Navy official told them of "the terrible need" of the Government for carriers and cruisers now under construction there. A company spokesman said "four or five hundred" had walked out but officials of the Independent union, of which the employees were members said they "estimated" the number at 6,000.

As each worker left he was given a leaflet prepareed by the union which listed their demands as follows:

1. A general wage increase. 2. Wage adjustments; 3. Retroactive pay; 4. Premium pay for Saturdays and Sundays regardless of how many hours had been worked during the week.

Those who walked out also received a typed letter signed by Capt. H. F. D. Davis, U. S. N., supervisor of shipbuilding, in which he said:

"It is not the position of the supervisor of shipbuilding to interfere with management . . . It is, however, the responsibility of the United States Navy to keep production of vessels which this yard has been under contract at the maximum. My purpose . . . is to emphasize to you the terrible need the United States Government has for the carriers and cruisers which you are building."

Last Wednesday 1,900 welders left their jobs in a wage dispute, but returned on Friday.

Cook added that ballots of men subsequently reported missing in action would be counted, and he cautioned local election officials "not to list such men as dead."

English Agriculturists Confer With Governor

Annapolis, Oct. 9 (AP)—Twe English agriculturists conferred with Governor O'Conor today on modern methods of farming and dairying in Maryland.

The two men are on an inspection tour at the invitation of the United States Government in cooperation with the Minister of Agriculture of Great Britain. They are William T. Price, executive officer of the Whiltshire War Agricultural executive committee, and Elwin O. Jones, member of the committee.

Price and Jones planned to visit two of the State's modern farms in Queen Anne's county, studying particularly new methods in dairying, hog and beef cattle raising and general farming.

TYDINGS GIVES 8-POINT PLAN

Senator Laments League-Snubbing After Last War

Centreville, Md., Oct. 9 (AP)—Asserting he favored a strong alliance of all democratic nations in an effort to preserve the peace after the war, Senator Tydings said tonight that if the United States had joined in the League of Nations at the end of the first World War, "I believe that this terrible war might have been avoided."

Tydings and former State Senator Dudley G. Roe, Democratic candidate for Congress fro mthe First district, spoke at a rally held in the Centreville Armory tonight. Approximately 400 persons attended.

Rhetorical Question

"I am one Democrat who does not believe that the Democratic party is always right and that the Republican party is always wrong," Maryland's senior Senator, seeking reelection next month, declared.

"But . . . in the matter of peace, the Democratic party is preeminently entitled to the support of evxery thinking man and woman in the country. . . .

"When we know that this peace must be written by the leaders of Great Britain, b ythe leaders of France, of Poland, Russia, China and of our own country, what party because of its history, its traditions, its point of view is best fitted to write this peace?"

An 8-Point Program

Tydings said he favored an eight-point platform for this country:

Win the war.

Win the peace.

Bring the soldiers home as quickly as possible after the war.

Support an international peace alliance and an international police force.

Balance the budget as soon as possible.

Remove wartime restrictions from business as soon as possible.

Work for freedom of opportunity.

Decentralize the Federal Government and restore as many States' rights as possible.

He said this country had two great political parties, and continued, "it is a good thing we have two and not 10 or 12 parties in this country. In France there are a great many parties. The people there were so divided that no party was strong, and so France was weak at the outbreak of the war."

CHINA SITUATION CALLED "SERIOUS"

Nelson Tells United Relief Group Of Nation's Needs

OCT 11 1944

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP)—Donald M. Nelson, who recently returned from a mission to Chungking, reported tonight he was seeking to work out plans for speeding additional war supplies to China.

The former chairman of the War Production Board, in an address at a meeting sponsored by United China Relief, termed the situation in China "serious but not hopeless."

Trucks For China

"I have actively undertaken to work out the Chinese Government ways in which additional war supplies, including the all-important trucks, can be brought into China as soon as possible," he said. "Particularly is it necessary that war materials and equipment for war industry reach China in a steady flow in order to speed the destruction of the invader. . . .

"It is important that existing industrial facilities in China be used to their full capacity and that new facilities be added wherever practicable. A relatively small amount of American industrial equipment reaching China in the near future could quickly make a profound difference in her fighting power."

Industry Held By Japs

Nelson said most of China's major industrial cities were held by the Japs, her chief railroads were seized or cut, and that there were "fewer than 6,000 trucks to transport the war materiel and essential civilian supplies on which 200,000,000 Chinese and the Chinese war effort must largely depend."

"It is to the advantage of the United States and the world, he said, "to see China emerge from this war as the leading industrial nation of the Orient, replacing Japan."

PETRILLO, UNION HEADS CONSIDER FDR REQUEST

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—(AP) President James C. Petrillo of the American Federation of Musicians and the Union's executive board went into closed sessions today to consider President Roosevelt's request that the union comply with a War Labor board order and drop its ban on making records.

Last week Mr. Roosevelt told Petrillo in a telegram it would be "your country's gain" if the Union would comply with the order which it has ignored since June 15. The record ban was enforced Aug. 1, 1942.

Petrillo told reporters before the Board session started that no intimation of the Board's action would be given out before 11 a. m. tomorrow.

"This is a very serious matter," Petrillo said, "and we are going to give careful consideration to the President's message."

OCT 11 1944

Mr. Roosevelt appealed to Petrillo after the government decided as a result of two years of trying that it could not enforce settlement of the Union's dispute with recording companies.

Biddle Asked To Probe Navy-Teamsters' Fight

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP)—Representatives Ralph Church, of Illinois, and Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, Republicans, today asked Francis Biddle, Attorney General, to take satisfactory legal steps to investigate what they described as "the malodorous battle of the Statler."

Their telegram referred to allegations by two navy officers that they were attacked in the Statler Hotel, Washington, when they refused to answer, when asked, whether they would vote for their commander in chief.

"We herein demand that you move immediately to prosecute the offenders under the Federal voting law," the message stated, adding that ample authority to prosecute was available and that "further inaction will endanger the morale of our servicemen here and overseas. . . ."

USE OF UNION DUES ALLEGED

House Campaign Investigators Hear Ousted Local Head

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP)—Dock J. Williams, Negro, former president of Local 25 of the United Packing House Workers' Union (CIO), told the House committee investigating campaign expenditures today union funds had been used for political purposes.

Appearing voluntarily, Williams said that, contrary to a union rule, its leaders spent money for distribution of literature urging voters to register and of pamphlets passing judgment on the qualifications of candidates.

"The union heads were acting without the consent of the rank and file," he asserted, adding that the money thus spent had been segregated for organizing activity.

Use Of Union Time Asserted

Williams said one union employe, Florice Ross, had been employed on union time to break down its membership list into wards and precincts for use by the committee in charge of the registration drive.

While he was employed at the Wilson Packing Company plant here, Williams added, he paid $1 a month in union dues, of which 50 cents went to national headquarters and 50 cents went to the local.

Called Change Of Policy

Williams said he was an officer of Local 25 from 1937 until March 20, 1944, when he was ousted as president because he opposed an assessment of $1,500 on the union under a program adopted by presidents of CIO locals at a meeting March 1. These union funds, he said, were to be used for political activities.

Questioned by Representative Brown (R., Ohio), Williams said the program undertaken at the March 1 meeting upset a decision of the CIO locals' officers in 1940 not to participate in politics. He added that subsequently members of his union were taken off their jobs to distribute literature and were paid with union funds.

Williams said he had started court action to be reinstated as president of the local.

The committee also questioned Morris Yanoff, mid-West director of the United Office and Professional Workers of America (CIO), and Miss Tilda R. Diamond, of the Social Service Employes Union, an affiliate of the United Office and Professional Workers.

Distribution Of Pamphlets

Yanoff, who testified voluntarily after learning a subpoena intended for him had been served on Miss Diamond, told the committee his organization had about 2,000 members in three locals here and had distributed to "white collar" workers about 150,000 pamphlets which were sent here from national headquarters in New York and which were paid for with money collected specifically for that purpose.

"The pamphlets urge people to register to vote," he said. "Our aim and purpose was the re-election of President Roosevelt."

Miss Diamond testified she spent about a half hour a week distributing pamphlets entitled "A Letter to You from F. D. R." She said no union money was spent to pay printing costs.

BRICKER DEMANDS AID FOR SOLDIERS

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Oct. 9—(AP) Gov. John W. Bricker tonight said President Roosevelt, whom he called "the prolific spender in world history," became "'economical,' in dealing with the men who shouldered the brunt of the nation's battles and with their widow and orphans."

Winding up a one-day, four-speech campaign in Montana, the Republican candidate for Vice President, told an audience that "one of the amazing paradoxes of Mr. Roosevelt's career has been his refusal from the beginning to favor legislation beneficial to the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

The Ohio Governor asserted that "the over-all picture of his treatment of the men who fought our battles is not one of which this nation can be proud."

Bricker continued that 16 days after Mr. Roosevelt took office in 1933 he signed an "economy act," cutting expenditures for veterans by $450,000,000 a year, while saving $150,000,000 "in the politically buttered civilian rolls."

Congress, he continued, passed a "redress bill" restoring $103,000,000 of the veterans' benefits and the President vetoed it. The measure was enacted into law over the veto.

Centralized Power Hit By Bricker

Butte, Mont., Oct. 9 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker, describing the present executive branch of the Federal Government as a "patchwork of disorder and confusion," asserted today that an "unscrambling" was essential in the post-war era.

The Republican candidate for Vice-President added that in any reorganization "there should be maintained a clear separation of legislative and executive functions."

The Ohio Governor, who devoted Sunday to chats with residents of North Dakota while his staff gingerly tried to avoid involvement in that State's Republican intraparty fight, scheduled four speeches today in a bid for Montana's four electoral votes.

Hits Centralization

His special train moved here from Bozeman and was to continue on to Helena and Great Falls.

In a prepared speech for the Butte audience, Bricker said that despite power given to President Roosevelt to reorganize departments, "Congress has had to take into its own hands the abolition of useless agencies."

He said that "the present Administration strives for absolute centralization of controls in Washington, but that "this policy is detrimental to efficiency." More authority, he suggested, must be delegated to local agencies."

Bars Single Plan

Bricker declared that the problem could not be solved by any single plan. Rather he recommended "the approach must be along the line of day-by-day thinking and exploration. Adjustments must be made when needed."

Bricker, while traveling through North Dakota, was accompanied by rival candidates for the United States Senate—Senator Gerald P. Nye, renominated in the Republican primary, and Lynn U. Stambaugh, who was defeated in the primary and decided to run November 7 as an independent candidate. Each introduced Bricker once at individual stops.

Tunnell Says Dewey Vote Would Cheer Axis

Kansas City, Oct. 9 (AP)—Senator

James M. Tunnell (D., Del.) said in an interview today the election of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, would "give courage to the Axis."

Senator Tunnell, president of the Georgetown (Del.) Trust Company, succeeded Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, on the Senate War Investigating Committee.

"They would take it in Germany the same way we would take the defeat of Hitler by his own people," Senator Tunnell said. "Suppose Dewey wins and there should be a great Republican victory. Who would be chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee? By seniority it would belong to Senator Hiram Johnson, of California. And the members would be Senators Capper, La Follette, Nye, Shipstead, Vandenberg, White and Austin. It would seal isolationism on America."

Anglo-U. S. Oil Treaty Opposed By Independent Producers Head

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 9 (AP).—Directors of the Independent Petroleum Association of America heard today a protest from its president against ratification of the Anglo-American petroleum treaty now under consideration by the Senate.

Ralph T. Zook, Bradford, Pa., I. P. A. A. president, told producers from forty-five states "there should be no invasion of the control by Congress over the importation of natural resources."

"No such agreement or treaty should be made or ratified which includes provisions that could be interpreted as authorizing invasion by the Federal government into the rights and duties of the states in administration of their control over the production of our natural resources," Mr. Zook said.

The directors have before them a proposal that the I. P. A. A. protest ratification of the treaty.

Mr. Zook urged two methods to prevent what he called an expected reduction in crude oil prices in the post-war period:

"One is to hold the crude prices at present levels while the elements of the producer's costs decline and the alternative is to increase the price of crude oil," he said.

Mr. Zook declared the industry has been producing crude oil during the war for prices below cost and would continue to do so under the present price structure.

Russell B. Brown, I. P. A. A. general counsel, quoted figures from the Office of War Information which he said showed crude oil inports from foreign countries are now larger than the average recorded for 1941.

NOTE TO EDITORS (FOR PUBLICATION IF DESIRED)

SAN FRANCISCO--IN TRANSMITTING WORD BY WORD, A STORY WHILE IT WAS IN THE PROCESS OF DELIVERY FROM HONOLULU, THE ASSOCIATED PRESS TONIGHT GAVE THE ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION THAT A COMMUNIQUE READ AS A JOKE BY ADMIRAL NIMITZ AT A PEARL HARBOR PRESS CONFERENCE REFERRED TO THE PRESENT WAR AGAINST JAPAN.

THE MISTAKE WAS DISCOVERED AFTER THE FIRST NINE LINES OF THE DISPATCH HAD BEEN RECEIVED IN SAN FRANCISCO, TOO LATE TO PREVENT TRANSMISSION ON TRUNK WIRES OF A BULLETIN BASED ON THE ASSUMPTION THAT NIMITZ WAS REFERRING TO CURRENT EVENTS.

THE HONOLULU DISPATCH SAID THAT THE ADMIRAL "STARTLED CORRESPONDENTS AT THE PRESS CONFERENCE" BUT GAVE NO INDICATION THAT NIMITZ WAS JESTING UNTIL TRANSMISSION OF THE TEXT OF HIS SIMULATED COMMUNIQUE HAD BEEN COMPLETED.

COMMUNIQUE HAD BEEN COMPLETED.

THE BULLETIN WAS KILLED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS THE MOMENT THE SAN FRANCISCO CABLE DESK DISCOVERED THE ADMIRAL WAS TALKING ABOUT A DISASTER WHICH BEFELL KUBLAI KHAN HUNDREDS OF YEARS AGO.

SAN FRANCISCO, OCT.9-(AP)-MISINTERPRETING A PORTION OF A DISPATCH FROM ITS HONOLULU BUREAU, THE ASSOCIATED PRESS TONIGHT REPORTED A GREAT ALLIED NAVAL VICTORY OFF THE COAST OF KOREA, BUT QUICKLY KILLED THE STORY WHEN THE REST OF THE STORY INDICATED ADM. CHESTER NIMITZ WAS QUOTING MEDIEVAL HISTORY INSTEAD OF CURRENT EVENTS.

THE STORY WAS KILLED SO QUICKLY IT DID NOT GET INTO PRINT, BUT A FEW RADIO STATIONS GOT ON THE AIR BEFORE THE ERROR WAS DISCOVERED AND CORRECTED.

KEYED TO GO INTO ACTION QUICKLY ON HANDLING OF WAR NEWS FROM THE PACIFIC, THE AP'S SAN FRANCISCO CABLE DESK BULLETINED THE FIRST FEW LINES OF A HONOLULU RADIOGRAM WHICH REPORTED ADMIRAL NIMITZ STARTLED PEARL HARBOR CORRESPONDENTS BY READING A COMMUNIQUE WHICH TOLD OF AN ATTACK BY "POWERFUL ALLIED NAVAL FORCES" ON "THE JAPANESE FLEET LYING AT ANCHOR NEAR THE ENTRANCE TO FUSAN HARBOR ON THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF KOREA."

WHEN THE DISPATCH WAS COMPLETED IT WAS LEARNED THAT ADMIRAL NIMITZ WAS READING A 352-YEAR-OLD COMMUNIQUE TO TELL OF AN HISTORIC DEFEAT OF THE JAPANESE FLEET BY KOREANS AND CHINESE IN THE MIDDLE AGES TO ILLUSTRATE THE IMPORTANCE OF WEATHER IN NAVAL WARFARE.

THE PEARL HARBOR CORRESPONDENT WHO WROTE THE STORY IN CHRONOLOGICAL FORM, PRESERVING ADMIRAL NIMITZ'S FINE SENSE OF SUSPENSE, DID NOT RECKON WITH THE FAST MOVING CABLE DESK AND EXPRESSED GREAT SURPRISE WHEN TOLD OF THE MIXUP.

FIRST LEAD NIMITZ "COMMUNIQUE"

U.S.PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS,PEARL HARBOR,OCT.9-(AI)-ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ FOR A FEW MINUTES TODAY HAD A ROOMFUL OF WAR CORRESPONDENTS BELIEVING THEY WERE GETTING ONE OF THE WAR'S MOST SENSATIONAL STORIES -- A SMASHING BLOW AGAINST THE JAPANESE FLEET OFF KOREA.

AT THE END OF AN HOUR-LONG PRESS CONFERENCE, HE SAID:

"YOU MIGHT BE INTERESTED IN THIS COMMUNIQUE:"

THEN, WITH A SERIOUS FACE, HE READ FROM A PAPER FOLDED TO RESEMBLE A NAVAL COMMUNIQUE. HE TOLD HOW "POWERFUL ALLIED NAVAL FORCES" HAD ATTACKED A PORTION OF THE JAPANESE FLEET AT FUSAN, KOREA, INFLICTING HEAVY DAMAGES IN THAT AND A SUBSEQUENT ENGAGEMENT.

THE ADMIRAL'S FACE WAS SO SERIOUS AND THE TEXT SO PLAUSIBLE THAT MOST CORRESPONDENTS BELIEVED HE WAS REFERRING TO A CURRENT ACTION. THERE WAS TENSION IN THE ROOM AND A NUMBER OF THE NEWSMEN REMARKED QUIETLY ON THE SURPRISING NATURE OF THE NEWS.

A98FX

WITH A LITTLE GRIN, THE ADMIRAL CAME TO A PART OF THE COMMUNIQUE HE HAD IGNORED BEFORE -- THE DATE. "THIS COMMUNIQUE INCIDENTALLY," HE SAID, "IS DATED LATE JUNE, 1592."

(THE ADMIRAL REFERRED TO A KOREAN-CHINESE EXPLOIT DURING AN EARLY JAPANESE INVASION OF THE PENINSULA AND EVIDENTLY WAS QUOTING FROM A KOREAN COMMUNIQUE. HE WENT ON TO SAY THAT THIS PROVED THE JAPANESE HAD BEEN DEFEATED AT SEA. HE ALSO REFERRED TO THE HURRICANE DESTRUCTION OF KUBLAI KHAN'S FLEET, WHICH INVADED JAPAN IN 1281, TO PROVE THE IMPORTANCE OF WEATHER IN PACIFIC OPERATIONS.)

OCT 11 1944

THERE WAS A HEARTY LAUGH AND EVERYONE RELAXED.

(THE PEARL HARBOR CORRESPONDENTS WEREN'T THE ONLY NEWSPAPERMEN FOOLED BY ADMIRAL NIMITZ' JOKE.

(THE TEXT OF THE ADMIRAL'S "COMMUNIQUE" WAS TORN LINE BY LINE FROM A TELETYPE AS IT CAME TO THE SAN FRANCISCO CABLE DESK OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

(THE STORY FROM THE HONOLULU BUREAU BEGAN BY SAYING NIMITZ "STARTLED" CORRESPONDENTS BY CONCLUDING HIS PRESS CONFERENCE "WITH THIS COMMUNIQUE: POWERFUL ALLIED NAVAL FORCES HAVE ATTACKED A PORTION OF THE JAPANESE FLEET LYING AT ANCHOR NEAR THE ENTRANCE TO FUSAN HARBOR ON THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF KOREA X X X"

(A BULLETIN WAS PUT ON THE WIRES IMMEDIATELY, QUOTING ADMIRAL NIMITZ AS ANNOUNCING AN ATTACK ON THE JAPANESE FLEET IN KOREAN WATERS, BUT WAS QUICKLY KILLED WHEN THE REMAINDER OF THE DISPATCH FROM HONOLULU DISCLOSED THE ADMIRAL WAS QUOTING MEDIEVAL HISTORY.)

NIMITZ ALSO ANNOUNCED AERIAL BOMBINGS OF MARCUS ISLAND, WHICH WAS BLASTED BY WARSHIPS SUNDAY; IWO JIMA, IN THE VOLCANO GROUP; WAKE ISLAND, PAGAN AND ROTA IN THE MARIANAS AND THE BY-PASSED MARSHALLS.

A LONE CATALINA SEARCH PLANE BOMBED AND STRAFED A SMALL JAPANESE SHIP NEAR IWO JIMA, SERIOUSLY DAMAGING IT. LIBERATORS OF THE 7TH ARMY AIR FORCE SHOT DOWN TWO OF EIGHT JAPANESE INTERCEPTORS AT IWO, WHERE THEY BOMBED AND STRAFED THE AIRFIELD AND ADJACENT INSTALLATIONS.

A DAY-LONG STORM OF STEEL FROM THE GUNS OF ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET POUNDED JAPANESE DEFENDERS OF MARCUS ISLAND, IMPORTANT ENEMY OUTPOST 1,135 MILES SOUTHEAST OF TOKYO, SUNDAY (U.S. TIME), ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ, PACIFIC FLEET COMMANDER, ANNOUNCED TODAY.

FROM NIMITZ' REPORT IT WAS EVIDENT THAT SHELLS UP TO 16-INCHERS WERE HURLED AT THE JAPANESE. "THE GREATER PART OF THE COAST DEFENSE BATTERIES" WERE SILENCED AND SHORE DEFENSES AND INSTALLATIONS BADLY DAMAGED, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

TINY MARCUS FORMERLY WAS ONE OF JAPAN'S MOST IMPORTANT NAVAL AND AIR BASES AND PRESUMABLY STILL IS A STRATEGIC OBSERVATION POST AND THEIR FARTHEST EAST EXCEPT WAKE.

ADMIRAL NIMITZ' COMMUNIQUE MADE NO MENTION OF AERIAL ACTION, EITHER AMERICAN OR JAPANESE. THE FACT THAT HALSEY'S MEN-OF-WAR MOVED IN FIVE TO 15 MILES OFFSHORE APPARENTLY UNDETECTED INDICATE THE JAPANESE ARE ABANDONING MARCUS.

ADMIRAL NIMITZ SAID THE AMERICAN GUNFIRE WAS "DELIBERATE AND DESTRUCTIVE" AND BUILDINGS WERE HIT AND SET ABLAZE.

AMERICANS HAVE KILLED 12,233 JAPANESE SOLDIERS SINCE THE INVASION OF THE SOUTHERN PALAUS STARTED SEPT. 14 (U.S. TIME), ACCORDING TO ADMIRAL NIMITZ. ON PELELIU 11,083 WERE KILLED, 214 CAPTURED; ON ANGAUR, SIX MILES TO THE SOUTH, 1,150 WERE KILLED, 11 CAPTURED.

MARINES AND SOLDIERS CONTINUED TO ADVANCE AGAINST JAPANESE REMNANTS STILL CLINGING TO "BLOODY NOSE RIDGE" ON UMURBROGOL MOUNTAIN, PELELIU.

CONTINUED AERIAL ATTACKS AGAINST BABELTHUAP, LARGEST OF THE PALAUS, WERE ANNOUNCED BY NIMITZ.

IN THE CENTRAL PACIFIC IWO JIMA IN THE VOLCANO GROUP, AND WAKE, WERE BOMBED. THE ATTACKING PLANES ENCOUNTERED NO ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

TWENTY-FIVE JAPANESE COASTAL SHIPS AND SMALL CRAFT WERE SUNK OR DAMAGED BY AMERICAN BOMBERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR REPORTED, IN RAIDS AROUND CERAM AND HALMAHERA. PATROL BOMBERS HIT THE IMPORTANT JAPANESE OIL CENTER AT BALIKPAPAN, DUTCH BORNEO, AND THE AIRDROME AND SEAPLANE FACILITIES AT JAPANESE-HELD ZAMBOANGA, SOUTHERN PHILIPPINES.

"WE KNEW ALL ALONG THAT PELELIU WOULD BE TOUGH, BUT ITS IMPORTANCE WARRANTED THE EFFORT. EVEN IF IT HAD BEEN TOUGHER, WE STILL FELT WE HAD TO TAKE IT OUT TO PROTECT OUR LONG LINE OF SUPPLY. SUBMARINES ARE THE ONLY JAPANESE VESSELS THAT CAN NOW GO TO THE CAROLINES."

OCT 11 1944

THE ADMIRAL SAID THE JAPANESE IN THE BONIN AND VOLCANO GROUPS (NORTH OF THE MARIANAS) ARE NOT YET CUT OFF FROM SUPPLY, BUT SUBMARINES AND AIRCRAFT ARE CAUSING THEIR SUPPLY LINES TO DETERIORATE.

HE SAID THE JAPANESE WERE VERY GOOD AT REPAIRS AND PROBABLY HAD MENDED THE DAMAGE FROM RECENT CARRIER PLANE RAIDS ON THE PHILIPPINES. HE ADDED THEY STILL HAVE THE CAPACITY TO MANUFACTURE ENOUGH PLANES TO REPLACE THOSE DESTROYED, BUT THEY SUFFER FROM A SHORTAGE OF PILOTS.

"I ASSUME," HE SAID, "THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE REPLENISHED THEIR AIR FORCES IN THE PHILIPPINES AND WILL DO ALL THEY CAN TO KEEP US OUT."

PREDICTING THAT JAPANESE CIVILIANS WOULD CONTRIBUTE TO THE UTMOST IN DEFENSE OF THEIR HOMELAND, NIMITZ REAFFIRMED THAT HE WOULD WELCOME CONTACT WITH THE ELUSIVE JAPANESE FLEET, IN THE BELIEF THAT SUCH CONTACT WOULD GREATLY HASTEN ALLIED VICTORY.

HE SAID THE BRITISH EASTERN FLEET, ALREADY OPERATING IN THE SUMATRA-BURMA AREA AND THE BAY OF BENGAL, IS OF GREAT ASSISTANCE AGAINST THE JAPANESE, AS WERE DUTCH, AUSTRALIAN AND NEW ZEALAND UNITS UNDER GEN.MACARTHUR.

REGARDING THE WEATHER, THE ADMIRAL SAID THE EQUATORIAL BELT EARLY IN THE WAR HAD HANDICAPPED OPERATIONS CONSIDERABLY, PARTICULARLY ON THE NORTH COAST OF NEW GUINEA AND IN NEW BRITAIN. THIS IS A BELT OF UNCERTAIN WEATHER WITH AN AREA 500 TO 200 MILES WIDE, WITH THE SOUTHERN EDGE ON THE NORTH COAST OF NEW GUINEA AND THE NORTHERN EDGE IN THE CAROLINE ISLANDS.

OCT 11 1944

"WE'VE LICKED THAT PROBLEM," HE ADDED, "AND OUR OPERATIONS WON'T BE HINDERED MUCH HENCEFORTH BY THE EQUATORIAL BELT.

"BUT THE TYPHOONS WHICH HANDICAP OUR SECRET WEAPON--REPLENISHING SHIPS AT SEA--ARE STILL A GREAT HINDRANCE."

NIMITZ, INFORMED THAT GEN.GEORGE C.MARSHALL HAD SAID THE PACIFIC OPERATIONS WERE AHEAD OF SCHEDULE, SAID HE WAS PLEASED THAT HIGHER OFFICERS FELT THAT WAY.

"OUR SCHEDULE IS TO MOVE JUST AS FAST AS WE CAN, AND I THINK WE ARE DOING IT. WE WANT TO GET THE WAR OVER AS QUICKLY AS WE CAN WITHOUT COMPROMISES."

PM609PPW

U.S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, OCT.9 (AP)-SHELL-BLASTED MARCUS ISLAND IS IMPORTANT TO THE JAPANESE AS AN OBSERVATION POST, ADM. CHESTER W.NIMITZ SAID TODAY. THE EXPLANATION WAS MADE AT A PRESS CONFERENCE DURING COMMENTS ON THE DAY-LONG THIRD FLEET ATTACK ON THE ISLET SUNDAY.

MARCUS, THE ADMIRAL SAID, IS A TRIANGULAR ISLAND A MILE LONG EACH WAY, WITH AN AVERAGE ELEVATION OF 60 FEET.

"THERE IS NO HARBOR TO SPEAK OF, BUT IT IS ONLY 760 MILES TO WAKE AND JAPANESE PLANES COULD FLY THERE.

"WE HAVE SEEN NO PLANES AT WAKE FOR A LONG TIME, HOWEVER.

"THE 700 MILE SEARCH RADIUS FROM MARCUS A NICE PART OF THE PACIFIC APPROACHES TO THE JAPANESE EMPIRE.

"WE ARE DENYING THE JAPS USE OF MARCUS BY ATTACKING SEVERAL TIMES EACH WEEK--BY SEVENTH AIR FORCE PLANES AND NAVAL SHELLING.

"ALL OF THE ABOVE GROUND INSTALLATIONS ARE USELESS, BUT THERE MAY BE CONSIDERABLE UNDERGROUND CONSTRUCTION."

GUAM, OCT.9-(AP)-THE JAPANESE ATTACKED GUAM IN DECEMBER, 1941, BUT DR.RAMON M.SABLAN, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT, WAS TOO BUSY TO FILE ANY STORIES. GUAM IS BACK IN AMERICAN HANDS AND SO IS DR.SABLAN. BUT HE'S STILL TOO BUSY TO FILE THE NEWS.

WHEN THE JAPANESE STRUCK, DR.SABLAN WAS, IN ADDITION TO AP'S REPRESENTATIVE ON THE ISLAND, OFFICIAL PHYSICIAN FOR PAN-AMERICAN AIRWAYS, MEDICAL EXAMINER FOR A U.S.LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY AND A CIVIC LEADER IN AGANA, PRINCIPAL TOWN ON GUAM.

THE JAPANESE DID NOT MOLEST DR.SABLAN, THE ONLY QUALIFIED PHYSICIAN ON THIS ISLAND. FOR ALMOST THREE YEARS HE SUPERVISED PUBLIC HEALTH, BATTLING INROADS OF DISEASE AND MALNUTRITION AS SUPPLIES OF FOOD, MEDICINE AND EQUIPMENT DEVRRHRULVMYLL

Z

LQHAQM SA

FOOD, MEDICINE AND EQUIPMENT DECREASED. DR.SABLAN HAD THE WELFARE OF MORE THAN 20,000 NATIVES IN HIS CHARGE. THE GOING WASN'T EASY.

DR.SABLAN, A NATIVE, IS 42 NOW. WHEN AMERICAN ATTACKS THIS YEAR INDICATED AN INVASION WAS IMMINENT, THE NATIVES WERE ORDERED INTO THE HILLS. DR.SABLAN WENT ALONG. A NUMBER OF NATIVES WHO REMAINED IN THE TOWNS WERE ACCUSED OF SPYING AND WERE BRUTALLY MALTREATED BY THE JAPANESE. THESE NATIVES FOUND THEIR WAY TO DR. SABLAN FOR ATTENTION.

AFTER THE AMERICANS RECAPTURED GUAM, DR.SABLAN SET UP THATCHED-ROOF HOSPITALS AT TWO OF THE LARGEST TEMPORARY VILLAGES. BEFORE THE WAR DR.SABLAN MADE A THOROUGH SURVEY OF TUBERCULOSIS, ONE OF THE MOST PREVALENT DISEASES ON GUAM. HE HAS RESUMED THIS WORK. A SPECIALIST ON TROPICAL DISEASES, HE IS ALSO COUNTER-ATTACKING A WIDE-SPREAD TYPE OF EYE INFECTION.

OCT 11 1944

DR.SABLAN HAS BEEN UNPAID SINCE BEFORE THE WAR. ARMY AND NAVY PHYSICIANS HERE, WHO SAY HE HAS BEEN DOING "A GREAT JOB", ARE SEEKING AN APPROPRIATION FOR HIM.

IN 1933 THE GOVERNMENT SENT HIM BACK TO THE STATES TO STUDY MEDICINE AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI AND THE UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE.

GRANTED A DEGREE IN 1938, HE INTERNED AT LOUISVILLE,KY., GENERAL HOSPITAL, AND SERVED EIGHT MONTHS AT CENTRAL STATE HOSPITAL, LAKELAND,KY. HE RETURNED TO GUAM TO PRACTICE AMONG HIS OWN PEOPLE IN APRIL, 1940.

SABLAN SENT HIS WIFE AND SMALL DAUGHTER BY AIR TO THE STATES WHEN WAR THREATENED--THEY REACHED SAN FRANCISCO, DEC. 7, 1941--AND KEPT HIS SON, RAMON, JR., WITH HIM. MRS.SABLAN HAS BEEN WORKING AT THE VULTEE AIRCRAFT FACTORY IN LOUISVILLE,KY., AND DR. SABLAN HOPES TO GO THERE "AFTER THINGS SETTLE DOWN" FOR A REST.

AT SEA ABOARD U.S.DESTROYER, WESTERN PACIFIC,SEPT 23 (DELAYED)-(AP)-AN AMAZING STROKE OF GOOD FORTUNE LIFTED TWO LOST AMERICAN FLIERS OUT OF THE OCEAN AND GOT THEM SAFELY BACK TO THEIR HOME CARRIER TODAY.

THE NAVY MEN, ENS.DANIEL WEIZER, (2407 EDGERTON ROAD) UNIVERSITY HEIGHTS, OHIO, THE PILOT, AND PHOM 3/C EDWARD JOHN ULATOWSKI, (933 MOELLER AVE.) AKRON, OHIO, WERE FORCED TO LAND THEIR DIVE-BOMBER IN THE WATER OFF THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES SEPT.13 DURING THE COURSE OF THE THREE-DAY CARRIER ATTACK IN THAT AREA.

THEY DRIFTED TEN DAYS AND PROBABLY 200 MILES. SHARKS ATTACKED THEIR LIFE RAFT, RIPPING TWO HOLES IN IT, AND THE PAIR CAME CLOSE TO BEING DISCOVERED BY JAPANESE PLANES.

OCT 11 1944

NEITHER WEIZER NOR ULATOWSKI SUFFERED SERIOUS INJURY.

WEIZER TOLD OF THEIR EXPERIENCES WHILE A PHARMACIST'S MATE APPLIED OINTMENT TO HIS SUN BURNED LEGS.

THEY NEVER GAVE UP HOPE, AND BOTH PRAYED. "I PRAYED MENTALLY," SAID THE PILOT. "IT GAVE ME RELIEF, AND IT GAVE ME SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT."

OCT 11 1944

WEIZER SAID HE'S CERTAIN HIS NAVIGATION WAS TRUE, BUT THAT WHEN HE TRIED TO FIND HIS CARRIER HE COULDN'T LOCAT THE TASK FORCE AT ALL. HE LANDED ON THE OCEAN. THE PLANE SEEMED TO FLOAT A LONG TIME BEFORE IT FINALLY SANK. THE TWO JUMPED INTO THE WATER, INFLATED THE YELLOW LIFE RAFT AND CLIMBED ABOARD.

THEY HAD A MATCHBOX COMPASS, BUT WEIZER SAID THE WINDS CHANGED EVERY DAY. THERE WAS A SUPPLY OF K-RATIONS AND MALTED MILK TABLETS, AND PLENTY OF WATER. THE PAIR DIDN'T EAT MUCH, AND, BY DRINKING RAINWATER, THEY USED UP ONLY FOUR OF THEIR SEVEN CONTAINERS OF FRESH WATER.

OCT 11 1944

THEY SAW FIVE JAPANESE PLANES IN THE LAST THREE DAYS BUT APPARENTLY THE JAPS DIDN'T SEE THEM.

ULATOWSKI REMEMBERS HE SANG POLISH FOLK SONGS, ESPECIALLY ONE ABOUT THE YOUNG GIRL WONDERING WHEN HER BOY FRIEND WOULD BE COMING

HOME FROM THE WAR. THAT LED TO THINKING ABOUT HIS OWN GIRL, HELEN BALL OF AKRON, OHIO. WEIZER REMINISCED THE FUN HE AND HIS WIFE, KATHLEEN, HAD BACK HOME.

OCT 11 1944

THE PAIR LET ONE SHIP GO BY YESTERDAY FOR FEAR IT WAS JAPANESE, BUT THEY RECOGNIZED THE SECOND AS AMERICAN AND SET UP A FRANTIC YELLING. THEN, LIKE A DREAM, IT WAS ALL OVER; THE LOOKOUT SPOTTED THEM AND THEY WERE BROUGHT ABOARD.

58 JAP SHIPS BLASTED BY CARRIER PLANES; YANKS GIVE AACHEN 24 HOURS TO SURRENDER

89 ENEMY PLANES WRECKED IN RAID ON RYUKYU ISLES

Third Fleet Strikes in East China Sea, 200 Miles from Japan.

U. S. LOSSES LIGHT

American Aircraft Bomb and Strafe Island Installations.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 10—(AP) Carrier planes of the Third fleet sank or damaged 58 ships and small craft and destroyed 89 planes in a strike against the Ryukyu islands, eastern doorway to the East China sea and only 200 miles south of Japan, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, announced in a communique today.

The attack, Nimitz said, occurred yesterday (U. S. Time) and was in great force with the Americans achieving complete surprise. Every naval or merchant ship they could find came under the bomb sights of Halsey's fliers. The planes also bombed and strafed island installations.

Radio Silence Broken

Radio silence was broken by the raiding fleet to relay the news here. American fliers shot down 14 Japanese planes in combat and destroyed another 75 on the ground. Twelve surface ships, including a destroyer, were sunk, 14 probably sunk, 12 damaged and 20 luggers and other small craft sunk or damaged.

The powerful carrier force was in immediate command of Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher. American plane losses were light and no surface ship was damaged.

It was the first American attack on the Ryukyus which lie between Foochow and Shanghai, China. They also are known as the Loochoos or Nansei Shoto islands and are sometimes called the Southwestern islands, saddling the eastern entrance to the East China sea. They have been in Japanese hands since 1879, some 15 years before the Japanese occupied Formosa.

Fleet headquarters listed the Japanese shipping losses:

Sunk—One destroyer, one minesweeper, one submarine tender, two medium cargo ships, two small cargo ships and five coastal cargo ships.

Probably sunk — Two medium cargo ships, four small cargo ships, one medium oil tanker, and seven coastal cargo ships.

Damaged—Three medium cargo ships, six small cargo ships, one destroyer and two small tankers.

These do not include the 20 luggers and other small craft sunk or damaged.

Islands Extend 570 Miles

The islands extend for 570 miles from a point 60 miles east of Formosa to the southern tip of Kyushu in the Japanese home islands. More than half the population of 820,000 live on Ikinawa Jima which has been a communication center for Japanese forces in Formosa, Philippines and Western Pacific.

While there are several excellent anchorages for war vessels and fleet auxiliaries in the chain, they are considered of little economic importance to Japan. Their strategic value, however, is high as a great many of them probably contain airfields and other important installations.

Naha is the largest city in the group. It is on Okinawa island and has a population of 66,000.

The islet of Garakayo, 10th to be invaded in the Palaus by the Americans, was completely secured within 24 hours, the Navy announced tonight.

Elements of the 81st army division landed Sunday on Garakayo just north of the larger island of Peleliu.

Tonight's communique said Marines were cleaning up isolated Japanese on Peleliu and other forces were mopping up at Angaur, south of Peleliu.

Garakayo was believed to be one of the islets bordering Peleliu from which American troops on the larger base were subjected to enemy shelling.

Tonight's communique reported that Marine Corsair planes, which are based on an airfield captured on Peleliu, had ranged north in the Palaus to strafe four small boats and nine barges in the vicinity of the Japanese-held island of Babelthaup.

Typhoons Slow Drive

Typhoons, prevalent in the western Pacific in the region of the Philippines this time of the year and up to December, are a handicap to American forces moving toward a landing on the China coast, Nimitz declared at a press conference.

He said the storms are delaying efficient supplying of ships at sea and during recent operations around the Palaus, the weather was as severe as that which hindered the Normandy invasion. The typhoons, he added, give the Japanese a defensive advantage.

When General MacArthur decides to attack the Philippines the fleet will be at his disposal regardless of weather conditions, Admiral Nimitz asserted.

"Undoubtedly," the Admiral said, "General MacArthur will do the same job in the Philippines that he did in New Guinea; perhaps even more thoroughly."

The Admiral explained capture of the Marianas cut Japanese lines from the north and Peleliu cuts them from the west. The Bonin and Volcano group of Japanese bases are not yet cut off from supply but submarines and aircraft are taking a toll of ships attempting to reach them.

Americans Push Forward On Garakayo

Chungking, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Chinese high command announced today that Col. Tsao Cheng, a regimental commander, had been executed October 7 for failing to carry out his orders in connection with the defense of Pingnan, west river town in Kwangsi province, which was captured recently by the Japanese.

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 10 (AP)—Invasion of Garakayo Islet, tenth of the Palau group of island stepping stones to the Philippines brought under fire of American guns, was announced last night by Pacific commanders, who also reported the first big neutralizing raid on Zamboanga, important southern Philippines coast city.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said yesterday units of the 81st Infantry Division landed Sunday on Garakayo and quickly secured a beachhead. They drove forward against light opposition.

Fuel Dumps Bombed

Garakayo is two and a half miles north of Peleliu, where American forces have been fighting since September 14. The importance of the Garakayo invasion apparently was to eliminate shore batteries that may have shelled Americans on Peleliu.

Babelthuap, largest of the Palaus, was attacked anew by marine planes, which bombed fuel dumps and warehouses.

Of the nine Palau islands in addition to Garakayo, where landings were made, all are securely in American hands, although mopping-up fighting continues.

Water Front Fired

The Zamboanga raid was described by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who said more than 25 Liberators, escorted by fighters, set huge fires along the city's water front and around "other targets."

Zamboanga is an important seaplane base as well as a Japanese shipping center. The communique said fighter planes sank six floatplanes in the harbor. A 1,000-ton vessel, two freighters and a barge were set afire.

Other Liberators made another raid on Balikpapan, Borneo oil center.

Admiral Nimitz said aerial raids were made on Marcus Island, Japanese observation post, which was shelled Sunday by warships, including battleships, attacked Marcus Island Sunday (United States time).

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' announcement of the attack on the outpost island 1,135 miles southeast of Tokyo did not mention any damage to United States ships.

U. S. Carrier Sunk, Japanese Claim

San Francisco, Oct. 10 (AP)—Tokyo radio today claimed, without confirmation, that a United States aircraft carrier and destroyer were sunk and others damaged.

The broadcasts said that a week ago "Japanese submarines attacked a group of enemy aircraft carriers in waters east of Halmahera and sank one of them and destroyed another."

Tokyo asserted a destroyer was sunk and a cruiser and a destroyer damaged when a "strong enemy force" of eight or nine warships,

Typhoons Delay Plans In Pacific, Nimitz Says

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 10 (AP)—American forces are moving as fast as they can toward a landing on the China coast, but tremendous typhoons are a handicap to both land and sea operations, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said in a press conference yesterday.

Western Pacific windstorms, among the worst in the world at this season, are delaying the efficient replenishments of ships at sea, he said.

Ten Islands Invaded

During recent naval operations around the Palau Islands, ten of which the United States has invaded, storms were as severe as those during the Normandy invasion, the admiral declared.

The typhoon season, he said, lasts from June to December and gives the Japanese a defensive advantage.

Regardless of weather conditions, the fleet will be at the disposal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur when he decides to attack the Philippines, the admiral added.

Undoubtedly, the admiral said, MacArthur "will do the same job in the Philippines that he did in New Guinea; perhaps even more thoroughly."

Peleliu gave the Untied States an airfield to support MacArthur's invasion of the Philippines, and it has an anchorage 575 miles east of the islands.

The capture of the Marianas cut Japanese lines from the north and Peleliu cuts them from the west, the admiral said.

The Bonin and Volcano group of Japanese bases are not yet cut off from supply, but submarines and aircraft are taking a toll of traffic attempting to reach them.

"China coast cities, such as Foochow, menaced by the Japanese, have not been of much influence in this war, yet, but the China situation is serious," Nimitz said.

Formosa Aid To Japs

The admiral said it is imperative to have a "land mass close enough to the Japanese Empire to enable us to employ the air forces which will be at our disposal."

"So long as Formosa is in the hands of the Japanese it will be a very strong point, as they can continue to supply it with air power," he said.

"To the extent that the Japanese improve their situation in China, our task will become more difficult. But when we have the means to do it we will get the bases in China that we want."

Slide-Rule Raids

Southwest Pacific Bomber Base, Oct. 1 (AP — Delayed) — Mass bomber raids on Japan's vital oil source at Balpiukpapan, Borneo, were planned down to the last drop of gasoline.

Three men lost their lives in preflight tests to prove the strike could be made over more than 1,000 miles of water each way. Factory representatives came from the United States to help in the slide-rule preparations.

Maj. Gen. St. Clair Streett and Brig. Gen. William A. Matheny, of the 13th Airforce, agreed that from a technical viewpoint no raid was ever so minutely planned.

COSCOB AIRMAN BLASTS JAP SHIPS

ABOARD U. S. CARRIER IN THE PACIFIC, Sept. 23—(Delayed)—(AP) Manila's ship-laden harbor was "a bomber's dream" when the Americans attacked Sept. 21-22, in the words of Cmdr. John D. Blitch, 29, Charleston, S. C.

Fliers off this carrier are credited with more than half the Japanese shipping sunk or probably sunk at Manila in the raid. The group knocked out 19 ships and damaged 27 others.

Blitch's flight sank a large ship and the floating drydock where it was berthed, and destroyed a small and medium cargo vessel near Cavite harbor. The same fliers returned later in the day to intercept five ships heading for Corregidor. Blitch reported four were sunk.

Lt. (j.g.) L. L. Laz, 21, Aurora, Ill., made it back to the carrier with a hole in the panel of his right wing which was large enough, so one commented, for a man to walk through wearing his parachute. Laz was hit by AA in a low-level bombing-strafing run. His right wing caught fire, but he maneuvered the Helldiver and managed to extinguish the flames.

Arm 2/C John Geoghagan, 19, of (27 Suburban avenue), Coscob, Conn., made two hops in one day in an Avenger torpedo plane, striking repair facilities and small ships in the area.

Japanese Move Broken Up

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Oct. 11 (Wednesday) (AP).—A Japanese attempt to reinforce the little garrison still holding out against General Douglas MacArthur's invaders of Morotai was largely broken up Monday night and early Tuesday by fighter planes and patrol-torpedo boats which sank or damaged eighteen of the reinforcement barges. One barge destroyed was 110 feet long and was loaded with enemy troops.

In announcing the action today, a spokesman at headquarters said some enemy troops may have succeeded in running the blockade, but no alarm was felt. He said the small naval units and the air force would be able to handle anything the enemy might send.

MacArthur landed a large force Sept. 15 on Morotai, 300 miles south of the Philippines, meeting no opposition on the beaches and chasing the surprised defenders into the hills. Since then an air base has been put in action there and no sizable organized resistance has been reported at any time.

Today's communique said the Japanese also hit weakly by air at Morotai, sending two bombers in a pre-dawn raid and "causing minor casualties." Anti-aircraft batteries brought down one raider.

In air actions to the south of Morotai, Allied night raiders set off fires visible for forty miles at Manado, a town on the north coast of Celebes, and Liberators spread flames along the waterfront at Koepang, Timor, with sixty-six tons of explosives. A power plant was believed destroyed.

NAZI CITY FACES DESTRUCTION BY U.S. GUNS, PLANES

Enemy Has Until Morning to Capitulate or Be Destroyed.

ESCAPE ROUTES CUT

1,500 German Troops Left in Ancient Border Bastion.

LONDON, Oct. 10—(AP) The historic German frontier city of Aachen is threatened with "ruthless" destruction by American artillery and bombing planes beginning at 10:50 a. m. tomorrow (5:50 a. m. E. W. T.) if the commander of some 1,500 enemy troops in the surrounded stronghold declines an ultimatum delivered to him today to surrender unconditionally.

For the first time in the war a German city, rich in tradition, faced obliteration by a land army. It was the first great test of whether the Germans were willing to see their cities destroyed one by one in carrying out Hitler's orders to fight to the death.

Reminded of Ultimatum

Starting at 6 o'clock tonight (European Time 1 p. m. EWT) the Luxembourg radio at hourly intervals reminded the German troops holding out in Aachen that they still had time to accept the American ultimatum, the Federal Communications Commission reported.

(Absie, the American broadcasting station in Europe, quoted a "late report," meanwhile, that one German company in an isolated sector in the northwestern suburbs of Aachen had requested "independent surrender terms."

While the outcome of this ultimatum was awaited, a heavy October rain set in during the afternoon, bogging down the whole Western front, and late tonight Supreme Headquarters said there had been no progress worth reporting during the last half dozen hours.

City Badly Damaged

Aachen, whose pre-war population of 165,000 had been reduced to fewer than 15,000 civilians by evacuation and which already was badly damaged by nearly a month of fighting on its outskirts, was ringed by a tremendous concentration of American artillery—sufficient to smash the city to the desolation of Stalingrad in a short time.

The order to surrender unconditionally within 24 hours was delivered to the German command by three Americans under a white flag of truce, while 200 artillery shells bursting over the city showered down thousands of leaflets urging German soudiers and civilians to persuade those responsible to "stop useless bloodshed and destruction."

The Nazi garrison commander, whose troops have been holding up the U. S. First army push through Aachen from strong hedgehog positions, was told there could be no middle ground for him, a clear indication that Allied forces have no intention of dickering with the enemy at any point as they thrust into Germany.

"The city of Aachen is now completely surrounded by American forces, who are sufficiently equipped with both air power and artillery to destroy the city if necessary," the ultimatum said. "We shall take the city either by receiving its immediate unconditional surrender or by attacking and destroying it.

"In other words, there is no middle course. You will either unconditionally surrender the city with everything now in it or you may refuse and await its complete destruction. The choice and the responsibility are yours."

Two American lieutenants and a private who went into Aachen and delivered the demand were blindfolded by the Nazis before they were taken through the streets to a command post. They said they did not hear the voices of women or children the entire time they were in the city.

News of the ultimatum was being broadcast by the Allies tonight to the people in all parts of Germany, Don Whitehead of the Associated Press explained in a field dispatch:

"The American High command wants them to know the story of Aachen—wants them to know that if their cities are to be made into fortresses then they will be destroyed. What happens to Aachen will set the pattern for every city inside Germany."

If the Nazis hope to turn Aachen—also known as Aix-la-Chapelle—into another Cassino they are doomed to disappointment, Whitehead said. There are no heights guarding the German city, and American attacks can be made from all sides instead of being channeled head-on against a strongly entrenched foe.

Counter-Attack Repeatedly

Although the Nazis have been counter-attacking desperately for days in an effort to break the jaws of the American pincers closing around Aachen, each of the thrusts had been thrown back with bloody losses. There were six of these futile attacks yesterday and four last night.

Aachen, seat of Charlemagne's ancient empire, has been under attack by Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' First army troops since Sept. 15, when they burst across the German frontier below the city. In the intervening weeks the Americans have deployed strong forces 15 miles north and south inside Germany and have driven wedges through the original Siegfried Line dangerously near the industrial Ruhr.

Although today's ultimatum to the Aachen commander declared the city was surrounded, a field dispatch tonight said there still was a narrow corridor open to the northeast, swept by American machinegun and mortar fire.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's U. S Third army, springing forward between Nancy and Metz in northeastern France, eliminated an enemy bulge and seized new positions running from Fresnes-en-Saulnois, 15 miles north and east of Nancy, to Cheminot, 18 miles due north. Patton's forces had captured at least 3,555 Germans in the past three days.

Southern Front Unchanged

The situation inside Fort Driant, across the Moselle river from Metz, where for nearly a week American troops had been fighting a desperate close-quarter batle with a determined Nazi garrison, remained static, a field dispatch said. American artillery laid a terrific barrage on Fort Marival, a mile north of Fort Driant, silencing its guns.

Farther south Lt. Gen. Alexander Patch's Seventh army advanced two miles east of Epinal and drove the Nazis from the towns of Laveline and Herp-Elmont.

Canadian forces, who in an amphibious operation early yesterday established a bridgehead behind the enemy's lines on the shores of the Schelde estuary in Holland, were reported in a field dispatch to be firmly planted and beyond fear of being thrown out. Their bridgehead now extended almost three miles east from the village of Hoofdplaat and almost two miles inland.

The official German DNB news agency reported that a second Canadian amphibious force landed last night near Breskens, five miles west of Hoofdplaat and directly across from the island of Walcheren. The enemy broadcast said the force was strengthened during the day by 30 to 40 landing craft.

AMERICANS GIVE NAZIS 24 HOURS TO QUIT OR DIE

First Army Draws Up for Final Blow Tomorrow if Foe Hangs On.

CANADIANS GAINING GROUND

Seaborne Troops Push Two Miles on Schelde Estuary and Cut Rail Line.

London, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—The American First Army completely surrounded Aachen today and delivered to the German garrison an ultimatum to surrender within twenty-four hours or be conquered by ruthless attack.

The Americans had sealed off the Siegfried Line city with a wall of troops, tanks and guns, and already were building up a twenty-five-mile front six to ten miles inside the Reich for an attack toward the Rhine.

Leaflets, dropped into the city by shellfire, after the ultimatum had been delivered and declaring the time had come for honorable surrender, urged civilians to persuade those responsible to "stop the useless bloodshed and destruction."

Safety for Civilians.

"The city of Aachen is now completely surrounded by American forces who are sufficiently equipped with both air power and artillery to destroy the city if necessary," the messages said. "We shall take the city either by receiving its immediate unconditional surrender or by attacking and destroying it."

"While unconditional surrender will require the surrender of all armed bodies, the cessation of hostile acts of every character, the removal of mines and prepared demolitions, it is not intended to molest the civil population or needlessly sacrifice human lives. But if the city is not promptly and completely surrendered unconditionally, the American Army Ground and Air forces will proceed ruthlessly with air and artillery bombardment to reduce it to submission."

Earlier today the two jaws of a vise had closed the German escape lane northeast of the city to only a mile in width, and choked it off with machine-gun fire.

Canadians Gain on Schelde.

Canadian troops to the northwest, meanwhile, advanced in drives intended to clear perhaps 15,000 Germans from the Schelde estuary—a prime necessity to open the big port of Antwerp to Allied supplies for the battle of Germany.

Amphibious forces which landed yesterday on the south shore of the Schelde advanced 2½ miles, and the Berlin radio said new forces had landed today. The Canadians in the bridgehead over the Leopold Canal struck forward after throwing back thirty Nazi counter-attacks in four days.

The bottling of Aachen's "Fight-to-the-Death" defenders came as Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army wiped out a German salient in the Nancy-Metz sector. Elimination of this Nazi pocket was reported by Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball, who said Gen. Patton's troops had moved up into new positions extending from Fresnes-en-Saulnois, fifteen miles north and east of Nancy, to Cheminot, eighteen miles due north of Nancy.

Attack on 25-mile Front.

The First Army in the Aachen sector has forged a 25-mile front and is fighting on the approaches to Duren and Julich, highway keys to Cologne and Dusseldorf. Americans were six miles from Duren—ten miles beyond Aachen and twenty from Cologne—and seven miles from Julich, where an excellent highway branches to Cologne twenty-three miles beyond and to Dusseldorf twenty-six miles away.

The Reich's stubborn defenders, goaded to new fierceness by an order of the day from Field Marshal Gen. Gerd von Rundstedt, mounted one savage counter-attack after another. The German radio admitted "limited breaches" in the Aachen sector, but declared they had been sealed.

The weather-plagued Yanks stopped the Nazi counter-blows on both the First and Third Army fronts, and maintained the momentum of their slow-moving offensive.

German losses were heavy and the Nazi commander in the west braced his troops for an even worse battering.

"You have stopped the enemy at the gates of the Reich," Von Runstedt's broadcast order said. "The enemy will, however, shortly launch a new grand offensive. I expect that you will all defend the sacred German soil to the last."

Patton Takes 3,555 Prisoners.

Not only along the Siegfried Line were the German defenses already strained. The Canadians who cut into the Nazi pocket in the Schelde Estuary yesterday with a seaborne landing were reported in a field dispatch to have advanced two and one-half miles. They cut the Nieuwdanilschemolen-Biervliet railway.

Supreme Headquarters said these waterborne troops had made good progress, but fighting still flared at the Canadian bridgehead over the Leopold Canal.

Many Germans were killed in a sharp but vain attack against British positions near Arnhem.

The Third Army drive between Metz and Nancy brought in 3,555 prisoners in three days, and seized at least ten towns. At Fort Driant below Metz, infantrymen still fought to overcome ingenious defenses, and had penetrated into underground tunnels guarded by steel doors.

Farther south, the Seventh Army, advancing two miles east of Epinal, forced the Germans from the towns of Laveline and Herp-Elmont. Seventh Army forces were also fighting only eight miles from Belfort, guarding the gap leading into southwestern Germany.

The Berlin radio said the Allies had begun all-out assaults on the Brittany ports of Lorient and St. Nazaire.

Surrender or Destruction Faces Aachen Under U.S. Ultimatum

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS OUTSIDE AACHEN, Oct. 10—(AP) Time is running out for sprawling, haze-covered Aachen, which has the choice of unconditional surrender or destruction under the big guns and aerial might of American armed forces.

Tonight no answer had been received to the "surrender or be destroyed" ultimatum which was delivered to the German garrison inside the city at 10:50 a.m. today.

If the commander of the enemy forces has not accepted the unconditional terms at 10:50 a.m. tomorrow (5:50 a.m., E.W.T., Wednesday) the the fate of Aachen, which is virtually surrounded, has been sealed by the Nazis.

Fate Left to Germans

Whether this historic burial place of Charlemagne is to escape further ruin rests entirely with the enemy. The responsibility for what happens after the ultimatum expires will pass to the enemy.

The demand from the American general commanding troops before Aachen was carried inside enemy lines by Lt. Cedric Lafley of Enosburg Falls, Vt. He was accompanied by Lt. William Boehme of New York as interpreter and Pfc. Kenneth Kading of La Grange, Ill., who carried a white flag of truce made from a bedsheet.

The ultimatum is being broadcast on enemy wavelengths to reach the people in all parts of Germany. The American high command wants them to know the story of Aachen —to know that if their cities are to be made into fortresses, then they will be destroyed.

What happens to Aachen may set a pattern for every city in Germany.

The ultimatum read:

"The city of Aachen is now completely surrounded by American forces who are sufficiently equipped with both air power and artillery to destroy the city if necessary. We shall take the city either by receiving its immediate unconditional surrender or by attacking and destroying it.

Will Not Molest Civilians

"While unconditional surrender will require the surrender of all armed bodies, the cessation of hostile acts of every character, the removal of mines and prepared demolitions, it is not intended to molest the civil population or needlessly sacrifice human lives. But if the city is not promptly and completely surrendered unconditionally, the American army ground and air forces will proceed ruthlessly with air and artillery bombardment to reduce it to submission.

"In other words, there is no middle course. You will either unconditionally surrender the city with everything now in it, thus avoiding needless loss of German blood and property, or you may refuse and await its complete destruction.

"The choice and responsibility are yours. Your answer must be delivered within 24 hours at the location prescribed by the bearer of this paper.

"Signed,

"American Army Commander."

Leaflets showered over the city called on civilians to "go now to those responsible and make them stop the useless bloodshed and destruction. The time has come for your civilian leader or you to speak boldly. Tomorrow — may be too late."

How Aachen Got Ultimatum

New Yorker Tells of Trip Into Encircled City Under Bed-sheet Flag of Truce.

By DON WHITEHEAD.

With American Troops Outside Aachen, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Just before 1 P. M., today, three men walked slowly back into the American command post here from the interior of Aachen. They were Lieut. Cedric Lafley of Enosburg Falls, Vt.; Lieut. William Boehme, New York city, and Pvt. Kenneth Kading, La Grange, Ill.

They were back from Aachen with a white flag made from a bedsheet which they carried in to present to the German command and the mayor of Aachen the ultimatum of the United States Army.

Lieut. Lafley actually carried the messages. Lieut. Boehme acted as interpreter. The young, tall and spike-haired Private Kading, gulping with nervous excitement at his participation in this memorable mission, carried the bedsheet as a flag of truce.

They looked neither elated nor depressed as they told newsmen what had happened. Eventually, they had to present the American demands to a young German second lieutenant, because of inability to reach any higher officer. But nobody was impressed by this, for it was only the German garrison commander who could decide. What he is to decide is yet to develop.

They Met Three Germans.

Here is the story of their march into Aachen and back:

They rode in a jeep to our forward line here at the railroad tracks right on the edge of the city. From there they walked into the city, Private Kading striding down the middle of the streets carrying the bedsheet, and the other two flanking him. They reached a smashed underpass and, peering through the gloom, sighted three German soldiers. Recognizing the flag of truce, the Germans waved for the Americans to come on.

"They blindfolded us with our own handkerchiefs," Lieut. Boehme said. "I told them we had a message for the German commandant, and one of the German soldiers asked what it was. I said it was information for the commandant. Then I heard one of the soldiers whisper to another: 'I hope it is a reasonable offer.'

Nazis Half-heiled Yanks.

"They were leading us now by holding onto our arms. There was some rubble underfoot but not much. We took quite a long walk and then we got to what I believe was a Germany company headquarters. It was the living room of a small house.

"A young German second lieutenant was there. He was pretty stiff, and he and his soldiers there half-heiled us when he got in and they had taken off our blindfolds. They stuck their arms half way up in a kind of salute.

"I told the lieutenant we wanted to see the troop commander. He didn't answer, but just told one of his men to take us to another command post.

"They blindfolded us again, and we were off again—this time to a battalion command post. This was another long and zig-zaggy walk. We ended up in a cellar this time, and I heard a dog parking somewhere near by. At this place, we saw a lieutenant who was a battalion adjutant.

"I gave him two envelopes, each one addressed both to the German commander of Aachen and to the Burgomeister and told him to give them to his commanding officer.

"Most of the Germans we saw while we were there in Aachen wore ribbons of the Russian campaigns. They looked tough."

Lieut. Lafley, who had been standing nodding quietly, entered the story at this point:

"He signed a receipt for those papers, and I put down the time on it. It was 10:50 A. M.

"We offered them some cigarettes, and they took them and offered us some of theirs. I took one and didn't like it. Boehme went on smoking his pipe. The German lieutenant asked me, 'How long have we got?' I told him it was right there in the papers. I told him it was for the commandant to say and that if we did have a reply, he was to send it to us the same way we had sent these papers to him. They were polite but very formal. When we left, they shook hands.

Nazi Says, "Auf Wiederdschen."

"Back at the underpass, they took off our blindfolds and gave us back our white flag. One of the Germans said: 'Auf wiederschen' as we left. We didn't hear any voices of women or children all the time we were in there. Our shells were going over the town, but none was falling in there."

Aside from the great shower of leaflets American guns are dropping into the center of Aachen, fighter-bombers have unloaded 400,000 of these leaflets. The procedure was intended not only for Aachen but as a lesson to all Germany. It is a significant action, for the outcome of this effort at Aachen may indicate strongly how far the Nazis are ready to go.

The colonel commanding this regiment, which alone has massed a terrible weight of guns right here on the edge of Aachen, is sitting here now just waiting. His black hair is slightly mussed, and he looks tired and speaks very softly.

He said only 10,000 to 15,000 civilians remain of Aachen's normal population of 165,710. The civilians have been fleeing both to the east and back through American lines.

"Gentlemen," the colonel said, "if there is no answer by 10:50 A. M. tomorrow, I attack."

NEWSMEN MOVE CLOSER TO FRONT

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS OF THE ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Oct. 10—(AP) War correspondents covering Supreme headquarters wrote their stories closer to the scene of action tonight.

Forty-five correspondents moved today from London to Paris—practically the last of Gen. Eisenhower's official family to get across the English channel.

Supreme headquarters has been dribbling to the continent for the past two and a half months. Gen. Eisenhower moved his advance command post to an apple orchard on the edge of Cerisy forest in Normandy early in August. The bulk of his staff had set up headquarters elsewhere in France by the first week in September. Now nearly everything is in Paris.

The war had run away from communications as long as a month ago, and it had become increasingly difficult to keep abreast of developments from London, 80 miles from the fighting at Dunkerque, but 450 miles from the Seventh army front before Belfort Pass.

The regular morning "briefing" for correspondents was held today at old SHAEF headquarters in Britain. Then the correspondents were given one hour to write their stories before boarding special planes for France.

A SHAEF spokesman said:

"Moving closer to the front will shorten our lines of communication many miles and should considerably speed up the relay of official news."

On this first move, press associations were permitted to send two correspondents; individual newspapers one. James M. Long and Lewis E. Hawkins are representing the Associated Press.

SHAEF Press Section Transferred To Paris

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—The press section of supreme Allied headquarters moved to Paris today with 45 war correspondents.

The correspondents attended the regular morning "briefing" at old SHAEF headquarters in Britain and had one hour to write their stories before boarding special planes for France. The customary afternoon conference was scheduled for 5 P. M. at the new press headquarters in a Paris hotel.

"Moving closer to the front will shorten our lines of communication many miles and should considerably speed up the relay of official news," a SHAEF spokesman said.

For the initial move, press services were permitted to send two correspondents and individual newspapers one. The Associated Press is represented by James M. Long and Lewis E. Hawkins.

French In Sixth Army Group

Supreme Allied Headquarters, Oct. 10 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny's French First Army, veterans of Tunisia and Italy who have fought their way within nine miles of the Belfort gap and five miles of Bussang pass through the Vosges, were announced tonight as the fighting mates of Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army in the new Sixth Army Group.

German Retreat Signal Is Hinted

London, October 10 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, spokesman for the German high command, voiced tonight what may be the signal for German armies to retreat to Germany's borders.

In his weekly broadcast, Dittmar said "it is essential for us now to realize that at present no aspect is more important for us than the utmost shortening of our lines.

"We are defending the fortress Germany and any outlying points must be held only as long as necessary.

"This applies also to the Balkans."

Himmler Tells Officers To Halt Any Retreat

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—Heinrich Himmler, in a speech to officer candidates, has given orders that army officers must halt any sign of retreat, even by shooting those who would turn back, the Luxembourg radio said tonight in a broadcast.

"Send the most brutal officers of the division for this task," he said. "I will protect everyone, every action, even if it seems to be a bit too drastic, but I shall never protect anybody going soft," he told young officers near Metz.

Surprised Colonel Acts Fast, And Lives

With an American Tank Battalion in Belgium, Oct. 3 (AP—Delayed)—Lieut. Col. Robert Skaggs walked up to what he thought was an American post. Out walked a Nazi—for it was a well-fortified German pillbox.

The Nazi ducked back into the pillbox, and Skaggs leaped on top of it. The Nazi popped out another door and tossed a grenade. Skaggs dived into a slit trench, dodged machine-pistol fire and made his way safely to a jeep, where he radioed for a couple of tanks to come to his rescue.

Pillbox Unyielding

The pillbox proved as tough as it was surprising, resisting all efforts of tanks, infantry and combat engineers, and today the Germans still held it—10 days after Skaggs' close call.

Skaggs, a resident of Los Angeles, Cal., won the Distinguished Service Cross in D-Day battles, and his battalion won a Presidential citation.

Nazis Kill Or Jail Males In French Village

New York, Oct. 10 (AP) — The Swiss newspaper Gazette de Lausanne said today the entire male population of Etobon, a little French village of 150 near Belfort, was either killed or imprisoned by the Germans September 29 for sheltering French Forces of the Interior.

The dispatch, reported by the Office of War Information, said 40 men between the ages of 16 and 40 were shot to death in groups of ten before a church, and the remainder, between 40 and 60 years old, were lodged in Friedrich prison at Belfort.

Allied Prisoner Bag: 563,928 Since Aug. 6

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—Six Allied armies have captured at least 563,928 prisoners since the invasion of France on June 6.

Announced captives:

United States First Army	192,016
United States Third Army	92,600
United States Seventh Army	90,000
United States Ninth Army	19,312
British Second Army	78,681
Canadian First Army	18,927
French forces of the interior attached to the British Second and Canadian First Armies	72,392
Total	563,928

Figures for the first Allied airborne army which invaded Holland vertically never have been announced. The totals for the United States Third, Seventh and Ninth armies are nearly three weeks behind date.

Nazis Mobilizes Viennese

LONDON, Oct. 10 (AP).—Reverberations of the Red Army's drive through Hungary reached into Austria today. A German broadcast said all Viennese men and women between the ages of sixteen and sixty-five had been mobilized to dig fortifications.

THE MILEAGE TO BERLIN

3—Italian Front: 560 miles (from south of Bologna).

On the black market, American paper dollars brought 250 francs and British paper pound 670 francs as people rushed to unload excessive profits accumulated in the occupation period and hedge against inflation of the franc.

American authorities have established a military franc with a value of 2 cents in American money for the purpose of paying military personnel and the British pound, on the basis of $4 to the pound, would work out 200 francs to the pound for similar purposes.

[The last official franc-dollar rate prevailing prior to suspension of normal activities was 02.29 cents to the franc and 176 francs to the British pound, New York foreign exchange experts said.]

Requisition Is Feared

The fear of early Government requisition of foreign securities was based on a Government decree published in the official journal ordering all persons and corporations owning foreign securities to turn in a list of them to the authorities.

This led to belief in financial quarters the Government might be planning to requisition the securities and use them to help pay off its foreign obligations.

Josephine Baker Back in Paris

PARIS, Oct. 10 (AP).—American-born Josephine Baker, Negro dancer who acquired French citizenship by marrying a Frenchman, is the latest of theatrical stars to show up in Paris, but admirers might not recognize her in her natty blue French Air Auxiliary lieutenant's uniform, complete with gold epaulettes. Arriving from Morocco, she said she has been working as a liaison officer after a serious illness in Casablanca.

Trading In Foreign Securities Is Resumed On Paris Bourse

Paris, Oct. 10 (AP)—Trading in foreign securities was resumed on the Paris Bourse today amid bearish interpretations of a decree ordering all foreign securities to be listed and filed with the Government.

No American issues appeared on the first day that operations were allowed in foreign securities since German occupation of the capital.

Interest in foreign shares centered in South African gold mining issues—Union Corporation, Central Mining and East Geduld — and Swiss securities such as Nestle Liebig.

Suez Canal Shares Drop

Various Suez Canal shares suffered losses ranging from 500 to 2,000 francs. The regular stock dropped from 63,000 francs to 61,000.

RED FORCES SMASH ACROSS LITHUANIA, REACH BALTIC SEA

Cut Off German Garrison in Riga Trapping 150,000 Troops.

THREATEN MEMEL

Breakthrough Perils Northern Sections of East Prussia, Memelland.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(AP) The Red army drove a band of steel across Lithuania to the Baltic sea 14 miles above Memel today, cutting off the German garrison in Riga and trapping probably 150,000 Nazi troops in Lithuania and Latvia.

A Soviet communique announced that Russian forces had crashed through to the sea at Palanga, in Lithuania on the north border of Memelland, and captured more than 300 other towns and villages north and southeast of Memel, virtually sealing the fate of that seaport and historic bone of international contention which Germany annexed in the Spring of 1939.

Capture Many Towns

The breakthrough did not appear to be a tenuous one of the sort made and then wiped out west of Riga during the Summer. Places captured included Kretinga, large railway station 12 miles northeast of Memel, and Darbenai and Lenkimai, seven and ten miles from the sea northeast of Memel, and Gargzriai, only nine miles due east of Memel. The effective width of the Soviet barrier north of Memel appeared to be about 20 miles.

The siege ring also was drawn tighter around Riga, long-threatened capital of Latvia, with capture of Gauja, railway station 11 miles north, Rapozi, 10 miles northeast and Saulkaine, 12 miles southeast.

Gen. Ivan C. Bagramaian and his First Baltic army thus had caught the German groupings not only in Riga but around Leipaja and Ventspils, two other Baltic Latvian ports, and posed an immediate threat to the narrow strip of Memelland, and to the northern section of East Prussia.

The Germans were reported to have a concentration of armor in the northern cut off pocket which probably would lead any attempt to break out. The Berlin radio said the Russians were themselves using a battering ram of more than 1,000 tanks and 1,000,000 men in the great offensive that swept westward to the sea.

Already the pressure on East Prussia was mounting. A strong contingent of the Soviet forces that achieved the initial break-through in Lithuania wheeled southward and strengthened the Russian positions along the Niemen river today with capture of Taurage, 20 miles northeast of the East Prussian city of Tilsit.

Still another Russian force fought toward East Prussia and captured the Lithuanian town of Sakiai, seven miles from the East Prussian border and 33 miles northeast of Kaunas.

Somewhat overshadowed by the tremendous gains on the northern portion of the front, the Soviet armies in the south also reported continuing victories.

Reds Reach Debrecen

One Soviet column reached the Hungarian city of Debrecen and was fighting in the outskirts of that communications point, the Soviet communique said. Debrecen controls international routes into Czechoslovakia, Poland and Rumania. Derecske, 13 miles south of Debrecen, was taken in that drive.

Moscow said nothing of the offensive aimed at Budapest. German reports have placed the Russians about 50 miles from the Hungarian capital, fighting for Szoinok, a large station on the orient express line to Budapest.

In northern Transylvania, in the territory that Hungary took from Romania and for which the Romanians now are fighting alongside the Red army, the Russian communique announced the combined forces had entered Felachiu, only three miles from the Transylvanian capital city of Cluj.

The Red army and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav partisans pressed the liberation drive in northeast Yugoslavia, the Soviet communique announcing they had cut the Nis-Belgrade railway and highway route by capturing the junction point of Veliko Plana, 43 miles southeast of Belgrade. A number of other cities along the Morava river between Belgrade and Nis fell to those combined forces.

Veliko Plana is on the great trunk rail line south from Belgrade to Salonika and the Aegean, so that all German units remaining in Greece and southern Yugoslavia now are cut off from their main escape route.

Capture 3,200 Nazis

In the fighting south of Belgrade in two days, the Moscow war bulletin said 3,200 Germans were captured, while all along the front Monday 106 German tanks were destroyed or knocked out and 78 airplanes downed.

The Soviet agency, Tass, reported the Hungarian Government had decided to evacuate the population to western Hungary. The Tass report quoted the Stockholm paper Svenska Dagbladet, and went on to say the German Embassy's personnel already had left Budapest.

German broadcasts reported the Russians were aiming several new thrusts towards Budapest, but details were lacking.

Moscow dispatches said also that in Yugoslavia the Red army had cut the Vienna-Orient express line between Belgrade and Budapest. This is the main rail artery between Germany and the Balkans.

The German radio described other Soviet attacks as continuing in the direction of Slovakia.

A communique from the Yugoslav partisan Marshal Tito claimed capture of Petrovac in Eastern Serbia 90 miles northwest of Belgrade and the severing of enemy communications westward from Serbia. Belgrade itself still held out against combined Russian and Partisan forces.

On the far northern front the Finnish news service said that Finnish troops had cleared the entire Gulf of Bothnia coast of Germans but that the retreating enemy had blown up the Kemijoki bridge, longest railway bridge in Finland.

Russians Reach Baltic South Of Memel

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—Russian vanguards have reached the Baltic Sea south of the Prussian port of Memel, severing all landward escape routes for some 150,000 Germans in Latvia and Lithuania, a report from Moscow said today.

This would constitute an invasion of East Prussia, because the Memel territory—a long, narrow neck of land along the sea—was incorporated into the Reich in March, 1939. Hitler seized the area from Lithuania.

"12 Miles From Memel"

At midnight, the Kremlin had reported the Russians only 12 miles from the sizable seaport of Memel and driving swiftly.

Of the Russian offensive in Lithuania against the borders of East Prussia, the German communique asserted:

"The gigantic struggle continues with growing ferocity."

New Vistula Drive Reported

The Berlin radio declared today the Russians have launched a new offensive in the Vistula river bend south of Warsaw. The exact locale of the reported offensive was not specified, but the Russians have held a bridgehead across the stream for some time east of Kielce.

There was no immediate confirmation of the drive from Moscow.

Shellfire On Memel

Moscow, Oct. 10 (AP)—Russian artillery fire struck today on Memel, German-held port on the Baltic, while to the south two Soviet armies hurled their weight into a drive on the East Prussian fortress city of Tilsit.

The Baltic offensive of Gens. Ivan C. Bagramain and Ivan Cherniakhovsky, ripping apart the German coastal flank protecting the heart of East Prussia, matched in success the sweep of Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's forces into northern Hungary.

Reach Debrecen Outskirts

There, after cutting railway retreat routes behind the German and Hungarian forces in northern Transylvania, the Russian spearhead thrust into the outskirts of the Magyar military training center of Debrecen. Advances put the Russian forces within 50 miles of Budapest.

(The British radio broadcast a Turkish report today asserting that a general strike had been declared throughout Hungary, German-occupied kingdom invaded by the Russians. OWI in New York heard the broadcast, which gave no details.)

Marshal Malinovsky's drive appeared aimed at the Ruthenian highlands, where a junction might be made with Col. Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukrainian Army group on the Czechoslovak border. The advance was through country inhabited by Magyar cowboys and shepherds.

Belgrade Outflanked

Malinovsky's southern wing which crossed the Tisza in northern Yugoslavia swung westward in an advance which outflanked Belgrade and endangered the third largest Yugoslav city of Subotica (population 100,000) on the main Belgrade-Budapest railroad.

Prospects were reported good for bottling up most of the enemy forces in Transylvania and the Carpatho-Ukraine, which Hungary took from Czechoslovakia. This would permit Malinovsky to strike at ancient Budapest from three sides.

Hit From Two Sides

Battling fierce Nazi resistance, the Russians jabbed two prongs of a pincer north and south of Memel. One Soviet column captured Kuliai, 14 miles from the Baltic port, while another took Vezaiciai, 12 miles from Memel and only three miles from the East Prussian border.

The front of General Bagramian's First Baltic Army looped back along the Latvian frontier and then extended northward to threatened Riga. The Russians were 30 miles southeast of the Latvian port of Liepaja and only 22 miles north of Tilsit, German rail center.

(In Stockholm the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported a sea battle off the Swedish Island of Faro, northeast of Gotland. The paper said eyewitnesses reported gunfire could be heard last night and later flames "like a ship ablaze" could be seen. The paper conjected the firing had been directed at a German ship attempting to escape from Riga.)

Finns Gaining In Pursuit Of Nazis

Stockholm, Oct. 10 (AP)—A Finnish communique announced today that the Finns were pressing after the Germans in the direction of Tervola on the road from Kemi to Rovaniemi.

Six miles north of Tornealv, the Finns captured Alavojakkala and "are still advancing," the bulletin said.

The harbor, railway station and airport at Kemi, at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, were ruined by the Germans before they retreated, a Helsinki correspondent reported. Buildings in the district of Karihaara were reported burned, leaving 1,500 homeless.

Nazis Destroy Supplies

The dispatch said the Germans also destroyed their supply warehouses outside Kemi, and dumped locomotives, airplane motors, ammunition, radio apparatus and cables into the harbor.

German bombers attacked the Oulu railway area Sunday, the Finnish communique said.

Rumanian Communists Rally

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 8 (Delayed) (AP)—Between 50,000 and 60,000 Bucharest workers met today and heard Communist leaders condemn the present Rumanian Government and call for a Communist-Socialist alliance in a united workers' front.

Reports Strike In Hungary

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—The British radio broadcast a Turkish report today asserting that a general strike had been declared throughout Hungary.

PEACE ALLIANCE HAILED BY STALIN

Toasts Cooperation At Banquet For Churchill

Moscow, Oct. 10 (AP) — Premier Joseph Stalin, at a gala banquet for Prime Minister Winston Churchill and the envoys of the United States and the British Commonwealth today, offered a toast to the future collaboration of the Allied powers in a peaceful world.

As host at the elaborate three-and-a-half-hour luncheon in the white and gold hall of Spirodonovka palace, the Soviet Premier rose twice to deliver speeches emphasizing the necessity for cooperation among peace-loving nations in order to achieve peace.

Tribute To United States

In his toasts Stalin also paid tribute to the contributions to a United Nations victory made by Britain and the United States.

Churchill came to Moscow yesterday for talks which responsible sources said should lead to guarantees of peace after victory. The British and Russian leaders spent three hours together in the Kremlin last night and the willingness with which Stalin greeted Churchill was considered indicative of his readiness to discuss the problems which will face the United Nations after the war.

In his address, Stalin referred in favorable terms to the Dumbarton Oaks conference from which emerged the framework of an international security organization.

Churchill Hails Red Army

Churchill replied to the Soviet Premier's acknowledgment of Britain's war role with a toast hailing the might of the Red Army and its accomplishments.

High on the agenda of the talks between Churchill and Stalin is the Balkan situation—to make sure the German and pro-Fascist spirit is eliminated in southeastern Europe.

The question of what to do with Germany is, of course, one of the biggest topics before the United Nations.

There are all kinds of opinions, and it is believed a free exchange of ideas between Churchill and Stalin will do much to shape the course of events.

Oil Problems Also Listed

Also prominent on the list of topics, it is understood, are discussions involving oil.

The two also are expected to talk about Poland. Churchill's attitude on Poland is well known because he has spoken recently in a fashion that met with Soviet approval, especially when he said Russia had a right to expect a friendly Poland.

With the two leaders personally discussing the problems confronting the United Nations, Izvestia, the official Soviet Government organ, stoutly expressed opposition today to altering the principle of a unanimous vote by the four major powers on the international security council in case of post-war aggression.

Informed Through Harriman

The United States was kept fully informed of the progress of the Churchill-Stalin conferences through Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, acting as President Roosevelt's personal representative, although he was not present at the Kremlin at the initial talks.

The United States ambassador, however, did attend Stalin's mid-afternoon banquet which lasted from 2:30 to 6 P. M. Harriman was seated at Stalin's left and Churchill at his right. Eden was at Foreign Commissar Molotov's right and British ambassador at his left.

In the official invitation the banquet was called a Zavtrak, the Russian word forbreakfast. The menu ran the gamut from exotic hors d'ouevres to the finest Russian pastry. The beverage list included teh most famous wines, champagne and brandy of the Soviet Union, but, as is usual in Moscow, vodka was the favorite drink.

Molotov Praises Hull

Molotov proposed a toast of glowing praise to the statesmanship of Eden and United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull, and Eden replied with two toasts, one to Molotov an dthe other to Stalin, Chucrhill and President Roosevelt.

A Russian plan for development of oil resources in Iran was announced in the Russian press during the day.

A Tass dispatch from Teheran said Soviet Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs Kavtaradze, accompanied by Russian geologists, had completed an inspection of Kevir-Khurian fields in northern Iran and quoted the commissar as saying he hoped to negotiate an oil concession for Russia.

American Plan Hinted

The British have had oil concessions in southern Iran for many years.

At the same time Tass quoted an edtiorial in the Teheran newspaper Ettelaat suggesting that the question of oil concessions to the Russians in the north and the Americans in the southeast should be discussed carefully by the Cabinet and Parliament.

This was the first intimation there that the Americans might be attempting to get a foothold in Iran at the same time as the Russians.

Churchill, Stalin Talk 3 Hours In Kremlin

Moscow, Oct. 10 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill talked with Marshal Stalin for three hours in the Kremlin last night and conferred today with the British diplomatic and military staff before starting a second meeting with the Russian Premier.

W. Averill Harriman, United States Ambassador, was kept fully informed by the British delegation, although he was not present at the Kremlin last night.

Churchill was understood to be presenting his views on questions in Europe and elsewhere—views which were said to have been fully indorsed before he left the Quebec conference with President Roosevelt.

Russian Oil Plan

The latest indications were that his visit would last throughout this week.

The Briton's presence in Moscow coincided with two important statements in the Russian press. One expressed flat opposition to altering the principal of a unanimous vote by the four major allied powers on the international security council, in case of aggression. The other statement disclosed a Russian plan for developing oil resources in the northern part of Iran.

Iran Occupied Jointly

Some fields of Iran (Persia) have been controlled by Britain for more than a century. The country now is occupied jointly by British troops in the south and Russians in the north.

One obvious topic of the Churchill-Stalin conversation, was the details of final defeat and occupation of Germany. Another was the general outline of post-war Europe. The possibility was not excluded that the exchange of opinions would include other areas of the world.

Paper Lauds Oaks Plan

Izvestia, praising the Dumbarton Oaks plan for international security, stoutly supported the principle of a unanimous four-power agreement on cases of aggression, declaring:

"The experience of the League of Nations proved useless its talk about high purposes without the guarantee of full harmony and coordination among the leading powers, both in the adoption of decisions dictated by the interests of the small nations and in putting these decisions into effect.

"Now the four leading powers—the Soviet Union, Great Britain, the United States and China—have been placed in a special status as permanent members of the council. No decision can ever be adopted without the consent of all. In the Washington negotiations, the suggestion was made to abandon this principle in cases where one permanent member was individually interested by not allowing it to vote. This would mean renunciation of the principle of concordance and unanimity and attempt to solve the question behind the back of a permanent council member.

Need For Unanimity

"If unanimity is required in the solution of general cases examined by the council it is more necessary to have a unanimous opinion in important cases, referring to the very essence of the organization of permanent security, regardless of whether these cases touch the interests of a permanent council member.

"The right of a permanent member to vote in the above-mentioned cases is but the consequence of the principle of concordance and unanimity among the leading powers and is the cornerstone in the whole international organization, to which there can be no exception. It is clear from the published document that a further examination of this questions, unsolved in Washington, will continue."

MOSCOW PARLEY CONCERNED OVER BALKAN PROBLEMS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — (AP) Prime Minister Churchill's meeting with Marshal Stalin is believed here to be concerned primariy with questions of Anglo-Russian interests in the Balkans. Their decisions can have decisive results in determining whether central Europe is to have stability for years to come.

Some of the problems before the British and Russian chiefs demand virtualy immediate solution. One official emphasized the urgency of the situation today by saying "it is already postwar in the Balkans."

Discuss Polish Rift

Poland and Yugoslavia represent the most ticklish questions on the list, although policy on ruling occupied Germany is necessarily involved in future plans for all central Europe because of Germany's previously predominant economic position in that area.

Situations confronting Churchill and Stalin are:

Germany—The Allies are understood to have agreed on occupation zones in Germany and on establishment of a board of high commissioners to make continuous and unified policy for all the zones. But occupation policy itself remains to be settled and presumably Churchill is taking up with Stalin points worked out with President Roosevelt at Quebec.

Poland—the Polish government in London reportedly has now abandoned efforts to negotiate with its rival Soviet-sponsored Polish National committee through Moscow. Unless a merger is accomplished by the time civilian government can be re-established in Warsaw, the Polish rivalry may be transferred to the western Allies, recognizing the exiled Polish government in London on one hand, and Russia, backing the Polish national committee on the other. It is considered imperative for the smooth functioning of the Big Three alliance that the government eventually established in Warsaw be one with which Britain, the United States and Russia can all deal.

Yugoslavia — Britain's traditional Mediterranean position rubs most closely against Russian Balkan interests in Yugoslavia. Although the Yugoslav partisan leader, Marshal Tito, has made an agreement with the Yugoslav government in London, there has been considerable evidence of continuing difficulties. Churchil demonstrated his deep interest in that situation when he conferred with Yugoslav leaders in Italy last month.

Bulgarian Armistice Delayed

Bulgaria—More than a month has passed since Bulgaria got out of the war, but no armistice has yet been signed. There are now reports that this is due to delays on the part of the Russians whose armies are in Bulgaria, although Russia was at war with Bulgaria for only two days before that Nazi satellite surrendered. Bulgaria is of considerable interest to Britain because of her position in the eastern Mediterranean close to the British empire traffic through Suez.

Greece—Although war difficulties and censorship have prevented full reports on the situation in Greece, there have been indications that it is approaching civil war with a conflict over political issues.

Hungary—The last of Hitler's satellites has not yet surrendered to the Allies but an Anglo-Russian conflict of views could arise with regard to negotiations with Hungary if a policy is not laid down beforehand.

BOMBERS RAID REICH AT NIGHT

Heavy Planes Set To Pound Aachen After Ultimatum

London, Oct. 10 (AP) — Formations of fast Allied bombers were over western Germany tonight, the Berlin radio reported, after a day of bad weather that kept most of the Eighth Air Force and RAF planes grounded on this side of the Channel.

The extent of the Allied night operations was not disclosed. The American heavyweights were preparing to carry out orders to destroy the German city of Aachen if it does not surrender by tomorrow morning.

To Serve As Example

The pounding that Aachen will get if it rejects the American ultimatum may be a good example of what the future holds for other stubborn points on the way of the Allied march on Berlin.

"On our airfields bombers are awaiting the final order to take off," Aachen's residents were warned in the ultimatum.

In the past month the Eighth Air Force alone has dumped 60,850 tons of bombs on German cities and has stayed at home only 11 days since September 10 because of weather.

Berlin Phones Out

Berlin was reported without telephone service today, and Stockholm dispatches said the German capital had been without long-distance service since Friday, when about 1,000 American heavy bombers hit the city and wrecked telephone cables.

The German radio acknowledged that the steel works at Bochum was damaged considerably Monday night by an attack of 500 RAF Lancaster heavy bombers. Returning to the old tactics of saturation bombing, the RAF dumped thousands of incendiaries and many tons of explosives on the German industrial city.

Bochum was shattered by a big raid September 29, 1943. In the intervening year the Todt construction organization had been able to get some of the major industries going again, thus setting the stage for Monday night's blow.

HITLER PRAISES YOUNG FIGHTERS

LONDON, Oct. 10 — (AP) Adolf Hitler was quoted by the German radio today as praising young Germans' "fanatical will to sacrifice" and declaring that "the necessity of our fight is being approved by the whole German people, but mainly by the youth."

DNB said Hitler replied to a report from Reich Youth Leader Arthur Axmann that 80 per cent of Potsdam's Hitler youth had volunteered for military service.

"With pride and joy I learned of the volunteers of the 1928 class (of 16-year-olds). In the hour of danger for our country, their spirit and sacrifice has been a shining example," Hitler's message said.

"The youth of the Nazi movement has fulfilled what the nation has expected. The young fighters of the Hitler youth division have proved their loyalty. We know the destructive plans of our enemies. That is why we are fighting for a Germany in which you will once live."

Hitler's own voice has not been heard on the microphone since shortly after the reported bomb attempt on his life on July 20, but the German press has been assuring the public that he is busy on plans to defeat the Allies.

Hitler Lauds Nazi 'Will To Sacrifice'

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—The German radio said that Hitler lauded German youths today for what he called their "fanatical will to sacrifice in the hour of danger to our country."

The message, broadcast by the official German news agency DNB, was the first reported utterance from the German Chancellor since shortly after the reported attempt on his life July 20.

The message was in reply to a report from Reich Youth Leader Axmann that 80 per cent of Potsdam's Hitler Youth had volunteered for military service.

"With pride and joy I learned of the volunteers of the 1928 class," Hitler said. "In the hour of danger for our country their spirit and sacrifice has been a shining example."

London, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—The British Government today cautioned the Nazis, "from the highest to the lowest," that they would be held responsible if they carried out a plan, attributed to them by the Polish Government, for the mass murder of all persons in the concentration camp at Oswiecim, in Upper Silesia.

German Escape Route Cut

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—All German communications leading westward from Serbia and the Sandjak area have been cut, a communique from Marshal Tito's headquarters reported today.

It added that Yugoslav patriots were engaged in heavy fighting with German troops evacuating Greece.

Nazi Occupation Costs Total $26,400,000,000

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—Dingle Foot, parliamentary secretary for the Ministry of Economic Warfare, told Commons today Germany had enacted a total of $26,400,000,000 from eight occupied countries in the form of occupation costs, goods and services and that the present annual rate of exploitation was $2,760,000,000.

He listed the countries as France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Bohemia-Moravia, Slovakia and Serbia. After the complete liberation of France, Belgium and Holland, he said, the annual rate of exploitation would be reduced to approximately $1,840,000,000.

Allies Keep Up Big Day Raids On Germany

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—Numerous Allied air formations flew against the Germans at sunrise today in continuance of the unprecedented daylight aerial offensive after the RAF executed a saturation night attack on the Ruhr steel capital of Bochum.

Thousands of fire bombs and a profusion of explosives set fires in Bochum which glowed for many miles through clouds and fog. The Nazis had spent a year rebuilding Bochum after the last heavy attack on September 29, 1943. Some major industries had been placed in working order again.

65 Miles From Aachen

Bochum is a large rail center 65 miles northeast of Aachen, at the center of an area which produces nearly a third of all the Ruhr's coal.

Mosquitos bombed the port of Wilhelmshafen. Night fighters supported both the heavy and light bombers and the Air Ministry said seven planes in all were lost.

Bad weather yesterday limited battle support to the bombing of a railroad bridge at Euskirchen by American Marauders.

Southwest Hit Hard

Some 1,100 Eighth Air Force Fortresses and Liberators from Britain, with 900 fighters, plowing through fog, attacked military targets in the Schweinfurt-Coblenz and Mainz regions of southwestern Germany.

Five bombers and three fighters were missing, one of the lightest losses yet on a major run into Germany.

Kirk Heads U. S. Navy In France

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—Vice Admiral Alan G. Kirk is now serving as commander of United States Naval Forces in France, Admiral Harold R. Stark announced today.

Kirk commanded the western task force during the Normandy invasion. Previously, he led a task force in the Sicilian landings.

Was Chief Of Staff To Clark

He served in London as naval attache at the American Embassy and chief of staff to Stark, commander of United States naval forces in Europe in 1942. He had a previous tour of duty in Great Britain as naval attache in 1939-40.

Kirk wears the United States Legion of Merit badge and the British Order of the Bath.

He is 56, a graduate of Annapolis and a native of Philadelphia. His home is at Black Point, Conn.

BRITISH DESTROYER LOST

LONDON, Oct. 10 — (AP) The British destroyer Rockingham, formerly the U. S. S. Swasey, has been lost, the Admiralty announced tonight. The four-stacker was one of 50 destroyers the United States sent to Britain in 1940.

British Sink Nazi Trawler

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—British light naval forces sank a German armed trawler off the Hook of Holland early Sunday and damaged three other enemy ships, which retired inshore, the Admiralty announced today.

Phones Out 48 Hrs. To Berlin

Stockholm, Oct. 10 (AP)—The break in telephone communications between Berlin and Stockholm now has lasted 48 hours, without explanation.

Scots Families Minus Homes Total 150,000

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—There are approximately 150,000 homeless families in Scotland, Lord Ainess said today in the House of Lords in supporting a bill which would expedite the construction of suitable houses.

Lord Teviot said the overcrowding in Scotland was "six times as much as in England."

NAZIS TO GIVE UP ALL GREECE

Admit Evacuation As British Clear Way To Athens

Stockholm, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Germans admitted today their forces were evacuating Greece, the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported.

The correspondent added that farther north in the Balkans, the Nazis were using special troops in an effort to free their retreat line from attacks by Yugoslav Partisans.

Rome, Oct. 10 (AP)—British and Greek forces held the city of Corinth tonight as a base for the clearing of Athens, 40 miles distant, and the remainder of the Greek mainland. The full liberation appeared to be only a matter of time.

Headquarters announced that German garrison units were withdrawing steadily northward, omitting even the rearguard actions so characteristic of Nazi retreats.

The cleanup of the Peloponnesus was quick and largely bloodless.

Corinth Found Evacuated

A small force of British troops entered Corinth yesterday and found the entire German garrison gone. There was nothing to indicate the British would encounter any determined opposition along the rest of the route to Athens.

The liberation of Athens and its port of Piraeus will open the way for sending in food, medical supplies and other needed essentials for the civilian population. The Greek Government announced it was in Italy ready to go to the homeland in the immediate future.

Some enemy personnel apparently remained in the Athens area, but it was believed they were more interested in fleeing northward than in fighting in Greece.

Athens Airfields Raided

RAF Wellingtons raided three Athens airfields last night and encountered only light flak. The only planes observed on the fields were ten transports sent to remove Nazi personnel.

Allied land forces, meanwhile, had begun an assault on the little southern Albanian port of Sarande, a supply base for the Nazi garrison on the island of Corfu.

British, aided by Partisians, took more than 100 prisoners and suffered only light casualties in the first few hours of the attack.

British troops and Greek patriots were given a triumphant welcome as they marched across the southern coast of the Gulf of Corinth to enter the port city. Flowers, olive branches and fruit were showered on them.

The Germans' Greek security battalions in the city of 20,000 surrendered after a conference with the Mayor, and were taken to concentration points.

As they advanced along the isthmus to Corinth, the British found bridges on the Patri-Corinth road had been destroyed by retreating Germans. A large part of the evacuated German units probably already are fleeing through Yugoslavia.

Allied naval forces reported the sinking of several enemy vessels attempting to evacuate Nazi personnel from Aegean island garrisons.

Corinth Taken By British, Greeks

Rome, Oct. 10 (AP)—British and Greek forces have occupied Corinth, it was announced today.

Two hundred and fifty members of the collaborating Greek "security battalions" surrendered there yesterday morning. No Germans were met in the city, which is at the south end of the isthmus linking the Peloponnesus and the Greek mainland.

Cheered By Populace

A dispatch from Sydney A. Feder, Associated Press correspondent, told how the Liberators marched into the town after a triumphant parade of welcome all the way across the southern coast of the Gulf of Corinth. The whole route was lined with a cheering populace, he said, showering the troops with flowers, olive branches and fruit.

Terms of surrender, Feder reported were agreed upon in a long conference between the Mayor of Corinth, Peter Kaneboplos, and the administrator for the Peloponnesus. The terms simply were that the Greek security battalions give up their arms and be escorted to concentration points.

Meanwhile, the Allied land forces of the Adriatic began attacking Sarande, the little southern Albanian port which is a supply base for the Nazi garrison on the island of Corfu.

Enemy Battery Silenced

The attack started at 4 A. M. yesterday and Allied troops quickly penetrated to the western outskirts of the town.

Another unit silenced an enemy battery and took the central defenses. Then a parachute company landed and captured a second battery.

With the capture of Corinth, the Allied command announced, land forces of the Adriatic now are in control of many communications in the Peloponnesus. A communique added that "operations continue," presumably an advance from Corinth by the British. Athens and Peiraievs (Piraeus), its port, are only 40 miles distant.

Bridges Blown Up

In the advance to the Isthmus of Corinth the British found that retreating Germans had blown up bridges on the Patrai-Corinth road. However, the official Allied announcement that no Germans were encountered at Corinth itself seemed further evidence of a systematic withdrawal of some three infantry divisions which had been garrisoning Greece and other units evacuated from the Aegean Islands.

In the Sarande attack the British, with Partisan support, took more than 100 prisoners. British casualties were moderate. Farther inland 80 Germans were killed in a small battle which started when two German companies halted at a road demolition which was covered by a British patrol. A tank and three trucks tried to break along the road but were knocked out, and the enemy troops, after twice trying to attack the British patrol, were compelled to flee.

Army Trawler Sunk

A naval communique announced widespread operations against small enemy craft in the Aegean in recent days. An enemy armed trawler and a large caique were sunk the night of October 6 near the entrance to Salonika in addition to the enemy destroyer previously reported sunk in that action by British destroyers HMS Termagant and HMS Tuscan.

On the following day naval aircraft sank a caique and damaged another. They drove enemy mine sweepers ashore in the Euboea channel and also sank a merchant vessel west of Lemnos.

Motorcraft Destroyed

The cruiser HMS Black Prince and the destroyer HMS Terpsichore sank a passenger ship, a large caique and enemy landing craft north of Skiathos. Two enemy motorcraft were destroyed by coastal forces the night of October 7, and the next day a merchant vessel and a lighter were sunk off Psara, west of Chios.

An enemy tanker of 750 tons was left burning the night of October 8 when an enemy convoy was attacked on the west side of the entrance to the Gulf of Athens.

CORINTH TAKEN WITHOUT A SHOT

Greek Patriots and British Find All Nazis Fled.

Corinth, Greece, Oct. 8 (Delayed) (A. P.).—This ancient stronghold in the Peloponnesus fell to Greek Patriots and British troops today without anything resembling a fight. The German garrison fled northward and the Greek Security battalions left behind by the Nazis surrendered.

The liberators marched into the town after a triumphant parade of welcome all the way across the south coast of the Gulf of Corinth, completing capture of the entire Peloponnesus. The entire route was lined with a cheering populace, showering the troops with flowers, olive branches and fruit.

Although the withdrawing Germans had been passing through here on their way out of southern Greece during the past month, and a garrison of about 1,000 had been stationed here, there was not a German to be found in this waterfront city of 20,000.

The only enemies here were some 300 members of the Greek Security battalions who gave up without firing a shot after terms of surrender had been agreed on at a long conference last Friday between the Mayor of Corinth, Peter Kaneboplos, and the Administrator for the Peloponnesus. The terms simply were that the security battalions give up their arms and be escorted to concentration points.

WEATHER AIDS NAZIS IN ITALY

Yanks Ignore Mud To Bring Bologna In Heavy-Gun Range

Rome, Oct. 10 (AP)—American Fifth Army troops, toiling slowly forward through mud, rain and stout German positions, are within heavy artillery range of Bologna, vital German communications and supply depot in northern Italy, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

The weather over the entire Italian front kept aerial activity to a minimum and limited ground action on most sectors to patrol operations.

American infantry slogging along Highway 65, the main Florence-Bologna route, captured Anconella, Mount Castellazi, Lavalle and Barbarola, within an area ten miles south of Bologna and within the artillery range of the city's hub of railways and trunk roads.

Indian Troops Advance

To the east of the Americans, Indian troops reached a point two miles south of Highway 9, a lateral road between Bologna and Rimini, and brought it under range of artillery and mortar fire. The British already are astride the highway at the Adriatic end, but it remains useful to Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring in moving German troops and supplies between the Fifth and British Eighth armies.

West of the Americans Brazilian forces in the Ligura coastal area pressed forward, supported by heavy artillery and mortar fire.

Fiumicino Stalls British

Eighth Army troops still were stalled on the banks of the Fiumicino river in the Adriatic sector. The stream, which was only a pebbly river bed two weeks ago, now is reported from 30 to 35 feet wide. One Allied patrol managed to cross it and probe German defenses and return, headquarters said.

A few Thunderbolts of the Mediterranean Air Force flew through storms and attacked targets in the Modena area.

Returning airmen described the weather over the Po river valley as "terrible."

Rain And Mud Slow Drive In Italy

Rome, Oct. 10 (AP)—Rain, mud and stiff German resistance have virtually halted the Allied advance toward the Po river in Italy, but the Fifth Army's heavy artillery now is keeping the Bologna-Rimini highway under systematic fire, headquarters disclosed today.

British Eighth Army troops already are astride this highway at the Adriatic end of the Allied line, but it still is of vital importance to Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring in maneuvering his forces laterally between the Eighth and Fifth Armies.

Greek Airfields Lashed

Allied headquarters said continued bad weather and the waterlogged ground combined to keep activity at a minimum. In the Eighth Army's area operations were confined to patrols, while in the Fifth's sector some local improvements were made in forward positions.

Airfields in the Athens area of Greece were bombed by the Allied Mediterranean Air Force last night, while light bombers and fighter-bombers attacked Adriatic shipping and gave support to mired ground forces in Italy. Five Allied planes were missing from approximately 300 sorties.

Defenses Stiffen

Increasing resistance was encountered by Americans along the German defense line south of Bologna and Imola, where Kesselring has committed fresh and refitted troops to the fight to hold the Po Valley.

Strong hill positions held by the Nazis protect Bologna, although the Americans are within ten miles of the city and have moved within heavy artillery range of its network of railways and highways.

U. S. Takes Steps to Speed Flow of Supplies to Italy

Will Issue Currency Equivalent to Lire Given to Yanks.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. — (AP) New steps to increase the flow of civilian goods to Italy were announced tonight, one of them a decision by President Roosevelt to make available to the Italian government for purchases here dollars equivalent to the lire the United States has issued to its troops in Italy.

The Army announced that it has already begun moving to Italy clothing, vitamins and medicines collected by American Relief for Italy, Inc.

Food Shipments Increased

In addition, Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley announced that food shipments to Italy are being increased and arrangements are being made for shipment of other supplies and individual gift packages.

These steps, it was made clear, will not affect the Army's program of supplying essential civilian goods to liberated Italian areas where it considers this will aid military operations.

"It is to our interests that Italy be able to contribute as fully as possible to the winning of final victory," President Roosevelt said in announcing his decision.

Along with dollars equivalent to the lire paid out to American soldiers, it was announced, this country is also making available to the Italian government the dollar proceeds of remittances made by individuals in this country to persons in Italy and "the dollar proceeds of any products exported by Italy to this country."

No authoritative estimate was available as to the total amount in dollars this would make available for Italian relief purchases in this country. However, it undoubtedly will be many millions as American troops in Italy have received some pay in lire ever since the invasion of that country.

The step was taken after consultation with the British government, Mr. Roosevelt said, adding that Britain will continue to provide its share of an agreed program of supplies to Italy but under different financial arrangements.

"It has been our intention," Mr. Roosevelt said, "to make available to the friendly western European countries dollars equivalent to the local currency issued as pay to American troops in their territory. this policy differs from that to be applied in the case of Italy since in the latter ease it is subject to special restrictions reserved to the United States in connection with the final peace settlement.

"The funds which I now am making available will enable the Italian government under control of appropriate Allied authorities to obtain in this country other essential civilian supplies and to continue to obtain essential supplies after the U. S. Army program (of relief) ceases."

When the Allied troops invaded Italy, American soldiers were paid in American-printed lire so that they might easily make purchases in Italy.

The question of how this currency was to be redeemed was described at the time as one for settlement in the final peace made with the government.

President Roosevelt has also announced that the dollar proceeds of remittances made by individuals in this country to persons in Italy are also being made available to the Italian government as are the dollar proceeds of any products exported by Italy to this country.

Send Clothing, Supplies

Meantime, the War department announced that shipments of clothing, vitamins and medicine for needy civilians in the liberated areas of Italy are being made on Army vessels as space becomes available.

Shipments already made have included 35,000 bales of salvaged clothing, 498 cases of new clothing, 1,722 cases of shoes, 3,128 cases of vitamins and food supplements and 170 cases of medical supplies.

An Italian committee named at the suggestion of Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the Board of American Relief for Italy, Inc., will handle warehousing and distribution of the supplies, the announcement said.

The goods being distributed were received from a number of private relief organizations.

Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley reported that food shipments to Italy were stepped up for September and October and that further increases, particularly in shipments of dried milk, are scheduled for October, November and December.

Other supplies, including those for metal mines, are being readied for shipment, Crowley said.

Instructions for sending individual gift packages to Italy will be isued later by the Foreign Economic administration.

Allied Patrols Close To Tiddim

Southeast Asia Headquarters, Ceylon, Oct. 10 (AP)—Japanese troops are stubbornly defending Tiddim but Allied patrols have been operating within 400 yards of that western Burma base, Allied headquarters announced today.

Reverses were reported for enemy elements to the south.

Withdrawing from an unsuccessful attack near Goppe Bazaar, at the eastern end of one of the main passes across the Mayu range, Japanese reconnaissance troops left more than 60 dead, and British 14th Army patrols harassed the withdrawal, killing more of the enemy around Taung Bazaar yesterday, headquarters said.

The communique said road and rail communications were attacked successfully in central and northern Burma by Allied aircraft of the Eastern Air Command yesterday and Sunday, despite adverse weather. Bridges were the main objectives.

Jap Unit In India Starts Falling Back

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 10 (AP)—Japanese reconnaissance elements left more than 60 dead when they withdrew from an unsuccessful attack near Goppe Bazaar, at the eastern end of one of the main passes across the Mayu range, Allied headquarters announced today.

British 14th Army patrols harassing the enemy withdrawal reported that more Japanese were killed yesterday around Taung Bazaar. The Japanese crossed the border and penetrated two miles into India several days ago.

To the north Allied patrols were reported within 400 yards of the enemy's western Burma base at Tiddim which was being defended stubbornly.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK SEES JAP DEFEAT IN COMING YEAR

CHUNGKING, Oct. 10 — (AP) China commemorated today the 33rd anniversary of her Oct. 10 revolution which led to establishment of the Chinese republic and was cheered by a prediction from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek that "the coming year will not only bring us final victory, but also will witness the success of our national revolution."

Marking the anniversary of the revoltion led by Sun Yat-Sen, Chiang reminded the nation in a message that huge territories were untouched by the enemy and that 5,000,000 Chinese soldiers still were engaging the Japanese on many fronts.

Silent on War Front

There was no communique tonight on the situation in eastern and southern China, where the Chinese have suffered severe setbacks. At last reports yesterday the Japanese were 25 miles from the vital defense center of Kwangsi province—the provincial capital at Kweilin.

In the maritime province of Fukien the Chinese at last information still were batting furiously in the northwestern suburbs of Foochow, last important East coast port not completely dominated by the enemy. Tokyo claimed as long ago as Oct. 4 that the city had fallen. There has been no Chinese confirmation.

Judging by the engagements along the East coast and the railway lines, Chinese military leaders were encountering vast difficulties, but, the Generalissimo said in his message, "even at this moment" there are 400,000 regular troops east of the Pelping-Hankow and the Canton-Hankow railways who "are capable of delivering massive blows against the enemy."

Only in the west do the Chinese enjoy a measure of success. They still are on the offensive on the Salween river front. A bulletin tonight stated that fighting centered in an area northeast of Lungling, most important major base remaining to the enemy in Yunnan province. U. S. planes were active on that front.

Aware of Weaknesses

Chiang said the Chinese were well aware of their weaknesses in political and economic affairs, but that these were unavoidable in a nation going through revolution and waging war.

He pledged that "no matter how the situation may develop in the future, we shall continuously maintain our friendship with our Allies and discharge our responsibilities as members of the United Nations in the spirit of mutual assistance and cooperation.

"Now that the Nazis are approaching collapse and the time for launching attacks upon Japan is close at hand, it is imperative that we should redouble our efforts on the battlefields of eastern Asia."

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commander of U. S. forces in the China-Burma-India theater, sent a message on the anniversary, as quoted by Chungking radio, saying "the spirit which carried the Chinese through the struggle 33 years ago should today prevail in seeing the present battle through to a victorious finish. The officers and men of the China-Burma-India command extend their congratulations and best wishes."

Enemy-Held Airfields In China Hammered

Chungking, Oct. 10 (AP)—Medium bombers and fighter-bombers of the United States 14th Air Force attacked Japanese-held airfields from Tanchuk to the bend of China's Yellow river in adverse weather October 8-9, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell reported today.

Mustangs attacked a Japanese airfield at Yuncheng, on the bend of the Yellow river and destroyed two enemy bombers and damaged two others. They also shot up three locomotives.

Bomb-carrying P-40s attacked river craft in the central China sector, capsizing a river steamer and setting fire to a large barge. At Sukow the attacking force was jumped by five Japanese fighters, one of which was shot down.

One United States plane was reported missing.

Boost War Output, Chinese Are Urged

Chungking, Oct. 10 (AP)—Strict enforcement of wartime controls and efficient utilization of China's manpower to increase war production was urged by War Minister Ho Ying-chin today as this provisional capital celebrated the 33rd anniversary of the founding of the Chinese republic.

"In the midst of a tight blockade, the only means of attaining self-sufficiency—especially in military supplies—is to increase production," Ho declared. "Despite our present reverses, we must never allow our courage to falter."

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell observed the anniversary by sending congratulations to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on behalf of the officers and men of the China-Burma-India command.

Tribute By Roosevelt Hails Chinese Courage

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt, saluting China today on the 33d anniversary of the Chinese revolution, expressed hope the day is near when the Japanese will be driven out.

The text of his statement:

"Today is the 33d anniversary of the outbreak of the Chinese revolution. It is essentially a Chinese anniversary. But it is also an anniversary of importance to the whole world—because it marks the day on which one fifth of the world's population threw off a reactionary and oppressive alien yoke and started anew on the path of democracy.

In Eighth Year Of Resistance

"The Chinese people are now in their eighth year of resistance to Japanese aggression. The American people salute them and pay tribute to their courage and fortitude.

"We join them in the confident hope that the day is near at hand when the Japanese will be driven from the homeland of China, so that the people of China may join with us and the other United Nations in building a durable peace in a world free from aggression."

The President also sent a message to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek saying that "China's sacrifices to frustrate the aggressor's last desperate endeavors will play an important part" in hastening Allied victory and adding that "complete victory is now vouchsafed."

Welcome Closer Ties

"It is a pleasure to reaffirm the pride we take in our deep and enduring friendship with the great Chinese nation and the satisfaction with which we welcome the even closer association pledged for the common task of creating a just and stable peace among nations," the message said.

Secretary Hull said in a congratulatory message to the Chinese Foreign Affairs Minister, T. V. Soong, that "China's epic struggle against aggression constitutes a magnificent contribution to the cause of freedom."

Australia May Take Over Papers If Strike Continues

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 10 (AP)—The possibility of Australia's Labor Government taking over newspapers to assure the people of news was mentioned today by the information minister during a discussion of a dispute which has left Sydney and the state of New South Wales virtually without newspapers.

The minister, Arthur Calwell, said in an interview the Government was concerned about the situation, pointed out it had taken over coal mines to assure uninterrupted production, then said the same procedure conceivably might have to be followed to assure people of news.

Oct. 24 — 1944

Three Others Join In

The situation arose out of a disagreement of printers employed by the Sydney Evening Sun. Proprietors of other Sydney papers decided to support the Sun publishers by suspending publications in favor of a composite newspaper.

Some mechanical staffs and writers decided against working for the composite publication. Dismissals and suspensions resulted.

Today the suspended and dismissed newsmen produced a four-page paper in competition with the four-page composite. The newsmen made the arrangement with the Australian Labor party's weekly publication, The Standard.

Minister Mum

As newsprint is rationed, publishers asked where the newsmen obtained supplies. The customs minister, who controls the newsprint pool, declined to say wehther he had authorized supplies to the writers.

Earlier this year many Australian newspapers suspended publication in a dispute over the rigidity of Australian censorship, which since has been relaxed.

CUBAN PRESIDENT SWORN INTO OFFICE

STROZIER

HAVANA, Oct. 10 — (AP) For the second time in little more than 11 years, Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin took the oath of office as president of Cuba today in Havana's most colorful and enthusiastic celebration.

The orderly inauguration was in complete contrast to the hectic ceremony in which he was sworn in Sept. 6, 1933, just after the fall of dictator-president Gerardo Machado, for a brief, turbulent rule of 137 days.

In an atmosphere of good will, retiring President Fulgencio Batista turned over the administration to his duly-elected successor.

A milling throng of 35,000 gave Batista an ovation as he left immediately after the ceremony to complete arrangements for his departure Saturday on a six months' tour of all American nations except Argentina.

The greatest chorus of vivas, however, was reserved for the scholarly new president, 62-year-old bachelor professor and physician, who appeared upon a second-floor balcony to receive the plaudits of his adherents.

Beside him was his vice president, Dr. Paul de Cardenas.

In the section reserved for special ambassadors stood the represenatives of 27 foreign nations, including the Marquis of Rialp, sent from Madrid by the Spanish dictator, Generalissimo Franco.

Havana stores were closed to celebrate Inaguration day, which falls on the 76th anniversary of the "Grito de Yara" which started the ill-fated revolution of 1868 against Spanish colonial rule.

New Cuban Head Pledges Pan American Road Aid

Havana, Oct. 10 (AP)—President Grau San Martin, in his first message to Congress, tonight promised that Cuba would carry out her part of a plan to link Florida, Cuba and Mexico by ferry and road with the Pan American highway.

The plan, indorsed in Florida and backed by the Mexican tourist commission, would bring tourists in their automobiles by ferry from Key West, Fla., to Havana, thence west through Pinar Del Rio province to a convenient jumping-off place for another ferry to the Yucatan peninsula of Mexico, thence by highway to Mexico City or southward into Central America.

Break With Franco Big Cuban Issue

Havana, Oct. 10 (AP)—Strong Congressional pressure to break diplomatic relations with Spain confronted Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin today, even before he took the oath of office as President of Cuba in ceremonies at noon in the Presidential palace.

STROZIER

The new President's own party started a campaign to withdraw recognition of Generalissimo Francisco Franco and work for his downfall.

All parties of the opposition joined in the drive and pledged their support of a formal Congressional resolution of censure for the Franco regime.

Strain On Proceedings

This campaign was the only disturbing factor in the peaceful program of celebrations climaxed by the formal inauguration ceremonies.

It placed a strain on the proceedings, because Franco had sent the Marquis of Rialp to Cuba as his special Ambassador to attend the ceremonies.

Indalecio Prieto, who heads the liberation junta of anti-Franco Spaniards in exile in Mexico, came to Havana as an unofficial guest to attend the inauguration and was accorded a reception equal in formality to that given the Marqui and representatives of 26 other governments.

Certain To Meet Marquis

Prieto was invited to the inauguration and was asked to attend a formal reception tonight given by the new President to the visiting Ambassadors. There he was almost certain to meet the representative of the Franco Government.

Students at the University of Havana and other anti-Franco groups had planned an organized demonstration against the Marquis but it was abandoned at the behest of the Cuban State Department.

Factional Battle In Spain Reported

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—Fighting has broken out between troops of Generalissimo Francisco Franco and Maquis forces of Spanish Republicans reentering Spain from France, and is increasing in fury with Franco forced to bring up artillery and mechanized equipment against the Spanish Republicans, a broadcast from London said today.

Security Plan Debate Seen

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP) — Government plans to put the United States into a world organization backed by force headed for a storm of national debate today with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull apparently seeking to prevent possible disagreement on any single issue from wrecking the whole enterprise.

This strategy is considered responsible for the determination of officials to refrain now from bringing into the debate the question of whether Congress should have to give its approval each time the world organization calls for American men, guns, ships and planes to suppress a threatening aggressor.

Lacks Strong Commitment

An authoritative analysis at the State Department for the Dumbarton Oaks security plan, revealed yesterday, shows that it fails to call for any such strong commitment on the part of the United States. It provides instead only for the promise to undertake to supply forces in accord with constitutional processes.

Since responsible diplomatic officials are known to favor a system which would obviate the need for Congressional debate and decision each time specific forces were called for, the reluctance to raise the issue is regarded partly, at least, as an effort to minimize debate on this point at this time.

Voting Problem

Another point not now subject to discussion is that of the voting arrangements within the proposed 11-member security council. This stalled because Russia wanted the right for each big power to vote in a dispute in which it was involved, while this country and Britain argued that in such a case the power should not participate in the decision.

This point is one of such high policy that it will, if possible, be turned over to a meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin—and possibly Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China—to work out.

Political Issues

There is some speculation here that one of Churchill's purposes in his present Moscow conference with Stalin might be to arrange such a three or four power meeting.

It could serve not only to fill the gaps in the Dumbarton Oaks plan but also to settle some of the political issues currently complicating the relations of the leading Allied powers.

Most spectacular of these is the Russo-Polish dispute for which England has long been seeking a formula of settlement. There have been reports that it was the existence of this dispute with its political and territorial entanglements which prompted Russia to insist on a big-power veto right for charges of aggression against it.

Viewed As A Pattern

Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the Dumbarton Oaks program met with his "full approval" and that he believes it furnishes a pattern for keeping the future peace.

Other Senators who commented publicly limited themselves for the most part to statements that the report represented progress toward an international organization, and that much reamined to be settled.

Oaks Decision Holds Out Hope, Spanish Say

Madrid, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Spanish press displayed the Dumbarton Oaks conference decisions prominently today and the morning newspapers commented that if the plans for the four-power parley prevailed "the world may live in a long era of peace and prosperity."

"In Dumbarton Oaks, the delegates drafted plans for a kind of super-league of nations," Ya said. "Since the old Geneva organization failed, this Dumbarton plan tries to correct all the defects and faults which weakened the old league."

Comment in London.

London, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—The British press, while accepting the Dumbarton Oaks plan as a step in the right direction, said today that it still left a lot to be desired.

"But there is one big workable fact," said Cabinet Member Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express. "It recognizes that peace depends on power."

The liberal News Chronicle termed the plan "bold and simple in outline."

The British Labor party organ, the Daily Herald, praised the plan, saying "on the whole, the work is good."

U. S. WARNS REICH ON KILLING POLES

Washington, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—The State Department, quoting Polish advices that the German authorities in Poland are planning the extermination of tens of thousands of innocent persons now held in concentration camps, today reiterated the previous warnings of the United States Government that those guilty will be brought to justice.

A statement said:

"The United States Government has been informed by the Polish Government that it had received reliable information that German officials in Poland are making plans for the extermination of tens of thousands of innocent persons of Polish and other United Nations nationalities, as well as Jewish deportees from areas under German control who are now held in concentration camps, particularly those at Brzezinki and Oswiecim.

"The United States Government takes this occasion to again warn the German Government and Nazi officials that if these plans are carried out, those guilty of such murderous acts will be brought to justice and pay the penalty for their heinous crimes."

New Lend-Lease Charge Made

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Back from a tour of England, Representative Miller (R., Neb.) predicted today that the United States "not only won't collect anything for lend-lease aid given to Great Britain" but probably will be billed for aid given it by the British.

"This is sour and I hate to mention it," Miller said, "but I saw an official English statement that the British are keeping a record of all man-hours of labor used to move American troops and equipment and that it is going to be charged against us when the war is over."

The record, he added, includes service and labor used "for moving troops across the Channel to the Continent." Also, he said, it covers "everything from shoe polish to liquor."

Two other traveling Congressmen, Representatives Mundt (R. S. D.) and Richards (D., S. C.) said in a London interview a month ago that there should be an auditing of lend-lease and reverse lend-lease—British aid to America—immediately after victory in Europe.

A report given Congress by President Roosevelt in August estimated reverse lend-lease from the United Kingdom at more than $1,900,000,000 up to April 1 and lend-lease exports to Britain through June 30 at $9,300,000,000.

Eden Tells One On Himself

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Representative Mundt (R., S. D.) said he had a recent talk in London with Britain's Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, and the latter told this on himself: Eden went to bed late after a heavy day, only to be awakened by his bedside phone about 3.30 A. M. The Foreign Secretary just grabbed the phone, said "I am not talking to anyone," and hung up.

The phone rang again and the procedure was repeated.

The next morning Eden received a cable from Prime Minister Churchill, in Quebec, stating:

"Tried to get you on Transatlantic Telephone last night, but unable to reach you."

Rear Admiral Vickery Is Hospital Patient

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, 52, vice-chairman of the Maritime Commission and deputy administrator of the War Shipping Administration, is a patient at the naval medical center at Bethesda, Md.

Admitted to the hospital September 24 suffering from a heart ailment, Admiral Vickery was described by physicians today as "convalescing satisfactorily."

White House Ignores Argentina In Invitations

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—The White House said today that Argentina was not included in the invitations sent to other Latin-American government representatives at attend the White House ceremony Thursday in celebration of Columbus Day. President Roosevelt will make a brief radio speech on that occasion.

Stephen Early, White House press secretary, said Argentina had not been invited "because, as you know, we have no relationships with the present Argentine regime."

4,305 NAVY OFFICERS ORDERED RELEASED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — (AP) The Navy has ordered a gradual return to inactive status of an estimated 4,305 officers called from retirement since 1939, it was learned today.

Release of the officers, who for the most part have served in administrative billets ashore, will be based on age and dispensability.

It was explained that the releases are one of the essential first steps to adjust officer personnel to current and prospective requirements, and are made possible by the fact that an increasing number of younger officers may now be brought back from combat areas for duty ashore.

The Navy, in deciding who is to be released, will give first consideration to officers above the following ages: flag officers (commodores and above) 64; captains, 60; commanders, 55; lieutenant commanders, 50; lieutenants, lieutenants junior grade and ensigns, 45, and commissioned and warrant officers, 50.

LIEUT. TOFANY HONORED

Army Decorates Him for Developing Airborne Artillery

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (AP) — First Lieut. Victor J. Tofany of Rochester, a field artillery officer, was credited tonight by the War Department with having established "the practicability of airborne field artillery," by his ideas and designs.

The announcement was in a citation accompanying award of the Legion of Merit to Lieutenant Tofany.

The citation stated that he was assigned as parachute maintenance officer in a parachute field artillery unit from Dec. 18, 1942, until March 16, 1944, when the dropping of field artillery equipment was in an experimental stage. Lieutenant Tofany designed and tested all parachute bundles and equipment containers for the dropping of an artillery battalion.

"With outstanding leadership," the citation said, "he directed a group of riggers in the preparation and packing of more than 5,000 personnel and equipment chutes which were used without a single malfunction."

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—The War Department announced today the names of 3,067 casualties in the European area. Included in the list are the following with their next of kin:

WPB TO LIFT COPPER CONTROLS AFTER V-DAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — (AP) The dropping of nearly all government production controls over the copper industry will follow v-day in Europe, the War Production board disclosed today.

Allocation control over alloy ingot, scrap and refined copper will be abandoned, the copper conservation orders and most limitation orders will be revoked, virtually all manpower controls will be abolished, and foundries will be permitted to fill orders for brass and bronze castings without priority ratings if the filling of the orders does not interfere with military work, WPB said.

The agency announced that it had informed brass and bronze ingot makers, at a recent industry advisory committee meeting here, that foundries may now accept orders lacking priority ratings, but they may not produce them until after Geramny's collapse.

Reports on production and other industry data will be required for some products after the European hostilities cease, however, so that WPB will be able to keep check on the meeting of war needs, WPB stated.

Servicemen Ballots Are "Official Mail"

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson, answering an inquiry from Senator Willis (R., Ind.), said today that election ballots of service men and women are "official mail" not subject to censorship.

Senator Willis had written the War Department that he had been informed that some ballot mail had been opened by censors.

The Secretary replied that he would investigate but suggested that any censoring was an exception rather than the rule. Officers have been instructed not to tamper with ballots, he said.

NO DECISION MADE ON STATLER PROBE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — (AP) Chairman Green (D.- R. I.) of the Senate Campaign Expenditures committee today informed counsel for two Navy officers involved in the "Battle of the Statler" that the committee has not decided whether to hold hearings in connection with its investigation of the incident.

Green made public a letter to Attorney Thomas C. Bradley of Washington in which he said "in the event that the committee shall conduct hearings on the present inquiry you will be duly notified."

Bradley, attorney for Lt. Cmdr. James H. Suddeth and Lt. (j.g.) Randolph Dickins, Jr., had written Green asking for information concerning the inquiry which the Committee ordered its investigators to undertake last week.

Earlier today Sen. Green told reporters that the investigators had practically completed their preliminary investigation but that he had not studied their reports. It will be up to the committee whether the investigation is pursued or dropped, he explained.

Green conferred today with Robert T. Murphy, counsel for the Senate committee, but declined to discuss what conclusions were reached.

The two Navy officers were involved in fracas at the Statler hotel the night of Sept. 23 shortly after President Roosevelt addressed a banquet meeting of the A.F.L. teamsters union there. They said the fight developed when they objected to questioning by a group of men as to whether they were going to vote for the commander-in-chief.

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN IN FEDERAL PLANTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — (AP) The Defense Plant corporation disclosed today that only three of the nine firms operating its 13 war plants in Connecticut had expressed interest in leasing or acquiring the plants after the war.

The information was obtained by Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce, who sent telegrams to operators of 586 plants belonging to the Defense Plant corporation.

While declining to disclose the identity of the firms questioned or the type of production they are engaged in, on the ground the information still was in the confidential stage, Jones said one Connecticut company was "undecided" whether it wanted to purchase the plant it was using, and five said they were definitely "not interested."

BIPARTISAN TRUCE HELD ABROGATED

Pepper Says Dulles Violated Agreement In Letter

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) said today a letter purportedly written by John Foster Dulles, Republican Presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey's foreign-affairs adviser, "proves that an agreement cannot be made with the Republican party to keep peacemaking nonpartisan."

Pepper told a press conference that "in the unlikely event of a Republican victory" he would demand a Senate investigation of Dulles should Dulles be appointed Secretary of State.

The Senator said President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull had taken Dulles into "official confidence," but that now "that confidence has been violated" in a letter Pepper said Dulles sent to Mrs. S. Carter Hall, of the Wilton (Conn.) League of Women Voters.

Dulles: No Comment

In a prepared statement Pepper said:

"This breach of faith was committed in the writing and publishing of a letter in which Mr. Dulles advised a voter—ostensibly in reply to a request for information—that the Republican isolationists in Congress would be willing to 'go far' toward the making of a cooperative peace with a Republican in office, whereas they would not be willing to do so if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected."

Dulles said he had no comment.

"It takes two parties," Pepper said in his statement, "to carry out an agreement of nonpartisan or bipartisan action. In a shocking attempt to make political capital out of the unusual position of trust to which Mr. Dulles was admitted and to misuse for political purpose the authority that might attach to this unprecedented role, both Mr. Dulles and Mr. Dewey have now shown their hand."

Quotes "Letter"

Pepper quoted the letter as saying, in part:

"As far as getting the necessary support of the Senate, I have no doubt whatever that this will come more readily if Governor Dewey is President than if Mr. Roosevelt is reelected."

The Senator said Dulles declared further in the letter that he had talked to all members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee except Senator Nye (R., N. D.) and that "I (Dulles) think they'll go far to back up a Republican President, but I'm pretty skeptical as to what will happen if Mr. Roosevelt is reelected, in view of the very bad relations which exist between him and both houses of Congress."

"Now what does this mean?" asked Pepper, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"In the first place, it appears that Mr. Dulles is attempting to blackmail the electorate by offering an open threat that members of his own party will repeat their performance of 1920, when they destroyed peace, unless Mr. Dewey is elected.

"Mr. Dulles' letter proves that an agreement cannot be made with the Republican party to keep peace-making nonpartisan. The agreement already is violated."

Planes Bring Wounded

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—A total of 12,000 wounded servicemen have been returned by plane across the North Atlantic since June 6, D-day, Col. Gordon G. Bulla, senior flight surgeon of the North Atlantic Division, Air Transport Command, announced today.

The figure, he said, included litter and ambulatory cases.

German-American Gets 29 Years In Espionage

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—Wilhelm Albrecht von Pressentin Gennant von Rautter, 44-year-old naturalized American, who pleaded guilty to espionage with the plea that he was "forced into it almost at pistol point," was sentenced to 29 years in a Federal penitentiary today.

Von Rautter, who was arrested January 11 in his apartment near the Brooklyn Navy Yard, told Federal Judge Grover C. Moscowitz that he was forced into espionage work by the Gestapo, who had theratened his family in Germany.

He was charged with attempting to send information to Germany by writing in invisible ink between the lines of apparently innocent typewritten letters. J. Edgar Hoover said at the time of von Rautter's arrest that the man was a German Count and had been trained in espionage.

GOVERNOR HAILS ITALY

Columbus Day Proclamation Says We Must Increase Aid

ALBANY, Oct. 10 (AP)—Governor Dewey declared in a Columbus Day proclamation today that "what we have done thus far" for Italy "is little indeed, compared to what we must do."

Asserting that the Italian people were forced into a war they did not want, the Governor said:

"Today Italian patriots are fighting against the enemy, and the widespread hatred of Germany on the part of the masses of the people is the best proof that Italy is with us in the struggle for freedom and decency in the world.

"We Americans cannot and will not stand by and watch Italy suffer. What we have thus far done is little indeed, compared to what we must do. The forces of freedom there are entitled to our aid. Liberated Italy is today a friend and an ally, not just a co-belligerent. She needs not merely relief. She needs active, friendly help in her fight against nazism and on behalf of her own freedom."

NAVY MOVES TO END SHIPYARD STRIKE

QUINCY, Mass., Oct. 10—(AP) U. S. naval officials tonight took their first active step toward settlement of a two-day strike of almost 4,000 workers that threatened to in[illegible]de construction at the vast Ore river shipyard of the Bethlehem Steel company.

At the request of Commander L. F. Maider of the First Naval district, John J. Sullivan of the U. S. Department of Conciliation at Boston tonight called a conference with William J. Mullaney, president of the Independent Union of Fore River workers.

Commander Maider acted soon after representatives of the union had issued a statement declaring that "the main reason for the walkout is that we, the workers, recognize there is inefficiency, delay and mismanagement. Production is not at its peak. Full co-operation with the Navy department is impossible."

Although Mullaney, union head, earlier had declared the walkout of the workers was "unauthorized," he presided at a meeting of union representatives of departments at which the resolve, charging "inefficiency and mismanagement" was drawn up and released for publication.

For the first time during the two day strike, members of the Union and Shipyard management were near agreement on the number of workers involved in the strike.

A company representative declared the work stoppage involved 3,500 pipe fitters, ship fitters, sheet metal workers, electricians and "some sympathizing welders."

The union figures gave the number of workers involved in the walkout as a total of 2,500 after the 3 p.m. shift had started to work.

Patterson Calls Strike Plan 'Stab In Back'

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson declared today that a threatened strike of mechanical employes in 64 war plants would represent "a stab in the back of American soldiers who are now locked in battle with the enemy in Europe and the Pacific."

"By cutting off the flow of vital war material at the most critical hour, such a strike would expose our fighting men to greatly increased danger and would add both to the length of the war and the size of our casualty list," Patterson said in a telegram to Matthew Smith, Cleveland, secretary of the Mechanics Educational Society of America."

The union has threatened to call out its members, incensed by the discharge of one man by the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Company, as soon as the War Department relinquishes control of the company.

Lt. Frank H. McCracken Killed in South Pacific

Brother of Joan McCracken, Ex-Star of 'Oklahoma!'

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10 (AP).—Lieutenant Frank H. McCracken, twenty-two-year-old brother of Joan McCracken, former star of the musical comedy "Oklahoma!" and now in "Bloomer Girl" in New York, was killed in the South Pacific area Sept. 15 while serving with the marines, his wife was notified yesterday.

Lieutenant McCracken was a son of the late Frank McCracken, boxing and golf writer of the old "Philadelphia Morning Ledger" and "The Evening Ledger." He attended Pennsylvania Military College, Chester, and received his commission upon graduation last year.

GI Who Refused Stripes To Get Combat, Dies

Philadelphia, Oct. 10 (AP)—Twice the army promoted Pfc. Stephen Henik, 23, to a higher non-commissioned rank. Each time, because promotion would have delayed his entry into combat service, Henik declined.

He got into combat, and yesterday his parents were notified he had been killed in France.

Spanish Ship Afire at U. S. Pier

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10, (AP).—The Spanish merchant ship Castillo-Bellver was burning at its pier in the Delaware River tonight. Fire broke out in a coal bunker and spread to a hold loaded with cork. The cargo included 5,000 tons of cork, much of it piled high on the decks, and 5,000 tons of olives and Spanish wine.

250,000 In Normandy 'Have Lost Everything'

Philadelphia, Oct. 10 (AP) — The American Friends Service Committee reported today that about 250,000 men, women and children in Normandy "have lost everything: home, clothing, furniture, etc."—since the invasion.

Quaker workers in France have said the French Government probably will not be able to meet more than 30 per cent of their relief needs, the committee said.

The general answered: "Thanks, Billy, and the same to you."

P. A. C. Appeal to Clergy Is Denounced as 'Insult'

Churchmen's Committee Calls Program Communistic

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 10 (AP).—The Federated Legislative Committee of Pennsylvania comprising church and temperance group representatives, has passed a resolution saying that "we publicly denounce" what it terms is an attempt of the Political Action Committee "to use the Church for its own political ends," it was announced today.

Bishop Grant D. Batorf, of the United Brethren Church in Christ, committee chairman, said in a statement that the resolution declared the P. A. C. "has sent to religious leaders" a pamphlet asking "co-operation of the Church . . . as it relates to the November election."

The resolution said the P. A. C. has "the effrontery to insult the Church by telling it what should be its program, even to suggesting a creed which leaves God out and makes no mention of Christ but instead is in substance nothing but the bitter pill of Communism with a little sugar coating."

The resolution added: "We cannot work with a group claiming to represent labor when it is contrary to our Christian faith, our American form of government and in the last analysis harmful to the worki[illegible] himself."

TRUMAN SEES SOUTH 'SAFE' FOR DEMOCRATS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 10.—(AP) Senator Harry S. Truman of Missouri, Democratic nominee for Vice President, said at an informal press conference today that "you can't make me think the south will vote against the Democratic party. I can't imagine southerners supporting a man like Dewey."

His statement was in response to a reporter's question as to the effect on the November electon of presidential elector groups in some southern states who have asserted their opposition to the party nominees.

PETRILLO REJECTS ROOSEVELT'S PLEA

Union Head Refuses to Remove Ban on Making Recordings

CHICAGO, Oct. 10—(AP) James C. Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians, today rejected President Roosevelt's request to remove the Union's 26 month old ban on making recordings, and contended such a step would take business away from concerns that have agreements with the A.F.M.

In a nine page telegram to the President, the A.F.M. chief stated that since the prohibition went into effect Aug. 1, 1942, the union had entered into contracts with 105 firms and individuals, that they were producing nearly 4,000,000 records a month, and that the restriction now affected only two companies—RCA-Victor and Columbia.

Must Sign Same Contract

"There is only one solution to this problem," the Petrillo message set forth, "the Federation can accept, and that is for these two companies to sign the same contract as the 105 other companies have signed if they wish our members to work for them in making recordings and transcriptions."

Petrillo acknowledged that in 1942 and in January, 1943, he had said that if President Roosevelt asked him to lift the ban he would comply. He then cited statistics on the agreements signed and record production, and asserted the Union "has been placed in a position whereby the offer made by me no longer has any further application."

"The only good that would come out of the lifting of the ban," the Union leader said, "would be to permit these two companies to resume the manufacture of records for civilian use with resulting tremendous profits to them, and that would be accomplished by taking the business away from those companies who have signed with the American Federation of Musicians and who are now supplying the public with all necessary recordings."

He also informed the President "we have made records for practically every governmental agency, for the armed forces and our Allies, in the overwhelming number of cases without any compensation, and we are continuing to do so."

The White House and the RCA and Columbia firms made no comment on develbpments immediately.

Decision Reached Unanimously

Petrillo said the decision was reached unanimously by the Federation's executive board. The 1942 AFM order forbade record making by members for firms that had not signed contracts. Petrillo reported the purpose was to provide more work for "live musicians."

President Roosevelt appealed personally to Petrillo to withdraw the ban last Wednesday after the Union had ignored War Labor board directive to take such action.

Fred M. Vinson, stabilization director, had decided previously that non-compliance with the WLB order was not "unduly impeding the war effort," and noted the war effort must be impeded before the government can act.

In New York, Frank M. Folsom, vice president of RCA in charge of the RCA-Victor division, said the company would make "no statement in regard to the message James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, sent to President Roosevelt until the President has acted upon Mr. Petrillo's telegram."

Argentine Beef Boycott Urged By CIO Leader

Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP)—Lewis J. Clark, international president of the CIO United Packinghouse Workers of America, urged today that the State Department "take necessary steps" to halt purchases by the Allied Nations of Argentine beef—a move he contended would "pull the chief prop which supports the anti-labor, pro-Nazi regime in Argentina."

Clark said Britain was the principal purchaser of Argentine beef and added that "our State Department undoubtedly has within its reach the means to persuade the British authorities to put the economic screws on the Argentine Government. When that is done, the democratic forces in Argentina will be given the needed encouragement to enable them to throw out the little band of pro-Fascists who now exercise dictatorial authority."

Clark said the Anglo-American contract to buy Argentine beef expires September 30.

Industrial China Should Become Leader In Orient, Nelson Says

Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP)—It is to the advantage of the United States and the world to see China emerge from the war as the leading industrial nation in the Orient, replacing Japan, says Donald M. Nelson.

Speaking last night at a meeting sponsored by United China Relief, the former War Production Board chairman, who recently returned from a mission to Chungking, said: "The stakes of the war in China are incredibly large—nothing less than the future peace of the world.

"It is essential that China emerge from the war as a united democratic people, ready and able to cooperate with the rest of the United Nations in a sustained and peaceful expansion of world trade.

"I believe that it is not only an opportunity but a necessity for America to interest herself wholeheartedly, in the post-war development of China on a straight business basis. . . . Some other nation must take Japan's place in the world of industry and trade. Beyond doubt, democratic, peace-loving China is the nation."

Nelson described the situation in China "serious but not hopeless," and said he was seeking to work out plans for speeding additional war supplies to the country.

Facing Security Plan

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 10 (AP).—War, a manifestation of international disease, challenges men of good will everywhere in the world to cultivate a global Christian approach to an end which will bring to light and counteract its causes and prevent a recurrence, Dr. O. Frederick Nolde told 400 delegates from 1,200 brotherhoods of the United Lutheran Church at a dinner ending their fourteenth biennial convention here tonight.

Dr. Nolde, professor of Christian education at the Philadelphia Theological Seminary and a collaborator with John Foster Dulles on his "six-pillars-of-peace" program, said that a world program would be worked out by the Lutheran Board of Missions as part of the convention of the United Lutheran Church in America, whose convention opens here Wednesday.

Dr. Nolde said agreements made and to be made are and will be appraised by churchmen in the light of principles they have framed. Citing the Dumbarton Oaks proposal, released Monday, he said:

"The document specifies one point of disagreement and implies others. Dumbarton Oaks is merely a proposal. The real test in the United States will appear when the proposal in its completed form comes before the Senate.

"There it will be necessary to preserve what has so happily been begun, namely, to keep our foreign policy out of party politics. There it will be necessary for every Christian to exercise his prerogative as a citizen and to communicate his convictions about his country's responsibility for world order and security to his Senators."

Treatment of China Scored by Mrs. Luce

Combat Vicious Propaganda Congresswoman Urges in Talk at Hartford Celebration; More Than Words Needed to Pay Obligation to China Baldwin Says.

HARTFORD, Oct. 10—(AP) Representative Clare Boothe Luce declared tonight that "China has been treated too long as the Cinderella of the Allies," when she spoke in Bushnell Memorial to commemorate the 33rd anniversary of the formation of the Chinese Republic.

The Fairfield County legislator, whose interest in behalf of China dates long before her entry into politics made a plea for "tangible aid to a suffering ally," and said, "our first task is to reach deep down into our own pockets and to stimulate the United China relief and the National War Fund to even greater efforts" in behalf of the stricken country.

Dr. T. F. Tsising, former Chinese ambassador to Moscow, and Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, director of the Chinese Service bureau in Boston, Mass., spoke for China as did Governor Baldwin.

Sympathy for China

Governor Baldwin, in opening the program, called for a moment of silence in honor of Mr. Willkie, "A great friend of China, a great statesman and a great American. The governor in his radio address bespoke the "warm friendship and keen sympathy" of the people of Connecticut for China. "The people of Connecticut know that it will require much more than brave w[illegible]s from us to pay our full obligation to China," he said.

A personal friend of Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, Mrs. Luce said there was something else private individuals can do — "to get the story of China straight in our minds," and "to combat a vicious campaign of propaganda which is designed not only to sabotage China but also, which has as its main object the destruction of a century of good will between America and China."

Mrs. Luce charged "the incredible fact is that now, just when the center of gravity of the war moves to the Far East, when China with her back to the wall, can only oppose the steel of Japanese tanks with the living flesh and blood of her men, this moment is being used to place the Chinese government on trial before the American people."

She added that this indictment "is spewed forth out of the malice of interested parties, and incredible though it may seem, the defamation of China is even encouraged by some American officials and by publicists who enjoy close relations with our government."

Quotes Falsehoods

After quoting "fantastic falsehoods about China" appearing in newspapers and repeated through radio outlets," Mrs. Luce placed the blame for "this six-month campaign of press and radio vilification" of China partly on the shoulders of the Americans themselves.

"For a long time we have deceived ourselves with comfortable pipe dreams about China," she said. "We tried to believe that the Chinese could go on fighting forever against a great industrial power with virtually no weapons until we had finished with Hitler. Now we are disappointed. So there is a tendency to make the Chinese government the scapegoat for conditions in China for which we, ourselves, are at least partly to blame because of our past neglect of China; our long appeasement of Japan, our military unpreparedness; and our year of defeats beginning with Pearl Harbor."

She pointed out that China has received to date "only one-half of one per cent of all the Lend-Lease extended to our Allies." She added "we forget that never before in history has a virtually unarmed agricultural and totally blockaded nation ever resisted a great military power as China has resisted Japan....We forget that suffering and defeat such as China has endured for seven years have always produced deterioration in government....And Ai[illegible]cans forget that however necessary our "Beat Hitler First" strategy was, it inevitably exposed China, which had already been five years at war against a stronger foe, to an intolerable burden."

Hits at Suggestions

Charging that "China neither got the aid she hoped for, nor the credit she deserved," Mrs. Luce declared "we have actually given China less and less aid, relative to her needs, which cumulatively increases under the blockade."

She hit at "some ridiculous suggestions" which have been made "that we should withhold even the trickle of Lend-Lease supplies we are now sending China." She said "some left-wing columnists and commentators have urged us to use this pitifully small aid to blackmail the Generalissimo into turning his government over to the Chinese Communists.

"The American stooges of Moscow not only have ideas for Italy, for France, for Poland, for the U. S. A. but they have plenty of ideas for China, too," she added.

Not only has this criticism done infinite damage to China, Mrs. Luce said, but also "the fact that China, although ostensibly one of the so-called Big Four, was not invited to the second Quebec conference; a conference concerned primarily with the war against Japan.

"Yet, an elaborate invitation was sent to Marshal Stalin," she declared. "And China was kept waiting outside the door at Dumbarton Oaks, like an 'untouchable' only because the Russians would not confer with China's delegates."

Gambled Own Destiny

Declaring that Chiang Kai-Shek is in trouble in his country "because he gambled his own destiny and that of his nation on his faith in the Western democracies and in their promises," Mrs. Luce pointed out "there is naturally dissatisfaction with him in China because the democracies have not made good."

"...To keep China living until our navies can win through, we need to use our every resource," she urged. "It is as urgent now for us to send every airplane that can fly a cargo over the hump as it was for the British to get every boat which could cross the channel over to Dunkurque.

Adds Warning

Dr. Tehyo Hsieh added his warning against "distorted news concerning the new China." It comes, he said, mainly from people who "do not understand the Communists in China," which form "not a party by a government of rebellion."

Dr. R. F. Tsising, former Chinese ambassador to Moscow and now a member of the Chinese cabinet, summed up the history of 33 years of the Chinese republic, describing three great changes brought about by the republic: "Acceptance of modern science and modern technology, full emancipation of women, and bold embracing of world responsibilities."

ICKES SAYS DEWEY IS 'MR. GULLIBLE'

Challenges Charge That Roosevelt 'Neglected' The West

Salt Lake City, Oct. 10 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes tonight characterized Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, as "Mr. Gullible" in making what Ickes said was "a campaign accusation that President Roosevelt's Administration had 'neglected' the west."

Ickes asserted that "Governor Dewey would have made a greater impression here in the west if, instead of adopting the attitude of a professional mourner, he had told what his plans are for the west, if any."

"Doesn't Have The Savvy"

"He doesn't have the savvy or the feel of the West," Ickes said at a Democratic meeting in South High School auditorium. "He does not have a single Western characteristic or interest. What do you know about his views on reclamation and flood control; about reforestation and the building up of the range?"

Calling upon his listeners to "look at the record and see how this Administration has, to quote Mr. Dewey, 'neglected' the West," Ickes said:

"During the last 11 eyears under President Roosevelt, we have increased the Federal irrigated area in the West from 2,800,000 to more than 4,000,000 acres, an advance of 4 3per cent. Does Mr. Dewey regard this as 'neglect?'

Reclamation Not Finished

"To date, under this administration, $661,000,000 of Federal funds have been invested in western reclamation projects, and we are not anywhere near through yet.

"Since 1933 we have 'neglected' the West so much that the value of farm products from an acreage irrigated by the Bureau of Reclamation of the Department of the Interior has increased 360 per cent. Further evidence of our 'neglect' is the fact that the average crop value per acre has increased from $30.10 under Republican reaction to $95.84 today."

2 Tule Lake Japs Jailed For Mess-Hall Assault

Klamath Falls, Ore., Oct. 10 (AP). Two inmates of the Tule Lake Japanese segregation center were jailed and two others placed on probation today on charges of assaulting a mess-hall attendant.

Camp authorities said the four attacked the attendant because he refused to permit a chef to serve them a special meal. Hideto Tagawa, 20, formerly of Sacramento, Cal., and Toshio Sonoda, 20, formerly of Seattle, were given 90-day sentences. Harold Kocutc Okomoto, 17, and Mike Tadashi, were put on probation.

BRICKER HITS TAX PROBLEM

Suggests Local Levy On U. S.-Owned Property

Wenatchee, Wash., Oct. 10 (AP)—A recommendation that local governments be authorized to tax Federally owned property, "with proper restrictions," came tonight from Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican candidate for Vice-President.

The Ohio Governor, arriving from Spokane on a two-day tour of Washington, said taxation of Federal property would enable local governments "to maintain their financial independence without looking to the Federal Government for handouts."

He asserted that "unseen, underlying currents" were washing away this financial independence. Local governments, he added, have been "more and more deprived of tax revenues" by Federal acquisitions of property.

U. S. Owns 395,000,000 Acres

The Federal Government, Bricker said, now owns 395,000,000 acres, or more than 20 per cent. of the total area of the country, which would have yielded $91,000,000 a year if taxed at local rates.

To help local governments make up the yoss in revenue on some of this land, he continued, the Federal Government "devised a scheme known as "payments in lieu of taxes."

"Adherence to this policy," he said, "will help to destroy the financial independence of local governments.

Federal Subsidy Increase

"There should be appropriate authorization for the local taxation of Federaily owned property, with proper restrictions. In this way local governments would be able to maintain their financial independence without looking to the Federal Government for handouts.

"Moreover, all this property acquired for the conduct of the war, not needed for our permanent post-war military needs, should be returned to private ownership as soon as practicable after victory, thus restoring it to the local tax rolls."

Taking up what he called a trend toward Federal financing of activities heretofore financed by local governments, Bricker said that Federal subsidies to the States had increased from $217,000,000 in 1932 to $744,000,000 in 1941; that Federal collection of taxes had risen from 22 per cent. of the nation's total in 1932 to 38 per cent. in 1939.

His Recommendations

Asking "what is to be done in the face of these trends?" Bricker recommended:

1. The practicing of strictest economy in government, particularly in the Federal Government, and

2. The States and local governments, working with Congress, "should take immediate steps toward appropriate segregation of tax bases, preserving appropriate fields of revenue for the national, State and local governments.

litical propaganda activities."

Recalls Promises

A slash of $22,300,000 in the requested appropriation for the Office of Price Administration for 1944 and elimination of the Works Progress Administration, "thus returning an unexpended balance of $106,500,000 to the Treasury."

In contrast to this record, Bricker said, the Democrats promised a reduction of 25 per cent. in Federal Government costs, then increased Federal expenditures 56 per cent. in the first year of their administration.

The Federal debt, he complained, totaled almost $40,500,000 in 1939, or $20,000,000 more than "our entire debt in the first World War."

Concedes Need For Some

Bricker conceded that some of the increase was necessary "to alleviate want and suffering during the depression."

"But," he added, "the depression does not explain and should not be used to justify the squandering of billions of dollars for unwise, wasteful and sometimes unconscionable purposes. Never in the history of this country has there been such a spendthrift administration."

Gov. Arthur B. Langlie was here to accompany Bricker on his Washington tour, which includes a speech at Wenatchee tonight.

GOP Cut Roosevelt Waste, Bricker Says

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 10 (AP)—The Republican minority in Congress, Gov. John W. Bricker asserted today, has "broken the back of the New Deal's disorganized financial program and better days are in sight."

The Republican candidate for Vice-President, beginning a two-day tour of Washington after spending yesterday in Montana, said that Republicans, with the help of "thoughtful Democrats," had saved the taxpayers millions in "non-essential expenditures."

Results Are Listed

"An uphill fight," he related in a prepared text of his Spokane speech, produced this record:

Elimination of an $80,000,000 budget for the Civilian Conservation Corps for 1943.

Elimination of a $55,000,000 appropriation for the National Youth Administration, "thereby putting an end to its debatable activities."

Reduction of an appropriation for the Office of War Information domestic branch from $8,865,906 to $2,750,000, "thus checking its po-

Denies Willkie Favored F. D. R.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 10 (AP)—A former campaign manager for Wendell L. Willkie declares that Willkie "did not intend to support the Democratic party in this campaign."

Saying that attempts had been made "to make political use of purported private conversations with Mr. Willkie," Ralph H. Cake declared last night in a written statement that his belief was based on "continuous talks" with the 1940 Republican Presidential nominee.

Cake managed Willkie's pre-convention campaign this year.

Miss Kellems Sues CIO Group In California for $500,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10—(AP) Miss Vivien Kellems, Westport, Connecticut industrialist, today filed in federal district court a suit against the California CIO, the publication Labor Herald and various individuals including directors of the CIO Political Action Committee, seeking $500,000 damages for publication of what she charged is a false and defamatory article.

The article was published April 14 in the Labor Herald.

In her complaint Miss Kellems quotes the article in the Labor Herald in parts as follows:

"Reactionary Republican Assemblyman Jesse Randolph Kellems, member of the Tenney committee and candidate for Congress in the 16th District against Democrat Ellis E. Patterson, is getting some unwelcome publicity as brother of the notorious Vivien Kellems wealthy Connecticut cutup whose correspondence with a leading Nazi operative in Argentina recently made news".

In another part of the complaint she cites the Herald: "CIO political action leaders are not surprised by the treasonable operations of Jesse's sister Vivien, are redoubling their efforts to prevent Jesse from carrying into Congress his anti-administration, pro-isolationist attacks."

In her complaint, Miss Kellems asserts the publication and article "were false and defamatory, exposing her to hatred, contempt, ridicule and obloquy and caused her to sustain a severe and continuing nervous shock and strain, and to suffer great mental anguish, mortification and humiliation."

Miss Kellems sought to file an identical suit in Los Angeles, where she said the San Francisco publication also circulates, but the clerk refused to accept it because the typewriting was not double space.

It was the People Bank of Lakewood village, Southern California. The bank charged a condition on which it was allowed membership in the reserve system was discriminatory, a "monstrosity" and void.

The condition was that the bank could be forced out of the reserve system, and automatically out of the government insurance of deposits, if the Reserve bank should so decide in case Trans-America Corp., or Bank of America, or any affiliate of either, became owner of any of the Peoples bank's shares.

The bank asked the court to invalidate this condition in its agreement with the Reserve board.

Carl M. Owen, arguing the Peoples bank case which Wendell Willkie had been prevented by death from carrying on, told Judge Roche the special condition imposed on the Peoples bank was designed to prevent the growth of Transamerica and Bank of America operations.

Owen, in opening his argument, said "Mr. Willkie would have said with a great deal more force what I shall attempt to say for he had a deep detestation of petty tyrannies. He fought attempts of government to do by indirection what it could not do directly."

Government attorneys had contended this was not the proper court to hear the case against the Federal Reserve board, that the board as a part of the government cannot be sued without government permission, and on a number of further technicalities, including failure to show the bank had been damaged.

Aussies Term U. S. Football '22-Man War With Music'

By Russ Newland

Los Angeles, Oct. 10 (AP)—Football, American style, was displayed to residents of Brisbane, Queensland, for the first time recently and the Australian reaction to it, apparently, is that it resembles a 22-man war, intermingled with music, sidelines vaudeville and batty spells on the part of the spectators. . . .

Associated Press war photographer Ernest H. King forwards this newspaper account of the game:

"Guerrilla-Gorilla Warfare"

"They call it gridiron football. It's pigskin ser[illegible] off the grid after 22 pad[illegible] barrel-chested bohunks have fi[illegible] ironing each other out.

"Army service t[illegible]ms of the U. S. A.—engineers and base all-stars, dished up Queensland's first taste of this guerrilla-gorilla warfare yesterday to 16,000 half-hungry fans. Truth's (Brisbane publication) league critic was one of 'em and he liked the flavor, though it took over two hours to savor the sensations of an hour's actual ball action.

Time For "Back Beat Boogie"

"With the fleet hospital band sending it solid from the press box, rival rioting groups on each flank, loudspeaker commentators upsides, cheerleaders down front, officials, coaches, spare players, camera fiends, line measurers, two nondescript 'pooches' on the pitch, and, oh, yes, the 22 players, there was plenty to occupy the eyes and ears even if the mind were at rest.

"What with time out for substitutions, time out for huddles, time out for measuring, time out for casualties and time out for time out, the band had plenty time in for 'back seat boogie' and such, and the game had more stops than the town-hall organ.

"Summed up, the gridiron game has possibilities. While it's on, it's hot. But it lacks continuity. Without the band, the cheer sections and what-have-you it 'ud be about as lively as a job in the Swiss navy. I'll take Rugby League."

Another clipping:

"They'd put the ball down and one would pick it up and throw it to another. Then all would run a few feet and fall down—sort of 'pop goes the weasel' idea. Then they'd do it all again. Occasionally one lot would charge at the other as though they were trying to get in a pub door at 5 o'clock."

Something tells me Brisbane residents weren't impressed.

Wife of Guam Hero Asks Divorce Be Set Aside

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 10—(AP) Contending she should share in possibly $250,000 George Ray Tweed, 42, may receive for film and book rights to his "Ghost of Guam' 'experiences,

Mrs. Mary Tweed, 27, today asked that a divorce decree granted the Navy man last August 6 be set aside.

Tweed, a radioman, was rescued from Guam after 31 months of eluding the Japanese. He stated in his divorce complaint, alleging mental cruelty, that he separated from his wife eight days after returning July 17 from the Pacific.

Action on Mrs. Tweed's petition was continued by Judge Jacob Weinberger until October 19.

Mrs. Tweed's affidavit alleged that inasmuch as the experiences from which Tweed may receive monetary profit happened during the time they still were married she should receive a share as community property.

LONDON, OCT.10-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL WAS DISCLOSED TODAY TO HAVE PLUNGED IMMEDIATELY INTO TALKS WITH PREMIER STALIN AT MOSCOW WHICH ADVICES FROM THE RUSSIAN CAPITAL INDICATED MIGHT CONTINUE FOR A FULL WEEK.

A COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST BY THE MOSCOW RADIO SAID CHURCHILL AND STALIN HAD MET FOR THEIR FIRST CONFERENCE YESTERDAY ONLY A SHORT TIME AFTER THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER STEPPED FROM THE PLANE WHICH BROUGHT HIM FROM LONDON.

PRESENT WERE SOVIET FOREIGN COMMISSAR VYACHESLAV MOLOTOV, BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN AND BRITISH AMBASSADOR SIR ARCHIBALD CLARK KERR. LATER EDEN AND MOLOTOV CONFERRED AT A SEPARATE MEETING ATTENDED BY SOVIET DEPUTY FOREIGN COMMISSAR A.Y.VISHINSKY.

THE MOSCOW BULLETIN GAVE NO INKLING OF THE NATURE OF THE INITIAL CONVERSATIONS. PRESS DISPATCHES FROM THE SOVIET CAPITAL SAID IT WAS BELIEVED THE TALKS WOULD DEAL WITH THE ORGANIZATION OF THE FINAL MILITARY BLOWS AGAINST GERMANY AND A MULTITUDE OF EUROPEAN POLITICAL QUESTIONS.

MENTIONED AMONG THE LATTER WAS THE DISPUTE BETWEEN THE POLISH GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE IN LONDON AND THE SOVIET-SPONSORED POLISH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION, WHICH HAS BEEN BROUGHT TO THE FORE RECENTLY BY A NEW EXCHANGE OF RECRIMINATIONS.

ON THE MILITARY SIDE, IT WAS BELIEVED THAT PLANS FOR OCCUPATION OF GERMANY AND THE POSSIBILITY OF RUSSIA'S EVENTUAL ENTRY INTO THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN MIGHT RANKHIGH ON THE AGENDA.

APROPOS OF THE LATTER TOPIC, THE LONDON DAILY EXPRESS PRINTED TODAY A SPECIAL DISPATCH FROM WASHINGTON SAYING IT WAS REPORTED THERE THAT PREMIER STALIN HAD PLEDGED SIBERIAN BASES TO THE UNITED STATES AS SOON AS THE WAR IN EUROPE ENDS. THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION OF THIS.

WHILE THE UNITED STATES IS NOT REPRESENTED BY A SPECIAL ENVOY AT THE CURRENT TALKS, IT WAS SAID WASHINGTON WOULD BE KEPT FULLY INFORMED.

MOSCOW, WHICH SAID THE CONFERENCE WAS ARRANGED AT CHURCHILL'S SUGGESTION, REPORTED THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER HAD DELIVERED A "FIGHTING SPEECH" FOR SOVIET NEWSREEL MEN WHO GREETED HIM AT THE AIRPORT.

"I HAVE ARRIVED HERE ON A WAVE OF HOPE," CHURCHILL WAS QUOTED AS SAYING, "ON A WAVE OF CERTAINTY THAT VICTORY WILL BE ACHIEVED AND IN THE HOPE THAT WHEN IT IS ACHIEVED WE WILL ALL STRIVE TO MAKE THE WORLD A BETTER PLACE FOR THE LIFE OF THE GREAT MASS OF PEOPLE."

HE PAID TRIBUTE TO THE RED ARMY FOR BEING "THE FIRST TO SMASH THE SPIRIT OF THE GERMAN MILITARY MACHINE", AND ADDED:

"WE ALSO ON OUR SIDE -- THE UNITED STATES AND THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH OF NATIONS -- HAVE EXERTED OUR FORCES TO THE LIMIT AND IT IS FOR YOU TO JUDGE IF WE HAVE DEALT HEAVY BLOWS OR NOT."

AFTER THE ULTIMATUM WAS DELIVERED TO THE COMMANDER AND THE MAYOR, LEAFLETS WERE DROPPED INTO THE CITY BY SHELLFIRE DECLARING THE TIME HAD COME FOR HONORABLE SURRENDER. THE MESSAGE URGED CIVILIANS TO PERSUADE THOSE RESPONSIBLE TO "STOP THE USELESS BLOODHSED AND DESTRUCTION."

"THE CITY OF AACHEN IS NOW COMPLETELY SURROUNDED BY AMERICAN FORCES WHO ARE SUFFICIENTLY EQUIPPED WITH BOTH AIR POWER AND ARTILLERY TO DESTROY THE CITY IF NECESSARY. WE SHALL TAKE THE CITY EITHER BY RECEIVING ITS IMMEDIATE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OR BY ATTACKING AND DESTROYING IT."

"WHILE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER WILL REQUIRE THE SURRENDER OF ALL ARMED BODIES, THE CESSATION OF HOSTILE ACTS OF EVERY CHARACTER, THE REMOVAL OF MINES AND PREPARED DEMOLITIONS, IT IS NOT INTENDED TO MOLEST THE CIVIL POPULATION OR NEEDLESSLY SACRIFICE HUMAN LIVES. BUT IF THE CITY IS NOT PROMPTLY AND COMPLETELY SURRENDERED UNCONDITIONALLY, THE AMERICAN ARMY GROUND AND AIR FORCES WILL PROCEED RUTHLESSLY WITH AIR AND ARTILLERY BOMBARDMENT TO REDUCE IT TO SUBMISSION."

"IN OTHER WORDS, THERE IS NO MIDDLE COURSE. YOU WILL EITHER UNCONDITIONALLY SURRENDER THE CITY WITH EVERYTHING NOW IN IT, THUS AVOIDING NEEDLESS LOSS OF GERMAN BLOOD AND PROERTY, OR YOU MAY REFUSE AND AWAIT ITS COMPLETE DESTRUCTION.

"THE CHOICE AND RESPONSIBILITY ARE YOURS. YOUR ANSWER MUST BE DELIVERED WITHIN 24 HOURS AT THE LOCATION SPECIFIED BY THE BEARER OF THIS PAPER.

"SIGNED,

"AMERICAN ARMY COMMANDER."

LEAFLETS SHOWERED ON THE CITY WERE ADDRESSED TO GERMAN TROOPS AND THE PEOPLE OF AACHEN THEY SAID:

"AACHEN IS ENCIRCLED. AMERICAN TROOPS SURROUND THE CITY. THE GERMAN COMMAND CANNOT RELIEVE YOU.

"PEOPLE OF AACHEN!

"THE TIME HAS COME FOR HONORABLE SURRENDER. WE AMERICANS DO NOT WAGE WAR ON INNOCENT CIVILIANS. ALREADY, MANY AACHENERS ARE LIVING PEACEFULLY IN AREAS WE OCCUPY. BUT IF THE MILITARY AND PARTY LEADERS INSIST ON FURTHER SACRIFICE, WE HAVE NO COURSE BUT TO DESTROY YOUR CITY, WHICH HAS ALREADY SUFFERED SO MUCH.

"PEOPLE OF AACHEN!

"THERE IS NO TIME TO LOSE. ON OUR AIRFIELDS, BOMBERS ARE WAITING FOR FINAL ORDERS TO TAKE OFF. OUR ARTILLERY SURROUNDING THE CITY IS READY TO FIRE. OUR TROOPS ARE ALERTED FOR THE FINAL ADVANCE.

"PEOPLE OF AACHEN!

"ACT QUICKLY. GO NOW TO THOSE RESPONSIBLE AND MAKE THEM STOP THE USELESS BLOODSHED AND DESTRUCTION. THE TIME HAS COME FOR YOUR CIVILIAN LEADER OR YOU TO SPEAK BOLDLY. TOMORROW--MAY BE TOO LATE.

"PEOPLE OF AACHEN!

"THERE IS ONLY ONE CHOICE--HONORABLE AND IMMEDIATE SURRENDER OR COMPLETE DESTRUCTION."

THE ENCIRCLEMENT WHICH LT. GEN. COURTNEY HODGES THREW AROUND THE SPRAWLING BIRTHPLACE OF CHARLEMAGNE, FIRST LARGE GERMAN CITY INVESTED BY THE ALLIES ON ANY FRONT, MIGHT BE CONSIDERED CLOSED SO FAR AS THE ESCAPE OF ANY LARGE NUMBER OF ENEMY TROOPS IS CONCERNED.

NOTHING COULD MOVE DOWN SUCH A NARROW CORRIDOR WITHOUT COMING UNDER DIRECT MACHINEGUN AND ARTILLERY FIRE.

THREE TIMES LAST NIGHT, THE GERMANS COUNTERATTACKED IN DESPERATE BUT FUTILE EFFORTS TO BREAK THE PINCERS WHICH WERE DRIVING AROUND THE CITY OF 165,710 FROM NORTH AND SOUTHEAST IN A HOOKING MOVEMENT.

THE FIRST ATTACK WAS NEAR BARDENBERG, NORTH OF AACHEN, AT 7 P.M. THE NAZIS MADE A SLIGHT PENETRATION AND INFILTRATION BUT COULD NOT SHAKE THE AMERICANS FROM THEIR POSITIONS. AT DAWN OUR TROOPS BEGAN CLEANING OUT THIS RESISTANCE.

ANOTHER ATTACK WAS MADE SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN.

AT 2:02 A.M. THE GERMANS ATTACKED CRUCIFIX HILL IN ANOTHER EFFORT TO REGAIN THIS IMPORTANT HIGH GROUND BUT HEAVY ARTILLERY BEAT BACK THE DRIVE.

IN THE HURTGEN FOREST SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN, THE INFANTRY FOUGHT THEIR WAY FORWARD BUT SLOWLY. THE FIGHTING WAS HARD AND THE FOOT TROOPS AND TANKS HAD TO ADVANCE THROUGH MINED ROADS AND AGAINST PREPARED POSITIONS.

THE GERMANS SUFFERED HEAVILY IN THE ABORTIVE ATTACKS AS MACHI REGH ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE CUT THEM DOWN.

NONE OF THE NAZI THRUSTS WAS MADE IN ANY GREAT FORCE. ALL SEEMED TO BE MERE HARASSING ACTIONS FROM AN ENEMY UNABLE TO PULL TOGETHER SUFFICIENT RESERVES FOR A SERIOUS COUNTERBLOW.

PRISONERS TAKEN BY THE FIRST ARMY SINCE D-DAY NOW TOTAL 192,016. THE ENEMY DEAD BURIED BY THE FIRST ARMY TOTALS 14,591.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN GERMANY, OCT.10-(AP)-AN AMERICAN SOLDIER WAS KILLED YESTERDAY BY A GERMAN CIVILIAN WHO FIRED AT HIM FROM A DOORWAY OF A HOUSE IN THE ALSDORF VICINITY.

ANOTHER AMERICAN IMMEDIATELY KILLED THE GERMAN.

THIS IS THE FIRST WITNESSED AND CONFIRMED CASE OF AN ENEMY IN CIVILIAN CLOTHES FIRING ON AMERICAN TROOPS INSIDE GERMANY.

THE OFFICER COMMANDING THE DEAD SOLDIER'S UNIT SAID THERE WAS NO DOUBT OF THE AUTHENTICITY OF THE INCIDENT. HE ISSUED ORDERS THAT SOLDIERS MUST NOT WANDER ABOUT THE STREETS OF CAPTURED TOWNS BUT MUST STAY UNDER COVER EXCEPT WHEN ON A MISSION.

PARIS OCT 10-(AP)-. 70-YEAR OLD AMERICAN, RAYMOND DUNCAN, WHO CHANTED "YANKEE DOODLE" WHILE THE WIND WHIPPED HIS HOMESPUN WHITE GREEK ROBE, HOISTED THE FIRST STARS AND STRIPES OVER THE AMERICAN EMBASSY AFTER THE LIBERATION OF PARIS.

BROTHER OF THE LATE ISADORA DUNCAN AND FRIEND OF MOHANDAS K.GANDHI DUNCAN TOLD HOW HE RUSHED TO THE EMBASSY WHEN AMERICAN AND FRENCH FORCES ENTERED THE CITY. HE ASKED THE SWISS DOORMAN TO RUN UP THE FLAG, BUT THE FRIGHTENED CONCIERGE EXPLAINED THAT GERMANS STILL WERE FIGHTING IN THE CITY AND THE FLAG, IN ANY CASE, WAS FLOWN ONLY WHEN THE AMBASSADOR WAS IN RESIDENCE.

OCT 11 1944

"I AM THE AMERICAN AMBASSADOR, THEN, FOR THE MOMENT," SHOUTED DUNCAN, AND HOISTED THE FLAG HIMSELF. AS THE STARS AND STRIPES FLUTTERED OVER THE CROWDED PLACE DE LA CONCORDE, DUNCAN SANG "YANKEE DOODLE" WHILE ONLOOKERS CHEERED.

"I FORGOT THE WORDS TO 'GOD BLESS AMERICA,'" EXPLAINED DUNCAN, "SO I SANG 'YANKEE DOODLE' INSTEAD. I WAS HOARSE FOR DAYS AFTERWARD."

DUNCAN, A NATIVE OF SAN FRANCISCO, WAS INTERVIEWED IN HIS STUDIO ON THE LEFT BANK OF THE SEINE, WHERE HE HOLDS WEEKLY CONCERTS AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

DUNCAN SAID HE BUSIED HIMSELF WITH HAND-WEAVING, HAND-PRINTING, PAINTING, DYING AND SCULPTURE DURING THE OCCUPATION, AND AMUSED HIMSELF BY OUTWITTING THE GERMANS.

"YOU KNOW YOU CAN MASTER THE MASTER RACE WITH PERSONALITY IF YOU TRY," HE SAID WITH A SMILE.

THE CITY OF CORINTH, CRADLED BETWEEN THE HILLS AND THE EASTERN END OF THE GULF OF CORINTH AND GUARDING THE ENTRANCE TO THE CORINTHIAN CANAL, PRACTICALLY IS UNMARKED BY WAR. ROME, OCT.10-(AP)-NICOLA INTRONA, GOVERNOR OF THE BANK OF ITALY, TESTIFIED TODAY THAT THE ITALIAN GOLD RESERVE WAS CONSIGNED TO THE GERMANS BY HIS PREDECESSOR, VINCENZO AZZOLINI, WHO IS ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE.

THE GOLD WAS TRANSFERRED TO BERLIN THIS YEAR BY AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE FASCIST REGIME OF MUSSOLINI AND THE NAZI GOVERNMENT, THE 77-YEAR-OLD WITNESS SAID. AZZOLINI IS ON TRIAL ON CHARGES OF COLLABORATION.

INTRONA SAID ABOUT 50 TONS OF GOLD WAS TAKEN TO BERLIN FROM FORTEZZA IN FEBRUARY AND THAT GERMAN ORDERS TO REMOVE THE REMAINDER TO THE NAZI CAPITAL WERE BEING DISCUSSED EARLY IN JUNE.

"I HAVE NO DOUBT IT ALL HAS BEEN TRANSFERRED TO BERLIN," HE SAID.

INTRONA, WHO DIRECTED THE GENERAL BANK IN SEPTEMBER, 1943, WHEN AZZOLINI TURNED OVER 120 TONS OF GOLD TO THE GERMANS FOR TRANSFER FROM ROME TO NORTH ITALY, SAID AZZOLINI HAD AGREED TO A PLAN OF WALLING UP HALF THE TREASURE IN CELLARS OF THE BANK AND TO PREPARE LETTERS SHOWING THAT THE AMOUNT HAD BEEN SENT TO POTENZA IN SOUTHERN ITALY.

HE SAID HE CARRIED OUT THE PLAN WITH TRUSTED EMPLOYEES BETWEEN 6 AND 7 A.M. ON SEPT.20 AND THAT THE JOBWAS "SO PERFECT THAT NO ONE COULD SEE WHERE THE WALL HAD BEEN ERECTED."

THAT AFTERNOON, HOWEVER, INTRONA TESTIFIED THAT AZZOLINI SUMMONED HIM AND OTHER BANK OFFICERS AND TOLD THEM THE GERMANS HAD DATA ON THE AMOUNT OFGOLD IN THE BANK AND THAT ALL OF IT MUST BE TURNED OVER

TO THEM, OR THE GERMANS WOULD TAKE IT BY FORCE.
AZZOLINI TESTIFIED YESTERDAY THAT HE GAVE THE ORDER TO CONSIGN THE GOLD TO THE NAZIS AFTER ETTORE CAMBI, ACTING MINISTER OF FINANCE, HAD GIVEN HIM AN ULTIMATUM AND "THERE WAS NOTHING TO DO BUT TURN IT OVER."

ROME, OCT. 9-(DELAYED)-(AP)-MAJ.WILLIAM BENEDICT, 26, A TALENTED "SCROUNGER" AND A VERY TOUGH MAN ON RAILROAD TUNNELS, HAS COMPLETED HIS 200TH AIR COMBAT MISSION--42 WITH THE RAF AND 158 WITH THE U.S. AAF.

TWO HUNDRED MISSIONS MEAN VERY LITTLE TO BENEDICT, SQUADRON COMMANDER OF THE 86TH FIGHTER BOMBER GROUP, BECAUSE HE IS HAPPY AT HIS WORK.

OCT 11 1944

"I'M GETTING A HELL OF A KICK OUT OF THIS," BENEDICT SAID, RETURNING FROM HIS 200TH JOB DURING WHICH HE SET AFIRE TWO AMMUNITION TRAINS CARELESSLY LEFT SIDE BY SIDE NEAR TURIN AND CREATED "ONE OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL EXPLOSIONS I HAVE EVER SEEN."

BENEDICT MAKES IT A PRACTICE TO ENJOY LIFE AS HE FINDS IT. IN HIS TIME IN AFRICA, SICILY AND ITALY, HE HAS ACQUIRED AS SOUVENIRS 14 ENEMY AIRPLANES, ONE TANK, A $60,000 RADIO TRAILER CONTAINING FOUR RECEIVING SETS, A COUPLE OF TRANSMISSION SETS AND A TELEPHONE EXCHANGE. HE ALSO HAD AN ENEMY SEAPLANE ONCE BUT DIDN'T LIKE IT AND RETURNED IT.

BENEDICT HAS PICKED UP SEVEN MESSERSCHMITT 109S AND PROBABLY KNOWS AS MUCH ABOUT THEM AS THE AVERAGE GERMAN FLIER THESE DAYS. HE THINKS THEY ARE SPLENDID PLANES.

BENEDICT'S HOME IS IN SAN QUENTIN, CALIF. HE ARRIVED IN AFRICA IN 1942 AFTER A YEAR AND A HALF IN THE RAF IN RESPONSE TO A MESSAGE FROM THE MIDDLE EAST FOR 2,000 AIR SCREWS (PROPELLERS).

"SOME CLERK ALONG THE LINE MADE IT AIR CREWS AND THEY BEGAN SHOWING UP IN AFRICA BY BOAT AND PLANE FROM ALL OVER," BENEDICT SAID.

HE ARRIVED IN TIME FOR THE RETREAT FROM TOBRUK AND STARTED SCROUNGING RIGHT AWAY, WORKING IN COOPERATION WITH MAJ. CHARLES LEAF OF SOUTH ORANGE, N.J., WHO WENT THROUGH THE RAF WITH HIM AND STILL IS WITH HIM ALTHOUGH IN A DIFFERENT SQUADRON. THEY WOULD FLY INTO AN AIRPORT JUST EVACUATED BY THE GERMANS, PICK UP THE BEST PLANE THAT COULD FLY AND BRING IT OUT. EARLY IN THEIR CAREER THEY GOT A FIESELER STORCH WHICH WAS INVALUABLE IN LATER SORTIES BECAUSE IT COULD LAND ANYWHERE. ONCE IN SICILY THEY LANDED AT THE CATANIA AIRPORT BEFORE THE INFANTRY ARRIVED AND GOT A FINE MESSERSCHMITT.

OCT 11 1944

BENEDICT GOT A GERMAN TANK NEAR CAPE BON AND SPENT TWO WEEKS WORKING WITH ITS CANNON.

HE EXPERIMENTED ON SKIP-BOMBING TUNNELS.

"YOU HIT THE DECK AND PUT THE BOMB IN ONE END OF THE TUNNEL AND HOPE IT WON'T COME OUT THE OTHER END," HE SAID.

BENEDICT HAS BEEN VERY EFFECTIVE ON THESE EXPEDITIONS.

"I ENCOURAGE MY BOYS TO SCROUNGE," BENEDICT SAID. "IT IS A LOT BETTER THAN JUST SITTING IN YOUR TENT, SITTING IN MESS, SITTING ANY PLACE AND WAITING FOR LETTERS FROM HOME."

YOU DO NOT GET MEDALS FOR SCROUNGING. BENEDICT HAS THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, THE AIR MEDAL WITH 11 CLUSTERS, THE CROX-DE-GUERRE AND THE PURPLE HEART.

WOODALL THOUGHT THE OTHERS DIDN'T UNDERSTAND HIS ORDERS. HE PUT DOWN HIS GUN, BECKONED AND RAISED HIS HANDS OVER HIS HEAD TO INDICATE BY THAT GESTURE OF SURRENDER WHAT HE MEANT TO CONVEY.

FROM THE INTERIOR OF THE CAVE A CANTEEN CUP FLEW CLOSE BY THE INFANTRYMAN'S CHEEK. SHORTLY THE CUP WAS FOLLOWED BY A BAYONET. WOODALL CONTINUED TO ARGUE AND TO MOTION.

THEN HE CAUGHT A BUCKETFUL OF HOT SOUP FULL IN THE FACE. THAT WAS TOO MUCH. WOODALL PICKED UP HIS GUN, ENTERED THE CAVE AND KILLED ITS FIVE REMAINING JAPANESE TENANTS.

U.S.PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR,OCT.10-(AP)-SWEEPING THE RYUKYU ISLANDS SOME 200 MILES SOUTH OF JAPAN AND ONLY 500 MILES FROM THE CHINA COAST, CARRIER PLANES OF THE THIRD FLEET SANK OR DAMAGED 58 SHIPS AND SMALL CRAFT AND DESTROYED 89 PLANES YESTERDAY, ADMIRAL CHESTER W.NIMITZ ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE PLANES ATTACKED IN GREAT FORCE AND ACHIEVED COMPLETE SURPRISE, ADMIRAL NIMITZ SAID.

IN THE FIRST AMERICAN STRIKE INTO THE ISLANDS, COMMANDING THE SEA APPROACHES BETWEEN FOOCHOW AND SHANGHAI, ADMIRAL WILLIAM F. HALSEY'S PLANES ATTACKED EVERY NAVAL AND MERCHANT SHIP THEY COULD FIND AND BOMBED AND STRAFED ISLAND INSTALLATIONS.

PRELIMINARY REPORTS INDICATED THEY SANK 12 SHIPS, INCLUDING A DESTROYER, PROBABLY SANK 14 AND DAMAGED 12. THEY ALSO SANK OR DAMAGED 20 LUGGERS AND OTHER SMALL CRAFT.

THEY DESTROYED MORE THAN 75 JAPANESE AIRPLANES ON THE GROUND AND SHOT 14 DOWN IN COMBAT.

AMERICAN PLANE LOSSES WERE LIGHT, AND NONE OF THE SURFACE SHIPS WAS DAMAGED.

VICE ADMIRAL MARC MITSCHER WAS IN IMMEDIATE COMMAND OF THE CARRIERS.

THE ENEMY SHIPPING LOSSES:

SUNK--ONE DESTROYER, ONE MINESWEEPER, ONE SUBMARINE TENDER, TWO MEDIUM CARGO SHIPS, TWO SMALL CARGO SHIPS AND FIVE COASTAL CARGO SHIPS.

PROBABLY SUNK--TWO MEDIUM CARGO SHIPS, FOUR SMALL CARGO SHIPS, ONE MEDIUM OIL TANKER, AND SEVEN COASTAL CARGO SHIPS.

DAMAGED--THREE MEDIUM CARGO SHIPS SIX SMALL CARGO SHIPS· ONE DESTROYER AND TWO SMALL OIL TANKERS.

THE RYUKYUS, ALSO KNOWN AS THE LOOCHOOS OR NANSEI SHOTO ISLANDS, AND SOMETIMES CALLED THE SOUTHWESTERN ISLANDS, SADDLE THE EASTERN ENTRANCE TO THE EAST CHINA SEA AND HAVE BEEN IN JAPANESE HANDS SINCE 1879, 15 YEARS BEFORE THE JAPANESE TOOK OVER FORMOSA.

THEY EXTEND FOR A DISTANCE OF 570 MILES FROM A POINT 60 MILES EAST OF FORMOSA ALMOST TO THE SOUTHERN TIP OF KYUSHU IN THE JAPANESE HOME ISLANDS.

MORE THAN HALF OF THE POPULATION OF 820,000 LIVE ON OKINAWA JIMA WHICH HAS BEEN A COMMUNICATION CENTER FOR JAPANESE FORCES IN FORMOSA, THE PHILIPPINES AND WESTERN PACIFIC.

ALTHOUGH THE ISLANDS ARE SMALL AND OF LITTLE ECONOMIC IMPORTANCE TO JAPAN, THEIR STRATEGIC VALUE IS GREAT AND MANY OF THEM PROBABLY CONTAIN AIRFIELDS AND IMPORTANT INSTALLATIONS.

THERE ARE SEVERAL EXCELLENT ANCHORAGES FOR WAR VESSELS AND FLEET AUXILIARIES IN THE CHAIN.

THE LARGEST CITY, NAHA, ON OKINAWA HAS 66,000 RESIDENTS.

THERE WAS NO INDICATION IT WAS AMONG THE POINTS BOMBED.

U.S.PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, OCT.10 (AP)-THE ISLET OF GARAKAYO, 10TH TO BE INVADED IN THE PALAUS BY THE AMERICANS, WAS COMPLETELY SECURED WITHIN 24 HOURS, THE NAVY ANNOUNCED TONIGHT. (CHANGE) OCT 11 1944

ELEMENTS OF THE 81ST ARMY DIVISION LANDED SUNDAY ON GARAKAYO JUST NORTH OF THE LARGER ISLAND OF PELELIU.

TONIGHT'S COMMUNIQUE SAID MARINES WERE CLEANING UP ISOLATED JAPANESE ON PELELIU AND OTHER FORCES WERE MOPPING UP AT ANGAUR, SOUTH OF PELELIU.

GARAKAYO WAS BELIEVED TO BE ONE OF THE ISLETS BORDERING PELELIU FROM WHICH AMERICAN TROOPS ON THE LARGER BASE WERE SUBJECTED TO ENEMY SHELLING.

TONIGHT'S COMMUNIQUE REPORTED THAT MARINE CORSAIR PLANES, WHICH ARE BASED ON AN AIRFIELD CAPTURED ON PELELIU, HAD RANGED NORTH IN THE PALAUS TO STRAFE FOUR SMALL BOATS AND NINE BARGES IN THE VICINITY OF THE JAPANESE-HELD ISLAND OF BABELTHAUP.

OTHER AIR RAIDS WERE REPORTED AGAINST THE PHOSPHATE-PRODUCING ISLAND OF NAURU WEST OF THE GILBERTS AND AGAINST BYPASSED ENEMY GARRISONS IN THE MARSHALLS.

U.S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, OCT.10-(AP)-STARTLED WAR CORRESPONDENTS LEARNED A HISTORY LESSON THE EMOTIONAL WAY YESTERDAY.

SERIOUS-FACED ADM. CHESTER W. NIMITZ KEPT THEM TENSED ON THEIR CHAIRS AT THE END OF A PRESS CONFERENCE BY READING A "COMMUNIQUE" WHICH DESCRIBED SENSATIONAL ALLIED NAVAL VICTORIES OVER JAPANESE FLEET UNITS OFF KOREA.

HE TOLD HOW "POWERFUL ALLIED NAVAL FORCES" HAD ATTACKED PART OF THE JAPANESE FLEET AT FUSAN, KOREA, INFLICTING HEAVY TOSSES, AND LATER DESTROYED ANOTHER SIZEABLE NIPPONESE FORCE.

AT THE END, HE SMILED AND ADDED: "THIS COMMUNIQUE, INCIDENTALLY, IS DATED LATE JUNE, 1592."

THE CORRESPONDENTS RELAXED WITH A SIGH AND LAUGHED.

NIMITZ WAS LAYING THE FOUNDATION FOR A STATEMENT IN WHICH HE POINTED OUT THAT THE JAPANESE NAVY HAD BEEN DEFEATED AT SEA IN PAST WARS. HIS PRESENTATION WAS SO SOLEMN AND THE TEXT SO CONVINCING THAT MOST OF THE CORRESPONDENTS THOUGHT HE WAS REFERRING TO A CURRENT ACTION. THE JOKE WAS CAREFULLY HIDDEN UNTIL HE ANNOUNCED THE DATE.

(A STORY WRITTEN IN THE SAME CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER WAS CONVINCING, TOO, WHEN IT WAS RECEIVED BY THE SAN FRANCISCO OFFICE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. THE FIRST LINES OF THE "COMMUNIQUE" WERE BULLETINED, THEN THE STORY WAS KILLED WHEN THE END OF THE DISPATCH REVEALED ITS DELAYED-ACTION ORIGIN. PROMPTNESS HALTED PUBLICATION, BUT SOME RADIO STATIONS USED THE ORIGINAL STORY.)

THE ADMIRAL WAS REFERRING TO AN ATTACK BY KOREAN-CHINESE NAVAL UNITS AGAINST JAPANESE FORCES INVADING THE KOREAN PENINSULA.

THE INCIDENT CAME AT THE END OF AN HOUR-LONG PRESS CONFERENCE WHEN THE ADMIRAL SAID:

"YOU MIGHT BE INTERESTED IN THIS COMMUNIQUE:

"'POWERFUL ALLIED NAVAL FORCES HAVE ATTACKED A PORTION OF THE JAPANESE FLEET LYING AT ANCHOR NEAR THE ENTRANCE TO FUSAN HARBOR ON THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF KOREA. TWENTY-SIX OF APPROXIMATELY 80 SHIPS IN THE HARBOR WERE SET AFIRE AND THE REMAINDER DISPERSED.

"' IN A LATER ENGAGEMENT, MOST THAN 70 JAPANESE VESSELS, INCLUDING WARSHIPS AND TRANSPORTS, WERE ENCOUNTERED BY THE ALLIED FLEET AND SUNK. THE DEVASTATING BLOW HAS ISOLATED ENEMY ARMIES IN KOREA AND CUT THEM OFF FROM THEIR HOME BASES'."

THEN HE ANNOUNCED THE DATE, WHICH HE HAD OMITTED PREVIOUSLY.

WASHINGTON,OCT 11-(AP)-SENATOR JOHNSON (D-COLO) EXPRESSED THE VIEW TODAY THAT SENTIMENT IN CONGRESS IS SO STRONGLY IN FAVOR OF A WORLD PEACE LEAGUE THAT "YOU CAN BE SURE CONGRESS IS NOT GOING TO BLOCK OUR ENTERING INTO SUCH AN ORGANIZATION."

OCT 11 1944

JOHNSON SAID, HOWEVER, MANY DIFFERENCES OF OPINION ARE SURE TO ARISE IN WORKING OUT DETAILS OF UNITED STATES PARTICIPATION IN THE UNITED NATIONS PEACE MACHINERY OUTLINED AT DUMBARTON OAKS.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT ON WORLD AFFAIRS WILL BE GREATLY DIFFERENT AFTER THIS WAR THAN AFTER THE FIRST WORLD WAR, JOHNSON SAID IN AN INTERVIEW.

"THE PEOPLE WEREN'T READY TO ACCEPT THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN 1919 AND 1920. THE FEELING THAT WE MUST AVOID FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS WAS TOO STRONG. BUT THERE WILL BE A CHANGED PUBLIC SENTIMENT THIS TIME."

JOHNSON SAID HE THOUGHT "TOO GREAT EMPHASIS" HAD BEEN PLACED ON THE PROPOSED INTERNATIONAL MILITARY FORCE TO PUT DOWN AGGRESSION. HE PROPOSED THAT A STRONG UNITED NATIONS INTELLIGENCE ORGANIZATION--A "WORLD-WIDE G-2"--BE ESTABLISHED TO KEEP A CLOSE TAB ON ANY NATION'S MOVEMENTS OR PREPARATIONS FOR WAR.

"WE NEED TO HAVE A METHOD WHEREBY WE KNOW FROM THE BEGINNING WHEN ANY NATION STARTS PREPARING FOR WAR. IF EVERY NATION KNOWS WHAT EVERY OTHER NATION IS DOING, COUNTER STEPS CAN BE TAKEN IN TIME."

HUGE FIRES RAGING IN CEN 'ER OF AACHEN, YANKS MOW DOWN GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS

CITY IS BLASTED BY AERIAL BOMBS AND HEAVY GUNS

Storm Troopers Shoot Nazis Seeking to Flee to American Lines.

FIRES UNCONTROLLED

Doomed City Without Power and Water as Bombardment Continues.

By HOWARD COWAN

LONDON, (Thursday) Oct. 12. — (AP) Enormous fires raged uncontrolled in the heart of Aachen early today as the doomed German city died the flaming death decreed by the American First Army, whose surrender ultimatum was spurned.

A defiant German attempt to reinforce the city in broad daylight resulted in a slaughter from American cross-fire and for five hellish hours before dusk last night 300 American fighter-bombers and 200 heavy artillery pieces punished the city with an awful avalanche of fire and steel.

Field dispatches said there was no power and no water to fight the flames burning in the 1100-year-old city where Charlemagne was born, built his palaces, died and was buried.

Terrified civilians and some Nazi troops tried to flee to the safety of American lines. Some got through. Others were shot in the back by the sprinkling of Himmler's SS Storm Troopers left behind to maintain morale.

Rescue Division Mauled

This was the death trap the Germans earlier in the day tried to pry loose with a rescue division, sent in from the east with orders to squeeze through the narrow, bullet-raked corridor between Wurselen and Haaren.

There was no attempt to conceal the desperate, ill-fated maneuver. The exposed columns, in broad daylight, instantly came under fire from dive-bombing, machinegunning Lightnings and Thunderbolts. American gun crews turned their fire into the Germans.

A major battle developed northeast of the blazing city as Yank infantry and armor smashed into the suicidal relief column and artillery and mortar ploughed steel through its ranks at almost point-blank range.

Sucidal Move

It was one of the most amazing moves by the German command since the Allies invaded France—moving troops in broad daylight and under direct observation against deadly American land and air power. The Germans appeared to number about one division (possibly 10,000 men).

"Obviously the enemy is trying to make a Cassino out of Aachen and stave off the Americans as long as possible in carrying out the Fuehrer's orders to fight to the death in protection of Reich soil," said Don Whitehead of the Associated Press, a witness of the desperate maneuver.

Promptly at noon, an hour and 10 minutes after expiration of the Allied ultimatum to the German commander of Aachen to surrender, hundreds of American big guns began throwing shells into historic Aachen and dive bombers began shattering and burning its ancient buildings.

Tonight Aachen was slowly falling apart under the terrific bombardment as the shells marched across its length and breadth and high explosive and fire bombs raked it from end to end. At times the German city was completely blanketed with smoke.

It was the "ruthless" destruction promised in the American ultimatum.

"Although I am looking right down into the heart of the city, I can see no real details of the immense damage that is being inflicted," said William S. White of the Associated Press. "Down in the main part of the city you can see nothing for the all-enveloping smoke-red, pinkish white and deep black.

"I have been able to detect no slightest movement in all the city, nor have I seen one living person. It is, in nearly every real respect, already a city of the dead, for those who are left down there are self-buried amid the ruins."

Of approximately 200 German prisoners who managed to slip out of Aachen and surrender before the ultimatum expired, nine declared that two Nazi officers had been standing guard at railroad tracks at the eastern edge of the city and shooting every soldier who attempted to get through to the Allied lines.

Whiskey Issued to Nazis

They said that the Nazi garrison, estimated at 1,500 men, had been issued whiskey and wine to brace them for the Allied bombardment.

In the midst of the thunderous shelling and bombing American observers were astonished to see enemy columns moving along roads leading to Aachen in the vicinity of Merzbrueck and Hatenrath. Artillery immediately was turned on the Nazis and dive bombers, which had just loosed their bombs on Aachen, dived in and strafed the columns.

"Whoever sent those turkeys into a situation like this was doing them no service," an American officer commented.

As a result of the unexpected enemy movement, Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' troops did not move against the Aachen defenses immediately at any point, but concentrated on keeping the Nazi reinforcements from reaching the shell-blasted city.

Rain and low clouds spared Aachen for the time being from feeling the full might of Allied air power keeping hundreds of great Flying Fortresses and Liberators and smaller medium bombers confined impatiently to their hangars in Britain and France.

A German radio commentator, apparently consigning Aachen to destruction, said in mid-afternoon that the "town" was one of the most bombed places in Germany even before the invasion started. It is of no military importance and useless as a center of supply.

Cathedral Still Stands

A late field dispatch said the great Aachen cathedral still stood unharmed amid the bursting explosives which were turning the rest of the city into rubble. A herd of Holstein cows was noticed grazing calmly at the edge of Aachen.

To the west, Canadian forces slowly but steadily closed a strangle hold on Nazis who from two sides of the Schelde estuary have prevented Allied exploitation of the great Belgian port of Antwerp, through which a stream of men, guns and supplies could be poured for the assault on Germany.

Driving northward from Antwerp, the Canadians occupied the spit of land which connects the Dutch islands of South Beveland and Walcheren on the north side of the Schelde with the Dutch mainland, cutting the only land escape routes for thousands of Nazis on the islands and at the same time opening the way for a drive by Allied infantry and armor against the isolated enemy garrisons.

Other Canadians clearing the south bank of the prized waterway widened their beachhead near Hoofdplaat and Breskens to more than four miles and forked inland neary three miles. These troops working their way along dikes in flat and partly flooded country were under fire from German guns across the four-mile-wide estuary near Vlissingen (Flushing) on Walcheren island.

A dispatch from the front said the Germans were evacuating this section and concentrating their forces on Walcheren island.

Day and night ferry service running along the coast carried ever more Canadian troops and supplies into the "backdoor" beachhead despite the enemy long-range fire, and the position of Nazi troops to the south and west became hourly more precarious. They were unable to bring any more strength against the beachhead, as their reserves were committed to the desperate necessity of trying to contain the main Canadian push across the Leopold canal to the south. Street fighting continued in Hoofdplaat, a field dispatch said.

The Allies captured Antwerp itself almost intact, with its miles of docks apparently in working order. Thus only the clearing of the long, winding 50 mile estuary which connects it with the sea was necessary to open Europe's second largest port to a flood of Allied shipping.

Fort Driant Battle Rages

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's third army troops continued their week long effort to root fanatic Nazi defenders out of the bowels of Fort Driant across the Moselle river from the French city of Metz. The opposing forces were close together in the winding underground passages they could plainly hear each other's orders.

The fighting centered in a curving tunnel which runs from the Yank-held south end of the fort underneath one of three main big gun batteries to the southeast corner. The opposing troops were trying to nail each other with carom shots off the tunnel walls, the Americans having found it unfeasible to use blasting charges against the defenders.

Other Nazi forts supporting Driant still laid down a steady fire on Americans attacking the stronghold, blanketing nearby roads with such a deadly rain of steel that it was necessary to evacuate Yank wounded in tanks.

Farther south Americans captured Parroy, 20 miles east of Nancy, cleared the enemy from Parroy forest and scored gains east of Luneville and Epinal. House-to-house fighting raged inside Maiziere, six miles north of Metz. Headquarters reported progress was made in the Champagney region west of Belfort Gap.

A field dispatch said doughboys fighting inside Maiziere were whanging grenades at the Germans with slingshots made of inner tubes.

New York, Oct. 11—ABSIE, the American Broadcasting Station in Europe, quoted British dispatches tonight as saying that German troops have begun evacuating Aachen and are moving out of the city to the northeast.

NAZIS RUSH RESERVES; MAJOR BATTLE NEARS

OCT 12 1944

German Division Racing for Shell-raked Gap —Hit by Air and Artillery Barrage— U. S. Ultimatum Is Rejected.

London, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—United States artillery opened an all-out assault late today to crush defiant Aachen, and the German command rushed up thousands of troops under a storm of shells and bombs in an effort to reinforce the virtually surrounded garrison. A major battle was developing east and north of the frontier stronghold.

American batteries massed around the ancient city roared in unison at 3:50 P. M., after almost four hours' preliminary bombardment and dive-bombing attacks. The blows to reduce Aachen began after the Nazi commander rejected a surrender-or-die ultimatum.

Enemy reserves nearly a division strong began moving up toward Aachen from roads east. Artillery and planes tore at these columns. Heavy fighting developed north of the city against the upper arm of the First Army vise. Another battle raged to the southeast, in the Hurtgen forest.

The reinforcing columns moved toward the mile-wide, bullet-swept escape lane northeast of industrial Aachen.

In southwestern Holland, meanwhile, Germans pocketed on the lower bank of the Schelde began to pull back to Flushing, on Walcheren Island, before a Canadian pincers. Other Canadian units already had cut the road to the mainland from South Beveland Island, east of Walcheren.

Third Army Men in Parroy.

Third Army troops entered Parroy, twenty miles east of Nancy, another late front dispatch said, and were reported to have cleared out both that town and Parroy forest. The heaviest action was in the Aachen sector.

"The enemy has been feeding his reserves in a nickle at a time like he was running a juke box, but now he is sending a man in to do a man's job," an American Army officer declared at the front. "There's no doubt his aim is to purge the 'sacred soil' of Germany of these 'Yankee gangsters' we hear so much about."

American artillery and planes immediately turned against the enemy reinforcing columns—perhaps a division strong.

Ancient Aachen, glorified by Charlemagne, was being beaten to death by big American guns and dive-bombers. The furious bombardment to break the will of German defenders began on the western edge of the big industrial city and marched across its center to the eastern end.

Heavy eight-inch guns, 155-mm Long Toms and 105-mm. howitzers thundred, and bombers hurtled down on the surrounded city By refusing to accept the twenty four-hour ultimatum of unconditional surrender or complete destruction, the German commander had sealed the doom of the city and its 1,500 SS troops.

Gunners loosed the first salvos at noon, an hour and ten minutes after the expiration of the ultimatum.

As a test case, Aachen indicated the Nazi leadership will see its cities destroyed rather than yield today.

White flags appeared over many of the ancient building of Aachen before the ultimatum expired, but they apparently were hung by civilians. Hundreds of civilians and a handful of troops moved under truce flags to American lines, but these came from outlying portions of the city away from the immediate control of the enemy garrison.

civilians, hiding in cellars of the already badly damaged city, remained of Aachen's 165,000 prewar population.

As the blows to level Aachen began, First Army men closed the ring tighter about the city. To the north they seized Scharfenberg and Bardenburg, advanced to Wurselen, and mopped up Germans in the southern part of Haaren, northwest of Aachen.

South of the siege site, Third Army men and Germans battled underground in a winding tunnel at Fort Driant before Metz, ricochetting bullets off the walls. Americans and Germans were so close they could hear each other's orders.

The struggle for surface positions in the fortress continued unchanged. Farther south, Americans virtually cleared the enemy from Parroy Forest, and scored gains east of Luneville and Epinal. A house-to-house fight was on for Maiziere six miles above Metz.

Canadians sliced the main highway connecting the Schelde estuary island of South Beveland with the Dutch mainland, lopping off the escape route for thousands of Germans holding there who have prevented Allied use of Antwerp port.

To the southwest, other Canadian infantry widened their Schelde River beachhead to four miles, and drove three miles inland in the backdoor assault on the Germans below the Schelde's mouth. Berlin said this seaborne landing east of Breskens opposite Flushing had been reinforced.

Violent fighting continued at the Canadian bridgehead over the Leopold Canal, spearhead of the push from the south to knock the Germans from the lower Schelde area.

The Allies heavily bombarded the holdout port of Dunkirk on the French coast.

Southeast of Aachen, the communique reported gains to the southeast of the German town of Hurtgen and patrol and artillery action near Monschau.

A substantial bridgehead was reported established across the Moselotte River in the Le Thillot sector, where "heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy." The Longagoutte and German forests were largely mopped up.

West of Belfort, where the American Seventh and French First Armies are striving to negotiate the Belfort Gap between the Vosges and Alps, "progress has been made in the Champagney region," headquarters said. The last Allied position was reported within eight miles of Belfort.

Radio Counted Time for City.

Attention, however, centered largely on the dramatic climax approaching Aachen. During the twenty-four hours which the ultimatum ran, the Allied radio at Luxembourg warned at intervals hour after hour that the defenders must make up their minds quickly, or see the city leveled.

"Achtung! Achtung! The town of Aachen still has twenty minutes in which to accept the ultimatum," said one of the last warnings at 10:30 A. M.

While the German garrison and the civilians sweated out the final minutes of the ultimatum, the German radio sounded air alarms in other parts of the Reich. One Allied formation was reported over western Germany before noon. Another was declared flying in from the south.

May Set Precedent

Many high in Allied military circles believe that the action of the Aachen garrison may well set the pattern for sieges of other German cities as they are approached. A quick surrender or overwhelming of Aachen might mean a speedier termination of the war.

The Allied ultimatum was delivered inside Aachen yesterday by three American soldiers carrying a flag of truce. The ultimatum carried to the Aachen commandant spoke of the city as "completely surrounded," but actually, latest field and Supreme headquarters reports indicated last night that a narrow corridor remained open northeast toward the heart of Germany.

The corridor, however, appeared an almost certain road to death. United States First Army machine-guns could keep the area under constant cross-fire.

Rain Bogs Down Front

During the period of waiting a heavy October rain set in, bogging down the whole front.

The Allies turned a succession of broadcasts toward Germany during the 24-hour period of waiting, in an effort to get word of Aachen's fate to all Germans. Associated Press War Correspondent Don Whitehead said in a field dispatch:

"The American high command wants them to know the story of Aachen—wants them to know that if their cities are to be made into fortresses then they will be destroyed. What happens to Aachen will set the pattern for every city inside Germany."

Aachen Is Being Beaten to Death

Whole Face of City Disappears in Smoke as Massed Batteries Blast in Unison.

OCT 12 1944

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE and DON WHITEHEAD.

Outside Aachen, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Massed American batteries opened up in concert against Aachen at 3:50 P. M. today in an effort to wipe out the city and the German garrison which refused to surrender it.

The real might of the American First Army attack was loosed after a preliminary bombardment of almost four hours by dive bombers and various field guns.

From the edge of Aachen, the besieged city could be seen being beaten slowly to death in a doomsday haze of multicolored smoke. Shells from 105-millimeter howitzers, 155-mm. Long Toms, heavy mortars and vast 240-mm. guns fell across the whole face of the city.

Divebombers worked over the city for 200 minutes and artillery laid down round after round in a carefully worked out schedule of bombing and shelling before the all-out attack began.

Aachen was learning what the American command meant when its ultimatum for unconditional surrender was sent in yesterday The ultimatum brought 200 Germans out of the city with hands up in surrender and after the bombing began forty-eight more scrambled out of the town to save themselves.

Word from a command post in back of us tells the real story of this mad defense of Aachen. Of nineteen German prisoners who came over to American lines in one batch—all enlisted men or non-commissioned officers—nine declared that two German officers had been standing guard at the railroad tracks at the eastern edge of the city, shooting every German soldier who tried to cross there into American lines.

The Americans laid 88-mm. fire on that sector in an effort to burn out those officers.

At noon—this silent city not having answered the American ultimatum for its unconditional surrender—big guns began to bellow against it and soon dive-bombers came screaming in shrilly, in flights varying from six to a dozen at a time. Their bombs sometimes are high explosives, sometimes fire bombs.

The whole face of the city is clouded in smoke which intermittently almost clears away. The Aachen Cathedral, built in 796 and containing a throne of Charlemagne, stands unharmed as yet and the sun is glistening now on its lofty spire.

The Germans simply are sitting like moles beneath their barracks down in the main part of the town. Their anti-aircraft guns are not active against our planes but a single Messerschmitt-109 just challenged us. It dropped two bombs near this position and sailed safely through our ground fire.

The preliminary barrage was a strange attack. There were moments of complete silence in which birds could be heard in it would break out again—our artillery bursts rolling through this valley, in which Aachen is situated, like heavy planks dropping on a concrete floor.

Just ahead is one of the main American objectives, Observatory Hill. It commands the city from the north and now it lies quiet, half in the sunshine and half in the shadows. A church surmounts its crest.

There is not the slightest stir visible in Aachen. White flags which some civilians had run up this morning before expiration of the ultimatum are no longer there. Storm Troopers presumably pulled them down.

Fires spring up and then are extinguished. The smoke above the doomed city is multicolored—here it is grayish, there it is brown. At still other places, the smoke is dense black. Our shells fly over with a sort of whispering noise.

American dive bombers first attacked at 12:30 P. M. Twelve of them roared over, and they came down in pairs, spouting bombs from each side. Most of these were fire bombs and seven blazes erupted at once across the city.

Flames spouted from the snouts of the planes' machine guns. Just over to the right, a herd of cows were grazing in a pasture on the edge of the town.

At 12:50 P. M. we saw the first sign of German reaction. Smoke was rising off to the east of the city in the vicinity of our lines and that meant German shells were falling there.

Prisoners have been coming into our lines all day. One who has just turned up acted as a guide in Aachen yesterday for the three Americans who went in under a white flag with the ultimatum demanding unconditional surrender. The guide said he just had enough.

The fate of Aachen was sealed today when the German commander of the garrison there declined to accept the American First Army's twenty-four-hour ultimatum to surrender the city.

Not all the German troops inside Aachen wanted to stay and fight to the death as their Fuehrer had ordered. Before noon more than 100 slipped through their own lines. They said many more wanted to accept the ultimatum, but their officers would not let them.

At dawn the Americans saw

hundreds of white sheets hanging from Aachen windows—obviously placed by civilians who defied Nazi orders for evacuation of all towns in this area.

If he accepted the ultimatum, the German commander of Aachen was to send a representative under a flag of truce to the railway on the outskirts of the city and arrange the surrender. The enemy was to pass through the line in groups of fifty, leaving weapons behind.

Lookouts kept a watch on the pre-arranged meeting place. Several times it appeared as though the garrison might be surrendering when German soldiers neared the spot, but they were only trying to escape and bore no message.

On a ridge top before Aachen we waited at a command post for word from the forward unit which was to receive the surrender if the enemy capitulated.

An Officer Shakes His Head.

The hands of an old grandfather clock in one room ticked off the minutes. Artillery kept firing, not into Aachen but northeast of the city against enemy troops forming up for a counter-attack against Crucifix Hill. Planes circled overhead.

The hands of the clock reached 10:50 and moved on.

A high-ranking officer came to the doorway of the command post, and shook his head.

"Yesterday we told the German in Aachen to surrender, or we would destroy their city," he said. "This morning they decided to let us do it. The officers refuse to surrender. Now we have to break the will of the officers."

"This ultimatum is not without its mixed blessings. We got a lot of prisoners. Each one of them was carrying a copy of the leaflets we dropped. There were about 100 in one group who came out of their pillboxes—and that is a lot of men when they are inside pillboxes. It saves us the trouble of digging them out."

In a cage nearby were 19 prisoners taken out of Aachen. A Nazi lieutenant was sleeping off the effects of a spree which resulted when all troops inside Aachen yesterday were issued whisky and wine rations—one bottle of whisky to three men and a bottle of wine for each two men.

Threatened By Officers

Many of their comrades wanted to surrender without fighting for Aachen, the captives said, but the officers threatenend to shoot any who did not stand and fight. The Aachen garrison has SS officers commanding troops to keep them at their posts.

Near noon the bed sheets which many civilians had hung out their windows began to disappear. Evidently the Nazis were forcing civilians to take them down.

Then, at exactly noon, the Yanks began hurling a terrible weight of heavy shells and aerial might against the ancient city of Charlemagne.

OUTSIDE AACHEN, Oct. 11 (AP)—Now Aachen is learning what the American Command meant when the ultimatum was sent in yesterday. Aachen is falling apart—slowly, it is true, for this is a big target, but falling apart, nevertheless. The first massed assault began at the western edge of the city and marched across its center toward the east end.

A major battle developed as enemy columns moved onto roads into Aachen in the vicinity of Merzbrueck and Hastenrath in broad daylight and started toward the mile-wide escape corridor northeast of the city.

"The enemy has been feeding in his reserves a nickel at a time as though he was running a juke box," one Army spokesman said, "but now h is sending in a man to do a man's job. There is no doubt that his aim is to purge the sacred soil of Germany of these 'Yankee terrorists' we hear so much about."

Immediately after they were spotted the artillery turned on the reinforcement columns and dive-bombers that had just unloosed their bombs on Aachen turned to strafe them. This is one of the enemy's most unusual movements of the campaign—to move his troops against American lines in daylight when American artillery and planes are able to strike quickly under direct observation.

"Whoever sent those turkeys into a situation like this was doing them no favor," one officer declared.

Obviously the enemy is trying to make a Cassino of Aachen and stave off the Americans as long as possible in carrying out Hitler's orders to fight to the death in protecting the Reich's soil.

The massed American batteries opened up in concert against the city at 3:50 P. M., releasing the real might of the United States First Army after a four-hour preliminary attack by dive-bombers and various field guns, which worked in a carefully prepared schedule.

Aachen was learning what the Americans meant in their demand the bombing began, another forty-eight scrambled out to save themselves. The German garrison in the city now is believed to be 1,500 to 2,000 in strength, with a sprinkling of SS troops.

North of Aachen in the Bardenberg-Wuerslelen area there was heavy fighting, with the enemy bringing in tanks to support his infantry, trying desperately to shatter the northern pincers closing in on the city. Southeast of the city there also was heavy fighting as the Americans drove the foe back across the main road leading to Dueren.

From the heights overlooking Aachen little of the immense damage being inflicted on the city is visible, but there are fires, and the main part of the town is shrcuded in red, pinkish-white and deep black smoke. Not the slightest movement within the city limits can be detected. It seems already to be a city of the dead, for those who are left down there have buried themselves in the awesome ruins.

Nineteen German prisoners, all of them enlisted men and non-commissioned officers, who came over to our lines in one batch this morning, said two German officers had been standing guard at the railroad tracks and shooting every German soldier who tried to escape to our lines.

One of these prisoners, a sergeant acting as platoon leader, was too drunk to stand. The Nazis had issued their men their monthly liquor ration yesterday, a bottle of schnapps for every three men and a bottle of wine for every two men.

Sunlight glistens on the spire of the Aachen cathedral, where Charlemagne's throne stands, and the edifice built in 796 apparently is unharmed as yet.

The Germans are holed in beneath their barracks. Their anti-aircraft guns did not challenge the American dive-bombers which roared down on Aachen earlier today.

White flags that some civilians had flown from their windows before the ultimatum expired disappeared later in the day, probably torn down by the German soldiers.

The preliminary attack began promptly at noon and at 12:30 P. M. twelve dive bombers soared over the city to release fire bombs. Seven blazes erupted almost at once.

A high ranking officer said today:

SECRET ARM A 'FLOPEROO'

Tram Car Loaded With Explosives Disappoints Engineers

OUTSIDE AACHEN, Oct. 11 (AP)—Army engineers today labeled their new "secret weapon"—an abandoned tram car loaded with explosives that was loosed against the Nazis—a "complete floperoo."

A group of engineers, sitting on a ridge at the edge of the city and observing the effect of the contrivance, gave this report on the new weapon's accuracy: "Thus far it is very poor, with a possible error of up to 50 per cent in range."

The engineers found a car barn with seven tram cars on the ridge. Filling a car with captured shells, bullets, rockets, dynamite, TNT, hand grenades and ack-ack ammunition, they launched an experimental model downhill. Some Nazi machine-gunners were shaken up along the route, but the fuse went off prematurely and left wreckage on the tracks.

An improved model was prepared, but it exploded and blew out a section of the launching ramp.

9TH AIR FORCE BOMBS AACHEN

Weather Grounds Most Heavy Bombers—Rail Yards Hit

GOLDBERG

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—While the great bulk of Allied bomber strength waited today for better weather that would permit a heavy assault on the German garrison in Aachen, dive bombers of the United States Ninth Air Force based in France began the preliminary soft-

[illegible]vy clouds in an attack on rail-[illegible]y yards at Coblentz and Cologne and RAF Lancasters smashed gun positions in Holland and bombed the dike near Veere.

One bomber was lost by the RAF in its operations over the Dutch coast.

Veere is on Walcheren Island, most of which was inundated recently by RAF bombing that opened holes in the dikes holding the North Sea. The new attack was designed to let the sea in from the east also.

Delayed action bombs were used against the embankment and a reconnaissance pilot reported severe damage had been done.

Gun Positions Hit

One formation of Lancasters hit gun emplacements on Walcheren and another attacked gun positions on the Holland mainland opposite Vlissingen (Flushing).

The Germans are holding the positions to keep the Allies from making use of the port of Antwerp.

For Cologne, it was the second attack in 18 hours. Only 130 Fortresses and 140 Thunderbolts and Mustangs in the Eighth Air Force participated in the daylight operation. Five bombers and one fighter were lost.

It was the first time in a month that an air force operated in less than 1,000-bomber strength. At least two jet-planes appeared, but German fighters offered no opposition and flak was [illegible]oderate.

An oil plant at [illegible]sseling, which had been bombe[illegible]before, was in the target path. [illegible]only one area was there visual [illegible]bing.

NINTH AIR FORCE MOVES TO FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 — (AP) With the movement of the entire American Ninth Air force from England to France, United States air strength in France now exceeds that of the R.A.F., it was learned today from War department sources.

While the difference in unit strength is not great, the United States had built and is operating a much greater number of air bases in France than the British.

The American fliers in France now have 20 air bases with concrete runways 5,000 feet or more in length, and of their total bases 25 formerly had been used by the German air force. An official here reported today that Allied bombers, principally American, had attacked 20 of those 25 bases two or more times since April 1, giving them a

Forts Lash Cologne, Coblenz Targets

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—Military targets in the areas of Cologne and Coblenz, key supply points close behind the Western front, were attacked today by American Flying Fortresses, escorted by long-range Thunderbolts and Mustangs.

The attack was carried out by a smaller force than usual, indicating hundreds of heavy bombers possibly were being held in reserve for the assault on Aachen.

The German radio reported formations of Allied bombers also swinging up across Austria from the south.

Lt. Col. Arthur L. West Gets DSC For Gallantry

With the United States Third Army Before Metz, Oct. 11 (AP)—Maj. Gen. John S. Wood decorated the youngest lieutenant colonel of the United States Fourth Armored Division today with the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in action.

The hero was Lieut. Col. Arthur L. West, 25, of Stillwater, Okla.

Yanks, Nazis Ricochet Shells In Tunnel Battle

By Edward D. Ball

United States Third Army Headquarters, Oct. 11 (AP)—One of the war's weirdest battles raged today beneath Fort Driant guarding Metz, with doughboys and Germans at opposite ends of a curving tunnel trying to blast each other out with ricochet shots off the tunnel walls.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's troops were using rifles, machine-guns and bazookas, and the Germans were replying in kind with carom shots flashing and crashing through the darkened tunnel.

The battle of the curving tunnel developed after the Americans found it unfeasible to use blasting charges against the Germans because the fumes were detrimental to the attackers.

The tunnel, which is the center of the fighting, runs from the Yank-held south end of Fort Driant underneath one of the three main big gun batteries to the southeast corner. The opposing sides are so close together in the narrow passage that they can hear each other's orders.

The surface situation within the fort was unchanged. Despite severe artillery and aerial poundings, the supporting forces still are lobbing shells at the Americans and the roads leading to the fortress. The enemy fire is necessitating removal of the wounded in tanks.

Chief Of 12th Corps Staff

With the United States Third Army Before Metz, Oct. 11 (AP)—Col. Ralph J. Canine, Columbia, S. C., was disclosed today to be chief of staff of the United States 12th Corps, which smashed German defenses on the Moselle and captured the French city of Nancy.

Canine, a veteran, served under two commanding generals, Maj. Gen. Gilbert R. Cook and Maj. Gen. Manton Eddy.

Bordeaux In Hands Of French Forces

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The British Information Services said tonight that it had established that Bordeaux, one of France's most important Atlantic ports, is in the ceived as to the fate of this port, which has not yet been reached by British or American forces.

"No important attack has yet been launched by the Allies on La Rochelle, another vital Atlantic harbor, which, it is announced, is still in the hands of the German garrison."

The two ports are in southwestern France.

Brussels Out Of Bounds For Allied Soldiers

Brussels, Belgium, Oct. 11 (AP)—This city of ice cream, beer, movies and gay cafes was put out of bounds tonight to all American troops, and similar orders are to be issued to British forces.

"Despite the [illegible] of luxury goods," said a [illegible] marshal, "many people here lack food and there is not much [illegible] space for troops.

QUEENS FLYER HAS FIGHT WITH JETS

A. U. S. Fortress Base in Britain, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—In their first encounter with jet-propelled fighters one day last week, gunners of the Flying Fortress "Los Angeles City Limits"—lost, crippled and alone somewhere over Germany—fought off two of them until friendly fighters arrived to bring them home.

The "L. A.," piloted by Lieut. John J. O'Connor, 66-58 71st street, Middle Village, Queens, L. I., was on her sixty-first consecutive mission. A direct flak hit silenced one engine and belted her out of position. To lighten the load the bombs were salvoed, but she still couldn't keep up. Lieut. O'Connor started off across country to catch the rest of his formation. The other bombers, however, had been diverted to a secondary target.

Two ME-163's swooped in for what looked like an easy kill. The Fort's guns kept them from getting close enough for that, although they dove at the bomber several times before a pair of American Mustangs showed up and chased them away.

One of the "jetties" scored a direct hit with a heavy caliber cannon, putting a foot square hole in the right wing. After dropping down to 4,000 feet to hold speed, the "L.A." ran into heavy flak barrages and suffered further damage.

"That's when the boys really went to work," Lieut. OConnor said. "They chucked out everything they could lift and in only a few minutes had us light enough to keep on going. We'd never have gotten home without that."

After a struggle of almost seven hours the bomber limped into the home base only an hour late.

8th Air Force Squadron Sets Endurance Record

A United States Bomber Base in Britain, Oct. 11 (AP)—An Eighth Air Force endurance record of 82 consecutive combat missions without loss of an aircraft or a crew member has been established by a Liberator squadron commanded by Major Donald H. Heaton, of Sheffield, Ala.

The outfit was cited recently by Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, division commander, for "your outstanding performance of duty." The highest previous mark by one bomber squadron was 68 straight missions without loss.

Two More Massacres Charged Against Nazis

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—French radio stations reported today that two more towns had fallen victims of Nazi atrocities, the Paris radio charging that German SS (Elite Guard) troops had massacred all but ten of the 520 inhabitants of Comblanchien and the Brazzaville station alleging that 120 Frenchmen had been hanged in Tulle in southern France.

The Paris broadcast said six German soldiers clashed with some of their own comrades in Comblanchien and shots were fired. The SS men from a near-by armored train held the villagers responsible, threw incendiary grenades into the houses and machine-gunned those who tried to escape.

The mass hanging at Tulle on June 9, the Brazzaville broadcast said, occurred because the commander of the German Das Reich Division was angered when the residents gave a tumultuous welcome to French Maquis units.

Germans Wipe Out Bergundy Town

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Paris radio said today that German SS storm troopers had massacred all but ten of the 520 inhabitants in the Burgundy village of Comblanchion, in reprisal for an incident in which the villagers were innocent.

The broadcast said six Germans soldiers had clashed one night with some of their comrades, and shots were fired. The report said SS men from an armored train near the village held the inhabitants responsible, threw incendiary grenades into houses and machine-gunned those trying to escape the fires.

French Communication System Aided Allies

Paris, Oct. 11 (AP)—Thousands of French lives were saved and countless confidential Nazi communications were flashed to the Allied command by Patriots working in France's national telephone, telegraph and postal system during the German occupation.

Messages ordering arrests and executions were destroyed, the chief clerk of the system said today. Valuable information was hustled to a radio transmitter in a Paris cellar and flashed to London.

"The best time was at night, when only three or four of us who were sure of each other's loyalty were working," said the chief clerk. "We often handled telegrams in code. We would cut stuff out and put other things in. For three solid months we intercepted some orders which Vichy was trying to send to the Belgian frontier."

SPAIN SEEKS TO END RAIDS

Offers Aid To France In Controlling Maquis

Madrid, Oct. 11 (AP)—Spain has offered the French Government "all possible facilities" to bring under control the Spanish Republican Maquis forces which have been raiding Spanish territory from France since October 4, it was announced here today.

The Spanish announcement, issued for publication in the morning press, said Spanish Republican forces who had joined the Maquis during the German occupation of France were now "terrorizing" the French and "dominate large parts of southern France."

All the raids from across the Pyrenees, the Spanish announcement said, have been "energetically repelled by forces defending our frontier," backed up by considerable units of the Spanish army.

Food Shipments Canceled

"The conflict above all affects France, compromising her Government's prestige, which is suffering its gravest, most lamentable crisis as a result of violence by foreign refugees," said the Spanish Government statement.

A shipment of 100 truckloads of food being given to the Belgian Red Cross by the Spanish Falange was canceled "because the situation in southern France makes passage through the region difficult."

The Republicans were reported to be concentrated at St. Jean de Pied de Port, Oloron, Bielle, Pau and in the Toulouse area, with "two of the most outstanding civil war leaders who sought refuge in France" in command. Names of these leaders were not given.

Said To Have 40,000 Men

Spanish Republican refugees in the Maquis movement seized the Spanish Falange headquarters in Paris a month ago, and since have taken over several Spanish consulates in southern France. Avowed opponents of the Franco regime, they have been reported to have as many as 40,000 men in southern France, and there have been several reports in the last week of clashes with Franco forces across the border.

MEMEL ISOLATED BY SOVIET ARMY, DRIVE CONTINUES

Szeged, Second Largest City in Hungary Captured by Reds.

BELGRADE ENCIRCLED

Germans Report Battle with Russians Under Way for East Prussia.

LONDON, Thursday, Oct. 12.—(AP) The Red army roared up to the East Prussian border west of Kaunas yesterday, isolated the great Baltic port of Memel, and on the southern front with the aid of Romanian troops seized Szeged, second-largest city in Hungary, and Cluj, capital of Transylvania.

The East Prussian frontier was reached with a ten mile advance climaxed by seizure of the town of Ponowi, the early morning supplement to the Russian communique said.

Repulse Counterattacks

Savage fighting developed southeast of Memel, Moscow announced, with the Germans throwing in four divisions of reinforcements and making more than 30 counter-attacks. The supplement said more than 2,000 Nazi soldiers were slain.

In a day of glittering successes for Soviet arms, Marshal Tito announced that the Russians and his Yugoslav Partisan troops also had surrounded Yugoslavia's capital city of Belgrade, but this was not confirmed by the Russian communique, which inexplicably was not broadcast until well after midnight. A Russian column reached the northeastern approaches to Belgrade a week ago but apparently it was decided not to risk wrecking the city by frontal assault.

The German radio acknowledged that Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's First Baltic army had entirely encircled Memel, port and chief city of Memelland. The Russians, already within nine miles of the city and cutting a steel arc around it, did not confirm that they actually had reached the sea on both sides, but said they edged closer on the southeast and extended northward towards Liepaja the corridor to the sea they had hammered home on Tuesday, isolating 100,000 to 150,000 Germans remaining in northwest Lithuania and southwest Latvia. If not completely cut off as the Germans said, Memel was isolated and tottering.

The Russians were silent concerning Riga, where their siege has reached to the outskirts of that Latvian capital and seaport, except to say that again their bombers had caused havoc among German transports in the harbor.

Free 50 Villages

The westward drive across Lithuania to the East Prussian border swept up more than 50 populated places, the Soviet communique said, including Priorisi, less than a mile from the border, and Ponowi, on the Lithuanian side of the frontier stream, the Ost Fluss (Sesupe).

The Germans, going even farther than the Russian announcements, said the battle for East Prussia had begun with Soviet assaults from three sides—from the north against Memelland and the frontier city of Tilsit, from the east, as confirmed by Moscow, and from the south in Poland around Rozan. The Russians were silent concerning Poland, and said of Tilsit only that they had heavily bombed German troops there Tuesday night.

The twin victories in the south, however, were heralded by an order of the day from Premier Stalin and salutes from Moscow's cannon for the Russian-Romanian captors of Szeged and Cluj. In the drive that took Cluj, 70 other populated places fell in the same mountainous area.

Twenty-four hours previously, the Russians and Romanians had fought within three miles of Cluj and had partly encircled Szeged at distances of a dozen miles.

RUSSIANS TAKE TWO BIG CITIES FROM HUNGARY

Cluj, Transylvania's Capital, and Szeged Are Now in Soviet Hands.

London, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Russian troops have captured Cluj, capital of Transylvania, and Szeged, second city of Hungary, Premier-Marshal Joseph V. Stalin announced tonight.

Szeged is ninety-five miles southeast of Budapest, and Cluj lies 220 miles southeast of the Hungarian capital. Both prizes fell to the Russo-Romanian forces, Marshal Stalin said in a broadcast order of the day. Twenty salvos from 224 Moscow guns were ordered to salute the double triumph.

The East Prussian port of Memel is surrounded by Russian troops, who have reached the Baltic Sea north and south of the city, the Berlin radio announced late today.

Earlier, the enemy said that the Russians had launched two heavy attacks north of Warsaw and that the German Army had abandoned its frontier bastion of Taurage, just across the border, in Lithuania, from East Prussia.

Memel is the nor[illegible]most town of Germany.

It was taken fr[illegible] East Prussia by the Allies aft[illegible] the last war. Hitler seized it [illegible]m Lithuania in a bloodless cou[illegible]on March 21, 1939. It lies at the north end of the Kurisches Haff, a Baltic lagoon, and seventy-two miles northeast of the East Prussian capital of Konigsberg. Its spacious harbor is protected by fortifications.

Russian Thrust Gains.

One new Russian drive north of Warsaw gained six miles toward the southern boundary of East Prussia, the Germans said. This was in the area of Rozan, along the Narew River. Rozan is thirty-three miles from the wild, Masurian lake country of East Prussia and forty-three miles northeast of Warsaw.

"The autumn offensive is in full swing," Berlin said. "It may now be said that the general attack on East Prussia has opened. This offensive was expected. The thrust past Lomza (in northern Poland) is directed toward Allenstein and Danzig, and the thrust from Memel is toward Tilsit and Konigsberg."

Nazis Admit Breaches

The new Russian drives were located north of Warsaw and south of Roznan, which lies near the Narew river northeast of the rubbled Polish capital. The Germans acknowledged local breaches which they said were "cleared or liquidated."

Taurage lies on the Jura river, 20 miles from Tilsit on the road between that city and besieged Riga, capital of Latvia. It is in an area where from three to five German divisions were shattered and threatened with entrapment, on the basis of Moscow reports.

Finns Report Gains

A Finnish communique announced the capture of Tervola, 30 miles northeast of Kemi, in fighting near the Arctic Circle. Northwest of Ylimaa, the Finns said they broke through lines formed by the seven German divisions which they must oust from the north under terms of the armistice with Russia.

The German communique said the Russians opened strong attacks along the Arctic in the Petsamo area, where the port and rich nickel mines were ceded to Russia by Finland under the armistice. Heavly battles were declared Raging in the Rybachi Poluostrov (Fisher) Peninsula, between German Alpine troops and Russian ground forces.

Reds 15 Miles From Tilsit

Moscow, Oct. 11 (AP)—Russian troops fought within 15 miles of the East Prussian rail center of Tilsit today after slashing to the Baltic Sea above the port, cutting land routes for up to 150,000 Germans still in Latvia and Lithuania.

Yet another death trap was being fashioned in a Soviet drive southeast of Memel.

Advancing along the last 50 miles separating them from the sea south of Memel, the Russians swept along the Niemen river in a lightning move which appeared likely to cut off from three to five enemy divisions between Taurage and Kirisches Haff.

150,000 Believed In Trap

Ten German divisions, totaling perhaps 150,000 Nazis, were trapped yesterday in a Latvian pocket north of Memel when Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's battering ram overran the Baltic beaches 15 miles above the besieged and shell-rocked port.

Red army forces southeast of Memel were less than eight miles from East Prussia's northern frontier. Oly 48 miles of the Niemen river—the Germans' defense line along the entire north or East Prussia—remained in Nazi hands.

(A Moscow dispatch received in London by Reuters said Red army artillery had begun shelling of Tilsit with heavy batteries brought to advanced positions on the Memel front.)

The army newspaper Red Star reported Soviet tank forces pushing down two highways toward Memel—one leading into the port from the north from captured Palange, and the other the Memel-Tilsit highway north of the Niemen.

German forces being compressed into the triangle formed by Memel, a tiny strip of southwestern Lithuania and the Niemen north of Tilsit, included a large number of tankmen and crews of self-propelled guns, who have lost their weapons. Badly battered infantry forces also were believed in the newly developing pocket.

German Shipping Bombed

Red Air Force bombers and fighters attacked German shipping at Memel and Riga, with low-flying Stormoviks joining the assaults on transports and warships in both harbors. Other aircraft bombed and strafed convoys and individual vessels off the coast from north of Memel to Konigsberg.

Bagramian's offensive, which already has mauled and crippled six German divisions, compressed the remnants of ten other divisions into a pocket between Liepaja and Riga, with no escape except the sea.

Meanwhile, on the Yugoslav-Hungarian front, one Soviet column was reported fighting in the outskirts of the Hungarian city of Debrecen, a communications hub controlling international routes to Czechoslovakia, Poland and Romania.

No Reports On Budapest

There were no new reports on the offensive aimed at Budapest.

(The Germans have placed the nearest Russian force at Szolnok, 50 miles from the Hungarian capital.)

Combined Soviet and Yugoslav Partisan forces advanced toward Belgrade, cutting the Nis-Belgrade railway and highway route with capture of Veliko Plana, 43 miles southeast of the capital. Several cities along the Morava river, between Belgrade and Nis, also fell to the combined forces.

BULGARIA ACCEPTS ARMISTICE TERMS

To Evacuate Greece And Yugoslavia In 15 Days

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—Bulgaria tonight accepted preliminary armistice conditions from the Allies, agreeing to evacuate within two weeks territories seized from Greece and Yugoslavia, in what was apparently a speedy result of Moscow conferences between Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Bulgaria's acceptance of prerequisite demands made by Russia, Great Britain and the United States was announced in a Moscow broadcast recorded here by the Soviet monitor.

Simultaneously, a Cairo broadcast heard here by the Associated Press said Bulgarian troops in Greece had received their orders to withdraw.

Allied Commission To Check

A tripartite military commission under the chairmanship of a Russian representative will check and supervise the evacuation of Bulgarian troops and officials from the occupied territories, the Moscow announcement said.

Evacuation of the Greek and Yugoslav territories—which Bulgaria obtained in her former partnership with Germany—must start immediately.

In the British house of Commons today, Minister of the State Sir Richard Law said a limited evacuation already had been started by the Bulgars from the territories which, he said, "they filched and robbed from the Allied nations."

Final Terms To Wait

The Russian announcement indicated that final armistice conditions for Bulgaria will not be settled until she fulfills the preliminary terms of withdrawal.

Allied governments, through the European Advisory Commission, have been considering these armistice conditions since September 9 when the Russians ended hostilities against the Bulgarian army after a one-day war.

There were a number of points on which the Soviet and Anglo-American conferees were reported to have disagreed and the entire Bulgarian situation — as well as other Balkan problems—was high on the agenda Churchill and Foreign Minister Anthony Eden took to Moscow for discussion with Stalin and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov.

Bulgar Withdrawal Limited, Law Says

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—Minister of State Richard Law informed Commons today the Bulgarian Government had expressed readiness to withdraw its troops from Yugoslavia and Greece, but that the withdrawal so far had been limited.

"We have repeatedly declared," he said, "that they will have to evacuate the territories which they filched and robbed from the Allied nations. With regard to the armistice terms, discussions are still in progress."

Discusses French Recognition

Discussing other foreign affairs in the absence of Secretary Anthony Eden, the Minister of State said he "thought" the French administration never had officially requested in writing the recognition of the provisional government, but in conversations the French had clearly indicated they hoped for recognition at the earliest opportunity.

Law said Portugal had assured the British Government that it would not grant asylum to war criminals, and that similar assurances had been received from Spain, Argentina, Sweden, Turkey and Switzerland.

He said the Government had accepted an offer from Japan that prisoners of war and interned civilians be allowed to send a ten-word cable home free of charge.

Gen. Brocas Burrows chief of the British Military mission in Moscow.

Foreign missions in the Soviet capital said that Stalin had given a masterly lead at a state banquet last night when he called for security organizations of the United Nations to see that aggressor nations do not again disturb the world.

Stalin's reference to such emphasis to the security of the world after peace was taken to indicate Russia's great desire to eliminate war and the reasons for war. The Premier's remarks were held to bear out the assertions of many Persons in the foreign missions in Moscow who have watched development of the Soviet Union's relations with Great Britain and the United States in this war said that Stalin's attitude as expressed last night "was the greatest kind of contribution" to future Allied collaboration.

Way Cleared For Discussions

With the keynote sounded by Stalin the way was cleared for Churchill and Eden to discuss the many topics they came here to talk about. It can safely be presumed that one of the biggest points of the conversations will be Churchill's revelations as to just what the British and American armies plan next for Hitler in the west and Italy.

Churchill also will be able to give Stalin a first-hand account of the Quebec conference, supplementing earlier second-hand accounts relayed through envoys.

The Balkans may be expected to occupy considerable attention from now on, with the Red army sweeping on toward Germany from the southeast. Russia is determined that Fascism be stilled here, as elsewhere, for all time and British and American interests in the Balkans will be open to full and frank discussions.

Watch Victory Salute

In the midst of a dinner given tonight by British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr for Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, Moscow's victory guns saluted the Red army's capture of Cluj, Transylvanian capital.

Exclaiming that this was the first salute he had seen here, Churchill arose and led the way to the broad windows of the dining room. The Prime Minister's face broke into a broad grin at the show and Stalin watched approvingly. The entire group of about 30 guests remained at the windows until the last rocket had arched over the Kremlin.

Stalin's attendance at the dinner was his first visit to a foreign embassy in Moscow and the event was hailed as emphasizing the friendship among the United Nations.

Polish Factions' I[illegible]ers Called to Mosco[illegible]ing

Churchill and Stalin Meet in Atmosphere of Warm Friendship.

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (AP) Discussions of the problems of peace and plans for bringing the war in Europe to a speedy close went forward in Moscow today in an atmosphere of warm Allied friendship and cooperation sparked by Premier Marshal Stalin.

(The Moscow radio announced Stalin and Churchill have arranged a showdown conference on the Polish political conflict by inviting representatives of the Exiled Government and the Soviet sponsored National Liberation Committee to Moscow for an immediate get-together.

(Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the exiled cabinet was reported in London to be preparing hurriedly for the trip and the Moscow broadcast said leaders of the Liberation committee and its companion group, the Polish National Council, already had arrived from Lublin.)

Foreign Ministers Anthony Eden and Vyacheslav Molotov met after luncheon today following a meeting from 6:30 to 8:30 o'clock last night, and a British spokesman said the separate staffs were working "very hard" at the moment.

U. S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Maj. Gen. J. Russell Deane, chief of the U. S. military mission, were hosts at a luncheon for the British military staffs, including Field Marshal Sir Alan Francis Brooke, chief of the Imperial General Staff; Gen. Sir Hastings L. Ismay, Chief of Staff to Prime Minister Churchill, and Lt. Gen. Brocas Burrows chief of the British Military mission in Moscow.

Foreign missions in the Soviet capital said that Stalin had given a masterly lead at a state banquet last night when he called for security organizations of the United Nations to see that aggressor nations do not again disturb the world.

Stalin's reference to such emphasis to the security of the world after peace was taken to indicate Russia's great desire to eliminate war and the reasons for war. The Premier's remarks were held to bear out the assertions of many Soviet writers that Russia's burning desire is for peace and an opportunity to build up her vast country, and for happiness, comfort and security for her many millions of people.

Churchill said of Stalin's remarks that "it is a sign of a great nation and a great man to be magnanimous and generous, and Marshal Stalin has been both."

Stalin spoke earnestly and seriously in a hushed silence when he said that peace-loving nations never were prepared but that aggressor nations always seemed to be ready.

"In the future," he said, "this must be avoided. This is the duty of security organizations."

In acknowledging Churchill's praise of the Red army, Stalin said that it would have been impossible for the Red army to do what it did without the help of the Allies.

POLISH FACTIONS' SHOWDOWN IS DUE

Churchill And Stalin Arrange Meeting Of Chiefs In Moscow

Roosevelt says Poland must be made a strong nation....Page 2

London, Thursday, Oct. 12 (AP)—Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill have arranged to bring together leaders of two rival Polish factions for a showdown conference.

The Moscow radio announced early today leaders of the Polish National Liberation Committee were already in the Soviet capital and Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the exiled London Government is ready to fly there.

Accompanied By General

The Moscow broadcast said that the chairmen of the Soviet-backed Polish National Council and the National Liberation Committee were accompanied by Colonel General Rola-Zymierski, commander in chief of their armed forces.

Thus the stage was being set for the two factions to sit down at the conference table with Stalin and Churchill serving as intermediaries to settle their dispute—the toughest diplomatic headache facing the United Nations.

Moscow Invites Pole Chiefs

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—The exiled Polish Government's Ministry of Information said today that Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk had been invited to join the conferences between Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin in Moscow.

The invitation, extended also to Polish Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer, tended to confirm belief that the long-standing Soviet-Polish dispute was a prime cause for Churchill's trip to the Russian capital.

Called Point For Churchill

It appeared here that Churchill had gained the first objective in an effort to end the dispute and mend a potential rift in Allied relations.

The Cabinet of the exiled Government, summoned into special session, approved acceptance of the invitation "in principle," and it is probable that the peasant-born Premier and his Foreign Minister will start shortly on their second mission to Moscow.

The invitation, and the fact it was extended little more than 24 hours after Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden had arrived in the Russian capital, underscored the importance which Britain's Government attaches to the quick solution of the difference between Russia and Poland.

It appeared obvious that Churchill had impressed upon Stalin the necessity for taking time out from direction of Russia's military efforts to help erase differences with Poland which have been seized upon by the Nazis in their propaganda campaign to split the Allies.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the exiled Government will stand squarely upon Mikolajczyk's memorandum to Moscow outlining his desire for long-term friendship between Poland and Russia and sketching a proposed coalition government for establishment after return to his homeland.

Five Political Parties

Under the coalition plan, the new government would be made up of Poland's five political parties—including the Communist party, which is the backbone of the Soviet-sponsored National Liberation Committee—on a basis of equal representation.

It would serve until a general election could be held.

Churchill-Stalin Talks Continue

Moscow, Oct. 11 (AP)—Talks between Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin and their aides moved forward today on a new note of harmony sounded at a state banquet yesterday at which the Soviet leader warmly praised British and American contributions to victory and toasted post-war Allied collaboration.

Twice during the elaborate three and one half hour luncheon, Stalin rose to emphasize the ties binding Russia and her western Allies.

The first time, he solemnly emphasized the need for post-war cooperation in the interests of international security, declaring that "peace loving nations are never prepared but aggressor nations always seem ready." This, he said, must in the future be avoided.

Allied Aid Hailed

Later, after other speakers had acclaimed the Red Army's triumphs, Stalin asserted that Russia could not have done what she has done without the aid of the Allies.

He praised the military might gathered by the United States and Britain, singling out for particular comment the high quality of British-American planning and the work of the merchant marine of both countries.

Thanks to Harriman.

Turning toward the United States Ambassador, W. Averell Harriman, seated on his left, the Premier emphasized Russia's gratitude for the great material aid given by the United States. Mr. Churchill was visibly moved by Marshal Stalin's acknowledgement of the Anglo-American war effort.

"It is a sign of a great nation and a great man to be magnanimous and generous," the British Prime Minister said. "I have always thought, and I think now, that it was the Red Army which clawed the guts out of the filthy Nazis."

Previously, in referring to the achievements of Allied statesmen in drafting the Dumbarton Oaks security plan, Stalin also had turned to Harriman and paid a special compliment to Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Toast To Roosevelt

After a round of Martini cocktails Stalin lead the way to the banquet hall, where caviar and zakuski —assorted cold Russian delicacies —introduced the elaborate meal. A toast to President Roosevelt was proposed by Molotov.

Churchill and Stalin sat side by side. When the guests retired to another room for coffee the two continued talking. Guests remarked that rarely in Moscow history had such lavish expressions of Allied friendship been made.

FDR Declares Poland To Be Reconstituted

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—(AP) President Roosevelt said tonight Poland must be 'reconstituted as a great nation," and told a group of Polish-American leaders that "world opinion is going to back up that objective."

The White House issued an exchange of remarks between Mr. Roosevelt and the leaders of the Polish American Congress several hours after the Congress delegates presented him a memorial urging that Poland's territorial integrity be preserved.

"You and I are all agreed that Poland must be reconstituted as a great nation," the President told the head of the Polish American Congress, Charles Rozmarek of Chicago.

Dr. Smykowski at Session

In addition to Rozmarek, who is president of the congress, the delegation included Dr. B. L. Smykowski of Bridgeport, Conn., among others.

"Of course," he continued, "we should all bear in mind that nobody here has accurate information about everything that is going on in Poland. Even I, as president of the United States, with access to all of the information which is available, am not fully informed of the whole story x x x.

"The broad objective which we all seek is excellent. I am certain that world opinion is going to back up that objective—not only to reconstitute Poland as a strong nation, but also as a representative and peace-loving nation."

The White House statement of Rozmarek's remarks said he told the President that the Polish-Americans are anxious to know whether Mr. Roosevelt is prepared "by all means at your disposal to insist upon and to defend the just principle of Poland's independence and also her territorial integrity without which the Polish nation could not remain self-supporting and could not fail to become dependent on her powerful eastern neighbor," the latter an obvious reference to Russia.

The Polish-American leaders also asked the President for assurance that America's policy for the establishment of a world peace has not "departed from the principles embodied" in the Atlantic Charter and the declaration on the four freedoms. They asked him to issue a public statement clarifying this government's attitude toward Poland.

Crush Nazi Industry, Red Star Demands

Moscow, Oct. 11 (AP)—The army newspaper Red Star criticized certain unnamed American interests today for expressing sentiments in behalf of German industries and demanded economic disarmament of the Reich after victory.

"German business interests are doing all possible to protect their interests after Germany's defeat," the newspaper said. "The German kings of industry expect to protect themselves by international cartels to which they belong."

The article added that unless the Allies agreed on the liquidation of German monopolies the Reich again would become the center of international cartels spreading over Europe and Latin America.

Red Star said some German industries, such as Krupp and I. G. Farben Industries, already had established branches in Latin America, Sweden, Spain, Switzerland and Portugal in fear of Allied control.

'Lost' 9th Army Seen As Key

By Howard Cowan

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—Where is Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's United States Ninth Army?

Secrecy with which Allied headquarters is surrounding this fighting force has left its movements and probable present location a matter of conjecture on both sides of the Western front.

Its whereabouts, when finally made known, may be the key to Allied strategy—the master plan to deliver a final knockout blow to Germany.

Element Of Mystery

Allied headquarters emphasized the element of mystery concerning Simpson's Ninth Army when it officially disclosed last night that the French First Army has been combined with the American Seventh Army to form the Sixth Army group holding the extreme right flank of the Western front.

Previously, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had said only that the new army group was composed of "French and American units."

There had been unofficial speculation that Simpson's Ninth would be a part of this army group.

In The News Twice

The Ninth has been in the news twice since its presence in France was disclosed in September. The first time was when Lieut. Sam Magill and 18 buddies rounded up 20,000 Germans south of the Loire river, and guided them to surrender at Orleans, September 14. Next was when the Germans—fishing for information—declared in a Berlin broadcast that General Simpson's men had taken up positions on the Belgian-German frontier.

Unfortunately, for German accuracy, there was no room on the northern flank, occupied by the 21st Army group composed of the Canadian First and British Second armies.

Other Positions

The middle of the line is filled by the American First and American Third armies. And the American Seventh and French First are holding the southern extremity of the line.

Is the Ninth poised in its secret location to exploit a possible Allied breakthrough like the St. Lo stampede?

JEWS ACCUSED OF TERRORISM

Britons Say Civil War In Palestine Is Brewing

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—"Jewish terrorists" in Palestine were accused today of "assisting the enemy" and of "directly impeding the war effort of Great Britain which is playing such a vital part in the struggle against Hitler."

The charge was in a communique issued by J. V. W. Shaw, officer administering the Government of Palestine, and General Sir Bernard Paget, commander in chief of the Middle East forces. It came as Oliver Stanley, Colonial Secretary, told the House of Commons recent terrorist outbreaks in Palestine "seriously impeded" the United Nations war effort and harmed the Jewish cause.

Murder Is Charged

The communique said officers and men of the British Security Service had been "murdered in cold blood."

"Innocent passers-by," it said, "have been killed. Government buildings to the value of thousands of pounds have been destroyed by explosives and fire.

"An attempt, providentially unsuccessful, was made to assassinate his Majesty's representative in ambush."

Civil War Brewing

Condemning "the criminals in Palestine" for aiding the enemy, Shaw and Paget called upon the Jewish community as a whole "to assist the forces of law and order in eradicating this evil thing within our midst."

Earl Witherton, Conservative member of Commons, said he had been informed that both sides in Palestine, where the population is largely Arab, were preparing for civil war when the World War ends.

Austria-Rumor Broadcast

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—With Russia and Yugoslav armies closing in on Hungary, a new flock of rumors sprang up today in neutral capitals and the Moscow radio relayed these unverified reports from Stockholm:

1. Disturbances in Vienna over a cut in food rations have spread to other parts of Austria.
2. Graz, capital of Styria, was captured by insurgents and the Germans now are threatening to bombard the town from the air.
3. The Hungarian Government has decided to evacuate Budapest's civilian population to western Hungary.
4. Diplomatic missions are quitting Budapest.
5. A number of Vienna professors have been sent to concentration camps.

Palestine Terrorism Seen Impeding Allies

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—Colonial Secretary Oliver Stanley said today recent terrorist outbreaks in Palestine "seriously impeded" the United Nations' war effort and did nothing but harm to the Jewish causes.

"It is most important that people realize the tense situation," he declared in Commons.

Conservative Member Earl Winterton said he had received information that both sides in Palestine, whose population is largely Arab, were preparing for civil war after the World War ends.

ENGLAND POUNDED BY ROBOT BOMBS

LONDON, Oct. 11—(AP) Southern England suffered one of its steadiest poundings from flying bombs in months tonight when the Germans made three attacks within a few hours.
